So your fear of passing out, your fear of losing consciousness is simply because that is the only way you understand how to create dreams. But now that you know differently, there is no need to pass out, but only to pass into a dream state while you are awake, and share with the children in that playful time. All right?

Q: Yes, thank you so much.
B: Oh, thank you for your sharing!

Fourth Density Co-Creating With Children
Fourth Density Co-Creating With Children

Q: Recently I find myself forgetting more and more.

B: Yes – a fourth density symptom. The idea that you now know that as you begin to live in the present, and not form connections to the future and the past – which are created from the present anyway – you will disassociate from needing to dredge up memories of the past. You will simply know what you need to know, in the present, when you need to know it.

Many of you will find that one of the fourth density symptoms, at first, will be to seemingly begin to forget things. You are simply relocating your memory – which is always created in the present anyway.

Q: I experienced what was like a temporary amnesia on Saturday, when the hours... well, I cannot remember them, I cannot account for them.

B: I have just told you why.

Q: Oh... and I mean, is that bad? It was bad.

B: It is not bad! (AUD: laughter) You are once again assuming that your memory loss is a negative thing.

Q: Well, I’m going to be working with children over the next week and...

B: Understand, children know exactly how to live in the moment. So you are only learning to live like them, so you can relate to them, and so they can relate to you.

Q: Well, I’m a little bit worried that I’ll pass out in front of the kids or something.

B: You are missing the point. Listen closely: the idea is that you only live in the present. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: There is only the present. Can you ever remember living anywhere else, anywhen else, other than the present?

Q: But it’s causing some problems, practical problems.

B: One moment. One moment... one step at a time. Do not jump ahead. You are again going into a future, which does not exist.

Can you ever remember a time when you ever lived anywhen else other than in the present?

Q: No. This is it.

B: All right. This is it. You are correct. There is always, only, going to be NOW. Always. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: No matter when you are, you are always NOW. This is quite literal. It is not meant to be just an analogy. You are always, and can only ever exist in NOW.

Therefore, as you begin to integrate all the different portions of yourself that you know you need to integrate to be able to function in light and love and service in fourth density – to be able to assist those children in the ways that they will be able to be assisted – you are pulling together all of your conceptions of the future, all of your conceptions of the past, and are beginning to function in the now moment.

Anything that you are worried about, anything that you think will be a “problem” – a problem only be a situation you will not allow to change shape, that is all a problem is – you will simply find that any so-called problems that you think will occur are only because you are judging that what is happening to you is not what is supposed to be happening to you. To be the person you want to be; to do the things you want to do.

The only thing that causes your worry is the judgment of what is happening – not what is happening. What is happening is not causing the worry. Your judgment of what is happening is causing the worry. What is happening has nothing to do with worrying. Nothing at all.

You are integrating and blending in a way that the children will be able to relate to, and so that you also will be able to relate to them. For children live in the moment. Doy ou of llo w m e ?

Q: Yes. So I’m not going to pass out in front of the kids or anything?

B: Let me put it this way: our perception is that it is very unlikely, but should you decide to do so... (AUD: laughter) ... it will be for a reason. The second you trust that if you decided to pass out, then it would serve as a lesson to you and to them. And allow them to interact with you in whatever way you have co-created each other to interact with.

And that degree of TRUST, knowing that should you decide to pass out, it will be all right – and the degree of trust in knowing it is all right – is what will allow you to know that you do not have to pass out, in order to share the lesson with them. And share the lesson with yourself, that all you are doing if you pass out is pushing yourself too hard. Expecting too much of yourself.

Q: I understand.

B: May I ask you a question?

Q: Yes.

B: Are you sure?

Q: Yes.

B: Oh, thank you. Why do you wish to teach children?

Q: Because I want to be a child again.

B: You are. Right now. Therefore recognize, that all you are doing is allowing yourself the opportunity to feel as a child again: living in the moment. The child-like state of being, of consciousness, does not worry about what happened in the past, or what is going to happen in the future. They are far too busy enjoying what they are doing in the moment. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, allow yourself to know that any passing out you may do, may actually be passing through, passing into the idea of a dream-like reality that you and the children can share. It will be, to all intents and purposes, and very literally, that you are sharing with them your own co-created universe together, your own time of play and sharing; your own reality, your own dream.

That is what you are perceiving to be the passing out, because you assume that to dream in that magnitude, means that you have to lose consciousness. Because that is the only way you are used to dreaming. Even though you are dreaming while you are awake – but you think you are not.

So your fear of passing out, your fear of losing consciousness is simply because that is the only way you understand how to create dreams. But now that you know differently, there is no need to pass out, but only to pass into a dream state while you are awake, and share with the children in that playful time. All right?

Q: Yes, thank you so much.

B: Oh, thank you for your sharing!
We will continue our interaction with the reminder that when we discuss with you any ideas – when you allow yourselves to fathom and interact and perceive any ideas, whether they be in the form of a statement to yourselves, a conviction of yourselves or a question from yourselves, allow yourselves to remember that because you have for tens of thousands of years formed the idea of separation – many times when you are dealing, as you say, with a certain idea, a certain aspect, a certain question in your life, the separation you are used to may allow you to look at one way to deal with it, two, maybe three ways to deal with it. But allow yourselves to remember that all we have ever discussed is applicable, all we have ever shared with you is applicable to each and every situation.

For every situation has many facets, and you may discover for yourselves, if you are willing to remember and put together as a total concept every single point of view and direction that we have been allowed by you to approach a situation within our dialogues with you. You will then not restrict yourselves to simply one way to look at it – two ways, three ways, four ways – but will give yourselves, through the conviction and the usage and the willingness to allow your imagination its free reign, the ability to apply as many different points of view and approaches to every single situation you are willing to create in your life, so that you will not feel that there is any isolated pattern or process that is being kept hidden from you.

Simply allow yourselves, when you consider any particular idea, to remember all the different ideas we have discussed with you so that you can apply them all at once in a blended fashion to the situation. So that the situation will touch, and will allow itself to be touched by any one of those points of view that apply immediately to the situation you are creating. Are you following along?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

The idea is that when we communicate with you, we communicate on many different levels at once, whether you are conscious of it or not. Allow yourselves the opportunity to recognize that no matter when we are discussing one of the things that we have discussed with you, we are at the same time simultaneously discussing all of the things we have ever discussed with you on all the different levels on which you have created yourselves to exist. The only reason you do not perceive them all at once is because you create yourselves to exist on all these different levels.

So it is upon levels that we create our interaction with you so that you can receive them no matter in what form you have fractionated yourselves. You follow me?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

B: Sharing!
Freeway Symbology

Q: I wanted to reflect with you about an experience I had... a re-occurring experience I’ve had lately. I’ll be driving in the car on the freeway, and when I get going at a certain speed, it’s like, all of a sudden, the car becomes like some kind of a craft, and pieces start flying off and then there’s an explosion.

B: Yes.

Q: And it sort of happened on some level that wasn’t quite conscious for a while, and then, all of a sudden, one day I thought, “gosh, it feels like I’ve been in a crash of some kind of spaceship or something.” And I wondered if that...

B: It is mostly the recognition of an explosion through a barrier, not a disruptive explosion. The idea is of attaining another level of finding the center point of infinite acceleration, in that sense, which allows you to have the sensation that all universes are contained within you in one given moment... and that can feel like an explosion. It is literal in a very real way on another level, in that sense, but yes, in that sense it is symbolic.

Q: Yes, that’s what I was wondering... if I was tapping into some other level, past, or future.

B: Simply in the cognition of some of the energy and the way it is utilized, when functioning through our spacecraft, to create the idea of navigational reorientation.

Q: So, more like passing a barrier than an actual explosion that happens?

B: Yes.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Thank you.
Free Will and the Oversoul

Q: Would you clarify this idea you keep referring to, that your reality is a perfect reflection of what you want, as many of us, because we have created the idea of separation, when you say, “you,” we consider that to mean our aware ego consciousness.
B: You consider it to mean that.
Q: That’s what I said... that’s what I meant to say anyway.
B: Thank you.
Q: Yeah, well, there are others who...
B: All right, but no need to speak for them, you are speaking for yourself.
Q: All right, I’ll do that.
B: Thank you.
Q: So, would you clarify this idea that since we have chosen to make...
B: “I.”
Q: Since I have chosen... you have too? Ha, ha. (Laughter) Since I have... well, I’m asking the question for other people.
B: Why?
Q: Because I understand the principle.
B: Are they here?
Q: Um, I don’t know.
B: How about you ask it for yourself? And then you may be able to share it with them later.
Q: Okay, I’ll ask it.
B: Understand, that no matter whether you say, I, or we, I will understand that you are asking it for yourself – that is my perspective of you.
Q: Okay, I’ll ask it as though I was asking it for myself. Ah, I create the idea of separation such that I view myself, my outer aware ego consciousness, as all that there is of me.
B: Yes.
Q: And then this idea comes along that I create my reality and I’m saying to myself, well, I didn’t create this accident. Obviously you’re referring to other portions of myself that I consider separate from myself.
B: Yes.
Q: And I create the idea of difficulty in connecting your use of the term you, with my outer aware ego consciousness and all the other parts of myself. Could you elaborate on what you really mean when you say, you create your own reality, and how it reflects all the other portions of our consciousness?
B: The total you creates the idea.
Q: What does that mean?
B: The non-physical, all right?
Q: Okay.
B: It creates the ultimate, quote/unquote, ultimate choice of what you wish to experience. In this way, that non-physical, higher consciousness you creates the choice of having a physical life, a physical reality. In this way, the physical you, the physical mentality that you recognize - you physically recognize - to be your physical mind, creates many of the methodologies of choice, the manner in which you fulfill the non-physical choice to have the experience.
By analogy, the non-physical you says, you will walk down this hallway. And the physical mentality determines how you will walk down the hallway, but walk down it you will.
Because the physical mentality is subject to the non-physical Oversoul. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Will this have answered your question?
Q: Yes. Now what about those cases where the physical beingness finds discomfort in that which the Oversoul beingness has chosen?
B: Then that is simply the way, and the methodology, that the physical mind has chosen to walk down the hall – in discomfort.
Q: Let’s think of it in terms of, like, an automobile mishap...
B: Yes.
Q: ... where the guy, to all his present consciousness doesn’t believe that he had anything to do with it.
B: So what?
Q: Would you comment on that?
B: I just did.
Q: Well, the guy...
B: To the Oversoul, it does not matter. The Oversoul knows what the purpose is. It is up to the physical mentality to discover that.
Q: Right. What I’m saying is, the physical mentality has not chosen a methodology for getting into an accident.
B: Then that is the choice, period. And that is the purpose of the life, to experience the idea of separation and the frustration that may come with it. But understand that when the being is once again non-physical, they will know why they chose to create it that way. And they will understand how it has added to the overall understanding and creation of themselves as a total being.
To the Oversoul it does not matter, ultimately, in this way, what the physical mentality thinks. If that is the methodology that has been chosen, has been preferred, then that is the one that will be physically lived. Understand that to the Oversoul there is infinity. There is no need to think that they are wasting time in experiencing a life in that manner. To the Oversoul, lives are simultaneous; it is all going on right now. Will this have clarified the idea to some extent?

Q: To some extent.
B: All right.
Q2: I have a problem though with this.
B: You have a what?
Q2: I don’t understand where the free choice comes in, when we are in the physical body.
B: All right. How you go about it is the majority of the free choice you experience in physical reality. The fact that you will explore certain concepts is the choice of the Oversoul. And the physical mentality will not be able to not explore those ideas, except in one circumstance – suicide.
But when you suicide, you automatically go back to the point where you know that this is what you wanted to do. And you will put yourself right back in a similar situation until you allow yourself to fulfill the agreement that you made from physical consciousness to your higher consciousness, and vice versa. Do you follow?
Q2: Yes, I think so, to a certain extent.
B: All right. Keep it simple, no need to complicate it. Recognize, in this way, simply all we are saying is that you, in your non-physical state, will determine to experience a certain concept or idea. The physical mentality will be the determiner of exactly how you will experience that – what symbols you will create, what situations, what kinds of relationships.

 Trusting that there are no interruptions in your life, and that everything in your life is a product of what you do want to experience, will allow you to know and to be in positive accord with the non-physical choices. So your life will become a positive, joyful manifestation, rather than a frustrating limiting one. Thus, you can in this way, almost actually, in a sense, not have to experience what you chose to experience, by allowing yourself to recognize what the experience is for, and simply integrating the idea within your overall knowingness, before you have to create the physical experience and put yourself through that. Do you follow me?
Q2: I think so.
B: That can be one of the ways in which you can allow yourself to go about learning what you chose to learn.
Q2: What about the interruptions? You said...
B: There are none.
Q2: No, but in the first case you said - “provided there are no interruptions.”
B: The idea, the idea that you create an interruption.
Q2: Oh, I see.
B: There are no real interruptions. Even if you create an interruption, then you have chosen to do so. You are not really interrupting yourself, you are still in control even when you create a situation in which it seems you are out of control; because you are controlling the idea of creating that “out of control” situation.

Q2: But we still have to interact with other people.

B: So what?

Q2: And they all have their own realities they are creating.

B: Yes, of course. But you have agreed to interact in many different ways. And understand this: one of the ideas for yourself, in what we have spoken of – in terms of not necessarily needing to manifest negative ideas, so that you can experience the idea you chose to experience – is to know that every individual already exists on every level of reality. And when you see them change, it is because you have changed yourself.

And in this way, all you need to do to interact with whatever level of those individuals you wish to interact with is to put yourself on that level. Then you will only interact with those individuals on the level you know yourself to be. Do you follow me?

Q2: Yes.

B: All right.

Q1: She made a point about freewill, and I think the point that’s trying to be made here is that in our outer aware consciousness, we don’t always have a control that the concept of freewill, 100% freewill, seems to be telling us.

B: All right.

Q1: And I think that’s the point that I wanted you to address.

B: The majority of what you would think of as, quote/unquote, true freewill, comes from the totality of your being – therefore, mostly the non-physical side.

Q1: Right. So then, in certain cases, of course, you know... whether I’m sitting in the chair or whether I stand up, is an element of freewill for my consciousness, but in those cases of burglary and quote/unquote, accidents etc, those being not freewill of our...

B: Oh, yes, yes, yes, yes, yes.

Q1: ... of our?

B: Yes, of your physical mentality. Understand that they are also ways to go about looking at specific whole concepts. There are very few specific whole concepts. The idea of being burglarized is not a specific whole concept, it is a way of allowing yourself to look at a portion of a specific whole concept: the idea of being abundant.

Q1: I understand that. What I’m saying is that the physical consciousness does not choose the burglary to occur.
B: Yes! Yes... it does. What the Overmind chooses is that you will explore the facets of abundance. Your physical mind says I will either explore this facet by knowing I am abundant and not having to have to create the idea of somebody being able to take something away from me, or I will choose to explore it by separation’s point of view and having somebody remove something from me. That is your physical mentality doing the methodology.

The only thing the Oversoul has decreed to you is that you will explore the idea of abundance, in whatever way your physical mentality chooses to.

Q1: So you are saying that we choose the burglary by virtue of choosing not to view ourselves as abundant.

B: The idea of separation as opposed to integration – this is all there is. Physical reality is polarity. All the experiences that you create in your life with your physical mentality all have to do with polarities: either integration or separation. That is it, that is all there is.

Q1: The point that keeps coming back here, is that we do not choose to have somebody burglarize...

B: Yes. (You do)

Q3: You choose it by believing in it and attracting it to you.

Q1: But I’m saying, not on the conscious level.

B: Yes!

Q1: Not on the physical conscious level.

B: Yes, yes.

Q1: I don’t agree with that.

B: All right. Understand that...

Q1: I agree with it on a higher level.

B: One moment. Your unconsciousness and your subconsciousness are not products of the higher consciousness. They are products of the physical consciousness, viewed from the separation viewpoint. Understand that even many of your modern psychologists understand that there really is no such thing as an unconscious. There is an excuse.

Audience responds, sighs: Aaah.

Q1: Okay.

B: Therefore, when we say it is a product of your physical consciousness, we are including “un” and “sub” consciousness.

Q1: Oh, so now you tell us. (Audience laughter)

B: Thank you! Does that make it clearer?

Q1: Yes! And that’s the point I’ve been trying to get at. We have a stream of consciousness that we know that... you know, our self-awareness... that’s what I’m trying...
B: All right, allow me to say one more thing.
Q1: Okay.
B: The viewpoint that you have a separation in your physical consciousness into an outer awareness, an un-awareness and a sub-awareness, is a physically conscious choice. It is a reaction from something you fear to face.
Q1: Okay.
B: Therefore, it is a conscious choice.
Q1: When you say it is a conscious choice, would you say we should also be able to remember making that choice?
B: You can. Understand that many times the only reason you do not, is that you assume it to be painful. In this way we do understand that your society, because of its choice of experiencing separation, has put certain limitations upon your consciousness that allows you to imprint yourself early in life with habits that you may not, in your exact vernacular, be outwardly consciously aware of, that you have.
Q1: Right on.
B: Understand, however, it is still – even though you do not recognize it – the mechanism itself of creating the unconscious and subconscious portions, is still a conscious act. You do decide, though you may not remember it right now, because that is also a product of the decision, but you do decide.
Q1: Okay, for someone who has an awareness of his thoughts and says: “Well, I don’t remember making that decision. I’m not aware of my subconscious, I’m not aware of my unconscious.” How would you state it in such a way that it would be clear to them that they are in fact creating their own reality, even though they do not believe...
B: One word. TRUST. Unconditional trust will allow you to open all levels of your consciousness physically. So that you will have one outer aware consciousness that can then be in synchronous harmony with the non-physical higher consciousness in an integrated point of view, rather than a separated point of view.

Understand that it is the symbolic creation of the unconscious and the subconscious, which keep you from consciously conversing with your higher consciousness. They are the blocks you create and put in between your awareness here, and your awareness there.
Q1: Then a statement that could be viewed as valid would be: even if a person does not consciously recall making a decision or something such as a burglary, it is happening at a level other than his outer aware ego consciousness. Whether it be subconsciousness, unconsciousness or higher consciousness, right?
B: Yes. But allowing yourself to know that you have made the decision to have this, will allow you to remember having made the decision.
Q1: Of course, but for a person who believes that he is only his outer aware ego consciousness...
B: Yes.
Q1: ... for him to realize that he does have different levels from which he is making decisions, and that it is in fact his responsibility, this will allow him to realize that there are other levels, and therefore, integrate them.
B: Yes.
Q1: Good, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q4: So could you please talk about what it is in the physical mind, some of the barriers involved, in seeming to stop the spirit from being aware of its own omnipresence.
B: What we have just discussed.
Q4: Yes, right.
B: The idea, in this way, simply is that you have a habitual ritual. That is all. Create a new habit. Trust that if that is the way that you feel you want to look at yourself, then act as if that is the way you look at yourself. And you will create a new habit that will allow you to see how that habit can only contain the idea of integration, and not separation.
And bit by bit, you will transform into that new viewpoint, and then all your actions will be based upon that knowingness of yourself, rather than a separated viewpoint of yourself. Do you follow me?
Q4: Yes. So it’s just a matter of re-education of the mind?
B: Yes. Your personality is an artificial construct, it is not who and what you are. It is a tool. It will do what you want it to do, when you know what the idea of yourself is, and trust that it can be what you are.
Q4: Well, if we’re there already...
B: Yes.
Q4: ... why are we playing the game of thinking that we’re not there, to be there already?
B: Why not, because that is one choice that you can do? It is something you chose to do and began the cycle approximately 25,000 of your years ago. Now this is the end of the cycle and you are choosing something else.
Q4: Are you saying this to me personally or...
B: All of you. That is why you are here in this transformational life.
Q4: And 25,000 years is the time period for this phase of humanity?
B: Yes.
Q4: Where were we before?
B: Before the 25,000 years?
Q4: Yes.
B: In many other civilizations and many other ideas, both on this planet and off.
Q4: So we came here to get messed up, uh?
B: In a sense. (Audience laughs and sighs) Understand this idea: one of the ways in which you can know you are creating more of yourself is by the creation of very rapid, accelerated, intensified, highly focused experience – another term for physical reality. It is a great acceleration of what you want to learn, because it is so intensely focused.
Q4: So in other words, a being wants that much more of himself, so he seems to take away more to find out how much more he is?
B: Yes. Very good!
Q4: Thanks.
B: Oh, thank you.
Frequency Alignment and Relationships

B: All right, I’ll say: did you have a question?

Q: I have a question. Hello.
B: Hello.

Q: I have a situation involving myself and my husband and my son. At the moment there is some disharmony in the relationship.
B: Disharmony, all right.

Q: In the last three months I have learned a great deal about what it is that I do want – something which excites me, as you would say.
B: All right.

Q: I have changed my operating basis radically, and I believe I am doing a lot of the right things to bring about the outcome that I desire.
B: All right.

Q: In order for it to occur, of course, requires participation from my husband.
B: Why?

Q: Because my desire has to do with achieving harmony within the family unit.
B: Allow us to delineate some ideas about harmonics.

Q: All right.
B: Everyone is not just isolated to the level in which you think you typically operate. Everyone exists on every level there is to exist upon already – now. The portion of them you are dealing with at any given moment, the version of them you are dealing with at any given moment, is reflective of the frequency level you are on. When you change the frequency level you are on, then the version of them you will deal with will be the one representative of the frequency level you have changed to. They, that version of them, will already be there and will be equal to the idea that that frequency represents.
Q: Does that mean I have another frequency yet to go to, in order to get what I want?

B: To some degree, you have simply, let us say, instead of going from frequency A to frequency B, are holding at frequency A.5. Frequency A.5 being that you are waiting in expectation to see certain things you think are necessary to see before you allow yourself to go all the way to frequency B. Trusting in you doing so will automatically allow the situation around you to change, because the situation around you will only be a reflection of the change you have made. If there is anything in your reality you wish to see changed, then change yourself and it will change.

However, you may in your assumptions and expectations be assuming that you will be dealing, or must deal, with the same individual to whom you are referring to as your husband. Recognize that when you make a change to another frequency and are dealing with that version of them, it isn’t the same person anyway. So why continue to insist that it must physically be the same person? Because even if it is the same physically appearing person, if you sense the difference in them, it isn’t the same person – literally, really, so why do you insist that it must appear to be the same person?

Now, you do not have to answer that at this point; this is mostly rhetorical. We simply bring it up to point out that, paradoxically, when you remove the need for it to be the same person that you must deal with after you make a change, that is when you most often open up to the probability that it will be the same physical person. Because in making no demands on them, you then give them the best opportunity to also change within themselves, according to the change they perceive within you.

However, when you change, whoever it is that needs to be there to be reflective of the change you have made will be the person and people in your life. And they will feel like the right people because they will be on your wavelength; you will be on theirs. So even if your husband decides to be on your wavelength, it won’t be the same husband – literally. Because a person is not who or what you are; it is an idea construct to represent the idea your consciousness is being at any given moment. You follow me?

Q: Yes, pretty much.

B: Does this assist you to some degree?

Q: Yes. May I…?

B: Does it allow you to relax a little bit?
Q: A little bit.
B: All right. Continue.

Q: What I’m getting from that is that I should cease…

B: Not should. “I can choose to.”

Q: I can choose to stop spending my time expecting things, and to get on with doing some of the things that I indeed feel like doing.

B: Very good! Because then you will be being the person to whom these other people you desire to interact with can come. That’s why you are on A.5 and they can’t find your frequency. “Where is she? Where did she go? She’s not really who she was, and she’s not really being who she could be. Where did she go; we can’t find her. There’s nothing to relate to.” You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: You have slipped in between the known frequencies. You are in a holding pattern. As soon as you begin to be representative of who you know you are, you will burst forth on the scene clear as a bell, and then people will be able to find you. Then they will have something to interact with, and whoever it needs to be will be the appropriate individual or individuals that represent the frequency you are now tuned into. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you. Sharing.

"Frequency Domains"
Q: When you say frequency...
B: Yes?
Q: You’re talking about the vibrational rate of...
B: Consciousness.
Q: Consciousness.
B: Yes, which creates a reality domain to reflect back to that consciousness the experience of itself, and allows it to experience itself as if it inhabited that domain that it is creating.
Q: To me, frequency means an oscillation of something physical.
B: Why?
Q: Well, because that’s physics, that’s what frequency means.
B: All right, but the concept is still transportable to even, what you might consider to be, more highly rarefied forms of energy.
Q: Okay, but in that case, then if it’s not a physical object vibrating at a certain oscillation...
B: Yes?
Q: ... then...
B: Do you consider light to be a physical object?
Q: Not necessarily.
B: Does it then not vibrate? Does it not have a frequency or a variety of frequencies? Yes or no?
Q: Aha.
B: Shall we begin again?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you consider light to be a physical object?
Q: Not necessarily.
B: Does it vibrate? Does it oscillate? Does it have different frequency pitches? You know it does.
Q: Well, it does, in the sense, as a result of the physical object that is creating that light.
B: That is not the point.
Q: No?
B: The point is that even though the light itself may be connected to certain physical parameters in its creation, so to speak ... which is actually not true, but we’ll go that way for now... still, yet unto itself, when the light effect is created, when light itself is measured even by your human instrumentation, it is seen to possess frequency.

Q: Okay.
B: Yes?
Q: In terms, yes, of...
B: Well? Then it doesn’t necessarily require that a physical object, being a solid object, is the only thing that can possess the quality you call frequency.
Q: Okay, so...
B: Make sense?
Q: It does.
B: All right, then does that help you extrapolate the idea of frequency to the non physical realms, if you think of them more as energy domains that can still possess different frequencies? Does that help as an illustration?
Q: Yes, I guess so, if I think in terms of wave oscillations.
B: Yes. I understand that many of you may have difficulty in understanding the idea, because you ask the question, "oscillation of what?"
Q: Right.
B: And you have to envision some actual medium. But consciousness is the ultimate medium, and consciousness, in its variety of oscillations, is what creates the things that you call light and physical objects.
Q: Okay.
B: Do you follow? The idea of physical objects is one, just to speak hierarchically for a moment, one of the lowest levels of frequency domains; and almost everything else comes first, rather than the other way around. Rather than the physical objects creating light, it is light that gives birth to physical objects.
Q: Okay.
B: Do you follow? Just to speak linearly, but again, as with everything else, it is actually a simultaneous co-creation or co-reflection or relationship of one aspect of the infinite to another aspect of itself. But we will not go into that esoteric direction right now. All right, does this serve you?
Q: Well, one other question. Do you do out of the body astral projection?
B: Do you mean me, personally?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: Yes, I do, but again, it is not literally out of the body, but we understand what you mean.
Q: So you could come here in astral form?
B: Oh, I have many times.
Q: Could you do it right now?
B: I am.
Q: So, your astral body, so to speak, is somewhere in this room, and all of us are...
B: Well, it is in a version of what you refer to as a room.
Q: Okay, and could you, if you wished, slow down the vibrational rate of your astral body and materialize?
B: In time, yes ... not now, in time. This is part of the idea, anyway, of contact. Because remember that our species anyway exists at a higher frequency rate than yours does, and slowing our frequency down, to some degree, is a part of your ability to perceive us physically, anyway. But we will need you to raise your frequency up to a certain degree to, in some senses, meet us halfway before it will be appropriate, and so that your system will not, in a sense, experience shock at being overwhelmed by too high a frequency. This is not a judgment but simply a description of physical contact. Do you follow that?
Q: I do. Thank you, Bashar.
B: For us, the idea also at this point in our evolution of astral existence and physical existence is almost the same thing, because we are evolving into something more non-physical. So, in that sense, the idea of astral projection is almost our normal experience. Do you follow?
Q: I do.
B: Thank you.
Frequency Representations

Q: I have some questions from John, who is from Dallas, Texas. And I’d like to ask these for him and his wife. He said: “Several years ago, I had a spontaneous out-of-body journey to a planet, the Sun One; I was greeted by an elder who addressed me by the name Arno. Could you offer any insights? Is this the name whose vibratory frequency represents my soul self, whatever?”

B: In a sense, for now, yes, it will do. There are also some other connections that we perceive, but it will do as a reflection to relate to – from the point of view you are now as a physical being. It will assist in the blending of the vibration of your higher self with the physical being that you are.

Q: Thank you. And the third one is that you’ve mentioned about 7-1/2 cycles. And because of the projects that he’s involved in, he wanted to know if he had – he’s got three listed here: 7.542, 7.538, or 7.646 inches per second.

B: What about it?

Q: He wanted to know if one of those is more accurate than 7.5?

B: Not more accurate; they are all variations of the same thing, with relationship to the fluctuations in the electromagnetic field. There is also a 7.86m, and there are some other ones. In this way, simply recognize that the individual’s own experimentation will allow there to be the arrival at an appropriate frequency. And that frequency will fluctuate to some degree, anyway. It is not that it maintains an exact periodicity.

Q: Fluctuation. Good. Last question is: he said that you have mentioned before – he wanted to know how long you might predict that the length – how long will it be before organized religion as we know it will change?

B: Our perception is that definitely within the next 30 of your years. Within that, all is malleable. It can happen sooner. It is up to you.

Q: Thank you. That’s all.

B: Thank you.
Friendship And Multidimensionality

Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I have a question about a fear that I became aware of a couple of years ago.
B: Speak up. Speak up. Speak up!
Q: I have a question about a fear that I became aware of a couple of years ago.
B: Yes. Is it still with you?
Q: Yes.
B: All right.
Q: It’s a fear of speed, a fear of crashing if I go too fast.
B: Crashing, if you go too fast.
Q: And it started out very simply, so that if I was with someone who drove too fast, or did a jackrabbit start or something, I would just get terrified.
B: Jackrabbit start.
Q: Yes... You are such a trip! ... So my question is, where did the fear come from, and what can I do to keep it from limiting me as it does at times?
B: May I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you! If you went as fast as you thought you could go, do you think you would out-distance everyone and leave them behind?
Q: Yes. It leaves me with a feeling of loneliness.
B: Do you recognize that for every vibration you are willing to be – for every frequency, for every reality you are willing to be – there is always an infinite amount of beings already waiting on that level for you to join them?
Q: But then I would have to leave behind the people...
B: No, no, no. You will encounter the aspects of those individuals that already exist on the level you’re going to.

Now, the idea again is to understand that the external representation does not carry meaning intrinsically. Therefore, it is not a matter of leaving someone behind, literally. The idea simply is that everyone already exists on every level there is to exist upon; everyone has an aspect on every level. Some of them are more or less focused, more or less concentrated, more or less expressed. But they have aspects on every level of reality you can possibly exist upon. You will still be dealing with them, in an overall sense, but you will be dealing with the version of them that is most representative of the level you have now created yourself to exist upon as well.
So you haven’t, in a sense, left them behind. You have joined another facet of them. Understand?

Q: Kind of; but it sounds like I’m already somewhere else.

B: We are only using your colloquial language, because there is no other way to say it. You never really go anywhere – not literally. All motion is an illusion; it is all here, now! It is only the idea of listening to another program because you have shifted your dial. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: The other program, the one you are no longer listening to, is still there. It is simply that you are now expressing a preference for another program. Now, you do not have to feel the idea of loss or regret or sadness. That is only based upon the assumption that you actually are literally detached from them. You aren’t.

The idea also is that you can be of best service to them by being most fully who you are, because then, if they desire to join you – by seeing who you fully are – they then get an idea, by seeing the example in you, of what it is they need to be to match you, to join you.

Now, if they don’t want to match you, if they do not want, in that way, to share with the you you prefer to be, then why would you want to share directly with them? Understand?

In other words: the idea of having a “friend” that resents the changes that you make... by definition, then means that that person was not really being a friend. And by judging that you can lose a friend just by changing in a way that is natural for you, is to not really believe in what friendship is, and eternity is. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: You will always be with all of your friends – the ones that are willing to match your frequency, the ones that are willing to look at those ideas now. Any other individuals that are not willing to look at those ideas can still be your friends; but the idea is that you will be of best service to them by being fully the friend you know yourself to be. Otherwise you’re only giving half a picture of yourself. And that’s not friendship either. So in a sense, you are not there for them, if you’re not being fully who you are – by going where you need to be. Understand?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, it does.

B: Well, thank you very much, my friend.

Q: Thank you.

B: Sharing!

Friendship and Multidimensionality
From Dark To Light

Q: I have a question in regards to some information that I was studying about a year ago.
B: All right. Speak up and be bold.
Q: Okay. Well, I’m trying to create a blend and integrate all the...
B: Trying! I am creating a blend.
Q: I am creating a blend.
B: Is that your intention?
Q: Yes.
B: Then say you are doing it. Have some conviction.
Q: Okay, great. I’m doing it. And I’m wondering if you could give me some focus as to where the connection is. I studied something called the Cosmic Mandate, the blueprint for immortality.
B: All right.
Q: And it’s channeled from the Orion energy by a woman by the name of Patricia Rochelle Digo.
B: The idea now is that it is representative of some of the first stages, some of the first levels of the transformation of the old Orion negativity into Orion light, into the positive idea, the positive side. It is the laying down of a lighter template, a lighter structure – one far more interchangeable, far more malleable, than the older Orion structures used to be. (1988)
The idea, of course, always, fundamentally, for everyone is to understand that every single ritual, and every single methodology, is just one more tool, one more way. And if it works for you, by all means enjoy it and use it, if it no longer works for you, or if you change into some other methodology, then go with that. And no longer use the ones that don’t work for you. It is as simple as that.
No other connection really needs to be understood. If it gives you joy, if it helps you grow, if it serves you and helps you serve others in a positive way – use it. If it stops doing that, you have changed. Use something else.
But you are connecting into the idea of the changing of the format of the old Orion light into the new Orion light – from dark to light. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you? Is that sufficient?
Q: Yes. It does.
B: Are you sure?
Q: Well, no. Not really.
B: All right, I did not think so.
Q: The universal principles that are behind the blueprint is what I was kind of trying to figure out.
B: How do they allow you to feel when you use them?
Q: It feels like a very solid foundation.
B: All right. There is only, in a sense, a few things that describe the solid foundation of existence – those background principles. One: you exist. That is common for everyone. Two: what you put out is what you get back. That is common for everyone. That’s it.
Q: Thank you.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes, it does. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

From Dark to Light
Q: Last time when Pamela was talking about Linda Wiegand whose children are being abused>
B: Yes.
Q: By a cult.
B: Yes.
Q: And you wouldn’t talk about it, but you did say that “you are there for her.”
B: Yes.
Q: You were being specific for Pamela for the moment.
B: Yes.
Q: And I assume that you are there for all of us that are helping her.
B: Yes.
Q: I was wondering what you mean by “there for us” in what sense are you there for us?
B: I will give you one level of it. Remember that many of the strongest interactions that we and other beings such as ourselves and or spirit beings have with many humans is in what you call the dream state. In many dream interactions we are having what you consider to be on going contact, conversation, communication, interaction. In so far as you are willing, many of you, to stretch out in your dream state to see what it is you can do about changing your physical reality once you reconnect to it in what you call your waking state, we are there with you in those dream states discussing, planning, orientating, teaching, reflecting, learning and sharing the myriad of ideas that can be applied in your physical reality that you think is best to apply for the purpose for what is best for all concerned. And on that level that is one way that we are there for you. But when you wake up in your physical reality in that many of you have still understood this physical reality game on Earth to be one that requires random unknown in order to function in a way you prefer it to then many of you will simply, empirically forget many of those conversations consciously you will push them into a level of yourself that you typically call the subconscious so that it can run on automatic and simply allow you to direct yourself towards certain events in a spontaneous and creative way so that it simply doesn’t become robotic or automatic in terms of how you fulfill what it is we have discussed in the etheric dream state realm. Because then you allow yourself the spontaneity of creation as to how to transform these things and it simply isn’t the rote practice of simply repeating the steps we are talking about because there will always be a new factor when you are connected to a different reality such as physical life there will always be the spontaneous moment to moment creation that you have to take into account. So, in order to do that in the way that is best, you allow yourself to forget some of the things that we discussed, not that you will not implement them but you will implement them according to how it is appropriate for the physical reality you have reconnected to. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that answer your question?
Q: Yes, I have more.
B: Yes, all right I figured that was the case.
Q: Are there more alien groups than just yours that are helping her and us?
B: Oh, yes. yes, yes, yes, yes.
Q: Can you name any of them?
B: Well many of them you know or some of them you know in the sense of what you typically call the Pleadians and the Orion’s, and the Sirius group there are several and there are some we can not name at this time.
Q: But some of those groups are specifically helping this women, this situation?
B: Some individual members in some of those groups are specifically helping the women you are referring to and many other people on your planet with regard to this particular issue which is a very important issue on your planet at this time since it is time to break the chain on your planet of those situations and circumstances that have created much of the disfunctionality in many of the adults, or the so called adults, that exist on your planet at this time.
Q: Are you referring specifically to pedophilia or satanic....
B: All forms of what you typically call abuse. All forms of what you typically call the devaluation of the soul.
Q: Is there also Angelic help involved?
B: Yes, but that is not what we call an extraterrestrial being, per se in the way you classically mean it.
Q: Right. And what is an Angel and how does it differ from a spirit guide?
B: The Angelic consciousness is, as we refer to it, the level of consciousness that is the first differentiation from the One. It is the first level of split off from the undifferentiated whole of All That Is. The first reflection, the first moment of awareness, just to speak linearly, that what you call God or All That Is had that it was self-aware, caused a reflection. In order to see itself as self-aware that automatically implies a segregation, a separation, a self-reflection. That self-reflection because God is God created differentiated consciousness. That first split off, reflective differentiated consciousness is what you call Angelic consciousness.
So to put it colloquially the Angels are the first level down from the One. The first differentiation of the One into the many. Then from there it goes down, down, down to different levels of Oversoul consciousness and into differentiated personality structure consciousness, such as spirits and souls and so forth. We are skipping a few levels but you are getting the point. Does that help you?
Q: Yes. I wonder you earlier at some point some months ago, you mentioned a person that would come along this month December that would embody aspects of Lady Di and Mother Teresa, and some of us who know this women in question are wondering if you were referring specifically to her?
B: You have made a misinterpretation. What we are saying is, not that there can not be specific embodiments that might reflect more are less the qualities you are referring to but the idea of the passing of those individuals requires now the embodiment of those qualities in all of you! They have now, in a sense, left the physical realm by showing you the kinds of things that need to be done so that in leaving you are forced to take those qualities into your own hearts and express them in your own way rather than simply letting them do it for you. It is the time of self-responsibility, self-action and this is one of the reasons why many of those that act as symbols and reflections are going to leave so that it is up to you to embody those concepts and qualities within yourself and become your own version of them so to speak. Does that make sense to you?

Q: It does and I like to tell you that the women (Linda) in question is here tonight and I was wondering if she wants to ask a question of you now or latter?

B: You may wonder all you wish but probably you will get an answer if you ask.

Q: Would you like to ask Bashar a question now or latter?

Linda: Latter.

Q: All right a little later. Thank you Bashar.

All right—You good day!

Nuclear Probabilities

B: Number two.
Q: Greetings from down under, Bashar.
B: Down under what?
Q: From Australia.
B: Oh, all right, yes. Remember that that is all relative.
Q: Yes, I know, but there are many people there that do send their love.
B: Oh, all right, thank you, love in return.
Q: Good, thank you. Can I ask you now about what is happening in Iraq?
B: You can ask anything you want; whether I will tell you is another matter.
Q: Would you be able to explain what is happening there?
B: Can you be specific? There are many things happening in the area on your planet that you call Iraq.
Q: Well okay, I hope I don’t sound a bit simple, but I’ve noticed, since being in this country the last three weeks, the entire focus in the news has been on the affairs of President Clinton and the girl. And it seems to me like it’s a full on blanket of attention on this when all the time something is happening in Iraq. And why, at this time, do they have the Prime Minister of England here along with the president?
B: Right.
Q: It feels to me that there’s something much bigger going on.
B: Yes.
Q: It feels to me as if the entire population has been given a blanket on the news to do with this Monica, what ever her name is, and so on.
B: Not really by their choice.
Q: No, no, no, but I just don’t understand. Could you give me a greater overview on exactly what it is....
B: Do you mean is there a covert operation being planned to remove someone from their life?
Q: Yes.
B: Yes.
Q: Could you elaborate on that please?
B: No, do you understand what I’m saying?
Q: Is that Saddam Hussein you’re referring to?
B: Yes. Is that what you wanted to hear?
Q: I suppose, I’m open to hearing anything.
B: Oh well, all right, it is being discussed. It is not yet being seriously considered, but it is being discussed. Let us say, out of about three possibilities it is having a high degree of consideration, but it has not yet been decided.
Q: Okay, thank you very much, Bashar.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: It is connected, of course, to many other things that will unfold, or are unfolding around your world, since your world is now inter-connected in a very strong way more than it used to be. It is connected to the potential of many other kinds of events that may or may not yet unfold.
Q: Will there be a Third World War?
B: No, not as such. But there is still a great possibility for what you would call an isolated terrorist nuclear strike.
Q: Is this encoded in the Bible?
B: It is, as are all probabilities in every ancient text that exist on your planet, if you know how to read them.
Q: So would this be in the encoding in the Bible, the book that’s out at the moment?
B: Yes, but it is a probability, not a certainty.
Q2: What’s the percentage of probability of...
B: Of the isolated terrorist nuclear strike, now? Ninety-eight percent, coinciding with your year.
Q2: Where?
B: This is yet to be determined. It may be in what you call your Middle East. It may be in what you call one of your eastern seaboard American cities. The most likely window of opportunity will be between what you would call March of your present year and March of the next year.
Q: Is president Clinton and others aware that this is....
B: They are aware of the possibility and the potentiality. There exists, at present, a few small minor clues that would allow them to understand that it may be more imminent than they think, but they haven’t seen these clues yet. They haven’t picked up on the idea that these are indicators that it could be more serious than they think. They are always prepared for the possibility, they know that for a fact, that it is likely to happen. But there are actually now a few small clues that specifically indicate when and where such a thing might now be being thought of, or carried out, or planned.
Again, if such a thing does come to pass, as we have said, even though the likelihood may seem high, in terms of what you call your odds, if it does occur, it will still create such a shock wave through your culture, over your whole planet that no such thing will ever occur again, ever, ever, ever. It does not have to occur, even at 98%, it doesn’t have to occur, but if it does, it will never occur again because it will change many things, many, many things. But that is as we read the energy now. For any such thing as a prediction, is no prediction of the future, but only a sensing of the energy that exists at the time the prediction is made, and if that changes, the prediction is moot. But that is the energy we read right now in this latest, as you would say, "barometer reading." Does that help you?

Q: Thank you very much. One more question.
B: All right.
Q: Why did Princess Diana die?
B: Well, as we have said to some degree, the tandem connection of what you call your Princess and your Mother Teresa is, because they represent, in general, the idea of your relationship to humanity, what you call humanitarian practices, the nurturing of, the assisting of, the helping of others. They were two strong symbols and still are strong symbols of that attitude and that relationship of being active and being helpful. In that they have taken themselves out of physical existence, they have now left it up to the rest of you to incorporate that ideal within yourself and not just to let them do it, but to do it yourselves. They have shown you the idea and now they say, "you are on your own, I’m out of here. I have given you enough examples, now you must be the example." You will see more and more of this. The pace will accelerate, this idea will accelerate. More and more that have set the stage and lived as examples of the kinds of things that need to be done, in all of you, more of those individuals will take themselves out.

Q: Okay, thank you.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Very much so.
Bashar:
Channeled by Darryl Anka
From “Moment of Pause”

Bashar: The idea again is that, in the void, in that moment, in that infinitesimally small space, that moment of pause, are all things. In that moment you shift to the frequency you prefer, then expand on the other side, embodying that frequency and manifesting the result of that frequency. At any time you can always go back into that collapsed state of co-fusion and pick another selection, pick another vibration, another frequency, and re-emerge, re-expand, incorporating that frequency into your day to day reality. This is why you cannot go into that space and take anything with you, because you don’t need to.

Everything is there but in a neutral fashion, so you cannot bring your already, shall we say, "patterned baggage" with you into that space. You have to let everything go, be totally stripped of all those habits, patterns, expectations. Just go into that space, collapse into that singularity wherein all dimensions are one and thus choose fresh.... In that space everything is in a sense, flat, neutral, devoid of any meaning, until you give it meaning – and realize it, manifest it, based on the preferential vibration you have chosen to emerge with.

Q: Do I have to give it meaning?
B: If you do not, you will not have an experiential reality, of any kind.
Q: Ah.
B: There is nothing wrong with giving things meaning. The idea is simply be consciously aware of what meanings you are assigning, and so recognize what effects you are getting out of those assigned meanings.
Q: And what assigns the meaning?
B: You do.
Q: Your Spirit, your personality?
B: In general, your society allows the ego structure to, more often than not, assign the meaning because the ego structure contains the patterns and the habits that you have been imprinted with. And very often it is therefore an automatic function. You see something you assign a meaning, you see something you assign a meaning. The moment of pause allows it to be neutral – whatever it is you experience in your life – so that you can take your time to discern more consciously from your totality, from your total Being, what meaning it has. And it doesn’t even necessarily always have to be specific, the idea is to at least to begin by assigning the general meaning that it must be happening for a positive reason, and in that you will always extract, ultimately, a positive effect from it, no matter what it appears to be on the surface...
It’s just that you’re becoming more conscious of what you’re doing, so you can euphemistically, get a handle on it. So you ’see’ the moment of creation, instead of being unconscious about it. You are constantly all imploding, exploding, imploding, exploding, imploding, and exploding. Going within, coming back out, going within, coming back out – recreating yourself, redefining yourself, every single infinite second. It is just that you don’t know that consciously. Now you are beginning to. And as you become more conscious of this, as already happening, your reality starts to break down, because you are assigning the things to it that you prefer to. And everything else that is not of that frequency starts to crumble and crack and collapse and fall away and dissolve. And so, at first it may seem chaotic, but there is always an underlying order to all chaos. You have to get to that template consciously.

Q: So you can then get to a point where you can move past the total essence of humanity, to the total essence of life itself?

B: Yes, but not invalidating the expression called humanity...

Q: No, of course not...

B: Only recognizing it as equally valid to all forms...

Q: Including...

B: Yes, including, integrating. Yes.
Q: In the news lately...let me get your definition on one thing, what were the words, um, "You can’t have your cake and eat it too." How would you define the definition of that?

B: The idea, as the phrase is understood in your society, in some senses, is a little bit backwards, according to the meaning that we glean exists in your society’s culture. The phrase really would be that you could eat your cake and have it too, not have your cake and eat it too. Because, obviously, you can have your cake and eat it, but the idea is that it seems less likely that you can eat it and yet still have it. But the general meaning of the phrase is that idea that is usually exemplified by the phrase we have shared with you, that most things are this and that, rather than this or that. In other words, things that in your society might, from one perspective, seem mutually exclusive, don’t have to be. You understand?

Q: So, in other words, we can have our cake and eat it too?

B: In other words, you can eat your cake and still have it.

Q: Yes, um....

B: In other words, you can allow both sides of the issue to co-exist and glean from both sides, which from one perspective seem mutually exclusive. Glean from both sides things that will assist and amplify the things that you require in life, without each side canceling the other out, yes. You can work with paradox, in other words, as we have said many times, for that is where the point of all your power lies, it’s in the center in which you call paradox, and that is what that phrase exemplifies, yes.

Q: Okay, and in the news lately this week.

B: Yes.

Q: There has been a lot of play on some ancient temples that NASA/JPL have found in Cambodia, which are much older than any known civilization on earth.

B: Yes.

Q: What can you tell us about this, about the origins?

B: You will begin to find more and more and more indicators that there have been many ancient civilizations on your planet that stretch the idea of your history back much, much, much further than you think. Some of these are off-shoots of other colonies besides Atlantis that stretched from Lemuria in ancient times, 50,000 of your years ago. Some of these ancient ideas are old Anunnaki bases. Some of them are connected to the idea of extraterrestrial inhabitation over brief periods of time. But for the most part they are simply recognitions that cultures existed on your planet that are much more ancient than your present sense of history dictates.

Q: Can you tell us what civilization and of what origin the civilization that built the ancient temples and....
B: They are the ancient Kimer.
Q: The ancient Cairo?
B: Kimer, Kimer, Ki-mer.
Q: Is that a race of beings?
B: On your planet, yes.
Q: Were they native to our planet?
B: Yes, even though they had extraterrestrial interaction, and like all of you, contained a high percentage of extraterrestrial genetics. They were relatively isolated cultural off-shoots, again similar to Atlantis, but relatively unknown on your planet. Another off-shoot of the same idea you will find stretched into ancient Tibet, and you will find some ancient temples there, as well, that are part and parcel of some of the similar off-shoots of the same ancient culture.
Q: Okay. There’s also, in Kentucky, been a psychiatrist who, not only saw, but very clearly video taped an extraterrestrial craft.
B: Yes.
Q: Can you tell us if this was legitimate?
B: Not at this time.
Q: Because it was photographed at close range with video tape and he invites skeptics.
B: I understand.
Q: You can’t scan the event and....
B: Not at this time. It is closed to us.
Q: Okay.
B: Will that do?
Q: Yes, I’m just curious.
B: Yes.
Q: Where are you now; are you still above Cairo? And about how far up are you?
B: Yes, about 2,500 miles.
Q: Is your increased elevation due to....
B: This is a decreased elevation.
Q: Oh it is?
B: Yes, we started at 3,000, if you will recall. The decrease in elevation, in general, represents coming closer to the day of contact.
Q: Okay. Is there anything going on, from your perspective, in Iraq?
B: There are many things going on in the area on your planet you call Iraq.
Q: But you know what I mean, significantly in terms of world events.
B: Yes there is a build up, as you know, of tensions as we have said, that still could lead to the idea of the expression of a terrorist nuclear strike.
Q: Did we understand you correctly last time, in that you said that you were projecting that there was a 98% probability of that.
B: This is correct.
Q: Is it still at 98%?
B: It is.
Q: And is that of global nuclear war or limited nuclear war?
B: It has not for some time been for global nuclear war. We have said this over and over, which is why we translate the phrase, "isolated, limited terrorist nuclear strike."
Q: And where is it likely to occur?
B: Either there in the Middle East or in one of your eastern seaboard cities in your United States of America, primarily 97% probability, New York.
Q: Okay, can you tell when it’s likely to occur?
B: Again, there is only a probability window and, again, this probability window is sometime between now and your year of 2001. Most likely, either in or around your year of 1999. That is the heaviest concentration of probability; but this is not for certain, because nothing is. But there are other events that are also unfolding that may allow this percentage to drop radically, within this your present year; but this has not yet been decided by the collective consciousness of your people. We will keep you posted.
Q: Okay.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

The creating of the limbo state to choose all probable realities that are converging. Then in the choosing of the way that represents who you are, in approximately 30 of your years, the harmonic identification, wherein the reality you have chosen will become almost exclusively the reality you will experience. And then ten years after that will be the harmonic synchronization—which will allow your reality to blend with all other realities in space and time.

Future Earth Experiences

Q: The thirty years in which we’re beginning to see the dimension that we are headed towards – does that mean the physicality of the bodies that we exist in now will also begin to, eventually, become more exceeded in that vibration as well?

B: Yes.

Q: So it would mean we will begin to have, in a sense, a lighter, more resonate body?

B: Yes, things will appear to be brighter to you. You’ll see colors more clearly; you will see energies that are now invisible to you. You will be able to truly see auric fields, the ethereal-magnetic field, and any other interactive vibratory field that connects the idea of your total consciousness upon your planet.

Q: That’s exciting.

B: Yes.

Q: Is there anything more that you could share with us?

B: You will have no disease; you will sleep and eat less. You will create your dreams upon your planet; you will interact with many other civilizations.

You will rebuild many sections of your world, landscaping them into pleasing forms; you will cease to build on many sections of your world. You will build in space; you will explore space and dimensions of time, and other levels of experience.

You will begin to truly see through the illusion of physical reality as your own projection. You will be able to come and go, in and out of your body, at will. You will then find that you no longer need to reincarnate at all, and any time you wish to have the experiences for a brief period of time of a physical form, you will simply have a very few bodies that you will share.

Q: What approximate population size?

B: You will find that within, what you call, 1,000 of your years, it is likely, not absolute, but likely that you will be down to what you call 50 million.

Q: What about in 60 years?

B: You may in this way be beginning to reverse the trend down from approximately what you would call 6 billion.

For you will find that you really are not overpopulated; you simply do not apportion the land you have in equal ways. But again, once you begin to move out of the phase of reincarnation, and once you allow for more longevity of the lives you already have, then you will decrease your numbers, in that sense.

And many individuals will simply remain as a nonphysical support system for those individuals who wish to continue for a time in physical reality. Until, at such time – approximately, what you call 2 to 3,000 of your years hence – you will no longer need to be physical at all.
Some of you may still remain as a support system, non-physically, for other beings that may then wish to use your physical reality as a new experiential reality — and may begin their cycle anew. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Question : Can you look into the future?

Bashar : There is no such thing as the future; there are an infinite number of probable realities. What we have the capacity to do, is look into the present and sense which probable reality may, at present, have the highest degree of momentum or inertia behind it – and perhaps, be the most likely to manifest. But that can also change, and we may have the capability to tell you exactly what the percentage of likelihood is that it will change, or not. But there is no such thing as the future.

Q : Well, what I’m concerned about is....

B : There’s that word again.

Q : Okay....I want to see peace on Earth.

B : Then create it.

Q : Is man doomed on this Earth? Are we going to destroy ourselves?

B : No, that is long since passed. One of the reasons you are now seeing the proliferation of so much violence is because you know it’s safe to get it out of your system. Because you will no longer bring it to an ultimate doomsday ending. There may be a few isolated incidents and it is still likely that there may actually be, what you would call, nuclear usage in the Middle East, sometime around your ‘99 year, as an act of terrorism. But the idea is that even if that comes to pass it may also create a shock wave that will instantly galvanize all of you to change your ways, in recognizing what it could lead to, if you decide to go down that path.

But generally speaking, you will find that some time, give or take, about ten of your years ago – maybe fifteen at the outside, you actually all collectively already decided that you would not annihilate yourselves. But you also recognized that many of you may have to go through trials by fire in a variety of ways, or not, in order to allow yourself to bring to the surface all the ideas of the dark side of your consciousness. So that in bringing it all out in the open, on the table as you say, you have the freedom to choose what you prefer and what you don’t. And make a choice about what you want your world to be, and whether or not each of you individually is willing to take responsibility for creating the peace you want, or if you’re going to continue to give your power away and assume someone else will do it for you, some day, some where, some how. But you are now in the eye of the hurricane – right at the point of the fulcrum, each and every one of you – each and every one of you impacts all of you. The more you are your total Self, the easier it is for all of you to be your total Selves, and allow the whole picture to integrate peacefully, harmoniously.

One of the reasons we are even capable of having these conversations with your species at this time is just because you have chosen to not annihilate yourselves. Had you done so there would be no point to this conversation and we would be elsewhere. But we know that the most likely energy, although there are a variety of ways that your planet can still get there, the most likely probable reality is that your world, in and around your year of 2011-2013, will finally begin, after having gone through certain transitions, to lay down the foundations of a flow of harmonics on your planet.

And by the year of 2037 the Earth will most likely become a member of the Association of Worlds, to which we belong. That is generally how we understand your energy to be unfolding and why we are communicating with your species at this time, because we are communicating with the evolving Earth that is heading in that direction generally. Does that make sense to you?

Q : Yes, very much. You’ve answered my question. Thank you.
B: Alright, realize now, although it is your choice, your choice always, I will, since, in a sense, you have allowed me to do so, I will ask you all to choose to avoid the idea of destruction upon your planet as necessary for the elevation of your consciousness, and your planet’s consciousness, into what you term your New Age of Awareness. The achievement of what you term a higher vibratory state of existence, it need not be attained through what you term, destructive energies. Realize there are many, many, many civilizations which are, I’ll say, observing, helping, aiding, guiding, your own planet Earth. Realize this does not mean that you are low on the scale. No. Realize your situation is not hopeless, far from it.

But realize that at this time, all, excepting a few of these civilizations, are going to accept your idea of your own reality. They are going to allow you to experience what you wish to experience for yourselves as a planet. Realize we will not interfere with your own creations. It is not our responsibility, no. We would never, ever, ever, take away your own responsibility for your own creations. No. You are all creators. You are all the Creator. You can, if you become unified in your consciousness, you can make what I’ll term a leap, a jump, a push. You can step right over all of those other probable realities. You can achieve your higher, I’ll say, higher vibratory state – well really, if you stop to think about it, you can achieve it in the wink of an eye, in the blink of a moment, in between one second and the next – if you allow, allow, allow, allow, not make, not force, not work at, not try, but allow your belief system to accept that probability as being the most likely. As being the most exciting, as being the most desirable, as being the one you really want.

Now, I’ll tell you something. We are not gods. We are not super beings. We, in a sense, are just like you. You are just like us. Should you choose to elevate yourselves without the probable reality of destructive ‘sequency’, I’ll tell you this – you will fool a lot of us – you will have played a joke on a lot of us. You will have surprised us all. I know you can do it. I will be the first to cheer you on, but realize we can only aid, we can only in a sense, guide. You must take the responsibility and the action to create the reality, which you deem, I shall say, most likely to succeed upon your planet’s future.

Now realize, that when I say responsibility, I am speaking of choice, unlimited choice, not blame. Allow me to say – too many of the people upon your planet choose to understand responsibility in terms of blame as opposed to terms of choice, free will, and unlimited creative potential. Realize if you see yourselves as completely responsible for your planet, your environment, your reality, your lives, both individually and collectively – totally responsible for everything that happens within them, not to them, but, by you, within them – you will then be able to step back, view your life from a very relaxed state of total acceptance... "I have created all of this within my life. I am completely as a creator responsible for my creations." At that point you will realize you have more freedom than you ever imagined. Freedom to create any other reality you so choose. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Questions....
Q: Bashar, is Earth enough a part of your reality and the others like you that are communicating with us, that your allowance....
B: We will share some of the allowance with you, some, in a sense, some. But not beyond the point which will interfere within your mass created decision, within your mass belief structure. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, but does your allowance, like, boost our energy, boost our ability to allow and accept that reality?
B: Do you wish it to?
Q: Yes.
B: Then it boosts yours.
Q: Great.
B: Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Those who do not wish it, it does nothing to.
Q: Okay.
B: It is non-interference energy. It is there if you desire it. It is there for you to draw upon. It is our gift, our love to you.
Q: Great. And does the manner in which we go through these changes.... does that affect your reality?
B: Only in a sense. Realize we, in a sense, understand how to, very quickly in your terms, defocus from one reality to another. Allow me to tell you there are various, numerous realities in which you would term ‘alternate Earths’ that have achieved total peace. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: We also experience those alternate Earths’.

"Future Predictions"

Allow me to tell you, there is no such thing as a future prediction, because in all reality there is no such thing, in a sense, as the future. There is also no such thing, in a sense, as the past; all reality is only here and now. Present. Present. Present. Both your past and your future are created from this here and now moment, within no time, and within no space. Therefore, ideas of predicting the future stem only from your own inner awareness of certain situations that you realize exist here and now. Your estimation of these belief structures as they are, and the strength with which you maintain them, will directly reflect the so-called accuracy of a future prediction. In other words, should you make a prediction for an individual, group, or mass consciousness, you will be sensing the situations they have created for themselves at that particular here and now time. Realize, you always, always, always...I’ll say it again; always, have free will. Always. You can at any moment you wish, any moment you wish, choose any future, or past, or present, you so desire. When a prediction is made you are simply reading those desires, those beliefs, which exist at the moment the prediction is made. Should the individual involved in the prediction choose to change any, or all, of the factors perceived by the predictor, well then, that prediction will not come true. However, should those situations not change, it will seem as if the predictor was looking into the future when, I’ll say, the time wave crosses itself in your reality, rears up its head, and makes itself visible as the predicted event. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Are there questions, at the moment, concerning this idea? Q: I have something that I might share that’s a half question. I had what I thought was a predictive flash about some vandalism on my car. And I worked very conscientiously to change that...what I felt at the moment was a very strong prediction flash in my mind. And in working at doing that protective work conscientiously, sure enough, the next day something happened to my car, but it was nowhere near what I had seen. It was a very mild incident of a dead battery as opposed to terrible vandalism. Is that the kind of thing you’re talking about?

B: Thank you, thank you. In a sense, yes. Realize, it was a very, very, very, creative way of exercising your own free will upon various, I’ll say, probable futures you had chosen for yourself. Realize, in a very similar way, one of the last large earthquakes, which you experienced within your state of California, was directed into an area which did very little damage, do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: One possibility would have been for it to have occurred within your very own environment, your very own city here. However, you are beginning to realize that such things do not have to be. It is true, in a sense, there is what you may term momentum, a great deal of momentum within what is formed by mass reality, the shared reality of millions and millions of individual consciousnesses. However, you can yet choose to change what you deem your own future, with regard to these Earth changes. They need not be so severe. They need not claim vast quantities of physical life. And in any event you, – each and every one of you – having your own individual universe reality creation of your own sense of reality, can for yourselves, individually, choose not to experience such a probable future. You can create a reality in which you find yourself at the, I’ll say, right place, right time, in another location or in the same location but unaffected. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Alright. Although it is your choice, your choice always, I will, since, in a sense, you have allowed me to do so, I will ask you all to choose to avoid the idea of destruction upon your planet as necessary for the elevation of your consciousness, and your planet’s consciousness, into what you term your New Age of Awareness. Q: Yes.
B: We also experience those alternate Earths’.
Q: Bashar, I’d like to ask you about this polar shift that’s being talked about quite a bit. Would you cover that in your probable futures as well? I’ve heard it said that the mass consciousness can change many things but that is one that is on the books to happen, anyway. Could you comment on that?
B: First of all realize nothing is beyond your ability to change. Nothing. However, it has, what I term, a great amount of mental momentum behind the idea. You will find that such an occurrence though does not have to cause the loss of life you fear it may. If you are completely in tune with such an occurrence, you will be in tune during the change, and, in a sense, after the change. You will allow it to carry you through to another reality, another perspective, which is all that other realities are anyway – simply various perspectives. And you will exist within that new reality, having made, right along with your planet, the transition. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, would that be a physical reality or...
B: All realities, in that sense, can be termed physical, even non-physical realities. Also, physical realities can, in a sense, be termed non-physical. Realize this distinction is only an idea. Separations between physical and non-physical realities are only an idea. Separations between consciousness, unconsciousness, sub-consciousness and hyper-consciousness, are only ideas. There are no separations. None.

Q: Okay, I get that. But physically can they not be measured as different vibrational rates?
B: Realize that any measurement you make is made within your own system of reality; it will tell you exactly what you believe it will. Do you follow me?
Q: Okay, yes. Thank you.
B: Question...
Q: What does it mean for the Earth to vibrate at a higher frequency?
B: (Bashar sings two notes. The second is of a higher pitch than the first.) Simple, no?
Q: I don’t see a meaning.
B: Did you look for one?
Q: Yes.
B: How hard?
Q: I guess not hard enough.
B: No, I think too hard, relax. Can you not feel around you a sense of energy, a sense of vibration, a sense of tone? Even if it is only mental? Even if it is only within your imagination?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Realize everything has its own sense of identity. Its own sense of, I’ll say, integrity, although not exactly as you mean that term. Integrity is, in a sense, each individual idea’s signature – what separates it from every other idea – what causes the separation. Vibratory tone has been created as an idea to represent the separateness between various, what you term, objects and levels of existence. Realize that you have created for yourself sensory organs which you term eyes. These eyes only perceive a very minute amount of what you term the electromagnetic energy. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Realize there is what you term in your own scientific terminology, vibratory rates of electromagnetic energy, which are above your ability to physically, perceive, do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Then, in a very real way, the same idea applies to the entire mass consciousness. Realize, alternate realities, alternate dimensions, dream realities, future lives, past lives, all – All That Is – exists right here, right now. You have created a perspective which allows you to imagine that each of these, what you term, separate ideas, can only exist in the same place, at the same time if they occupy different vibratory rates of existence. They co-exist, overlapping, in a sense, overlapping each other, one on top of the other, in the very same spot. But they exist to each other as vibratory rates of energy, which cannot be physically perceived from each of the levels. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, you are now shifting your own, Here and Now, idea of planet Earth into what represents for you a more refined state of vibration, a more harmonious state of vibration, closer to what you believe to be, well, what I'll term, a core vibration of the Universe. A core vibration of your own creatorship. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. Would a film of very high vibration raise the vibration of the planet and the changes, or the realities? Would that be a good idea?
B: It would be a very creative idea, yes. Realize that individuals, who seek those ideas out, in order that they may reflect back to themselves their own sense of godhood, will enjoy experiencing that form of mirror. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: It is a very creative mirror, yes. Thank you. Question?
Q: Bashar, how can we individually move from intellectualizing this idea, to believing it, to knowing it? It seems each step is more difficult. I can intellectualize it and believe it, but knowing it, to make the reality change seems the most difficult step.
B: Allow me to tell you that the idea that each step is more difficult is purely a product of the intellectual side. Those steps, as you call them, really have not been taken, per se, if they appear to be more and more difficult. That difficulty is still, well, in a sense, an extension of the analytical intellectualizing frame of your conscious ego. When you function very naturally in your dream states, you are beyond all that intellectualizing, without so much as a blink, without so much as a step – you are simply there. You have simply accepted the idea of a new reality. What you term physical reality, is really, in a sense, only a dream; and in very many ways is actually more of a dream than the dream reality. For in your dream reality you may allow yourself to completely realize your creatorship, your Godhood or Goddess hood. You may allow yourself to dream while awake. It will be all right, it will not make you strange, and it will not make you bizarre, it will not make you the butt of jokes. It will make you real, really real. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you. Question?
Q: When you sense something negative is about to happen, where you discussed where she had a precognitive "flash," where she saw the whole scene ... sometimes I have just vague feelings that something's going to happen but I don't "see" enough that I can create a counter reality. Can you offer a suggestion how to just work with that feeling, and a knowing that something might be happening, and use that to change that reality?
B: Thank you. First of all, realize that every such, as you say, "flash," is simply, very simply, an opportunity to allow yourself to realize that you can choose between alternate probable futures. Now, if they do not construct..."Oh, I am not getting a strong enough negative flash, what can I do about that?" Well it seems to me, you are doing just fine! Do you wish me to aid you to have very strong negative probable futures?

Q: No, thank you!

B: Thank you. Question?

Q: How do these momentums get going and keep...

B: By agreement. Do you understand that? By non verbal, what you term, telepathic agreement, the sharing of belief structures, the sharing of a belief, of a need to experience certain types of realities in order to further explore your own God/Goddess hood. To further create ways that All That Is may view Itself as a Creator, do you follow me? All these experiences are quite transitory in their ultimate sense, life/death, death/life, no barriers, and no separations. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Realize you do not always have to understand the mechanism of an apparatus in order for you to allow the idea to change. Do you follow? You may simply, simply, have within your imagination, a view or an emotion of an idea, a picture of an idea, of a reality you think is beautiful – would be lovely, would be exciting, would be just grand. Your own enthusiasm, your own love for that reality will be the best thing you can do towards allowing others around you, without forcing, allowing others around you, to alter their own momentum. Do you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you.
“Future Predictions”
1 of 4

Allow me to tell you, there is no such thing as a future prediction, because in all reality there is no such thing, in a sense, as the future. There is also no such thing, in a sense, as the past; all reality is only here and now. Present. Present. Present. Both your past and your future are created from this here and now moment, within no time and within no space. Therefore, ideas of predicting the future stem only from your own inner awareness of certain situations that you realize exist here and now. Your estimation of these belief structures as they are, and the strength with which you maintain them, will directly reflect the so-called accuracy of a future prediction. In other words, should you make a prediction for an individual, group, or mass consciousness, you will be sensing the situations they have created for themselves at that particular here and now time.

Realize, you always, always, always... I’ll say it again. You always have free will, always. You can at any moment you wish, any moment you wish, choose any future, or past, or present, you so desire. When a prediction is made you are simply reading those desires, those beliefs, which exist at the moment the prediction is made. Should the individual involved in the prediction choose to change any, or all, of the factors perceived by the predictor, well then, that prediction will not come true. However, should those situations not change, it will seem as if the predictor was looking into the future when, I’ll say, the time wave crosses itself in your reality, rears up its head, and makes itself visible as the predicted event. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Are there questions, at the moment, concerning this idea?

Q: I have something that I might share that’s a half question. I had what I thought was a predictive flash about some vandalism on my car. And I worked very conscientiously to change that...what I felt at the moment was a very strong prediction flash in my mind. And in working at doing that protective work conscientiously, sure enough, the next day something happened to my car, but it was nowhere near what I had seen. It was a very mild incident of a dead battery as opposed to terrible vandalism. Is that the kind of thing you’re talking about?

B: Thank you, thank you. In a sense, yes. Realize, it was a very, very, very, creative way of exercising your own free will upon various, I’ll say, probable futures you had chosen for yourself. Realize, in a very similar way, one of the last large earthquakes, which you experienced within your state of California, was directed into an area which did very little damage, do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: One possibility would have been for it to have occurred within your very own environment, your very own city here. However, you are beginning to realize that such things do not have to be. It is true, in a sense, there is what you may term momentum, a great deal of momentum within what is formed by mass reality, the shared reality of millions and millions of individual consciousnesses. However, you can yet choose to change what you deem your own future, with regard to these Earth changes. They need not be so severe. They need not claim vast quantities of physical life. And in any event, you, – each and every one of you – having your own individual universe reality creation of your own sense of reality, can for yourselves, individually, choose not to experience such a probable future. You can create a reality in which you find yourself at the, I’ll say, right place, right time, in another location or in the same location but unaffected, do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

Q: I’d like to ask you about this polar shift that’s being talked about quite a bit. Would you cover that in your probable futures as well? I’ve heard it said that the mass consciousness can change many things but that is one that is on the books to happen, anyway. Could you comment on that?
B: First of all, realize nothing is beyond your ability to change. Nothing. However, it has, what I term, a great amount of mental momentum behind the idea. You will find that such an occurrence though does not have to cause the loss of life you fear it may. If you are completely in tune with such an occurrence, you will be in tune during the change, and, in a sense, after the change. You will allow it to carry you through to another reality, another perspective, which is all that other realities are anyway – simply various perspectives. And you will exist within that new reality, having made, right along with your planet, the transition. Do you follow me?
Q: Okay, I get that. But physically can they not be measured as different vibrational rates?
B: Realize that any measurement you make is made within your own system of reality; it will tell you exactly what you believe it will. Do you follow me?
Q: Okay, yes. Thank you.
B: Question...
Q: What does it mean for the Earth to vibrate at a higher frequency?
B: (He sings two notes. The second is of a higher pitch than the first.) Simple, no?
Q: I don’t see a meaning.
B: Did you look for one?
Q: Yes.
B: How hard?
Q: I guess not hard enough.
B: No, I think too hard, relax. Can you not feel around you a sense of energy, a sense of vibration, a sense of tone? Even if it is only mental? Even if it is only within your imagination?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Realize everything has its own sense of identity. Its own sense of, I’ll say, integrity, although not exactly as you mean that term. Integrity is, in a sense, each individual idea’s signature – what separates it from every other idea – what causes the separation. Vibratory tone has been created as an idea to represent the separateness between various, what you term, objects and levels of existence. Realize that you have created for yourself sensory organs which you term eyes. These eyes only perceive a very minute amount of what you term the electromagnetic energy. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Realize there is what you term in your own scientific terminology, vibratory rates of electromagnetic energy, which are above your ability to physically, perceive, do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Then, in a very real way, the same idea applies to the entire mass consciousness. Realize, alternate realities, alternate dimensions, dream realities, future lives, past lives, all – All That Is – exists right here, right now. You have created a perspective which allows you to imagine that each of these, what you term, separate ideas, can only exist in the same place, at the same time if they occupy different vibratory rates of existence. They co-exist, overlapping, in a sense, overlapping each other, one on top of the other, in the very same spot. But they exist to each other as vibratory rates of energy, which cannot be physically perceived from each of the levels. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, you are now shifting your own, here and now, idea of planet Earth into what represents for you a more refined state of vibration, a more harmonious state of vibration, closer to what you believe to be, well, what I’ll term, a core vibration of the Universe. A core vibration of your own creatorship. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

Q: Would a film of very high vibration raise the vibration of the planet and the changes, or the realities? Would that be a good idea?

Q: Yes.
B: It is a very creative mirror, yes. Thank you. Question?

Q: Yes.
Gabriel Energy

RJ: Could you reiterate the number of civilizations that you are aware of in the multiverse?
B: Yes, about 73 million.
Q: And the different types of physiological forms?
B: Yes, there are a variety of such.
Q: You gave a number for that?
B: About 11,000, roughly.
Q: 11,000 different forms?
B: Yes, roughly, that we are aware of. We have not interacted, by any means, with all of them, or even a large fraction of them, but we are aware, from a variety of sources, of at least 73 million civilizations which represent about 11 - 12 thousand different forms of expression of physiological life.

Q: I would like to know my connection to this knowledge on our planet as the Gabriel energy and exactly what that is, from your perspective?

B: All right. There are, again, expressions that are called the World Spirit which is the collective consciousness of your entire planet and there are collections of collections. The World Spirit is a collective of consciousness which is representative of your entire Solar System which generally goes by the nomenclature of the Council of Nine, as a symbolic archetype of the way that consciousness has arranged itself and how it presents itself in your particular paradigm of experience. This then, yet again, system to system, is a collective, and within what you call your galaxy, your Milky Way galaxy, there is that collective, again, of a collective consciousness. Then all of the local galaxies with Andromeda, spinning around about twelve galaxies. This forms another collective nodal point consciousness, and it is that particular level, the twelve galaxies together in combination, that represent a fragment of what is called the Gabriel consciousness.

Your connection to it is simply that you have vibrational resonances of that energy that are a part of your particular energy matrix. Thus you have a direct link to it, perhaps it is a little more prominent than some individuals may have, even though you all have it.

Q: I was told that the areas of Sacramento and San Francisco were the highest focus of the Gabriel energy on our planet, is that correct?
B: The Shasta area.
Q: The Shasta area?
B: Yes.
Q: And how does that energy symbolically represent itself in our dimension here?
B: In a variety of ways. Because it is so, I’ll say, large, it will be interpreted in a number of ways, but of course the strongest way will be in terms of what you will call Angelic essence, because it is that level of being. So most individuals will experience it as an angelic archetypal symbol in your collective... consciousness mirror. Though there are a variety of ways that other people will also see it and experience and express it. It will be expressed in a variety of ways in ancient Egyptian civilization, as the mirror itself. In some cases the polished mirrors themselves contain aspects of what you would call the Angelic and Gabriel consciousness, and there are a variety of other kinds of symbols. To some degree the pyramids themselves are also aspects of the Gabriel consciousness, to some degree, or at least have connections to such that are very direct.

Q: How many members of the Association are there currently in your contemporary time?
B: 375 civilizations.

Q: And what is the latest civilization that has entered the Association and connected in with you? How do they represent themselves?
B: Ga-op-to, Gaopto is that civilization.

Q: And their origin?
B: Gaopto is their origin. They are in what might be called the beltway, the beltway between the major spiral arm of the galaxy, of your galaxy.

Q: Are they physiological?
B: Yes to some degree they are, although they have attributes that are not. They are interesting beings, they tend to manifest in the astral from as spheres almost exclusively, though there are some other shapes in physiological form that are somewhat different.

Q: Are they humanoid?
B: No. Gaopto are not human experiencers at this time, no.

Q: Are they connected to the Kachina’s energy?
B: No.

Q: When are we going to be able to space travel to your planet?
B: You have had the ability to create that technology for quite some time but, of course, some of that information, because of the way that you structured your society, has been suppressed.

Q: So if we wanted to at this time, we could probably travel to your planet?
B: Well certainly you do in astral form quite often, all of you.

Q: Well I mean like in Biblical times.
B: Yes, this is something that at the outside, at the outside will be quite, quite possible by your year of 2037. Perhaps even before that for many individuals but absolutely, definitely not beyond that time, 2037, you will maintain the same kind of vehicles or similar vehicles to those that our civilization and many others have utilized.

Q: And who will be the people that will travel around, Government officials?
B: No, not at that time.

Q: Not at that time?
B: Anyone and everyone.
Q: Yes.
B: Yes. In and around, perhaps, your year 2024, will be more the idea of the limitation of the utilization of some of those vehicles, but by your year 2037 it will be quite wide open. You understand?
Q: Yes. There is no one doing it now?
B: Not traveling to other planets in those craft. There are a few beings on your planet that managed to create very low level working models that they can utilize in your atmosphere, and to some degree a little outside your atmosphere but they don’t get very far—not only because they can’t, but we don’t let them.
Q: Are we visited a lot physically?
B: Yes.
Q: All the time?
B: Quite often, quite often, quite, quite, quite, quite, quite often.
Q: Ok, thank you.
B: Remember that in astral form you have absolutely no limitations whatsoever Absolutely none, except what you think you have.

Gaining Weight

Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I wanted to know how I can lose my weight and keep it off. I lose weight and gain it right back.
B: Oh now, we will touch on many of the reasons, for there are a whole number of reasons for the creation of physical weight in your reality – a number of reasons. We will allow you, in hearing this gamut of reasons, to decide which are applicable to you. In understanding, which is applicable to you, you can then understand the reasons for why you have created it; and in understanding the reasons for why you have created it, then, if you want to, you can change it.

Idea number one: many individuals will assume that they, in order to handle more of the energy they are now feeling in their lives, will assume that they will add mass as a buffer to be able to handle what they perceive, or label, to be extra energy. One reason.

Another reason: sometimes, in dealing with things that the majority of your society thinks are “airy” subjects, you will then, to compensate for their judgment of you, for their invalidation, add more weight to appear more stable and grounded. That’s another reason.

Third reason: sometimes, because you may serve as a center of interaction for many different individuals in life, and they come to you for certain kinds of benefit, certain kinds of service – because of the labels your society puts on the notion of nurturing, being that there is more than enough to go around for everyone, sometimes individuals will take on a comfortable appearance, sometimes what may be called a motherly, nurturing appearance, by adding weight more than enough to go around. You are a very nurturing source. And by seeing the extra weight, I am attracted to understanding that you are functioning in that way – in being of service as a reflection, so that many people can come to you, and we will know that you will not be depleted.”

Fourth: there is a wonderful analogy that happens with your English language. Remember that energy is mass; mass is energy. When you are doing what excites you the most in life, you flow the energy through you and out into the actions of the things that excite you. When you stop yourself from doing what excites you, you don’t flow the energy. You weight to do what excites you. And the more “weighting” you do, the more the energy turns into mass. When you start doing the thing that excites you the most to do, then the mass converts back into energy, and you stop “weighting” to do and start doing. And then in that sense all the “weighting” goes away. That’s another analogy that your society has created for the idea of waiting.

Number five: sometimes individuals do not want to face certain ideas, and they can create the idea of extra mass to hide in, so that no one will be able to really touch them in the center. For there will be a barrier, so to speak; in a sense, it will be the filling of the aura again with mass to allow other people to know there’s no room for anyone else. This is almost exactly the opposite of knowing there is more than enough to go around, come and take.
There are many different ways and, perhaps, many more than we have labeled. Allow your own imagination to delve into the reasons. If any of these things have touched a part of it, expand on it. If they do not seem to fulfill the motion, allow yourself to take the cue from the way we have examined it, and come up with your own idea about why you think you have created this notion.

Also, because many of you are oriented in physiological ways, you have created different notions of what you call metabolism.

Sometimes many of you need far less sustenance in different ways than you think you need. Sometimes the idea of weight will be because individuals will consume more than they need to replace things they think they don’t have. So it will be one way to try to get abundance in their life, by feeling like they have a lot of physical materiality. Because they don’t see it externally in their life, they will attempt to create it internally within their auric field. That’s another idea.

There are many, many, many reasons for the creation of a particular symbol in your reality, just as there are many reasons for many of the symbols all of you create. So use your imagination. Get into the very heart, the very center, of the idea that you are, and see what make sense to you. Understand?

Q: Yes.
B: Has this been of service?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, we thank you very much.
Q: Thank you.

Galactic Associates and Earth Reflections From Animals and Earth

Q: How many members are in the Association of Worlds?
B: How many members?
Q: People.
B: People! Several billion, I think.
Q: How many in the triad?
B: You mean your world, our world and Sirius?
Q: Yes.
B: Obviously several billion, since you have several billion of your own. There is no accurate count that we can give you, for it is constantly fluctuating.
Q: How many Galaxies?
B: A Galaxy is a collection of many solar systems. Is that what you mean?
Q: (Answer inaudible)
B: Your civilization and our civilization and the civilization of Sirius exist within one galaxy – which is a collection, as you count them, of what you call over one hundred billion stars – and that is one galaxy. You will find that there are other galaxies as well. Now we have explored minutely into five – including our own – galaxies at this time. And there are some representations from each of those ones that we know of in an overall Association.
Q: Mhmm.
B: The majority of the ones that our civilization is familiar with, however, stem mostly for our own galaxy, from several different star systems within this galaxy.
Q: (Inaudible.)
B: What you call the Milky Way, yes.
Q: How many galaxies are there?
B: Infinite.
Q: How many intelligently populated planets are there in the Milky Way?
B: What you would perceive in you density, approximately – or close to it – between 60 and 70 million. It fluctuates as well, but some where within that.
Q: How many stars?
B: Over 100 billion.
Q: You said once that you had directly investigated or interacted with 468 different civilizations, did you say? Personally?
B: Not myself personally.
Q: Oh, the people of Sassani.
B: Of the Association. We are simply listing what you call the inhabited planets that we are aware of.
Q: Many with which you have not interacted.
B: Correct.
Q: Would you please define the extent of the Akashic records?
B: Extent?
Q: All that it would include, all of the knowledge.
B: Everything.
Q: Not just third density?
B: Oh, no, no, no.
Q: Not just...?
B: No.
Q: All knowledge?
B: All experience.
Q: On your planet, in the physical, do you have, like, running water and plant life and...?
B: You would recognize it as similar to your own planet.
Q: It is similar?
B: Yes.
Q: The forms would be somewhat different?
B: Yes.
Q: Homes?
B: Similar. Although you will find there will be a preponderance of what you call green and also greenish light, for our star is green.
Q: Do you have relationships with animals like we do with pets?
B: Not pets, as you understand. We are free to interact with animals; they are free to interact with us. But you will find, in that sense, that there are many comings and goings. No one owns a pet. We interact with what animals we come across.
Q: What would be a handy solution to – well, okay, how do I word this? Uh, my cat has fleas.
B: Yes.
Q: And previously I had a cat that had fleas.
B: Yes.
Q: And previously I had a cat that had fleas. And I felt out of control with the situation; and I did many different things that were not so great for my breathing, and not so great probably for the cat’s breathing, like the bombs they have with...
B: There is one idea we find we cannot focus on completely; therefore, some of this involves your own research. But we do perceive that there exists a powdered form of an herb that you can rub into the cat’s fur that will allow the fleas to simply go their way without being harmed.

Q: Okay. And would that be their going their way outside of my house?

B: Are you saying you want to rub the powder on yourself?

Q: I don’t want them in my house at all.

B: Why not?

Q: Because they’re ugly and...

B: I see. I wonder what they think of you – since we are going to be judgmental. (Numerous inaudible comments and jokes) Now! Why not strike up a conversation with them equally; find out what they represent to you; and perhaps if they have served you in that way, your cat will no longer need to carry them to reflect to you certain ideas that you may not have come to terms with yet.

B: All right?

Q: Okay. The part that I have...

B: Think in terms of symbiosis, rather than parasitic.

Q: You mean, me be it? Me, be the flea?

B: Well, if you wish you can do it that way. But simply, the idea of, that instead of something living at the expense of something, living together supporting each other; becoming symbiotic. All right? Then perhaps you will have fulfilled the reason for why they are reflecting the idea to you in that way; and perhaps they can simply go on their way.

Q: You mean the idea that I could live with them?

B: Yes... with everything. Are you telling me that if you wish peace upon your planet, you are going to find something to exclude from that peace? Is it not unconditional love out of which you are going to create peace? Or is it conditional love?

Q: No.

B: Thank you. There are a few moments remaining for the interaction.

Q: Just one thing...

B: Yes.

Q: ... that keeps coming up in my mind regarding that dream I shared with you.

B: Yes.

Q: And that is that there is one point that (somebody said this was?) South Carolina, and I’ve never been there this life – physically. And then I remember thinking something like, “What? Isn’t this North Carolina?” And I don’t know what that meant, but it could be a number of things, and I’d just like some clarification.
B: One idea that it means is that there are individuals in that area who can assist with the idea of the learning, the more conscious learning, of what you call the out-of-body projections.

Q: In other words: I have the idea of myself going there.

B: Go ahead! Have a good time! You will find them.

Q: Thank you.

Q: If there were to be an earthquake within the next 24 hours, where do you think it would be likely to be?

At this time we are called. We bid you a fond, loving, exciting, bold flowing…

Q: Right. Happy bold-flowing!

B: In this way, as you become your dreams; as your dreams become your lives: act, act, act, act! Act and dissolve the separations between them. And expect – expect – expect miracles.

We thank you; we bid you a fond goodnight!

Galactic Communications - Shifting Reality Tracks

Q: The physical universe that we are currently aware of – it’s like many-many-many-many-many galaxies – you know, it’s like this little planet here is just one of a little part of it. Now this planet you said was like a particular area for some other dimensions at this time...

B: Yes.

Q: And there’s, like, a triad of a sort going on here with your planet, Sirius, our planet, and maybe some others. But I just happened to sort of expand my awareness, and this obviously isn’t the only place where this sort of thing is going on – not with all of those other beings and planets and everything else.

B: Very good. Nope.

Q: Are you aware of, or in communication with other similar civilizations?

B: Understand that, to a degree, my counterpart and myself are involved – as with all counterparts within our civilization – with becoming participants in the idea of communication. You will find there will be a triad formed between ourselves, and three channels upon three different planets for every counterpart pair that chooses to be, in a sense, in the position of transmitting. Therefore, understand that there are several counterpart pairs upon our planet, and as such, each of them will be involved with three different planets.

Q: Not necessarily in this galaxy. Is that correct?

B: Understand that our understanding of ourselves and our interactions will include, in your terms, portions of five galaxies.

Q: Okay. Thank you.

B: Question.

Q: I have something. You know, you were talking about how you will perceive stress if... I think it was something like: the pressure of transformation is going on with judgment. If you’re having judgment on that pressure of transformation, then you’ll...

B: Yes.
Q: Yes, I’d like a little more comment on judgment. I think it’s related to this other thing that I’ve noticed because...I used to have more of a viewpoint of going down into the problem. You know, you have problems, and then you can keep yourself busy with them for a long time...

B: Oh, yes.
Q: And keep yourself very interested that way.

B: All right.
Q: But now I’m not doing that. So it’s like you just look and it’s poof, and you decide to get in communication with any entity and it’s poof. And you know, everything is poof, and between the poofs, you know, you’re sitting there going. “Now what?” You know? “What am I going to do next?” Something to do with that, you know. I feel perfectly fine as me, but then, I don’t know; as my focus as a human being I feel the desire to have more, you know, fewer spaces between my lines you might say.

B: All right now, understand again: this will be created, yes, from the viewpoint of judgment, of separation. First of all understand, as you say, that in between your active poofs, there simply are quiet poofs.

Q: Yes. Good, good.

B: You understand?
Q: Yes, I do.

B: Therefore, do not judge that your active poofs are more variable than your quiet poofs. You will then find that there will be an entire string of creation going on within those quiet poofs – if you allow yourself to listen.

Q: Uh huh.

B: Understand also that, to some degree, there will be that opportunity, as long as you choose to remain within the physical universe, to use those quiet times to be reflective. And as such, allow yourself to create your sense of your past, to which you may react. You follow me?

Q: Yes, to some degree, I mean I follow what you’re saying, but I don’t...
B: All right. Understand that in terms of what we have said with regard to the idea of action, then for you there is the analogy that action creates your future. Reaction creates your past.

Q: You know, one reason I might be bored with that.

B: All right. What?

Q: Because I’m still completing a past experience, and I don’t feel . . .

B: Oh, really!! All right. But understand that every time you change your reality, you are changing your past as well.
Q: Oh! That’s interesting.

B: Understand that there is no time. You are right here and right now. Every idea that you create within the idea of the past comes from right here and right now, and your reality will reflect exactly what you consider yourself to be at any given moment in time, as you know time to exist. Therefore, understand that your entire reality, the projection from your present of your past and your future, will always reflect exactly what you see yourself to be, right here and right now. So as you change right here and right now, your entire reality track will shift with you.

Q: Oh, that’s very good. Yes, I didn’t think I was letting the past change, I just kind of had it sitting there, I wasn’t letting it change.

B: All right. Again, many times then, that will be the reason if you do not let it change, why that idea can become a problem.

Q: Yes, yes. Definitely.

B: And as such, then those reflective ideas will become, or it will seem to become – I’ll say, containing nothing.

Q: Right.
B: Nothing of value.
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
Galactic Energies

B: How are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

AUD: Great, perfect, et cetera.

B: Allow us to begin this interaction, this evening of your time, with the reminder that last week of your time we entitled this interaction "Legacy." I will be speaking about what that refers to. But this evening of your time I will be taking my turn second.

At the end of the interaction of this evening of your time, I will then speak about the idea we have termed "The Legacy," as it involves the idea of connections of your civilization and our civilization, and some of the underlying reasons for why our particular interactions with you have been co-created by us. And we will outline some of the ideas for who you are to us, who we are to you.

There will be, however, another who will speak first. Between that interaction and my interaction will be, what you call, the typical format of interaction between you and myself in the question modality.

But allow us first to allow another energy to share with you some of the things that would be most important in this interaction this evening of your time, to understand, especially for what it represents in terms of your willingness, your ability, your absorption of the information we have been sharing with you for the past four and one half years of your counting. And with regard to how that information can be applied in your physiological reality in stronger ways, more deliberate ways, more conscious ways.

One moment. (Pause for the other energy to come through, then a different voice is heard ... The Galactic)

G: We would have you understand that this is a blending as well. We would have you understand that this is a representation – not only of all the civilizations you have understood as the Association of Worlds – but of the very fabric of which all worlds are created.

We would have you understand that we will share with you this evening of your time, as you understand time to exist, our view of the flame of eternity that each and every one of you is and are collectively. We would have you understand our joy and our love at being able to express ourselves this way, through you, this day of your time.

We would have you understand that it is our recognition that your world is changing much. We would have you understand that all things you have ever heard within all of these interactions are simply points of view. We would have you understand that your point of view is just as precious and just as beautiful as any point of view we have ever encountered, and any point of view that we contain.

We would have you understand that we rejoice in your willingness to share. We would have you understand that we rejoice in your willingness and your choice to grow... to learn and to expand as your representative facet of the Infinite. We would have you understand in this way, that you, and all beings within creation, are created of the substance of the Infinite. We would have you begin to feel this, to feel this in, what you may call, a physical way.

We would have you understand that all of the ideas – all of the definitions, all of the nomenclature, all of the variables in the equation of your existence – are all interchangeable. We would have you understand that you have always been, are now, and always shall be, mirrors of all other consciousness within creation, on whatever level you choose to exist within the fabric of existence itself.

We would have you understand that the flame that you are burns eternally, and shall never go out, no matter how bright you allow yourselves to become. We shall have you understand that you exist now, and always shall, and you always have. Because now is the only time and the only place and the only existence there is, and always has been, and ever shall be.

You are eternal; you are infinite. You are spirit; you are body. You are mind; you are heart; you are soul. You are an idea; you are an expression; you are a thought. You are a dream of the Infinite Creation.

But that is reality, and all reality is couched within your dream. You contain it all; you are the whole expression in your own individualized way. You are the matrix; the matrix is you.

You are everything; everything comes from you. Everything gives birth to you, as you reinforce the existence of everything and everyone. Not one of you, in that sense, can be removed from the matrix without the collapse of the entire structure. You are integral in that way. You are essential in that way, and we would have you understand that because you are interconnected in this way – because everything you do has impact within the entirety of creation – that you deserve to exist and you deserve to be the fullest individual you can imagine yourself to be.

That you deserve to manifest all the things you can conceive of. That you deserve the existence you have been given, or it would not have been granted to you. That you deserve all the love you can imagine, because love is what you are made out of. That you deserve all the light you can create in your life, because light is what you are made out of.

We would have you understand, in this way, that communication can be given freely between you, and that all that is required is the idea of honesty – honesty with the self. And that the only barriers that exist to the idea of all the love and all the understanding and all the joy and all the communication of the information you desire – the only barrier to this is two-fold. And that is the idea of ignorance and arrogance.

Allow yourself to understand; allow yourself to create; allow yourself to be who you know you are, for that gift is given to you, for that right is given to you; for it is the very fabric of your existence. You are made of that energy; you are that energy. And all reality that you experience is not separated from you.

We would have you understand all these things, for all these things have been discussed in all the interactions you have had for the past four and one half of your years of time. But these things now – these things are to be applied in your life. These things are to be applied in the life that you chose. For it is made with your choice; it is done with your choice; it is manifested with your choice; it is acted out with your choice. It is felt with your choice; it is experienced with your choice; and nothing occurs without it being your choice, whether you create that to be in your conscious or your unconscious mind.

You are beings of choice. All That Is, the infinite Creation, the fabric of existence, chose you – chose that you should exist. Chose you; consciously chose you. You are, in that way therefore, blessed. And we would have you understand that simply because of the fact that you exist, you are blessed.
For you are created out of divine material, out of divine light. You are the infinite Creator. And your existence was a conscious decision, a conscious thing, a conscious choice. Act in like manner; be of like mind. Respect yourselves; love yourselves unconditionally. For out of unconditional love were you created; and out of unconditional love shall you create anything you desire. Know your integrity; manifest your honesty. It is your sharpest sword, the sharpest weapon you have ever had. But now it is a weapon of peace, a weapon of joy, a weapon of love; and a weapon only in the sense that it will cut through all manifestations that are what you do not desire.

Begin to feel the wave of your connection; begin to feel the energy of your interlinking with all thought forms, all consciousness, all civilizations... all eyes, all ideas, all minds, all hearts, all souls. All spirit is one; and you are one within that sea, within that pool.

Know that you are the fabric and the essence of the Galactic energy. Know that we are sustained; know that we are supported by your endeavor, by your existence. Know that we love you, because we know you have given birth to us. We give birth back to you. We remind you, in this giving of birth, that you can be anything you desire to be. That is our gift to your birth. To be born as anyone, any time, anywhere, anyhow you so desire: that is our gift to remind you. Anything that you choose to be sustains our existence, sustains the fabric of the Galactic connection.

You are the rotating stars. You are the essence of the spiral of the galaxy in which you inhabit – of all creation that you are, that extends from you, that issues forth from you, that is projected from you within yourself.

For you are everywhere; and there is nowhere else to be but where you are now. Everything is within you; there is no outside, as you have been reminded time and time again. Now all time collapses into one. Now all space collapses into one.

Any moment you so desire you can be within the total here and now. You can live your life that way. Events upon your planet, events within your solar system, are now accelerated.

And within a two-year span of time, there shall be much explosion of consciousness upon your world, much explosion of the connections that you have to other worlds within the galactic substance, within the galactic frame.

But these connections and these recognitions all are secondary to your recognition of your connections to yourselves, recognition of the connections of yourselves to the Infinite, of yourselves as the Infinite. For you are the Infinite. Even as we are the Infinite in our own way, you are the Infinite in your own way, and we treasure you and cherish you.

Wave after wave of love always is pulsing. Feel the spinning of the galaxy in your heart and in your mind and in your soul. It is a deep and rumbling sound, a deep and thorough sound, a deep and stirring sound. Allow it to bubble forth; allow it to bring forth the understanding of your self-honesty, your self-clarity, your insight and inspiration. For you are all of these as well. We remind you of these things that you do not need to be reminded of, simply because that is the way you have chosen.
But now, put them into action; put them into life. Be the word. Be the thing; be the idea; be the deed. Feel, in the beating of your heart that it keeps pace with the rhythm and the pulse of the spinning of all the galaxies, of the fabric of existence itself, of the universal heart of Infinite Creation. For you all beat within that heart. And not a one of you is outside the heart of All That Is. You are the blood and the life force of God itself. It is your force and your life as well. You are it; and it is you. Out of your dreams be born; out of your heart be alive; out of your soul be light. For you are nothing else. We thank you. (Pause and deep breathing, as another entity comes through – Anima, or some other gentle energy.) A: Within this idea of the sharing of the energy of the Galactic, allow yourselves to begin to feel the threads that intertwine you all. And understand that your threads are others threads... that you are made of the same threads. It is simply a different tapestry that you have woven out of the very same threads; a different picture you have painted out of the very same pigments; a different scene you have written on the very same pages, the very same paper, the very same ink, but a different play. We extend to you at this time, once again, our deepest and most heartfelt appreciation and love – in allowing us to experience you in the way you have created yourselves to be, and in the way you shall choose to create yourselves, And we would remind you that there are many upon your planet with many different beliefs. They are all to be loved; they are all to be cherished, even if they are not what you prefer. Remember: as from the vibration of the Galactic, the only thing that stands in the way of your open communication and your ecstatic joy is your willingness to choose ignorance or arrogance. Balance... in the center. And all things shall flow to you. For that is your birthright; and it is Part One of your legacy, the rest of which we will discuss later. B: At this timing, allow us once again to extend to you our deepest service. In what way at this time may we help, and may we shine? Good day to you. Q: Good day, I'm not as nervous this time as I was last time. B: We thank you very much for transforming your nervousness into excitement. Q: Okay. I'm very sad that you're not going to be doing this. B: Why? After what has just been said. Do you not recognize that you are giving to yourself, and that you have the capacity to connect, in by being an equal with us to all the energy that we have at our dispensation and disposal? Do you realize you are not cut off? Do you realize that you are becoming one? Q: Well, having the capacity and being able – with you being there – and the key to tuning into that vibration. And, like, having your tapes and listening to you all the time; it's like you are a friend at the highest level... B: You shall never lose our friendship. And we are not done interacting with all of you. It is simply that we are now commencing a different format. And in many ways, you will understand the wisdom of this, for we have done this with many worlds. We know what we are doing.
If you wish, I will put it in the following way... and I do not mean this in the fashion you would call egotistical... but if you are reinforcing to me that you trust who I am, and that is why you are sad to, quote/unquote, lose that friendship, then understand that the choices we are making in changing the timing must also be something that you trust.

Q: Okay. I do trust that.

B: Thank you.

Q: Okay, now...

B: Then be of joy that we are now changing; because the change is representative of the changes within you. We do not make these changes arbitrarily. We make them because we see within you the growth, and the fact that you do not need us in this way.

The idea also is to remember that anything and everything you have always felt from us, has actually been your own energy. And now we are giving you an opportunity to understand that you can recreate that feeling anytime, anywhere, on your own; because it has always been your own energy that you have felt. Not ours directly.

We have given you a template to match; we have given you a challenge to identify with. If you have felt our energy, it is because you have matched it. And it means you can match it any time, any place. So do so. And in that sense, we will be there. But you will be more fully there, and that is more important.

Q: Thank you.
Q: Good evening.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: Thank you for your presence, once again.
B: And yours as well.
Q: When you said that you were over Essassani now . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . and you commented that you were 500 light years in the direction of Orion . . .
B: In my vibrational universe, yes.
Q: you travel to earth . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . is there any time lag at all?
B: No.
Q: It is instantaneous?
B: Once the jump occurs, it is instantaneous. There may be what you would perceive as some time lag in setting up the jump, and some time lag in moving about in your reality to approach your planet, but the jump itself is instantaneous.
Q: How do you experience that?
B: You don’t, not really in the way that you mean it. You simply, all of a sudden, become one, and then you are focused again.
Q: And you are there?
B: Yes, because the idea is that you do in fact connect with everything in that timeless now, that timeless moment. It is something that isn’t really what you would call an experience, per se, although you could be left with the feeling that you have experienced something. It doesn’t translate so much as an experience, as simply a beingness. We know that that may not translate into your language well, but that is the best that can be done at present.
Q: And our planet Venus . . .
B: Yes.
Q: there any monuments left for us?
B: No. There are no monuments on your planet of Venus, there have not ever been.
Q: Is there any volcanic activity?
B: There is, yes.
Q: And in the system of Orion you have talked about Rigel...
B: Yes.
Q: What about the star Betelgeuse?
B: What about it?
Q: Does it have life, and a civilization visiting earth?
B: Civilization as you would understand it, no. There is consciousness connected to every star system, but in what you would recognize as a physicalized civilizational format, no.
Q: And in ancient and modern times there are references to the Great Central Sun, what does that translate into in your civilization?
B: The idea is simply a recognition, again, that everything revolves around something that represents the combined and integrated holistic aspect of itself, over and over and over again, to infinity. There is always a center that is the representation of everything revolving around it, and then there is the center of all of that, and a center to all of that, and a center to all of that, and it all leads to the same center, all one.
That’s the only way we would translate that concept, although we recognize that in the physiological universe there is an analogy of mass, in the sense that you have a large black hole in the center of your galaxy, and there is a large black hole that is representative of clusters of galaxies at the center of all the galaxies in your immediate area. And there are large black holes and central suns at the center of the clusters of the large black holes and central suns ...that are the combinations of large number of galaxies, that are the combinations of large number of stars, and so on and so forth...ad infinitum.
Q: How many galaxies is your Association aware of at present in our physiological universe? (Circa 1995)
B: Now remember, again, we have a physiological universe and you have a different dimensional physiological universe. YOU yourselves are aware that there are countless billions of galaxies, so when you ask the question: how many galaxies are we aware of...do you mean interactively?
Q: How many have you, in your association of beings, actually traveled to and experienced?
B: Seven.
Q: Seven.
B: Yes. Now we have not experienced the totality of each of those galaxies, but we have interacted with seven.
Q: Any names?
B: There are no names for them, as you understand that.
Q: It doesn’t translate?
B: Not really. You have your, what you call, Milky Way galaxy. Now, many different beings have different appellations for what to you would be the same galaxy. It has as many names as there are beings, in that sense, or civilizations, per se, that choose to give things names. We are connected to your galaxy. We are connected to what you call the Andromeda galaxy in your dimensional reality, and our own galaxy, of course, in our universal reality, which would be like a parallel of your galaxy. And four more in our universal reality, thus being a total, in that sense, of seven – five in our universal reality and two in yours.

Q: And the being Quetzalcoatl...
B: Yes.

Q: ...which the Toltecs and Aztecs represented as a plumed serpent...
B: Yes.

Q: ...it was told to me that it was also seen as a blond haired, blue eyed, tall woman?
B: It was perceived in many different ways, and those are all simply aspects of the total being of Quetzalcoatl as it translates into your definition of reality. We have already told you that the sighting of what you call your Mexican UFO was the return of the being in the civilization you called Quetzalcoatl, and more than that we cannot discuss at present.

Q: And the last thing, on salt. There is a substance called Celtic Salt, which has 84 plus minerals to help buffer it, and it is also said that it contains some of the inert gases – argon, neon and helium. Is that possible for salts?
B: Not in your dimension; Celtic salt is a recognition that there are etheric dimensional aspects to the elements that are associated with what exists in your physical reality as the chemical components, and that has to do with the fact that Celtic salt also does contain some of the monatomic elements, and thus, they act as bridge and a link to some of the etheric template aspects of the elements in non-physicality. There is a bridging or a linking between physical materiality and the etheric manifestation of the elements, as you understand it; end of discussion.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Galactic Societies

Q: How is it that we have come together to share these insights, and what is it like where you are?
B: Oh, it is very nice. (Audience laughter)

Q: And in terms that I could understand – being who I am and where I am – how long have you been there, and where have you come from, and where will you go?
B: Oh, my, my, my. That might take me, oh, thirty years... (Much laughter)
Q: (Laughing) Well, you said we have all the time there is, so...
B: Yes. In this way, first of all, recognize that our civilization, as distinct from your own, has its own identity, its own idea of what and who it is collectively, and all the individuals within it have their own cognition of why they have chosen to partake of our society.

There are many such societies within creation. You are a society that has chosen to experience a great deal of focus in the idea of limitation, forgetting that you are the creator of your reality. And you have now arrived at a time when you have experienced many hundreds of thousands of years of that practice. Now you are at the end of that cycle, and so you are beginning to open up as a civilization to the possibility that there are other levels of consciousness; that you yourself even exist on other levels than you previously considered to be possible.

And so, as you awaken your awareness up to the possibility that you are more expanded than you previously thought, you begin to encounter other consciousnesses that also exist on some of those other levels, that you also exist upon; us, for one.

As you begin to encounter all of those other levels of consciousness that already exist on those levels, then that is, in and of itself, an identification, an invitation for interaction with us; but interaction on a level that means non-interference in what you decide to be true for your collective reality. Thus, we are allowed to assist you, to remind you that you have all the answers, you have all the power that you need to discover anything that you desire to discover about yourself. But to do it in such a way, to assist you in such a way, that it does not force the issue upon you; and still always leaves it up to you to decide whether you believe or not, for your reality, that this type of an interaction is something that you actually even desire.

So we, as a civilization, along with many other civilizations that comprise what we call the Association of Civilizations, are simply recognizing that you are beginning to awaken to your possible inclusion, your possible participation in that Association of Civilizations. And we make our energy available to you, to do with what you will; to decide for yourselves whether or not the type of reality you do wish to experience collectively on your planet is the type of reality that will allow you to be equal to us.

Not less, not greater, but equal to us, so that you can share of the ecstasy, and the excitement and the exploration we have discovered within our civilization to be so enjoyable. Will that help you?
Q: Yes. When you speak of coming to equality with another level of consciousness, is it something that we as human beings, with a certain state of reality, can put into a place? Is there a place, is it something that exists within each cell and vein of any kind of physical being...

B: Yes.

Q: ... or is it something that exists beyond; like, say, left of Saturn and down the street from Jupiter? You know, is it something out in space...

B: It is both, because all space is within you. You are holographic. The universe is holographic. That is, each and every point contains the whole. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: That is where it happens. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, it does. Thank you.

B: Thank you; our love to you all.
Gateways of Creation

B: We will discuss the idea of channeling, but channeling in a much more open definition. For recognize that what you are perceiving through the physical channel before you at this time is only one way that the idea of channeling can be expressed in your society. And that really, as you say, when you do anything you love to do, you are channeling.

The idea is to simply form a connection between that idealized blueprint version of yourself, and the physicalized representational persona that you are in physical reality, to allow the two to blend, to allow the two to merge, in that way. So that you are in synchronous accord to what you know to be true for you, in harmonious alignment with the vibration that represents what, in your life, truly moves you and truly excites you the most.

Therefore, you are all channels, all the time. Because you have taken the idea that you are, as a non-physical consciousness, and are constantly channeling that idea into physical reality through the prism of the persona you have created yourself to be in this life. Everything you do and everything you experience as your physical reality, therefore, is the product of your channeling that idea into the notion, into the experience, of physical reality. Do you all follow along so far?

AUD: Yes.

B: Recognize, however, something that we have not discussed before: many of you think that channeling is a one-way street. It is two ways, coming and going; back and forth; back and forth. You are a gate. You are a valve. You are a doorway, in that sense. Many of you have assumed that channeling simply comes from what you call the higher planes into physical reality, and that is it. But recognize that channeling also goes in the reverse direction, and that physical reality also constantly reverses itself back through the gate that you are into non-physical reality.

We will use an analogy we have used recently: that called the golden fluid that allows you to function as a golden gate, which allows you to create golden crystallization, or physical reality. If you imagine and envision yourselves as this gate, recognize, that on one side of the gate that you are exists an infinite amount of golden light, golden fluid, in that sense. Now, this is an analogy, you do not have to take us very literally in this way, but this analogy will work. The golden fluid is simply a representational idea of the primary energy out of which all matter of physical reality is created, is crystallized. Do you follow me?

AUD: Yes.

B: Therefore, on one side of yourself, on one side of the doorway that you are, is this golden fluid, out of which all physical reality is manifested. When you funnel that golden fluid of non-physical awareness through the prism – through the gate of your physical identity, your physical persona – then that golden fluid crystallizes, solidifies, as the physical reality you experience in day-to-day life. The physical reality you perceive in day-to-day life.

Now, recognize the two way street. You, when you change your physical reality, what you are doing then is allowing the crystallization to become molten once again, by taking it inward, adopting, accepting, acknowledging the reality you create, encompassing that reality, taking it back within you. Into the very center of the gate that you are, so that it can become fluid and molten and plastic once again. So that then you can transform that plastic fluid back into another crystallization that is more representative of the new idea you are being.

So you see it is always coming and going. Going and coming. Becoming fluid. Crystallizing. Melting down. Becoming crystallized. Becoming fluid; back and forth, back and forth, through the valve, through the gate that you are.

Recognize therefore that is why, if you wish to change any crystallization of the fluid, any physical experience, any physical reality that you do not prefer, if you have taken that fluid and allowed it to solidify, to crystallize in a format that may be slightly off-kilter from what you would prefer it to be, the way to allow that to transform into a more precise crystalline alignment, more representative of the idea you truly imagined to begin with, is not to deny that that is your creation, is not to run from that crystallized reality, but to take it back within the crucible that you are. So that it can melt down once again, and then give you the material to work with so that you can re-form it, so you can pass it through the gate that you are, one more time. And allow it to crystallize upon the template you now set for it, within your imagination.

That is why, when you run away from any aspect of life that you perceive around you as a physical reality, denying that you had anything to do with creating it, denying that it belongs in your life, then you do not give it the opportunity to melt down and re-form into the reality you prefer. It stays crystallized, and it becomes more crystallized. It becomes colder, in that sense. It becomes more solid, more physically dense, in that way. Sets itself in stone, in that sense, becomes calcified, in that way.

When you are always willing to re-adopt any crystallization, quickly, fluidly, then it remains in a highly plastic state, a highly fluid state and, therefore, it is not as difficult to transform the situation that you do not prefer into one that you do. Because you do not let it stay in physical reality that long and solidify into steel, into cement. You always maintain a high degree of fluidity – taking it back in, melting it down, saying: “What else can I do?” Letting it come back out and crystallize along the lines of the template that are created in your imagination. So you are a two-way valve, a two-way gate.

You are, on the side facing – and again this is an analogy – on the side of your gate facing the fluid, you, in a sense are crystallized. And on the side facing crystalline reality, you are fluid. So that always, in that way, you have the opportunity to interact, to be the interface that always shows the pattern for what is out there and what it can become; so that you, as a fluid, will interact with the crystalline reality in a very softening way. Just in the same way that water wears down the rocks of your physical reality.

When you allow yourself to know you are crystalline on the side of the fluid reality, of the fluid energy, then that crystalline side of you represents the patterns, the templates, the imagination, the ideas, the experiments, the formats that you wish to impose upon that fluid. It represents the patterning of that fluid, so that the fluid can take its cue from the crystalline side it sees; and so the crystalline side can take its cue from the fluid side of your being. Always you function within polarity to these ideas, so that you are always a gate that is twisting both ways, and never set and solidified.

When you interact as crystal to crystal, then you reinforce the reality created for you, and give it nothing else, no polarity to interact with. When you interact as fluid to fluid, then you do not manifest your realities into physicalness. You do not allow them to crystallize because everything is still very nebulous and washing around, and nothing has anything to take a pattern from. So the gate that you are, in that sense, is bi-polar in an opposite way to the way you experience your reality, and the way the materials are set up to create that experience. But it always flows both ways.

Allow yourself, in adopting this imagery, to therefore know that any crystallized reality that you do not prefer is simply formed along a template, an idea that you have created, which is at that time, the perfect representation of the idea you are being. And that therefore, once you crystallized that idea, that’s what gives you the opportunity to decide whether or not the template was in the form you wished it to be.

Physical reality is only clay, you can soften it up again. Just because you allow yourself to create an idea in physical form and you find you don’t prefer it, it doesn’t mean you’re stuck with it. Only by refusing to take that crystalline substance back within you, do you then create it to remain where you do not wish it to.

But once you accept any situation, which you have crystallized in physical terms, back into your heart, then the warmth of the vibration of the love, the unconditional love in your heart, in your center, is what melts crystalline reality and turns it back into the molten golden fluid out of which you can create any reality. AUD: Yes.

B: Then, take it to heart... and flow, and grow.

AUD: Thank you! Wonderful! (Laughter and comments)

Gateways of Creation
Genetic Manipulations

Q: Good evening.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I would like to thank you and those members of your Association for the continuance of this opportunity to engage in conversation with you.
B: All right. There will be a brief amount of time for this transmission. Proceed quickly.
Q: Approximately 500,000 years ago it has been said that Homo erectus was able to use fire for the first time in our current linear evolution. Was that opportunity given to them by an outside source or was it just natural evolution? Was it ET produced or...
B: In terms of the original genetic manipulations that were created out of the native hominid species, the move toward what you call Homo sapiens, in that sense, you could say that it was artificially produced as an ability to then discover that for themselves. You understand that?
Q: Right. Okay.
B: So they came upon it as a result of the genetic enhancement that ultimately led to their capability to see things in that way.
Q: And the Neanderthals originally had much larger nasal passages for oxygenation and a larger brain. Why was that reduced?
B: The idea, again, is that... there are a few different reasons. Some of them environmental, some of them the results of the limitations imposed upon the selves of the collective consciousness in that if you pretend that you are not using it, then you do not need to manifest as much. You understand that?
Q: Yes.
B: Also they were the results of certain genetic manipulations that were deemed to be both (a) refinements of concentration, and (b) also the weeding out of certain things that in certain strains were deemed to be undesirable from their political point of view.
Q: So the reduction of the oxygen intake would actually create more of an analytical focus and reduce the brain mass?
B: To some degree, yes; also, in that it was recognized that there would be less oxygen on the planet.
Q: I see.
B: In the changes, it was redesigned to take the advantage of that idea, whereas, in the past there was more. Now this would seem to be contradictory in the sense of saying, why not reduce something, because if there is more oxygen then you don’t need as much, but it doesn’t work this way.
Q: Right.
B: You have to design the thing to be shaped for the environment itself, otherwise it is not the vibration of that environment in direct reflection.

Q: And the simian eyes, it has been said that that was one of the limitations that was left with us?
B: In that sense it is neither the idea of limitation or otherwise, it was simply the material that was at hand to work with.

Q: So the bigger eyes don’t represent anything in particular?
B: They represent what they represent in the archetypal expression left in what you call the simian animal; in you they represent what they represent in the archetypal representation of the human, and both of you see things differently. As any animal will see differently than you do because of its archetypal representation, or symbolic place within the collective consciousness. It is not an issue of taking anything away from you, it is an issue of simply that you need to be what you are designed to be.

Q: And the reptilians, what DNA was used for their initial development?
B: Many different forms of what you call dinosauria.

Q: Not one particular species?
B: There were some strains more than others. Such as what you would call Troodonce and some of what you would call, the Raptors, and so forth. But it is also a blend and a mixture over many different generations of experimentation.

Q: What electromagnetheric frequency do the reptilians vibrate at in our current reality?
B: They do not actually vibrate with a frequency that is congruent with your reality, so to give you a frequency would not be a one to one correlation. If they were to project into your reality I could give you a correlation, but it doesn’t necessarily extrapolate directly or relate directly to the frequency scale we often use to represent your frequency.

Q: Are they mostly autonomous or are they servile?
B: It is an odd and unusual combination of the two. You cannot really say mostly, it is too blended to separate those concepts apart from one another in their society. They are autonomous and they are, in many ways, servile; it's their nature, in that sense, yet they are autonomous within it.

Q: Right.
B: Yet they are designed in a certain fashion. Their vibration relative to your reality would be somewhere between 11,000 and 37,000 cycles per second, but again, remember that is not a direct relationship to the frequencies that we often give you. It is calculated in a very different way that we will explain in a future date.

Q: The last couple of things: the number six you have referenced as the number of technology, can you explain that further?
B: The idea is that it is based upon the vibration itself of atomic structures and crystalline structures that are the bases, vibrationally, for all things you understand to be technological in nature as an expression in your reality.
Q: So it’s a molecular connection.
B: In a sense, that is a simplistic way of saying it. We can also get into that in more detail at another time.
Q: The last thing is Saturn, it was the god of melancholy and it took on a negative connotation in our past. We have the council of Saturn, which is connected to the Council of Nine.
B: Yes.
Q: What brought on this negative definition?
B: Simply forgetfulness and misinterpretation of the idea of what might pass for melancholy, but in fact is simply calm wisdom, calm knowing. You understand the difference?
Q: Yes.
B: Does this help you?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: Thank you. We will once again…

Genetic Manipulations

Genetics, Mind Control, Abductees

Q: There have been a lot of biogenetic experimentations done by our shadow government over the last, most likely, fifty or more years.
B: Some, yes.
Q: And some of the experiments that we know of, that we actually have documentation on are pretty amazing.
B: If you say so.
Q: And I was curious as to whether they had been capable of creating what we might see as extraterrestrial entities by hybridization process. Have they created entities that we would, if we saw ... they would be extraterrestrial looking to us?
B: In appearance, some of them might seem that way. This does not mean that they actually contain extraterrestrial DNA.
Q: Right, exactly, but they could, let’s say, cross a snake DNA with human DNA?
B: Well, that is not exactly how it’s done, no.
Q: Okay, because ...
B: That is not how it’s done. It is only the idea of the taking of, what you call, the human DNA and realizing the ontological potential that the human DNA contains all stages therein of, what you call, evolution. And it is only the manipulation therein that is required to bring out any of these qualities you may attribute to any other life form on your planet. They don’t actually have to take genetic material from a life form.
Q: All right. So have they created anything like that that we would see as really odd or animal like?
B: From time to time this has been done to a limited degree. They were not what you would consider to be successful, nor even those that may have been of some duration, did they survive for long.
Q: We’ve mentioned that the Men in Black, some of them, there are many types, but some of them may have been cloned.
B: That is a different idea altogether, and not cloning as you understand it now.
Q: Okay.
B: And besides which, the cloning aspect does not come from your shadow government’s abilities, it comes from something else.
Q: Oh, it does?
B: No comment, keep going.
Q: Okay, I have a theory that I’ve come up with.
B: Oh, all right, share your theory.
Q: And I don’t know how wild it is, but I’m trusting my intuition.
B: Well, the wilder it is then the more we will have to refer to it as simply a hypothesis, rather than a theory.
Q: Well, you know I’ve been researching mind control.
B: Mind control.
Q: And I’ve found some really fascinating things.
B: All right.
Q: Such as virtual reality scenarios ... we’ve talked about this.
B: Yes.
Q: Abduction experiences under which lies the actual programming.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Now, is there a possibility that people in the military, who want to keep an eye on those ... you see I think that...
B: State your theory.
Q: Okay. Is it possible that the shadow government, who wants to keep an eye on mind control victims that might be ready to divulge some sensitive information, would abduct abductees unknowingly, not knowing that they are really abductees and made "contact?" I think the waters of research in terms of mind control victims and abductees are really muddied.
B: This is correct.
Q: And that they’re really fusing and melding.
B: Yes.
Q: And is it possible that they abduct abductees, not only for the purpose of finding out what the extraterrestrials have told them, but also for the reason of finding out and making sure that they’re not a mind control victim that’s going to divulge some sensitive information?
B: Yes.
Q: I thought so. Wow.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes, that’s interesting.
Q: I had one more thing.
B: Yes?
Q: What are the ... can you give me sort of an idea of the percentage of mind control victims that think they are abductees, as opposed to the percentage that are actual abductees?
B: One moment, there is a great deal of fluctuation in this because there are a number of different experiences within this overall grouping. We are attempting to sift so that we can give you a more discrete answer, specific to how you have asked the question ... twenty three percent.
Q: Twenty three percent are mind controls that think they’ve been abducted?
B: Twenty three percent experience what they believe to be alien abduction and this is not so.
Q: Okay.
Get Used To It

B: Good day!
Q: I read this book called, "Bringers of the Dawn."
B: Yes.
Q: I read the first...and I know, in a sense, what you’re going to say.
B: Well then, why ask the question? Why not make a statement instead?
Q: I don’t agree with this book...
B: Thank you.
Q: ...I feel that it is a representation of a very negative reality, and past ... and possibly no future.
B: All right.
Q: Depending if we are successful in our...
B: If you’re successful?
Q: That’s what it says in this book.
B: Okay, you are postulating the hypothesis of the literature?
Q: Yes, of my interpretation of the literature.
B: Yes.
Q: I know that I do not agree with this.
B: All right.
Q: But at the same time...
B: At the same time?
Q: ... I’ve gotten feedback and it has been very inspirational, which I....
B: Of course. Tools will work differently for different people. What may be valid for someone else is not necessarily valid for you at this point. It doesn’t mean that it doesn’t have validity, it just means that, from your perspective, you prefer something different, that’s all.
Q: Well, let me just go into more depth.
B: Oh, all right, I will let you; go as deep as you wish.
Q: Thank you so much. The feedback on our past, even though after hearing your feedback, your opening words...
B: Yes.
Q: ... you’re concentrating on the moment, it actually made me go into the past.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: And they talk about how we were a free will planet.
B: Are, are.
Q: Are, thank you. Well, no. I’m stating what I read in the book.
B: Oh, all right. Were, were, were.
Q: We were a free will planet...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and because of this freedom, their civilization came and controlled our frequency so that we are now controlled....
B: I see.
Q: In order to bust out of this control there are a group of entities that are here that are busting the paradigm, and in order to be successful in this venture, what I read in this book, you have to experience both the negative aspect of this controlling civilization which happens to be lizard form.
B: Oh, I see, all right.
Q: And that they are very ... probably if you saw them, they would be so scary that some of us would die of a heart attack.
B: Oh, all right, this is true. (Audience laughter)
Q: Okay, and that this is a necessary step, seeing them and owning that which scares you...
B: Yes:
Q: ... in order to look forward in this....
B: Allegorically that is so, whether you play it out literally or not. You must own and accept all the negativity within yourself, as we said in our opening remarks, in order for you to integrate the totality of your being and accelerate any more. Now, it doesn’t necessarily need to play out in a literal context, however, for some people, on a certain level of reality, it will, because of their frequency and because of their belief systems. Look at it as an experience that has a number of different ways of being experienced, a number of different levels. Some people will need, by their own belief system, to experience it in a very literal way. Others can experience it in, what you call, an allegorical way, symbolically. In that you all have, what you might call, primal level to your consciousness, a quote/unquote, "lizard brain." You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: The survival level of your animal self is equivalent to what your scientists call the "lizard brain" and thus, you have to accept the primal level and all the fears that exist in the primal level, the survival fears and so on and so forth. You have to accept and integrate that aspect of your consciousness into the totality of your being in order to ascend, to accelerate, and to evolve. Yes, that is the truth in the statement, however, we understand that in that work it is being expressed, only on one level, as a literal experience, physiologically, of encountering lizard extraterrestrials. Some people will experience it literally, physically that way, but that does not mean that it does not have a number of different ways of being experienced and, according to your frequency, will determine how it is you deal with that idea, whether literally or allegorically. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: So it doesn’t mean that the literature is "wrong," it is simply limited to one strata of how the idea can be experienced and it isn’t extending to other strata. That’s all. Because remember, everything is holographic, everything can be experienced in a number of ways and they’re All true, they’re ALL right. It is just that they are all different and according to the vibration YOU are, will determine exactly what strata of the holographic experience you do experience. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes, it does. And I also ... when I’m in the presence of a very interesting experience that I’ve only recently started to experience... I’ve been listening to a lot of tapes...

B: Yes.

Q: ...and when I listen to the tapes the information brings back the time band, and what I think, all of a sudden, it is answered by the tape.

B: Yes.

Q: This is very interesting.

B: Yes.

Q: I never felt it before.

B: Well, get used to it. It is called synchronicity. It’s called being in sync with your reality generation. Synchronicity is what lets you know that your frequency has caught up to the frequency upon which you create the reality. The frequency of the awareness of the reality, the awareness of the reflection, has synchronized with the speed in which you are generating the reality. That’s what synchronicity is, you are in sync, synchronous harmony with the creation of your reality and your awareness of the fact that you are creating it. Your reality has become transparent to you, you know that what you see around you is in fact your reflection, it bounces back to you instantaneously. Thus, you are synchronized. So get used to it, more and more of you are beginning to recognize that your reality is becoming transparent to you in that way, and that means that you are harmonizing and synchronizing with the realization that you are the one that is manifesting what’s going on.

Q: Definitely.

B: Well, that’s working. Does that help you?

Q: Yes.

B: We thank you.

B: We thank you.
Getting in Touch

B: You!

Q: Recently you said that all pain, mental and physical, spiritual and emotional, was as a result of some kind of disconnection from All That Is.

B: Yes.

Q: Uh, can you recommend any process by which a person can get more in touch with all that is?

B: Process?

Q: Well, I don’t know.

B: Now we can recommend many processes; but recognize that your imagination will alter them to fit you and your vibration accordingly. But again, the idea, the idea of believing that a process is necessary is a continuance of the separation, because you are not saying that you believe that you are connected now.

Q: I see.

B: And you are. It is trust that is necessary. Knowing that you are connected, acting like you’re connected, acting like you believe you’re connected, then you will be.

Q: Yeah, I get it.

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
Getting the Big “C” – Cancer
Q: I was creating my reality…
B: Was?
Q: Was…well, this was a, quote/unquote, past situation…
B: Yes.
Q: I, in going to use some…fill in some generals for the specifics. Say someone tells me I’m going to get cancer if I do such and such thing. And I say, "no I’m not," and I choose to consciously create that I don’t create things like that in my life. And I get it anyway.
B: All right. May I remind you that many times, first of all again, these things are opportunities to truly recognize what level of self-empowerment you know you have. For if you have co-created that idea, and create it for yourself, in that way, it is, again, an opportunity to recognize now much power you do have in creating a scenario to begin with, and in recognizing you can create the scenario in another way.
But the idea also is to recognize that the way you usually respond to individuals who offer you these suggestions is indicative that you do actually have a fear and a belief in the reality of that idea more than any other. So the idea of your response, “no I don’t,” in a sense, is a conflictive one, rather than the idea of pulling out of them why they believe in that reality, and assisting them to change that belief – which will then change you.
But just to say, "no, I don’t," many times is an indication of the fear you actually have – because you are reacting. You are being conflictive in your response, which is an indication that you actually are, perhaps, buying into what they have offered to you as a suggestion.
Otherwise you would not need to recoil from it; you would dive headfirst into it. “How fascinating that you should think so. Why do you think so? What has created this belief within you?” And so forth. To explore full-speed ahead, head first as you say, the idea of why you should attract in your life someone whom would even suggest that idea to you.
For again, many times the attraction of an individual into your life who would make that suggestion is an indication of beliefs that you do have within you. But in no way, shape or form does that mean that it must remain so.
And you can look at it from the positive point of view – that having attracted an individual into your life who might suggest that to you is an opportunity to show yourself that you perhaps do, in fact, have those beliefs, or you would never probably have had to have heard that individual say that to you.
Now it is your opportunity, therefore, to recognize that the belief system has been brought to the surface, that it has been pointed out; and now you can deal with it. Again, the situations that happen in your life are not there to show you you are stuck; they are not there to show you you are a failure. They are there to show you what the beliefs are you have, so that you can know what they are – so you can change, so you can change the reality that they have shown you exists within you. You follow me?
Q: Yeees.
B: Yeees?
Q: Well, it’s first like…well, I was pretty sure that I didn’t have a belief in a certain situation, and then I see that situation…

B: All right. All right. But again, you are acting as if you think you have failed. Change that attitude. Listen to yourself: “I was petty sure.”
Q: Well, it really broke my confidence, I’d been sailing along pretty quick.
B: It did not break your confidence. Nothing can break your confidence but you. And again, you are looking at it from a judgmental point of view, as if there was the idea that your confidence could even be broken, as if you had to have the idea of confidence so that it could be broken.

Knowingness is knowingness. Many times when individuals in your society talk of confidence, they talk about it as something that might be able to be broken. You talk about it as a wall, rather than a foundation, rather than an understanding. You talk about it as a tenuous thing. You talk about confidence as if you are walking a tightrope. “Please don’t do anything to upset my confidence.” You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: If you watch yourself; if you are watching for when situations might break your confidence, then, in a sense, all you are saying is that you really have never allowed yourself to simply know what is true for you.

And this is an opportunity to recognize that that may be what you have been doing. So that you can dispense with the idea of needing to "maintain" confidence. But rather you can simply "live" your life in a knowing way. There is a difference, a profound difference, between the two.

Again, each and every one of these scenarios is yet another opportunity to realize how many layers of beliefs you have created for yourselves. You are peeling yourself like the proverbial onion; you are discovering that you have wrapped yourself in thousands of cloaks. You think you are dealing, many times, with the foundational ideas, but yet again you discover that you have wrapped yourself with another illusion.

And so you will always peel them away, giving yourself an opportunity to explore these ideas. Now you have an opportunity to understand that you have been dealing in the idea of confidence as if it were something that someday might let you down, might break down – that you might not be able to hold it up.

You are treating it as if it were something that you had to carry through life, that you had to watch out for, every step, otherwise there might be something out there lurking in the darkness, lurking in the shadows – that might pop out and someday break the confidence. Many times when you talk about confidence, that’s the definition you give it.

Now you have given yourself a prime example, a prime opportunity to realize that that is the definition you gave to confidence. So now you can change the idea; you can use this, like anything, as an opportunity. Recognize, the universe, yourself, the idea of infinite creation – never, ever, ever, is there a scenario created in your life that is too much for you to handle. Never!

In a sense, you are being paid a compliment. For in this way, the amount of the idea that you think you must now deal with is directly representative of the actual strength you have to deal with it. So lighten up. Lighten up. You can, if you are willing to, laugh it completely away.

Q: That sounds like a good way to do it
B: The curtain is up; this will be a comedy.
Q: Definitely.
B: If you are going to think – if you insist upon thinking – of the idea of cancer with a capital C, at least let the C stand for comedy.
Q: Okay.
B: And also for catharsis. For that is what it is for many individuals – a gate and a doorway to walk through, so that in one sense, in the old sense, you will recognize that you, as the person you have been, will, in a sense, die. But you do not have to physically die to be born as the new person you prefer to be. If you use the idea of cancer as comedy and catharsis, then you will allow yourself to become the person in whose definition there is no need for that tool or disease. But that will invoke from you a willingness to be that new person. And that new person is one who enjoys life itself. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: I have another quick one.
B: Brief.
Q: In Maui I asked you about my camera. I asked you specifically if you could tell me if the camera was in the house…
B: Yes.
Q: And you said, "yes."
B: Yes.
Q: Were you saying, yes, you could tell me, or yes the camera was in the house?
B: Why are you still concerned?
Q: I’m still looking for it.
B: More C: camera, concern…
Q: I love ’em, crystals.
B: Crystals. Does everything, to you, have to be, in your estimation, picture perfect before you will allow it?
Q: Very much not.
B: All right. Then for now, perhaps, you do not need to focus on that.
Q: Well, it’s just like, for some reason it’s always there in my mind. I’d like to just forget about it, but it’s just part of my life that it seems – I just wish I knew where it was.
B: I’ll tell you exactly where it is.
Q: Oh, good.
B: It is within you. Listen carefully, it is you; you are the camera for now. You! Remember what we have been saying to many of you, your recording devices are an externalized idea. Many of will now find your recording devices disappearing and, in your terms, malfunctioning. Because you are now going to function as the recording device.
You are now going to take the pictures, and create the pictures to be what you will know will be the life you prefer to be. You take the picture; you make the picture; you are the camera now – for now.
You will find it again physically – after you become it first. Makes you "shutter," doesn’t it?
Q: No. Thank you.
B: Understand the idea in a very literal sense, in a very literal sense, we are not simply being philosophical, when we say you are the camera, we mean it. Take me literally and start acting like it. Then you will see a difference.
Q: I like the way that sounds, because a camera just takes each second and holds each second, right?
B: All right. But you do not have to hold on to it. The idea is that you will always be existing in a new second; the idea is not so much to collect images of the past. You follow me?
Q: I do. I just like to collect the images, even though I don’t do anything with them. I just like collecting them.
B: It is representatives of an idea that you say you are attempting to change for now. Let it slide.
Q: Collecting: another C. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Global Unification and the New World Order

Q: Can you give us an understanding of what is the New World Order – who founded it, where is it heading?
B: Are you talking about what many people on your planet refer to as the political concept?
Q: Yes.
B: It can be a variety of things and, of course, there are many different kinds of things, of interpretations, as we scan your collective consciousness for what that phrase might mean.

Some individuals will find that a new world order will represent what might be called a strengthening or reinforcement of actually quite an old world order; and that is the idea of domination and control. However, many individuals also recognize that there needs to be a new world in order for you to transcend and transform into a new understanding and a new way of being.

Now, paradoxically, the idea really of creating a new world order, so to speak, is actually one of creating less control, in the sense of domination and more in the sense of knowing that everything already works and flows effortlessly, smoothly. So that any so-called future, quote/unquote, government that needs to exist on your planet will not so much be a government, but the idea of an interactive networking organization for the purpose of making the connections between people that are necessary to allow what needs to be done, to be done. This is ultimately what your planet will evolve into.

Individuals who assume that a political new world order based, on old political ideas could even survive, are not understanding the nature of energy; for anything that rigid as has been purposed as a new world order, anything that is feared of that nature, if actually even begun to be realized would never be able to stand up under its own weight. It would be, in a sense, too top heavy.

The idea, therefore, is that this new world order idea is an opportunity now presented – you can look at it this way – an opportunity presented by your people to yourselves, to decide for yourself – what kind of future do you want? What kind of planet do you want? What kind of organization do you want? Do you want to be self-empowered beings and responsible for yourself? Or do you want to continue to allow other individuals to run your lives for you? You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: So look at it that way. In other words, really what it is all about is getting your own consciousness in order, in which you do not need anyone else to order you around.

Q: Will this civilization, will this race finally solve its problems and move on to a more positive future?
B: Yes, or we would not be talking with you.
Q: Would we have a world headquarters? Will the world come together as one, and a certain city become the headquarters of this planet, like a world capital?
B: There is the possibility that you will allow yourself to let Geneva function in this manner, since it has always represented the concept of neutrality to your people.
However, it will not be seen as a seat of power, but simply, again, as a nodular... or a nexus for a higher level of networking and organizational principles that allow for a free flow of exchange among all your people. And, ironically, also, it will be seen that the idea is that, while now your Swiss nation is seen as one of the economic hubs of your planet, monetarily speaking, when the time comes that you no longer need that particular medium of exchange, it will be an irony that the same place will also recognize that the true, true value on your planet is the people and all the things themselves of nature. And that will be the new economy, and it will be an irony that it will still be flowing through that nation on your planet, which now, in some senses, controls most of the actual monetary reserve. You follow?

Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
Q: Yes, I’m sure.
B: But the idea is that you really will have, in that sense, a global network, organization. It will not necessarily really be seated in one spot for too long. And in and around, as we scan you energy now, about your year of 2037 you will find that at that time there will be a sufficient amount of unification and understanding on your planet, so that your world will take your place among what we call the Association of Worlds. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: There will be much contact before that but in and around your year of 2037 it will be, in that sense, quote/unquote, official. Does that help you?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.

Global Unification and the New World Order

Go Within

Q: Is that the only thing that keeps us from merging more fully with All That Is... our own judgment patterns?
B: Yes. That is all there is.
Q: Is that what creates the veil between the subconscious and the conscious patterns?
B: Yes. That is all there is.
Q: And the judgment patterns probably start from a grosser level, all the way down to the subtler levels. If one is seeking...
B: You have created it to be that way, but again, you are judging that it has to be that complex.
Q: Okay, one other question. I don’t know how to say this, do you know the being named Andromeda Rex? Or what’s my relationship with this being, if other than just being a guiding voice along the way?
B: If that is what it feels like for now, then simply pay attention to it in that form.
Q: It feels like more.
B: In what way?
Q: My curiosity goes further.
B: Follow your curiosity then. Do not look outside yourself when you are curious. Curiosity leads you within. Follow it. The idea of meditation is knowing the answers do not exist outside yourself, they exist within. Curiosity lures you there, go within. What is the vibration of Andromeda Rex to you?
Q: A voice that sounds like my own.
B: Very good.
Q: I will go within, thank you.
B: It is, in a sense, your Higher self. That is our perception of it, for what that is worth. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Q: A while ago you discussed gold and the aura and the properties of gold.
B: Yes.
Q: And nobody seemed to pick up on those connections, I was waiting...
B: Oh, several people did.
Q: Oh, did they? I must not have been around. Would you mind exploring that a little further?
B: As we have said, you will recognize basically that there is an energy that surrounds and imbues and imbeds and is immersed within the idea you call gold. This has been responsible, so to speak, for its attraction in your society; although many of you did not understand why, in that way.
It is not just that it is “rare,” but in this way the idea is that the energy it channels through itself – how it creates itself to be, how it is created in the mass consciousness – will allow you to recognize that the gold that exists now is the gold that has always existed. It does not corrode – ever.
Q: I understand that.
B: In this way, recognize the auric field – it is no accident that in your language, the base root of all your languages, the idea of aura is the same as gold, in that way.
You can explore the idea that there is a type of energy that can be extracted, let us say, from gold, in that way, that can allow you to become physically ageless.
Q: Now are we talking gold metal, gold crystal... what are we talking about?
B: The metal. There is an energy, in a sense, that is attached to it that can be extracted and channeled to allow there to be imbuenment in your auric field of the longevity that represents that creative field, that creative energy – the eternalness of your being.
It is why, in what we term our spacecraft, the flash matrix – that device that converts, let us say, or bridges the gap between one type of energy and another type of energy – it has gold as its constituent, its main constituent.
For in this way, it imparts a type of stasis into the energy that allows the craft to become something removed and, in a sense, static from the rest of the universes. It becomes, within its own limbo, suspended in an eternal nowness. Partly, the idea of the gold is what imprints itself upon the field of the craft and imprints the ability to exist as an eternal idea – unchanging.
Q: It will take physical energy in and then move this non-physical energy around?
B: It is all physical and non-physical, in your terms, at the same time. It is a translator, it is an attractor, it is a magnet and a battery for that energy.
Q: Is that what the alchemists called the philosopher’s stone?
B: In a sense, they recognized that latent within the idea of gold was the idea expressed as that energy, in terms of immortality. The refinement, so to speak, of the electromagnetic energy of your planet into a type of crystalline lattice work represented by the metal gold that represented the pureness of all the metals. That is why it is regarded as a, shall we say, “royal” metal.

Q: So do we have to wear a lot of gold?
B: You do not have to wear a lot. And in this way again, you can extract from that energy, as many of you do, by combining what you call crystals with gold. Specifically because that is a memory of how that was done and utilized in that way from Atlantean times.

Q: Are there any particular shapes of gold that would accentuate this process more than others?
B: Spheres.
Q: Spheres.
B: Yes.

Q: How about gold in your teeth? You know... if you had lots of gold fillings or crowns.
B: In this way, again, it can have an effect upon your auric field in different forms of balance, and it will also allow you to recognize that there may be, in your terms, imbalances within the field. For it will act as a sensor for those imbalances. It can alleviate some of them in that way. But it depends upon the idea that you allow it to utilize within your imagination as well.

Q: So it could help with the electromagnetic field of the body?
B: Yes.
Q: Or it could interfere with it?
B: Not so much interfere, but it can allow you to recognize imbalances, and if you do not allow yourself, through your own imagination, to alleviate those imbalances, you may not allow yourself to partake of the energy that is available to you through the manifestation of the gold.

Q: So if you had depression, it would amplify the depression?
B: Not so much depression. Understand, what you have termed in your society, gold fever: the idea that you can recognize so innately, the idea of the energy that is available; but because you are segregated within judgment it may amplify your judgment rather than amplify your integration.

Q: I’ve heard that someone had an operation and they had a metal plate in their head and they were receiving a radio signal.
B: Yes, that is not impossible.

Q: If you have a lot of metal in your teeth... can it affect you then?
B: It can cause there to be imbalances within your auric field. But you can revitalize it by rebalancing the electromagnetic energy, with the blue-white light and the idea of association to lots of purified water.

Q: What other chemicals would purify our body and...
B: Primarily water. Water.
Q: Water.
B: There is much more to the energy of water than you realize.

Q: Well, I have a lot of metal in my mouth and I’m really worried.

B: Do not worry about it.

Q: I don’t worry but I...

B: All right. Then in this way recognize that you can always extract the idea of the energy from water and rebalance your electrochemical, electrolytic idea within your body, as it relates to the balance of your auric field. You can use the blue-white light. You can also use the golden light. The light and the color of the light can carry the same energy as the metal.

Q: Does there have to be a constant doing of this?

B: No.

Q: But it will rebalance it?

B: Yes.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Gravitic Influences

Q: Is the earth rotating at the equator one thousand miles an hour right now?
B: Approximately.
Q: And that it rotates around the sun at sixty-six thousand, six hundred miles an hour?
B: Are these things that you cannot simply look up? Yes, this is approximately also true, but why are you asking us things that you have access to in your literature?
Q: I had access to that information, but I wanted to see if it was correct.
B: What makes you think that my saying yes makes it any more correct than anything that you could discover in your own literature?
Q: Because sometimes the things in our literature are not correct.
B: But why don’t you take the time to make the discoveries as best as you can without asking us? Just think about it for a moment, how long is your day?
Q: Twenty-four hours.
B: How large is the circumference of your planet.
Q: I can’t remember.
B: Think about it. A thousand miles an hour, twenty-four hours, means it is about?
Q: Twenty-four thousand miles.
B: Thank you. You see you have ways of verifying these things, and seeing that they make sense when they do make sense. All that you can do is look all that up, cross reference everything, check the numbers, see if they make sense to you. Very often you will find they simply do, and it isn’t any more esoteric than that. And you don’t need to run to us to verify some simple mathematical construct that you can find out on your own quite simply, and verify on your own quite simply by cross checking the numbers from different angles.
Q: Okay.
B: Interactions between us are for the purpose of all of you knowing what information you have access to, and not just simply asking us out of convenience – but doing your own research so that you KNOW what you know, and don’t just know it because I have said so. Because there are many different kinds of approaches that we take in communicating to your society and sometimes we will tell you that a thing is one way for a completely different purpose than you may think. A lot of times what may seem to come from us to be a pat answer will not necessarily be true in all contexts, but perhaps only in the one that we were discussing at that moment. So do not necessarily assume that we are giving the FINAL WORD on everything. Do your own research.
So what is the reason you are exploring this idea?
Q: I wanted to know the effect at the equator with spinning at a thousand miles an hour as we move towards the pole…
B: Yes.
Q: ...the speed of the earth must actually change.
B: Yes.
Q: I was wondering about the influence that that would have on our physical bodies?
B: You must, again, understand that if you do a little bit of research, you will find that while there is some fluctuation, it isn’t great. The idea is that your earth is somewhat flattened at the poles because of the fact that it spins and is bulging around the equator. The idea is that the bulge reduces, to some degree, the concept of gravity because it is spinning you so fast. In the same way that if you were to take an object on the end of a string and spin it around, the centrifugal force is forcing you away, balancing the sense of the gravity that is pulling down on you. So that then, when you go and you find yourself moving to different portions of your planet, you will find that there may be fluctuations in gravitational pull because you may be going slower, and because there may or may not be less or more material pulling on you. But it will not have a great degree of an effect upon you in any physiological sense. However, the different gravimetric pressures on your planet do have some effect dynamically upon the energy field of your body, the electromotive field, the electromagnetheric fields of your body. In the sense that in different places upon your planet, depending upon the concentration of the gravimetric effect, the electromagnetheric dynamic effect, you have more or less, perhaps, capabilities of feeling the connection between all the different subtle bodies and more dense physical bodies than you have, the levels of your consciousness, different kinds of connections can be made at the poles than can be made at the equator. But, again, this will depend upon the individual, and this fluctuation, this variance is not very great, very slight in many ways.
Q: Is there more influence, by the direction of the spin in the field, in the north and southern... B: Again, the idea is at the North and South poles you have a different kind of influence, a different capability of getting in touch with different kinds of dimensional energies that you do at the equator. The spin at the equator puts you in touch with different kinds of energy...lets you experience kinds of vectors, different slices, different attitudes, aspects and dynamics of dimensional energies than locating at the poles does. It allows you to experience a different EFFECT of the electromagnetheric energy...just different. Similar to the idea of this: by manipulating, what you call, an electromagnetic field in one way, you can get mechanical energy, by manipulating it in another way, you can get light, by manipulating it in another way, you can get heat or cold. It’s all basically the same electromagnetheric field, but depending upon how you interact with it, how you allow the field to interact with itself, you get different effects. So those effects can be noticed within your consciousness about what kinds of things you are able to get in touch with. Those fluctuations can be noticed, but it is still a very subtle difference that happens. It isn’t profoundly different, especially not in terms of the physiological level, because it is so dense, and so, shall we say, unlikely to shift in the small and subtle variances taking place within the electrogravitic dynamic field of your planet. But the more subtle refined energy fields are more highly affected that the physiological ones. Does that make some sense?

Q: Yes, thank you.
Gravity

Thousand Oaks, CA.

All right, I’ll say good day to you, this day of your time, how are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you and all of you collectively for allowing this transmission to occur through this gateway and in this manner and at this time. Once again, each and every time such an interaction is allowed and co-created by you, it allows our civilization to experience through each and every one of you, all the different perspectives that are possible within creation and this expands our understanding of the Infinite. And so, we thank you for this opportunity and this gift.

We would like to begin this transmission, this day of your time, with the concept of gravity. This may at first sound somewhat scientific, but please understand that it is also the science of the spirit, the science of the soul, the science of consciousness itself. Gravity, what is it? Many of your scientist have been pondering this idea for quite some time. Many of your scientists are getting close to understanding it in its most fundamental interpretation. We have discussed with many of you, over the course of the time we have been transmitting to you, that everything in reality, everything in your creation is the product of vibration, resonance, frequency. Whatever frequency you give off, is the reality that is reflected back, in a sense, in the most general terms. But the idea is that, of course, the One, the All That Is, whatever you wish to call It, has its own signature vibration, the frequency that represents the oneness of All That Is, all things together. And we might wish to label that, for the purposes of this illustration, as the Prime Resonance.

Gravity can be understood as the tendency of all things to match the frequency of the Prime Resonance, to gravitate toward that frequency, to gravitate toward the idea of becoming one with All That Is, to be attracted to the Oneness, to join together, to integrate, to merge as closely as is possible for discrete objects. For each object has its own vibration, its own signature frequency by which you can recognize it, its own vibration and resonance that defines every object. But the tendency of every object is to gravitate towards the Prime frequency, and thus, this is represented or illustrated or demonstrated by the gravitic attraction toward all things.

In understanding this you can also know that movement, all movement whether it be the idea of the movement you consider to be normal, moving from place to place, or levitation or teleportation, the instantaneous apparent movement of one place to another without intervening travel, all these are the product of manipulations of the vibrations of discrete objects, so that they are made to be more or less, more or less in their tendency to gravitate toward or away from the Prime Resonance of All That Is. In getting them to move away from that frequency, you will get them to move away from anything that represents that attraction, such as mass, a planet, a star, what have you. By increasing that frequency toward the Prime Resonance it will move toward that mass, the planet, the star, what have you. Fundamentally this is all it is—is increasing its harmonic resonance with the Prime Resonance of the Infinite, of the Creation, of the One.
Now this at first may not necessarily seem to have a day to day application to you, but the more your minds open up to seeing the concept of vibration and resonance and frequency in different ways, the more you ponder these things and let them run around through your brain circuitry, one day you will find as things accelerate and things change and you learn to see things from different perspectives, that these little balls of information will suddenly fall into a slot, "click," and certain things will make sense that did not make sense before.

Many of the things that we share with your people are simply seeds that you allow us to plant, that you plant, together with us, in your consciousness, that are not necessarily meant to bloom right now. But with the appropriate amount of water, sunlight and air, so to speak, metaphorically speaking, they will one day all of a sudden burst forth from their seed casings, sprout, grow, bloom, thrive and create a garden of new understanding, new perspective, new thought and, of course, a new reality. Since your reality comes from your ideas of reality, so, new ideas, new realities, new perspectives, new reality, new experience.

Now, paradoxically, and you know how much we love paradox, the less gravity you give to a situation the more you lighten it up. Then the more quickly you will be capable of seeing and understanding this relationship of vibrations, of frequencies, of resonances, and understand yourself in relationship to them and your life and your circumstances and your situations in your relationship to the frequencies that stem from your ideas, perspectives, fears, joys, doubts, hesitations, angers, what have you. And the more you’ll begin to understand reality experience as an orchestration of frequencies, a discord or harmonic expression of frequency interaction, a series of songs, a symphony of experience.

Let it all just sink in. You will begin to hear and see more every day what we mean by these ideas as they translate into your language. Does not matter if you understand it now, it does not matter if you think you understand it now. There will be circumstances and situations wherein many of the things that have been shared, not only by us, but by others and among yourselves, for you are not without wisdom, all these thing are coming together with their own kind of gravity. And as they reach that critical mass, one day there will be a new world in the place of the one you have now. In a sense, all of the matter will be replaced by other matters and the things that matter now will not matter then.

We thank you for allowing us to bring this matter to your attention, and in return for the gift that you are giving our civilization in allowing us to interact with you, I ask in return, in what way may I be of service to you now? You! Then You! Number two, do you know who you are?

From Old Friends - New Friends

The fear within you can be a tangible thing at times. We extend in whatever way you will perceive it, our thanks for allowing us to evoke this fear from you. For in evoking this fear from you, you give yourself the opportunity to experience that fear which you have locked within yourself and which creates a vibration that is not conducive to our inter-action with you in an easy manner. We thank you for allowing us to unlock this fear from you. For the temporary time that you feel this fear there will be a greater time of joy in your future. We are the facilitators in this way and we thank you for allowing us the opportunity to function in that modality to you. We are your friends and you may not know it well yet but you are beginning to.

It is true in this way that you have the capability as all beings within Creation have the capability of recognizing your own Godhood. And we simply choose to recognize our Godhood in our own way – collectively. And you choose to recognize your Godhood in your own way – individually. And in this way, not that we are not individuals, not that you are not a collective, but we are mirrored expressions in many ways of the things that are feared within each other or have been feared. And in allowing us to participate in the release of your fear in this way, you give us the opportunity to give rise to all things past within our civilization and all of the ideas of the fears of our own individuality that we have faced. And to give us the opportunity to realize how that fear can be expressed within the individuals that you are.

As you look into our eyes you recognize only the mirror of your own souls, the potential of your own Godhood. There is nothing in this to fear. But we thank you for allowing yourself to feel that fear even temporarily for as you feel it in that way you will own it, and as you own it you will transform it. For you have been told by many beings in various ways at various times that you cannot transform what you do not own. Allow yourself now the opportunity in realizing the mirrors of your own soul that you see in our eyes. That you are willing now to accept, that you are willing to acknowledge and that you are willing to own the very idea, the very core of the vibration that you have called fear and recognize as those things that you have shunned from yourself in the various years you have lived upon your planet and for the various years and centuries that we have observed you in this way.

We thank you for your release, we thank you for your blending. We thank you for your agreements above and beyond all that allows us to participate in the modality to which we are used to. We thank you for allowing us to be a part of the exploration and the awakening of your world. We thank you for allowing us to lift your eyelids to a new dawn and a new day. We thank you for allowing that new dawn and that new day to be something in which we will also participate with many other worlds, in our own good timing. We thank you for allowing us to present to you the calling card of membership within the Association of Worlds. You will find that an exhilarating experience, we guarantee you.
Recognize that all that you may be passing through now that you may call fear in this way, is a passing ing, truly a passing thing. Truly it will become the stuff of your legends. Truly it will be something that you will not be able to fathom in having been able to experience, in a very short time upon your world. It will be as you call it, the stuff of nightmares, and it will be as if you have awakened truly from a dream...into the dream that you prefer to dream. We thank you for allowing us to be the windows of the eyes into your own soul, for you are only looking into that which is your own Godhood, your own potential. We thank you for allowing us to open your eyes as widely. We meet upon the plane of understanding
Questioner: Good evening.
Bashar: Good day
Q: Good day, where are you tonight are you in your ship?
B: I am.
Q: Over Earth or your planet?
B: Yes, over Earth.
Q: I’d like a point of clarification before I ask my question…
B: Yes.
Q: reading Courtney Brown and listening to some of his radio interviews, he’s talked about how the Galactic Federation gave permission to the Greys to interact with our civilization.
B: On one level, yes.
Q: And that they also…
B: Not on all levels but on one level.
Q: they also were the ones responsible for sending the Greys to help bring the Martians to our planet.
B: In some senses, yes, though that is not the whole of the story.
Q: And you have commented, many times, on how, because of the Greys interaction with our civilization that it has precluded them from being members of your Association of Worlds.
B: One level of them, yes. In fact more than one level of them, yes.
Q: Will there be a time when the two – the Galactic Federation and your Association come into accordance with each other?
B: We are in accordance on certain levels but not on every one and it doesn’t mean that we disagree, it simply means that there are resonances within each of our affiliations that overlap and those that do not for a variety of different agendas and purposes. And you must remember the idea that we have discussed before, that in terms of our own timing, the only way that the so called Grey race can be involved in the Association is simply the way they are involved in the Association in terms of evolving into us. Since there are in our time no Greys left, they have all become hybrids.
Q: And back in, I believe it was1975 October or November in Northeast Canada and as far as Montana, several of our military bases were witness to a large football field sized UFO that first appeared orange and then appeared to have red lights around its exterior and they were able to … they came over some high security military bases and messed with the sequence codes to some of our nuclear missiles…
B: Yes.

Q: were they showing us here?

B: That you would not be allowed to have a nuclear war. But, as we have already described, this was shown to you after you had already decided, really fundamentally on a collective consciousness level, that you would not, that is why it was possible that you could be shown this by reflection.

Q: Did we come to any kind of agreement with these aliens for any type of . . . because there seems to be a disarmament going on now?

B: It is not that you have come to an agreement with any extraterrestrials over this, you simply came to an agreement within yourselves, which the extraterrestrial craft was willing to reflect to you.

Q: And this will be upheld by all the nations?

B: There again is now still the possibility within your reality for individuated and localized terrorist activity involving nuclear weapons but in terms of the idea of your nations, yes, this will be upheld, you have simply passed the cycle where this is now a possibility.
Greys’ Disconnection from Source Energy

Q: Back to the Greys again.
B: Back to the Greys...

Q: Their reason for going to genetics was that they were trying to actually...they blamed emotion and reaction for the disaster which cause their demise?
B: To some degree, but it is not so much even a matter of blame as it is that these capacities became foreign to them, because of the great intellectual advancement that it had created up to that point.

Q: What was the cause of the loss of the emotion?
B: The same idea as what causes suppression of certain other attributes within your species as well. It was, in that sense, disconnection from the source and suppression, limitation, self-confinement and compartmentalization within the consciousness that made it seem to them as if the emotionality component was unnecessary for their balance and advancement.

Q: And they learned differently?
B: They have learned differently, but they are still at a point were they do not completely understand how to recapture that idea.

Q: And that’s why they are here?
B: That’s why the hybrids exist.

Q2: In that way we can help them?
B: Yes. Again, remember there are many factions to this idea with a whole spectrum of intentions, understandings and agendas. No further comment on this subject this day.

Q: Thank you.

Greys’ Disconnections from Source Energy

Grey’s Electromagnetheric Frequency

Note: This question is in reference to the session called "A message from the Greys" 2-15-97 Las Vegas, NV. in which Bashar momentarily disconnected from the channel and helped facilitate a Grey coming through Darryl. Remember that Bashar is a future hybrid, approximately 300 years in our future, with simultaneous contemporary embodiments as a Grey and as a human, i.e., as Darryl. Approximately, because Bashar has the ability to time travel up and down his time line when answering particular questions. So he could answer you as a young boy or even as his future self, whatever will facilitate the most integrated response for all concerned. See: "Thirty points of View" 12-19-97 Canoga Park, CA

Questioner: Good day, Bashar. How are you?
Bashar: Perfect and you?
Q: Excellent.
B: All right.
Q: I wanted to ask you about the Las Vegas ET.
B: The Las Vegas ET?
Q: The Grey, I have questions about that.
B: You are talking about the interaction of the Grey?
Q: Oh yes. What vibrational frequency was the Grey that came through Darryl in Las Vegas?
B: This would not, in any sense, make sense to you because they do not translate as individual frequencies, per se. You understand? They are a hive mentality.
Q: What is the hive mentality vibrating at, can you tell us that?
B: Yes, one moment ... approximately 257,000 cycles per second.
Q: Okay. The other question on that is ... you said that seven of their chakras were unused, and I was wondering if this was a degeneration?
B: Yes.
Q: Will they be using them at all?
B: Yes, as the hybrids.
Q: And all of ours are operational?
B: Well, more are less, some of them need some tuning, but more or less, yes.
Q: And that would be done through those exercises from the Las Vegas session?
B: That can be of assistance, along with anything else that your imagination calls forth into your reality as being capable of helping you in that area, yes.
Q: And with those Las Vegas exercises I keep falling asleep and I know you said on the tape that I’m still getting it, but I would really like to be awake for it. Am I still getting it even though it’s from the tape and I’m not in that...

B: In a way you are, yes. Although, I will say, that there is another way you could get it if you would allow yourself to be awake.

Q: Okay, I’ll do that.

B: The idea of expressing the collective as 257,000 cycles per second still has nothing at all to do, in this particular case, with a representation, per se, of integration in the way you understand it. The idea is a slightly different expression of that vibratory frequency than what 257,000 cycles per second would mean to a human.

Q: Can you liken it to ours?

B: In other words, the idea of a human operating at 257,000 cycles per second would be considered what you would call an Ascended Master while still in physical reality. The collective Grey society operating at that frequency, functions on that level in certain ways but this does not mean that each individual component expresses that vibration.

Q: Exactly, because there are different levels. The one that the person was communicating with in Las Vegas, is there any way that you can tell us what his frequency, that level of Grey....

B: No it can not be broken out, but simply understand that they dive into or partake of the collective, but it is not expressed in the same way that you would be capable of expressing it, being that you also allow for emotionality which they no longer can express. It is expressed as a kind of intensity of energy and focus of intention and agenda but it is not expressed in the same way that you would, as the balance of the idea of mentality and emotionality or spirituality.

Q: When they interact with us does it up their vibration?

B: In some senses, yes, and in some sense it also ups yours. But again, the two frequencies are not EXACTLY compatible nor are they representative of exactly the same universal domain. So, in most areas of the frequency it is non-translatable in either direction, only a small fragment of that vibration is translatable in either direction.

Q: Is that some of the problems with making the hybrids?

B: Yes, that has been one of the big ones. One of the biggest challenges is to find a way to allow the creations of the hybrids to happen within the particular frequency domain that represents the frequency domain wherein those two universal realities do come together in a balanced way.

Q: And how are they doing on that?

B: Fine, thank you. (Audience laughs)

Q: Oh, yes, you look wonderful. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Q: Can the greys genetically splice back into their gene pool emotionality?

B: That is what they are doing by creating the hybrids. They are not greys when they do it any longer, however. Do you follow that?

Q: Is this component something that needs first hand experience?

B: Both, but the capacity must be there, the wiring must be there or no experience can be had in physical reality. Does this help you?

Q: Yes, thank you.

The Greys’ Mentality

Questioner: I have some questions relating to the Greys which would help me to accelerate this process. I understand that they don’t use names for each other, but...

Bashar: Unneeded when you have, what you would call, a telepathic hive mentality. From time to time, they may represent themselves to various beings as having individualized and named components, but this may only be a temporary convenience for the purpose of certain communications with beings who may require a name.

Q: So how ... if they are in a group, how would they address each other? Would it just be a...

B: Again, telepathically there is no need for the idea of singling anyone out, first of all. Because they are a hive mentality, and even if that would be necessary then each individual component would simply be recognized by its innate signature frequency or its vibrational part of the whole. In the same way that you don’t necessarily have to give a NAME to a certain note to recognize it as a certain pitch, as a certain frequency. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: So, because there may be a different body here and a different body there, even though they may be telepathically connected in, what might be called, one mind, a hive mind, the idea that it is perceived as a different body here and different body there, or over there or over there, in and of itself, is indicative that there are slightly different frequencies for each of them that represent the individuality – even though it is not greatly enhanced, nor reinforced within a hive mentality civilization. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes, in that sense then, is there a hierarchy amongst them?

B: A loose one, although there are, again, levels of them that do function similarly, again, please understand this is a very rough analogy. Please do not think we are making a one to one correlation here with what you are familiar with, in terms of the analogy we will now use, but there is a rough correlation to the idea of what you would call ant colonies or beehives, in the sense, that obviously there are those that may act as organizers or controllers of a sort but, in a sense, it is not the same idea that you would call a hierarchy, in the sense of authority. It is simply more naturally recognized that there are those who have the vibrational resonance and the created position or station of doing certain things that others do not. You understand the difference?

Q: So it is not quite a leader, but there are some that exhibit more leadership qualities than the others?

B: You would call it thus, yes, but it functions as one mind. In the same way that you would not necessarily say that your legs are the leaders of your body, but their function is to lead you around. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: So it is recognized that they have a certain function because they are designed that way as a part of the whole to make you mobile. But you would not necessarily say, "Well, obviously, that part of the body must be the leader, because it is doing the leading." You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: That is a rough analogy for how you may be able to look at the Grey civilization a little bit more accurately.
Greys Speak

Q: Good evening, how are you?
B: Perfect. And you?
Q: I’m fine.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: I’ve been looking forward to this communication.
B: I have been looking backwards to it. (Audience laughter)
Q: Great, so we can meet in the middle.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. When you defined Essassani the last time...
B: Our world.
Q: , your world. You are a combination of the Greys and human together?
B: Yes, genetically speaking, we are a hybrid species in, what you call, your future time frame, as a result of the genetic co-combination of the humans on your planet and the extraterrestrial society you call the Greys, yes.
Q: Right. Are you in contact with the Greys in our present time-continuum at the moment?
B: In your contemporary time-continuum, yes, they no longer exist in our time-continuum, they have all converted into hybrids.
Q: In ours?
B: In yours, yes.
Q: Is there a way we can communicate with one of the Greys through you, by this process?
B: Yes.
Q: In the mass-consciousness?
B: Yes. Do you want this now?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: One moment, we will see if this is allowed.
Greys: Speak!
Human: Greetings, we enjoy having you here.
Greys: Enjoy?
Human: Enjoy, you don’t understand an emotion, I suppose? We understand you have a lack of emotion, and that’s why you are inbreeding with our race. Is that correct?
Greys: We are blending…
Human: Blending
Greys: ...for our agenda of rectitude.
Human: Is your agenda going to be complete within this next short time span?
Greys: Your time span of a decade.
Human: A decade.
Greys: Complete.
Human: If it was not extended, if it was stopped short within this next month would that effect your future race, your Essassani race?
Greys: No stoppage is imminent. Therefore, no discussion is needed of this point.
Human: We feel that we do need to discuss this. This abduction scenario is...
Greys: You may feel as you wish, no stoppage is imminent!
Human: This abduction scenario needs to end.
Greys: It will end when the agenda ends.
Human: Are you in enslavement of a Draconian race, as of this moment?
Greys: No, your information is erroneous.
Human: You do this only for your self-preservation, is that correct?
Greys: There are levels to our species, what you would call factions. Our faction is dying, our faction has need, our faction also recognizes that you are dying; our faction is attracted to your faction through death and resurrection of both species simultaneously, through the agreement of our simultaneously co-created agendas.
Human: This is against free will of human nature.
Greys: It is not. It is agreed, you have given your agreement on other levels.
Human: You have technologically manipulated our free will in order to accomplish this. This is not allowed!
Greys: You have emotionally usurped our will.
Human: This is not allowed!
Greys: This is allowed because you have created it.
Human: And you have created your death scenario also.
Greys: And you are creating yours.
Human: We have passed that point.
Greys: You have not!
Human: Your technology has put us to that point where we obviously became extinct a decade ago.
Greys: You have not, you still have not allowed your world the balance it needs for there to be the transition, as smoothly as it could.
Human: The transition is happening right now.
Greys: It is in process, and you see upheaval and what you call detrimental environmental impact around your planet.
Human: Well, we also see too that there’s an abduction scenario that needs to stop and should not be continued any longer, it should be stopped at this present time. This is the mass consciousness of this planet of our free world.
Greys: What you are referring to as stoppage is not stoppage that you seek, what you seek is transformation and equality of terms. You do not seek stoppage; you seek conscious participation.
Human: Well, our negotiations need to be re-evaluated.
Greys: Then evaluate them.
Human: We are evaluating at the moment and this needs to cease.
Greys: You do not need to evaluate them with us; you need to evaluate them with yourselves.
Human: With you... because technologically you are at an advantage point at this moment.
Greys: You do not understand the concept of technology as we experience it.
Human: And you do not understand love emotion, the energy that you need to exist with, and that’s why you are becoming extinct.
Greys: It is now through hybridization that we are beginning to connect to the understanding of what you experience and label as love energy, but you as species, do not exhibit love energy in the way you ask us to.
Human: We are being manipulated at this point and that’s why we want our free will back, we want it back!

Grey: You have your free will; you have no manipulation of your will with regard to your ability to express, what you call, your emotional context.
Human: We do not want any more of your technology here on this planet; it is self-destructive.
Greys: You have no more of our technology.
Human: And it will be agreed upon.
Greys: You have no more of our technology. What you experience as the idea you refer to as our technology is not our technology any longer. It is your technology. You have your FACTION, you have your structure, you have your military, you have your government. These are exploitations of your free will. We do not participate in that.
Human: Not at the present moment, but who has manipulated that to start that?
Greys: In time, agreements were made between what were deemed to be the representatives of your world. You still allow those individuals to represent, but we are no longer engaged.
Human: Well, we do understand what you are saying with our emotions as you look at it, as our shortcomings, but we do, as a mass-consciousness, want it to end.

Greys: It will change, and in that it will experience, what you call, an end, but you are required to change before it can be experienced as an equal transition.

Human: Well we are here and we know what is going on, and we do expect action and we expect you to keep hold up your end of the bargain.

Human: Our end is met; your end is within yourselves. End of transmission.

Human: Thank you.

B: One moment, one moment, one moment... did you have a satisfactory conversation with the entity?

Q: Pretty much, he’s not very emotional but I knew that...

B: But you knew that.

Q: Yes, I knew that. I knew that I was dealing with a machine that...

B: Well, so to speak. You are dealing with a type of hive mentality.

Q: Right.

B: You are dealing with an entity that only experiences, shall we say, the closest approximation of what you would call an emotion: the sensation of irony.

Q: I see.

B: And that is all that they can experience in that state. Now understand that what you asked to converse with was one of the more primitive factions. We thought it best to simply start at the beginning with one of the older and more primitive factions. You must understand that there already are more evolved factions of, what you call, the Grey that do understand more concretely the blending and incorporation of the emotional body.

Q: And that is your future selves.

B: Yes, but in that sense, it is the idea that we gave you first as the opportunity to interact with, what you call, the foundation, so that the interactions could ripple upwards through the incorporation of the entities’ hive mentality and have some kind of an effect, as you would say, up the line.

Q: Well, do you feel that I had an effect on him that you can see or feel at the moment?

B: I feel that you had an effect on yourself, and that will make all the difference in their capability of interacting or not interacting with you, in the way that they determine that they must. That’s the difference.

Q: Well, I’m just concerned with the present time and what is going on here. That’s why I’m here...

B: But watch you levels of fear, for you yourself are exhibiting some of that vibration still. And the idea is, that as much of that vibration of fear and anger as you, in yourself, experience, it only reinforces the idea of the agenda that you say you would like to transform.

Q: That is true...
B: So you yourself must come from UNCONDITIONAL LOVE, even as you state your preferences and stand your ground. That is what will create the equality of terminology that will allow conscious interaction and participation with the level of the Greys that ultimately does have the incorporation of the emotional body sufficiently to understand what you are saying, and interact with you on a more equal basis.

Q: If they were to end their agenda at the moment and be prematurely short for months instead of a decade…how would that effect the Essassani race?

B: It would not affect us since we are in, what you would call, a parallel reality time track. But, in terms of their reality time track, they would cease to exist. They would die.

Q: They would die at the present moment?

B: Yes.

Q: Is there any other way that you can salvage them or can save them in any other way, if they had to end it at this moment?

B: One moment…

Q: A cosmic reason?

B: One moment…one moment…one moment…there was an offer made by another species to them as an alternative that they rejected.

This offer, if it can be, perhaps, translated into your language, would be something as follows: it was likened to the idea of offering to render their essence down into a mathematical construct, and to be deposited in an artificially created matrix, until such time that evolution would allow there to be, incarnationally speaking, automatically bodies available for their constructs to evolve into, or incarnate into, that would allow them to express themselves and learn to express themselves in a more balanced way.

However, they rejected this because they feared, from their fear, in that sense, as best as they can experience fear, that it was a trap.

The idea being that they reflect that aspect of your civilization that does not trust itself, for they contain that idea of not trusting since they are not in balance with themselves, and therefore, only deem themselves to be capable of deciding how it is that they should allow this agenda to play out, and will not allow others to help them in that sense.

Q: Is there a way that we can have that negotiated?

B: Again, the idea is to keep it at home. Allow yourself to strengthen your own unconditional love for yourself, and allow yourself to make the changes that you need to make within your own society; for it is only the changes that you need to make within your own society that will allow your society to have the collective critical mass to be able to deal with them on a more equal and loving basis.

Q: Well, we also do have help from other entities from other sources…
B: Yes, of course. But help is not doing it for you. We cannot do that. It is in your hands. You have had, and always do have, the free will. But, again, it comes down to the fear that exists within your society, and it is that that needs to be transformed.

Q: Also, their fear of extinction.

B: Yes. But they are only reflecting and are attracted to your society because your society also contains that kind of vibrational resonance.

Q: I did understand that, yes.

B: So, work on that and that will help them as well as yourself.

Q: Okay, and tell them to work on theirs also.

B: We do not need to.

Q: I see, okay. Well, thank you for this communication.

B: Thank you.
Q: The other question I had and I never paid that much attention to it, but people are talking about the Greys and the Hybrids.
B: Yes.
Q: Where do they live?
B: There are different Hybrids and it depends on what stage of the Hybridization you are talking about! In terms of the hybrids that exist concurrent with your time frame that are recently created through the genetic manipulation of human DNA and Grey DNA, mostly, they live upon spacecraft.
B: Oh, and Grey’s do also, do they have a planet, or...?
B: There is a planet. It is in many ways not livable. Most of them live on spacecraft too.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: Now you know.
Q: Now I know, thank you.
Group Dynamics And The Association’s Example

Q: I wanted to explore the idea of decision-making in this transformational time.
B: Oh, all right, you go right ahead.

Q: Okay. (Laughter) The exploration involves that it seems to be that a lot of people are having visions of bringing heaven to earth, and are gathering together in groups. And I wanted to know if you could comment, and perhaps use the idea of the Association and how it is in the Association where different civilizations come together and make decisions.

B: The decisions are obvious; the paths are obvious. When you all work in service and you are all serving, and all acting spontaneously on the things which excite you the most, with full integrity, then you automatically, synchronistically, come together when and where you need to, and all the decisions that need to be made are very obvious and they are simply acted upon.

Q: My perception is that in a number of these groups where people are coming together they have a slightly different prismatic view of what the vision is...
B: Yes, of course.

Q: ... and they tend to hold to their idea of what the vision is.

B: Well, once again, if you understand that all of these views are still valid and relevant, then you can extract from each other whatever you can learn by the different perspective that the other has and simply continue on your way. Interacting, moving together, moving apart, collecting with other groups, breaking apart, until you have this seething ocean of interactions and relationships going on, all respecting the other’s points of view, and all realizing that all the different ways are all basically winding up at the same place.

Q: It seems, from what you said earlier, that in fact, along those same lines, each person can go ahead and complete their vision...
B: Basically, yes.

Q: ... all simultaneously.
B: Yes.

Q: Okay.

B: Again, any association you make with what you call different individuals within a group, can simply be very transitory. They don’t have to remain in order to accomplish the idea that is there. Individuals can move from group to group. Even as in our society, what you call our ancient history, we had a version of what you call your countries, but they were not the limited and restricted borders that you have created yours to be. They were different experiments of different lifestyles of different ways that individuals could live.

And we simply extracted from each and every experiment, what we felt was the best representation of something that could be applied to the collective whole, and bit by bit the barriers were dissolved. No one country remained a particular country, no individuals were expected to remain within a particular experiment.

Q: And within the Association, because of the level at which everyone is interacting with everyone else, there is already a sense of underlying agreement.

B: Of course, because that is what gets you into the Association to begin with.

Q: And so, where we run upon disagreements within working within groups on similar visions...

B: Yes?

Q: You are simply suggesting to allow that to be a mirror for, perhaps, breaking off with that group and then coming back together at a later time?

B: Yes, it is all a part of your experimentation. The idea simply is that we recognize that there is no one way to understand the idea of Infinite Creation, because if there were, there would only be one person, and then you wouldn’t have to worry about getting together with anyone else. (Laughter)

Q: Thank you so much.

B: Thank you.

Group Dynamics and the Association’s Example
Growth And Support Within A Family

Q: My question is about the human family.
B: Human family, yes.
Q: And why we are in this little nucleus, working out all the things that we’re working on – the conflicts that arise between mother and daughter, which I’m experiencing right now with my daughter.
B: All right.
Q: Okay.
B: Do you mean specifically the idea of specific families within your society, or the entire human family?
Q: Well, I’m talking about, for instance, my family right now, and my own little nucleus of four people.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, and why, especially, with my daughter.
B: All right.
Q: And how much we really love each other. Each time we get together, we have just tremendous joy and tremendous fun. But then there’s always this one really heavy conflict that we…
B: Can you define it? Is it always the same?

Q: Mostly, mhmm.
B: Can you define it?
Q: Yes. It seems to be with her brother. Her brother is younger, and there’s just the feeling that I don’t love her as much as I do her brother. And it gets real heavy…
B: Have you asked why she chooses to have that feeling?
Q: Oh, yes.
B: And the answer?
Q: Because there are years of difference in age.

B: Is that the reason?
Q: Well, because I did… I was able to afford to give him more. We’ve had a different relationship, but the love is no different. She’s chosen to live in California; I live in Illinois. But when we get together, although we have these tremendously good times, it always comes down to this one thing – that is always there to work on.
B: All right. Now remember, first of all, that almost any individual you are emotionally tied to, especially in what you call family, physical family, you usually have had other lives with and have worked out many other ideas with.
Our perception at this time is that one of those ideas, the idea you are talking about, to some degree, is a carryover from other lives, other situations and other relationships you have had, that in your terminology have not yet been balanced out. And this is one of the ideas that you are giving her an opportunity to deal with: her issue of deservability.

Now, is she of a mind to be reminded – is it within her belief system to understand – that she chose to be born to you?

Q: I think so.

B: All right. Then you can ask: “Why do you think then, daughter dear, you would have chosen to be born into this situation if you knew it was going to give you so much trouble?”

Q: Right.

B: You can ask her, what is she getting out of the situation being the way it is? What is she learning about herself that she feels, in that sense, she cannot rely upon you to give her?

Q: Well, I feel I’m learning from it, too.

B: Oh, of course, of course.

Q: I don’t want to put all the heavy stuff on her.

B: We are not suggesting that you do.

Q: No. Okay.

B: You can make the statement that you know you are learning from it. But in the same issue, ask her for her definition of why she thinks she might have placed herself in that scenario. Not that the scenario is actually as she perceives it. But why she would assume that it is in that format. Ask her simply, what is it she gets out of assuming that it is in the format she imagines it to be in? How does it serve her to assume the worst? Understand?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: You can ask her that, and see what she has to say.

Q: All right. I’ll do that.

B: That is one suggestion.

Q: Okay.

B: Now: you have been family many times. You have revolved and taken turns in being many different members of the family. Some of this simply has to do – to some degree and only peripherally at this time – with issues in the past of physical abandonment. But those are in the past; they are not in the present. You are together now.

Allow her and remind her – again in a loving way and not as a denial of the fact that you are learning – that now is now. And that what she may be hearkening to is something that was then, and no longer now. It may be an old habit that she can now recognize, and in recognizing it, transform it by recognizing what the situation is now – and ceasing to compare the present with the past.
Q: Right.
B: Understand?
Q: Yes. And our whole family is growing through all of our conflicts. Always.
B: But you do not have to look at them as conflicts, per se.
Q: Right.
B: They are simply reflections to each other, from each other, to allow you to discover what you need to discover about yourselves, by seeing those reflections in each other – so you can all become the people you wish to be.
Q: That’s right. Yes. I think that’s...
B: Remind her that everyone creates their reality. And if she feels so slighted, then ask her how it serves her to choose to believe that she is, in fact, slightest.
Q: Right. Right. I think sometimes – is it an ego thing that we’ll get into?
B: To some degree, because of what you call your habits in society – sometimes that allows it to be blown into an out-of-proportion state. Some of the issues have validity with your connections to each other, but the styles in which you have been brought up in your society at present can render them into something they are not.
Q: Right.
B: Keep focused on the central issue of the fact that you create your reality. And what you perceive most strongly in your life – or what you perceive most strongly your life to be – is what you believe it to be most strongly. So the idea is that if it is simply a belief, ask her why she should choose to maintain the belief that she is not loved as much as someone else.
Q: That’s right. That’s very helpful.
B: Thank you very much...
Q: I thank you so much.
B: ...for loving each other enough to be that family and work these things through.
Q: Right.
B: You are supporting each other in that way.
Q: That’s right. We are.
B: Thank you.
Q: Okay. Thank you. Sharing! One moment. One moment. There has been already some dream assistance for the daughter, but she has not allowed herself to understand what it is consciously. There is a little bit of denial within her that allows her to block that information that can allow her to remember her issue of deservability, and allow her to understand that she is infinitely loved. Allow her, in her dream reality, to open up to that information; for she is being given assistance to remember that she is a part of creation just like anyone else, and is equally deserving of the love that is always freely given in Creation itself. Thank you.

Growth and Support Within a Family
Q: Good evening, my name is Joey... and if I can just get my tape in here and get it started... okay. Good evening. My name is Joey.
B: You said that already.
Q: I just wanted to put in on tape.
B: Good evening, Joey.
Q: Thank you for your greeting. I really needed that because I’ve spent a great deal of my life trying to embarrass some of the people I have liked the most. I appreciate you embarrassing me in front of all these lovely people.
B: Thank you, but I did not embarrass you.
Q: Oh.
B: You chose to be embarrassed.
Q: Yeah. Right again.
B: Not right. Just me.
Q: Just you. Just you. Just me. Okay. I have a multitude of relatively unimportant questions.
B: What? Unimportant?
Q: All right... I’ll... okay. I would like a chance...
B: All right. Not important, but to you significant.
Q: Yes.
B: Since you are creating them.
Q: This is true. I suppose and believe, as well as realize, that within me lies the power to regenerate my entire body.
B: Yes.
Q: I’d like to regenerate the internal portions of my mouth, such as some teeth that might... that could be or should be re-grown.
B: What have you learned from them being in the state that they are in?
Q: I’ve learned that the... coming into this life I needed something to afflict me in order to overcome it.
B: You have all done that, you know. (AUD: Amen, and other comments)
Q: And what I chose was my teeth.
B: All right. Why that?
Q: Why?
B: Yes. Why?
Q: Because I could see them every day when I looked in the mirror.
B: Very good, all right.
Q: And I would always know that I had not made the grade. That I...
B: Make the grade?
Q: Personal realization.
B: All right.
Q: You know, godliness?
B: If you say so.
Q: I say so.
B: What you mean...
Q: Yes.
B: ...in my perception, anyway...
Q: Yeah.
B: ...is that you’re not willing to believe you already are the grade. The grade is nothing you have to achieve. Perfection is not something you strive for. Perfection is what you are. You will always grow, but everything you do is a perfect manifestation of the thing you are doing. Thus, everything you do is perfect.
Q: That’s true.
B: Therefore, what you are now attempting, so to speak, to create is not an achievement, but the recognition of that which you already are.
Q: Exactly.
B: All right. Then remember...
Q: Remember what?
B: Who you are. You are All That Is. You are the creator. You have created the idea of giving yourself this symbol.
Q: Uhh.
B: Now, if you know that it has already served its purpose...
Q: Yes.
B: ...let it go. Do not put the expectation now that it must change in ways you think it should change; because, obviously, if it is still there, it is still serving you somehow. Perhaps, only to remind you that you do not have to do anything to achieve the state that will allow them to, in your terms, correct themselves; but simply to recognize that you are already that state, and allow them to reflect what you are already willing to be. Not be, someday. Be now.
Q: I see. And yet, well... well, my personal point of view is that my teeth are my very closest friends. You know, they’ve been feeding me for a very long time. They’ve been chewing my food, you know?
B: Are they more important than any other part of your body?
Q: They are not less important than any other part of my body.
B: No, they are not; but are they more important?
Q: Yeah.
B: Well then, why are you singling them out and putting them in the embarrassing spotlight? (AUD: laughs)
Q: Because I put them in the embarrassing spotlight first.
B: So?
Q: It’s my responsibility and my duty now to care for them. They’re served me so well and now I would like to rehabilitate them.
B: All right. But the message coming from them to you is that they are already cared for, only you don’t know it.
Q: I see.
B: You are already caring for them. Now they wish to return the favor, in the sense of letting you know that you don’t have to worry about them. You and them will take care of themselves.
Q: Uhh.
B: Therefore, lighten up. If you put them in the spotlight, they understand it as being expected to perform, and that expectation is what gives them stage fright. They do not change.
Q: I see.
B: You are narrowing your focus upon them. Ease your focus back out to contain the totality of yourself. Not just physically, but all of you.
Q: I see.
B: Then, they will say: “Phew! (AUD: laughs) Now we can change. He is not putting so much responsibility on us. He has taken it back for himself.”
Q: I think that I should keep my mouth shut in public. That’s a jest.
B: All right.
Q: I see. I understand what you say, and . . .
B: All right. Now, understand this as well. In terms of the tools of your imagination that you create for yourself to come up with whatever you think you need, to allow yourself to do this transformation, to allow the transformation to occur, one idea can be this: your body is an energy system. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: It is one thing, one energy system. If you can view your body as one energy system . . .
Q: Uhh.
B: . . . you will sense the patterns of flow. Now, the idea of putting a focus on one specific portion of your body creates a divergence of that flow, and does not allow it to partake of the, I’ll say, natural flow of the energy system. You are damming it up, causing a backwash, in that sense, by the focusing on any one point.

Therefore, the idea of containing the totality of yourself is to contain the idea that you are, at any given point, the perfect representation of the idea you are willing to be. Thus, then, you simply do not have to perform. They do not have to perform. You can simply determine what reality you are. And the reality of allowing everything in your physical form to be what it “should be” is to simply live all of yourself when you live. Not just yourself, and then the rest of yourself will be able to hold hands with your teeth again.

Q: I see. Thank you. I’ve done that. As you were telling me I understood that, and I’ve done that.

B: All right now, but remove the expectation of what should happen. Then you will allow the transformation to take place. Recognize, simply, that if your physical reality has not transformed, it is still serving a purpose, and see what purpose it is serving.

Now, recognize also, that your interactions, as you say, opening your mouth in public, and allowing individuals to interact on this idea of your focus with your teeth, can be one reason for why you are maintaining it. For then that focus is of service to them, because they are learning something about what you are doing. Therefore, many times, individuals will keep what they call a disease for the purpose of that being a reflection that other individuals can relate to, and be served by. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Now, if you know that you can serve the same propose without the disease, then you will not need the disease. If you get in touch with the fact that the reason for why it is still there is serving a purpose, you will let yourself see what that purpose is, and then you can choose another way to fulfill the purpose. Follow me?

Q: Yes sir, that is correct. That is correct. I see that. I just need to find out what the purpose is . . .

B: What do you imagine it to be? Extend this idea beyond yourself, for you are being of service by being here. Therefore, purposes can be simply what you find other individuals relating to you about this idea. I’ll suggest this: during what you call your break-time, discuss with whoever is willing to discuss with you what they imagine this discussion from you has done for them. Then you might recognize what one of those purposes is, and begin to collect more and more purposes that are being done with different individuals from you as a device. Which will then give you the general idea of how deeply connected you actually are in everything that you do. What you do – what any individual does – is never isolated to that individual alone.

When you search for a reason, a purpose – for why this, why that – many times you only think that it has to do with your immediate understanding of yourself, rather than understandings of your extensions of yourself that you can find reflected in other individuals; because you are all other individuals and all other individuals are you.
Q: That is true. I’ve known that for a long time.
B: All right. All you need to do is act on that knowledge…
Q: Uhh.
B: …rather than just simply keep the knowledge to yourself.
Q: Well, my purpose in having bad teeth was so that if I could overcome my own, I could also overcome theirs as well…
B: You cannot overcome theirs.
Q: …in an interaction with their co-operation.
B: All right.
Q: …with their permission?
B: All right. Then act upon this. If you know that is the purpose, you do not have to wait.
Q: Right.
B: You see, that is an expectation. You are waiting for a physical sign before you will be willing to act on the knowledge of the purpose. You’re saying: “Well, they’re not going to believe me if my teeth are not the way they should be.”
Q: Uhh.
B: But, who says? You can find a way to explain the idea and, by acting that out, you may find that with each individual you interact with, one more tooth will be all right. (AUD: laughs).
Q: I see. I now understand the exact, to my belief, to my estimation, the exact reason. It has nothing to do with my teeth; it really is actually the growth of my soul, in the sense of…
B: It always is, yes.
Q: …what might be called loving interaction with, shall I say, all those that I know, within and without of this star system.
B: All right, food for thought.
Q: Yes. (AUD: laughs) That I needed an affliction, in a sense, only to overcome that – not the affliction itself – but to stimulate the growth of my soul.
B: Yes. And thus, by action, since you are physical, acting on that knowledge – that is what will stimulate the reflection of the growth in the physiological form, that reflects the growth you are willing to act out in your soul. Acting that growth out first is what causes the physical reality to react to you.
Q: I see. And my statement is that what you’re saying is: love advances one’s growth and lack of love retards it, in the physical as well as the spiritual.
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: Is there something I can do to open my pituitary gland – to increase the power of my brain?
B: You are using, and everyone is using, one hundred percent of your brain. You are using it in exactly the ways you need to. Recognize that although your science has said you are only using a fraction, the idea that you are only using a fraction comes from some other part that they do not recognize that you are using.

Q: Oh.

B: You are using it all. You are complete in exactly the way you need to be complete. You can change the idea of yourself. Simply that, again, the willingness to act, the willingness to change the idea of yourself by acting, will always allow everything in your physical reality to reflect that idea.

Now, understand this: your physiological brain does physiologically change with every thought you have. Every thought. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, the thought of yourself as you are willing to be will put the brain into the pattern to reflect that – and if increase into those glands is necessary, it will be there. If it is not there at the time, it is not necessary for what you are doing. Thus, at any time, you are always complete for what you are doing. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Act like more of yourself, and more of yourself will be there – physically and spiritually.

Q: I see. Thank you sir.

B: One moment. Is it brief?

Q: My question is brief.

B: All right.

Q: I’m not clear how to put together the idea of a person or state of the world being perfect, with the idea that there’s a process going on toward a different state. In other words, there seems to be a transformation of Earth going on.

B: Yes.

Q: There’s an on-going process that seems to be of value placed on regaining a fuller perception of our own nature; but if. . .so how do. . .I’m having difficulty putting those two ideas together. The fact that there’s a different state from the one we have, toward which we are going...

B: Yes.

Q: . . .and at the same time we’re perfect now.

B: Yes.

Q: . . .if we are perfect now, why is there any impetus to change?

B: As I said, there is growth; but at each stage of growth, you are still perfect, in the stage you are at. The stage you are at is a perfect representation of that stage of growth. You follow me?
Q: I follow you. Does that mean that there are degrees of perfection?
B: No. There may be degrees of growth. But all is perfect for what it is. It is like saying, are there degrees of infinity? There is one infinity. There is one perfection. There is one All That Is. All the growth that takes place within it is still perfect for whatever it is doing, because it represents one of the ways All That Is has of creating itself to be perfect in that idea. Follow that?
Q: I think so. So, for example, we’re . . .
B: Simply remove the idea of judgment and invalidation from any experience, and you will understand that no matter who creates and what they create, the experience they have created, for the idea they hold themselves to be, is a perfect reflection of what they think they are.
Q: So the gentleman who was concerned about the war in Afghanistan . . .
B: Yes.
Q: It is a perfect representation of that idea... is that what you are saying?
B: Yes. And it is manifested perfectly, and therefore, it is equal to every other idea he could choose to be. And, if you know all sides are equally perfect, all ideas are equal, then it is easy to make a choice as to which one you prefer to live – because you will not have to fight something that is more powerful than you – nor reach down for something that is less than you.
You do not have to expend effort, because all choices will be on the same level. If you know all choices are perfect, then it is not a matter of judgment of the choices you do not choose, it is simply a matter of preferring what you do choose, and choosing what you prefer. And knowing that that represents the idea, the perfect idea, you have chosen to do.
Q: What sorts of things lead to preference of one idea over another?
B: The idea of whom you are. Anything. It is your choice. You are the creator. You tell me. You make it up. What do you prefer at any given moment? That is your reality. That is the idea of your selection. You are the creator. Understand what it means to be the creator. You can do anything; therefore, you do – because you can.
Q: Okay.
B: Does that clarify the idea?
Q: It helps. Thank you.
B: All right. You may all take a short break.
AUD: Several voices calling out at once . . .
B: You!
Q: If I personally get involved in the war in Afghanistan by going to Washington D.C., can you give me some advice on the situation in Afghanistan and how to resolve it?
B: How to resolve it?
Q: With the least amount of bloodshed, let me put it that way, how to end the war, or win the war with the least amount of bloodshed.

B: First of all transform out of the idea that war exists in your reality at all.

Q: Yeah, and then after doing that I still see a news report that there is still a war in Afghanistan...

B: Then you have not done it. Now, understand this: you have agreed to perceive the idea of war in your society; but for you - you, yourself, okay? - you are not experiencing the idea of war in your life physically. Now, you have agreed, simply, to perceive that it exists for other individuals. Now, if you wish to assist – to be of help, of service in this way – then simply act like the being for whom war does not exist in your reality, regardless of whether you see it or not. Act like you know that war can transform into something else – into peace.

Q: And if I do that then, instantaneously, it will not be perceived by others?

B: It will, I'll say... it can be instantaneous. It can be; but it will depend upon the degree to which you are willing to believe that.

Now, understand, again, you have made a co-agreement with many individuals, and it will not serve them, necessarily, in the way you want to serve them, if all of a sudden you, instantaneously, do not perceive war at all. All right. That is all right too; but then you will go on about your business, never perceiving that war exists, and then you will not be able to serve those that still perceive it does exist in the way you have chosen to help them. So you will hold on to the idea, for now, that everyone is not going to instantaneously perceive that war does not exist.

But by acting that way for yourself, you will be granting them the opportunity to choose to instantaneously not perceive war. And it is that offering that does the most help, the offering, in and of itself. And the offering is without expectation that they have to take it in any certain way, shape, or form, for you to still know in your heart of hearts that, for you, war is not a reality.

Q: You're saying then, without interaction with these other individuals...

B: Oh, it is interaction, and you can have interaction; but understand that when you form interaction, you will be forming interaction with the you that does not contain the idea of war. Then they will see in you that that is possible.

Q: Oh, I see. Okay. Be a role model for them.

B: Yes.

Q: I've have another question to ask you too... I'd like to know who is using psyonic tracers and trackers on this planet? Are there such things being used in the third density?

B: Sort of.

Q: What about the fourth and fifth density? Are there psyonic weapons and shields, trackers?

B: Not weapons. Not shields. In this way, recognize that that idea, to some extent, can exist in different civilizations as per the play, the scenario they are working out. Understand this: in your third density... all right, I’ll put it pragmatically, there is so little understanding of what psychic functioning is that they think that they can invent something like psyonic shields, but it is a direct misunderstanding of everything that is going on.

The idea of using psychic abilities for what you call negative purposes, completely and utterly cancels those abilities.

Q: What about a psyonic box being used to create realities, using technology, though? What is the influence?

B: There is no such thing as influence unless there are individuals who choose to believe they can be influenced. Now, there are individuals who choose to believe that and thus, if they attract to themselves a group of individuals who build something that symbolically represents those individuals’ ability to influence someone else who is willing to be influenced, then there will be a complete agreement and a total enactment of what they both have agreed to believe. But it has no power outside of that reality to someone who does not contain that belief system.

Q: Could the masses or the mass consciousness have agreed to that on a subconscious level somewhere?

B: On a subconscious level, something like that has been agreed to. However, the rate at which that belief is changing is such that it will be a fleeting effect.

Q: I see, it’s phasing out, then?

B: Yes.

Q: Okay. Good enough. Thank you.

B: Thank you!

Q: I see. Thank you sir.

B: One moment. Is it brief?

Q: My question is brief.

B: All right.

Q: I’m not clear how to put together the idea of a person or state of the world being perfect, with the idea that there’s a process going on toward a different state. In other words, there seems to be a transformation of Earth going on.

B: Yes.

Q: There’s an on-going process that seems to be of value placed on regaining a fuller perception of our own nature; but if...so how do...I’m having difficulty putting those two ideas together. The fact that there’s a different state from the one we have, toward which we are going...

B: Yes.

Q: ...and at the same time we’re perfect now.

B: Yes.

Q: ...if we are perfect now, why is there any impetus to change?
B: As I said, there is growth; but at each stage of growth, you are still perfect, in the stage you are at. The stage you are at is a perfect representation of that stage of growth.

You follow me?

Q: I follow you. Does that mean that there are degrees of perfection?

B: No. There may be degrees of growth. But all is perfect for what it is. It is like saying, are there degrees of infinity? There is one infinity. There is one perfection. There is one All That Is. All the growth that takes place within it is still perfect for whatever it is doing, because it represents one of the ways All That Is has of creating itself to be perfect in that idea.

Follow that?

Q: I think so. So, for example, we're... . .

B: Simply remove the idea of judgment and invalidation from any experience, and you will understand that no matter who creates and what they create, the experience they have created, for the idea they hold themselves to be, is a perfect reflection of what they think they are.

Q: So the gentleman who was concerned about the war in Afghanistan... .

B: Yes.

Q: It is a perfect representation of that idea... is that what you are saying?

B: Yes. And it is manifested perfectly, and therefore, it is equal to every other idea he could choose to be. And, if you know all sides are equally perfect, all ideas are equal, then it is easy to make a choice as to which one you prefer to live – because you will not have to fight something that is more powerful than you – nor reach down for something that is less than you.

You do not have to expand effort, because all choices will be on the same level. If you know all choices are perfect, then it is not a matter of judgment of the choices you do not choose, it is simply a matter of preferring what you do choose, and choosing what you prefer. And knowing that that represents the idea, the perfect idea, you have chosen to do.

Q: What sorts of things lead to preference of one idea over another?

B: The idea of whom you are. Anything. It is your choice. You are the creator. You tell me. You make it up. What do you prefer at any given moment? That is your reality. That is the idea of your selection. You are the creator. Understand what it means to be the creator. You can do anything; therefore, you do – because you can.

Q: Okay.

B: Does that clarify the idea?

Q: It helps. Thank you.

B: All right. You may all take a short break.

AUD: Several voices calling out at once...

B: You!
Q: If I personally get involved in the war in Afghanistan by going to Washington D.C., can you give me some advice on the situation in Afghanistan and how to resolve it?

B: How to resolve it?

Q: With the least amount of bloodshed. Let me put it that way. How to end the war, or win the war with the least amount of bloodshed.

B: First of all transform out of the idea that war exists in your reality at all.

Q: Yeah, and then after doing that I still see a news report that there is still a war in Afghanistan...

B: Then you have not done it. Now, understand this: you have agreed to perceive the idea of war in your society; but for you (you, yourself, okay?) you are not experiencing the idea of war in your life physically. Now, you have agreed, simply, to perceive that it exists for other individuals. Now, if you wish to assist – to be of help, of service in this way – then simply act like the being for whom war does not exist in your reality, regardless of whether you see it or not. Act like you know that war can transform into something else – into peace.

Q: And if I do that then instantaneously it will not be perceived by others?

B: It will, I’ll say... it can be instantaneous. It can be; but it will depend upon the degree to which you are willing to believe that.

Now, understand, again, you have made a co-agreement with many individuals, and it will not serve them, necessarily, in the way you want to serve them, if all of a sudden you, instantly, do not perceive war at all. All right. That is all right too; but then you will go on about your business, never perceiving that war exists, and then you will not be able to serve those that still perceive it does exist in the way you have chosen to help them. So you will hold on to the idea, for now, that everyone is not going to instantaneously perceive that war does not exist.

But by acting that way for yourself, you will be granting them the opportunity to choose to instantaneously not perceive war. And it is that offering that does the most help. The offering, in and of itself.

And the offering is without expectation that they have to take it in any certain way, shape, or form, for you to still know in your heart of hearts that, for you, war is not a reality.

Q: You’re saying then, without interaction with these other individuals...

B: Oh, it is interaction, and you can have interaction; but understand that when you form interaction, you will be forming interaction with the you that does not contain the idea of war. Then they will see in you that that is possible.

Q: Oh, I see. Okay. Be a role model for them.

B: Yes.

Q: I’ve have another question to ask you too... I’d like to know who is using psionic tracers and trackers on this planet? Are there such things being used in the third density?
B: Sort of.
Q: What about the fourth and fifth density? Are there psyonic weapons and shields, trackers?
B: Not weapons. Not shields. In this way, recognize that that idea, to some extent, can exist in different civilizations as per the play, the scenario they are working out. Understand this: in your third density... all right, I’ll put it pragmatically. There is so little understanding of what psychic functioning is, that they think that they can invent something like psyonic shields, but it is a direct misunderstanding of everything that is going on.
The idea of using psychic abilities for what you call negative purposes, completely and utterly cancels those abilities.
Q: What about a psyonic box being used to create realities, using technology though? What is the influence?
B: There is no such thing as influence unless there are individuals who choose to believe they can be influenced. Now, there are individuals who choose to believe that, and thus, if they attract to themselves a group of individuals who build something that symbolically represents those individuals’ ability to influence someone else who is willing to be influenced, then there will be a complete agreement and a total enactment of what they both have agreed to believe – but it has no power outside of that reality to someone who does not contain that belief system.
Q: Could the masses or the mass consciousness have agreed to that on a subconscious level somewhere?
B: On a subconscious level, something like that has been agreed to. However, the rate at which that belief is changing is such that it will be a fleeting effect.
Q: I see, it’s phasing out, then?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Good enough. Thank you.
B: Thank you!
Guardian Angels

Q: In what sense are there Guardian Angels?
B: In the sense that there are, in your terms, non-physical beings that are associated with you, in this way, that are constantly sending you unconditional love which you can make a decision to associate with. Thus, in this way, form the idea of the type of path that allows you to sense the reflection of the idea that it is not so much that you need protection, but that simply the path that you are on does not contain the idea of attack. Did you follow that?
Q: That last one I got, but didn’t follow...
B: The idea of Guardian Angel is simply one that reminds you that you have the opportunity to agree with the vibration of that being, of that spirit that you do not need protection – that, to use your term, is what protects you. You identify with that portion of your own creatorhood, with your own spirit. Thank you.
Hale Bopp Comet And Object

Q: The object that is accompanying the Hale Bopp comet...
B: The object that is not there.
Q: That is not there. Right?
B: Yes. What about the object that is not there?
Q: Do you expect it to come close to the earth, as close as the comet itself? Because if it does...
B: Since it is associated with the idea, symbolically, of the comet as a reflector of different probable future realities, of course, its proximity – that is the comet’s proximity – represents the idea that this is coming closer to the forefront of your collective consciousness. That is your ability, to choose more consciously, the idea of what reality you all prefer.
Therefore, in a sense, it will come as symbolically, reflectively close as the comet; but since it is not really something that has mass, it does not matter how close it comes. It will not affect the mass of your reality, your physical reality, in any way, shape or form in a direct sense, since it is a mass-less concept.
Q: Well, it will cast a lot of light. Probably at nighttime it will be brighter than the moon.
B: Again, the idea is simply that you can transform the light in any way, shape or form you so desire.
The idea is, again, to understand you are looking through a window. And thus, in that you are looking through a window or, perhaps, more appropriately, looking at a reflection in a mirror, you can understand that no matter how BIG, no matter how IMPACTFUL the reflection appears, it is a reflection and, in and of itself, no matter how bright it may be, IS MASS-LESS.
It is a reflection of YOU, the mass of all of you. In that it seems bigger than your own planet should show you, symbolically, how big you actually are. And that the idea of your physical world, in a sense, that is being held in your minds, is many times smaller than it actually is when you include the idea of the astral, the etheric, the causal realm and all the LIGHT, physical and non-physical, your world ACTUALLY contains, that is being reflective back by the idea of the symbolism of that apparently LARGE object. It is showing you the true MAGNITUDE of your own selves. You understand more clearly now what it is?
Q: Yes, to some degree I do, as much as I can, but I...
B: You are making it more mysterious than it needs to be. You would understand me clearly if you would simply take me literally, instead of taking it literally.
Q: I guess I trying to figure out what effect it is going to have on our populace.
B: I have already told you, over and over and over again. Why is it that you do not want to hear?
Q: Well...
B: What have I already told you the effect would be?
Q: That it gives us the opportunity to look into another dimension.
B: And is that not something that can create a very powerful effect? Do you not understand that if you were to look into a mirror and see more of yourself as you really are – would that not impact every aspect of your life?

If you had a mirror in which you could look, a magic mirror in which you could look, and actually see your whole being, instead of just your physical self, would that not impact you greatly in terms of how you think of yourself? And how you behave and act in your world? And the things you choose to do by knowing how great you actually are? How powerful you actually are? How much light you actually contain? How big you really are? Would that not make all the difference in your world to see your full self in the mirror?

Q: It sure would.

B: Well, then, is that not great impact?

Q: You expect most of the populace to be able to see this?

B: I don’t expect anything at all. I am simply telling you what will happen to those who are willing to see it, and are willing to understand that they are viewing MORE of themselves, and what that understanding will DO when they AWAKEN to the fact that is a reflection of their TRUE POWER in this dimension of reality.

Q: Yes.

B: That is what I am saying.

Q: For the ones that don’t, all they’ll see is a great big, huge light in the sky.

B: Well, they will see the comet. It may, in that sense, mean many different kinds of things to them. But again remember, you don’t necessarily have to SEE it that way to still know that, in a sense, the reflection is there, and to still allow yourself to create the impact from it as a reflection, archetypally.

It doesn’t necessarily have to be in any way, shape or form, visible to anyone’s senses to still have impact, because, again, in that it is a reflection of MORE of yourself, that should also show you that there are more senses coming alive that can sense it on many different levels than just the idea of visually.

In fact, for some individuals, it may be MORE impactful that they don’t see it visually, because then they will not, in their own mind, allow their vision to obscure, in a sense, what the true impact can be by receiving the energy on different levels. Does that make sense to you?

Q: So some people will see the light and others won’t see it?

B: Correct.

Q: I mean it will be so bright, it will...

B: They will see the comet; they may not see the other thing, because, again, it is a multidimensional reflection. But many of them do not necessarily have to visually see it to feel the impact of the change it represents, and to know they have, in some sense, sensed more of themselves. You understand?
Q: Yes, yes. Is this visible in the daylight, do you think, at that time?
B: For some individuals, because again, remember, you are seeing into another dimension, therefore, the concept of day and night in your physical reality has no bearing on whether or not you can see it. You understand that?
Q: Yes, yes I do.
B: Does that answer the question?
Q: Yes, that part of it, yes.
B: All right.
Q: They are detecting radio waves from it.
B: It is existent on all levels of light. You are looking at this way too mechanically. It is not that the radio waves don’t exist, but right now the detection of radio waves is simply a reflection of the fact that that’s the level most of you are looking at things on – a low frequency wavelength. And the idea, therefore, is that you will first perceive the low frequency wavelengths from your reflection, in return. But as you step yourselves up, you will perceive higher frequency wavelengths.
But again remember: these wavelengths are not coming FROM the object; they are being reflected BY the idea back to you, to show you more of yourself. You are looking at yourselves in the mirror of All That Is.
That is symbolized by the timing of the comet, as it is time to look at yourselves; that is what the comet symbolizes. Therefore, it is bringing with it the opportunity and the ability to see, literally see, more of yourselves, the bigger you, the bigger world, the true size of the earth, so to speak, beyond the physical. Make sense?
Q: Yes. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you for the opportunity. Sharing!!!
Hanging in Space

Questioner (a child): I’ve always wondered... well, not always but...

B: All right, close enough. (Audience laughter)

Q: I wondered what I was in my past life.

B: Oh, you have had many, many, many, many, many, many, many... many.

Q: Past life.

B: Oh, the last one you mean? The last one?

Q: Well, a couple of them.

B: A couple, all right. Before we talk about that, allow me to remind all of you... when you think about past lives, “have I lived before, where have I lived before, if I have?”...allow yourself to know, especially when you are the age you are now, it is a very simple thing for you to remember those lives. Not necessarily that you have to remember all of them, for most of you have had hundreds, if not thousands of past lives; and you don’t have to remember them all. The idea is that the ideas in your imagination, the areas in your history, the lives that seem to pop into your imagination most easily... that’s usually an indication of a life you’ve actually had.

So, whatever you feel most attracted to, let us say, just for some reason, you don’t know why, the idea seems that you would fit very naturally in, oh say, England. Oh say, that you are wearing some sort of a funny coat and a very tall hat, and it is very foggy out on the streets, and you know you can feel what its like to be there, that it is easy for you to imagine it. If you find that it is very easy to imagine having lived another life, in a particular time and place, that is a sign... how easy it is to imagine it is a sign that you probably have had a life there. Do you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Now, are there any particular places, therefore, that already exist in your imagination, that you seem very attracted to when you think of the idea of past lives? Do you get any pictures at all when you think of the idea, of having lived before? What are the strongest pictures that come up first?

Q: Of Space.

B: Space? All right, does that feel very familiar to you?

Q: Yes.

B: All right. How do you see yourself when you think of yourself in Space? Do you see yourself in a ship?

Q: Well, I just see... Space... not myself.

B: Ah, just Space. There is no ship around you? You are just flying through Space or just hanging in Space?

Q: Yes.

B: All right. How does that feel?
Q: Fine.
B: Fine. Why?
Q: Well, it’s enjoyable.
B: Yes, why?
Q: Because it’s different.
B: Different! All right. What do you feel like you can do when you find yourself, in your imagination, hanging in Space?
Q: Float around (Laughs) ...spin around.
B: Does it feel like you can do just about anything? Like you are free?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Now, in a sense, what you are remembering is not so much the idea, literally, of a past life. What you are remembering is the feeling you have in between your lives, when you are not in a body; when you are floating around, in a sense, in Space. When you can go anywhere, anywhen, spin around upside down, fast or slow, you are remembering what it feels like to be in that sense, unlimited, to be a Spirit, without bodily form. This happens in between every life, and there is always a portion of you that is still there now; so you can always tap into it and know what that feels like.

Now, you can use that feeling to create in this life, the idea of traveling into Space, both with a ship or without a ship; for you do not need a ship to travel in Space. You can simply project yourself, and be wherever and whenever you wish; many of us do this from time to time. Many civilizations don’t use ships at all, ever; and you can have a strong connection to some of these civilizations. Some of what you may be perceiving are not only past incarnations, but future incarnations or, let us say, alternate incarnations going on right now, at the same time this life is going on, on other planets. Where the idea of floating in Space, all by yourself, is a very natural thing to you, to the you you are, on that other world. You understand what I am saying?
Q: Yes.
B: Now, you have had many different lives, you have had many artistic lives where you depicted in painting form, these images you get in your mind. And some of these paintings have been very open and free, and allowed people who looked at them to feel that tug upon their Soul, that tug upon their Spirit that lets them know that they can hang in Space. You have the ability to be very artistic in that way, and you can use that again in this life if you wish. And you can also invent devices, you can play with sound and with light, with crystals and with metals, and can create devices that can allow you to more easily project yourself into Space, and play around with other Spirits.

Now, almost every single time... and this goes for every single one of you... almost every single time you are asleep, you are out of your body playing around; being a Spirit, having conversations with other Spirits... hanging in Space, going to visit other planets, doing anything you wish to do. But because you have been playing the game of “let’s forget,” many times you don’t remember that you’ve been doing that, or if you do remember it, you remember it like a dream. “Oh, I dreamt I was flying, I dreamt I was floating, it felt very good.” Many times when you dream you are flying, you actually are, in your Spirit form, you understand?
Q: Yes. Thank you, very much.
B: Thank you.
Harmonic Wave
August 1987

We wish to discuss a tool, a perspective we will refer to as the harmonic wave – what you have labeled the Harmonic Convergence – in order to begin to recognize what the meaning of this idea was about. From our point of view in our interactions with you, from the perspective of extraterrestrial societies as they are beginning to interact with your terrestrial society, the explanation in mechanical terms of the Harmonic Convergence is as follows.

As suggested earlier, many of you have begun to instinctively recognize that great changes are taking place on your planet, that these changes are indicative of levels of awareness you have created within yourselves that have heretofore not been experienced on your planet for quite some time – hundreds of thousands of your years. The idea of this recognition of the Harmonic Convergence was basically an observation of the overlapping of many different frequencies of energy, frequencies of consciousness.

You have put many different kinds of labels upon the idea, none of which are wrong, but many of which may be attributable to the idea of the labels you are accustomed to using in your society to refer to ideas and events, to allow you to understand them through the symbology you have been used to for all these thousands of years. While this does not make those labels incorrect, it may be that some of those labels are limiting, or perhaps, in some senses a little bit misdirecting – in terms of what the actual mechanical event was all about: an energy event, an overlapping number of vibratory frequencies of the primal energy of creation.

Everything moves in cycles; this most of you already understand. The Harmonic Convergence was simply representative of a nodal point, if you will, an overlapping of many different cycles coming into reinforcement play, one unto another – reinforcing each other and opening up a gateway, a doorway; that is, in one sense reinforcing each other and in another sense canceling each other out. Forming a vacuum, so to speak, a limbo state, a state of disorientation and floating, in which you found yourselves able to perceive all the different variations, all the different probable realities that can exist, and thus, in that floating state you could choose which reality you prefer to create on your planet.

The 40-Year Cycle

Different societies at different times have different cycles – not only on your own world, but on countless other worlds. These civilizations all have their own timing for their convergences, and their own bringing together of harmonics, of resonances, of frequencies. One large-scale cycle – although small perhaps in one perspective, but one that generally repeats itself over and over again in your particular Earth society – is the 40-year cycle. In plain terms, it seems to be that in your particular brand of consciousness you will generate a cycle of 40 orbits. This is a 40-year period in which to create changes that allow there to be the ability to see things which are 180 degrees polarized from the way you used to see them 40 of your years ago.

Forty years has been used in much of your religious literature to indicate the change time necessary for whole societies and for whole cultures on your planet, while 40 days are needed for the change of a single individual. This 40-year cycle has allowed us now to apply the harmonic wave diagram and thus show you in very clear and graphic terms how the cycles play out in your society. And to show you the determiners that portray where you are within the overall series of events that is representative of your entire transformational age – this age being generally 80 of your years long. You are now about – or I’ll say literally – half way through.

For this to be easily translated, we have a visual aid to assist you. Many of you will begin to recognize first of all familiar patterns within this. You have seen similar symbols throughout your society for quite some time: the idea of the lotus flower. You have seen expressed in this format many different forms of vibratory energy representations, which you have called mandalas, or in this sense, harmonic mantras. This is a literal mechanical tool that we utilize to gauge the momentum in particular societies with which we interact. We determine which ideas are playing out, and when they are most likely to be played out. The Harmonic Convergence actually initiated the second part of a four-part harmonic. The first part, begun 40 years ago in 1947, can be called the Harmonic Initiation. Second: what is now going on in your society is the Harmonic Convergence. Third – and we will point this out in a moment – what will occur in your society will be a Harmonic Identification. And number four will be the idea of a Harmonic Synchronization.

These are the four general steps that fit this particular template. When you overlay this template on any society, once you have determined the cycle of orbits which that society is using, you can utilize this template, or tool, to determine the timing within the remainder of the transformational age that will bring about certain changes to your world.

At the very center of this diagram is what can be referred to as point a. This is the Harmonic initiation begun in 1947, and is very strongly connected to the fact that it was the year wherein you began to recognize as a society, even though possibly covertly at first, that other civilizations, extraterrestrial civilizations do exist. And that you are not unique or alone; unique in the way you present yourselves, yes, but you are not alone.

That initiation, the beginning of that ripple, was like a stone being dropped into a pond of water, beginning to create vibrations that moved outward in ever-expanding spirals and circles. As each of you may recognize, if you pluck a string on one of your instruments, you see that it vibrates back and forth. You see ghost images of two strings as the two end points are fixed, while the middle part begins to vibrate in harmonic resonance with itself, in polarity resonance.

Those vibrations from the plucking are represented by the yellow petals, as designated on the diagram, the idea of the stone first dropped, and then the resonances going out and coming back together at the end, at the tip of the yellow petal. Now, the tips of these petals define a small circle within the larger circle. That is where you are now. That is the Harmonic Convergence area: the coming together of all the vibratory interstices, all the vibratory axions that determine the particular type of opening and momentum you are going through now.

Notice in the center of each yellow petal a straight line with arrows at either side defining the widest point of polarity resonance. Simply stated, it is the farthest point, the farthest polarity experience that any chord will strike. We will get back to that in a moment. At the very tip of the yellow petal you can recognize the Harmonic Convergence of this year.

So from the center of the circle to the tip of the yellow petal represents 40 of your years. From the tip of this petal, all the way to the outer large circle is another 40 orbits. Thus you have an 80-year radius (a to d). At the tips of the petals you can see that every two of those petals in turn define a larger orange petal, and at the tips of the yellow petals there is again a representation in the large orange petal of another polarity resonance; thus, the widest point in that petal is defined by the tips of the yellow petals. That is polarity resonance manifestation number two.

There are no more petals now, but only the spheres that fit within the larger sphere, those moving into the green. From the point of the tips of the orange petals outward, where the lines cross again, the next point is where each circle meets tangentially at the edge of the larger circle. So you have point a at the center, point b at the tips of the yellow petals, point c at the tips of the orange petals, and where the small circle meets the outside of the larger sphere, you have point d – thus, a - b - c - d.

From the 1940s to the 1980s your transformation cycle was involved with the process of forming a global link for that 40-year period, while during the 40 years previous to that, you were initiating contact with all the major cultures on Earth and beginning to examine new modes of thought with regard to the religious manifestations in your world.

As we have said, at the tips of the orange petals is the Harmonic Convergence. So the outward movement, as you are passing through that apex, now brings you on an outer curve going to the tips of those orange petals. That is approximately 30 years hence, or about your year 2017.

At the tips of the orange petals you begin to see that there are no more petals; the realities you are converging, that were initiated 40 of your years ago at point c, will be represented by the Harmonic Identification. This is the point we have discussed with you which represents when the vibrational frequency of the particular reality you prefer will literally begin to separate from all other realities, literally placing you in whatever parallel Earth to which you are now most aligned.

As you then begin to separate from all other realities, all other parallel probable Earths, you continue the outer curve toward Harmonic Synchronization – at the point when that will be the only experience you have on your Earth. It will be representative of what you have identified yourselves with, and have accelerated from point c within you. In forming synchronization at the outer edge that is 40 years hence, it will then be only a world that contains the things you identified most strongly with at point c, when you separated from all other probable realities.

You may look at it simply as criss-crossing of energy, as a building of acceleration and momentum that leads you from one point, through that point to another point, and through that point to yet another point. There are 13 points including the center – and no accident that this is your thirteenth day. You may note also that 13 is the transformational gate number. It is that which allows you to face all the different portions you have, perhaps, hidden from yourselves, segregated yourselves into. It is the passing through a doorway; it is why it is a transformational, magic number, and why there is so much superstition associated with it in your society. It gets you to face yourselves, because you are in the limbo door facing all that you are.

These 13 points represent gateways, vortices of energy within this harmonic wave template. This is what basically has determined the Harmonic Convergence, and also what has been picked up by many individuals in your society as the reason for the Convergence going on now... for the gathering together of all probable realities.

Star Trek

Two more interesting points: we have generally observed that within any particular society, there will be two manifestations in your culture which will indicate if and when and in what way you have begun to accept the idea that you will blend with societies other than your own. These two points occur at the two polarity resonance manifestation points, the widest parts of the yellow and the widest parts of the orange petals – indicated by the straight line across the yellow petals and the curved line across the orange petals. Number one; number two. As you can see, number one occurs, by definition, approximately halfway along the line from beginning to now, in your yellow petal. Number two occurs right in line with the Harmonic Convergence, because that is where all probable realities coincide.

Now we would like to play a little game for a moment; these two points, the polarity resonance manifestations, usually manifest in a culture through some art form, through some way that culture expresses itself most strongly. It is usually the strongest and most graphic representation of how that culture thinks of itself in terms of relating to other extraterrestrial cultures. So you can see that the second one, which is usually an amplification of the first, occurs now, in 1987, while the first one, being halfway between 1947 and now, occurred in 1967. The guessing game is to decide which cultural phenomena in 1967, artistically speaking, represented in the most graphic way your ongoing relationship with extraterrestrial cultures.

AUD: Star Trek.

Yes. Now, we know some of you may find this quite amusing; however, your Star Trek program was initiated at exactly that halfway point in 1967, and now in 1987 is being re-initiated in new format. It is the same expression upgraded and updated, to encompass your new understandings and all the things you have learned to incorporate within yourselves within the last 20 years – for the second half of the yellow petal. This will usually occur in every society in a way unique to that society.

Thus, you have fit the pattern perfectly; you have fit the template perfectly. Some of you may think of that program as a frivolous representation, but it is your most overriding understanding. And it has endured for so long because it represents the blending of your society with other societies in the most graphic way you allowed yourselves to represent it at that time; that is why it is a world wide phenomenon. There are no accidents in that energy, and there is no accident in the sense that your interest in that particular phenomenon, and in expressing it in that way, has only grown and not diminished.
Your Own Space Craft

Thus you can perhaps readily understand that point c, your year 2017, initiates and represents the time when there will be within your society the capability of joining us with your own space craft, although it may be earlier – perhaps five years earlier. That is when your technology will allow you to develop the idea similar to our spacecraft technology. You will have this by 2017, if you maintain your adherence to the template, which it seems in all likelihood you will. By 2027 you will be absolutely inter-woven into the Galactic Association of Worlds.

Forty of your years hence: not so very long. It took you 40 years to get to this point; it will take you only 30 years to get to the next point. Only ten years after that you will be part of The Association as absolute equals. You are accelerating rapidly, and you fit the pattern most strongly, as we have indicated.

As an aside: some of you may recognize within this the natural mathematical relationships that you call the Fibonacci Series. And if you look very closely, you may also recognize – if you remove a few lines – the old yin-yang symbol. For the yin-yang symbol comes directly from the harmonic wave template. And that is the ancient understanding that has been rendered into your polarity manifestation.

Allow yourselves to recognize that this energy wave is one that represents the frequency, the momentum, the acceleration. This Harmonic Convergence is your ability to understand that in coming together and focusing your consciousness for any such endeavor of harmony, love and light, you will create an impact on your planet, and you will allow change to occur very rapidly.

One of the ideas behind this Convergence, as the fulcrum point between an old reality and a new reality, is to recognize that as you each individually become the pattern for the reality you wish to experience, bit by bit, each of you adds to the overall energy of your world’s ability to become that world as you have envisioned it. It will accelerate in that direction; you will begin to see the blending and harmonics occur between, what is now distinct and segregated levels of your society, sociologically, economically, politically, through the combination of all that consciousness; individuals who are so aligned can utilize that energy to take steps to escalate and accelerate themselves to new levels of awareness – stepping stones, as you call them.

Many of you have recognized that there are many convergences and gateways occurring throughout any particular year. However, in your framework of time, this octave month represents a very strong convergence cycle. The basic idea behind this particular gateway is that it is primarily for the specific blending of all places upon your planet, all energies within every one of you especially those energies representing the masculine and feminine aspects within each individual.

The Dream

Now let us relate a dream communication in which we participated through the physical channel, and you can see the symbology referred to as this Convergence. In the dream the channel remembered symbolically being in a location that represented many different locations around your planet: Hawaii, Japan, India – many areas. There were symbologies, which made it seem as if it was everywhere, and yet in no one particular place.
Many beings were waiting for a particular entity to step forth from out of a gateway – a gateway on a plateau at the edge of a precipice overlooking a vast ocean and the horizon beyond. There was light and it was dark at the same time. In the dream the gate was called the Gate of the Moon, and was also known as the Gate of the Sun. It was all gates; it was the going in, the coming out, and the blending of many different avenues and motive forces on your planet.

When the being stepped out from the gate to greet all of the individuals who were waiting, it was both literally and physiologically masculine and feminine – wearing a simple white sarong from the waist down. It was to some degree a Pleiadian representation, and was marked by some of the interactions taking place on your Fuji and Shasta areas, and in your Hawaiian area. For from the Shasta area and the Fuji and Hawaiian areas there is a triangle that encompasses the entire energy of the Pacific basin on your planet, representing the strong re-emergence of Lemurian energy. And this dream was within Lemuria as well. The being stepping forth representing the blending of the feminine and masculine aspects within each and every one of you that has been taking place at this time on your world, the equalization of all of this energy, all levels of your consciousness.

It was recognized, within the dream, that this represented the idealized energy of the Convergence itself, which is the willingness, within each one of you to blend and pull together, to integrate all the different formerly segregated aspects of your consciousness into one unified whole. Thus, you will function as a representational whole being, a strong and full individual, assisting and giving to your world the necessary energy to allow your entire planet to become the single individual it must be in the transformational age. This unified oneness then can interact with other whole worlds. Therefore, any way your imagination and dreams reflect to you the understanding and awareness of convergence within yourselves, it will be reflected in the exterior format.

Now, many individuals are viewing this Convergence as a negative idea – time to shake things up, perhaps even to have geophysical changes. We can hardly stress enough the idea that if you are willing to consciously allow yourselves to understand your own symbols and what they represent in terms of your own blending, your own awakening, and your own taking of responsibility for your lives and the creations therein, then you will be awake through the time of the Convergence and thereafter. It will not be necessary to create an unconscious manifestation of geophysical changes to shake you awake.

Wake up now, and you will allow the transformations upon your planet to be ones of blending and smooth harmony, so that it will be the gate of the dawn, the rising sun, the gate of the moon, and all things that have formerly represented your unconscious being. These things will all blend together into one smoothly flowing energy that will allow you to recognize that your physical reality is, in fact, simply a waking dream.

Harmonic Wave
Harmonious Accord – Dimensions and Focusing Consciousness

Q: Will you share with us the concept of the global brain, as it will affect the planet earth in the next one, two or three years?

B: You are already a global brain; how does it affect your planet now?

Q: It seems to be in amounts of chaos in certain areas...

B: That is simply because you do not have the neuronic circuits of the pathways of the global brain all proceeding in the linear direction in the same way.

Q: Would you speak more on that regarding the next few years – what that might be, or what it might take?

B: Understand this: you have already passed over the threshold, or what we would call the flashover point, in that way, to allow the majority of your society to create harmonious accord. Even though every single person will still be expressing themselves – him or herself – as an individual, you will still be able, simultaneously, to express a harmonious accord in the general direction of how your energy is applied. And as soon as you arrive at the point you call 2011 to 2013, that flashover point will kick in – in full force – and you will be able to see a spontaneous explosion of synchronicity around the globe that will allow you to know you can get anything done, anytime, anywhere. You follow me? You will know you are in full communication, in whatever way you need to be, with every other individual on the planet. And we do not just mean human. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do follow you...

B: Then you will begin to function as a global brain, and what that means is the body of the Earth, in that sense, will be able to move in unison, and its cells will not be in conflict; it will be self-supportive. It will crystallize, and within the ethereal-magnetic sea that will crystallize – your consciousness being embedded in that sea – every ripple that any individual creates in that sea will be felt by every other individual, and be responded to accordingly.

Q: Yes, I follow you. The specific event that we had, appropriately, nine of our earth days ago – are you familiar with the world meditation for peace?

B: Yes. It had a very large impact in creating a new gate, the opening of a doorway through which you have all now passed. And again, one of the results of having passed through that doorway will be to see more and more synchronicity occurring in your life; more and more coincidence. Right place, right time, right people, right situation, exactly when and where you need it.

Q: Approximately how many of us were involved – on this planet – in that meditation?

B: Including the idea of even a flicker of a thought regarding the meditation, which also has its effect, we perceive that it is in the neighborhood – and this, of course, can be our own point of view and how we perceive your energy – but from our point of view, it is perceived to be approximately 710 million.
Q: Mmmm…that’s great! Thank you. That includes all of the flickers as well. Does that include cetaceans as well?
B: No.

Q2: I remember us discussing the idea of many different dimensions or levels of experience, and I guess the idea seems to be that normally an individual would proceed from third to fourth to fifth to sixth to seventh, and so on.
B: That’s how you think of it linearly from the third density point of view, yes.
Q: Is it possible to simply pass from the third dimension to the twelfth without necessarily…?
B: In a sense, to some degree, yes, because you already exist on every level there is to exist upon, simultaneously. On the twelfth level you know this; on the third you may not. But the idea is that on the third you can become whatever representation of that connection you need to be. You follow me?
Q: Somewhat.
B: You are not sure?
Q: I guess not.
B: All right. Allow me to ask you a question, if I may?
Q: Yes.
B: In your terms of linear thinking, in the way you have put the question, what would be your reason for going directly from third to twelfth, without experiencing all of the ones in between?
Q: Well, the truth is that my experience with the third dimension hasn’t been particularly enjoyable.
B: Then you will probably remain in the third dimension until you realize that it can be. The idea is that when you invalidate an experience that you obviously chose to have, then you are not getting out of it what you can get out of it. And it will usually allow you to remain in that experience until you understand the reason for why you chose to be in it, to begin with. The quickest way to get to the twelfth level is to realize that you can – absolutely and in every way, shape or form – enjoy the third. Does this make any sense to you?
Q: It makes sense.
B: But you don’t believe it can be done?
Q: Well, I haven’t reached the point yet where I find limitations particularly enjoyable.
B: All right. But understand there are many different kinds of limitations. It is a form of limitation just to be focused in a specific way. Even in what you would call twelfth density there is still the idea of a particular awareness or focus that allows you to conceive of the fact that you are in twelfth density. That is still a type of limitation.
Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Limitation, in and of itself, does not have to be inherently negative. You are simply buying into the belief system, or one of the belief systems in your third density reality, that all limitation is inherently negative – or that there can be situations that are inherently negative – but there aren’t.

No situation has any built in meaning. Whatever meaning you give to a situation is what you have been taught to give to that situation; it’s what you have been taught to believe that situation means. But no situation has built in meaning; no situation means anything. The meaning you give to a neutral situation – a neutral set of circumstances, a neutral set of props – the meaning you give to that situation utterly determines the effect you get out of it.

So if you do not find third density pleasant, then it is because you have been taught to believe that it is not. Only that belief – ONLY that belief – creates third density to be effectually unpleasant, only that belief. There is nothing built into physical reality that says physical reality has to be unpleasant. Just because it is a limitation in a particular way does not mean that you cannot soar with exuberance in third density reality.

And again, paradoxically, since you obviously have chosen to be in third density reality, it is our suggestion that when you allow yourself to realize that you can become absolutely ecstatic in third density, that’s when you will have cognition of the fact that you already exist on all the other levels already.

And by allowing yourself to know that, will be simply the matter of shifting your perspective; rather than feeling that you have to climb your way out of some thick dark mire into which you have fallen. It is all point of view.

The idea – and perhaps this will be of assistance to you, if you are willing to absorb it directly into your heart – so pay close attention to the following definition. Your idea – and we are speaking in general as well – of going from level to level to level, plane to plane to plane, that idea, that process, is simply the process of recognizing that you actually are the dimension itself that you previously thought you existed in.

So if you find yourself thinking that you exist in third density, think again. You ARE third density; you ARE the physical universe; the physical universe IS you. When you know you are all that you experience the physical universe to be – and you are in control of what it is you do experience the physical universe to be – then it will be heaven on Earth; twelfth density on Earth, in earth terms.

All levels align at a particular way of thinking, in a particular mode of thought. All levels align. All you have to do is realize that going from level to level to level is the recognition that you already exist as that level, and thinking of yourself in that point of view. When you allow yourself to operate as the collective totality that you are, then no one level will seem to be overwhelming – because you will be drawing on the totality of all that you are.

You are not cut off from yourself in twelfth density; you are always able to draw from all of the power, all of the existence, the totality of the spirit and the soul that you are. Then no one level will seem to be overwhelming, because any one level will seem to be a small fraction of the total being, the total creator that you are. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm.

B: And when you function in that way – that of enjoying where you are – when you are there, living in the moment, living totally in the present, is paradoxically exactly the way to allow for the future and all the levels to accelerate most quickly into your present experience.

For you do not go anywhere; it all happens within you. You bring those experiences to you – and even that, you are not literally doing. Nothing in the universe truly literally actually moves or goes anywhere; it is all perspective and point of view – all of it.

Do remember this – and this also may assist you greatly when you allow it to sink into whatever portion of you it needs to sink into – and do not think you are not getting this, you are getting it on whatever level you need to. Relax within yourself. But do remember this: any of the ideas of what many people in your civilization believe to be entrapment: “I’m stuck here; I’m stuck there,” is because you have been taught to believe that consciousness exists in the body. It doesn’t. The body exists within your consciousness. There is a vast difference in the realization of those two definitions. Ponder that while you all enjoy a short break.

All right. Ponder that for a moment, then, if you will: that consciousness does not exist in your body; but that your body exists within the consciousness that you are. The idea, therefore, is very, very unlimiting – very expansive. For you can recognize that what you colloquially think of as your body is but one focal point within the combined idea of the consciousness that you are – out of which is created all the physical reality you experience.

In this way, you can allow yourself to know you have much more mobility, in that sense, because you can always allow yourself to diversify your focus, disperse your point of view, broaden and expand the way you look at yourself; the way you look through yourself, the way you look through the idea of yourself that is expressed in body terms.

The body is immersed in the collective consciousness that you are. The body functions much like an anchor point for the prism that allows the white light of your consciousness to channel through, to funnel through that prism, and become the specialized spectrum of light – the differentiated spectrum of light – that creates the differences you see in physical reality. The prism is formed, as many three-sided things are, from the three ideas you call belief, emotion and thought.

Belief, emotion and thought form the ego structure that allows you to maintain in physical reality, to function as a physicalized form of your consciousness – or a physicalized representation of your consciousness.

Your personality, as a physical being – your persona – is not literally who or what you are directly, nor totally, in that sense. It is, in a sense, an artificial construct; it is representative of a particular idea that your consciousness is being as an expression of physical reality.
So as that prism, as that cornerstone that you create your persona to be, you allow the white light, the homogenous oneness of your consciousness, to become focused into and through that prism; and display itself as the spectrum of differences that you perceive physical reality to be.

It is simply one way of expressing yourself. And you do it because it is one way you can express yourself – because it is one of the ways that you can express yourself in creation, as an aspect of creation.

Remember this: each and every being in creation is simply all the different ways that Infinite Creation has of expressing itself as the creation that it is. But everything that takes place, takes place within the idea of the consciousness that you are.

Out of the consciousness that you are is created all experiences, so that any fragment that you create yourself to be may interact with – or interact as – to put it more literally. Any experience you are having is not happening to you, it is you happening as that experience. It is you interacting as the event of the experience. It is your consciousness intersecting the idea, recognizing itself, knowing itself as that particular event, or that particular experience.

You cause an intersection to take place between the self and the ability to reflect the self to the self. Self... awareness, in that way, is what creates all the experiences you have. It is, in and of itself, the ability – self-awareness is, in and of itself, the ability to create experience in a seemingly, I'll say seemingly, objectified manner. For there is no true objectivity; everything is a subjective experience. Objectivity is a tool; it is an attitude you can use to allow yourself to bring clear insight to many of the meanings of the experiences that you are, subjectively.

By the way, allow us to interject at this time that, what many of you refer to – not that we care whether you use this or not – but what many of you refer to, in any given situation, as skepticism, is usually thought in your society, to be a display of objectivity. Skepticism is not objectivism; skepticism is an already inherent belief and bias in a particular direction.

Contrary to what many of you think, skepticism is not what you typically call a true scientific trait, objectivity is. Skepticism is a bias, and therefore, it is an emotional trait, in that sense, and not truly what you would call scientific, even in your own terms.

However, recognize that all points of view are valid, since they allow the individual to determine the experience that they are being. And therefore, allowing them to determine what experience they would prefer to be, if they find that they are creating themselves to be an experience they don’t prefer. Or what experience they would reinforce, if they find they are being an experience they do prefer.

But remember, it can – as it did for us in our civilization – make a profound difference, in your recognition of your ability to create the reality you desire, if you will remember that consciousness does not exist in the body; the body exists in the consciousness that you are. And everything is malleable, and the things that seem solid are the things you believe are solid. And only the belief makes them solid, only the belief. Everything is energy; everything is malleable; everything is you – expressing the unique facet that you are of Infinite Creation.

Q: Does that mean that if I believed that this concrete were liquid, that I could slip down through it as if it were a...

B: Yes. And you will find that there are individuals upon your planet who are beginning to exhibit such traits, for example, what you call levitation, what you call bi-location, what you call teleportation. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: All of these are examples that you truly are the reality you create; and that when you rearrange the definitions, then the reality will also rearrange itself – instantly. It is only because you have been taught, and only because it has been truly ingrained within your thought structure that physical reality – as you have been taught to believe reality is – is the only way reality can be, that you very often do bang into a wall when you walk towards it.

Because you have been taught to believe... because you have been taught to believe you need to believe that it is solid. It has served you to believe so in the past. But now that you are beginning to awaken to the fact that physical reality is only what you make it, now you can play around a little bit more freely with it – because you now know you are in control of it. You follow me?

Q: Yes. You made me think of an example I heard about at Stanford Research.

B: All right.

Q: They were playing with psychogenetic experiences of mind over matter. And they found that when they set up an experience that people were very familiar with – for instance, levitating a table in front of them – they had a great deal of difficulty. But something they knew only a little bit about, like moving a laser beam inside of a vacuum, they had a great deal more success with.

B: Yes, because there is no expectation in the way. Quote/unquote: Everybody knows you can’t raise a table by levitation. But almost no one in your society knows what is possible or not possible with a laser beam. You follow me?

Q2: Yes. What would be a good way to re-sculpture one’s belief systems?

B: By getting in touch with what it is to begin with, and then redefining.

Q: Okay, so if you wanted to practice levitation, you would just...

B: One very appropriate way would be that if you do know – as we have discussed – an individual who already does it, go and be in that environment and mimic what they do. Because you can identify with them and create the same pattern that they create in their life, in your life. And then you will act the same way and have the same results. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. If such an individual isn’t immediately available, what would be the next best way to manifest?
B: You can attract one to yourself, if you feel you need it. And you can always use your imagination and attract to yourself whatever information you need to allow you to become such an individual. We would recommend that a great deal of breathing in silent centering – breathing in deep and rhythmic patterns – will infuse your body with a type of crystalline energy that will allow you to arrive at the center point of balance, from which point anything is possible.

Q: I understand, but . . .

B: You will then, quote/unquote, lose your fix on the reality you think of all the time, and begin to accept more postulates from other realities. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I really do. Thank you very much.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Harmonious Accord- Dimensions and Focusing Consciousness
Harvesting

Q: I’d like to discuss harvesting.
B: Harvesting!
Q: Of entities from the third density to the fourth density…
B: Yes, yes, yes, yes, yes, yes, yes.
Q: Okay. Am I correct, then, that those entities that are polarized towards service to others must be at least 51% oriented towards that service to other selves in order to be harvestable to positive fourth dimensional levels?
B: In a sense; but recognize, first of all, we would suggest – not tell you: ‘tis up to you – we would suggest that that which, in your terminology, you call "harvest," you might wish to simply stick to "transformation," for harvest implies that something is going to be done to you, instead of from you. You follow me?
Q: Yes, but my understanding was that many entities would be transformed at the same time.
B: Yes, but that is your doing in the sense of your desire to express that fourth density state. Now there will be – perhaps – a few entities that will remain in third density. That is their choice. It is our perception that the majority of the individuals upon your planet will kick over into fourth density when they need to.
At this time everyone has a different rate of acceleration into that idea of service, but, in general, the overall average rate will seem to project that within the span of approximately the next 27 of your years, the majority of your planet will all arrive in that fourth density state. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: That is our perception of the energy. Generally speaking, yes, 51%, by definition, in your terms, is required. But it is not something that is difficult to do. For you are, at any given time, 100% of an overall idea that you are being; and if you were simply being that idea of service, knowing that by being of service you are automatically served, then you are 100% in that way. You follow me?
Q: Those people that are more oriented towards service to self?
B: If they choose to remain in the idea of third density, there can be many different occurrences that can be perceived. The idea can simply be that they will, in their own time, physically die out and simply not be reincarnated in your fourth density world, but reincarnate in a third density version, or parallel, earth. Or they can, literally, physiologically, disappear. Or vice versa.
Q: Could that affect them while they’re still in their third density entity? For instance, someone who is oriented more towards self, and has problems relating to that, could that develop into forms of cancer?
B: Oh, yes.
Q: How would one who feels himself to be a healer, help one who he cares for who is orientated in that direction?
B: Thank you! First of all, by recognizing that a healer recognizes that the healer assists others to heal themselves. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Then secondly: that you cannot force anything on anyone else. Nor do they have to choose your point of view. The way to assist them, let us say, best is to first of all and fundamentally recognize that whatever it is they are doing – whether you label it fourth or third density or otherwise – is at that moment obviously what they believe they need to explore to understand that portion of themselves. So, first of all, trust in the fundamental indestructibility of that being. They will never come to ultimate harm, for they are eternal. You follow me?
Q: No, I understand that...
B: All right. One moment. Then from that attitude and point of view, you can take the pressure off in terms of needing them to become something other than what they are.

Then you will go in radiating an attitude that will support them on an underlying foundation that, no matter what they are doing – including the creation of what you call disease, cancer, any idea – is something they need to explore. You can begin to assist them by asking them how does the situation serve them? How does it serve you? How does it serve, in a positive way, all who are in contact with that situation?
What portions of themselves does this situation allow them now to face – that perhaps they were not willing to face before the creation of the disease? For many times that is why your society creates disease, because it has been taught to not face certain portions of its wholeness. And in not being willing to face its wholeness, it will then create situations where it is forced to face its wholeness.

Now, if an individual is willing to recognize that there is nothing they can discover about themselves that they need to fear, then they will not necessarily have to take such drastic measures in order to force themselves to look at a certain portion that they have buried within their subconscious – to bring it to the surface through the drastic idea you call disease. If they are willing to face and integrate every portion of their being that they could ever discover, then they will not need a disease in order to discover those ideas, and they can allow themselves to accept another, perhaps, a more positive delivery service for the message that they are attempting to show themselves. You follow me?
Q: I do, but how do you help in instructing, or in helping an entity learn?
B: As we have already suggested, ask them what they are getting out of it by having it in the first place? Let them begin to explore that there is possibly – just possibly – a positive reason for why they have it. Let them begin to explore how it might be positive, and then they can allow themselves to expand their awareness to levels in which they can recognize, that in order to discover what it is they think they need to discover, they don’t need the disease in order to do it. You follow me?
Q: Yes, I do. Thank you very much.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you!
Q: Thank you.
Having Your Cake and Eating It Too

Questioner: In the news lately . . . let me get your definition on one thing . . .

Bashar: Yes.

Q: . . . what would the words, “you can’t have your cake and eat it too,” how would you define the definition of that?

B: The idea as the phrase is understood in your society in some senses is actually a little backwards according to the meaning that we glean exists in your society’s culture. The phrase really would be, “that you can eat your cake and have it too.” Not, “have your cake and eat it too.” Because, obviously you can have cake and eat it.

Q: That’s what it seems like to me.

B: But the idea is that it seems less likely that you can eat it and yet still have it. But the general meaning of the phrase is that idea that is usually exemplified by the phrase that we have shared with you, that most things are this and that rather than this or that. In other words, things in your society that might from one perspective seem mutually exclusive don’t have to be. You understand?

Q: In other words we can have our cake and eat it too.

B: In other words you can eat your cake and still have it.

Q: Yes, ah ha.

B: In other words, you can allow both sides of the issue to co-exist and glean from both sides, which from one perspective seems mutually exclusive, glean from both sides things that will assist and amplify the things that you require in life without each side canceling the other out, yes? You can work with paradox. In other words, as we have said many times, for that is where the point of all your power lies, is in the center in what you call paradox. And that is what that phrase exemplifies, yes?

Q: Okay, in the news lately this week . . .

B: Yes.

Q: ’s been a lot of play on some ancient temples that NASA/JPL has found in Cambodia which are much older than any know civilization on earth . . .

B: Yes.

Q: What can you tell us about this?

B: You will begin to find more and more and more indicators that there have been many ancient civilizations on your planet that stretch the idea of your history back much, much, much further than you think. Some of these are offshoots of other colonies besides Atlantis that stretched from Lemuria in ancient times, 50,000 of your years ago. Some of these ancient ideas are old Anunnaki bases. Some of them are connected to the idea of extraterrestrial inhabitation over brief periods of time, but for the most part they are simply recognitions that cultures existed on your planet that are much more ancient than your present sense of history dictates.

Q: Can you tell us what civilization and what their origin is that built the ancient temples?
B: They are the ancient Kaimer.

Q: The ancient Cairo?
B: Kiamer, Kaimer, Kai-mer.

Q: Is that a race of beings?
B: On your planet, yes.

Q: Are they, were they native to our planet?
B: Yes, even though they had extraterrestrial interactions and like all of you, contained a high percentage of extraterrestrial genetics, they were a relatively isolated cultural offshoot, again similar to Atlantis, but relatively unknown on your planet. Another offshoot of the same idea, you will find stretched into ancient Tibet and you will find some ancient temples there as well that are part and parcel of some of the similar offshoots of the same ancient culture.

Q: Okay, and there’s also been a psychiatrist in Kentucky who not only saw, but very clearly videotaped an extraterrestrial craft.
B: Yes.

Q: Can you tell us if this was legitimate?
B: Not at this time.

Q: Because it was photographed at close range with videotape.
B: I understand.

Q: You can’t scan the event and…
B: Not at this time, it is closed to us.

Q: Okay.
B: Will that do?
Q: Yes, I’m just curious, one other thing.
B: Yes.
Q: Where are you now? Are you still above Cairo? And about how far up are you?
B: Yes, about 2,500…
Q: Okay.
B: …miles.
Q: Is your increased elevation due to . . .
B: This is a decreased elevation.
Q: Oh, it is?
B: Yes, we started at 3,000 miles, if you will recall.
Q: Can you tell us anything about...
Q: The decrease in elevation in general represents coming closer to the day of contact.
Q: Okay, is there anything going on from your perspective, in Iraq?
B: There are many things going on, in the area on your planet you call Iraq.
Q: You know what I mean, significantly, in terms of world events.
B: Yes, there is a build up as you know of tensions, as we have said, that still could lead to the idea of the expression of a terrorist nuclear strike.
Q: Did we understand you correctly last time, in that you said that you were projecting that there was a 98% probability of that?
B: This is correct.
Q: Is it still at 98%?
B: It is.
Q: Is that of global nuclear war or limited nuclear war?
B: It has not for some time been for global nuclear war, we have said this over and over, which is why we translate the phrase “isolated limited terrorist nuclear strike.”
Q: And where is it likely to occur?
B: Either there, in the Middle East, or in one of your eastern seaboard cities in your United States of America—primarily 97% probability—New York.
Q: Can you tell us when it is likely to occur?
B: Again, there is only a probability window and again, this probability window is sometime between now 2/98 and your year of 2001. Most likely either in or around your year of 1999, that is the heaviest concentration of probability, but this is not for certain because nothing is.
Q: Okay.
B: But there are other events that are also unfolding that may allow this percentage to drop radically within . . . this your present year. But this has not yet been decided by the collective consciousness of your people. But we will keep you posted. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Hawaii and Planetary Transformation

Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: Thank you. I’d like to ask a question first for everybody here. We were discussing with the channel, before you began tonight, about the different islands of Hawaii and what they represent. Could you just fill us in here, since some of us were not in Hawaii?
B: The idea of the largest of your islands is the anchor, as was said. The idea of the farthest north is independence, as was said, and retains that idea – as it is only inhabited by what you would call natives of Hawaii, and no others set foot upon the island. In between, you have in the center, functioning as your main island, Oahu, the idea of polarities in flux and fluctuation.

Surrounding these areas, your idea of Maui will be mostly a representation of gateways, a representation of warmth, a representation of nurturing within – as to some degree is the idea you call Kauai. Though it will represent, more specifically, a garden, the idea of a garden of ideas: new blossoms, new energy, emerging into the system, through the north magnetic lines.

Molokai will be, in your terms, that of introspection, of the subconscious, of the unconscious, and the manifestation of what you would call the idea of magic. The idea of Lanai is as the seed – to some degree shared with the idea of Kauai, in that Kauai is a child. But in this, Lanai is a seed – that which carries within it new, pliable, flexible energy, which can be sculpted and molded into a new representation of the new energy which now bathes and blends that entire energy gate you call the Hawaiian Islands. Any of the others?
Q: I don’t know any of the others. I’m not familiar with Hawaii at all, really.
B: Then you may proceed.
Q: Thank you. My personal question is: some of the information that I’ve received, regarding the convergence that is now upon us, has been referring to five years of instability – as far as geographically and geologically on the planet Earth.
B: Again, we have discussed, to some degree, the idea that there may be isolated pockets that may exhibit both – but always as an opportunity to blend that energy. However, in your terms, to some degree, it is correct to recognize that by your year 1992 more focus and stability will begin to come back.

It will solidify; it will begin to crystallize after the five-year period of the limbo state that will remain. The limbo state simply being an opportunity to examine what realities you prefer, and to, let us say, attract yourselves to whatever areas represent the vibrational frequency you are being – so that the energy can play itself out according to the vibrational reality you hold yourself to be.
Q: Mhmm.
B: The five-year cycle also represents that – at that time, in your year 1992, it will represent the 500th orbit anniversary of what you would call your discovery of your America. Understand?
Q: Oh, yes.

B: And so you will create another cycle there. It is a crystallization of sorts – and you are simply sensing now that in this ensuing five of your orbits is still the time of limbo. But in the time of crystallization is when certain manifestations will be played out physiologically – determined by the actions that you take, and the vibrations of reality you are being, and where and when you attract to within that five years.

Because, again, as we have shared, commencing in your year 1992 there will also be a far more solid realization on the part of your entire society, of our existence, of the existence of the Association of Worlds. And much of that information will be coming out more solidly around that time.

So the manifestations of physicality may be, again, some ideas here and there of what you might call negative manifestation. But again, they are nowhere near as widespread as they would have been ten, twenty, of your years ago. You are doing much to even out – and again, the actions that you take will make a difference.

Q: I think my main question applying to this was that: when these acts start, or begin, or whatever – if many people, or large groups of people, shall we say, move on to the other side at the same time, how should…

B: Some.

Q: … we deal with that in a positive manner? I mean we all know…

B: You can recognize that if any group or individuals choose to manifest the idea of transforming into non-physical reality, that (a) they obviously have their own reasons for doing so. You can look at it that way, and that (b) many of them are choosing to do so (in order that) they can re-enter the reality as a child in the New Age.

Q: Yes.

B: So they can guide and assist and work out whatever momentum is representative of their lives in an atmosphere on your world that will be more conducive to allowing them to work it out. And allowing them their time to understand that they can create whatever reality they deserve and desire, without having to put themselves through trials by fire in order to know that.

Q: Yes.

B: So, many of them may simply choose to do it that way.

Q: That makes sense; that makes a lot of sense.

B: But it will – as we perceive your energy – be nowhere near the amount that it might have been twenty of your years ago, because you are all beginning to wake up. And as you wake up into the dream of physical reality, then you do not have to take yourself out of the picture to remember what it is all about. Understand?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Does that answer your question sufficiently?
Q: Yes, it does. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Hawaii and Planetary Transformation
Healing by Letting Go

Your natural self is a balanced self; it is a healthy self. Allow yourselves to understand that a preoccupation with being healthy can sometimes be an indication of holding on to a belief of disease. The self that is balanced does not think about the idea of trying to be healthy. You do not have to try to be healed; you do not have to try to heal others. All you need do is go to your center. You do not have to "try" to go to your center; your center is who you really are. All you have to do is allow yourself to be who you are. Healing is allowing, not making, not trying, not forcing; it is allowing. You have to "try" to be away from your center. You do not have to "try" to go back to your center. Just let go; relax the expectations. Relax the resistance and you automatically glide smoothly back into center.

These ideas and suggestions can work for each and every one of you, wherever and whenever you choose to use them. Trust that your sparkling creative imagination will create the changes that are reflective of the unique individual you happen to be. Let your imagination unfold and transform these suggestions in whatever way, shape or form feels best to you. Do not resist your natural self. Trust it; believe in it. It is who you are.

Healing is the product of integrating all of the differences you have created yourself to be, cherishing your diversity, but at the same time functioning as an integrated whole. You are all created to heal each other by being of service to each other, to create an atmosphere of support, help and guidance, to create a balance in your society between the supporting of the whole society and the supporting of yourself as an individual within that society. If you support the society at the expense of your individuality, you cannot support the society, because you will not be whole and balanced. If you support only yourself at the expense of your society, you will not support yourself, because you will have cut yourself off from your Universal support.

Healing is also a balancing of all the dynamics you experience in life. You are an individual, you are the whole society, each and every one of you. Heal yourselves with creativity and love by doing, with integrity, what is in your heart to do. And if you choose to, share these ideas of integration and balancing and healing, put them out for your world to see in art; apply them in any form your imagination so desires, so the vibration will be everywhere.
Healing Conflict

Now, many times, in conversations on your planet, as we have observed your people, there will be opportunities over and over again that will call for, what you call negotiation and resolution. In many cases, because of the portions of your consciousness that have been trained within you to be hidden, there will sometimes be agendas within you that you will not even necessarily consciously know about. So that when you go about the business of negotiating for what you believe is supposed to be the resolution, you may find yourself at odds with the individuals you are negotiating with; because you may be on one particular track, as you say, thinking that you are both going in the same direction, when in fact you are even sometimes heading in opposite directions. Because you may not necessarily be aware of what your own hidden agendas are – and what it is you actually think you’re negotiating for.

The idea in all negotiation, in all desire for resolution, is to really focus on the idea of resolution itself as a concept, before you focus on the idea of exactly how, specifically, such a resolution must be accomplished. In other words, if you make not your own agenda the priority, but the idea of coming to a resolution at all the priority, that that is your primary concern – that you do in fact come to some kind of resolution, no matter how you get there. Then, by allowing the idea, the concept, the desire for resolution itself to be primary, you can allow the concept of resolution to guide the methodologies and guide the details about how you come to the resolution, rather than making the resolution subservient, and in a sense, secondary to the idea of what you think you’re supposed to get out of it.

When you focus on the idea that the primary reason for being in the negotiation is to come to a resolution somehow – that the resolution is paramount – then that desire, that focus, will help you search for more ways to achieve a resolution than you might otherwise have been willing to look at. Because you may have been focused on your own hidden agenda, which in many cases, by definition, would be relatively limited, as far as all the different ways that a resolution could be created. So focus on the resolution itself as the main goal of any negotiation, that coming to a resolution is the primary agenda, regardless of how you get there. And you will find yourself, with that in mind, first of all, having a common point with the other individual – if you can both agree that coming to a resolution is more important exactly than how you get there; you’re already in agreement on something, and that is a good beginning to any negotiation and any resolution.

We thank you for allowing us to reflect this concept to you, at this time, and to share with you our perspective on this particular matter. Again, it is always up to you, as to whether or not to pay attention, and/or apply this information. We’re only sharing with you what works with our civilization, and leaving it up to you to decide what works for you. But I do, from experience in our world, know that this will aid, and assist, and accelerate any and all negotiations and resolutions that you may actually desire to undertake, if you will but be willing to apply this methodology and this principle, and this priority, in that fashion.
Healing Disease

Q: I don’t know quite what the question is, except that I am in the process of trying to…

B: Trying?

Q: Trying, but not really knowing how to go and to rid myself of some internal discomfort and disease.

B: All right. First of all recognize, by the very nomenclature that you use of what you are referring to – dis-ease, dis-ease. The idea, first of all, is that disease is created in your society when you invalidate portions of yourself, when you fight your own ecstasy and create in you the energy you call tension. This is a separation of portions of you from the rest of the collective that you are, and in isolating that portion of you, you cut it off from the life flow that is its birthright. The cutting of that life flow is what causes it to atrophy and seem to separate from you and cause disease in a physicalized manifestation.

Now, the idea, therefore, is to allow yourself to recognize, first of all, that you cannot truly "get rid" of anything, because there is nowhere to get rid of anything to. However, you can allow all the energy that is within you to transform into something positive. Recognize you always have the opportunity to transform energy into negative or positive manifestation.

In your society, because of the way you have been taught to live, and the beliefs you have generally bought into, many of you do not believe that it is easy to be in touch with those portions of yourself. And so many times you will force yourself to look at certain portions of yourself; you will force certain situations upon yourself by the creation of ideas you call pain and stress and disease, because you simply have not been taught that there are easier ways to accept certain portions of your consciousness and integrate them within you.

Now, may I ask you a question?

Q: Please.

B: Thank you. Are you, in your life, doing the thing that excites you the most?

Q: I would say, probably not.

B: Why not?

Q: Because I don’t know what that is.

B: Oh, yes you do! But, when we ask you, "what is the most exciting thing in your life?" we do not necessarily mean that you have to sit there and come up with the most exciting thing you will ever do. All we are asking you is, right now, what is the most exciting thing you can act upon, with whatever tools are now available to you? Out of all the things you could be doing in life, is there one thing you can act upon that is the most exciting thing you could be doing – more exciting than anything else you are acting upon?

Q: Well, what I’m doing is a lot along the lines of what you were saying before, of trying to live in the moment, and…

B: There is no trying to live in the moment; there is living in the moment, or there is not.
Q: Well, living in the moment.
B: All right. What does living in the moment mean to you?
Q: Being with myself, and taking in and living out what I have to give.
B: All right. What do you have to give?
Q: Myself, my love.
B: All right. In what ways does it excite you to share your love and be of service in your society?
Q: That’s an interesting question; I haven’t thought of that before.
B: All right. You may think about it now.
Q: Well, in my work.
B: Which is?
Q: Which is, I’m a therapist.
B: Is this something that excites you?
Q: Very much.
B: All right. This is something that you love to do?
Q: Very much.
B: All right. When you are being a therapist, what do you give, and what do get out of it?
Q: Give guidance, exploration.
B: All right. And what do you get?
Q: I get the pleasure and satisfaction of seeing people get beyond blocks and...
B: All right.
Q: on with their lives.
B: All right. May I ask you another question?
Q: Please.
B: Thank you. Do you regard the individuals that you assist differently than you regard yourself?
Q: No.
B: Do you feel that you have the same degree of unconditional love for yourself that you do for them?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Do you believe you act like you have unconditional love for yourself?
Q: Not always.
B: All right. When do you not?
Q: When I get sick.
B: I see. Why, in getting sick, as you say, why should that make a difference as to how much you are willing to love yourself?
Q: It shouldn’t.
B: Why does it?
Q: That’s my problem, that it takes . . .
B: Problem is only a situation you will not allow to transform into something else.
Q: Well, it takes over.
B: It takes over?
Q: It takes over.
B: It?
Q: The negative.
B: It? Are you saying that there is something that has more power in your life than you?
Q: It has.
B: No, it has not. You have that power; only you can create the illusion that makes it seem as if something else has more power than you. But that is giving your power away. Now, I thought you said you loved yourself unconditionally. UNconditionally! UNconditionally. So any condition, including disease, should not be a prerequisite for the ceasing of love to yourself. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Now. If you are creating a disease, do you think that you create a disease because you are doing something wrong? You are not getting something right? You are going too slowly? You are not understanding something properly?
Q: Yes.
B: Why? Why do you invalidate yourself? When you create a situation, just a situation which does not have to come with negative meaning, why choose to believe that simply because that situation of the disease is there that you are doing something wrong? Why not simply choose to assume that it is there for a positive reason, rather than a negative one?
Q: The disease?
B: Yes. Now, while you are pondering this, will you play a little game with me?
Q: Yes.
B: Oh, thank you. Do you like games?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you. Do you like to have fun?
Q: Very much.
B: Oh, thank you very much.
Now, this little game entails your imagination. For right now, for the time frame of this game, all realities are flexible. There does not have to be any invalidation, such as, "oh, well, that will never work, that is naive, that is childish, that will never amount to anything, that is not realistic," and so forth. For right now, using your imagination in this game, can you create, in this moment, even one positive reason for having the disease you have?

Q: Well, it’s a way of stopping the destructive patterns that I’ve been following.
B: Ah. How so?
Q: Not having enough fun in my life.
B: How does the disease allow you to stop the pattern of not having enough fun?
Q: Well, I have to pay attention to myself.
B: Oh, very good. Now, do you think you can pay attention to yourself in other ways?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you think that now that you have gotten your attention with the disease, that you can allow yourself to receive any and all messages that can come to you, and not choose to stop loving yourself?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. May I remind you that within the background of your work that you have been taught – one of the inherent beliefs you have ingrained within yourself, is that once you have a concept of something, you believe you need a process in order to manifest, or achieve, or become that idea. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Recognize that this is something you have learned, and it is something you can unlearn. And the idea can be stated this way, if you begin to recognize that your imagination is just as real as your physical reality, and that your physical reality is the product of your imagination anyway, with the added variable, the added illusion you call solidity, then you can understand the following idea.

If you are even able to conceive of a state of being you prefer, rather than the state of being you are in, your ability to be able to even conceive of that different state of being means that at the time you are conceiving it, you are in that state of being. Because the only things you can conceive are the things you are. The vibratory level on which you already exist can only give rise to the thoughts and the conceptions and the imaginations that go along with that level and no other. The only thing that prevents you from allowing what you imagine or visualize to be a reality or a situation you would prefer over the one you are experiencing is in not believing that the imagination of that experience is as real as the experience itself.

Recognize that being able to conceive of a situation is not the beginning of a process; it is the end of a process. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: When you allow yourself to know that what you have imagined is now true for you, then all you need to do is to begin to act like it is already true for you.
Now, another continuation of this idea: pay attention! When you allow yourself to know that you have, in fact, changed into a reality in which you no longer need to experience negative manifestation, do remember this: You, as a society, have existed in invalidation and limitation for many hundreds of thousands of years. So, it is not surprising that you may, for a little bit, continue to do so – to treat your situation in that way. However, this does not mean you cannot take it for granted that you have changed. The moment, the instant, you conceive of the reality you prefer to be, you are that reality.

What may not change so quickly are the symbols that represent your reality to you. But do remember this, no symbol, no situation, comes with built-in meaning. All situations, all symbols, are fundamentally neutral, blank, zero. You give them meaning and the meaning you give the symbol determines the effect you get out of it; positive meaning, positive effect; negative meaning, negative effect.

Therefore, when you imagine the scenario you would prefer to be – but recognize that the same symbols keep occurring – all you need to do is, (a) take it for granted that instantaneously, in fact, your reality has changed. What you need to do, therefore, is start to give new meaning to the symbols that do not appear to be changing. When you give new meaning to the symbols, that is when you allow the symbols to change into more conscious reflections of the new reality you know you have become.

But because you live in a world of linear time, that transformation may take a little bit of time; do not be impatient with yourself. Therefore, if you now know, for example, to use your scenario – that you are now willing to receive communication from different portions of yourself, without having to have the experience or the symbol you call the negative disease in order to listen, then simply take it for granted that you actually now are, from this point forward, an individual who no longer does need to experience it that way.

If the symbol should stick around for a little while, that is all right. It will change as quickly as it can when you start to give that symbol a positive meaning – rather than continue to imbue it with a negation, just because of the way it appears on the surface. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Then your willingness – your willingness to not make, not force a change, but to allow it to change – then your physical reality will begin to transform, to reflect to you what you now know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, to be true for you. All you need to do, when you know that something is true for you, is to begin to act like it is true for you. Which means, if you are the person who no longer feels pain and disease, then act like a person who knows that they no longer feel pain and disease.

And should you create, for a little while longer, the supposed outward symbol of the pain and disease, all you need to know is, it is not the same meaning, even though it is the same outward expression. And as soon as you know it is not the same meaning, the outward expression will follow suit. Because physical reality is the shadow of the soul, and the soul is the body of existence. When you change the shape of the body – which is changing the idea of who and what you are – the shadow must take the form of the body. But if you try to change the shape of the shadow without changing the intrinsic body, it doesn’t move. Does this assist you?

Q: Very much.

B: Also, recognize that from this point forward, in your dream realities, you will begin to recognize that you have opened many more doorways by your willingness to share in this communication with us – not because it is us, but because you are willing to allow yourself to view new reflections of yourself. Thus, you are getting in touch with your own self-empowerment, and do not have to give your power away. And can now recognize, from this point forward, that you are as powerful as you need to be to have anything you desire in life without having to hurt anyone else – or yourself – in order to get it. Your dream realities will expand, and there will now be more communication to more levels of yourself. We thank you for your willingness to allow us to reflect to you another facet of the creation that you are. Your life will accelerate accordingly. Thank you very much. Pleasant dreams. And laugh anytime you feel like it.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Healing Energies for Spine and Back

Q: I’ve recently acquired a new client who asked me to work with her on a weekly basis, and I was wondering if you can give me some guidance on how I can best help her. She has two metal rods on each side of her spine, in her back, vertical, like from the shoulder blades down. They planted them in her when her back was broken. She has a great deal of muscle spasms throughout her entire body. And because of those rods I don’t seem to be able to do any kind of massage work on her back, when obviously, you know, she needs some relief...

B: Our suggestion would be immersion in energized water that is close to body temperature.

Q: Energized.

B: Yes.

Q: What does that mean?

B: Utilizing, if you wish, the symbols of crystals and/or your own auric field. Extend your blue-white energy into the water and allow it to become a crystalline form of the idea you call water. And in this way, being close to the idea of her body temperature, there will be the lack of differentiation between the inside of the being and the outside of the being.

And this will allow there to be a blending in both, and a relaxation and an alignment of both, and a crystallization of her physical form in every cellular structure. In your imagination, do what we would term to be a mental massage. Surround her with electromagnetic fields that are the exemplification of your mentality, her mentality, blended together. And infuse those fields with calming, soothing, cool, blue-white electromagnetic light. And allow there to be a balancing in her electromagnetic field that will alleviate all the blockages therein.

Q: I will do what you mentioned about doing the mental massage, however, I don’t know about her agreement to trusting me with the water.

B: That is something she can do on her own.

Q: Right. Okay, what I also would like is, are there any key points in her body that I can work on with massage, that will help the back area?

B: Between the shoulder blades, near the base of the neck.

Q: Okay, so applying just some thumb massage or pressure...

B: One or two fingers. Touch.

Q: Holding... a pushing, or an actual massage?

B: Lightly.

Q: Lightly... push...

Q: Okay. How quickly?
B: According to how your imagination feels fit when you have imagined the energy to been transferred, in that way, then do the removal.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

HEALER ENERGIES

Q: I follow my excitement, but verbally I cannot explain it. I tell them I am a energy healer, that is not enough for them, they don’t have a category or . . .

B: All right, how about this analogy? Do you understand tuning forks?

Q: Yes

B: You understand that if two tuning forks are, in a sense, tuned to each other that if you start one vibrating the other one will also vibrate in what you would call sympathetic harmony?

Q: Yes.

B: That’s healing.

Q: Ok.

B: A healer gives off a certain frequency, like the original tuning fork gives off waves and pulsation’s of energy, frequency, pitch, and vibrational levels of energy. Any individual attracted to that healer is asked, is invited, to match that frequency and if they match that frequency it is a frequency representative of their more natural self– and in the natural self no DISEASE can exist. So if they take the challenge and RISE to the challenge and literally match that frequency given off by the healer they will be vibrating in harmony and thus they will cure themselves and that is how a healer heals. Does that help?

Q: Yes, very much so.
Healing Field For Body Realignment

Q: I am right now researching and exploring the different methodologies of realigning the electromagnetic energy of the physical body.
B: Realigning the energies of the physical body.
Q: And I’m working with color and sound and crystals.
B: Oh, how exciting!
Q: It is. It’s very exciting. And I would like to know from you... I heard you just mention to another gentleman who was up here talking about a liver dysfunction that he was experiencing – about a specific force field to place yourself in...
B: Yes, a magnetic field, pulsing at seven and one-half cycles per second, approximately.
Q: Can you just visualize that?
B: Yes, you can.
Q: Wonderful. Okay. Then that answers my question.
B: Well thank you. That was simple.
Q: Thank you.
B: Remember that any physiological phenomenon is only an externalized reflection of what you already imagine to be true for you anyway. So, if you are willing to dispense with the idea of the intermittent symbols, then you can simply manifest it directly with your belief structure.
Q: Great. Thank you!
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!
Healing Path

Q: Hello.
B: Hello!
Q: At first I wasn’t sure about you, but now I think you are great! (Audience laughter)
Q: So forgive me for when I met you the first time, and...
B: There is nothing to forgive, for it is not, in that sense, important what you think of us. We are not here to prove anything to anyone. We have no need for you to believe in us. We are simply here to assist you in believing in yourself.
Q: That’s wonderful! My question is about a dream I had last year in which an Indian medicine man came to me, and opened my hands and gave me a crystal.
B: Yes.
Q: Ever since that point, my life changed. I’m obsessed about studying flowers and herbs.
B: Oh, you are a healer, and have been many times.
Q: That’s what I want to know. I’ve done a lot of different healings already...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and I want to know if I’m supposed to go on with this path and supposed to keep practicing my...
B: Oh, does it excite you?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, that’s your answer.
Q: It excites me... I want to do it, I want to do it more.
B: Well, do it.
Q: But I’m afraid that I do not have the power coming to me the way I...
B: No, no, no, no, no, no. Understand: being excited about it is your signal that you have the power.
Q: Oh great.
B: Otherwise you wouldn’t be excited.
Q: Oh, that’s great. I believe in myself and...
B: That is all you need to do. Excitement is your sign from the universe.
Q: And is all this coming true? (Laughing)
B: Yes! Use it! Use it!
Q: Okay, that’s what I want to know, if I can use it, if I have the...
B: Yes. You do not have to ask that question. If it excites you, that’s your answer. Yes, you can use it, or it wouldn’t excite you. Excitement is the signal that you have the ability to use what excites you.
Q: Great.

B: It is that simple – the universe works that easily.
Q: Well, I’m going to an Indian medicine conference.
B: You will have a great impact.
Q: Oh great, thank you very much.
B: Thank you for being willing to express yourself in that balancing way.
Q: Please help me... visit me! (Laughing) I feel I need it!
B: You have access to the infinite energy of creation itself. You are a facet of the multidimensional crystal of the Infinite Creator. If you know what you are, if you know how you wish to express your service and your love, that knowledge is enough to know that you will be able to express yourself in that way, and you will have more than enough energy.
You will be supported, uplifted by the whole that you are serving. Serving the whole allows the whole to serve you. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: So enjoy! Be the light you know you are. SHINE BRIGHTLY! Ecstasy is your birthright. You can show others that ecstasy is their birthright as well.
For remember, any healer is actually allowing another individual to heal themselves. You are creating, with them, an atmosphere through which you allow them to be willing to recognize their own connection to the Infinite Creator, and center themselves.
Any time you center and balance within your idealized idea, you are healed of any imbalance, because all imbalances are you holding yourself out of balance. As a natural being you are not out of balance, so any imbalance, any dis-ease that exists within you, is your decision, your choice to hold yourself out of balance.
So when you heal someone else, what you are doing is providing for them an opportunity, setting up an atmosphere for them of love and trust. Seeing the love and trust in your eyes lets them know that you believe in their ability to recognize themselves as another facet of infinite creation. So in allowing them to recognize that, they will let go of the tension, and let themselves – not make – let themselves rebalance, and they will be healed. And that is how you can serve them.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Well, thank you very much. Enjoy!

Healing Relationships And Trusting In Your Life

Q: I’ve had a very difficult relationship with my father and he represents the idea of an alcoholic...
B: All right.

Q: ...and not having been very loving and supportive. Understandably, um...therefore, I have been working on building my own strength and my own love...
B: All right.

Q: ...through meditation, but I was wondering if you could help me to understand the purpose of this relationship.
B: Can be as simple as you just stated: to allow you to build your own strength and unconditional love, at least on your end. Once you have allowed that individual to reflect to you your opportunity to be self-empowered and know that you are complete in this way, you can then reflect back to them, their own self-empowerment, which can allow them to take responsibility for their life back into their control, and not put responsibility on a symbolic tool – the drug. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: You are serving each other. ALLOW what that individual is doing to be of service to you. And THEN once you allow yourself to know that you have gotten the idea that you are self-empowered, in that way, you can express unconditional love for ALL the different ways that any individual may choose to live their life. Being that all ways are equal, then you can take upon yourself the opportunity to continue your OWN recognition of your self-empowerment without needing THEM to be something AGAINST WHICH you are PUSHING to DEVELOP that ability within yourself.

You can then say: I am under my own steam, thank you for your reflection, thank you for your barrier, thank you for your wall that I pushed against to arrive where I am. Now I am under my own power and I will REFLECT the knowledge back to you that YOU ALSO are under your own power, that I have unlimited, unconditional faith and love in you, that whatever you choose, is exactly what you need to choose to learn what you have decided to learn.

Therefore, by offering you the opportunity TO be able to learn what you are learning IN another way, you give them the opportunity to CHOOSE another way, rather than what you perceive to be a destructive, negative way. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you, will that have served you?
Q: Yes, but I had one more question.
B: All right.
Q: While I’m working on this empowerment to the fullest potential…
B: Now, may I remind you of something?
Q: Yes.
B: It is at its fullest potential right now and always will be. You are only allowing yourself to remember this – that is what you mean by “working at it,” but you do not have to struggle.
Q: Okay.
B: It is simply – remembering. Relax…you KNOW that when you are TRY-ING to remember something, it is when you relax, that you remember it.
Q: Right. That’s correct.
B: So relax, and you will be at your full potential.
Q: Can I still ask my question?
B: Of course. (Much laughter)
Q: As I relaxed, my dilemma has been…
B: Your what?
Q: Oh, my situation…
B: Yes, your fundamentally neutral situation. (Much laughter)
Q: My situation, let’s see, has been deciding how to approach the relationship and how to deal with him.
B: Unconditional love.
Q: Okay.
B: If you are unconditionally loving, then you are granting SUPPORT and UNDERSTANDING to the relationship. And you will allow it to bolster itself upon that support, and reach the understanding you require. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
B: Allow yourself to know that it is serving you – it is not an interruption in your path – it is how you choose to interact. Let it serve you, then you can allow him, to let himself, let it serve him as well, through your example of allowing this situation to serve you. You can show him how it can serve him, and he can choose another way to learn whatever it is he is learning. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
B: Sharing!
Q2: So another situation, just to expand on that a little bit, then the individual that’s abusing alcohol or drugs or whatever…
B: Yes.
Q2: They’re at a point that they need to go through that, to learn certain lessons.
B: They obviously believe they need to go through that; it is not that they REALLY NEED to go through that, it is that they believe they need to go through that. There is no need for anyone to go through anything, unless they believe they need to. Does that clarify the idea?
Q2: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you. Sharing!
Q3: You’ve talked from the beginning until now on one subject: abundance, magnetic fields, doorways, galaxies, problems…one thing is just acceptance…
B: Situations, allowance.
Q3: Well, whatever word. Acceptance.
B: Yes.
Q3: Okay, and you talk about accepting, that we accept our powers, in our lives, in our universe, and in our lessons, in our problems…
B: Yes.
Q3: …situations.
B: Yes.
Q: All right, this is fine, but what do you do, what would you suggest as the possibility when you don’t look at it as a situation, but you look at it as a problem? How do you go inside of yourself to learn that this is just an accepted lesson? Or this is an accepted situation?
B: In whatever way your imagination tells you to.
Q: How do you see this? What is a way of seeing it? What is a suggestion? How to handle, how to…
B: You want me to give you a specific exercise?
Q3: Something that would help me go down inside of myself and see that this is a lesson.
B: All right, may I ask you a question?
Q3: Yes.
B: For now, before I share something with you, how do you imagine you could do that? Pretend.
Q3: Well, I tried it in different spheres, different times…
B: All right.
Q3: …and different levels.
B: Yes.
Q3: And there are problem situations that you come against that you know that you haven’t been given a larger problem than you can handle…
B: All right.
Q3: Okay. But, you can’t see it...
B: BUT?
Q3: BUT! can’t seem to get pass the point of letting go, accepting.
B: Perhaps because you are judging what you are getting to not be a part of the process?
Q3: Umm.
B: How about that?
Q3: Stepping back from?
B: Allowing yourself to know that WHATEVER it is that is happening IS a part of the process, not an interruption in what you feel to be a problematic situation, a block. Something that lets you feel you are not going where you need to go to SOLVE your problem. But understand: what you are being given is ALWAYS the exact thing you need to be given. Many times you will judge that what you are being given is NOT what you need to be given, and then it will take the form of a seeming block, simply because of what you are being given is a direction you did not EXPECT, and therefore you do not think the direction is valid, according to how your ego thinks you should discover the answer to your question. It is a matter of trust. It is all trust, and it ALL comes down to that one concept – trust. Trust is all there is. That is the ONLY thing you need to allow yourself, in this way, to recognize and realize ANY answer to ANY question. Trust. Are you following along?
Q3: Yes sir.
B: Sir?
Q3: Sir. I’m from Texas, what do you expect? (Laughter)
B: All right, Mam. In this way, you may simply recognize that many individuals when they come upon a so-called BLOCK, are simply not allowing themselves to recognize that it is actually a brightly lit sign, saying: NOW IS THE TIME TO GO LEFT, TO GO RIGHT. But many individuals, allowing their ego to be in the driver’s seat, say: No, no, no, I must go straight ahead. Exactly at that moment, because your higher self knows that the way to go is NOT straight ahead, but to the left, or to the right – and that is why the sign is there. At that moment that you become stubborn, the sign changes into a brick wall. Now, you can stand there as long as you like and beat your head into it, if you enjoy that sort of thing, or you can allow yourself to say: All right, this is an unexpected direction. What you will allow yourself to do, by moving in that unexpected direction, is to recognize that AT THAT MOMENT, going left, or going right, is exactly the way to go straight ahead. Expectation is what says it’s got to be like this, or nothing. Allowance is what says, it can be this way, it can be. And that is what paradoxically gives you the sensation that all of this is actually this, when you assume the way you want to go through your ego gratification that says, “it must be this or nothing,” that is when this becomes this, because you are not going with the flow of what may be an unexpected direction – but it is the direction, nonetheless, that you need to go in.

It is trusting that WHATEVER, WHATEVER, and I mean WHATEVER your imagination comes up with, at that moment, is EXACTLY what you need to’s the word – ACT– upon to allow yourself to continue that journey and understand the idea of yourself. Is any of this making sense?

Q3: Yes. Is what you are saying then, that in this trust, we trust in ourselves?

B: You trust that the universe has provided you with ALL ingredients necessary to be completely, at any given moment, any idea you desire to be. And you trust that being a part of the universe; you are able to function AS all of the activation principles in the universe, in that way. Utilizing them, allowing them to flow through you, so that you flow through life. LIFE is the ONLY process you need, to live more life. When you allow yourself to know that nothing that occurs in your life is an interruption in your path, but allow yourself to trust that no matter what is occurring, it is a PART of the path you choose to be, then you will allow yourself to gain, and gather, the actual experience of seeing how the situation IS a part of the path you chose to be.

You may look at it, as we have said many times, like this: A PATH IS NOT WHAT YOU ARE ON, A PATH IS WHAT YOU ARE. YOU CAN’T BE OFF OF YOURSELF. Everything that occurs in your life is a part of your path by definition. You cannot have anything in your life that is not a part of your path – by definition. There are no extraneous events in creation. You follow me?

Q3: Yes.

B: Does this act as some sort of assistance to you?

Q3: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much for the willingness to express your unique methodology and the path that you are. For in your sharing, many individuals will allow themselves, to glean for themselves, their own approach to a similar idea. For recognize, if you are present in the asking of a question, or the sharing of a statement, then there is a reason why you are present. Nothing is extraneous, if you are there to hear it, you can use it.

You can ask the same question that is being asked by somebody else, and apply it to your own path. Or you can share, and state to yourself, the same statement being made by someone else, and apply it to your own path, and you will have your own unique manifestation of how that idea applies to you. In that way, nothing that anyone asks, and nothing that anyone shares, will ever be boring, for everything that you are present to perceive, applies to you, or you wouldn’t perceive it.

Thank you. Sharing.

Healing Relationships and Trusting in Your Life

Healing Techniques

Q: My wife has a disease, but it is not registered as a disease. It’s a disturbance of the autonomic nervous system. The symptoms are that she gets really tired if she goes out; she gets headaches and feels nauseous.

B: All right. There may be certain herbal compounds which can be of assistance to this individual, but they may affect her system in a very strong way now because she is so delicate. First, an energy change may be necessary and again, we would simply recommend the following meditation.

Have this individual lie down in a comfortable position and, in her imagination, allow herself to create what she would call her place of perfect peace. It does not matter where it is, when it is or what it is, as long as it represents energy and relaxation to her. Allow her to develop a very rhythmic, even, deep breathing pattern as she relaxes in her place of peace. As she breathes, allow her to begin to imagine that her body is surrounded by a bright blue, transparent crystalline sphere of energy. It should extend at least one to three feet above the head, one to three feet below the feet. It should be a complete sphere, so even if she is lying on the ground, have her imagine that it goes under her body through the ground.

Have her then imagine that this sphere, even though it is transparent and she can see through it, is now filling with liquid blue light. Allow her to imagine that she is beginning to breathe that liquid in and out. Allow her to imagine that now every single pore in the body is absorbing the liquid light. Allow her to imagine that every single cell in the body is soaking up the liquid light to the full capacity that it can. Allow her to imagine the cool invigorating electricity that the liquid light imparts to her body. Allow her to imagine that her body is absolutely saturated with the liquid light, through and through. Allow her now to feel its electricity running through her body – aligning all her nerves, aligning all her cells, aligning her atomic structure into a crystalline pattern – until she feels the energy flowing through her faster and faster without any resistance whatsoever.

Allow her to feel the energy going from her feet all the way up through and out the top of her head, and around back through her feet, around and around again. As it is going that way allow her to imagine that there is an energy field, a magnetic field, going around the length of her body, spinning in a clockwise direction and going down from her head to her feet.

And then allow her body in her imagination to begin to dissolve into the blue liquid light, until there is no image of the body left but simply she is the sphere itself, full of vibrating electromagnetic energy where no one part of the sphere stands out from any other part. It is one homogenous energy, breathing and beating as one.

Then allow her to imagine a small, single crystalline seed forming at the center of the sphere. It is a bright, transparent, clear crystal. Allow it to grow and grow and grow, back into the form of a body. Allow her to observe this is a new body, a clear body, a body that is energized and made of living light itself. Have her feel the expansion, in her imagination, of this new energy body, it is connected to all light in Creation. Tell her now to breathe in the new body, and connect that body to the physical Earth in which she exists.

Now, in her imagination, allow the blue sphere around the new body to expand and disperse, becoming the reality around her. And at this point have her remind herself of the following thing, consciousness is not in the body, the body is within your consciousness. Tell her to breathe deeply and freely, full of life and joy. She can do this once in the morning and once in the evening. If she wishes, she can add it once in the afternoon as well, but no more than three times a day for about ten of your minutes. By the way, any and all of you can use this for any type of alignment you so desire. It is a very, very powerful tool.

The second aspect which may assist an individual in a state of relaxation – what you call meditation or going within – can be aided, as we perceive for this individual and many individuals, with the following tool: the simple striking of a clear and resonant bell, allowing the tone that is perceived from that bell to wash over and through the individual to begin to familiarize them with the energy state of vibration that they actually are as a person... for a person is energy, is consciousness.

The tone can assist in aligning all portions of the consciousness by giving all the portions of the consciousness one pattern to listen to. All portions can then focus on that one pattern and that may allow for an unconsciously aware alignment to take place. Then, in that state of meditation, of centering, they can take advantage of that state by imposing the picture they desire of themselves to be upon themselves, knowing that it can manifest as quickly and instantaneously as they believe that it can.

Do recognize this: the idea of any individual you are willing to assist, who you attract to you, and that individual’s co-creation of the attraction of someone willing to assist them, means that obviously both of you feel you do belong together and do need to interact in whatever ways your imagination is willing to come up with. Every single thing you do, whether you find it changeable or not is there for a reason and is a part of the overall process.

Trust your feeling; trust your intuition. Do what excites you the most and always, simply share your unconditional love. Trust that you will be being of service in the best possible way to that individual that you need to be, because it is no accident that you are in each other’s lives. There are no accidents.

Now, the idea of applying this on a large scale in your world also can come in many forms and many already exist upon your planet. Many of these ideas of healing are directly connected to issues we have discussed concerning peace and harmony. So the idea of creating objects that reflect the idea of peace and harmony, and sharing those objects with your planet will allow that vibration to, in a sense, "remotely" allow them to change.

One of the ideas that already exists upon your planet is a project that was created by a group of people called the Peace Pole Project. Some of you may already be familiar with this idea. It is simply one way, one idea, and a very beneficial idea it is. It is simply a wooden pole that says in different languages "May peace prevail on Earth." And the wooden pole is planted in the ground standing upright like an antenna, like an advertisement for the idea of peace. Understand it really does have an effect because just the fact that it is there, it gives off a certain vibration. It causes a certain reaction in all people who see it. So does art; it can do the same thing in many ways.

So, one idea is to increase your ability to produce objects of harmony, objects of health, objects of peace, and display them openly around the entire world. If enough of these monuments to peace and healing exist, well, maybe there won’t be any room left in which to fight. If every building is built along principles of healing and balanced energy, then the vibration will permeate the places that you live, the places that you work.

Now, these principles have been understood for quite some time upon your planet, but in this day and age many more artisans and architects are understanding the concept of the golden ratio, golden proportions. It is the same idea of natural reflections that we spoke of before. Certain proportions are naturally reflective of vibrations that are naturally balancing and naturally centering. If you, therefore, incorporate these proportions into everything that you do, if you follow the natural "template" of nature then everything will contain a vibration that promotes healing and balance. Your entire world can be as if you are living truly inside your art, because it is living inside of you and all you have to do is let it out and create a healing.

There are many places on your planet that are called, "power vortex points;" very strong electromagnetic aligning energies are in those areas of your planet. When you go to those places you feel yourself immersed in the frequency of those areas. You can allow the energy of the place to align you if you match its vibration. Then anywhere you go on Earth, if you create that vibration, then that place will be where you are and all that are with you can feel the energy of that place. You will be like an extension of that energy spot. All you have to do is use your imagination and allow yourself to feel like you felt when you were in that energy spot and you will then be that vibration. This can be a way to prepare yourself before you choose to do a healing with someone else.

You can do the same thing if you wish to create any form of art. You can re-create that vibration and then create the form of art that you feel is representative of that vibration. Then that piece of art will have that vibration locked into it.

For example, if you know that your Mount Fuji or your Mount Shasta area is one of the power spots of the planet, you can create that vibration in anything you do. If your artwork then creates the vibration of that place all who come in contact with your artwork will be standing in the vibration of Fuji. Nature is always very balancing, very healing. Take advantage of the vibrations it provides for you. Many of you already understand that to gaze upon a beautiful tree or a beautiful flower creates a healing vibration, a centering within you.

So understand that when you see representations in art of objects that have a certain feeling, then the vibration of that object is really there. This goes hand-in-hand with what we discussed before about the world being a metaphor, a symbol. You can use the idea of the metaphor, or the symbol, to actually create a healing and balancing vibration because all physical objects have a unique vibration. And even a symbolic representation of that physical object has the vibration of that object in a specific way.

You see, you are creating physical reality anyway. A physical object is already only a symbol of a vibration within your consciousness. So in some ways there really is not much difference between the vibration of a tree and the vibration of a painting of the same tree. You can work with your symbols in this way to generate a balancing atmosphere, even if you are not in physical proximity to the actual object that is represented by the symbology that you choose.

In the past this understanding was called, "sympathetic magic," in the sense of creating a sympathetic vibration in model form, or in a symbolic form, that actually has the vibration of the real thing. Therefore, making a connection to that thing from a distance, because you actually have the vibration of that thing in symbolic form. Magic is simply the ability to truly transform your belief system and transform your reality around you in a very conscious way. Then, telepathically transmitting to other individuals the vibration of that change so that they, if they choose to, can experience that change as well in their reality. Sympathetic magic. There is nothing mysterious about this. It is only the physics of consciousness.

So allow yourself to understand, it is all a matter of your vibration. Heal yourselves, heal everyone by being the fullest "you" you can be. Then, if you are in balance, you can allow others through sympathetic vibration to be in balance with you directly, or through your artwork and creativity.

Before we continue allow us to address something we feel is of concern to a few individuals. There are many fluctuations going on in the electromagnetic field of your planet at this time and many individuals who are becoming increasingly sensitive may feel this energy in their bodies in certain ways that are painful from time to time.

If it will ease your fears, by all means, seek your own medical practitioner’s advice to make sure nothing is wrong with you. But if you are simply becoming increasingly sensitive to that energy, in all likelihood they will not find anything wrong with you. Learn to center yourselves with the idea that you do not have to experience the fluctuations as pain, but now and then, you may. Simply understand there are many things your civilization has to process through itself, and therefore, sometimes it may manifest as pains and aches here and there, especially in the heart and the head. As the new energy comes through, if you are not used to it, you may believe it will cause you difficulty. Your uncertainty and your doubt can cause the energy to translate in your body as pain.

Relax. Allow yourselves, once again, to breathe easily, breathe fully of life. Always take heart in the memory that you are choosing to change in this way; the more you remember it is your choice, the less painful it will be. Because the more you remember it is your choice, the less uncertain you will be. We will radiate a soothing energy throughout this interaction; you may use it in any way, shape or form your imagination desires. Some of you may simply require what is called, “grounding.” This can be accomplished in a number of ways; of course, your imagination can always be a flawless guide to tell you what will work best for you.

Three other ways we will suggest: One is to avail yourself of the mineral called, hematite. It is very magnetically grounding. Sometimes when many of you begin to deal with higher energies your feet have a tendency to leave the ground. When you break that connection, when you imbalance yourself in that way, that can also cause extra sensitivity and pain.

The second way is to simply identify more strongly with the Nature around you – take walks in the woods, in the streams, in the Earth. Become grounded in your physical experience, with your senses. Breathe in the air, feel the Earth, hug a tree.

The third way is to allow yourself some enjoyable physical action that can very much help focus you in physiological meditations of a different type. One that you may find works very well – and we do not mean to exert yourself – is to do the following thing: take a very nice large thick piece of wood, take a lot of nails and pound them with a hammer into the wood in whatever pattern you desire. Become involved in the physical action and feel the flow of the physical activity. Or, perhaps sexual intimacy will do. We can now continue with questions if you like.

Q: I was wondering if there might be an image or model where we could affect the aging process?

B: Live in the moment. The more you live in the moment, the more you become absorbed, literally absorbed in doing what you love to do, the less you will age. All of you know the experience of "time flies" when you are having fun. You know that time isn’t really flying. And in all reality, it isn’t that you are just ignoring the passage of time. You create time. And when you do something that allows you to be so focused that you can come out of it and say, "Oh, many hours have passed, where did the time go?" you actually did not create that time, literally. If you feel that you have only experienced about one half hour when perhaps to the rest of the world three hours went by, you actually only aged one half-hour.

Living in the moment, staying in the moment, following your excitement and staying in that vibration unlocks you from the time matrix and allows you to experience yourself as relatively ageless. Now, the idea is, when you realize that three hours have passed, what you are simply doing is, automatically and by choice, reconnecting yourself to the time stream that all of you have agreed to share, because you don’t want to completely divorce yourself from that matrix. Otherwise, you will not be able to interact with many other people on your planet at this time. But the more all of you live in the moment, the more you will be able to interact in the "Now" and the less aging you will experience, because you are literally creating less time.

When you stay in the moment you are creating less details, you are allowing yourself to see the big picture of what you are doing, and allowing your higher self to allow the details to be opened and positioned automatically. You don’t have to fragment your consciousness to take care of "worrying about all the details" or trying to juggle all the details into place. The fewer details you pay attention to in that fashion, the less time you will need to get done what you need to get done. You follow? Does that model work for you?

Q: Yes, quite a bit. I was also wondering about when we are asleep. Do we actually physically age at a slower rate then?

B: Yes, because you are living in the Now. What you call or remember as a dream is more your natural state. Remember, you are dreaming right now. You are dreaming physical reality. Though you experience physical reality to seem to be more truly the real you, recognize that your physical reality is actually more truly the dream – the dream of time and space. When you awaken you will not necessarily experience time and space as much.

The idea is to learn to be childlike; to learn to live in the now. Because the more you live in the now, then the less time you create. And the less time you experience, the less time will age you. You understand? It will create an agelessness within you. And if there is a purpose in doing so, you will then allow yourself to exist in a more Eternal Now and you will experience what colloquially would be perceived as a longer time span, although that’s not exactly what’s happening, because time is your illusion.

The idea is as if you are, this is perhaps a limitation of the language, but it is more like you are "skipping over moments." You are not experiencing as many "time moments." You are removing yourself and reinserting yourself at different places in time, so that to everyone else still lodged in time it seems as if you have lived longer than the normal time span, but you really haven’t, per se. You have experienced eternalness, the idea of the suspension or the dissolution of time, and you have accomplished more within the Eternal Now. Because, when you are not guided by time you can accomplish all things simultaneously, or more simultaneously than you used to.

The effect can be that you look the same but are actually much older. Your experience of living longer in no way, shape or form is hinged on someone else’s acceptance that that can be so. It is only hinged on your acceptance that that can be so and is proper for you.

Share these ideas with people. Express yourselves fluidly and boldly, with conviction. Communication is also healing; openness, honesty, direct communication from the heart, in all forms of your relationships – letting yourselves be who you truly are, not who you think you or everyone else ought to be. Then your relationships will be healing, balancing, centering and not a struggle with all levels of your society: social, political, and economic. You are not separate from your governments; you are your governments. You are not separate from your economic system; you are your economic system. Transform it and create it to be in a healing way, in a way that serves the society – not in a way that forces the society or others to serve it. Allow yourselves to be all the attention to the to the appropriate details; they will be strongly created and last for a very long time.

That which is created within a state of balance and healing also exists in that state and then lives in the eternal now. Things that are created in that way will span the ages, will create the millennium of peace and health. But you must actively do these things. You must live life in order to be healthy. You cannot shrink from life. You cannot live it only in your imagination. You must live it fully.

Your natural self is a balanced self. It is a healthy self. Allow yourselves to understand that a preoccupation with being healthy can sometimes be an indication of holding onto a belief of disease. The self that is balanced does not think about the idea of trying to be healthy. You do not have to try to be healed. You do not have to try to heal others. All you need do is go to your center. You do not have to "try" to go to your center. Your center is who you really are. All you have to do is allow yourself to be who you are. Healing is allowing – not making, not trying, not forcing. It is allowing. You have to “try” to be away from your center. You do not have to “try” to go back to your center. Just let go. Relax the expectations; relax the resistance and you automatically glide smoothly back into center.

These ideas and suggestions can work for each and every one of you wherever and whenever you choose to use them. Trust that your sparkling creative imagination will create the changes that are reflective of the unique individual you happen to be. Let your imagination unfold and transform these suggestions in whatever way, shape or form feels best to you. Do not resist your natural self. Trust it. Believe in it. It is who you are.

Healing is the product of integrating all of the differences you have created yourself to be, cherishing your diversity, but at the same time functioning as an integrated whole. You are all created to heal each other by being of service to each other, to create an atmosphere of support, help and guidance, to create a balance in between the supporting of the whole society and the supporting of yourself as an individual within that society. If you support the society at the expense of your individuality, you cannot support the society, because you will not be whole and balanced; if you support only yourself at the expense of your society you will not support yourself, because you will have cut yourself off from your Universal support.

Healing is also a balancing of all the dynamics you experience in life. You are an individual, you are the whole society, each and every one of you. Heal yourselves with creativity and love by doing with integrity what is in your heart to do. And if you choose to, share these ideas of integration and balancing and healing. Put them out for your world to see in art; apply them in any form your imagination so desires – so the vibration will be everywhere.
Healing Through Reconfiguration

Q: Two things I’m excited by in life for many years. One is my pursuit of yoga, and the other is music.
B: Have you caught it yet?
Q: Yes. Just kidding; and just a short question about each.
B: All right, music, yoga.
Q: In terms of the physical, I had a bad accident in 1958, where I lost my left kneecap, and through Yoga and physical exercise, I re-grew it.
B: Yes.
Q: But I’ve always been bothered in the knees, and wondered if you had a technique that I’m missing – for the final perfection of having good legs again.
B: Perhaps, in this way, there are simply remnants, let us say, of what you might inherently believing to be impurities in the crystalline growth – or re-growth – of that idea.
Allow yourself to dissolve yourself down again; dissolve in your imagination, in your meditative states, while you are breathing very deeply and rhythmically. Think of the idea of your knee as being in a crucible, and see the great heat of your intention melt the idea down again into liquid. Then feel the vibration, the vibration of the idealized feeling of the flexibility, of the idealized structure of the knee.
Then place that template in the liquid, and let the liquid cool according to that template and re-grow without the impurities. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: You can use tone for this as well. Tone can represent, if you wish – or you can have a tonal analogy of the template energy upon which you can allow the new reality to re-crystallize, re-grow. Take it back to a liquid state; let the so-called impurities, or old belief systems, float to the surface, if you will. Skim them off the top, and then know that you have a pure liquid to deal with. Let it re-crystallize according to the new template that you drop into it. Then insert it into the idea that you are. That is one idea.
Utilize this; see if that is of benefit to you – and allow your imagination to alter it in whatever way, shape or form it feels so inclined.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much

Healing With Love

Q: I want to ask a very mundane question about a person I am trying to help.
B: Nothing is mundane.
Q: I mean earthly.
B: So?
Q: This girl I’m referring to... she is right now in the County Hospital in the psychiatric ward.
B: All right.
Q: She went out of her mind, possibly through the use of drugs. And what I now observe after two months, with her inability to “come back” to reality is...
B: To which reality?
Q: To being... to acting in a normal way.
B: You mean the mass agreed upon reality?
Q: Well... what shall I say? In a way that’s not disruptive to her life.
B: All right.
Q: I mean, to be in a County Hospital in a psychiatric ward, and to be in the hands of the authorities and not to have any control over your own life, is what I’m talking about.
B: Oh, she has control.
Q: Yes, I agree. She appears to have multiple personalities, and those personalities come and go. So what my question is about is, would you have some idea of the ways she could come out of it?
B: Well, let me ask you a question first, if I may?
Q: Sure.
B: Do any of the so-called multiple persona exhibit any negative traits, in your terms?
Q: Yes. She acts like a three-year-old child.
B: Oh! One moment... (AUD laughs) ... why is that negative?
Q: That’s not negative, but...
B: When we say negative, we are expressing the term in the meaning: are any of them in your terminology harmful to anyone else? In your terms, perhaps, physically violent, accosting?
Q: Yes.
B: Are any of those traits present?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Lack of integrity in other words.
Q: What I meant by a three year old child being negative was that, when you’re a twenty-six year old child and you act... you go into somebody’s house and you pee on their floor and you mark their walls, and you go around hiding things and taking things, and doing things like driving a car around the streets and going around to telephone booths and calling the police and telling them... etc. I could name millions of incidents; she’s done too much. She’s been in and out of the hospital four times.

B: All right.

Q: So that’s not negative to me, it’s just destructive to herself.

B: It can be an expression of lack of integrity. Maybe – maybe not. Certain cases, yes, certain cases, no.

Q: So my question is... is she what would be called, possessed, and does she need to be exorcised?

B: Obsessed perhaps, yes. Not possessed.

Q: So she isn’t possessed by some other...

B: Oh, no one can be. No one can be. Possession is completely self-created. It is simply an identification with a negative idea, to the point where you relinquish – apparently relinquish – control. Everyone is always in control, even if they create the illusion that they are under the control of something else. That is only an illusion.

It may serve their purposes. Perhaps they are running from something in that way – something within themselves. Which is what we generally perceive is what this individual has done. They have learned to run from so many aspects of the self that they now have created a “loop” in which they can find no way to reconnect, to bridge the idea of communication from the realities they choose to experience, to the reality of your average society.

In a sense, an obsession of this nature can be assisted, perhaps, by allowing yourself to focus upon whichever aspects or personalities of the total being are in your estimation of a positive nature – or can be expressed in a positive way. Many times the positive aspects can be, in your terms, induced to converse with the negatively expressed aspects. And in conversing with the negatively expressed aspects within the self, perhaps, can transmit to those negative aspects the understanding that by expressing the self negatively they are only reinforcing the idea of powerlessness.

Now, in a sense, they are creating scenarios that are analogous to the running away from themselves. They are creating the state that you call paranoia. Paranoia is only an expression of running from the self. Running from aspects that the self fears to face, because they do not believe they can be integrated in a loving and positive way.

This individual, in exploring this, needs to be taught that the positive aspects that they are, and the negative aspects that they are, are never apart – are always together. That no matter where the negative aspects run, the positive aspects will always be there, to help, to love, to assist.

Most important is the recognition of love; unconditional love for all aspects. Even though some aspects may express themselves in negative ways, in ways that represent lack of integrity, the first step is to still love those aspects unconditionally. For only by showing the individual a reflection of unconditional love can the positive aspects of that individual learn, by example, how to siphon that unconditional love to the negative aspects within themselves; to talk to themselves, which is what they are doing – one aspect conversing with another aspect.
And in that ability to then convince them within themselves – the negative aspects – that there is no need to run, there is no-where to run, because there is no outside – everything is right there.
Unconditional love, the vibration itself, is the most powerful integrating vibration. And if you are in touch with this individual and willing to express unconditional love, then in a sense, it can interject itself within the circuitry of the communication that that individual has with all the aspects of themselves.
And by, in your terms – now I am being very colloquial – interrupting the negative communication, you can allow the positive communication to be taken along with it. So that at least the information that the negative aspects of that individual is receiving will be matched by positive information – along with the negative information they are constantly feeding to reinforce those negative aspects.
You can literally “splice” into their circuitry, their neural circuitry, by radiating a field of unconditional love and reflecting to them, the power that they are – the belief in you that they are an aspect of infinite creation, the belief in you that they can communicate with the totality of themselves as the whole being.
You can literally splice into their communication network to themselves, and feed them positive information about themselves. Which can then tip the scale; tip the balance of the information that they send to all aspects of themselves.
Bit by bit, slowly but surely, that information will leak into their system, and fortify their system, so it makes it less likely that negative information will even be able to be transmitted along their neuronic pathways to negative aspects. So they will in a sense, “die out,” of malnourishment, and will have to seek nourishment from the positive information. Which will allow them to re-establish their foundations, to grow and re-connect the whole system of the person. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Very much.
B: Radiate that love. It is a true electromagnetic pulse.
Q: And that’s all that is necessary? That will tip the scales?
B: If you believe that is all that is necessary, yes. If you send along your doubts then they will be bubbles in your transmissions – gaps.
An assistance for you, perhaps, will be to place yourself first in the seven and one half cycle vibration of your Earth, before you transmit; so that you are keyed and harmonized and synchronized with the love of the Earth crystal. Then you can simply send that pulse which can be of great assistance in stabilizing their foundation. So you may wish to syncopate yourself first before you undergo a meditation of transmission of love to them. If that will assist you, then do that.
Q: The process of syncopation is like a breathing process...
B: You can breathe with... yes. Place yourself in a receptive state, in a giving state, and if you wish, allow yourself to simply think of the Earth vibration and place yourself in that state that approximates seven and one half cycles per second. Simply think about it and you can take yourself there. You follow me?
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much.
Healing With Unconditional Love

Q: Is there anyway that we can apply the visualization of the Prime Radiant to healing people in the third dimension?

B: Well of course, and I have already described the way, are you not paying attention?

Q: Apparently I was not.

B: Oh, all right. We talked about the idea of creating the energy bubble. Remember? That’s one way. Allowing people to get their cue from the vibrational resonance’s being set up in that energy bubble, that represent the zero rest point. Remember that?

Q: Yes.

B: That’s number one. We talked about the idea of stretching a string high and low, balancing yourself and then creating that flow between yourselves, and then applying the energy in your hands in whatever way, shape or form you so desired it. Remember that?

Q: Yes.

B: So you were paying attention, after all. The idea really is at this point – and this is why we added the phrase, “now directed with your intention” – at this point to know that we have given you the basic ability to access a little more clearly these resonance’s. It is up to your imagination and intention as to exactly the proper way for you that works best. Some people, even with hands on healing, feel they should touch the person. Some feel that it is best for them not to touch the person. Some feel it is best to use one finger, two fingers, press here, press there; do other kinds of motion.

At this point the choreography is up to your imagination because your imagination is specifically aligned to your frequency. And whatever you feel and whatever you picture is the best way for you to interact with your patient, at that time, is correct, once you know you are aligned and accessing those dimensional vibrations. We are just giving you the foundation for access; the methodology specifically is up to your choosing.

Q: You are requiring the conviction of the patient.

B: If they come to you, do you not have it?

Q: Yes, but suppose they don’t come to you, and I want to heal out of compassion?

B: If you simply radiate that level to all those that you are aware of, of unconditional love, ALLOWING THEM in that radiation to choose what works best for them, that is what gives them the OPPORTUNITY to choose to heal themselves. But you have to allow that they may not want to. If you don’t allow for them to not want to, you cannot allow them to do so. You cannot allow them to heal themselves, if you cannot allow them to choose not to heal themselves. That’s, again, the paradox.

Q: How do I express this with the ignorant?

B: You just love unconditionally. You express to the person, “I recognize that you are making choices, I WOULD OFFER TO YOU the suggestion, the opportunity, the gift, the idea, that there may be ways in which you can create beautiful health and radiant energy within yourself. AT THE SAME TIME, NOT BUT, “AND”, AT THE SAME TIME, I LOVE YOU UNCONDITIONALLY NO MATTER WHAT YOU CHOOSE BECAUSE I KNOW YOU ARE AN ETERNAL AND INDESTRUCTIBLE BEING ANYWAY. And, therefore, I have no reason to worry about your agenda, and thus, you choose. If you do find yourself worrying about their agenda, and worrying about what they choose, then it’s your agenda, not theirs that you need to work at. Does that help you?
Q: Yes.
B: You see we share these ideas with all of you – do not take this the wrong way, again, we understand that words in your language can mean different things, take it in the most positive way possible – I will just say it succinctly, just so that we can get on with this. We share these ideas with you. I don’t care how you take them. I do this because THIS IS WHAT I LOVE TO DO! I don’t care if you take them. However, I know that when you create your version of the idea that works best for you, in the moment, I know, beyond a shadow of a doubt that you are doing what is right for you, forever! All right?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Bashar From 1-11-97 Re: Health

Q: Greetings Bashar.

B: And to you, good day.

Q: There’s a condition that we humans have that affects the memory process, it’s known as Dementia, Alzheimer’s disease.

B: Yes.

Q: Some people are afflicted with this and some are not. Can you...?

B: Toxicity.

Q: Toxicity?

B: Yes. It is the product of combinations of different degrees of toxicity, and the breakdown of the neurological systems and sheathings because of certain kinds of toxic attack and chemical bonding that occurs within your physiological human form.

Q: What kind of toxicity might you be referring to? Is there something that we can...?

B: Certain mineralogical and elemental toxicity, such as the idea that some of you are already beginning to understand of what you would call aluminum poisoning in some cases, and in other cases having to do with certain other combinations of heavy metallic elements, and certain ideas of the monoxides that are prevalent in your atmosphere, and many different things from time to time depending upon the degree of sensitivity of the individual.

Q: Are some predisposed perhaps have a greater attraction to this perhaps?

B: Very few. Some are very few.

Q: Is it genetic also, perhaps?

B: That is what we assume you meant by “predisposed.” So some are, but very few. And for very specific reasons, if they happen to be. In other words, sometimes an individual when coming into physical reality will, as you say, “predispose” their genetic makeup to be susceptible to certain kinds of things, because the soul knew that it might need to experience those kinds of things for what it needed for it’s own soul growth, as a challenge. But it is very rare that that would happen in that way. Almost in no case is disease necessary, in that sense. If you are willing to learn the lessons and be creative in the ways that you know you can be, no one would really need to use disease to do that you are very creative and therefore many times will use disease to do that, to bring your attention into focus, into things that have been in denial within many of you for a long time. Because many times disease will focus your attention and bring you squarely into the present. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes.

B: So, more often than not it is created in the moment, rather than being “predisposed.” Although there are a few cases where that does exist.

Q: Is there anything that you might offer as a...sort of a...a way to prevent this from happening, or for those who are afflicted with this. . . .
B: All right. Again in terms of prevention there is the simple check list that most of you are aware of, but very few of you partake. That is:

1. Oxygenation of the system. Make sure you’re getting enough clean air. Oxygen is the key to transmutation in the body. And the support of the system.

2. Hydration of the system. Make sure you’re getting enough water. With the combination of oxygen and water your cells will be able to flush toxins more readily from the system, and in that sense increase their, shall we say, “shelf life,” by quite a bit.

3. Watch your diet. The idea in many cases, is that many of the food stuffs that many of you eat, are also full of toxins and pollution, and thus you are placing, replacing the idea of toxins, in your system on a constant basis.

Also the idea of activity. What you may call exercise, but generally, just activity. These are all important things because the activity will allow the body to function as a pump, to pump the fluids, pump the oxygen, and allow the cellular systems to transmit the idea of the toxins, to flush them from the system and to absorb the nutrients that they need to absorb more readily.

Also the idea of, lack of stress. Which of course we know is very prevalent in your society…stress. Primarily because most of you are doing things that are against the grain of your natural self. In terms of your jobs and so forth. Most of you impose great heaps of stress upon your system.

So, fundamentally that is the “Basic Checklist,” that will, I guarantee you prevent about 99.999999999% of all disease. [Do] you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Now. Once an individual may have concocted something, the first thing you need to realize, again, is that the emotional balance is always the primary causation of any literal “dis-ease.” Your own language says it for you. You are “dis-eased,” you are not at ease. You are emotionally, as you say, “out of whack.” And that means that you have belief systems and definitions that are going against the grain of your natural self. And you have feelings and emotions that result from those belief systems, that are compounding the issue, because of certain ideas or experiences that may have been imposed upon you from childhood. Getting back in touch with unresolved anger, unresolved rages, unresolved fears.

Many of these things are the true “seeds of disease.” So, things that will put you back in touch with those emotions created early on in childhood, that have never been really expressed and “transformed” in a balanced way, will be of great assistance, not only in the prevention of disease but in many cases, even of the reversal of it. That is always the first thing.

Secondly, again, there are many things that do exist upon your planet, now especially, in your present day and age that can create reversals of disease. There are certain magnetic therapies that are very beneficial in this sense, although again, you must be discerning in that it is the right material, of magnet, delivered in exactly the correct way according to the body’s electromagnetheric polarity fields, and not just, as you say, “any old magnet,” used “any old way.” There are a few companies that exist upon your planet that understand with clarity how to do this. You can do your research and you can find them. There are of course again, other kinds of therapies and meditations that can aid and assist in re-balancing and re-centering the body’s electromagnetheric field... bring you back to the center of yourself and reverse the concept of disease. But also, the process of simply using the disease, if it has been created in a positive and beneficial way, to learn from it, will in many cases no longer require the disease to remain. Because once you have learned why the disease is there and absorbed the information and integrated the information within the matrix of your consciousness, then the messenger can go on it's way. It has done it’s job.

There are certain natural herbs and food stuffs, again, “Organic” in nature, that have a great benefit, with the idea of reversal of many different kinds of diseases. Some of the natural oils that exist on your planet. Many of the herbs, in that sense, and many of the food stuffs that are natural have great, great clarifying properties, and realignment properties. For certain kinds of cancers the idea of the juices of carrots and kales. And the idea of watercress can be of great benefit in the strengthening of the system. Also, there are other techniques that take advantage of the idea of the natural substances, the enzymes, the amino acids, that exist in the body, that are designed specifically for the purpose of reversing the concept of disease. And if these are allowed to be toxin free, in other words, removed from the body, purified and put back in the bodysome of your medical practitioners are also doing. These can also eradicate the signs of disease within the body. You can also do this through some forms of genetic manipulation, although many of you don’t really know enough about that yet, to do it, in what might be called a clarifying or pure way. There are many approaches. But all of this comes down to the fundamental understanding that it is there for a reason. And if you can get in touch with that reason, which usually has to do with the idea of imbalance in definitions, in beliefs, in emotions, in energy, then, by rebalancing that, you re-balance the whole idea, the whole equation of yourself, and in so doing, you create yourself to be a frequency in which no disease can exist, by definition. Does any of this help illuminate the idea.

Q: Yes. There are some people though, that are a certain degree, and it’s difficult to reach them.

B: Yes. And that may be the way it needs to be, for them. Some individuals will insist on remaining diseased, no matter what. Because they may have too great a degree of fear, or they may simply have chosen that this is what they want to experience, and nothing’s going to change that for one reason or another. You can not necessarily always cure everyone, if they have their own reason for holding on to it. Do you understand? Some times, depending upon the psychological makeup, the emotional makeup, the belief system makeup, an individual may even go to a healer specifically for the purpose of proving to everyone that they can not be healed. Do you understand? It depends upon the individual, it depends upon the case study of each individual... the background, the reasons, the whys, the wherefores, for why they have concocted the disease.

But in many cases, many of the diseases are symbolically representative of the issues they are dealing with. Many homeopathic ideas are very strong in reversing the idea of disease, by rebalancing the system. But again, no matter what technique is used that may re-balance the system, whether direct “hands on healing” or through any other device that you may be more familiar with, in your typical allopathic procedures... no matter what it is, usually, if the core root cause of the imbalance, energetically, emotionally, has not been changed it will often come back. No matter what is done. Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does this help you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Why, thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Helping Others By Being True to Yourself
Q: I had a telephone call recently from a girl I met briefly about 12 to 14 years ago...
B: All right.
Q: ...and she went to a great deal of trouble to get my number and to locate and telephone...
B: Yes.
Q: I am not sure what the purpose is.
B: So?
Q: And I felt it was a cry for help.
B: All right. And so? Can you be of assistance?
Q: That’s what I’m wondering.
B: Wondering?
Q: Yes. I thought...I don’t understand what it is she wants.
B: Well, have you discussed it?
Q: Yes.
B: Nothing comes out that you term a specific idea?
Q: Things come out that I would have thought would have been a great problem to her. She’s been not out of the house for five years, and she expresses a great deal of fear.
B: All right. Perhaps some of the greatest assistance you can give to this individual is a lack of ambiguity. Be firm about the things that represent to you your point of view about the life style you prefer, what makes you happy, the things that you prefer to do. Simply act as a mirror, as a reflection for ideas that the other individual could incorporate into her life if she chooses to. Doesn’t mean she has to. But if someone reaches out to you, then they are reaching out to who you are. So be fully who you are. It doesn’t even mean that you have to, quote/unquote, specifically help them in any particular way. There does not have to be a particular methodology that you should be good at just because they found you. Being yourself is the methodology that is required to help them best. So when someone is looking for an answer from you, the only real answer you can give them is simply who you are.
You can suggest: "Well, if what you say is happening to you were happening to me, this is what I think it would represent; this is what I would choose to do about it; this is how I would choose to transform it – but that’s me."
"Now, you are you," you can tell this person. "And if I have been in some assistance in illuminating who you are, by telling you who I am and what I would do, then I am happy to have been of help. But I can only be of help by being who I am. I cannot be you."
"So I will assume that whether it appears apparent on the surface yet or not, who I am – because you found me and we found each other – somehow does make a difference in who you will now consider yourself to be from this moment forward. And that will have given you whatever it is you needed, even if I don’t know what it is you needed.”

Q: I see.

B: You do not have to have conscious analytical awareness of exactly what a person needs in order to help them in the way they need to be helped. Just by being who you are in the interaction with them will be what they need.

Q: Just let it flow, however it flows.

B: Yes. As long as you know you are being loving, using your integrity, and simply suggesting to them options and points of view – not saying, “You ought to do this, and you’d better do that.”

But simply saying, this is who you are, this is what you would do; this is what would allow you to feel complete within yourself, integral within yourself, if you were in their shoes. And then allow them to extract from what you have shared with them what they need out of it, for you cannot tell them what they need; only they can tell themselves what they need out of what they got from you.

Q: I see. She might not even know herself what she got.

B: She may not know herself at this point.

Q: All right. I couldn’t seem to extract or find out exactly what it was.

B: You do not necessarily need to. Just be the fullest you you can be, and that individual will get what they need out of having contacted you.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Well, thank you very much for being so helpful. Sharing!

Helping Others By Being True to Yourself

You have a collective consensus reality and so do other beings, and when their collective reality is in a higher frequency then yours and it starts to interact with yours, it can feel a little overwhelming. In other words, one whole collective reality is being dissolved by another to create a third reality, in which both can exist. But because of the way you have been taught to think about yourselves as physiological beings, you experience this dissolution of your universal reality as actual death of the ego structure. And so you go into survival, panic, fear mode, because you think you’re dying. You’re not, but that’s what happens. The more you allow yourselves to expand and know that you are the reality in which you think you exist, the easier it will be for you to assimilate and accommodate other realities as an equal. And then you will not have that basic fear. Any other fears that remain may simply be reflective of your own individuated agendas, of definitions you have within yourself that need to be integrated within your understanding of who and what you are. But yes, you will deal with them as they come up, be open to it.
Hitler’s Death

Q: It has been said that Hitler died in 1980 in Hawaii?

B: No! The entity died in your time frame, as you understand it at the end of the Second World War, and remained in what you call spiritual hibernation until relatively recently, when it reincarnated, as we have said, as seven distinct children. Six of which will die before the year 2000, and one of which may choose to go on and actually become very helpful to your planet now that it has rebalanced the energy that impacted it upon death when it was bombarded with all the energy of the acts that it created.
Holistic Healing

Something…maybe you can help me…it seems to me that I know of individuals, and probably many more than just the ones I know of, who have developed tremendously beneficial things that that could be a tremendous benefit for humanity, in terms of various cures for things like cancer and many diseases.

B: Yes.

Q: And although a few people happen to find out about them, the fact is that these people and their techniques have been crushed…

B: We understand that.

Q: …and removed in effect, physically speaking anyway, from the earth, and I don’t understand the idea, as you might put it, or the logic of why is that happening? Why is this potential there and then crushed? So that, for example, if I’m right, then many, many people have been dieing needlessly…and there it is.

B: Yes. Perhaps you should consider yourself fortunate that you DON’T understand the logic of that. Because the idea obviously is that it is being done out of fear. There is a greater disease on your planet than any physical disease and that is the disease of fear, and it is taking over in a lot of areas. The idea is that many of these things as you say, are suppressed, because individuals know that if they are not they believe that somehow it threatens what they have become to be taught is their power, their position. Not understanding that in actual fact, it will empower everyone even more greatly than they can imagine, because they have never been taught to understand POWER in that way. That’s why they are doing it, if you simply want a reason for understanding their reasons. It is because they are very much afraid because they have been taught to think that the self-empowerment of more people will actually take their power away, instead of understanding that they will actually benefit. They haven’t been taught how to understand that connection.

Now, still at the same time there are many things that can be done, it is never, in that sense, at least not yet, too late. And there are many, many things that you can simply support, either with your voice, with your writing, with your presence – but do it in a loving way. Do it in a loving way. Have respect for everyone. Otherwise, all you are going to be doing is reinforcing their own negative energy, if you try to attack them or battle them, or in any way, shape or form, accuse them or blame them. All you’re going to do is to be adding more negative energy to the pot.

However, again, again, again, again, fundamentally, please understand, all disease begins literally from that – dis-ease. Emotional imbalance, consciousness imbalance. Devaluation of the self. Negative definitions of the self. Negative pictures of the self. Negative self-image. All disease starts from that no matter what physiological causes may ultimately be attached to them as mechanisms of convenience to explain it in the physical realm; to express it in the physical realm.
However, because you are physiological, there are also, from time to time certain things, as you say, that do come to bear that are a reflection of a holistic approach, a loving approach that are certainly capable of functioning as cures because they are representative of a holistic understanding. And, thus, an individual that participates in that cure will be cured because they are coming into it with an understanding of holism.

But again, it takes your action, your willingness to stand up for those things in a loving way; to spread the word that they exist, to work to allow more of these things to be available to individuals. And it takes a deep understanding of what is going on with disease, to also understand that in many cases many of these cures, even in and of themselves, don’t necessarily have to exist if an individual will simply follow the basic fundamentals of removing the toxins from the system. Breathing, getting enough water. Eating properly, in that sense, just to put this in colloquial terms – exercising. All those basics, allow the cells to flush the toxins. That alone, removal of stress from your lives, that alone would most likely account for about 99, 9999999 per cent of all diseases you have. And they would vanish if you would just do those things, but you don’t.

Now, in terms of the idea of what you term to be cancer therapy, there is a very beneficial one that now exists upon your planet and it would be well worth supporting; and there is a lot of momentum on your planet at this time, in supporting it, it has a lot of momentum behind it to be supported. You can add your voice to it if you already haven’t done so. But remember do it in a respectful and loving way, and this is what is called the antineoplasm therapy. Are you familiar with this?

Q: Yes. Yes. Texas, the man in Texas.
B: Yes. This is very beneficial because exactly of how it is constructed and what it is doing. Because this individual has understood the concept of holism: that the body itself can do what it needs to do if the body is allowed to operate on a holistic level.

So this individual takes the natural amino acids, the natural enzymes of the body that may be lower in vibration than they ought to be, purifies them, steps up their vibration, puts them back in the body, and, then of course the body has enough of the appropriate vibration in the areas that it is designed to have those vibrations in, to simply allow the cancer to be far off, to be rebalanced. This is a holistic approach, a very, very, very simple correct and holistic approach, and that is why it is successful.

So put your voice to this, get involved, but do it in a loving and respectful way and the strength of these ideas will grow. But do not put energy into the panic of the idea that things are being suppressed and crushed. Because then you only support the side you say you are not on, by buying into the fear, by buying into the panic, that it is too late. You understand?

Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Absolutely. Thank you.
B: Thank you!
Holograms and Consciousness

Q: Does the technology of holograms accurately describe how the physical universe is constructed?

B: It is a good analogy. It is not, let us say, completely precise, but it is an analogy that will do – in the sense that every single point contains the information of the whole.

Q: Okay. But the hologram implies space, and something projected from a cause point and hitting a reference wave, and something is manifested...

B: Yes.

Q: Okay. Is this sun... I believe that the chakras would be personal portals of projection. Is that accurate?

B: In a sense they are gateways, doorways that link up all levels and dimensionalities of your being.

Q: Would the sun be the projection point for this Solar System? Would that...?

B: Yes.

Q: And our personal reference waves would hit that and create our own...

B: Yes.

Q: ...on the backdrop of that more objective...

B: Yes.

Q: Okay. What brings in the limiting factors? In other words, what brings in limitation, where my hand is stopped by another object, is there...?

B: It is the picture... you have taken. It is your source idea.

Q: Okay, where do those exist? Can you describe the mechanics a little better? Where do those ideas...?

B: Outside, in a sense, of what you are calling the physiological hologram.

Q: Okay, so there are mutable layers affecting this...

B: Yes.

Q: There is the level of the idea, and above that would be the level of the viewer and so forth – layers on a film projecting on to this thing, right?

B: So to speak. It is what we refer to as the template. It is within your consciousness.

Q: Okay. Where is the consciousness that’s...?

B: Nowhere and everywhere.

Q: Nowhere and everywhere.

B: This is not something that is designed by space/time. Space/time is a product of consciousness; consciousness is not a product of space/time.

Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Holographic Crucifixion

Q: A couple of years ago I read “Bringers of the Dawn,” by Barbara Marciniak…
B: Yes.
Q: …there was one segment in the book where they say that the crucifixion of Jesus was a hologram.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, that completely goes over my head, I can’t fathom this, how would that have been?
B: What you are interpreting as a hologram is simply that it meant it was a multidimensional event that was perceived in a number of different ways, depending upon the direction from which the perceiving was done. It took place multidimensionally, simultaneously, in a variety of expressions, not viewed in the same way from all places. Holographic simply means it represents the totality of all in one spot, and when viewed from a particular perspective will be seen in a different way, according to those perspectives, assumptions, expectations, belief systems, so on and so forth. Does that make any more sense to you?
Q: Yes, that does, I can grasp that.
B: You understand the physical nature of what you call a physical hologram on your planet, a three-dimension picture?
Q: Well, I do, yes. I do understand that.
B: Do you understand that you can store a whole set of images on the same piece of film?
Q: Yes.
B: If you view a hologram from one direction, you will see one kind of object, if you change the angle slightly you see a completely different object in the same piece of film. That is what is meant by holographic structure. Everything that does exist, all exists within that one spot. You can access different aspects of the totality, depending upon your approach to it, from that one spot. In ancient times the analogy of the hologram was called in your language, in your culture, Indra’s net. Indra’s net was a net of pearls, perfectly round reflective pearls. If you think about it for a moment, you realize that each and every pearl, by definition, must contain the reflection in its surface of every other pearl in the net. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you see how that can be so?
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, all you need to do to understand the information of all the pearls of the net is simply to refer to the reflections in one pearl. You don’t have to go all over the place, if you just go with one pearl, depending upon the angle you are looking at it, you will receive or access the information of all the pearls in the net, that is what is meant by the holographic structure.
Just the crucifixion, as an event, along with many other events in your reality – in fact in all reality, every event – but the crucifixion and many other events that had a great degree of momentum and potential energy behind it, a great degree of consciousness reverberation and impact behind it, a great degree of a mass elective consciousness behind the creation of that event – had the ability to reflect any aspect in the totality of creation in that one event.

And was in fact experienced by different individuals in completely different ways, depending upon who they were as an individual. Some individuals actually saw that personage of Jesus die on the cross and that was it. That was it. Some individual’s saw that personage convert into light right there on the cross and disappear, and a variety of perceptions in-between – each was a reflection of the individuals viewing it. Make sense?

Q: Yes.
B: Does that help answer the question and illuminate the mechanism a little bit more clearly for you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you very much.
Hopi Dimensional Doorway

Q: Was the destruction of Lemuria, 75,000 years ago, connected with the altering of the earth’s axis and what we call the Ice Age?

B: To a degree there was that time frame coincident. Understand it would simply have represented the vibrational patterns of your earth crystal as it was going through a very natural cycle, in that way. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: It was not then the entire idea of what you term to be destruction in the 75,000 year time frame, but it also extended to the 50,000 year time frame of your years ago. This then was the origin of what you now hold to be your present existence upon this continent that you have termed North America... to be the injection of that civilization you recognize to this day, in that way, as to what you call the Hopi. You follow me?

Q: Yes, and is that the epicenter or say, the center of where the center of the earth comes out, where the Hopis...

B: In an allegorical astral sense, not in what you would term a literal configuration. But they will be able to make literalness of it, in that they have already deemed that their reality already exists both in the physical and the dream state naturally.

Q: Do the beings that live in the center of the earth... if there are such occurrences... is this where the Hopis... is there contact to the surface?

B: Again, understand, in that way, that what you express to be the existence of consciousness within your planet, will for the most part be of extra dimensional sense. Therefore, there will be a doorway, in that way, within that civilization you call Hopi, and they will have passage through. But understand, it is not as you understand it exactly, literally, physically, that they exist in that way inside your planet. Although there are pockets in your terminology of existence in that way, under the surface of your planet – but it is not as widespread in a physical sense as you think. There is in a sense a widespread existence in an astral sense, in an extra dimensional sense. This then can form the transformation, in that way, through the doorways as they are created by the mass consciousness of any particular culture within your entire civilization. And as such, they give themselves free access to these dimensional realms, to these contacts with other civilizations, other consciousnesses, which are, in that way, said to exist within the surface of your earth, in another dimensional sense. Because they allow themselves to exist – the Hopi, that is – allow themselves to exist halfway between physicalness and non-physicalness as a natural state of being. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Is that the same consciousness that the present civilization, as we know it, progressed towards?

B: Yes, in a sense this it what is defined as the idea of transformation from third density to fourth density awareness. In that you will allow the heretofore self-created separation between your physical reality and non-physical reality to become removed and be blended in consciousness. So that you will begin to live, physically live, your dreams. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
"Once upon a time" as you call it in the fairytales, or approximately 4.6 billion years ago, the original information of your solar system was: your Sun as the central Star; Mercury; Venus; Mars, (no Moon), a fourth planet larger than Earth (which did not exist at this time) with many moons including a large moon; Jupiter, Saturn trio ring), Uranus, Neptune and the planet you now understand to be Pluto was a satellite of Saturn at that time. So in the beginning this was the arrangement of the solar system.

Approximately four billion years ago, a planet from another location came into your still-forming solar system, in a retrograde orbit. Intruding into your solar system in the opposite direction, it had a great impact upon the arrangement of the world in the following way. This incoming planet was also surrounded by it’s own Moons. It arrived in approximately the same orbit as the fourth planet that then existed - the one beyond Mars (Mars at that time was the third planet) shattered this planet creating what you now understand to be the Asteroid Belt. The molten remains cooled once again, moved into a tighter orbit around your Sun and became what you now understand to be your planet of Earth, and brought with it the large Moon of the fourth planet and that is why you still have your large Moon in orbit around your Earth.

This explains why your Moon is so large compared to the parent planet. Your Moon originally formed around a larger planet of which your Earth is only a part. The Earth is approximately 67% of the former planet. The water came with you, in that there was much water on this planet, but it reformed over time into a spherical shape once again and the rift where the shadowing took place is what is now become your Pacific Ocean area. You will remember that all of your land was on one side of your planet at one time, and through continental shift, moved and closed in around the Pacific Ocean making it much smaller than it used to be. But the Pacific Ocean is basically the site where the impact occurred that shattered that planet into the asteroid belt and your earth.

This planet was also responsible for shattering the Moons, causing Saturn’s rings, and for turning Uranus on it’s side, giving it a very highly inclined axis, and also through gravitational perturbation wrested Pluto away from Saturn, placing it in it’s own orbit as an independent world.

This planet which caused all of this re-arranging is still part of your solar system now in a highly elliptical orbit. It is in that sense your tenth planet, but it’s orbit encompasses what you would call 3,600 years. Every 3,600 hundred years it comes back around. It is approximately half-way, 1800 years before it re-enters the immediate neighborhood of your solar system.

Thus the solar system as you generally understand it was created in that formation.

Now let’s skip ahead through much time and let us also talk about a parallel lineage, for you must understand that not only are we going to talk about what is happening in your solar system, but also your connections to other solar systems and how you came to be in the solar system you are in. So we will call your solar system "Lineage A" - let us talk about other solar systems all I encompassed under the title "Lineage B". Lineage B involves what you might call Lyran system; Pleidian system: Orion system and so forth.

These ideas simply can be expressed as the fact that there were other civilizations that existed in these other systems. Many of you now existing on earth are reincarnationally those same beings that existed in those other systems.

There are many things happening in those other systems; many other kinds of civilization, interactions and encounters. A primary thread that ran through some of those ancient systems, especially the Orion system, was of experiences of great suppression, oppression and negativity. As those systems fought amongst themselves as certain beings fought for freedom, they were in many cases destroyed in their fight and sought to reincarnate in other systems that were of a similar vibration in which they could process the ideas of their ancient negativity, eventually aspiring to transform that negativity into positive understanding and creation. Eventually it was found that your Earth system would suit that purpose, but not a quite yet.

First we must go back to the understanding that, as these other systems, the Pleidian system etc. began to disperse themselves out amongst the stars. Eventually several forms of them also came after many millennium to your Earth system and did inhabit many of the planets that existed there in it.

The Moon, the satellite of this large planet that caused all the early disruption, was a perfect place for some inhibition and because of it’s highly elliptical orbit, it allowed for a vast amount of scientific study of both the inner and outer solar system, and allowed for direct observations that cannot be made by existing on some of the planets that are confined to the more regular orbit around your Sun, so bases were set up there on the satellites of that large planet with the highly elliptical orbit.

In time, both of the bases on Mars and the two Martian Moons, Formos and Dymos (remnants of the original impact that created the asteroid belt) were gravitationally moving into orbit around Mars to create certain type of stabilization which was necessary at the time for the planet, and also for resources - water and mineral content for certain space stations that were created at that time. We are talking many 100s and 1000’s of years ago.

There were certain things that were occurring on different planets at that time - certain destabilization of races, of environment, of atmosphere. The offshoot, as you say, of the being that visited this system so long ago could be early Pleidian alien beings, although that is not entirely accurate since a whole other division from the lineage system went into the Pleidians, but the original ancestors are the same.

Moving Into your Earth system, they have many requirements for minerals or material which can be found on our earth. We are rich in many of these, especially gold - not for economic purposes but scientific purposes. We an yet to discover there is a strong energy connected to gold that has a lot to do with the idea of longevity and bringing higher energies into the physical plane. It was understood and known to these ancient beings called Anunnaki.

The Anunnaki thus mined your entire solar system for valuable materials, especially the Earth, but in time they came to understand that they did not wish to do this themselves.
They came to the point of realizing that they could create, with their genetic science, a group of beings out of the indigenous humanoid apes that existed upon your planet through evolution; they could create a group of beings that would, in that sense, act as workers for them.
In thus taking some of their own genetic stock, and materials and in fact creating cross-breeding with the apes, they created what we call our Homosapian, approximately 300,000 years ago, in the area we now call our South East Africa, where most of the gold was being mined, and thus they saw no reason to set up the genetic experiments in any other area.
These beings were created originally to the idea of help mates or workers, although you might find that in your modern understanding these may be slaves, but the idea was not so much one of slavery, but simply of the idea of work mates and help mates for physical labor.
Nobody was mistreated, but it was recognized by the Anunnaki, that this still was a situation that was unfair to these beings, now that they thought in that sense and realized themselves as self aware beings, it was not in the eyes of the Anunnaki a fair thing to do.
So they actually continued the genetic experiments to the point where these, beings had full self-realization, and they did inquire after their own independence.
This caused many difficulties in the past, but it was recognized by the Anunnaki, that they could do nothing else but allow a type of sovereignty for those beings, having a responsibility now for creating that race of beings, to guide them to true adulthood.
While they no longer acted in that sense as masters, they did for quite some time, oversee as guides.
Now many of your early, early people did relate to these Anunnaki in the form of gods or kings but this was mostly for the point of guidance, for you were at that time a very young race.
Now as soon as that race was created, souls from many of the ancient systems began to incarnate into them and thus a bridge was formed reincarnationally between many of those ancient systems from where the Anunnaki had come to your Earth system.
Over the years it was recognized that one of the things the Anunnaki did not instill into you genetic structure was the extreme Longevity of the Anunnaki.
It is true that many of your ancient human beings did exist for several hundred years, and in time some of this has worn down to your present life span, although you are on the upswing once again, but you must realize the Anunnaki were able to live for 1000’s and 1000’s of years, and thus were looked upon as gods in that sense, as what was assumed to be an immortal race - immortal in that sense of exceptionally long lived.
You have that capacity as well however those genetics has not been planted within you, for they didn’t at that time wish you to equal their ability. This is what we understand to be our biblical ideas. God made you his image and in this way did not want you to be equivalent to the Gods.
All of this is simply an analogy to the creation of your race genetically in that sense. This is not to say that there is not an infinite creation, but many of your earliest religious text are not referring to the idea of the initial creation of soul but the actual remembrance of the physiological genetic creation of your species by other beings.

It is very important at this point in the narrative to understand that just because there was involvement genetically in the creation of your physiological body, this makes you in no way, shape or form, any less than other beings in creation.

You are equal in every way. It does not matter how your body was created, your soul is the same as all other souls. Always remember that, and never think of yourself as owned by anybody in that sense, or controlled, or less than anyone in that sense, just because your particular physiological history might contain a bit of tampering by some other beings.

You do the same thing as you procreate. It’s the same thing as how you create your own babies; it’s just a same slightly different methodology. It is not in that sense the methodology by which you arrive at the body that determines your worth, but simply your true inner self.

After a time, there was created on Earth many civilizations as human beings learned from the Anunnaki their technology, then understand the civilizations of Mu and Atlantis, but then reincarnational influxes from the ancient Orion systems of negativity did cause many discrepancies, divergences and dichotomies within the collective consciousness of humanity. Sides were borne. Issues became split, with conflict about positive and negative realities and which was preferred to be created.

Because of those issues, because of those wars that were created, many of these civilizations did perish and during that time of the perishing of Atlantis which is the analogy of your original sin – the Anunnaki removed themselves from the Earth and became content to observe you from afar.

As we restabilise ourselves after these destructions your will to be left alone but you see the genetic program were to continue and in this way did the Anunnaki continue by utilizing their own genetic materials.

They created yet again another race of workers as the Grey beings - they are of your own human stock since you are Anunnaki stock - they are of a similar stock genetically, but they are in that sense matured fetal forms who have not been permitted to go to adulthood.

It was felt that this would be a better way to create the idea of help mates without necessarily creating also at the same time within them the desire to function autonomously from the Anunnaki.

So the Greys, while true sentient beings, are almost in a sense type of true biological robot. They do not really understand the concept of feeling, although they do understand the concept of mentality. Now the idea to understand is that the genetic programs of humanity did still continue, but it was the Greys that were acting as helpmates to the Anunnaki, who allowed the genetic program to continue.

So your interaction with these genetic programs at this time is mostly, and has been for many 1000 of years, through the Grey beings; the helpmates of the Anunnaki, except now and then, when many of you will remember in your experiences with what you call these abductions, or what we prefer to call detainments, will remain from time to time, that the Grey beings, while they may be conducting the abductions, are overseen by more humanoid looking beings. These are the Anunnaki, your true forefathers and mothers.

In this way you recognize that the Greys and humanity are cousins of a type and what the Anunnaki are now recognizing in their own evolution, is that they are now helping to guide both humanity and the Greys to a new level of evolution and that both strains will benefit from the interbreeding with each other, for there are problems on both sides that were not completely resolved in the initial genetic program. Thus, by allowing the interbreeding of the Greys and the humans as they exist, strengthening of the entire genetic pool is created, and also within that strengthening, are actual genetic alterations to allow for the type of changes that necessary for you to go into, and for the Greys to go into fourth density reality.

There are things you need to learn from the Greys and visa versa. The idea of individuality and emotionality are things that the Greys do not understand, and I need to understand in their genetic make-up.

The idea of working together as a collective is something humans need to understand a little bit more strongly, and are acquiring that to some degree, through their interactions with the Greys and so there is being created now, in the ancient Anunnaki program, a hybrid race.

The Essassani are, a combination of the Greys and the human species on your planet. There are many Planets that exist contemporary to our time frame, where there are these hybrid races not only Essassani.

In our contemporary exchange with Earth; in our interactions with you in the future, your planet is also one of the other planets wherein resides beings recognizable by you, as hybrids, recognizable as cousins to us.

You are in many ways therefore, our ancestors. You are our mothers and fathers. We are your children.
HELLO MOM AND DAD!

How To Tell if Channeling is Genuine or Fraudulent

Q: A couple of brief questions. Can you give us some means of distinguishing between genuine and fraudulent beings who play this role that the channel plays. You know, channeling.

B: We will make an attempt to do so. However, the terminology of "genuine and fraudulent" may be quite touchy, as you say. We can however guide you to the idea of what is positively or negatively oriented, one way or another.

Usually you will find that those, in your terminology, that are "genuine" will usually have a positive desire, a positive intention behind them. The signs and the signals to look for are as follows: if an individual is focused upon saying, "You must do this! You must do that! I have the answer and this is the only way." you are probably, not absolutely, but probably dealing with, what you would, call an "ego structure" aspect of the individual present before you.

If however, the energy coming through acknowledges the validity of all belief systems and is simply sharing information for the purpose of sharing, for the purpose of expanding, for the purpose of learning in a beneficial and positive way, that makes no demands, that does not want to take your power from you and in your life for you, in all probability, no matter what it is, it is positive and therefore a "genuine" experience, whether it actually is someone else or not.

That is the criteria we would suggest you look for. This does not necessarily mean that individuals on your planet or that your own consciousness cannot come up with either idea. It does not prove, as you say, one way or another that just because you are hearing something positive that it actually has to be another consciousness. However, we would simply go by this particular framework, if it is self-empowering to you, if it gives you the power to make the decisions you need to make in your life, to know that you are in control of your reality, then it is a genuine experience that can be of benefit to you. If it seeks to run your life, if it seeks to drain your power and control the reality around you, then, in that sense, it would be called "fraudulent," no matter what it is. Does that make sense?

Q: Great. Now the hardest question.

B: Oh! Hardest question. All right.

Q: Maybe we find out that the channel is indeed a sincere person and he is in telepathic contact with a being many light years away named "B."

B: Now that is not my name and I will explain that in a moment. But go ahead.

Q: That’s not relevant either.

B: All right.

Q: The interesting question would be, and this is why it’s a hard question, from your perspective, what are the chances that your motives are not entirely pure?

B: From my perspective? It could be 100% that they are not pure. It could be 100% that they are. It could be anything in between. This is why we say, there is nothing that I can prove to you. It is up to you to prove to yourself whether the information we share with you works in your life or not. We always leave it up to you.

We can guarantee the following thing and this is the only thing we can guarantee: if what we share with you works for you in a positive way and you use it, you will see a change for the positive in your life. In that sense, you will be proving my validity to yourself by utilizing the information in whatever way works best for you. But that is the only way, at this time, that you can prove the idea. There is absolutely no way, shape or form that we insist that this information must be used by you, and that’s the only validity, and the only proof we can give you at this time. It is up to you to decide whether or not what you are hearing is something you can assimilate, or can assist your life.

I could be an absolutely cantankerous and rotten individual as far as you know. However, I will leave it up to your sense of discernment to decide for yourself with your own abilities what the information we are sharing can or cannot do in your life. And that is the best I can do.

Q: I’ll close with two really simple questions, after that tough one. My last question, which you may not have heard was, even if you do exist, is there a way to detect whether you really are a well-meaning, purely motivated being? Now, the easy questions are these: We’re all familiar with new-age doctrines. I wonder if, in your view, any of the current new-age doctrines are seriously misguided?

B: Yes. Many misunderstandings exist, many misinterpretations exist. For you see, much of what you call, new-age doctrine is patterned on old-age styles of approaching things. And therefore, many of the interpretations are still old-age interpretations, even though they may be, shall we say, dressed in new-age apparel.

The idea can be explained perhaps as follows: for thousands of years your society has been taught to think in certain ways, along certain lines. Many new ideas that come in may be being passed and filtered through the old belief systems without conscious understanding that it is being done, and perhaps, being interpreted along old fashioned ways of thinking. For example, an individual may have been brought up to believe, "Change is something that can only occur when trials by fire are present.” “You have to really break everything down and tear everything apart in order for any real change to occur.” “You have to really suffer and you have to really struggle in order to amount to anything.”

Now, if that is something that has been ingrained in that individual and, if and when they allow themselves to perceive that a new energy is taking place in the world, that new recognitions are going on, that changes are occurring all around them, they may say, "Well, I’m sensitive to the fact that these changes are coming." However, their unconscious and subconscious minds may fill in the picture to say, "And the only way those changes can come is through destruction, through fear, through trial by fire.”

Therefore, they will say, "This is the way it must happen" because that’s the only way they have been taught is the way it can happen, by earthquakes, fires, floods... trials of deservability.

So, there can be a true sensing going on and they can be very sensitive to the fact that certain things are about to happen. But they may be interpreting those changes in the mode that they are used to thinking in without even recognizing that they are doing it. And they "take it for gospel," as you say, simply because the mechanism of applying meaning to situations is so ingrained, is so automatic with all beings within a particular reality, they may not even realize that they are assigning their own interpretation to which may not be the case. Does that help?
Q: That’s specific. Yeah, that’s helpful. My last question is this: This has all been very one-sided, you’re always telling us things. Maybe you came here in some degree of ignorance and curiosity too?
B: We’re always curious.
Q: So is there anything we can tell you?
B: Well, all right. Can you tell me why individuals, because this is something we truly do not understand, even though we do have some comprehension of the mechanisms and belief systems that created it, why do individuals upon your planet truly insist on not believing that they are deserving of anything they can imagine? But this is something in all honesty that really does puzzle us. Because you see, in all of the civilizations we have encountered, of course all civilizations are unique, but your civilization is one of the most highly focused in certain ways that we have ever encountered. And one of the most highly focused ideas we have seen in your civilization is the idea, the insistence, of giving away your power. The idea that you are very willing, over and over again, to believe what someone else tells you other than what you know is true for yourself. That is why we always...always, in all of these interactions outline from the beginning, you are never expected to believe anything we say, just because we said it.
The idea is that we have noticed a strong tendency in your society to lock onto things, or just the opposite, to shy away from things because of what you think you must absorb, one way or another. We really have found it quite mesmerizing; really have found it quite puzzling. And it has taken us quite a long time to even have gained the glimmer of understanding we do have as to what the mechanism is that creates an absolute insistence on the part of your species to keep yourself at the lowest common denominator you can imagine, rather than allowing yourself to truly be inspired by your existence, and rise to your full heights as you could.
Q: I’ll try to answer to that. My guess is it’s something like this: we develop habits that are tied very closely to our physical bodies, which then give rise to an illusion that our ego is tied to our body, and produces with that a habit, a kind of sleeping state, which blinds me and all of us to the possibility that if we awakened, we might become more aware...of our feelings.
B: All right. Would you please define habit.
Q: A habit is a repeated tendency, tied to the state of the body to behave in certain ways without the benefit of awareness.
B: A tendency, you are suggesting therefore a type of momentum that occurs?
Q: Exactly.
B: All right. From our point of view, this momentum, this habit, as you call it, can only occur when there is an unawareness of the habit?

Q: Exactly.

B: Then once there is awareness of the habit, it should no longer occur. Is that correct?

Q: True.

B: Is this what you actually see happening upon your planet?

Q: Well, not really. Not until we actually choose to do it for ourselves, until we decide to act upon that understanding.

B: All right. We thank you for the clarification. But let me say this, it is not in any way, shape or form critical that your society interacts with us. That is not the end all, be all of the idea of why we are communicating with you. We are not the most important thing, you are. On your world, your planet is the most important thing to you. And when you, as a society, at the risk of me sounding preachy, begin to allow yourselves to truly live up to your full potential, you will co-create with us a vibrational frequency that will create a middle ground, a meeting space in which your frequency and our frequency can come together in a compatible format.

You see, you must meet us half way. The dimension in which we exist, from your point of view, is rather ethereal in nature, rather dream-like in nature. And that is why it’s actually simpler for us to contact you through the dream aspect of your consciousness, rather than physically materializing in your world. It can be done and it has been done. But it is actually not as easy to do, because we have to lower our vibrational frequency down so far, we have to solidify ourselves so far in order to materialize in your planet. It is actually easier to touch you on a mental level first, because that is where you are closest to the frequency in which we naturally exist. What to us is our physical, solid, material reality, to you, are the stuff dreams are made of.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. Sharing!
Humans Coexisting with Hybrids

B: 2115 is representative of a time in which the full interaction and existence, and coexistence of hybrids upon the earth will begin along with human... around that timing as we read the probability charts now, so to speak, this is when it will be the beginning of the coexistence of hybrid civilizations and human civilizations coexisting upon the earth simultaneously. So that by our contemporary time this will have been going on for a little while.
Hummingbird Symbology

Q: I seem to have a fascination with hummingbirds.
B: Oh, you do? And how many others do also?
Audience: Me, me.

B: All right. Understand, many individuals, of late, as you say in your terms of time, of late, have had what they term to be encounters or fascinations or fixations upon that idea. Recognize, in this way, that this will be a symbol within the mass consciousness to represent the accelerated rate of time which you are now creating for yourselves. What you term to be that creature, the hummingbird, exists at an accelerated rate of perception. This will be symbolic of the energy now being utilized by the individuals in your civilization as they allow their momentum to increase, as they allow the integration of all the different levels of their consciousness to then manifest and add to the acceleration of their own growth at this time, as it pertains to the overall transformation taking place upon your planet. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. Does that mean that they perceive themselves to be moving slower than we perceive them? Are things a little more casual than what they appear to us?
B: They perceive you to be moving slower.

Q: All right, great. Does that mean that for those of us who are conscious of this transformation into fourth density, that we will be viewing those around us who are not moving quite as fast as us, to be moving slower?
B: In some senses, yes; there may be an opportunity to actually physically manifest a literal translation of this symbol, but for the most part it will simply seem to be that the situation, the environment and the individuals around and about you will look... now in a sense, if you take my meaning ... somewhat "flattish," two dimensional. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Your reality in that way will seem to be a projection, a little bit more of an illusion; it will seem to operate in another density level, it will begin to be perceived almost as not being real. This will be more likely the perception you will have, rather than the actual slowing down of ideas.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Hummingbirds and Owls

Q: First of all, I want to tell you how grateful I am for these sharings. And my love to all of you.
B: Our love to you, and our appreciation for your willingness to co-create these interactions.
Q: I want to ask your reflection on a prop that seems to reappear in my life quite frequently.
B: All right.
Q: The last Christmas, unbeknownst to two friends...
B: One moment. Before you continue, hear what you have said. It may be a prop that reappears, but that has nothing to do with the meaning behind the prop – which always can change.
Q: Right. It’s the symbology I’m interested in.
B: That is your doing. Continue.
Q: Okay. This last Christmas the first two presents I opened were both hummingbirds.
B: Ahhh!
Q: There was a little crystal hummingbird that you hang in the window, and then there was a wooden one.
B: Do you remember what we have said about the symbol of the hummingbird?
Q: I wanted to ask you about that again.
B: It represents your higher accelerated consciousness. For recognize that the hummingbird exists at a highly accelerated rate of perception.
To the hummingbird, (His voice getting very low and slowwww) you appear to be moving like this. The hummingbird, therefore, is your symbol of communication with your higher consciousness.
Many of you have had an increase in interactions with the symbol and the reality of the animal of the hummingbird in this fourth-density reality. For it represents your accelerated rate of awareness. It is you looking at yourself from your future self.
Q: Hmmm. I like that. Also, it triggered a realization that birds in general have played a very significant part in my life. I’ve raised some very unusual birds; and I’ve taken care of injured birds. It seems like I don’t have to look for them; they come to me. And I’ve had many kinds of birds, and I wonder if birds In general represent something... Oh, and when I was thinking about asking the question on the way here, this huge owl flew over the car. And I thought, “oh, how gorgeous,” and it turned around and flew back over again. I thought, "oh good, I have to ask this question." So, do birds in general symbolize something – that you see?
B: You already know in general what they can symbolize in terms of flight, in terms of freedom. You know that.
Q: Yes.
B: Each and every one of them can also be specific as a symbol. And there can be as many references to these symbols as there are individuals that perceive them.
The owl – not only the general idea of the wisdom you associate with it – but also the owl is a very spiritual symbol.

Q: Yes, I realize that. It’s a very ancient symbol, right?
B: It represents the idea purely of spirit itself. It is an astral symbol.

Q: I was going to ask you, because I’m real fascinated with astral travel...
B: Yes.
Q: have been.
B: Yes.

Q: And I’ve had some unusual experiences with that.
B: Become the owl and you will experience astral travel. Identify as it as completely as you can.

Q: I like that. Okay, one more question.
B: You have had this ability in other lives.

Q: I had the feeling that I had. Would it be the Egyptian life?
B: To some degree. But more specifically the idea of what you would call the idea of North and South American Indian.

Q: Oh that’s great... Macchu Picchu? Try it all here.
B: No comment.

Q: Okay; no comment. Okay, this last week I read Whitley Strieber’s new book, “Communion.”
B: Yes.

Q: And it’s about his encounters with extraterrestrials that he had all through his life.
B: Yes.

Q: And I experienced... you know, he speaks about his terror that he had about beings that were so different (from) human in form.
B: Yes.

Q: And following him through the book, I got to a point where I got so excited about the whole idea; and I realized that I’ve been very excited about that since I was much younger, when I used to run outside the house at night and say, "take me, take me." Everybody would laugh, and I thought that was great. But I was really a little afraid of it.

B: Yes. We assume that one of the portions that stood out strongly to you was the reference to the symbol of the owl.

B: Do you remember?
Q: You mean the wisdom, the spiritual, and the astral?
B: The idea that within that individual there was the memory of having seen an owl to replace...
Q: Oh, I remember.
B: actual memory of having seen the extraterrestrial.
Q: Right. His cover-up memory.
B: Yes.
Q: Very interesting.
B: Yes.
Q: Oh, I wanted to ask you; I got so excited that I started drawing a picture of what I thought this being – one of the main beings in the book would look like – and the more I worked on it the more excited I got. And it suddenly occurred to me – I thought, "maybe this is because I’m going to have an experience."
B: "Going" to?
Q: In this life. Well, that I’ll remember.
B: You have tapped into that energy many times. It is now recognition. Follow it. Follow it. This is the time for remembering lost time.
Q: I like that. Thank you very much.
B: We thank you.
Questioner: When a hurricane moves, does the eye move first and then the mass, or the mass and then the eye.

BASHAR: It is all one system. There is no first or second; it is all one thing.

Q: Do atomic blasts rip a hole in the dimensional fabric?
B: Yes.

Q: Is that one of the reasons that the ET’s are concerned about it?
B: Yes.

Q: Do volcanoes help vent some of the energy from some of the blasts?
B: Now and then this occurs, now and then it has just the opposite effect because of the imbalance that is created.

Q: Will we, within the remaining time period of this civilization, have the ability to colonize either Mars or the Moon?
B: Yes.

Q: And is there sufficient liquid and water on Mars that can somehow be used?
B: Yes. It is locked in underground chambers.
Hybrids/Future Selves and Black Helicopters

Q: You’ve talked about in the time, in the 2030 range, that we would be living with hybrids side by side in our civilization.

B: In and around your time of 2037, when your planet will join the Association of Worlds, will be a time when there will be certain numbers of hybrid beings living on your planet. It will have begun before that time to some degree, maybe even around your year of 2022, in that sense. But certainly, by my contemporary time frame of, what you would call, three hundred of your years from now the Earth is very heavily populated with human and hybrid species.

Q: Also, the black helicopters that have been seen since the fifties, are some of them our future selves?
B: No.

Q: So there is not an attempt to come back in time?
B: When you see a ship that is representative of what is ostensibly a future self, it will always been seen as a triangle. What you call the black helicopters sometimes are projections from ships, but not from ships of your future self. And sometimes they are literally machines that are controlled and owned by your own military. But your future selves will appear only as the triangular form, for now.
Hybrids and Shakana

Q: In your timeline, at the point in which he connects with you... that is the point at which the Greys got on a positive track? Is that accurate?

B: In some senses you are close to the mark, symbolically so, yes. But the idea more is that, whether described as positive and/or negative, it is representative of the timing when the transition had been made from what you typically called the Grey society into what you typically recognize to be the hybrid form. Does that help you?

Q: Yes, I’m going to think about it. And I have another question: in time, in the way that my culture counts time now...

B: Yes.

Q: ...when is your Shakana to be born?

B: One moment... remember, even though we have said in your timeframe we are three hundred of your years in the future, our dimension is, in your terms, ten times sped up, and we have experienced what you would consider to be three thousand years of evolution. You understand this first of all?

Q: Okay, I do now.

B: In that context then, understand that we are referring similarly to the concept of what you would call two thousand years ago, or if you wish, in your terms, one hundred years from now.

Q: So a hundred years from now.

B: Yes. It is parallel to the idea of the manifestation that you call the Christ Consciousness or the Buddha Nature in that sense, but it appeared, in that sense, in our world spirit in a different manifestation. After all, Christ Consciousness and Buddha Nature are nothing really but the reflection of the collective world spirit of your planet. Our Shakana is a reflection of the collective world spirit of our planet, by whatever name you wish to give it.

Q: So basically you are two hundred years after Shakana?

B: Yes.

Q: Is that correct?

B: Yes, but again, from my reckoning, two thousand years after Shakana, in my terms of timing.

Q: I understand. That’s because of the difference in the density?

B: Ten times the vibration, yes.

Q: Right. Okay, thanks.
Hybrids on Earth

Q: You have spoken of the hybrid children coming to earth.
B: Yes, I have.
Q: Will they be adults when they come?
B: No, not all of them, some of them will be more mature, but many of them will still be young.
Q: Like teens?
B: And younger.
Q: And younger?
B: Yes.
Q: How will they be cared for?
B: We would think very well by all of you. Since, they, in that sense, then will be your responsibility, since they are your children.
Q: Oh, I wondered about that: how old they would be?
B: Various ages.
Q: Won’t some of us be quite a bit older?
B: So?
Q: Okay.
B: Is that an impediment to you?
Q: Um, no.
B: It is not an impediment to them, why should it be to you?
Q: No, it is not an impediment.
B: Are there accidents?
Q: No.
B: Then if you find yourself in contact with such a child, will you not assume that it is something that obviously can be recognized as being capable of being handled by you?
Q: Yes, it was just kind of a surprise, because I guess...
B: Well, that’s what it’s meant to be.
Q: Oh my... and some of us are going to have more than one.
B: Yes, but they will belong to all of you.
Q: Oh, so we will be able to help each other?
B: Yes, for you will form communities for this purpose. There will be certain centers, shall we say, areas, communities, on your planet where the hybrid children will be, shall we say, placed.
Q: How long until...
B: Until such time as they can spread out more equally in your society. For, again remember, in our timeframe, which you would consider to be your future, hybrids and humans live equally on your planet of earth.

Q: But when they first come...

B: They will be sequestered in safe communities where they can be cared for, instead of being immediately exposed to the entirety of your planet. They will need to adapt and acclimate. There is much that they need to learn to understand their heritage from many different levels; and how to survive, in a sense, and behave, in a sense, and function in a sense, in the new reality that you are creating. They will help you and you will help them; they will bring you information, you will give them information. This is what is going on right now, but it will happen on your planet, again, most likely within the next couple of decades.

Q: Will the rest of the planet know that they are on the planet or not, at first?

B: Not at first, only the small communities that will be automatically and synchronistically attracted to create themselves for this purpose, but it will not be long; it will only be a matter of about five to ten of your orbits before the entire planet knows that they are there, once they are there.

Q2: I’m looking for other species on this planet and I know...

B: Other species of what?

Q: Other species from other universes that walk among us on this planet.

B: This is rare.

Q: Well...

B: Except, in the sense, that all of you, are also other species. You understand?

Q: I was under the impression... I thought that I have had occurrences in my life with people from other galaxies, twice. Once I was driving down the street and I encountered a man on the street, a homeless man who smiled at me, and it, like, went through my whole body and the energy stayed with me a whole day.

B: Yes, but this can be many different kinds of things. The idea is multifold and there are always, perhaps as many different reasons for what’s happening as there are happenings. In that instance, as we scan your energy, something took advantage of an opportunity to use that individual as a window, because of WHAT it would represent to you. It wasn’t that that individual was from elsewhere specifically, but that something from elsewhere came through that individual momentarily, because it was the right time for you to see it, the right window to shine through because of the synchronicity and the timing in your own life. You follow?

Q: Yes.

B: Doesn’t mean that it is, in that sense, native physically to somewhere else – that individual, physically on your planet. So there are a variety of ways that this can be experienced. Yes, from time to time, there will actually be encounters with extraterrestrials on your own planet. But the idea is that it is rare that we, of any variety, will be around your world on your surface for long durations of time. You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: But we will always utilize, and many different kinds of beings will utilize, whatever is the path of least resistance to allow the ball to fall into the appropriate slot. You follow?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: Does that help to explain it a little bit more clearly?
Q: Yes.
B: However, again, remember: at this time, almost all of you are already a genetic amalgamation of many different kinds of species. You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: So, in that sense, you are all, so to speak, patchwork beings. You understand?
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Hybrids on Earth
Hybrids/Future Selves and Black Helicopters

Q: You’ve talked about in the time in the 2030 range, that we would be living with hybrids side by side in our civilization.

"Hyperconductive and Superconductive States of Being"

Bashar: Channeled through Darryl Anka

Question: Can you delineate the difference between being superconductive and the idea that you have introduced us to, the idea of being hyperconductive?

Bashar: Yes, superconductive is the ‘effect’ in what you might perceive as one frequency, one direction of an energy, so to speak. Hyperconductivity is actually a natural state of the simultaneous existence of many different fields overlapping. What you actually call the superconductive field is actually a hyperconductive field; it is not really superconductivity until you collapse the field and get the unidirectional effect of the voltage or amperage out of it.

So superconductivity is the effect in one direction of the application of the energy in your physical domain; hyperconductivity is the field that has no particular direction to it, because it is composed of all directions of energy.

Q: So when we ingest the monatomics we become hyperconductive.

B: You actually become hyperconductive but can utilize that energy by collapsing the field within the body with your internal focus and create superconductive effects. Yes, you can direct the energy inward to superconductivity or outward superconductivity but generally in the natural state, in the relaxed state, it is a hyperconductive state because you are connecting to a multidimensional holographic structure simultaneously, in all directions at once. Does that make sense?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Thank you.

Q: Can you comment on children taking the monatomics and the relationship to their developing DNA structures?

B: You will find that many of the children being born on your planet now have a greater capacity to actually convert what they ingest into monatomics than you do. And, thus, you will find that they do not necessarily need quite as much, for they are already coming through in a DNA structure that acts as an automatic amplifier and fusion reactor, or a breakdown reactor, if you wish, to rearrange the elements that they do not ingest in their monatomic form. Their DNA structure is already very different, and, as we have said, the children that have been born, are not just a different generation, they are not just a different culture, they are a different species.
Bashar: . . . I resist nothing, I only simply fall into line with what is appropriate at any given moment as I sense it.
Identifying With A Civilization’s Vibration

B: Question.

Q: Yes, for my next life, if I were to want to choose to be on your planet, how would I go about that?

B: You will know when you die.

Q: (Oh, that’s a good one!)

B: You will simply match our vibration, and you will be there. I’ll tell you this: we will know you are coming. That is one of the differences between our family structures. Are you paying attention over there? What you consider to be your family structure when the entity is physicalized – we know exactly who and what and why they are there, and are in communication with them before birth.

Q: Well, if I chose to do that, I’d probably be a little different from you.

B: Why? When you match the vibration of that idea, you will be the same and equal to that vibration. You will not be of this vibration any more. Do you understand?

Q: Uh, I guess within certain…

B: If you were to, in a sense, physically be taken to our civilization, then you would be seeing yourself as somewhat different, since you would retain a great degree of identification with the vibration of this civilization. If you were to transfer there in terms of incarnation, you would only be able to do so by identifying with that civilization’s vibration and, as such, would be a part of that civilization. Realize, that you can only be a direct product – neither ahead, nor behind your time – of any particular civilization of which you are a part.

Q: In this case, then, if we could match the exact vibration of your planet... can it be done?

B: As I said, we are in very many ways your future selves.

Q: But do we have to experience death before we do?

B: No.

Q: Because we already have it. So if we would have the same vibration, then we’d be able to be here and be there at the same time.

B: In a sense; also, however, realize that you are still your own civilization. You can be then truly parallel – harmoniously. Realize, once again, that what you are now understanding is that every idea is a different vibration. When you have an idea that you consider to be more advanced than another idea, then that idea manifests in the future. Therefore, realize that any planetary civilization, which is in reality within your present – present time frame – will have an almost identical level of civilization. Do you follow me?

Q: (No answer.)

B: No. All right. Realize that you may view various eras in time as simply identification of a particular idea vibration. In other words, you would say, “Well, can you not be more advanced and exist in the same time?” And the answer in your terms is, not really. When you identify with a particular vibration, you will be of that vibration. If that vibration is translated into time as more advanced, it will be in the future. And as such, we exist with you, and in your future. Every planet that truly exists within your time frame, within your real present, as you understand your present, will be of the same civilization level.

Q: Mhmm.

B: In other words, allow me to ask you: if you were physically taken aboard our space craft, from your planet to our planet, that space craft – since space and time are the same thing – performs a maneuver, a phase shift through time as well as space. Once arriving on our planet, you would feel that you were still in the same time, but how would you know? Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. (Oh, yeah! Whew!)

B: You will be in your future, in a sense. Question.

Q: Yeah, I lost a space ship. I wonder if you would tell me where it went?

B: Did you leave it double-parked?

Q: No.

B: Perhaps it was towed away.

Q: No, it got stolen.
B: Oh, really!
Q: Yeah, it was quite a joke.

B: Quite a joke. Stolen by whom?

Q: I don’t know. Somebody that was on board, I assume.

B: Really! Why would they do that?

Q: I don’t know.
B: You don’t!

Q: No, I don’t.

B: Perhaps you are not willing to understand. Did you leave it running?

Q: Yeah.
B: Really!
Q: Mhmm.

B: Then you wished them to take it?

Q: No,
B: You’re sure?
Q: Yes.

B: Once again, realize nothing can happen to you.

Q: No, I didn’t want them to take it. It was my pride and joy.

B: One moment. Once again, understand that your reality is a direct product of your beliefs, even if that belief is from a fear. Therefore, if you create that fear, you are creating that belief and you are creating that reality. You are not a victim; there are no victims. This does not excuse what you term to be a perpetrator, since it is their responsibility to understand that they do not need to reinforce your victimhood.

It does not excuse them – does not excuse you. Always, between individuals in a common reality there must be a form of agreement, a form of creation. What you think you would like to have happen very many times has nothing to do with what you really believe should happen. Therefore, responsibility is just as much yours.
Q: That’s true.
B: All right. Go find it yourself. Question.

All right, I’ll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing our civilization to make this kind of contact and allowing us to make this transmission, this day of your time. Once again, each and every time this is allowed our civilization benefits by being allowed to experience all the different facets, all the different perspectives, all the unique points of view of your civilization. So, we thank you for this gift of sharing.

We would like to begin this transmission with the following notion that we will entitle, "Illumination." Many times, in your daily, lives when you are going about your business, as you say, and you come across ideas or feelings that allow you to feel a little bit heavy, a little bit weighed down, a little bit sad, then you can allow yourself an opportunity to do the following thing. You can allow yourself to remember, if you will, for a moment at these times, that you are made of light, literally, energy light. You are made of light. And as you think upon the idea that you are made of light, whether it be that you close your eyes and have a meditation, a momentary meditation or whether you simply remember some image or create some image in your mind that allows you to perceive yourself, your body, as if it is made of light. Each and every atom becoming more and more energetic, more and more illuminated, beginning to shine, to glow of its own accord with inner light. And as your body is composed of all of these small shining stars, you begin to see your entire body glow as one light. As you illuminate yourself you will increase, enhance, accelerate and uplift your energy.

Now, we do not tell you to do this for the purpose of ignoring, avoiding, denying or glossing over any important feelings you may have, be they sadness, sorrow, anger, fear. We do not mean for you to gloss these over and ignore them and press them down; we do not mean for you to suppress them. But the idea is that if you will allow yourself a moment of illumination to remember that you are a being of light, that you are having an experience that is simply being translated into energetic terms, then you can, by uplifting your energy in this way, by taking this moment of illumination, give yourself the ability, remind yourself that you have the power to deal with these feelings, with these circumstances, with these situations.

And also, the greatest benefit of allowing yourself to take this moment of illumination will be in putting yourself into a different state, a different frequency, a different vibrational reality and in so doing you will then create the ability to attract into your mind’s eye, into your imagination, courses that you can take, opportunities that you may not have seen before; options that you may not have been aware were available to you, in your previous state, perhaps of despair or sadness or confusion or anger or frustration or fear. These states, by definition, will prevent you from being capable of seeing how you can transform those states. Those states will only bring with them, by definition, options that are commiserate with those states, with those vibration levels, and so, they will have a tendency to perpetuate more fear, more frustration, despair, as you say depression.
But if you will take a moment to illuminate yourself and raise your energy vibrational level, in such times that these may occur to you, then you can, without denying the feeling that you are having, plug yourself into the vibrational state that allows you to see the difference between the vibrational state of joy and ecstasy and the vibrational state you may have been existing in. And give yourself an opportunity to tap into opportunities and circumstances, ideas, inspirations that can help you learn from the previous feeling. Help you figure out how to transform these ideas and give yourself new insights into what avenues, what paths, what actions to take that can bring you to a different level, a different plane. And allow you to reap the benefits of insight in understanding why those feelings exist. Helping you to get in touch with your definitions, so that you can change them because only from those definitions do feelings come.

So, give yourself an opportunity to do this, to play with your vibrational state, up and down the scale of frequency, up and down the spectrum, to go from the dark, slower vibrations, to the higher, lighter vibrations of energy. And without, as I have said, denying the feeling you had. Put yourself in two places, make a comparison remember the state you were in, remember the feeling you were having. But at the same time oscillate back and forth between that lower level and that higher level. So that you can give yourself the point of view, the parallax necessary, the perspective necessary to see from the higher position how you can deal more effectively, more creatively with the lower position, with the more frustrating position. To make it less frustrating by giving yourself the opportunity to function in this higher state as your Higher Self, as your illuminated self, to see what your Higher Self would do in this circumstance. Because you are your Higher Self when you choose to be.

So, illumination used in this way, to create this double point of view, will give you a more dimensional perspective on your circumstance and situation so that you do not necessarily have to feel the weight of the world on your shoulders, that there is no way out of your circumstance, that you do not have to perceive what you are going through as a dilemma but only as an opportunity for change, an opportunity for increasing your perspective and understanding yourself more deeply, for that is what it is all about. Understanding and remembering who you are, learning how to use that in a daily, pragmatic and practical application. Benefiting from the results of that insight and that perspective and growing and experiencing more creativity and joy and abundance as a result.

That is it, that is what it is all about, becoming, learning, remembering who you already are, this is one way, one technique. This illumination moment is one technique to allow you more opportunity to remember and experience, most importantly, experience who you really are, for that is again what it is all about. You are choosing to experience yourself as physical beings. Therefore, seeing yourself as energy, as light, will allow you to experience that side of yourself as well, simultaneously, as you can use this perspective to your advantage in many ways. Allow your imagination to be your guide.

We thank you for allowing us, now, to share with you this idea, which we have called "Illumination." And in return, once again, for the gift that you are giving our civilization in allowing us to experience this interchange with you, I ask, in return, in what way may I and my world be of service to you?
Q: BASHAR! BASHAR!

B: You, and then you. Number two, do you know who you are? Number three, do you know who you are? All right, number one, good day.
Imaginary Friends and Spirit Guides

Q: In a workshop I attended we were asked to visualize something, and I can’t even remember what it was, but I got this picture immediately of this sparkly lavender-purple kind of energy. It was kind of floating around, and it reminded me of a fairy or something.

B: All right.

Q: And I felt like it was me.

B: In a sense. Always it is you, no matter what it represents. For you have to create your own version, out of your own energy, of anything you interact with. The purple, in that way, the violet, represents the high energy, the vortex energy, the opening of a gate of communication so that you could siphon, channel or receive the communication with your spirit guides all around you. And plug yourself into the higher planes so you could use that energy to take your body to any vibratory level you needed to, throughout the exercise.

Q: And is there anything you can tell me about... well, when I was a small child I had an imaginary friend name Roger, and I wonder if you could tell me if that had anything to do with spirit guides, or can you comment about myself?

B: The idea of imaginary friends usually represents very early recognition and contact with a spirit guide, yes, for almost every single one of you.

Q: Does it change through your life, like with friends?

B: It can, yes. Different spirit guides can involve themselves with you at different phases of your life depending upon the purpose of that phase.

Q: And is there a way that I can now be more conscious about communicating with them?

B: You can place yourself in a relaxed state, you can create for yourself the child-like vibration you used to experience wherein you knew that you were in contact.

Q: I feel that way a lot... that I get information...

B: Yes.

Q: ... to do certain things, to go to a certain place.

B: One moment, one moment. Understand that that information does not necessarily tell you to do this, or tell you to do that. The information can simply be a recognition on your part of what that vibration represents – what idea, what direction represents the particular frequency you are on at that moment, that can represent communication between you and your spirit guide. But which doesn’t have to necessarily, colloquially, translate into the guide saying, do this, or do that. It is more of a communion of understanding between you as to what vibration you are at any given moment. And the guide assists you in recognizing that, in opening your eyes, in realizing that the vibration you sense is representative of the path you are at that moment – so follow it.

Q: Yes, it turns out incredibly whenever I do that.
B: Yes! Remember the guides do not live your lives for you, they do not tell you specifically what to do, do not force you in a direction. They assist by reflecting to you what vibration you are at any given moment, by simply attempting to make it very plain to you that the direction you need to move in is quite obvious, if you will simply trust it.

Many times direct communication, strong communication between you and your guides will usually play itself out in the events that unfold in your life, not the idea of the auditory recognition of a conversation.

Q: Okay.

B: You follow me?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Imagining Your Reality

Q: I would like to share a little bit about what Joanne was talking about... about imagination to begin with.

B: All right.

Q: Was that just kind of a neat perspective, coming from one of our third density, going into fourth density minds, the way he thought? He said, “very few people have enough imagination to see reality.” I thought that was kind of a neat way to put it.

B: All right, although obviously you are creating your reality from your imagination.

Q: Right.

B: Thank you. Sharing!
The idea is as follows, when you are involved in something you love to do, you collect yourself back in the moment, you do not scatter yourself or your mind out into the idea of the segregated world of physical detail. The idea is that you look at yourself holistically, as a single event, instead of a collection of parts which somehow have to be engineered or worried into place in order to function properly. When you know that you function properly already, you bring yourself, you gather yourself, you collect yourself back together in a holistic way, and you act integrally, as a whole being, staying in the moment with what you love to do, being that vibration.

When you think that the world is a collection of parts that have to be engineered together, you are creating more, and more, and more details. You are turning the whole thing into a collection of little things. The more details you create, the more you segregate or fragment or fractionalize the whole thing, the more time you need in order to interact with each and every one of those details you have created. The less details you need, the less time you need. The more you interact with your reality as a whole being then the less time you experience, because the less time you are creating. Because, if you are in the now then you only need one moment to do something, to be something, to create something.

Now, more, and more, and more this is happening in your reality, collectively and individually you are allowing yourself the joy of the moment of the creation of being. Staying in that vibration allows you to function more as a holistic being, and thus, you create less experience of time, because you are not fragmenting yourself. The idea is that now you must see yourself as a whole being – physical and Higher Self as one thing. The physical being is no longer expected to carry the burden of having to remember all the details of engineering something into reality, of making it work. It works, allow it, allow it, allow it.

Allow your Higher Self, with it’s overview to gently move all the things into position that need to be there, that it already contains. The Whole You already contains all the things you need; you are a complete kit. You already function perfectly, flawlessly. You contain everything you need. When you function from that point of view as the Whole Self then all it takes is a moment to make a change, to make a shift, to create something. And you don’t need all that extra time because you are not turning yourself into a series of linear details that must come one after the other; adjusting this, bringing this in, balancing that, juggling that, until all of a sudden you have such a burden of details that you collapse as a mental being. Because your mentality was never meant to handle that many details. The physical you is a facilitator of the Higher Self. Let me put it this way, it is similar to the idea, not meaning that you do not have free will, not meaning that you are stuck in a rut, but it is similar to the idea of being a record needle. The Higher Self places the physical self in the record groove, just go along for the ride and hear the song. All the other details have been taken care of, the groove is there, all the notes are there. Feel what you wish to feel about them, use the notes as they appear and manifest within you, but go along in the groove.
The arm of the record player does not have to force itself into the groove ...."Oh, now I’ve got to make sure I hit that note, I might miss it. Have to keep my mental focus on that, it might be a note that I might waste, and then the whole song will be ruined." No, you’ll get to that groove eventually, you will not miss that note, you understand?

In Tune With All That Is

B: All right, I’ll say: question.

Q: I...I...

B: All right. All right. Yes?

Q: On alternate universes... if I want to go my own way... I keep thinking that other people have to do it with me. I mean, it’s like if I want to sell my house, for instance, which I’m trying to do right now...I want to get a certain price for it, say next week at a certain time.

I want to set it up and run my whole universe that way...

B: One moment! Understand that I am not saying that that is not possible. But really, in the overall idea of experiencing that reality, as you stop to think about it, there is really no need for many of the specifics that you insist upon, in order to still achieve the overall effect according to your own satisfaction.

Understand that there may be many variables within that circumstance that will still lead to you feeling that you have created the situation in exactly the proper way for you. And as such simply ‘tis not that you have to think about every specific idea or step or method within the overall idea of the situation, for many times even what you perceive to be an overall situation may, in and of itself, really be a method to an even greater idea that you are not allowing yourself simply, to be.

Rather then, understand that if you have, as a single idea, as you say the idea of selling your house, and this is what excites you beyond any other idea that you could unfold within yourself at the time, then understand that if you simply become that idea, feel, be and act as if that idea has already taken place within your here and now present reality, you will attract exactly all those individuals and facets of those individuals within your reality that will be more than willing to share that reality with you, and allow you to experience that portion of your reality in that way for the best benefit of all concerned – and allow themselves to experience their reality in exactly the same way.

Now, understand that if the selling of your house, as you say, is a step within the overall understanding of another even greater idea of which you are even more excited, then you do not have to even be concerned about the idea of needing to sell your house to achieve that idea. Realize that in the selling of your house (¬¬?) portion of the best possible way to achieve that even greater idea, then that is what will happen.

But if it is not, if there is a better way in your terms to achieve the overall idea, then you will not necessarily need to sell your house. And if you simply focus upon the idea of only selling your house, in order to achieve the greater idea, you will be shutting the door on the better idea. Just as in the idea of selling your house – if that is the greatest idea which attracts you at the time – then completely needing to orchestrate the exact method by which that takes place may be shutting the door on an even better method. You follow me?
Q: Yes. That doesn’t answer my question about the fact that other people have to go along with it.

B: They do not have to go along with you. Understand that within the interaction of All That Is, all possibilities take place, and every individual contains all the facets necessary to interact within any reality of any one individual that can take place. Therefore understand that what you perceive as individuals who seem to be going along with your newly created reality, are simply the facets of those individuals which are already experiencing that reality with that facet of you that is creating that reality.

‘Tis not that they are going along with anything – except that they are also partaking of that reality – even as you allow your own consciousness to focus into that facet of yourself. They are already there, just as you are already there. And that is why it is only a matter of realigning your perspective and observing your reality through another facet of yourself in which you will find all the facets of all the other individuals already existing which need to accomplish that idea.

Realize that every idea, every situation, already contains all the ingredients necessary for the unfoldment of that idea. Except when you step in and make the separation between yourself and that idea, and assume that you must struggle to create that idea – that you must build, piece by piece, exactly how that idea is to manifest.

You are an automatic creator. You need not think about the path in order to achieve the effect. Cause and effect. You may simply create the effect, and nature – yourself as the automatic creator – will supply you with more than enough cause to support the effect. You will simply be in tune with All That Is, in terms of the facets of all the consciousness and all the individuals, which are already partaking of that idea into which you now find yourself tuning in.

Q: Mhmm.

B: You follow me?
Q: Yes.

B: Thank you.
1
Q: Sometimes I get very strong images of, uh, how can I say, um, of people’s thoughts or...
B: Yes.
Q: . . . things, and I don’t get visuals at all. Sometimes I meditate in large groups and I don’t get visuals at all. Sometimes I do. Is there any way that I can use some exercises that would help me to be more visual?
B: But why do you think that not having visuals is a deficiency?
Q: I just enjoy having them, I...
B: So?
Q: I’m artistic and I like to see them.
B: All right. Do you like to feel?
Q: Yeah. I feel all the time. I mean that, I get emotions all the time, but I don’t always get the visuals with it and I would like...
B: But you do not always need them.
Q: No. But I get a... oh, I want them.
B: Then create them. (AUD: laughs)
Q: Then we’re back to my question. Are there any exercises I can do that can create them more often? I find that I often don’t have them when I would like to. For, for...
B: You don’t?
Q: No.
B: You don’t have visuals when you would like them?
Q: Right. For example, should I give you an example?
B: All right. (AUD: laughs).
Q: I was recently, um...
B: May I interrupt um...
Q: Certainly.
B: Chair.
Q: I get those visuals.
B: So, what is the difference?
Q: Well, I’ll tell you.
B: All right. (AUD: laughs).
Q: I was in Sedona...
B: Yes.
Q: ...recently...
B: Yes.
Q: ... in an, uh, archeological... a cave dwelling.
B: Yes.
Q: And I was inside a shaman’s room where he did some... I didn’t know what he had done there, but I was in there alone and I was feeling these very strong emotions and I was trying to get pictures and, or I was wondering why I wasn’t getting pictures, and I wasn’t. I just felt the emotions and I did not know how to connect them with anything.
B: It is very simple! You were not creating any pictures. Being in that type of energy is being in a vortex – the center of creation, the center of all probable universes, where you need to take action to create the realities you want to experience. You simply were open, waiting to receive, but not recognizing that in that particular type of energy you don’t receive messages you don’t send.
Q: Okay. Well, I don’t understand that, because what the archeologist said was that a number of different psychics have been in there at different times...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and they had all experienced, told him about the same picture.
B: Yes. So?
Q: I don’t know that I... well anyway, what it was, was something to do with the shaman who was in there and what he did to some women who were there at the time.
B: Yes. So?
Q: And why did I just get the emotions? I felt, I, I got some very strong emotions but I didn’t get pictures. I don’t... what did they do differently than I did?
B: They may have within their belief structure an automatic mechanism that allows them, whether they know it or not, to project and then trust that whatever pictures they project are the pictures they need to receive.
In other words, perhaps, you are trying too hard in the sense of... or you are not believing that the pictures you would create in your imagination consciously would be as valid as something you don’t think you had anything to do with. (AUD: laughs). You follow me?
Q: I do, except that sometimes I get very vivid pictures or...
B: Yes.
Q: You know, sometimes I just close my...
B: Well, then you are not trying so hard.
Q: I just... I do the same thing. I close my eyes and just let it come and it comes. I’ll ask a question.
B: Yes.
Q: Maybe I didn’t ask a question. Maybe that’s what I didn’t do.
B: The idea simply is, from our point of view, that if you find yourself in a situation where you get pictures that is what you need. If you don’t get them, that is what you need.
Again, it may simply be that your automatic expectation is so quick that, if you don’t get them exactly when, and as fast, and in the way you think you should, then you cut off the flow that might come in the very next second. Because you are too busy looking for them to see them when they come. Relax you expectations and then, paradoxically, you might offer yourself more opportunity to receive them.
Q: Okay.
B: But recognize that if they’re not there, they don’t need to be there. Why make the assumption that something is wrong if they’re not there?
Q: It’s not wrong, but when...
B: But you are assuming that you are somehow deficient by comparison.
Q: I suppose, yes.
B: Then that is, in your terminology, translated as...
Q: Wrong.
B: Wrong.
Q: Yeah, Yeah. I’m missing some of the fun. (Laughs)
B: You aren’t.
Q: I’m not?
B: You are having fun in your own way.
Q: Well, that’s true.
B: In the way you will add to the overall experience, in your unique way. Now, do not assume that every single one of those individuals, who got pictures then, always gets pictures.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Perhaps for you, the feelings were more important, because maybe, the way you translate feeling is “more appropriate” to the overall scenario than the way they would have translated feelings. You follow me? In other words, whatever you experience, it is a reflection of what you can bring to the event in your own unique way. So, if you don’t get something, assume you don’t need it to share in the event. Translate it in whatever way you do get it. That is how you get it.
Q: Okay.
B: So lighten up on yourself. (AUD: laughs)
Q: All right. Thanks.
B: Thank you. You!

In Your Own Unique Way
Incarnational Scenarios

Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day!
Q: Welcome to our world.
B: Oh, we thank you. Speak up; be bold so that all may share.
Q: Okay, When I met the channel in San Diego, I felt that I was not just meeting a channel. I felt an overwhelming sense of love.
B: All right.
Q: Was there someone else there with him? Have I met you before?
B: There have been passages through our energy in dream encounters, in dream reality. But also you were sensing crossovers between the channel and yourself; and sensing crossovers with many aspects of your own future self that are somehow analogous to what we represent to you. Did you understand that?
Q: Yes.
B: You are meeting aspects of your own future self, recognizing aspects of your own higher self, that in some ways operate on similar frequencies to what we represent to you.
Q: Okay.
B: So in other words, the recognition – to put it simply – was of you recognizing other aspects of yourself, even though there is, to some degree, some familiarity with our energy in different dream levels.
Q: Okay. I have two daughters…
B: All right, one, two.
Q: Donna is 20 and Debra is 7. When Donna was very, very small, she told me that she had chosen me as her mother.
B: Yes, of course. Everyone does.
Q: And when she said it, she was really not in command of the English language. She was not old enough to be speaking in a solid sentence at that time.
B: If you say so.
Q: Well, obviously she did. Babies usually – she had been limited at that point to just one word or two when she said it.
B: Oh, all right. Perhaps she didn’t have anything else to say.
Q: Right. During her childhood…
B: Yes.
Q: …she kept asking my husband and I for a baby sister.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: And she was very angry with us that we were not complying. And then, 13 years later when I had Debra...
B: Yes, the number of transformation.
Q: ... she said: “You are a little late, mother.”
B: It is all right.
Q: But my youngest daughter, Debra – she wanted to experience the physical reality... I would guess she would say.
B: Yes.
Q: Were they kindred sisters before Donna left her and came down first?
B: Sometimes. They have also been lovers many times.
Q: How interesting! (Laughing)
B: All right.
Q: The reason I say that is that my daughter is experiencing a lot of negativity towards the males in our world.
B: All right.
Q: And she feels that she could go through life completely without them. And she is... but she is worried that she is not following what she intended when she started, when she...
B: You may simply suggest that she relax, first of all. It does not necessarily allow an individual to understand who they are, to begin with, by chipping away at themselves through invalidation. If they do not leave enough of themselves to observe, they will not discover who it is they are.
Q: Mhmm.
B: So the idea, first of all, is to relax, not be so hard on yourself – not so hard. The idea can happen as has been outlined. That individual may not necessarily have to interact with – in the way you are describing it – males of your species, although we perceive that that is not really going to be the case. The idea primarily is that she simply needs to come to terms with the idea of her own masculine aspects. Blending those polarities within herself will allow her to breathe more easily, and not so much feel that she is being taken away from a connection that she truly desires, something she had with her sister.
Q: Mhmm. Mhmm.
B: Understand?
Q: Yes, I do. I do understand that. Thank you.
B: All right, one moment, one moment, one moment. (Pause) There is an ancient friend that, if she is willing to allow it, can be of much help in her dream state. For she has interacted with that individual as a male before, and that friend in spirit state can remind her of much of the joy of finding the blending of the polarity of the male and the female within each and every individual. And that can allow her, perhaps, more outward expression of that idea in your physiological reality.
You may simply suggest that that friend is there, and will, in a very gentle and loving way – not forcing, not pushing anything at all – simply have dialogue with her in dream reality to allow her to come to terms with her own masculinity and her own femininity. Understand?

Q: Yes. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you. Does that serve you?
Q: Yes, it does. It answers a lot more questions. Thank you.
B: All right. Then suggest to them both pleasant dreams.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Incarantional Scenarios
Increasing Brain Power

Questioner: Is there something I can do to open my pituitary gland? Is there something I can do to increase the power of my brain?

Bashar: You are using, and everyone is using, one hundred percent of your brain. You are using it in exactly the ways you need to. Recognize that though your science has said you are only using a fraction, the idea that you are only using a fraction comes from some other part that they do not recognize that you are using.

Q: Oh.

B: You are using it all. You are complete in exactly the way you need to be complete. You can change the idea of yourself. Simply that, again, the willingness to act, the willingness to change the idea of yourself by acting, will always allow everything in your physical reality to reflect that idea. Now understand this, your physiological brain does physiologically change with every thought you have; every thought. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, the thought of yourself as you are willing to be will put the brain into the pattern to reflect that. If increase into those glands is necessary, it will be there. If it is not there at the time, it is not necessary for what you are doing. Thus, at any time, you are always complete for what you are doing. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Act like more of yourself, and more of yourself will be there – physically and spiritually.

Q: I see. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Individual And Global Choices

B: Allow me to say that as you gather in any place, within any idea of your time as you create time, then allow yourselves to recognize the increase in the acceleration of your own momentum and of many different ideas. For you will now be experiencing a rush of emotionality if you allow yourselves to feel that you are in sync with many other individuals at this time. You are experiencing a great deal of momentum and acceleration and change in your lives.

Recognize that at this time, the mass consciousness – that is the collective consciousness of each and every individual in your society at this time – will begin to recognize that it is something that is in conjunction with every other consciousness. And recognize that there are groupings of mass consciousness who all feel there is a momentum and acceleration, in this way, of beginning to let the inner you be the outer you. To allow your dreams to be your reality. To allow your imagination to be real, in that way. Are you all following me?

AUD: Yes.

B: Allow me to say at this time that you may know that you can now begin to understand that within what you term to be a day to day experience as a mass society, as a civilization, you have begun and in the near future will continue to witness certain events, that will take place on what you term to be a global scale.

And that will allow each and every one of you to recognize that EACH AND EVERY INDIVIDUAL within your civilization you call Earth, will now be taking part in making decisions as to exactly where they stand in regard to any particular issue concerning your planet.

Recognize that you are drawing yourselves closer and closer together, so no matter what you decide for yourselves, each and every individual will still be involved in taking a stand, making the choice, and having a decision within every issue that will concern YOUR ENTIRE GLOBAL CIVILIZATION. Do you follow me?

AUD: Yes.

B: In this way as we have said, you may recognize that this energy momentum, as we now perceive it in your mass consciousness at this time, will be creating for itself many different ideas... your civilization will be giving itself a choice to know exactly what type of reality it wishes to experience, within what you term to be your New Age awareness. Which is the transformation from third to fourth density – the idea of the acceleration of your momentum to a more refined state where you will be giving yourself now, within your society, opportunities to choose exactly what type of reality you wish to experience within this transformational state.

And you are giving yourselves the opportunity, in recognizing this idea, to know consciously rather than unconsciously – as has been the case within your past history – to CONSCIOUSLY be aware of the choices you are making that CREATE your realities. Do you all follow me?

AUD: Yes.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Q: Good Evening Bashar, nice to be in your presence once again.
B: And you as well.
Q: It’s nice to know that there is an ecstatic future rather than a catastrophic one.
B: There are an infinite number of futures, both infinite in their ecstasy, and infinite in their catastrophe.
Q: Well, we don’t see that many represented to us in their ecstasy.
B: This has to with the idea, again, of knowing that your core vibration is one of ecstasy and simply allowing the reality to unfold that is symbolically representative and reflective of it.
Q: Well, thank you for being that reflection.
B: Yes.
Initiating Change In Education

Q: I am a college instructor, and the teacher in me is excited by the teacher in you.
B: Oh, thank you!
Q: I have become so excited about the content of your discussions, I want to develop a course at the college I teach at.
B: Well, go right ahead!
Q: I wondered if you might have some suggestions for a course title or a course structure.
B: Oh, that’s up to you. We will see what happens in your imagination first. Maybe later we will comment, perhaps, on what you have created. But the idea, the structure, the imagination, the creation, is up to you. The initiation is up to you.
Q: Why I seem to struggle with the idea – and I admit it is my own negativity – is that we might say the material is not traditional, (AUD: much laughter) in the sense that around me are fifty-five churches in a small town. And the negativity that I may introduce into it is the concern that I may stir up a hornet’s nest; and yet I feel such excitement to do this.
B: Are you being YOU?
Q: I think that might be part of the problem. I tend to be too conservative and I tend to hold back.
B: Well now, your pace is up to you. You do not have to label it in a particular way, or invalidate it, in that sense. Simply, are you being true to yourself?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Are you doing what you are doing – and do you have the desire to do these things you have said to us – through unconditional love? And do you believe, to the best of your ability, that you are not really doing something that would consciously hurt anyone?
Q: No. I believe I am acting with integrity.
B: Oh, all right. Then go ahead. Any stirring that happens will be because of the individuals who have attracted themselves to know that you are who you are, and will have chosen to be stirred.
Q: I’ve become aware of the struggle of students, not only in education, but the struggle of their lives...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and I’ve become excited that a course like this could not only help them in their pursuit of education, but help them in all aspects of their lives.
B: Yes.
Q: And perhaps it is the greatest course that could be taught.
B: Well, you have done it before, you know. Why not simply rely on your own Atlantean incarnations?
Q: Okay... well, I’ll check on that! (AUD: laughter)
B: Allow yourself, in a meditative state, to remember how you did it then. How you reached the very prime levels of their consciousness – how you taught. For how individuals were taught in Atlantean times is qualitatively different than how your systems of education teach now. Get back in touch with that idea, and see whether you can apply some of that into your present day life framework. All right?

Q: All right. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. Think in light – colors – by the way.
Q: Thanks.
Inner Earth

Q: I understand that for millions of years on Earth we have had some underground civilizations that have existed, or are existing...

B: In a sense, although they do not exist in the same planar dimension as you.

Q: Okay, one is some miles beneath the North Pole... and it is supposed to be a very, very highly evolved civilization.

B: The idea, once again, is that many of the civilizations, so to speak, in essential form, that have existed upon the surface of your planet, many of them also do reside in that way. But again understand, the idea is that they are in a different dimensional frequency than you.

And the idea is not so much that they exactly inhabit what you would consider to be the physiological, third density, inner Earth. But it will be a doorway and a gateway that you must shift yourself through in order to experience any of those ideas; and you will literally no longer be on the same Earth you were, when and before you entered that doorway. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. And how will I experience the shift when I go down the tunnel?

B: You are missing the point. You may not perceive that you have made a dimensional shift...

Q: My vibration will just become tuned to that frequency.

B: Yes. If you simply find yourself attuned to the idea of exploring that and discover those passageways, then at the point you discover those passageways, you will no longer be on the Earth you used to be on.

Q: Okay, I understand. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Inspiration & Individual Impact:
18 January 88
Bashar: All right, I’ll say: how are you all this day of your time, as you create time to exist? (Great, wonderful, perfect) Are you all alive?
Q: (Yes!)
B: Thank you!
Allow us to begin by laying down a foundation for this interaction this day of your time. It can, if you wish, be entitled, "Inspiration and Individual Impact."
Now: each and every one of you obviously is an individual. But now, as a society, each and every one of you is beginning, on some level, to realize that you are also all connected as one entity, as one idea, as one self-aware consciousness. A global awareness; if you wish, a world spirit.
This world spirit, this one mind, this mass consciousness, is, in and of itself, an entity, a single idea. And it is aware of itself as a single entity, a single idea. At the same time, it is also aware of itself as a composite of all the individuals that exist upon your planet; a composite of all the individual mentalities, all the individual expressions of consciousness out of which it is constructed, shall we say?
The idea therefore, in inspiration and individual impact, is to recognize, perhaps, a few of the following points of view: each and every one of you as an individual has the ability to affect, in many ways, the whole of your world. Even physiologically now you know you are beginning to attain a global consciousness. No longer are you isolated in terms of what you may call villages or cities, or even nations any more.
You are now beginning to function – although for now it may seem to he a bit sketchy, as you say – as a united earth, in that sense. You are beginning to overlap your borders; you are beginning to cross over, to merge, to blend, and to find that it is almost impossible not to interact with all of the other nations upon your planet.
In that sense, you are beginning – even though it may seem for now to be under a lot of pressure – you are beginning to blend together, to merge together into one entity. You are going through many growing pains perhaps in doing this as a civilization, but nonetheless you are still creating a blending; you are still exposed to other cultures, other notions, other points of view.
And some of this does inevitably rub off on each and every one of you – making you far more of a unified, far more of a globally –thinking person than your ancestors used to be, in that sense. The idea, when you do this physiologically, also creates an effect in your non-physical consciousness, in your telepathic link.
For each and every one of you is connected non-physically, telepathically; you are all immersed in a sea of electromagnetic energy that surrounds your planet. Being immersed in that sea of electromagnetic energy is what allows you all to be in touch with each other on unconscious and sub-consciousness levels.
You can be in touch with each other on conscious levels, but your society’s habits have not always allowed you to understand that this is possible. So for thousands of years you have relegated that contact to the sub and unconscious levels of your mentality.

But now, now! – now that you have entered more global awareness physiologically, consciously, you are beginning to allow that sub and unconscious awareness of your interconnectedness to rise, to bubble up to the surface of your consciousness. And you are beginning to realize that you are all aspects of the same one expression of consciousness that is your entire planet.

Day by day and bit by bit, many of you, now that you are accelerating in this direction, will begin – and perhaps have already begun – to see examples of this idea in the synchronicity of the events; in the coincidences of events; in the psychic attunement and sensitivity of your mentality that you may begin to find yourselves experiencing and expressing in your day-to-day activities.

All of these ideas are natural symptoms of the type of transformation your world is going through. And it can allow you to further accelerate that idea, if you will allow for more inspiration in your lives and more recognition of the impact that each and every one of you, as an individual, has upon the whole. Since you are all connected, any movement, any idea, any change at all – no matter how seemingly insignificant – any of you make, must, by definition, affect the whole. You may think you are, shall we say, a very small gear, a very small lever. And in that sense, yes; there is a greater whole, out of numbers.

But even if you turn your small gear even an infinitesimal amount, all the other gears to which it is connected must turn, even if they also only turn an infinitesimal amount. Each and every individual is absolutely linked with the whole, and is absolutely impossible to be separated from it. So recognize that the only thing that does not necessarily allow you to be aware of how much impact each and every one of you has, is because you have not necessarily been taught to focus on the understanding of your interconnectedness with everyone else.

As soon as you begin to realize that you are, in fact, already intermeshed, intertwined, inseparable, in that sense, then you will begin to be able to see – consciously see – the true orchestration that all of you are together. You will truly begin to he able to understand that no motion, no movement – no matter how seemingly slight – is an accident.

All is synchronicity; all is an orchestration. It is absolutely – from our point of view – in no way, shape or form an accident as to who has attended this interaction. It is absolutely no accident who you are sitting next to. It is no accident what they are wearing ... what colors, what they will say, what motions they will make.

Now, there may be varying degrees of significance to each and every person about what every other person is doing. But nonetheless, you have agreed, on a telepathic level, to arrive in this interaction together; and to support everyone else in that interaction by adding your energy, so that they will get out of it what they need. And in them supporting you, to allow you to get out of it what you need.
It is a co-creation; you are all masters, in that sense; you are all conductors; you are all creating the timing of the orchestration of this interaction between your civilization and our civilizations. No accidents whatsoever. Inspiration (and) individual impact is the product of the same understanding, and that understanding is basically as follows:

Inspiration and impact are the creation, are the products of when you know that you are connected to the whole; when you know that you can draw from the whole, and act with that knowledge as the full individual that you are, knowing you are supported by the whole.

If you could not be supported by the whole: if you were not supported by the whole, you as an individual would not exist in this particular conglomerate. Because there is no such thing as an extraneous or a pointless or an extra or a leftover creation that does not belong. Everything that exists fits where it is; everything that is where it is fits in that pattern, fits in that tapestry. There are no extras: everything is exactly the correct amount.

Therefore: allow yourselves to know, as individuals, that each and every one of you has exactly the same degree of access to the total energy of your world; to the total energy of creation itself, because each and every one of you are equal aspects of the Infinite. Each and every being within creation – If we may put it this way – is simply one of the ways that All That Is, the Infinite Creation, has of manifesting itself within the creation that it is.

Another way of saying this is that each and every one of you, no matter how seemingly small and detached from the whole – each and every one of you, as a part of the whole, contains the ability to access the information of the total idea. You are all holographically structured. We will provide a brief analogy and an example to explain this notion of the holographic structure.

Imagine for a moment – in your visualization capability – that your world, your dimension that you call three-dimensional existence – physiological reality – is laid out flat like a grid, shall we say, stretching to the horizon as far as you can see. And on the surface of this plane is painted a gridwork of lines running in two directions, so that they are at right angles to each other, forming squares.

Where these lines cross – these intersection points where these lines cross – let us say those points represent information, knowledge, that you may desire to have an access to. Now let’s say you are standing somewhere on this plane, somewhere on this grid.

It doesn’t matter where, because the grid is infinite in all directions. And no matter where you are, it will appear to be infinite in all directions. Now let’s say you have a desire to learn many things, to grow in many ways. And you take a look, for a moment, at the grid under your feet.

And you recognize that each and every one of those squares, or each and every one of those access points, is a point of information that you may require. Now, looking at the grid this way you may say: "Well, this will take forever to understand anything."

“I’ll have to walk and walk and walk, and touch each and every one of those points before I will be able, in a sense, to access all of the information I believe I need to really live my life in the way I want to. All right. Fair enough, when you look at it from that particular perspective.
However: there is another way to understand it. And this other analogy, the continuation of this analogy, actually defines the structure of existence itself. For this is the way it is built, shall we say. Looking at the grid once again: as you stand there now, take what you may call a large – or a small; doesn’t matter – shiny, metallic reflective sphere, similar to what you would call a ball bearing in your culture. Take that ball bearing and place it anywhere on the grid. Now realize that all of the reflection of the grid – no matter how far it stretches – is reflective in the warped surface of that ball bearing. So in other words, all the information of every single point on the grid is in that ball bearing. You can access it by simply looking at any place around the ball bearing, without having to travel far and wide to receive that information. It is all right there in the same place at the same time – perhaps seemingly distorted. But nonetheless, every single point is there. And you can access it from that point.

Each and every one of you was created to be like that ball bearing. The total information of existence is wrapped up within you, interwoven within your consciousness, your individual consciousness. What you have done, and what many individuals in creation have done, is to flatten out that understanding, flatten out that consciousness, into an illusion of physiological time and space.

Your third-dimensional physical reality is your projection. You have taken all the ideas that you are – or at least a large portion of them – and you have projected them into a seemingly dimensional reality which fills space and takes time to explore. But now: the purpose for having unfolded in that idea is now coming to a close. You have experienced many tens of thousands of years of experiencing reality in this segregated, remote, separated way. Now that you are arriving at the end of that cycle of having to perceive your reality in that manner, you are now beginning to fold up again; you are now beginning to re-pull all these ideas back into their central core, to re-intertwine with all the other aspects, to gather together all the understanding that you were created with to begin with.

And now you are beginning to understand that you have access to things that seem to be so remote, because they are no longer seen as remote. They are right within you, and have been all the time. Right where you are, right when you are. Everything! All the notions of time, all the notions of space, are all within you and created from you. They are simply your projection.

Even your own physicists now, at least many of them – not all of them, but many of them – are beginning to understand that what you have for so long called physiological reality seemingly outside yourself, is actually nothing more than a projection of the strongest definition you have been taught to buy into to about what it is. In other words, physical reality is constructed of the definitions you give it. What you believe in most strongly, either as an individual or as a collective – what you agree to buy into as a group determines how you experience your physiological reality. It is the product of your definitions. And in that sense, nothing more.

This does not invalidate it. It is a very worthwhile experience. It is one of the ways you can experience yourself within creation, and you have done so to a great degree.

The idea, in a sense, of exploring physiological reality to the extent that you have, makes you, shall we say, very well rounded, as far as many civilizations are concerned. Because not many civilizations that we have encountered have explored the idea of the physiological dimension to the extent that your civilization has.

And so because of this, we have invented a little nickname for all of you. We call you the master of limitation. But this is not meant, in anyway, shape or form, derogatorily.

It simply means that as you say, you have alot under your belt; you have alot of experience dealing with the idea of physiological focus, of negativity, of limitation, of challenge, in that sense. And of, in your terms, transforming those ideas into positive results. You have a great deal of experience doing this.

You are one of the most highly focused civilizations we have ever come across. And that is why there is such a great deal of interest in your civilization now.

Because you are taking all the focus that you have experienced for tens of thousands of years, all the focus that has been placed on negativity; and now you are deciding that you may just want to place it in a positive direction.

We have used, to describe this transformation on your planet, what is called the rubber band analogy. If you take one of your rubber bands and draw it very far back, let us say into negativity, as you have in the past, you will recognize that the farther back you have drawn into negativity, when you finally decide to let it go, it will snap that much farther and that much faster into the positive side.

And therefore we see your civilization as truly being on the brink, truly being on the threshold of monumental and instantaneous and inspirational change in a positive direction.

Much of what you may now perceive to be the violence that is escalating on the surface of your planet, from our perspective, is simply your civilization getting the last vestiges of its, shall we say, tantrums out of its system before you make the change.

You are now bubbling all this negativity up to the surface. No longer is it being covert; no longer are you pushing it down into your subconscious, and being secretive about this idea. You are bringing it all out into the open, so that you can display before everyone these ideas; and so that everyone can truly see what is going on and say to themselves: "Is this the type of world we really desire, or do we desire something else? Perhaps a world of harmony, a world of peace."

"Now that we see that we have brought all this out into the open," you may be now saying to yourselves on the unconscious level, "now we can decide that we no longer prefer it that way. That now we prefer the idea of creating a world of joy, and allowing ourselves to expand in that manner, in an ecstatic way."

And reclaiming your birthright of creatorhood, of ecstasy. Because you are made in the image of the Infinite. And what that means is that you are an infinite creator as well.

It is simply that the type of reality you have experienced for tens of thousands of years has created an ability within you to forget that you are connected to the Infinite.
But now that you have played the scenario out – of all the limitation and the forgetfulness – all the transformations and the explorations you are now doing on a spiritual level is the remembering, the re-awakening of yourselves to yourselves, remembering and rediscovering exactly who and what you always have been.

Many of the things that you are now learning – it isn’t so much that you are learning something new; you are simply remembering more and more and more of what you already know, of who you already are. That’s what your transformational age primarily is all about.

When any civilization begins to explore in that particular direction, it sends out a particular radiation. And that radiation is picked up by many other civilizations, such as our own, that have already explored those particular levels of consciousness. And we answer that radiation as if it were an invitation to begin to function as mirrors to reflect back to you the experiences we have had, how we have explored the idea of the realms you are now beginning to explore.

Not so that you will have the understanding that you must do it in exactly the same way we did. By no means. But simply to reflect back to you that we have explored those realms; and that we can share with you how our explorations have benefited us, have served us.

You will do it in your own way, no matter what we share with you. We simply wish to be of service to you, to allow you to understand that you can explore those realms, and you can explore them to your benefit.

We desire this, because in serving you in this way, and allowing you to expand your awareness of who you are, it expands our awareness of who we are, and gives us new beings to interact with, new civilizations to explore all of Creation with, side by side, intertwined and intermixed. And that exploration together expands the notion of our place within Creation.

Therefore: we will always – as I will do now – extend to you a firm understanding that we deeply appreciate your willingness to form and co-create with us these types of interaction.

For bit by bit and day by day, through such interactions do you make it more possible and more feasible for our world to be able to interact with yours as an equal. For that is the only way we will interact with you – when you know you are equal, not only to us, but to each other.
Inspiration

Q: I have a question about music.

B: Yes.

Q: I’ve always wanted to have a fantastic memory, and it’s never been there. And I wonder...

B: Oh, that is all right. Many individuals on your planet now, because this is the transformational age, will begin to recognize that they no longer need the way you typically use your memory. For the idea is that as soon as you are living completely in the moment, you will know what you need to know when you need to know it – according to whatever idea you are truly fully being at that moment. Whether you have ever known it before or not.

So memory: begin to treat it as a thing of the present, not a thing of the past.

Q: And in terms of retention?

B: Again: you will know what you need to know when you need to know it. And when you don’t need to know it, you won’t. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: That is living in the moment. Look at the idea of an animal, if you will, as an analogy for a moment. Let us say you have – let us use the fourth-density symbol – the cat. For you know it exists in more than one level.

It knows the spiritual side as experientially as it knows the physical side; it exists in both worlds – what you call the ethereal and the physical simultaneously – and knows it. It crosses one of your streets, and along comes one of your automobiles. The cat avoids it; runs across; goes under a fence, or over a fence; and surveys the yard beyond the fence. And jumps into the yard.

Now: for the cat, the avoidance of the idea of the automobile is at that moment the total absorption it is in.

As soon as it is approaching the fence, the total absorption is on the fence, on climbing the fence. As soon as it sees the yard, the total absorption is in the yard. The idea is completely lived in the moment. There is no need for the retention of the aspect of the interchange with the automobile, because that does not serve the cat in looking at the yard.

When it looks at the yard, that’s all it is doing – doing everything it needs to do to look at the yard. If there is an aspect of the interchange it had with the automobile that will serve it in allowing it to look at the yard more completely, then that aspect will be there in its knowledge.

But it will not be memory in the same way you think of as memory; it will be absolute understanding, knowing in that moment what the animal needs to know to be what it is, and what it needs to do at that moment.

That is what many of you are learning also to do. So an individual who is completely, at any given moment, being the idea of the musical piece that they desire to play, will play it.
They will know it, note by note, exactly when they need to know that note, and if they allow themselves to channel that trust and knowledge – then magically, automatically, it will be an in-spired performance. You understand?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much for your inspiration.
Q: Thank you.
B: Breath: inspire = breathe within. Inspiration. Thank you.
Questioner: I wanted to talk about acting upon your highest joy.

Bashar: Yes.

Q: Which is what I do, for the most part, but there are a couple of things I’m confused about with that.

B: Oh, all right, such as?

Q: Well, the first one is ... there are countries that create war acting on their highest joy, which may be religion or...

B: One moment, you must understand the difference between acting on your highest joy, and acting out of fear and calling it joy.

Q: Right.

B: You understand?

Q: Right.

B: There is a difference.

Q: Right.

B: They are not acting on their highest joy.

Q: Well, that’s what I was wondering because, for instance, maybe a serial rapist, or a serial murderer, maybe...

B: Yes, is acting out of fear and fear of powerlessness.

Q: Are they confused that that IS their highest joy?

B: Yes. The idea of, what you call on your planet, abuse, in that many individuals who function that way have histories of abuse, is the idea that that was what was transferred to them as the loving familial connection. Abuse is the only form of expression they understand; so when they want to show connection, they can only show the tool of abuse.

Q: So that’s kind of related to...

B: It relates to the idea of the expression of love, for them, because that is the only kind of connection they have been taught to know how to make.

Q: So that’s related to habit?

B: In a sense, yes; in some ways, yes. Because it is a self-created loop that allows them to think they are expressing themselves in ways that they truly wish to, but in ways that are incongruous with the idea of their innermost desire.

Q: So in expressing your highest joy in that moment...
B: Yes?
Q: ... there are additional elements such as love, integrity.
B: Yes.
Q: Anything else? Can you expand upon this?
B: It must be congruous to the idea of what you would call positive, or constructive, or integrative behavior. That which is negative is simply destructive or segregate, that which is positive is constructive, or integrative. That is the mechanical explanation of the idea, and how to recognize what the behavior actually is aligned to. So even though someone may be saying, "I am doing this out of my love, out of my joy," but they are exhibiting destructive, segregational, separational, disintegrative behavior, then you can see that there is incongruity between what they say and what they do. Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help explain it sufficiently?
Q: Yes.
Integrating Earth’s Galactic Heritage

Q: What is the reality of nuclear destruction of this planet?
B: Nil!!
Q: Thank you.
B: Recognize, first of all, that our ability to share that information with you at this time stems from your planet, whether you consciously realize it at this point or not, already having made at least a total unconscious decision, approximately – as we perceive your time – seven of your years ago, to not annihilate yourselves by nuclear war.

This is why many things now, many escalations of surface violence, are coming out, because now you know it is, in a sense, safe to get it all out of your system, and it will not lead to annihilation. You are bringing what was formerly hidden and covert, and creating it to be overt and out in the open, so that you can now all look around and say: “Wait a minute. Look what’s going on; look what we’re doing. Is this the way we want our world to really be? If not, let’s change it.” You now know it is safe to bring all of that out in the open, examine it and create it to be the way you wish it to be. We can also tell you this at this time, because you have made that decision yourselves.

However, we can also tell you the following, because you have made the decision yourselves, that you never would have been allowed to annihilate yourselves through nuclear means anyway. It is your world; you can do with it what you will, as long as what you do remains in your own back yard. Nuclear annihilation would have torn through the dimensional fabrics of other space/time continuums, and affected more than your own civilization.

Recognize that your government is very well aware, and has been aware for quite some time, that your devices – had they been activated – simply would not have worked. They have been given blatant demonstrations that that is the case. There have been many craft – not from our civilization – that have centered themselves directly over what you call your missile silos, and deactivated all of the launch mechanisms. (AUD: applauds and laughs) Your government is very well aware of this. And much of this information, bit by bit, will begin to leak out into your society.

The more you blend yourselves together with the idea of what you have created your government to be, and the more you allow them to serve you rather than rule you, then they will be able to share with you the information that they have kept from you – basically, in that way, to protect you in the way they thought you wanted to be protected. (AUD: laughs) You follow me?

Q: Yes. What about accidents, such as Chernobyl?
B: There is no such thing as an accident, in truth. What you call your “shuttle disaster,” what you call your country’s “interaction with Libya,” and what you call your “Chernobyl Soviet disaster,” are three parts of one event. On both sides did you have your technological disasters to show you that the directions that you are proceeding in will lead to the idea of breakdowns of your technological society, and the disruption of things that had been formerly held secret.
It is, on both sides, an indication – an outward example – of the belief that your society has, that if you allow what is inside you that drives you to the surface, that it will destroy you; because you are full of cracks and leaks; because you do not think of yourselves as one homogenous idea. So in this way, those three events have allowed you to re-examine, in total conscious faith, the ideas and the routes upon which you were proceeding. They served their purposes.

Understand it is absolutely no accident and no mistake that there was a teacher on your shuttle. She has taught her lesson – the lesson she truly was born to teach. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Allow yourselves to recognize that those three incidents operate and function as a fulcrum point, a switching point, a pivot point in your history. And you will find, later on, that it will be written that this is when you began to re-examine truly, around that time, all of the methods that you are utilizing in your civilization to accomplish that which you desire. When you began to realize that there were more natural means of accessing the creativity and “creatability” that you truly wish to experience. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you very much.

Q: On that same point, could you share with us your perception of how the collective has progressed since... we’re completing... it’s now a one year cycle from when that began.

B: Yes. And it was created again in what you call the 39th year – the transitional year before the 40th. This being now what you call your one thousand nine hundred eighty-seven year – being the 40th year since your world knew, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that other worlds and other civilizations existed.

7-7-‘47 to 7-7-‘87 of your counting is the 40-year cycle necessary for the change of an entire culture – from when you first truly discovered that there were other civilizations, to where now the majority of your civilization is willing to accept the fact that there are other civilizations.

In this way, as we have said, within the last three of your years – and particularly since the acceleration of those particular three incidents – you have accelerated greatly. You will now find that since those incidents, you as a civilization, in terms of your colloquial thinking, used to be – now, this is very arbitrary and very abstract, but it will do in your terminology – but you, as a civilization, used to be approximately 300 of your years behind us. Now you are only 150 years. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: That can also change. And as we perceive your energy, within the next ten years, you will, in a sense, only be approximately 75 years behind. And then, within 30 of your years, we will be keeping pace. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Then you will be becoming what we are representing to you – as your future selves.

Q: And then there will be interacting in the same space/time?
B: Basically, yes, and with many cultures. Thank you.
Q: Another one on that same...
B: Yes.
Q: When you spoke... I heard you speak before about the craft hovering over a missile silo, and computer launch codes erasing...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and that suggested to me that when the government heads do get together and have these summit meetings that they are not actually talking about what they say they are talking about.
B: Not always.
Q: Is it pretty much that they are friendly with each other and they’re allowing each other to stay in power...
B: Whether they are friendly, literally or not, they both know what the game is that they are truly playing.
Q: And the game has to do with the fact that there is never the idea of destruction...?
B: No.
Q: ... or war, and so is it mostly a monetary game...?
B: In a sense, yes, it is the idea of maintaining what they fear they will lose – power – not recognizing that the equalization of the entire world will actually be the gaining of their own self-empowerment, along with everyone else.
Q: Mhmm.
Q2: Do the Russians have the same knowledge that the United States received 40 years ago?
B: Yes.
Q: Same sort of...
B: Different, but enough information has crossed the lines now, so that both of your “sides” know just about enough.
Q: Could you clarify that?
B: Forty of your years ago, in this way, there was what you call a crash of a spacecraft from the system of Zeta Reticulum upon your planet. Your government came into possession of the physical craft and the bodies.
Q: Were the bodies alive?
B: No.
Q: What did they look like?
B: Approximately 3-1/2 to 4 feet of your height, white-whitish gray skin coloration; enlarged heads; not quite as much as what you would call human, more humanoid in that way; enlarged eyes.
Q: What about the craft?
B: The craft is still in pieces under surveillance in many different areas of your country – primarily near what you would call the area, Virginia.
Q: What caused the crash?
B: There was surveillance being done by that craft in what you would call a very heavy lighting storm. And there was some portion of what you would call your radar installations that interfered with the guidance systems of the craft, and caused a momentary disruption in the inertial field of the craft, which allowed it to expose a portion of its field, its (area?) layers, to the electricity in the sky. When struck by the electrical charge, it shorted out the craft – and it crashed.
Q: And what was the value that they got out of creating that reality in their lives?
B: You have now been initiated in the 40-year cycle that allows you to begin to be brought into the Association of Civilizations.
Q: I’m talking about the other civilization whose craft crashed.
B: Yes... so are we. In that way, whether they were conscious of what they were doing or not, the incident began a series of events in your civilization that has brought you now to the understanding you have, and the ability to join the Association of Civilizations. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. I was talking about from...
B: Many circumstances will occur that may seem on the surface to be accidental.
Q: I realize that, but...
B: But it did not take that civilization long to realize what the possession of one of their craft would mean to your civilization. And so they became very, very, very, very, connected, in terms of surveillance of your civilization, to assist the understanding on your planet of what you now had come into possession of.
Q: And where are they?
B: They are in the constellation you call Zeta Reticulum. If you wish to familiarize yourself, to some degree, with that civilization, you will find that within your literature are many incidents of interactions between the beings of that civilization and the beings of your own civilization. One of the most well known will be that referred to as Betty and Barney Hill. Research your literature, and you will discover some ideas about that civilization.
Q: Can I ask a couple of questions about the physicality of your civilization?
B: Yes.
Q: Well, since you obviously have some physicality, as you say...
B: Yes.
Q: In what way does that serve you? Do you experience physical pleasure as we do, and how do you procreate?
B: Thank you. To some degree, it serves us by allowing us to interact with civilizations such as your own that need that type of relationship to be able to interact. Also, because we exist in pure ecstasy, in that sense, it is a very pleasurable state in which to exist – as you will soon find out upon your planet as well.

There is nothing wrong with existing as a physical representation of consciousness. Although we are now – as you are going from a transitional third to fourth density, we are going for transitional fourth to fifth – and soon will not have embodiment, because we no longer need it for the idea that we are.

But simply: as a civilization, we chose to experience certain ideas of physical reality, so that we would also be able to exist and assist other civilizations going through a similar experience, to be able to interact with them in terms they would relate to.

We procreate similarly to you, in that sense, although it is more of an energy exchange, an energy activation of the cellular structures of that being to create what you call the fetus – the gestation period being approximately seven of your months, rather than nine. It is born similar to your own, with the energy being born prior to birth, during birth, and after the birth as well. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: I don’t know that it assists me, but it’s interesting.
B: Then it assists you. Thank you very much. Yes!
Q: You already answered it.
B: All right.

Q2: On that note: as you were saying, the 30 years in which we’re beginning to see the dimension that we are headed towards – does that mean the physicality of the bodies that we exist in now will also begin to eventually become more exceeded in the vibration as well?

B: Yes.
Q: So it would mean we will begin to have, in a sense, a lighter, more resonating body?
B: Yes. Things will appear to be brighter to you; you will see colors more clearly. You will see energies that are now invisible to you. You will be able to truly see auric fields, the ethero-magnetic field, and any other interactive vibratory field that connects the idea of your total consciousness upon your planet.
Q: That’s exciting.
B: Yes.
Q: Is there anything more that you could share with us?
B: You will have no disease; you will sleep and eat less. You will create your dreams upon your planet; you will interact with many other civilizations.

You will rebuild many sections of your world, landscaping them into pleasing forms; you will cease to build on many sections of your world. You will build in space; you will explore space and dimensions of time, and other levels of experience.
You will begin to truly see through the illusion of physical reality as your own projection. You will be able to come and go, in and out of your body, at will. You will then find that you no longer need to reincarnate at all, and any time you wish to have the experience for a brief period of time of a physical form, you will simply have a very few bodies that you will all share.

Q: What approximate population size?
B: You will find that within what you call 1,000 of your years, it is likely – not absolute, but likely – that you will be down to what you call 50 million.

Q: What about in 60 years?
B: You may in this way be beginning to reverse the trend down from, approximately, what you would call 6 billion.

For you will find that you really are not overpopulated; you simply do not apportion the land you have in equal ways. But again, once you begin to move out of the phase of reincarnation, and once you allow for more longevity of the lives you already have, then you will decrease your numbers, in that sense.

And many individuals will simply remain as a non-physical support system for those individuals who wish to continue for a time in physical reality. Until at such time – approximately what you call 2 to 3,000 of your years hence – you will no longer need to be physical at all.

Some of you may still remain as a support system – non-physically – for other beings that may then wish to use your physical reality as a new experiential reality – and may begin their cycle anew. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Integrating Negative Patterns & Cycles

Q: You were talking about oxygen having eight molecules?
B: Not eight molecules, eight protons.
Q: Protons. You know that made me think about my expansiveness.
B: Yes, infinity and abundance, yes. It is all interconnected symbolically in the vibration resonance pattern or, shall we say, fingerprints of that idea.
Q: How long is this selfish element going to continue on our planet? It is so widespread.
B: Well again, remember, what you are doing is you are bringing it all up and getting it out of your system. You are now taking every negative cycle and negative pattern and you are reliving this, bringing it all up on the table now, because this is the time of transition and very shortly it will not be possible for these things to really exist. You must deal with them and integrate these ideas into your understanding now.

So bringing them all up on the table allows you the opportunity to view all the negative patterns at once, and decide what they represent to you – what you choose, from this point forward, your world to be. And to give you the opportunity to take the responsibility and the action necessary to create the changes that will allow for these patterns to not have to be believed in. This will all generally take place between your now present time (1995) and your year of 2013.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Integrating The Ten Dimensions Into Your Energy Field

Q: Is there a relationship between the ten fingers and the ten dimensions?
B: Yes, there is, again, five being the number of humanity, but ten being the number of dimensions in your universal reality. And in that you can access those vibrations, you have the extensions of ten fingers so as to correlate, as we said, with the idea of intersecting all the other chakras so that all ten dimensions are present in the alignment that you create, in the blending that you create, with all the other chakras as well.

Q: It would seem then, that by changing the mudras you could either activate or deactivate the system.
B: That is one way, yes. Again, these positions are fine attunements to the different kind of fine vibration that will represent the different intentional ways in which you wish to use the energy that you are channeling through you. That is why it can be any kind of mudra; not only this idea, but anything else that you do with regard to your hands, even to the point of sculpting, or expressing yourself, even when you are talking. The gestures that you make and the motions that your hands go through, have a lot to do with accessing all the different chords of the different dimensions, to weave together this beautiful tapestry of what it is you are attempting to communicate.

This goes on – if you could see yourselves in the way that we see you – you would not just see this defined body, but you would see energy patterns stretching out all over the place. And with even the slightest move of your hand, the fingers extend out to infinity, and there are circles and spheres and vibrational patterns extending everywhere. You are like an explosion of interacting light, with the slightest of motions you are an orchestration of musical light with the subtlest and slightest gestures that you use. So, yes.

Q: How far does our outer body extend out?
B: About six feet.

Q: What about our more subtle bodies?
B: Again, there are a variety of different degrees of this, depending upon your moods, your energy levels, what it is you are channeling through yourselves. But you will find that the auric field generally extends out, in that sense, about six feet on a side, at maximum. Generally speaking, it is about three feet on a side, average. You will find that your fingertips generally define, when your hands are placed out to the side, the general extent of your auric field – again, because the hands need to penetrate beyond that immediate auric field because they are accessing other energy fields as well.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Integrating the Ten Dimensions Into Your Energy Field

Integration

Q: I’ve noticed that my business has gotten very, very busy. At the same time, I have a lot less time.

B: Yes. When you integrate, you create less time. So simply recognize that the time you have is all the time you need.

Q: Okay. And then one other thing I noticed is my husband: it’s like he’s grasping for me, like he feels like I’m disappearing.

B: Show him you are not disappearing; simply allow the individual to see in you a reflection of the potential within himself; to know that nothing is ever lost. That any relationship continues forever, no matter what the definition.

Q: All right. And there was something else; I can’t think of it now; so that’s fine. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Integrity and Karma

Q: Hello!
B: Hello!
Q: Regarding the laws that we agree to abide by within our universe: does functioning within your integrity mean living up to those agreements?
B: It depends. The over-all agreements do not necessarily have to be restricting – something that you know represents your excitement and integrity can alter them in many ways. If they are then alterable – what you are referring to as “laws” – then that, in and of itself, may be a sign of your ability to express your integrity by being able to allow them to transform into something else.

Because when you are totally integrated as a whole, then there are fewer and fewer limiting specifics. You follow me? So the alteration of the so-called laws may actually be an expression of your integrity, in certain circumstances.

Q: Suppose an individual were to go out and kill a hundred people because that’s what excites him? Suppose...
B: But understand: the idea, again, is that “with integrity” means that you are functioning as an integrated being. Integration is functioning as a whole; meaning there is no separation between you and the beings you are killing.

In other words: the recognition that all murder is suicide. And if you wish to truly be empowered, then killing off those beings is like hacking off your own arms and legs. And that is not an expression of integrity or power.

And also, when you use the term excitement in that sense, usually you will find it is not precisely excitement that motivates individuals in that direction. It is the negative polarity of the same energy that creates excitement, but the negative polarity is usually expressed as anxiety. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Suppose the victims agree to be victims?
B: That does not excuse the perpetrator for not being strong enough to not fall into the victim’s game.

Q: What would be the consequences, then of violation of integrity in this fashion?
B: Perhaps you will create another scenario wherein you will have learned that the violation of integrity, in that sense, does not serve to empower you. And then you will express a lifetime, maybe, or an experience, where you will be the expression of integrity.

Some individuals may choose to have other individuals attempt to violate them as a sort of quid pro quo exchange. That is not necessary all the time. An individual who murders an individual in one life does not necessarily have to be murdered in another life, although many have sought the balance in that way.

An individual can, perhaps, talk someone out of murdering someone else, and fulfill the same balance. Do you follow me? But the overall idea, of course, on a very fundamental level, is that to the Oversoul all experiences are learning experiences.
And since you truly are infinite and indestructible – no matter what you have done – whether it be positive or negative, whether it be an expression of integrity or an expression of lack of integrity, you will still exist, you will still learn. You will still grow, you will still change, you will still have new experiences.

So in the overall sense it does not really much matter what you have done. But it is simply up to you to understand that your own life, with the expression of integrity, will be far more joyful, far more connected, far more effortless. And you will be able to create, without any struggle whatsoever, all that you desire.

In expressing lack of integrity, you will find that an individual who does that will struggle, will suffer, will feel powerless, will feel out of control, and will create many, many, many versions of their own expression of negativity within themselves. And not allow them to enjoy life. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Is self-imposed karma, then, a way to balance out the integrity agreements?

B: Sometimes, although again, karma, being completely self-imposed, does not have to manifest in a retribution-style manifestation. Again, the analogy that karma itself is simply the carrying through of a momentum to create a balanced experience.

Again, if you have been a murderer in one life, your self-imposed karma does not insist that you be murdered in the next life to atone for that. You may be able to assist someone either who has had someone close to them murdered, or someone who wants to murder – you may be able to talk them out of it. And that will be just as much of an expression of your balance and karmic imposition as being murdered. And many times just being murdered is not necessarily a true balance.

Q: The balance is something that’s like an absolute that has to be maintained, but the karma does not. That’s something that you don’t have to have, if you don’t have that belief system. Correct?

B: In a sense, correct. But the idea simply is, in the fundamental understanding of karma, is that you’ll usually – since you are a collective event – balance the idea out somewhere within your experience, on some level. And that is all karma really is – is simply the overall recognition of all the balances that you are, all the polarities that you are.

Q: Where did someone like Adolph Hitler come from? I don’t understand…

B: He came from your society; he came as an expression of the combined and collective fears, and perhaps, some self-imposed karmic balances, in a negative way, that your society placed upon itself.

It was an individual who did not feel their own self-empowerment. And so, in your terms, fell into the adoption of the negativity that was sensed in the society, and expressed it as a reflecting mirror back to the society – to show the society what the combined idea of its fears and negative attitudes have been able to create.

Q: That was not functioning within integrity.

B: No. Because it was segregative, separative, domineering. That which needs to dominate does not believe it is in control already.
Q: Okay. Thank you very much.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, very much.
B: Thank you. Sharing!
Integrity and Opportunity

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great. Perfect. Etc.!

Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time with the entitlement, Integrity and Opportunity. We have discussed many times with you the idea of integrity. We have discussed many times the idea of opportunity, and your willingness to act upon those opportunities that appear in your life.

Many individuals have realized that when we say your word integrity, we are not always necessarily talking about that moralistic attitude, although that is included in the whole idea. But integrity as a mechanical aspect of the combination of all that you are, being brought together and functioning as a unified whole. Integration, integrity. Acting in an integrated manner.

Now, when we discuss, from to time, that some of you may choose to function in a manner that represents lack of integrity, we are not, in your terms, besmirching your moralistic attitudes. We are simply discussing, once again, that even though you may have the best of intentions, you may still from time to time because of your habits, because of your assumptions, because of your beliefs, be acting in a non-integrated manner that is still creating separations, still creating segregations – and not pulling yourselves together to function as a unified whole integrated being in a positive way.

Thus recognize that with regard to the connection of integrity and opportunity, many of you will find that from time to time – out of those habits perhaps; out of your choices perhaps: out of your fears perhaps – many of you will still choose to function in non-integrated ways. And this functioning, this choice, can allow you to not necessarily recognize certain opportunities when and where they may appear all around you in very blatant and obvious ways. Perhaps not obvious to you because you are not focused as integrated beings.

We have discussed the idea that if you do in your life what excites you, you will automatically attract all of the opportunities necessary for you to act upon that will represent the path that you chose to be, and will allow you to accelerate in the direction of those things that originally excited you, and increase your excitation exponentially. But many of you have made an assumption that these opportunities must leap out at you in very blatant ways, being very noisy. Not so.

Recognize that an opportunity, by definition, may simply be something you are aware of on a very typical level of awareness. In other words, just because you are aware of its existence, that is an opportunity to know about something; it is an opportunity to act on that thing if it excites you to move in that direction. They do not have to come screaming out of the jungle, as you say, in order to get your attention, in order to be recognized by you as an opportunity. "Well, here I am. I say am functioning within integrity, but nothing is jumping out, jumping up and down, making itself obvious."

But you may be walking down your street every single day ignoring the obvious, the fact that you simply are aware that certain individuals and certain institutions already exist in your society that have everything to do with the type of things you want to do. And you simply are not allowing yourselves to be willing to know that they do – to see the obvious and to boldly go and communicate with those individuals, simply because you think they have to come running to you. No. They have already come running to you; they have come running to you by allowing you to know they exist. Period. They have put themselves out there; they have made themselves known. The rest is up to you.

Yes, sometimes they may act in more blatant ways. But it does not mean that they must, in order for you to consider that as an opportunity, as a representational avenue of the things that excite you. If you are simply aware that something exists, that is reason enough to act upon it. You do not need another invitation. Your awareness of its existence is enough. All that is then left is the willingness that is up to you to determine whether you are truly in synchronous harmony, and In full willingness and belief and integrity about the thing you say excites you the most. Or whether you are still willing to play the shrinking violet, and not want to bother anyone with something that excites you, but, “Well, you’re not sure what might excite them.

If you don’t make yourselves known to those that have made themselves known to you, you will never know because you are not truly acting upon the opportunities that actually do exist all the time, day by day, very blatantly in your society. Many of these things are simply based upon the assumptions that you have been brought up with, the belief systems that have been drummed into you since you were very young: the idea that certain individuals and certain ideas and certain areas are unapproachable.

Why? Nothing is unapproachable. Nothing at all. It is up to you to form the integrated spark of awareness, the Inspirational leap of cognition to know that as you walk down what appears to be a very ordinary and mundane street in your cities, in your world, very often all the signs and all the signals and all the opportunities and all the tools that you really have been asking for are all lined up, one after another, right there every day, right in front of you. All you need to do is (to) start going and interacting with those things that have already made themselves extremely obvious. This is what integrity is all about: acting on every opportunity that makes itself obvious, that is in any way, shape or form connected to the thing that excites you the most in life.

When we say these things will come to you automatically, that does not mean you sit back in your easy chair waiting for them to knock on your door. It means you act upon the opportunities that have already made themselves obvious to you, and then the rest will come in and make themselves obvious as well.

But you must act upon what has already been laid upon your table before the next course can be served. You follow me?

AUD: Yes.

B: So allow the obvious to exist all around you. Allow the opportunities that you seek to already be standing staring you in the face – because many of them are. And you are not going to recognize them as such because you do not believe them to be such, because they are not acting in expected ways. Pay close attention to the assumptions that you may still make, even when you think you understand a metaphysical principle. You may still be clothing it in many of the assumptions of what your society has taught you about how you think it does or does not work.
Always, always it will work in a positive direction for you if you are in fact acting upon the opportunities that present themselves with integrity. Always. Many of you have discussed the idea that things do not seem to be moving in the direction you expect, do not seem to be moving in certain directions when you say, "I know I am functioning within my integrity; I know I am acting upon the opportunities, but I do not see the opportunities come."

But that, once again, is simply a matter of degree of perception of different levels in your society, for many levels still exist. And it is up to you, when you center yourselves and clear yourselves, to recognize that you may yet still be peering through one of those levels and not even knowing that that level exists.

Allow yourselves to recognize the obvious. For many times, because of what you have created your society to be, the truly obvious is not obvious to you at all. Allow yourselves to relax your definitions about what you think a principle is all about, what you think a definition is all about. Incorporate and integrate a broader spectrum of definitions in all that you do. You are surrounded by the abundance that you seek; all you need to do is see it for what it is.

At this timing once again we extend to each and every one of you our unbridled joy at being allowed to interact with the facets of reality that you have created yourselves to be. For you are all unique; and everything you have ever done, inside and outside of integrity, has all been a part of your learning experience, and adds to the whole energy that you are now creating yourselves to be, in the fashion you are creating it. We thank you for your willingness to create the endeavors you have created, to create yourselves to be who you are. You are cherished by many.

We extend our unconditional appreciation and love to you for being willing to interact with us and co-create this interaction in this way, to further the Integration of your society and the respective societies within our Association of Worlds. And in return for this gift you have given us, we ask you. How may I serve you now? Sharing!
Interactions

B: Now, may we continue with an idea that we have been discussing this week of your time: the idea of daring to be yourselves. In this way, allow us to, let us say, precede this idea, if I may become a little bit intimate with you. May I?

Q: Yes.

B: All right. Now, many times you will find that, what you call, the consciousness to which you refer to as ourselves – and many other entities coming through many other channels or mediums upon your planet at this time – allows me to discuss an idea with you in regard to the idea of the channelings that are taking place upon your planet at this time, from many different levels of consciousness . . . do not forget: including your own.

For in this way, as well, your own future selves, your own higher selves, are involved in this process, for they know already where they are headed. And they are looking back, reaching out your hands to yourselves, and helping yourselves across the span of time. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Now understand, that to use your terminology . . . to be colloquial, to be practical for a moment . . . allow us to illuminate the idea that dealing with you as we do, particularly when there is a gathering of you, as opposed to an individual, you will find that though we are creating the interaction with you in the moment, there will be ideas that flow into this interaction, that will regulate the balance of how the information takes place with you.

Recognize it this way, if you will, the idea that with so many differentiating consciousnesses as you have allowed yourselves to create yourselves to be – it is, in a sense, a balancing act to find the commonality by which we can deal on some level that represents something that you can allow yourselves to work with, in terms of information that we can share with you.

Recognize, many times, the polarities, the dichotomies and the paradoxes that we find you have created in your society will enable us, in a sense, to create the type of interactions with you from all the different entities channeling to you at this time, that form a subtle balance, a subtle engineering, of how you receive the information.

Now understand, we are not engineering you against your will. No. What we are doing, however, is choosing, in the moment, from our knowing selves, what type of information will be of best service to the overall understanding and impact. Even though your outer aware immediately focused physical consciousness may not make sense of the immediate idea of the answerings and the sharings that we have with you.

Recognize that this is also part and parcel of what you have many times come to understand as discrepancies in information between various entities. Recognize that you allow us to perform a very delicate balance with you in this way. And the idea of fulfilling assistance to you, in the overall way you do desire us to do so, means that, from time to time, you will find that between all of the consciousnesses that are channeling to you, we will come up with methodologies that may seem to contain discrepancies, differentiations, dichotomies - but that are specifically engineered to bring you to a certain creative pressure point. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Understand that when I told you, in your terms, that my job was an engineer, it is not just a technical engineer, it is a sociological engineer. It is the reason for why I have allowed myself to pattern the interaction with you. It is the idea of the engineering in the now moment of interaction between civilizations.

Understand, we are not meaning, in any way, shape or form, to express this idea as superiority to you. No. But in this way, simply do recognize that we have done this many times. And we do not wish to frustrate you; we do not wish to disappoint you; we do not wish at any time to allow you to feel that we are chastising – that we are, in any way, shape or form not willing to share with you that which your heart so strongly desires. For this is far from the case. Simply, from our point of view, from our experience, the way we are sharing with you is the way that is what will grant you your desires, in regard to what you seek with us and many other civilizations. For in this way, you have created your specific civilization to be a very strongly focused one in its own accord. And any transformation from that focus to another focus is going to contain a large degree of very delicate shifts and balances. And in this way, when we give you a little of this, and share a little of that, when you allow yourselves to come to a point of pondering ideas that have been discussed; when you feel within yourselves that you are at a standstill, at a loss, racked with confusion, doubting yourselves, judging yourselves – feeling chastised, feeling held back: simply allow yourselves to understand that all of the places that you find yourselves to be, are in a sense, a part of the emotionality that needs to be experienced, so that you can engineer yourselves into the appropriate creative pressure points that are the doorways through which you will step and find yourselves where you have for so long desired to be – when your timing is appropriate. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Always, we love you very much, and appreciate your willingness to allow us to interact with you in this way. For always, the interaction with us, for us – with any civilization – has enriched us beyond measure, enriched us beyond counting; enriched us beyond naming. For it allows us the opportunity – as we have shared with you many times – to understand that much more of creation, and all the different ways that All That Is has of manifesting itself within the creation of Itself, and the knowing of Itself through all that it has created within it.

Now, the idea is to allow you to be aware consciously of this type of engineering. Because now you are – since this is the activity time, the doing time – able to begin to know that you are in control of everything that occurs in your lives, and that you are engineers, and you can now consciously recognize that fact. We have not so much been doing the engineering for you, but have only been reflecting to you the engineering that your higher selves have been ordaining, so that you would reach the point you have desired. We thank you for allowing us to reflect this to you in this way; and we will now continue to co-engineer on an equal basis.

Sharing!

Q: An Observatory has discovered three brilliant arcs of blue light, which may be the largest objects in the universe, stretching between galaxies. Each of the crescents is more than three hundred thousand light years long. Could you elaborate on what they are made of and how they were made?

B: We have discussed this idea to some degree before: they are, in a sense, shells of energy, shell representations, if you will. Edge on, so to speak, of the intersection of one universal reality with your universal reality. They represent high, intense energy systems that are the physicalized representation of the intersection of two energy systems operating at slightly different frequencies. This is what represents one dimension of reality – yours, and another dimension of reality.

You will discover throughout your explorations of what you call space that from time to time there will be these arcs of energy that represent the lines, the barriers, if you will, the framework, if you will, between the doorways, the warps, the fabric, if you will, between different dimensions of experience. In a sense, they are an unusual type of linear black hole.

Again, this is a very colloquial term. But they represent high compression points of energy in which you may find the emergence from another dimension and the merger towards another dimension. They are passages, highly compressed energetic forms radiating at a particular intensity. They are the cleavage lines, if you will, between some of the different crystalline structures or variances of one physical reality and another. Is this translating into your language adequately?

Q: I think so; I’ll have to dwell on that.

B: All right. You may liken them, to some degree, to asymmetric ripples, friction interface boundaries, of highly compressed energy, representing the interface of more than one interdimensional reality. Does that make some sense?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Inter-dimensional Tonality

Q: Would you please share, or update us, with what is happening with your civilization?
B: There are many, many, many ideas going on, so I will keep it very brief. We have, as a civilization, now begun to transcend our physicality. We are forming a stronger connection to the civilization, the non-physical portion of the civilization around the star you call Sirius. There is much more blending going on, in that sense.

And as there is more blending going on between our civilization and higher civilizations – for certainly we are nowhere near the top, and there really is no top, by the way – as we join more with our higher selves now, and become less and less physical, we are able to send to you more and more energy to blend your physical and spiritual realities together. And we are able to do this now with more and more civilizations, as we increase in our own self-empowerment.

At the same time, we have begun to understand a whole new level of tonality, of inter-dimensional tonality that our civilization is now synchronizing with. In other words, there are now, from time to time, literally waves of tonality that will go around through our civilization, where you may simply find one person – this is one way this manifests, only one way – one person in one spot may start with a tone. They may then start doing something else, and the tone may not even last that long – then nearby, other people will pick it up. And it will spread as a wave, a circular wave around the planet, until a vast majority of the members of the civilization have actually, as you say, hummed that tone. And we are now synchronizing our consciousness into ONE faster and faster and faster vibration. Do you understand?
Q: Oh, yes.
B: Does this help you?
Q: Yes, thank you.

Inter-dimensional Tonality
Intuition and Intellect

B: All right, I’ll say: how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

B: Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time with a suggestion – if you wish, a motto. And if you wish, a favor. All right?
The favor I will ask, and what can be considered in a sense a model of any interaction we have with you, will be to please! - - please–please – please – please – do not believe anything I say just because I said it. Understand?
AUD: Yes.

B: This is all about self-empowerment. It is all about your recognition of your ability to create the lives you wish to create. We are more than willing to function as reflections, to serve you, to share with you, to love you, to interact with you, to play with you. But remember that we are all – you and us – teachers and learners, equals in that way. We have our own perspectives, and we simply function as mirrors to reflect once again to you the things you already know within you – to show you, to allow you to be aware of things within you that you can then decide are what you prefer. Ideas, perspectives, methodologies in life. Or you can decide you do not prefer them; it is up to you.

This evening of your time let us discuss – and this can be your entitlement – Intuition and Intellect. For many of you, being such a polarized society, have considered these concepts to be (things) that have nothing to do with another. As many polarities are created in your society, very often you have forgotten that they both must come from a single source at the center that has created both polarities. So instinct, intuition and intellect, reason: yes, they are polarities; they are dichotomies, it seems in your society. But they are actually simply variations, or if you wish, degrees of the same consciousness, of the same energy, like anything is.

Intuition, or what you may call instinct, as you recognize it in the animal kingdom, is the same type of energy, the same type of consciousness that you utilize when you allow yourself to become self-aware in an analytical, intellectual, reasoning focus idea. It is the same consciousness.

The animals, in a sense, are self-aware. It is simply that they do not have the degree of persona focus in the same way that you do. It can be said that consciousness in its natural homogenous state, when it is All That Is, undergoes degrees of focus, of self-limitation, of self-compaction. The animal level of consciousness represents to some degree one level of compaction, but the analytical, the intellectual focus represents a higher degree of compaction. That is all; that is the only difference between intellectual and instinct.

This is one of the reasons why – in having created the polarity in your society of scientific thought and belief on faith – why you have created such a polarity, and sometimes such a war between these two ideas. For each side fears the other side for what it believes to be an absolute opposite of the way it chooses to function. And it fears to incorporate, blend and balance the other side for fear that they will lose what perspective they have... rather than recognizing they will simply gain an opportunity to blend and balance that perspective with another aspect of the same consciousness.

It is not truly opposite in the sense that it has nothing to do with the way you might think or you might feel. Your scientists in that sense have simply been hesitant to rely on instinct or intuition, because when you begin to do that, you soften the focus of your persona. And it does, quote/unquote, not allow for as high a degree of concentration of compaction of analysis, intellectualization, rationalization, and the like.

But in no way, shape or form does it mean that intuition is an invalid way to access information. And those that are more instinctive do not have to fear they will become trapped in a quagmire of tunnel vision if they simply are willing to adopt aspects of blending in reason and intellectuality. These ideas can be blended, can be balanced. One is simply an extension to a higher degree of the other. But it is all one consciousness.

This is one of the reasons why we have discussed many times why in a sense animal consciousness is an extension of you, and in a sense you are an extension of it. You are reflections of each other. What you call instinct and intellect are simply different degrees of the same consciousness, different applications, if you will. You can blend and balance these things, and it will not be at the cost of your reason. Nor will it be at the cost of your intuition. You will have both. Both will be applied when and where they are needed. Both are natural in that sense, natural to anything that considers itself to be a sentient being. It is one of the things that is representative of the blending and the balancing going on in your transformational age.

You are never now – after what you have been through – going to become absolutely 100% instinctive. You are not going to become 100% intellectual. In blending both, you will be able to apply, where necessary and when necessary, all attributes. Remember that fourth density is the integration of everything you have ever been, not the exclusion of it. It is the integration of all of it, and the use of all of it when and where it applies – in Perfect timing, in total trust (and) absolute clarity of reason and insight, in both senses of the term. You all follow along?

AQUD: Yes.

B: So in the idea of any interaction with us – whether you choose to use intuition or intellect in interacting with us, allow us to remind you that the idea is a balance. Not the idea that one way or another has to overcome the other way, but of balance, of allowance, of trust, of integration.

At this timing allow us to extend once again to each and every one of you our utmost appreciation in your willingness to co-create this interaction. To allow us to share and drink deeply of the consciousness that you are uniquely, to give us an appreciation of the differences and the diversity you have created yourselves to be. And simply to have fun with you: to share, to play, to love, to grow together as equals in our own ways. For this gift I ask you now: how may I serve you?
Invalidating

Q: I have about nine million questions. In Hawaii...
B: Yes.
Q: I've been a basket case since I came back from Hawaii...
B: Basket case?
Q: Oh (...inaudible) (bananas?) Anyway...
B: Are you sitting up?
Q: Yes.
B: Continue. Speak out.
Q: Yes. Um... when I came I was really in love with my life until I went to Hawaii. And then I came back, and I realized that I was experiencing some kind of a wonderful spiritual peace. And since I've been back, I'm realizing that emotionally I'm really angry, and it's not tolerable. Just everything. I mean it just...
B: Why are you invalidating? Instead of allowing the idea you call anger not to be negative, but to be an aligning idea. Now that you have aligned with more of your energy, you come back into a scenario where all of the different situations in that scenario all constantly now reinforce the reality you know to be true for you. So why should you be angry at it?
Q: I don't know. But that was...
B: It is because you are invalidating it; that is why.
Q: Oh, yes.
B: It is providing a service for you by showing you, in no uncertain terms, that you have blended with more of yourself in the Hawaii experience; and now that you come back into the scenario, you recognize there is that much more of a difference between you.
Q: Yes.
B: So, be joyful! You have been shown by the reflection of your previous existence that you have changed drastically.
Q: Yes.
B: So why invalidate it? Love it; do not be angry.
Q: Oh, okay. I can do that.
B: Thank you.
Q: Uh, I have more. I was working with Charlene on a lot of her channeling. And I have some questions about one of the-- I'm not sure-- I'll just use this word "entities," because it seems, in my perspective, that they were entities. One of them kissed my hand and held it, and drank water from me. And someone during the break told me that was something that Ramtha does. And so my question is, is this-- was that entity Ramtha, or a relative of Ramtha?
B: Not distinctly, in that way. It was more the idea of tapping into the energy level that may represent that consciousness; but it was also a symbolic indication of some of the higher consciousness that you both share together, and other lives you have lived.

Q: Oohhh! (Excited and laughing)
B: All right! End of conversation
Q: I have one more question...
B: END of conversation!
In Validation and Judgment

Q: I want to further clarify judgment. Correct me a little bit if I go astray. I experience judgment. (AUD: laughs and comments)

Q: Okay. I experience judgment as – on a personal level – as something, let us say, I judge a chair. See, I’m trying to differentiate designating something... say: “Hey, that person’s fat,” versus “Hey, that person’s, I don’t like what they...” you know. In other words a judgment.

B: An observation...

Q: Is different. Yeah, okay. All right. So judgment is... I feel, that when I’m judging I’m altering. I’m bringing in another time, another experience, as a comparison, and running a polarity on them. Is that, is that...

B: You can also do a comparison in an objective way without invalidation. Invalidation is the judgment.

Q2: Good bad, right, or wrong.

B: Yes.

Q: The superlatives. Okay. So...

B: The idea of saying, all right, I am in a linear time flow... this now weighs less than it did before.

Q: Okay.

B: You’re not invalidating the situation.

Q: Okay, so I’m just clarifying this further now. So, to invalidate something on a definitional, experiential level, is to, in a sense, put...

an unwillingness to validate... or an unwillingness to allow that thing to be.

B: Yes.

Q: An urge to alter it.

B: This weighs less than it did before. There’s something wrong with that, as an experience.

Q: So it’s uh, it’s an urge, or it’s uh, it’s uh, it’s sort of a putting a...

Q2: A denial.

Q: ...denial. Yes. There you go.

B: Yes! Yes.

Q: Okay.

B: Thank you.

Q3: Do we choose our parents?

B: Yes, and they choose you.

Q: Okay. I have another question. You said before that one of the things that separates whales and us from our pets is that we think and they just know. What about apes?
B: The idea is that you are projecting a portion of your consciousness into that animal fragment of your consciousness, to represent and exemplify connections to the basic fundamental, foundational physiological form, that you extracted your present model from.

Q: Hmm. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
IS BODY IN SPIRIT OR SPIRIT IN BODY?
August 22, 1997

We begin this transmission this day of your time with the following idea of consciousness. The idea now is that there is still going on on your planet, as we perceive it, much controversy about the idea of consciousness. Where does it come from? Is your physical brain producing your conscious mind, or does your consciousness exist before your physical brain?

From our point of view, it is more the idea of the latter in that there is a consciousness that exists prior to the idea of physical manifestation. Many things you create in your technology of your planet give you in some sense a reflective clue that this is so. For example, you have in your technology the medium you call film; you also have the medium you call electromagnetic tape. If you take a moment to examine these technological mediums, you will understand that each of them is a recording medium that allows for an expression to be perceived, transmitted and communicated. But the images on the film and the voice on the tape are not the original voice or image; they are a recording medium that allows for transmission and storage of this information.

Thus you know instinctively and innately that the images of the people on the film are not the real people, but, in a sense, above, beyond or outside the film. Yet the film presents what you would call a lifelike representation and allows a communicative medium to transmit information—things people might have done, things people might have said. So too the physical body and the brain are like such a medium: a recording, a storage and transmission medium to allow the expression of consciousness in physical terms.

The physical brain is not creating the consciousness. However, it is creating a type of expression of consciousness, because anything that manifests itself into physicality must have a corresponding counterpart, process or function that represents what is going on.

To some degree this is what is causing the confusion among your scientists. They see the electro-chemical and the electromagnetic activity of the brain, and they say, "Could these electrochemical and electromagnetic effects be responsible for the idea of the creation of consciousness?"

The answer is no, but these electrochemical and electromagnetic effects in the brain are responsible for creating the environment, the atmosphere, the electromagnetheric field and the electro-biochemical field through which consciousness can express itself and without which consciousness would not be capable of expressing itself in the physical medium—at least not to the same degree you understand it now and not to the same degree of precision and/or clarity.

So while the brain is creating a type of resonance echo of what the consciousness intends (and it is in that sense creating a level of consciousness presentation), it is not creating the original consciousness. The brain in that sense is a recording, storage and transmission medium.
Like your film and tape, you know that what is on the film or tape, what is coming through the brain, originates far beyond and above what is actually physically there. This is the nature of how physical reality functions – really only as a transmission device, an in-between device ... a recording, storage and transmission medium for consciousness that chooses to express itself in this particular modality.

This extends out even beyond your physicalized form (your body, as you say) in what you call your electromagnetheric field - electromagnetic or electromagnetheric, whichever you wish to use. (There are some subtle differences in definition, but for the purposes of this conversation they will be the same.) This field around your body that extends far from your body is what some of you call the aura. The aura is really a combination of many different resonance fields but is the electromagnetheric one in particular. That is one of the first levels in which consciousness expresses itself when it decides to become physically materialized.

Consciousness, when it decides to experience itself and express as a physical being, will first create the idea of an electromagnetic field ... this is what you call spirit or the electric body or the astral body. Although it is a little above, etheric or electromagnetic is the consciousness expressing itself for the first time in physical materiality. It is like the idea of steam turning into liquid water, slowing down its vibrational rate and then moving from liquid water (electromagnetic energy or spirit into physicality) to ice. It solidifies into the idea of physical density or materiality but the first level (the electromagnetic level, the ectromagnetheric level) is spirit. It is your consciousness expressing itself as spirit. And because it is the larger level, the first level before physical densification, it is bigger than your body because your body is in your spirit. Your spirit is not in your body. Your physical aura, your electromagnetic field, is bigger than your body because that is a bigger idea of you. In the same way that water is more free-flowing, steam can extend much farther than ice.

The idea is that the spirit, the electromagnetic field, contains the body. Once you create the electromagnetic field, that parameter or diameter remains. Then in the center of the body it crystallizes, it densifies out of that field. When the body densifies it still has the field around it of more refined, less-dense energy, and that is your spirit-self. So your spirit extends beyond your physical body, and it is through this electromagnetheric field that you pick up on all the subtle vibrations of communication going on between all of you telepathically.

There are refined levels. The immediate level, the densest level of the spirit form before physicality, really extends from your body only a few feet or a few yards, depending on your level of energy. But there is a very refined level of that electromagnetheric field that is your consciousness, which actually covers or surrounds your entire planet and encompasses everyone.

So all your fields are interlocked; this is what allows a telepathic communication within the electromagnetheric field. This is how you use the mechanism to create your mass agree-upon reality so that you can experience the same kind of game, generally speaking, with everyone else. Of course there is a level in your consciousness above and beyond that, where you are all one, where you are communicating instantaneously with each other. But everything done on a higher level also has its physiological counterpart to some degree. Thus the electromagnetheric field that interpenetrates every other person’s electromagnetheric field is the level that reflects and exemplifies, represents in physical terms, the instantaneous connection all of you have on higher levels beyond the physical life is like bubbles and bubbles and bubbles and bubbles – all interlocked, all inter-linked, all containing one and the other – all Interpenetrating, resonating, vibrating together even while you are vibrating at your own unique frequency.

You also have a mass-consensus frequency that allows you to stay in touch. Of course, some of you don’t. Those are the people you generally call insane. It is not that they are not perceiving a reality just as real as e from the present, since all lives are simultaneous, and it is for the purpose of putting them to use that these connections are being made. So let us get right to the point of application of the reason you are making the connection to that time period rather than dwelling in the past.

Q: Is the Sphinx fifth-density?
There is a fifth-density component to it, but obviously it is a third-density structure as well.

Q: Has it actually been created by our time, or is It not yet created in our time?
In some sense there is a component of its construction wherein this is true. However, like we said in our opening monologue, everything that is above has a counterpart below. Specifically, in this way you will find that the creation of the so called Sphinx and certain of the ancient pyramids, while they do have energy counterparts or higher-dimensional realms, obviously they were also intended to have physiological counterparts of your Earth – so that a link and bridge could be formed, so they could act as conduits from your world to higher dimensional resonance’s and frequencies. Were not the physicality there, were not the physical representation also created, then you would not necessarily find it as easy to make the link to the higher dimensions through the structures that exist on your planet. So although many higher energies were invoked in its creation, obviously the idea of third-density reality was also involved or you wouldn’t be seeing a structure.

Q: When was it built?
Approximately what you would call 10,400 BC.

Q: And is there a gateway that uses nonlinear vibration, a very specific vibration to a transformational door or gateway there.
Yes.

Q: Could you illuminate any other information on how to use it?
How to use it is tantamount to learning to be yourself, for when you are your full self, then your frequency is at the highest resonant level it can possibly be. The Sphinx and many other such structures created in your ancient times are keyed to those high, high-frequency resonant levels so that when they recognize a similar level of frequency being reflected back to them, they open automatically. They are keyed to high levels of resonance.

Q: Can you say in what way they would open.

There are a variety of ways in which they will open. There are actually physical doorways that open when they recognize the correct frequency that leads to underground chambers that many of you have now begun to realize exist but which you have not yet gone into physically. There are also dimensional gateways, and the idea again is simply that they are keyed to certain frequencies. When they are in proximity to those frequencies—or, more precisely, when someone of that frequency is in proximity to that gate—it opens up. Now, the nonphysical ones will allow such people who are triggering such gates to suddenly be capable of seeing into other dimensions. They might see things that other people even a few yards away will not see, because the doorway will be oriented to their vision and their frequency. They might literally see many things that exist in other dimensional realms; that’s one way that those inner-dimensional gates can open.

The physical gates can also open in a similar fashion, though it is more likely that if the physical gate opens, people in the general vicinity will most likely be capable of seeing that. You follow!

Q: Yes. Would we, being third-dimensional beings, actually need to be in the physical presence of the Sphinx in Egypt?

For now, yes, most of you would have to be.

Q: What about access to the compartment where the orb and the gateways actually are, which the public is not allowed access to?

In terms of what you would call astral access, all of you have the ability to do that. But the idea that it is up to you to determine whether you have the ability in general to allow yourself to be conscious of that experience, of that access, when you do it astrally? Many of you might do it astrally yet might not allow yourselves to remember that you have done so. But all of you have the potential now when you so-called "leave" your body, as you say. You all have the ability. Many of you actually have had the experience of visit in those gates and going into them, going into the chambers, seeing what is there. But for a variety of reasons (one might be that many of you still buy into the consensus reality), many of you choose to forget that you have been there yet retain the urge, the drive, to find out what is there. So sometimes that urge, that drive, that curiosity to find out what is there, actually comes from having been there but not remembering. This way you give yourself the opportunity to bring it down to Earth, so to speak, by knowing that there is something important to find there, then creating a series of physical circumstances that would actually bring about the discovery in physical terms and so reveal it to the physical world which would then complete the circuit from higher to lower. You follow this?

Q: Yes. Now, is there actually a mechanical orb inside?

Yes.

Q: And is it triangular in shape?

No.

Q: Can you give us any more on what the purpose of the orb is? What we had got-ten from the session was that there was actually a consciousness to it!
There is a consciousness to everything. Everything is consciousness.

Q: And that it was fully awake but lacking motivation.
That could be a euphemistic way of saying that it recognizes it is about to be activated, but also recognizes that the critical mass on your planet has not been reached for it to be bothered with full activation yet.

Q: He also got that visuals were dependent upon specific intersecting frequencies vibrating at an unusual speed or level, sight unseen.
Yes, but this is simply a technical way of saying that when the right frequencies are present, they will automatically know, what to do and will automatically cause things to happen. You don’t have to think about it in technical terms, "Let’s see, do I have the right frequency here and the right frequency there?"

It can be done that way, but from our point of view that is the more difficult and backward way. That is attempting to render every single component, every single detail, in the appropriate place first instead of simply letting the event orchestrate itself automatically by being the correct generally frequency and knowing that all the pieces will automatically fall into place when they recognize that the general theme has been played.

We take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing this connection to be made through this gateway and in-this manner at this time. Each and every time: you allow our civilization to form a bridge, to form a link through this telepathic modality with your civilization and allow this communication to come through this particular medium, this window, this gateway, we then get to experience through each and every one of you, through our interactions: with each of you, that many more perspectives of creation; and this interaction allows us to experience expansion of all: the different ways that the infinite can express itself. So we thank you for this expansive gift.
B: All right, I'll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all?

Audience: Great, perfect, incredible!!!

B: Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you individually and all of you together collectively for allowing the co-creation of this interaction, this transmission through this gateway, in this way, at this time. Once again, each and every time you allow such a communication to occur, it affords our civilization an opportunity to see that many more ways that the Infinite has of expressing itself within Creation. So we thank you for this gift of sharing, gift of exchange and gift of expanded awareness.

We would like to begin this transmission with a few different ideas, this day of your time. First and foremost, we would like to acknowledge that an individual known to many of you, on your planet, has made a transition into absolute awareness of the existence of what you would call extraterrestrial beings and spirit beings. This is the individual you understand to be named as Carl Sagan. In this way you will find that this individual has translated into the non-physical, and now is very aware of the existence of many different types of life. We would, perhaps, chance to say he is aware that there are billions upon billions.

Audience: (much laughter) Please give our love.

B: It is received and understood; the message sent back is: "I had to play a certain part, in a certain way, at a certain time." It is understood that this part had to be played so that there would be the creation of the polarity necessary for individuals to decide for themselves what they wanted to believe, which way they wanted to go, and how it was to be that information would be released and played out, in time and in timing, in the society to which this individual used to belong. The irony, now, is that this individual in spirit will actually, in some senses, participate in the assisting of the acceleration of the day and time when and where future meetings between extraterrestrials and your people will occur. The idea, therefore is, as has been expressed, yes, send your support, send your love, for this individual now sees the bigger picture of the part that this individual played in the physical life and now has awareness of what the entire agenda, at least on a certain level, is really all about.

We would now like to continue this transmission beyond this acknowledgement, in the acknowledgement of another type of being that many of you know about, in what you would call your spirit of the season, as we recognize it upon your planet, in your culture at this time, specifically, the idea of what you call your Santa Claus.

Audience: I just did a painting of him tonight with a wizard’s hat on.

B: All right, we understand. We would like to express the idea of, shall we say, the origin of this idea and the recognition that there actually, in a sense and in a certain context, is such a being, in what you would call very ancient recognition of the archetype that exists in your collective consciousness. You will recognize that, as many your psychologists have begun to understand, an archetypal expression that is a representative portion of the collective consciousness of your entire culture, or at least a large portion of it, by no means, in any way, shape or form means that it is imaginary, in the sense that it doesn’t exist. Archetypes, though, in a sense, generated by the collective consciousness do experience autonomy; do know themselves as individuated levels of consciousness. Because you are made in the image of the Infinite Creation and every thought you have can do nothing but help but create a real reality, on some level, in some way.

Many of the ideas of, what you call, your nature spirits and other forms of archetypal presentation, mythological beings as such are, in a sense, concocted and created by the combined energy of the collective consciousness of your planet. In a sense, given light, given breath, given reality, given existence, because they represent a facet or a faction of the collective being that all of you together are. As such, they do, as we have said, have a type of autonomy, a type of individual experience.

The idea is that this being that you have come to know in your modern day language as Santa Claus, in perhaps, the older vernacular as Sinterklaas, is really a nature spirit. In that sense, and you have, in some senses, I will not mean this necessarily in a negative way, but in some senses, distorted some of the original ideas, or shall we say transmuted or translated some of the original energies representative of this being into your modern context. In some senses having, shall we say, lost some of the original understanding of what this being was all about. But still to some degree representing the original attribute of this entity.

In your understanding of the idea of Santa Claus as a gift giver, this is a more fundamental recognition of the idea of the power of that particular entity, of that nature spirit. And the idea is that it is, to some degree, representative of the concept of the third law: What you put out is what you get back. The idea of what many of you call the karmic balance, in that, in your modern vernacular, the idea colloquially put, of not being nice and so getting no presents or being good and getting favors is a reflection of the original ideas that this was, in a sense, a "karmically" reflective entity. In other words, it reflected exactly the idea of the energy of any particular entity or individual it encountered. So the idea of negative intention was reflected back as negative experience. Positive intention reflected back as positive experience by this being, by this nature spirit, by this archetypal facet of your collective reality.

In many ways, because it is an exemplification of the idea of nature, it expresses, as many ideas of nature spirits do, archetypically, many attributes found in nature, in a sense, a combination or collection of many attributes found in the idea of the animal kingdom and so forth. So, for example, the idea of what you now have relegated to be the reindeer of Santa Claus is not so much the idea of reindeer pulling a sleigh, but the idea of the association to that particular animal totem, if you will. And also the recognition that the hoof prints left in the snow, in that sense, in many occasions, do not actually belong to the reindeer, but to this entity itself. For it has, in that sense, some of the attributes of the reindeer including the idea of the hoof, when it is taking physical form. It does not always exist in the idea of what you would call physical material form. But when it concentrates its energy or its energy is concentrated by a collective awareness or a collective focus on the part of your people, thus, giving it more chance to materialize or crystallize into a sort of solid form in your reality.

It does take on the attributes of the idea of nature, including the idea of animalistic attributes from time to time. The idea, also, is that it exemplifies many other facets and attributes that you have, in that sense, attributed to the idea of Santa Claus. The idea of the red suit, in that sense, is actually the idea of what might be called, "cloak of night." But in this sense, the idea of red is that it represents the fundamental lifeblood of the being, and the idea of the vibration of grounded reality and what might be called the root chakra of your energy system. Thus, it is a representation of something very, as you would say earthly and fundamental in the idea of being rooted into nature, and the representation of the manifestation of gifts and abundance that are all around you in nature; that which is always there for you, always is now and always shall be. And so, on that fundamental level the idea of the gift giving idea of nature, represented in this particular archetypal facet or entity.

So, do understand that it is actually quite possible, from time to time, when the circumstances warrant it, to actually find yourself interacting in the appropriate state with this actual entity, though you may not recognize it in a way that you have depicted it exactly in your society. You will find that it is actually, shall we say, in a sense, a changeling, a shape shifter, in that it may present itself in a variety of ways, depending on, again, what it is reflecting back to you, if and when it is encountered. And also representative, in general, of the collective, shall we say, spirit or emotional mood of the collective society, whether the whole society or a large group, as it may be occurring in any given moment.

So, allow yourself to understand this being does exist, though not always in the way that you may think of it and, in that sense, it is quite possible to encounter this being when you get in touch with the idea of abundance of nature in its most fundamental form, in its most well grounded and earthly-rooted form. And when you allow yourself to be out in the idea of the wilderness, from time to time when conditions are right, this entity can be manifested and can be encountered, just like many other kinds of ideas of spirit contact can manifest and can occur with regard to the natural kingdom of things, as it is representative of that portion of your collective consciousness and a REFLECTION back to you of attributes each and every one of you individually contain.

Is There a Santa Claus?
It Is All One Spontaneous Event

Q: I’m a procrastinator, and there’s…
B: Wait a minute… (Laughter as he just sits there doing nothing). Just want you to feel at home.
Q: Oh good, thank you.
B: All right. Now you may continue, if you feel like it. Would you like to come back tomorrow?
Q: No, I’m here. I’m all right once I get started.
B: All right.
Q: It’s getting started that’s the hard part. Especially…
B: Oh, one more time; one more time. It’s what?
Q: Getting started, that’s the hard part.
B: “It’s getting started that’s the hard part.” Is this another phrase that you have chiseled into steel, when, in fact, it’s only written on paper? When, in fact, it’s only a belief? When, in fact, it’s only a habitual way of looking at things? When, in fact, it’s only an assumption?
It’s getting started that’s the hard part. All right. Maybe that has been, in the past, your experience. But that doesn’t mean that right now it’s still not, at this very moment, an assumption all over again; from scratch; from the beginning. It is just an assumption?
Why is getting started any harder than doing it? Your society has taught you that it is. But it doesn’t have to be – not really.
Q: It seems like when something is important fear comes in.
B: Doesn’t have to be; but we recognize what you are saying, yes. It goes hand in hand with many of the insecurities, the lack of deservability that many of you have been taught to believe in about yourselves. “I can’t do that.”
But again, remember that if you can imagine it, that’s your signal that you can. Or you would have imagined something else.
Q: It just seems to be a pattern – like you say.
B: All right. But again, once you recognize it’s a pattern, it’s no longer a pattern. And that’s only an excuse.
Q: But if you recognize the pattern, and the pattern continues, it’s still a pattern.
B: No.
Q: Apparently.
B: No.
Q: Oh, it’s not a pattern?
B: No. Once you recognize it as a pattern, then if it continues, it’s because you choose to continue it – consciously. Now, if you no longer choose it, then don’t continue it. But once you have recognized it was a pattern, it’s no longer a pattern.

Q: Then it’s a conscious choice at that point.

B: Yes. The only thing that makes it seem as if it has to continue as a pattern is your assumption that it must. That’s it. It doesn’t have to.

Q: Right. Thank you very much.

B: Does that assist you?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you for waking up a little bit more.

Q: Good.

B: And besides, you started this long ago. You’re already well on your way. Remember also, that starting and doing is the same thing. It’s all one event. If you cease to think of it as a beginning and middle and an end... and in between here... and ooh, how long is it going to take to get from there to there, and so on and so forth?

If you stop parceling it out, it will be more of a single spontaneous event, with the beginning, the middle, the end, so to speak, all being very close – and sometimes even overlapping. And sometimes, even the ending coming first.

Allow yourself more spontaneity and more trust; and there will not have to appear to be so many beginnings to things. Remember, remember, remember; the end and the means are not separate. The end is the means; the means is the end; one and the same thing.

Cause and effect are the same event, one and the same act. Right now. Thank you. Sharing!

It is All One Spontaneous Event
It Is Always Now

Q: Can you explain a little more on how consciousness is only now?
B: Well, we could put it this way: there really is only a single moment of creation. Anything you may consider to be a different moment is actually the same moment from a different point of view. And if that physical reality experience, by definition, contains a linear framework of space/time in which to experience ALL that exists within the single moment of creation, then by definition, it must be experienced in linear fashion. And so creates the ability to look at that single moment from all the different points of view that it can, but because of the time/space reference, experiences everything in that single moment, one after another – because that’s the definition of physiological perception. Does that make some sense to you?
Q: Some, I’m a little bit confused.
B: All right. The idea is, again, to understand that everything is really only one thing. Does that make some sense to you?
Q: Absolutely.
B: In understanding that everything is ONE THING, then you must understand that it all exists, shall we say, at once. Does that make some sense to you?
Q: I getting there, I’m starting to understand what you are saying.
B: All right.
Q: It is difficult to understand.
B: Yes. You can understand it to whatever degree or whatever way seems, again, applicable to your life. You don’t necessarily have to have any particular kind of understanding of this, except that which suits you best.
But the idea is that there really is only one, shall we say, moment. And even this is a euphemism, since moment implies some concept that there may be other moments. But, I’ll ask you this question, perhaps this will bring it into focus, this may seem, in some senses, like a joke, but in some senses it is not: anytime you look to see what time it is, is it not always now?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, doesn’t that give you a clue? There can only be now. You cannot actually say that you are experiencing then; you can only experience yourself as you are. Every experience you have of yourself is always going to be an experience you are HAVING. What you call an experience YOU WILL HAVE, or an experience YOU HAVE HAD, are simply other experiences you are HAVING from a different point of view. Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: We thank you.
From: “Jesus Said”
January 13th 1986
BASHAR: All right, I’ll say: how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
Audience: Great, Wonderful, Etc.
B: Before the idea of sharing, we will begin a discussion on conviction, as we have discussed the idea of a new understanding of yourselves as beings that are now willing to put into action all that you have previously imagined – previously thinking that your imagination was not real to you. As we have been discussing, you have created this idea, and all the symbology within this idea of your new year, for the purpose of recognizing that you are a new you, a new personality, a new being, a new consciousness, a new idea of yourselves. Within this idea you can also understand that not only as individuals but as a society you are transforming, changing the idea of yourselves and willing to act upon those ideas and to have conviction; to know that you can express who and what you feel yourselves to be this time of your time.
Now, recognize that the more you are willing to allow yourselves this freedom of action, the less you will create for yourselves the opportunities to sit around and complain about the way things are that you do not like. For you will now begin to see the idea of the connection of everything in your society as it relates to you, and as you relate to it. You will begin to understand that you, each individual within your society, makes a difference within that society.
Recognize you have chosen your purpose in being in this society at this time upon your planet and in your civilization. Recognize that if you were not going to make a difference, you would not be here, Are you all following along?
Audience: Yes.
B: Each individual will make a difference in this society as a total, as a whole. This allows the society to recognize, within each individual within it, the ability of the society to relate to each individual specifically, and the ability of each individual to recognize within him or herself the totality of the society. This thus forms the first bridge and link and connection from the individual self, from the personality to the mass consciousness, allowing you to know that every move that you undertake, every move that you support, every move that you create, will always– because you are connected to everything else–act as a lever for everything else, subtly shifting ideas in one direction or another.
You will know that you are connected in various ways through the mental fields that you create upon your planet, through the physiological fields that you create through manipulation of the energy fields of the planet itself.
All the ideas that you call your civilization will be physiologically and mentally, emotionally and consciously and spiritually–all diversifications out of the same primal homogenous energy field, the primal consciousness; all are diversifications out of that. And all are, as we have said many times, the idea of the difference shelves, the different layers so to speak, of the idea of the onion on your planet.
Many different layers have been created by you out of the homogenous oneness of the energy field that is the underlying primal foundation of all creation that you call physical.

As you diversify these layers, recognize that because you are creating the diversification, you are still connected to every single layer. You are connected and pass through all layers from without and from within. All Layers are within you, and every move that you make within yourself is a move made in the outer physical awareness—because the outer physical reality is only a reflection of every idea that you are exploring within the self. To travel, to move through the physical reality—no matter what the mode of your force; no matter whether you are walking, whether you are running, whether you are riding in one of your automobiles or whether you are flying in one of your airplanes; whether you are in spacecraft—any idea of motion through space is the idea of movement within, exemplified and reflected back to you as a symbol.

Recognize therefore, the idea that each and every one of you has an effect upon the society as a whole with every small subtle movement that you make. For every movement—every movement—is not insignificant to any other movement. All movements are equal, and go into the totality of the creation of your society as you perceive it. Now that you are beginning to recognize that there is no longer any separation between yourselves as individuals and your society, you can begin to recognize that as you move, the society moves as a whole. You are immersed in the fluid.

Every other being, every other individual, every other self-created perspective within that fluid, will always feel the eddies and the currents as You make your move around in the fluid. They will always be able to sense the directions of your flow, the directions of your movement, the strength that you give, the energy that you impart to the fluid. All, whether you know it or not consciously, are sensitive to this activity, sensitive to your willingness to be exactly who and what you are, what you chose to be in this life. Are you following along?

Audience: Yes.

Q: Therefore this evening we will discuss later on some ideas specifically relating to suggestions for what may exist within every one of you pertaining to your willingness to communicate these ideas that you wish to be. Your ability to be willing to ad upon these ideas in specific ways. Now recognize two things: one, it will not make any difference to us whether you do so or not. You will be doing this for yourselves, not for us.

Therefore, number two, recognize we are not charging you with a task. We are simply putting forth suggestions. We have perceived from you that many individuals are willing to do these ideas, but simply are still separating the answer from themselves, creating the question, "How do I do this?" Thus we will offer suggestions. By no means what we say—will it be definitive, and will it be the only way? No! Each and every one of you, with your imagination, may alter what we suggest. And you know that the way your imagination chooses to alter what anyone suggests represents the vibration and the methodology and the means that is pertinent and true for you. You all follow along?

Audience: Yes.
B: We will discuss these ideas after your break. We will also be, a little bit at that time before we get into that idea, discussing some of what many of you have many times asked about–how we perceive you. In this way, at the beginning of the second portion of this evening’s discussion, there will also be the creation that was instituted by Erica and the physical channel, which will be of some assistance in exemplifying to you some of how we perceive your society from time to time, and why many times you will find that we can, with you, co-create the idea of difficulty in communication with out relative terms as we understand existence, and your relative terms as you have chosen to create your understanding of existence.

Therefore, within this entire idea we will now begin the idea of sharing, recognizing that whether or not you choose to ask a question or make a statement of yourself, all will be considered equal sharing and all will be an unconditionally loving gift, so that every being that hears every other being has the willingness to have the conviction to share vocally with every other being that you have attracted to you this night of your time, and with us. You will then learn that everything that is said; everything that you can hear; everything that you attract yourselves to hear has something to do with a part of you. Otherwise you would not be involved in the interaction that you are perceiving. Remember that everything you perceive, you only perceive because you contain it. That which you do not contain, the idea which you are not, you do not encounter. Do you follow me?

Audience: Yes.
B: Sharing!
Q: Bashar?
B: Yes!
Q: I’ve been encountering an image–twice on my trip. The first time I did a tape called "Time Traveler," where the hypnotist takes you back through certain places on the Earth. While I was under, he asked us to go to Atlantis, and I found myself hovering over the island of Bimini, where I’d been three years ago personally. I was very confused, and....
B: Why?
Q: Well, I didn’t expect to see Bimini. It was like, "Wow! It’s Bimini!" I was there....
B: But recognize that that was one of the western most portions of the island chain that you recognize as Atlantis.
Q: Yes. It was very exciting. Because I realized that I had actually been back over Atlantis when I was in Bimini. It was very exciting.
B: Yes!
Q: Anyway, he said to hover over Atlantis. And then the image changed and I saw this–I call it a crystal temple.
B: Yes.
Q: It was very, very tall and narrow. I believe it was a three sided pyramid, which is symbolic for me obviously.
B: Yes. Also to us.
Q: Oh! Okay.

B: Understand the triad idea we have discussed with you many times.
Q: Oh, yes. Okay, let me look at my notes here...I also talked to someone, and I observed the propulsion system they used for a certain transport vehicle, After this, the hypnotist suggested that we hover over Atlantis and watch its destruction. I found myself hovering over this crystal temple, and I saw a blinding white light and felt in my vibration a hum that was uncomfortable–actually I didn’t really feel it; I remember it in myself.
B: Yes
Q: And I didn’t really feel it; I remember it in myself....
B: Very, very deep thrumming.
Q: Yes, It was disturbing.
B: Yes. It did much disturbance, yes. It set up the sympathetic vibrations in the crustal plates that caused the subterranean gas chambers to collapse, which caused the inundation of those island masses.
Q: Interesting. Then a week or so later...a friend of ours is a hypnotist, and he decided to do a little exploration. He took us under, and then he had us walking through a forest. Then he said, "I’d like you to come upon a temple in the forest." As soon as he said that, saw the same crystal temple. Lately the subject of Atlantis has been coming into my awareness, and I realize I had probably lived then, because....

B: All of you have--many times.
Q: Yes. But basically I wanted to ask you what the symbology, or...the temple for me: was it a lifetime?
B: Understand that those structures existed throughout many lifetimes of many individuals in that area. Recognize also that the energy is something that is not uncommon in many other societies in different civilizations on and off your planet. Also recognize you are making an association with the idea of the type of energy utilized by The League. You follow me?
Q: Yes. I find it amusing that it seems everything I bring up has to do with The League.
B: Not everything; but recognize that you have chosen the idea to form attractions to yourself of other pieces of yourself at this time to serve the purpose that you set up with them.
Q: Was I around at the destruction?
B: No. You chose to have your last Life in that era before that time.
Q: Hmmm. Before its destruction--can you tell me a little bit about the service I was performing. Was I working with...?
B: You have done many different ideas. You also recognized the idea of the destruction coming up, and it was used by you to begin to form your connection to The League. You follow me?
Q: Yes!
B: Knowing that there would be a repetition of a cycle, as you are now witnessing the repetition on your planet. As we have said many times, your United States of America would be a representative of the idea of the replay, historically, of Atlantis. For you possess much of the same idea of technology, the same position in relation to your politics around the world, and contain many of the same individuals who have restructured themselves to the point of deciding whether or not they will destroy the world again. In a sense. What you now call hypnosis was something that was, as you say, stock in trade of many of the ideas of educational systems utilized in Atlantis. There was an identification of a beat that was created so that the bodily rhythm would follow to synchronous harmony with that idea, and while in that state be open to absorbing all and any information that the individual wished to learn. This was performed by the priest-philosophers, of which you were one.
Q: Hmmm. That’s interesting, because the second time I encountered the temple, I was told I could go inside. I went inside, and the hypnotist said, "I’d like you to wait there for a symbol." I waited and waited; and when it seemed like nothing was going to happen, I turned around and started to leave. At that moment a golden chalice appeared on the alter, on the table. It had this beautiful crystal and water inside of it that I drank. I put the chalice down, and then there appeared a loaf of bread, which— it didn’t disturb me, but I was thinking of my Catholic upbringing, and didn’t make me feel too good.
B: All right. But recognize that you were only making the association in the present life with some of the rituals that you partook of in that life. Now you are giving all these ideas to yourself symbolically through this idea, this identification in your hypnotic state. You were making the association that some of the things you had allowed yourself to pick up on in this life will still be of service to you in an archetypal sense, through allowing you to pull forth from these past lives all the symbols that you need to integrate in this life to make an association that is comfortable for you, so that you can allow yourself to be the transformational being that will be of service, as you chose to be in this life.
You are simply relating to symbols that are identical, and serve similar purposes, though they do not carry such big weight that you were first taught they had in the present life, as you will have created your interaction with them to carry an association with the past life and not with the present. You follow me?
Yes I do. After I took bite of the bread, and then wanted to reach for them again. It was like a hologram; my hand went through them and they vanished.
B: Very good.
Q: I think that I really wanted to find out more about that temple, but thanks you for the sharing.
B: You always will be able to by simply exploring the dimension of your imagination. Understand again that it will always give you what is valid for you to explore, and will always lead you to the idea that you are always exploring only your own truth—which is all that you ever explore: your own truth. You follow me?
Q: Thank you, yes.
B: Thank you.
Audience: Bashar?
B: Yes.
Q: I have a couple of questions. One of them is: what difference would it make to you in your perception when you open the channel’s eyes? Would it make a difference in terms of...?
B: This will depend upon several ideas. There will be some slight differentiation in perception. But recognize that there will mostly be a willingness at that time for us to initiate, as you would say, "kick-starting," in your language. The idea of the channel’s own willingness to allow his own higher consciousness to fully be present. It will be more the idea that we will then be supporting the totality of the physical channel, rather than actually coming through stronger ourselves.
Q: Oh, I see. Hmmm. The other question was: I wasn’t here Christmas Eve, but I was listening to the tape of it....
B: One moment. This is not always the case. It is different for every individual, and for the reasons for which the channeling has been agreed to be accomplished. Continue.
Q: Yes, Okay. On the tape, Steve was relating a dream that he had asked for, apparently about Essassani–either meeting you or some other Essassani people–and he said everything was green.
B: Understand that what we were confirming was the idea that, while it is like yours–more or less a green planet–we also have, unlike you, a green star. The reflected light many times will give a pale green cast to the landscape.
Q: Well I was really surprised. I’ve done several processes in the past few years, and so on several occasions I went to a place that I call the green place, or the green planet, in my own mind. One occasion in particular, I was living there with a friend. I had arrived an there was a huge green expanse, and just beautiful vegetation, and....
B: All right. Thank you! Recognize that primarily what you are identifying with is some precognition of the idea of identifying with our energy, but mostly what you are identifying with is the fourth density state of your own planet, as you will recognize that the crystalline form we have described that defines that idea will be the emerald. It will reflect the idea of the vibration that your planet is becoming, and to you, in symbolic sense, will seem to be the idea of the exemplification of a green planet. You follow me?
Q: Yes. But I did feel that it was a different planet, and it wasn’t Earth.
B: It is a different planet. Your fourth-density planet Earth will not be the planet you are living on now. In a very real sense.
Q: Uh huh. I see. Thank you.
B: But understand, as we have said, you are also co-connecting to some degree some precognition of your interaction with us, making the connection between your civilization and our civilization, as we have already told you that your civilization and ours, and the one around Sirius, are three parts of the same consciousness. Thus you will always, when examining the idea of any transformation of the energy vibration of your world, connect into the totality of all the others as well that have to do with this particular exemplification and expression of consciousness. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Jesus Said:
13 January 86
II of III
B: All right. You. Then you; then you.
Q: Will you tell me about yourself? This is my first time here.
B: What do you wish to know?
Q: I’m not really sure who you are. Are what you are.
B: All right. Recognize that we consider ourselves, on a level you would be able to perceive us physically, to be beings similar to your own species, though different. We will be an average five feet of height in your counting; approximate coloration: white/whitish-grey skin tone. We will be defined, in the features that you understand upon your planet, more closely to the idea you call Mongolian, though different. You will notice that we will have very large upturned eyes. We will have a simplification of our features and will be relatively slender in your terms.
In other senses, we are connected to the consciousness of your world. We are our own civilization, but we are connected. We are a part of the same overall consciousness that forms your world, our world, and a civilization round about the star you know as Sirius. We are, by being allowed by you to assist in the transformation that is taking place upon your world, in very many ways the idea of your future selves, while we are at the same time our own civilization. We are being allowed to be of assistance to you by blending, by reflecting to you the idea of the blending of all the levels of your consciousness, by the blending of polarity within you–positive/negative, male /female– within every individual upon your planet.
We are being allowed by you to be of assistance in the understanding of certain aspects of all the blending of consciousness as you make the transformation from third to fourth reality. · that is simply the idea that you are becoming more aware of more of yourself. We are reflections for you; while we are our own society, we are parallel to yours. We are not better than you; we are not more than you. We are simply different from you, expressing ourselves as we see fit to express the idea of our facet of All That Is that we recognize ourselves to be. You are expressing yourselves in your own way; and now as you enlarge your idea of yourselves, you begin to include the idea that there can be other civilizations. Thus we are allowed to communicate with you in the manner in which we are communicating at this time.
Recognize that face-to-face encounter will be something that will take place within your near future; but as of now it will be relatively restricted, because not everyone in your society wishes this idea. For to wish this idea is to wish the idea of coming into action with the totality of your consciousness, and all portions of your personality, both positive and negative, and allowing yourselves to equalize this idea. And for many individuals on your planet this is something you are not yet comfortable with.
Therefore, when your society allows itself to be equal to every other idea, and equal to our civilization and any possible civilization they could encounter, we will be able to meet with you an equal terms.
But not until you are equal. We do not want to be feared; we do not to be deified. We want to be with you, sharing in equality. As we perceive your time of the entire society, we will. But this is up to you: it is your choice. We will not interfere; and it is up to you to allow yourselves to choose the reality wherein it contains the idea of interacting with other civilizations or not.
It is up to you. We will abide by whatever you choose. Will this have answered your question, or do you wish more specifics?
Q: Uh...I’m confused?
B: All right, very good! To be confused is to unlock yourself from one idea of reality, disorient yourself, and reorient yourself to another idea of yourself. Con-fusion, co-fusion: fusion with the idea of more of yourself. So if what I say confuses you, in a sense you are allowing yourself to grasp it on other levels as well as just your physiological. You are beginning to blend your communication with different levels of your consciousness.
Now, the idea of your confusion can be positively used by you. Allow yourself to simply clarify within yourself what it is you wish to identify within yourself with regard to the symbol we reflect to you.
What is it you specifically wish to know?
(Pause) I’m just trying to understand–
Q: There is no trying necessary; you understand what you need to understand.
Q: Okay. Help me understand why people can understand what you are saying and, believe in it.
B: Understand it is not a matter that they believe what I am saying.
It is that they believe what they are saying to themselves, and I am only reflecting what they already know. You follow me?
Q: No.
B: All right. You know what you know, yes?
Q: Correct.
B: Understand what the service is that we are providing: it is to reflect to you that you already know everything you need to know. You do not need us. I will be doing a perfect job when you do not need me, when you understand that we are here to assist you to be equal to everything that there is in creation. You can choose what you wish to believe; you always do. You do not have to believe me. It does not matter to us what you believe. Only that you know that whatever it is you choose to believe, you understand that it is responsible for the creation of whatever physical reality you experience. ... You are creating your reality. Do you follow that idea?

Q: Yes, and I guess that brought something to my mind, specifically. You talk about dimensions. What does that mean?

B: It can mean many things. First of all it is one way, a vernacular, a label, to say that there is a separation, a separation of vibrational resonance. You can make an analogy with your visible light. You have visible light and you have light that you cannot see. You may therefore understand that the reason you can see some light and cannot see other light is because of the rate of their vibration. All reality that you call physical is of this nature, and it all vibrates at different rates. Some of it you will perceive and some of it you will not. Usually those that are realities that you do not physically perceive as this one are ascribed to what you call other realities or other dimensions of All That Is, or within All That Is. Will that have clarified the idea to some degree?

Q: Yes. So I guess your saying what I think is a reality....

B: What you believe!

Q: ...is what I need to know. What I believe. The idea of dimensions: wouldn’t I need to know about those?

B: That is up to you. Do you feel you need to? Understand this: many individuals create their lives and go about their business being perfectly happy, and do not know one shred of what you call metaphysics, and do not care to. But they are functioning within themselves, and acting according to the idea they chose to be anyway. You do not have to know these things to be able to live. It is up to you what you wish to know about who and what you are. Therefore it is not a matter of needing to know anything. You will know what you need to know for whatever it is you are choosing to do. And you will find that you are an automatic creator. As you create your reality, you will automatically attract to yourself those things which you do feel you require. Therefore, for example, the idea that we are discussing this right now is an indication to you that you do wish to know something about it or you would not be here. For I would not have attracted someone who had not created in himself an idea they he wished to know this and share it with me. And you would not have attracted to you someone who would be willing to discuss it with you if you did not wish to co-create that reality with me. Therefore, let your physical reality be an obvious reflection of what it is you believe your reality should be.

At any moment you can change your mind! You can say, "All right, I understand about dimensions; no need for any more of that." Or you can say, "Well, this interests me, I think I will research some more of this idea—by talking to different individuals, by reading books, by watching films, doing whatever it is you feel is your creative way to allow yourself to know whatever it is you think you need to know.

Q: This is kind of different, but what I do believe is...in Jesus Christ as our savior.

B: What does that mean?

Q: What does that mean?

B: Yes. When you say you believe in Jesus Christ, what does that mean?

Q: That means that I believe in God who created the universe including all of us...

B: Yes.

Q: ...and that we are all sinners, Jesus....

B: One moment! All right. You believe you are a sinner?

Q: Yes.

B: What is a sinner? Will you define this for me—since it is outside the concept of my society?

Q: You never heard of sin before?

B: We understand your concept. We have not heard the concept from you, however. And you are a unique facet of All That Is, expressing it in your own way. Therefore, if you would define for me the concept of the idea you call "sinner" as it relates to how you see yourself.

Q: A sin for me is anything that I would do or think that goes against something God would want.
B: What does God want?
Q: God wants...I guess very simply in order to answer it in the time limit allowed here...God wants unconditional love in all situations. And anytime I don’t do that...
B: One moment! One moment. Did you say unconditional love?
Q: Exactly.
B: Unconditional? Do you understand what that means?
Q: (pause) I understand it to mean that as far as people...whom I’m suppose to unconditionally love, for example the people in here...no matter who they are or what they have done, as far as I am concerned I love them because God loves them.
B: All right.
Q: I have no right to overrule that.
B: Alright. Now, you know that you can create the reality of overruling it, but we understand what you mean when you say you have no right. You do have the right, because you can do it. But that does not mean that is something you’d want to do, anything you can do, you have a right to do in the sense that you can do it because you are also the creator. Again, we are not suggesting this is what you want to do. Nor are we suggesting that this is something that would create harmony on your world. No. But simply take yourself literally. It is not a matter of whether or not you have the right to do it; you can do it because you know people have done it. People have very blatantly judged other people. Is this not so?
Q: That is correct.
B: All right. Because they can do it, it is not a matter of whether or not they have the right to do it.
Q: Is it wrong?
B: There is no right and wrong. It is a matter of whether you choose to create a positively manifesting reality or a negatively manifesting reality.
Q: Which would you suggest?
B: I would suggest the positive one. Because choosing the positively manifesting reality will be integrating yourself with All That Is; and therefore knowing yourself as the Creator and allowing the Creator to know you. Whereas a negatively manifesting reality is to separate the idea of yourself from All That Is—to isolate, to create an idea of isolation, that does not allow you to feel your connection to All That Is, and leads to the need to dominate. For that will be, when you separate yourself from All That Is, the only way that you will feel you can collect what you see around you, to you—to dominate and control
it. Thus you create many ideas out of separation and negative manifestation that are, in your terms, unpleasant. Disease and many other ideas that you say you do not like. This is why we would suggest positive manifestation.

However, recognize that we perceive the idea of judgment, in and of itself, to be of the negative manifestation. Thus we do not say anything is right or wrong, because that to us is to judge All That Is.
To us even the idea of judgment is the choosing of the negative. Now, you can know what you prefer. To know what you prefer does not mean that you have to judge or invalidate anyone else, in terms of the way that individual chose to explore his own Godhood, to relate to himself as his portion of All That is. If he has chosen separation, negative reality, limitation, judgment—then it will be less likely that he will perceive his connection to All That Is.

However, one who is integrated has already chosen the idea of unconditional love, and will recognize that there is no need to judge those who have not chosen it. For unconditional love is the granting of validity to everything within Creation for its own sake. Because that portion of creation has seen fit to learn about itself in the way it has chosen, then you, in choosing unconditional love, generate the faith and the trust to know that in an ultimate sense he is always going to be all right, because ultimately every idea is still contained within the overall idea of All That Is, and cannot become lost, there is nowhere to lose anything to—until you create that type of separation. There is nowhere to lose anything to until you, in choosing negativity and limitation and separation from yourself as All That Is, choose to create a dimension in which you can remove yourself from the rest of everything. You follow me?
Q: Mmmm.... Yes you do. Any idea that you call a lost soul is a contradiction in terms. A soul always knows where it is.

Q: What do you mean by a lost soul?

B: The idea we are ascribing to many individuals expressing the specific ritualized expressing through which they channel the idea of their love many times, even though they express it to be unconditional, still comes with conditions. We are not saying this is your case. We are saying that are relating to the terminology that you are using, by being so specific about what you have described as the Pray you believe and what you have called being a sinner—which by your ultimate definition means someone who is outside—has placed himself outside—of his recognition of himself as God.

Q: My recognition of myself as God.

B: Yes.

Q: I’m God? I?

B: Of course. Understand this is what we are talking about: many of your beliefs or religions upon your planet speak of the idea of God—or what we call All that Is—as being omnipotent. Everywhere, all-knowing; omniscient and all-seeing—everything, everywhere. Now if God by your definition is everything, how can you be outside of it? You must also be God; God must also be you. Now, God knows that you are God. Why do you not know that you are God?

Q: Well, I say I create a model? Of what? Of an airplane?

B: All right.

Q: I create and put it in together, but it’s not me.

B: Yes, it is. Understand that what you experience as your physical reality is all a symbol. If you wish to use the term illusion, all right; that may clarify it for you.

Q: Well, doesn’t that illusion, or symbol—it needs a representation, does it not?

B: It is a representation of an idea.

Q: (If you are an idea of making the plane, then you are the plane, too. Whatever idea you have, you are that idea.)

B: Yes. You understand that everything in your universe is a matter, physically, of vibration. You cannot perceive anything that you are not. The vibration that you are creates what you perceive the physical reality to be. Thus, if you have created this idea of a model airplane in front of you, then you are extending a portion of the idea of yourself and reflecting it back to yourself as the ability to do that outside yourself, seemingly. But everything you perceive, every individual in the room, is your creation. You have to create your version of them in order to perceive them. You follow me?

Q: Kind of. If I am dedicating my life to following Jesus Christ....

B: Why would you want to do that? He did not want you to do that.

Q: He did not want me to do that?

B: No. He does not want you to follow him; he wants you to be like him.

Q: Well, that’s kind of what I mean.

B: Well, say what you mean. Understand that your terminology is what we were discussing; that upon your planet many times the terminology you choose does reflect how you go about relating to the ideas you think you believe in. And in this case you are saying that by following someone, you are separating yourself and making yourself less than, rather than being equal to...which is what he wanted you to know. That all of you are Christ consciousness like he is. The idea of what you have referred to in your society of the "Second Coming" is not the coming of an individual. It is the recognition within each individual upon your planet of the Christ that each and every one of you are ... and living like it. That is your second coming.

Q: Well, when Jesus—I don’t know if he said it; you might know—(Some chuckling in audience) Well I’m serious. He might not.

B: Proceed.

Q: But he said, "I am the way, the truth and the life. No one comes to the father but through me." What did he mean by that?

B: The idea is this: he was saying, to paraphrase, as you understand your language now, "What you perceive in me is the vibration of integration, wherein I know myself to be on the same level, equal to God, All That Is. The only way that you will know yourself to be that idea is to be like me, be of the equal vibration of recognizing yourself as All That Is. That is why he said, "I am the way." He did not mean,
"I know the only thing that will get you there." He simply meant that you, in allowing yourself to know that everything you do is valid in the overall sense, are granting support and service and validity to the ultimate idea of the Creation itself, and recognizing your own equality to Godhood, that is being the way.

Q: You say something—and people kind of laughed when you said, "He didn’t say I know the only way." But he said, "I am the way, the truth and the life. No one comes to the father but through me."

B: Understand this as well: what you are calling your biblical literature contains less than 10% of what that individual ever said in his life; and what was even written down is very much misinterpreted, according to the understanding of when it was written. Recognize that your bible was not written to record history; it was written to convert.

Q: Is the Bible not true?

B: Therefore, ultimate truth as a concept, purpose as a concept, are things that exist within existence; and existence existed before there was the concept of purpose. That which exists before the concept of purpose does not need a purpose to keep on existing. Thus All That Is will be all that is in all the ways it can be, simply for no other reason, no other purpose, other than it can because it is the Creator. And the Creator creates... simply because it can.

Your symbols are valid for you. You have changed your mind before, and you will change your mind again about what symbols are relevant in the understanding of who and what you are. It does not matter in the overall sense what you choose to believe. If you know that you are believing what you are believing out of unconditional love for All That Is, and also equally important, unconditional love for yourself, then there is no need to worry about what you believe. There is no need to worry about what anyone believes. Because you know that whatever you believe is going to create the type of reality that you will experience. And experience that, you will.

Q: The only thing that I would like to say—I know other people have stuff to say—so I’ll finish the set. If that’s what you believe, what you’re missing is a relationship with the God that made you.

B: Why? Understand again, you are missing yourself the idea that I perceive both ideas. I contain the totality of the dichotomy of the polarity of the seeming opposites. I know myself to be All That Is; and I also know that All That Is relates to me as a higher consciousness. I can create the idea of knowing I have a relationship with All That Is; at the same time I can also see myself as the one creating that relationship, and therefore being All That Is. To me this is not something which is mutually exclusive.

I can create whatever sense of relationship I wish; and I know that whatever sense of relationship I create is still going to be as real as any other sense of, relationship that I choose to create. And for me all of it is valid, and all of it is being created out of joy and ecstasy and unconditional love, the expression of the same unconditional love that the Creator created us to be. That is how I perceive the relationship. I am always in the relationship of All That Is, within joy, love and ecstasy. For us in our civilization the feeling of this ecstasy is the expression and the experience of what you me defining as the sense of that relationship.

Q: Why is that not happening here?
B: Because for the past 25,000 years–approximately of your time–you have chosen as a group consciousness to explore the idea of separating yourselves from your memory of being All That Is. And now you are turning over a new idea. You me through with the separation, and that is why you are creating this idea you call a new age of understanding, a new age of awareness–in light and love.

Q: Well, who is doing that?
B: You all are.

Q: These 40 people? There’s been....
B: No. The entire planet. Or you would not be on it. Because that is the idea of this planet that you are on: to create the transformation; to begin to recognize yourselves as
All That Is and create. Because now that you know you are the creator, peace, harmony, light and love can result. Understand: you do not get peace by hating war; you get peace by loving peace. Now you are through with the tool of separation. And within the next span, as you count time, of approximately 30 to 50 of your years, all of your civilization will also recognize this. For when you create separation, you create the experience more time. And that is why the experience of experiencing all the limitation and separation has taken 25,000 years.

When you now choose to create the idea of integration, of knowing yourselfs to be All That Is, then this experience can be played out upon your planet in a mere 2 to 3,000 years. And after that point you will not need to reincarnate upon this planet, for it will have served its purpose for you. You will move on to something else.

Q: Back to when you were talking--when I said, "big deal," and everybody kind of agreed with that...

B: They simply recognized that you were quoting something we have said many times.

Q: Okay. Now this is my first time. And from what you are saying, I can leave here knowing that whatever I choose to do would be all right. So now what I know I want to know is, why would anyone want to come back, if that’s what they know?

B: Maybe simply because they enjoy the situation. Recognize that they do not have to come back, and many do not.

Q: Why do you come back?

B: Why do I come back?

Q: No, no. I’m talking to these people here. (Because it’s fun.) Because when you ask certain questions, it brings up questions in me--like I have a very (–?) question I want to ask him because of what you talked about. But a lot of times I come here, and I don’t think about specific questions, but that when I’m around this group of people, brings stuff out in me that I want answered.

Well, what you already know is simply that what you choose to do is okay. So why do you need a question answered?

B: It is not so much that they need a question answered. There can also be the equality of sharing. When you know what you know, you can share--because you have created yourselves to be a physical planet, and you have created the idea that you are separate beings, and you have created the idea that you can communicate different ideas.

That might seem like fun. You may not have considered it from this viewpoint, so this is an opportunity for sharing, for blending, for appreciating all the different ways that All That Is has of expressing itself through all the different people that you are. Every one of you is a different path, is a different way. If there were only way to do something, there would only be one person. Therefore, many individuals are simply taking advantage of the richness of the experience of All That Is expressing itself through all the different beings that you are, and they enjoy the sharing in that way. It shows and reflects to each individual different portions of himself he may not have been willing to consider in exactly that way; and for him it is a joyful experience of integration. That is why he chooses to come back.

But understand: it is not the original person who comes back. Every being that comes back again and again and again is a new complete being, a new complete idea of him or herself, and a new complete universe. It is not the same person. No one comes back. Everyone here is new, even if they have been here 40,000 times.

Q: So what happens when we die?
B: Many different things. You will, first of all, obviously no longer consider yourself to be physical, as you now understand physicality.

Q: When you physically die; that’s what I’m talking about. When you physically die?
B: Many different things.

Q: We come back here.
B: You can; you do not have to. There can be, in that state of being when you remove yourself from the idea of the physical reality—as you have created it to be a limiting one—when you remove yourself from that physical state of limitation, then you will know that you chose everything that you experienced in that life, and that you can create any other type of reality on this planet, or any other planet—or not reincarnate at all. You can choose to know in that level, and see very obviously that you are, in fact, the creator.

Q: So then I would no longer be reincarnated?
B: You do not have to be. It is always a choice. Now, since you are here, I will assume that you chose to reincarnate at least one more time.

Q: Why do you say that?
B: Since you are here, this time. Not one more time after this; this time.

Q: Into this lifetime right now?
B: Yes, yes, yes.

Q: Well, it’s not my first one?
B: No. There is on the average 2 to 3,000 lives for every individual in the room, with regard to the particular Earth cycle you are now involved in, during the last 50,000 or so of your years.

Q: So why?
B: Why not? Because you chose to. Because you chose to explore the idea of limitation as it is being expressed on this planet. And to do so, you chose to manifest yourself in many different lives; to explore all the different ideas that you can explore in being in this society.
You have been everything there is to be in this society at one time or another—sometimes more than one time. Everything. Now this is now the transformational life. And this life can be the last physical life you may choose in this cycle, since the cycle is now over and turning into another cycle.

B: Yes!

Q: I been reading a lot on the last years of Jesus. And I want to know the period in time when the Bible—that information that was erased from it. Where he went. Did he go to India instead of (–?), and that’s why he came back and–?

B: There was the idea of travel to the area of India.

Q: What age?

B: We perceive that there was a connection at age 17; also age 30, approximately. Also the area you call Egypt. Also the idea of many out-of-body experiences to travel many different places other than that. Recognize that what that being was allowing himself to recognize was his own Godhood, his own Christ consciousness. And was simply reflecting to you....

Q: That we can do it to?

B: Yes.

Q: Great.

B: Yes, yes.

Q: When you repeat exactly what he said, that reveals the whole thing. "I am the way, the truth, and the life." (–?) Repeat that, that’s every.....

B: Very good. Yes, if you repeat it and mean it for yourself, yes.

Q: That’s it. There’s no debate there.

B: No big mystery.

Q: Yes, it’s self-evident.

B: Yes. You see, that is why we are saying do what he did, not follow. For if you follow, then you wind up saying, "He said this; he said that," rather than simply repeating what he said and feeling the vibration within yourself for what it gives you.

Q: We are the ways the truths and the lives.

B: Yes!

Q: Bashar.

B: Briefly.

Q: Okay, so far everything you been saying is—I’ve never been to one of these sessions before. So far everything you’ve been saying is perfectly understandable to me. I understand exactly what you’ve been talking about. Does that mean that I’ve spent more lifetimes working on these answers? Is that why it’s clear to me, and may be unclear to other people?
B: Can be; it does not have to be. Understand that whatever purpose you created this life to be will delegate what type of understanding you have about anything you have in it. It does not have to be connected to the idea you call past lives, because you are creating your past and your future from the present—since the present is always the only time in which you exist.
Judging Others

Q: Sometimes when I’m alone, I feel everything wonderful about me. I mean, I feel the powers and I feel clear...

B: Yes.

Q: then I open the door of my house and I walk outside, and I feel affected by everybody else’s reality.

B: May I make a suggestion?

Q: I would like that.

B: Recognize you are never outside, EVERYTHING you see is from within, everything. It is your entire house and you have decided to co-create it. If you wish to give your power away to someone else and assume that their projected reality has more validity than the one you prefer, so be it. But that comes from within and it is a self-judgement; and it is your opportunity to recognize that you do not have to judge yourself so harshly.

Q: Well, I’m not happy with that, I mean I.....

B: You are not happy with yourself?

Q: I’m not happy, I mean people around me... there are some people that I don’t like and I’m not....

B: Why? Do they exhibit things that you do not like within yourself?

Q: Perhaps, I haven’t thought about that, in that way.

B: Recognize this idea, as long as you choose to judge another individual’s method of learning what they have chosen to learn, you will be attaching yourself to that mode of learning and becoming the same vibration. “Judge not lest ye be judged,” does not mean that you are being judged from someone else outside, it means, as you tune into the vibration of invalidating another’s path, you invalid yourself. And you attach yourself immediately to that type of a scenario and so feel that same wave vibration.

By simply recognizing that you know what you prefer and that what you see around you is simply an observation of what others have chosen for themselves, then that allows you to know that even though you can observe it, it does not affect the vibration you chose to be, unless you chose to let it and create to for yourself. You can ONLY experience someone else’s vibration when you choose to create your own version of it for you, that is the only way you can experience anything. You must chose to create it for yourself by becoming the same idea. And that is why you feel it, because you are judging it.

Q: I don’t enjoy it at all.

B: Then don’t recognize the vibration as anything that has to do with your reality. Understand, you are making the assumption that enjoying something or not enjoying it is something you have no control over. But you are choosing your point of view. Understand the difference between judgment and preference.

Judgement is the invalidation of what you do not prefer. Preference is simply recognizing what is true for you, and by being that vibration and allowing equality for all other choices. Then you will be allowing yourself to experience the support of All That Is in granting you the right to feel as you do, within the vibration you have described and defined yourself to be. You will never feel the effect of anyone else’s choice. Only by making an attachment to them do you identify with them and create that vibration for yourself. That is the only way you can create a lack of enjoyment, by creating the vibration for yourself you see in them. Just because they are doing it doesn’t mean you have to feel it. You follow me?

Q: Yes I do, thank you. I have one other question.

B: Yes.

Q: Is it true that we choose our parents?

B: Yes.

Q: And do we find out at some point why we choose these particular.

B: That is up to you and is it up to the purpose, it does not have to be conscious. Simply recognize in this way, many individuals are always looking for a specific purpose, rather than allowing what is going on in their lives to be a reflection of the purpose, and simply get on with their lives.

Q: I see, that’s true.

B: Thank you. Many individuals will choose, in your particular society, to interact with other individuals that will seem to be disharmonious with them, because that gives an individual the opportunity to have something to push against, to become the idea they wanted to be. Therefore, they can recognize that in choosing certain parents they have created an environment out of which they have allowed themselves to explore the idea they have choose to be, so the parents have been of service even while consciously not seeming to have been of service. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you.

Q: Why do we need something to push against in order to be the idea?

B: Because that is the way you have created your society to be. You do not, at least up to this point, usually believe that you are self-empowered. So you create reflections that allow you, in a sense, to force yourself into situations where you have to become self-empowered. It is all simply because you have created the idea of forgetting who you are, but this is in your terms, the tail end of that cycle. You do not need that any more and all relationships can be from this point forward quite harmonious.

Q: By granting validity to everyone’s path, is there ever a point where someone you care for and believe is in danger of harming themselves and.

B: You can share with them your point of view as to what a possible result might be of their actions, but granting them validity is simply knowing that you cannot convince them of anything they do not choose to be convinced of anyway. But you are willing to share a view that at least then lets them know that should they decide, “well wait a minute I would like to choose something else. What did my friend say?
Maybe I’ll try that.” At least you will be giving them the opportunity to recognize what options are available to them. That is how you can assist them.

Q: Just by gently sharing ideas without....

B: Lovingly, knowing beyond a shadow of a doubt that once again, fundamentally, no matter what they choose ultimately they are still all right, because you are eternal, indestructible. You exist now and you always will. Because now always exist, existence is always now. You always have existed, you exist now and always will, because you are All That Is. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: You only transform from idea to idea. Thank you, sharing!

Q: Yes Bashar, we have some guests from the Hopi Nation here. You’ve expressed some information in the past about the Kachina energy that . . . .

B: Yes.

Q: Would you please share that again with us.

B: From our point of view in the exploration that we have undertaken, what you refer to as Kachina energy, which in other portions of your world is referred to as Kahuna energy – the idea to us is what may be loosely termed, an Extraterrestrial’s Exterrestrial. They exist in between the various universes and are a part of the very structure of the nature of the universes we all perceive as real. They are the pulse, the electrical current, they are the consciousness, the mentality, the projection of the inter-sections between dimensions themselves. They are the very life-thread in many ways of the framework of consciousness that creates the cells that we perceive as the distinct universes that we all take for granted as being the only real universes.

This is our exploration and perception of the Kachina energy and therefore any beings that begin to explore and understand and live within the natural flow of the universal energy will constantly be crossing back and forth over and through to many different levels of consciousness reality and therefore must pass through the gate. And these gates, these webs, this tissue, these membranes, if you will, are the universes of which the Kachina energy is sustained. That is our perception of that energy. They are powerful guides, since they hold within the essence of their idea the very nature of the structure of the universe.

Q: Thank you Bashar.
Q: I want to share something thing that happened a couple of weeks ago.
B: All right. Share with all; speak up! Be bold!
Q: I’ll try.
B: Not try; you can do it.
Q: Okay. Several weeks ago I had a dream in which I entered a structure.
B: Yes.
Q: And inside the structure was a large pond. And then I realized it wasn’t a structure really, it was made of boulders and rocks, and that the pond was larger than I had first perceived. There was a large boulder in the middle of it.
B: All right.
Q: And as I stood there watching, I saw two boulders being lifted simultaneously. And they were tied to the same rope, but they were so immense that I didn’t see how one rope could hold them both. And one was large, and the other was small.
As I watched, the boulders were heaved over into the center of the crater, and they bounced and bounced against the cone that was sticking up. And they bounced all the way down. There was no crane, and no perceptible way of this being having just tossed them out into the center of the crater.
And as I watched them going down, I looked into the water. It was so clear...
B: Yes.
Q: ...crystal clear. You could see everything.
B: Yes.
Q: And I thought: “I would love to get into that water, and feel it around me.”
B: And did you?
Q: No.
B: Ah, why not?
Q: Well, I’ll explain.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: As I heard the boulders bumping down the side of the mountain, I realized that the pond was much deeper than I had originally perceived...
B: Oh!
Q: ...and as the boulders fell through space, they were being transformed and honed; and they were becoming less boulders and more some other type of material. And as they got toward the bottom of the pond, they were utterly transformed from boulders into crystalline objects, much as a plain piece of glass is transformed into... in the ocean, tumbling.
Q: Okay. I wanted to enter this water, and go down there and see more closely what it was, but I kind of had the feeling that if I did...
B: Yes.
Q: ...I wouldn’t want to come back.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: And then I realized that it was not actually water that I was looking into; it was liquid crystal.
B: Very good!
Q: And that I was not on the edge of a crater; I was on the edge of a universe.
B: Yes.
Q: And I was gazing down into another time and another place.
B: Yes. Did it feel exciting?
Q: It’s still exciting!
B: Oh, all right. What do you wish to do with this perception of energy?
Q: The same thing I wanted to do in Hawaii when you had me bang on the Quan Yin statue.
B: Yes.
Q: I wanted to go there, but I didn’t want to go there by myself, because I had a feeling I might not want to come back.
B: You’re not alone.
Q: All right. The city has crystal buildings, and the atmosphere and the beings there are familiar.
B: Yes.
Q: (Emotionally and haltingly) And I see my home...
B: All right.
Q: ...at home there.
B: All right. You are also at home where you are.
Q: Oh, yes. But it was a very strange feeling. And I can sense...oh, I can see things now I didn’t see then.
B: All right. You are perceiving right through the gate, into an aspect of what you would call a type of causal plane. It is a direct view into one of what we as a civilization have begun to research – that we call the quasi-planar reality.
Because of your particular bent, because of your particular perspective, what you did is blend two symbologies that are different aspects, different representations, of the same energy. In your Hawaii area the energy is referred to as Kahuna. In your American Indian area it is referred to as Kachina. It is the same energy.
Q: Yes.
B: And – now, I do not mean to be flippant. This is simply being used to explain in the most practical way, so to speak – in the way you will understand most quickly. What you were viewing, to some degree, was another dimensional energy reality that you interpreted as a town, as a city. It was, in a sense, on the outskirts, if you will, of what could be called Kachinatown.

Energy beings of light and pure consciousness that are, in and of themselves, the very fabric that creates the dividing line between all the different universes that you perceive as different universes within creation. You looked into the very crystalline substance that gives form to all the different universes you could call physically material.

The crystalline pool of energy symbolized, in your dream in that way, the very essence of the primal energy out of which all material reality is solidified or crystallized. Understand?

Q: I’m...
B: You’re looking into the raw astral state of your collective consciousness, the template city, the template world you all inhabit, in a sense, all the time. And from which you channel the energy that solidifies your experience of yourself as a physical reality. Understand?

Q: I’m processing.
B: All right. Let me put it in another way. I do not mean the terminology literally, as the way these words in your society used to mean. But it may explain the idea a little bit. You saw the dream version of your entire world. The collective mass dream version of your world, out of which each of you individually choose the light patterns and styles that you will, with your beliefs, emotions and thoughts, crystallize into physical materiality.

Q: Oh.
B: Understand?
Q: That explains something.
B: You were in the raw plastic state of consciousness, out of which you crystallize everything you call physical. Does that clarify it to some degree?

Q: Yes, it does. And it also clarifies something else. While I was there in this place...
B: Yes.

Q: ...I recognized my spiritual partner. And I know that we are here this time to accomplish certain soul commitments that we have made, to do this time.

B: All right.

Q: And I had the feeling that, as you had told me in Hawaii, rather than coming from a very ancient, ancient culture, that brought a particular tone, a particular sound, to this planet – rather than going back to that ancient historical culture...

B: Yes.
Q: . . . that this was future.
B: To some degree.
Q: It looked to me as if it were in the future, rather than in the past.
B: Yes. And the reason – another reason – I shared it with you in that way was to allow you to remember that the whole idea is not to, quote/unquote, recapture what you believe was in your past, but to create what you desire is representative of the idea of the past, in the present now. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: And that that vibration is the world as you can create the world to be now. Does that serve you?
Q: Oh, it serves all of us.
B: Well, thank you.
Karma and Past Lives

Q: Can you explain to me how karma works?
B: It is completely self-imposed, first of all. Karma is your cognition of the continuance of the momentum of an idea that perhaps, in a sense, as you say, was begun in one life and may need to be balanced and/or finalized in another life. But it is simply your recognition of the balancing, and/or, let us say, completion of a particular idea you have decided to be. It is completely self-imposed; it is not judgment. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that clarify the idea, or do you wish to explore it further?
Q: Yes, I would. Well... it’s really hard to do it without judging because...
B: It is hard to do without judging. (AUD: laughter)
Q: Yes. I want to get into the subject but I have to separate my own personal judgment – but I’ll go for it anyway.
B: All right.
Q: If someone does something in one life, lifetime, that they see as being negative or harmful to other people, or themselves, or something like that...
B: Yes.
Q: ... do they have to be reincarnated in another lifetime and...
B: They do not have to be. You will simply find that because of the energy associated with the limitations you impose upon yourself in physical reality, you know that it may be the allowance of, let us say, a very quick way. For in this way, the degree of limitation you experience in physical reality will allow you to create those types of balances perhaps more quickly, in one sense, than you could in a non-physical reality – because of the concentration of effect that takes place in what you call physical reality. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: So you may decide to do it physically simply because that will be the way that will be, let us say, most conducive to the very rapid assimilation of the balance. In the same way that you created the imbalance.
Q: But it doesn’t have to be that way. In other words...
B: No, it does not have to be.
Q: ... if I murder somebody in one lifetime it doesn’t mean that I’m going to come back and be murdered in another life?
B: That has happened many times, but again, it can be manifested in many different ways. Perhaps you will simply be of assistance to someone else who has had the same experience; and your willingness to interact with that individual will then be the balancing you require. For then you are giving yourself the opportunity to see what it is like from the other end of the emotional experience. And perhaps, that is what to you will constitute a balance – not so much the actual physiological act of being murdered. Though that has happened as well.

Q: Can you give me any information about my past lifetimes and any karmic debts that I...

B: Why do you assume that you have these debts? Why do you assume it is a debt, in that way, and not a choice?

Q: Okay.

B: Simply recognize that your willingness to know that you wish to create a balance of the polarities within you, in and of itself, is the removal of any so-called debt. Because you are now willing to be blended, to be balanced, to trust that the life you are living is the life you chose to live, and simply willing to act and function within service to All That Is.

The willingness to be of service, in that way, and the willingness to experience the life you chose to live, is the balancing of that idea, and the ceasing of the need to be reincarnated again. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Thank you.

Q2: Since you’re talking about reincarnation, can you see a glimpse into my past life, my experiences, or anything?

B: All right, now listen, every single one of you. (AUD: laughter) Many times we can share these ideas with you – and understand we are not invalidating the exploration of your past lives – but in the present you can know every single thing you need to know to understand yourself in the present, from the present. You do not necessarily need to go exploring the so-called past connections you have, to understand who and what you are in the present.

Again, this exploration can be valid, but you will always observe the idea within us that we are reluctant to delineate this idea, since you will understand that the exploration of your past lives is for the purpose of bringing you back to the present anyway. And thus, many times, you simply will find that while we will explore some of the aspects with you from time to time that you have experienced, we will usually, first of all, point out to you that the rigidizing and labeling of specifics in past lives will have a tendency to focus you in the past, and not in the present where you are.

We are not inclined to wish to focus you in the past. So it will be, let us say, very, very, very irregular, which we will simply dive into the exploration of a past life. Now, if you, right now, in your present, are willing within your own imagination to bring to the surface connections you feel to be there, then perhaps, we can explore some of those ideas with you. For then you will be specifically dealing with the portions that you feel are valid – but do understand, you are creating the past from the present.

Therefore, the idea of any specific past life, the one that is most valid to you now, is the one you simply will be creating a connection to from now, in order to understand the idea that you are, now.

So if you are willing to bring up what you feel to be a connection, perhaps we can explore it with you; and from time to time we can get a sensing of the idea of areas that represent strong energy transformations in your so-called past. Again, we will simply hesitate to label these ideas, because that will tend to fix you in a past instead of the present. Now, do you feel that there is any specific reason why you would wish to explore the idea of your past lives?

Q: I am bored with the moment.
B: Bored? Then you are not living in it.
Q: Right. I want to go back to the past, and the future, and roam around.
B: You are missing the point. If you are bored then you are not in the moment.
Q: I understand.
B: All right, but recognize, in this way, the idea of seeking to create more excitement somewhere else, other than the moment, will always continue the creation of boredom in your present life. For you will not be willing to allow yourself to know that the past and the future are in the present. Recognize in this way, you can have a high degree of excitement in the exploration of connections you have had in the past, and in the future, but do not forsake the present as not being able to create the same level of excitement as your exploration of the past or the future. Because then you will not be allowing your past and your future to integrate into the present.
Q: Great... but that’s exactly what I am doing – this is exciting for me.
B: All right. Then to what connections do you find yourself attracted to in the past?
Q: I’m not sure.
B: You are not sure? You have no sensation, no feeling at all about the idea of a past life; no association, no attractions, no draw, not even the slightest inkling? Where is your imagination?
Q: Well, maybe just 2,000 years ago.
B: And what happened then for you? What is the experience? Not the number, what is that experience?
Q: Oh, just another person.
B: Just another.... oh, that sounds very exciting! (AUD: laughter) You said that the exploration of past lives was more exciting – where is that excitement that you are talking about?
Q: In the moment and the past and future... combination of all.
B: Yes.
Q: I was wondering if you could see something beyond what I see myself?
B: Perhaps... but what purpose does it serve for us to delineate that?
Q: Oh, just to have fun with it.
B: Oh, fun. All right, here is some fun. (AUD: laughter) You were, and very strongly so, as with many individuals in your society at this time, what you call a Roman Centurion. Very, very proper, as you say, in your present colloquial language: “by the book!” (AUD: laughter) Very steadfast, very loyal, very strong in your loyalty, highly regarded by your fellow centurions and respected by the populace, even though they feared you, in a sense.

But they knew that you were very, very, in a sense, fair, though many times the idea of your fairness was to simply follow the law. Now, whether the law was fair or not, that is another issue. But you were fair in your dispensation of the law, and so you were respected, in that way. At least an individual coming under your attention and your jurisdiction would at least know that it was nothing personal. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Now that is what we can share with you at this time.
Q: That is what I am experiencing just now. Thank you.
B: Ah! Thank you. Sharing!

Karma and Past Lives
KARMA
Karma is broken when you realize that Karma is yours to break. That’s all it is. The realization that you are free from Karma – frees you from Karma.
When you know that you are free to determine who you are at every moment, that recognition breaks the karmic tie.
Karmic Template

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

AUD: Great, good, etc...

B: Allow us to begin this interaction, this evening of your time, with the entitlement, "Karmic Template." Assistant! (Pause as assistant moves toward the stage)

Now, while the aforementioned visual aid is being prepared, allow us to reiterate some of the ideas we have discussed with you – briefly – to lay down a foundation for the reason for this graphic. Do not show it to them yet. The idea, first and foremost, is that we have discussed karma, the idea you call karma. And we have discussed the idea that karma is completely self-imposed, by you upon yourself. There is no outside, exteriorized judgment against you. Karma is simply representative of a momentum of an idea that you wish to play out in any particular physiological lifetime that may have connections to what you call other physiological lifetimes you have lived or will live.

The idea also is that we have discussed that time, even though it is real while you are in it, is nonetheless your projection, your illusion. It is a concept that exists within creation, obviously, since you live within it. But it is your self-created idea, self-created definition so that you can experience the idea of a physiological reality. Because one of the definitions of physiological reality is the concept, space/time. Those limitations, those definitions create your ability to exist as a physicalized being. But we have also talked about, because time is an illusion, all the different lives you have ever lived or will ever live in any dimension of experience all exist, in a sense, now, simultaneously.

They all have their own reality; they are all a part of the you, the whole you, the total you that you are. But in choosing to experience a fragment of your consciousness in a linear fashion, then you relegate that portion of your consciousness, so to speak, to experience that totality in a step-by-step linear fashion. One after another, rather than all at once, which is the perspective of the non-physical consciousness that you also are – which you colloquially refer to as the Oversoul.

The Oversoul, in that sense, can be viewed, as we have discussed many times, as the projectionist. And the lives can be viewed as the filmstrip, as you call it, each frame on the film representing perhaps a different life or a different moment in one life.

Now, to the portion of the film that exists within the film itself from frame to frame, it only knows the frame it is in at any moment. It has, what you call, a memory of frames that have gone by, and in that sense only a dim understanding of projections or predictions of the frame coming up – based on past continuity.

But the projectionist sees the whole film all at once, and knows that all the frames exist right now, from beginning to end, as you say. And only the characters on the film are isolated to the particular frame in which they exist, until the next frame creates the illusion of movement and change and continuation and momentum.
This is a similar analogy to physical reality. Continuity is simply your projection, your illusion in that sense, your rate of flow of transformation, of creating a series of different nows – in a different format, in a different shape. Even from, what you call, a movement here to here may actually be the creation of many millions of different realities in between to create the illusion of continuous movement from one point to another. No one really moves anywhere; no one really goes anywhere.

Motion, in that sense, is completely a true illusion. The idea is that you simply recreate the reality over and over again discontinuously – now, now, now! Now, now, now, now, now to create the idea, the sensation of physical reality that defines its coordinates by space and time.

Now, the idea also is that we have discussed that you – since you exist only now, only in the present, experientially – actually create the past, as well as the future, from the present. Because now is the only time in which you actually ever really exist. The idea of memory, whether it be something in your particular present life in the past, or whether it be the idea and notion of a particular past life in the linear, let us say, film of your existence, all of that memory is still created in the present.

When you create memory, you are not actually thinking in the past; you are thinking of an idea called the past. But you are creating that memory in the present. All creation takes place in the present – always! It is always, to put it very simply, now! And it is never any other time but now. That is the only experiential time that exists.

Now, this visual aid can show to some degree – by a mechanical analogy – how the idea of the simultaneousness of all your lives can be interpreted in a linear fashion in the physical reality you are used to experiencing. But remember, this is simply an analogy. For this particular visual aid is, in a sense, simply a two-dimensional presentation of a three-dimensional representation of a fourth-dimensional concept of an infinitely inter-dimensional structure. So while many different degrees of dimensionality are removed from this particular mechanical visual aid, it will serve to get across the basic idea of the mechanism. Are you ready?

AUD: Yes.

B: What you will first observe is simply a representation of either – now you can take this either way – many different lives, each one represented by a hexagonal format of six arrows pointing in six directions, leading to every other hexagonal arrow pattern. So each of those can be a life. Each of those can be a different version of you in a different dimension – past, present, future, alternate reality. Call it what, you will; it does not matter. It is the holographic representation of the simultaneous existence of every single probable reality and possible way that you can exist, and do exist on every dimension there is to exist upon.

It is referred to as a holographic matrix, holographic in the sense that every point, in one sense, is equal to every other point. From any point you can perceive in any direction and, in a sense, all points connect to all other points. In other words, each spot contains the information of the whole, and basically is a microcosm of the whole. Now, this represents the view that your non-physical Oversoul has when it looks at all the different lives that you have simultaneously going on. It simply looks and says, "All right. 1934; 1987; 1992; 2500.”

All these ideas are all simultaneous to the Oversoul; they are all extensions of the Oversoul—simultaneous extensions in much the same way that your fingers are simultaneous extensions of your hand. Each finger has independence, in a sense, and represents a different idea, but they all lead back to the hand, are all part of one idea.

Now, if you will apply, or hold up the karmic overlay template, what you can see is a symbol, a strip that contains a particular idea. This is the representation of physical reality, linear space/time, with arrows moving only in one direction. The central arrow represents your idea of now.

The two arrows on, what you would call, your left represent past and the two on, what you would call, your right represent the future. In this indication it is simply indicated "past negative one, past negative two, future positive one, future positive two," to indicate either different moments in one life, or different lifetimes. You can take it either way. This chart can be used to represent whole life, or moments within one life. You follow along so far?

AUD: Yes.

Now, if you overlay the idea of the karmic template upon the holographic matrix, you will understand more precisely that karma is simply, literally, pattern recognition. That is all it is; it is a pattern overlay that you decide represents the present life you are living. You thus, by overlaying that particular format, or pattern or template upon the present idea you now decide to be, determine with that overlay what connections you have in the past and what connections you have in the future.

For it illuminates a particular set of arrows in other simultaneous existences, both now that allows you to call it the past, and simultaneous existence that now allows you to call it the future. Because you are looking through the filter of the overlay, you now only see these simultaneous lifetimes in a linear fashion: before, now, after. Because that is the definition of physical reality and the definition of the karmic overlay. It is a pattern that you impose upon yourself.

Now, this is why, in having chosen that particular pattern, you can see mechanically that you have determined which simultaneous other lives will be represented as past lives and future lives to the life you are creating. Angle the karmic template.

Now, you can say that this is perhaps another idea, another life style, another personality that you chose to be. Understand how being that other personality still allows there to be the bleed through of the holographic matrix to create still the illusion of a temporary momentum. But now you have a different set of past lives, a different set of futures lives. And the new person that you are literally determines the fact that you will then relate to a completely different past, a completely different future.

So the idea of having this life now, and then assuming that perhaps you die and reincarnate doesn’t necessarily mean that the life you’re having now will literally be directly connected to the next life you have. You can actually diversify very radically by altering the idea sufficiently so that the next person you are will actually have a different past life than the one you’re living now. Understand the mechanics, and simply see that the lineage always follows suit.
And also, if you take this as an analogy for even the moments in one life, then the change in direction can represent changes in the patterns or ideas that you are being at any given moment. And you can see that by a change in the pattern, you change the feedback all the way back and all the way forward, and create literally within one life a different past, a different future for the vibrational frequency you have dialed yourself to at this particular moment.

And also it shows you how in the present, what you call the center point, small changes in direction create large changes in the past and large changes in the future. Because you can see the sweep of the arc is a mechanical analogy, that a small divergence of pattern in the present will compound itself, both in the future and in the past, to create large variations. You understand the angle of incidence?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

B: The idea, therefore, is to recognize that you do not have to create overwhelmingly obvious changes in your present to create overwhelmingly obvious changes in your past and your future. A small divergence in any direction, in any frequency in your present, will manifest as a widely different idea and outcome in what you call the future, and a widely different idea and outcome in what you call the past. Because, as you understand the past, you have based your experience on what will happen on what has happened. This is the illusion you have created.

So simply understand that if you change yourself even minutely in the present, and that small change creates a great divergence in the outcome in your future, then, by definition, there must be a large divergence in your past to have initiated the type of foundation that would create such a large divergence in your future. You understand?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

The idea simply is to recognize that you are multi-dimensional, multidirectional. And any subtle change you make within any one life, or any change you make from life to life will connect you to a whole other series of incidents and events that have to do with the life you are living at the present.

So when we talk about the idea of what your past lives were, that does not necessarily mean that in the next life you have – if you have one – that you will have the same lineage. And it does not necessarily mean that the, quote/unquote, past life you were has the same future life that you consider yourself to be. They branch out multi-dimensionally, holographically in all dimensions at once. And you can take any route, any path, and they will all be real – all directly connected to you.

Whatever idea you are being at the moment determines utterly any other ideas that are capable of being perceived as being connected to you now, whether they are in, what you call, the past or the future. You are the dial, and the dial for your reality is always in the present with you. It is never in the past; it is never in the future. It may, in your terms, affect what you call the past, and affect what you call the future, but that control and that malleability is with you in the present. You all follow along?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

Does this mechanical analogy illuminate some of the ideas for you that we have discussed?
AUD: Yes. Thank you.

B: We can go into this, perhaps, further at another time. Or perhaps, according to anything you might specifically wish to apply to this idea. But for now it will do, and it will sink into your consciousness on whatever level it needs to.

Thank you very much, Assistant. And at this timing, in exchange for your willingness to allow us to share with you the reflections of the ideas that you all are, we will ask you now. How may I serve you?

Karmic Template
Key of Perception

Q: I had a very strange experience last week.
B: Strange?
Q: Yes, very strange. An individual misplaced his keys, and I was aware of it but I didn’t think anything of it, and the following morning, as I was emptying my purse, I found a strange set of keys in the inside pocket of my purse.
B: Oh, strange! (Laughter)
Q: And I immediately assumed they were his, and my first reaction was total surprise. My second reaction was embarrassment, and my third reaction was that I knew I had not taken those keys; that there was no reason for me to put strange keys in my purse...
B: All right.
Q: ... and that they had probably gotten there “on their own,” so to speak. Because I know that this can happen, it’s happened to me when I’ve misplaced things and suddenly they were there, when they weren’t there before.
B: Yes.
Q: And so I...
B: Then they are not misplaced.
Q: No, but I did perceive them at one point...
B: We understand.
Q: Okay. And I was a little embarrassed, but I knew I had nothing to do with it consciously, and then I thought, “well that’s very interesting,” you know, when you talk about synchronicity...
B: Yes.
Q: ... there must be a good reason for it.
B: There can be. What do you think?
Q: Well, I never did find out what the reason was.
B: You never did find out?
Q: You see, I would like to know from you, if you could perceive whether in fact they were physically put in my purse by somebody, or whether they just materialized in there.
B: Why?
Q: Because the person who misplaced his keys didn’t believe me. He thought I had taken them, which doesn’t make sense, and it doesn’t make sense that anybody else would have picked up strange keys and put them in a strange purse.
B: Then in this way, what does that allow you and your friend to find out about each other?
Q: Well, I didn’t find out anything except he thought I took them.
B: Which tells you what?
Q: Well, I was a little upset that he was angry, but I thought, “well, that’s his perception”... if I had been in his shoes I might have got angry too.
B: Maybe. What are you unlocking for each other, in that way? (Laughter)
Q: Really, for me, it just never got resolved, in terms of this particular synchronicity, which I at first thought...
B: You may simply be making it more complex than it needs to be. Do you feel, or have you felt that you can be a reflection, in certain ways, for this friend of yours?
Q: I thought so, but I did not sense that he was willing to discuss it with me.
B: What does that have to do with the fact that you may still be willing to be a reflection?
Q: Oh, nothing, nothing. I really would like to know if those keys got their on their own, or if somebody... you see, he was sitting behind me.
B: Our perception, in this way, is that there was, in your terms, what you call an assumption made on someone’s part when the keys were found and deposited where they thought they belonged. But in this way, simply recognize that no matter what the agent of the transference is, it is still synchronicity, and it is still magical. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: It still serves the purpose to allow the recognition of the interaction that is going on between you and your friend to come about.
Q: But there wasn’t much of an interaction.
B: There wasn’t? You said that your friend, in your terms, accused you of taking the keys.
Q: He didn’t accuse, accuse me...
B: Did you say that your friend created the idea of anger?
Q: That’s my perception... he called me on the phone.
B: All right, then you have created your perception of your friend’s anger. Whether the friend had anger or not, your creation of it, the involvement, is an interaction.
Q: Right, but I don’t know what he got... what I got out of it.
B: Why don’t you ask your imagination?
Q: I did.
B: And what did you get?
Q: Not very much.
B: The idea that you got, not very much, is a judgment. Again, you may be assuming that it is more complex than it has to be. What did you get?
Q: Actually, for myself: I really felt that those keys got there on their own, and I thought it was exciting. That’s what I got. (Laughter)
B: All right, very good, very good.
Q: And I thought it was a shame...
B: A shame?
Q: Well, okay, that’s a judgment. I thought he would perceive it as being exciting too, but of course I’m not the one who was put out by not having my keys.
B: So what does that tell you? What does it tell you, about you?
Q: About me? Oh... that I had expectations.
B: All right, what else?
Q: That I didn’t let it bother me for very long.
B: All right, very good. And that you can recognize that your creation of a situation and someone else’s creation of a situation, and a third explanation of a situation, are all their own complete realities.
Q: They’re all different from each point of view.
B: Yes, and all equally real for what it does for you, in terms of allowing you to create yourself in the image you imagine yourself to be. So in this way, you see that the idea of this key can unlock many locks simultaneously, allowing you to experience your portion of the idea and someone else to experience theirs, even though they may be very different.
Q: Right.
B: All the tools that you have in your society can all be viewed as keys. They fit every lock. One key changes and transforms to fit every lock that there is. So you use the key in your way, they use the key in their way, and in a sense, although it is transformed, it is all the same one key, basically.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Keying into the Frequencies

Q: You seem to like triads a lot, and I know your spacecraft is triangular in shape.
B: Yes. Our fascination with the triad – forming triads, working with threes, and so on – is because the triad formation, or triangular formation, first of all, is the primary fundamental geometric that will always occur in the second and third densities. The tetrahedron is the most basic fundamental form of manifestation in third density that you can have in physical reality.

Now, this idea of Sirius consciousness, our consciousness and your consciousness forming a triad consciousness is so that the two are always supporting the one. Our civilization works in threes, in networks of threes, always upon the principle of forming the triad for support, the two to the one... and thus, our triangular scout craft.

Q: So tell me about your craft. How does it look from the inside?
B: The particular craft that I use, more often than not, is a three-sided, equilateral triangle shaped one. The interior is hexagonal, for the three points are isolated for machinery, the central portion being relegated to control.

Q: That sounds great. Would it be visible to our eyes?
B: Oh, yes. There are many beings interacting with your civilization at this time. We will not be physically the first to interact with you, however, for we are assisting others who will be the first. In your manner of counting time, our opportunity to interact with you will occur somewhere generally within the next eight to ten of your years.

Q: I was wondering if there is a possibility of a human at this time visiting your planet? And if so, what technique would we use?
B: Only in astral form.

Q: What technique would you suggest to get us there astrally, then to change our frequency so that we could be with you?
B: Allow yourself, when you are lying down in your meditative state, to close your eyes and think of the vibration you are feeling now, that I represent to you. When you think of my identity, you will automatically be keying into the frequency of our civilization. An abstract form that can assist you is to think of a three-sided tetrahedral structure outlined in electromagnetic blue-white light. That will also align you to our frequency. Thinking of my identity will allow you to flow in the direction of our dimensional vibration when you simply let yourself flow. It is as simple as that.

Do you understand, again, that the majority of our population is composed of beings who do visit us in an energy state, an out-of-body state. In a sense they are projecting their mentality, and creating instantaneously the representational body in which they can experience existence upon our planet for any length of time they wish. And then when they are through with it, poof!

Many of you visit our dimension in astral form. However, when you wake up in your physiological reality, you bring back with you the remnants of a dream that may or may not have made sense to you, because there are many aspects of your own physiological consciousness that may not be able to relate, or need to relate to some of the things that you did when you were out of your body. So it will provide convenient symbols to represent the experience you had, in terms that will make the best sense for the reality you are focused in now.

You may not necessarily carry a literal memory of your interaction with us, but you will carry back a symbolic one (that), at least, that will contain the symbols necessary for you to be able to apply in your reality whatever it is you experienced, and/or learned, and/or shared in the other reality. But that is all you need to do, think about us and you automatically align yourselves like a dial on your radio to our frequency.

Q: When we’re on your planet, is our physiological make-up the same as it is when we’re here?
B: No, then it will be our physiological make-up; you are in our type of body here, by definition.
Q: Would that be the conscious "I" of myself here?
B: Are you imagining that you exist in our civilization right now?
Q: Sort of.
B: Sort of. Then you are sort of there also. Understand that our civilizational energy is offered to everyone, and is that malleable. The second you form the identification, you have a representational form on our planet in our dimension. And it can interact, and does interact with all the other members. That’s why we tell you that the awareness does not serve your purpose, obviously, by definition. You can allow it to, but right now, if you do not have the awareness, you are not allowing it to.
Recognize also that this is one of the reasons why we say that when we talk to you, we talk to all different portions of you. Many times while we are talking to you here, we are talking to the you there. And you, as the you there, are talking to the you there. You have only but to allow yourselves to realize it to begin to experience it consciously.

Q: Do you have any idea where exactly you are going to land? Which area?
B: No. And again – again, again – do not expect us to come. Because then we can’t. The expectation is something that says, "We need you to; we place you above us." And immediately you put us out of reach.
Q: Well, I just think it would be very exciting, and I’m looking forward to it.
B: All right. But do recognize that the idea is when the excitement is in the present, that is when we can meet you.
Q: Well, it’s very exciting right now.
B: Oh, very exciting! Is it so exciting that you are willing to completely be the being you know you are?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Then the sooner you begin to act like it, the sooner we will be there.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Keys of Ascension

B: The “Keys of Ascension” is what we choose to call the collective tool to raise your vibration, so that you can use all the other tools much more strongly – “The Keys of Ascension.”

All right, now, this will give you a general understanding of the levels of different keys in this process. You don’t have to remember them all right now; it is just for your information so you understand the basic structure of what is going on. And understand that this is a real physiological process that you are going to be going through when we do the meditation, later on at the end of this interaction.

Right now, this is for your intellectual digestion – all of this information, right now. We will take you through all of this, once, in an information mode and then later, we will allow you to really feel the vibration rise within you, as we go through the meditation, and will LOCK the process within you for you to use any time you wish, before you apply any of the tools we have already talked about. You rev yourself up; then use the tool; then you get the impact. That’s what this is for. Take yourself to the high level, use the tool from there, and see the instant change. That is what this is for. But just for your intellectual gratification, first of all, you will find that the KEYS, as we call them, are in certain categories.

First we begin with the idea of formlessness; just the idea of the blackness, the void, what you call the void. The nothingness, supposedly, out of which everything comes, formlessness. Then it goes into the quasi-form, quasi-forms. What you might understand as single point space, linear dimensionality, and planar dimensionality. Then the proto-forms; that which you would understand as your third dimension moving into fourth dimensional reality. Then the hyper-forms, going into the fourth-dimensional reality of you being, which is where you are heading now. Then the omni-forms; going into higher states of dimensionality, fifth-dimensionality, non-physical dimensionality. Then, in that sense, the transformatives, which allow you to go beyond the concept of dimensionality altogether, and take you back, full circle, to what you would perceive in general as formlessness, but which then actually becomes the concept of formation or information, or pure information itself.

Now, this never actually goes full circle back to formlessness, it always goes back to the first quasi-form, which allows you to see that this is not actually a completely circular idea, but an actual spiral idea. It never goes quite back, but always a little bit this way, and then, a little bit this way, and a little bit this way, allowing you to create the spiral of growth and spiral of acceleration. Never back to true formlessness, because once you have been through all of this, even if you go back to what you think is formlessness, it is still a different kind of formlessness because it has already been through the experience of all of it, and contains a nugget or a seed of information to allow you to build on the next level.

Now then, the first quasi-form out of the formlessness is the point. Simply that which expresses itself as not really true dimensionality – non-dimensionality, all things in one spot, what you might generally have referred to as that condensed state, that infinitely condensed state preceding, what in your reality, has been interpreted as the Big Bang.
The next, as you understand dimensionality, moves into a line. Quasi-form number two, the line. This is the second dimension that needs to exist as the universe, in that sense, expands itself linearly.

And then, quasi-form number three; the plane. Moving out from the line, then this way or this way, doesn’t matter, but only in the planar-dimension. Creating the structure, creating the template, creating the forms that divide all the different dimensions, the thresholds between dimensions, the vibrational thresholds. This all precedes, precedes what you understand as third dimensional reality.

Now we shift from the quasi-forms into the proto-forms; the first one being the cube. Now, we are also dealing here, now that we are in third dimensional reality, we are also dealing here with four different parallel tracts: the form itself as represented in this particular case by the cube, the chakra on the body that is the root chakra, the color that is representative of this idea, the red vibration, and also, we are beginning to explore all of the senses that you possess.

By the way, there being seven sense, not five; the first sense here then being the overall sense of touch; the basic vibrational sense. So, as we go through this and the next six, a total of seven middle keys, these will be aligned and corresponding to the keys, to the colors, to the chakra and to the senses. And these four parallel tracks will be raised in vibrational status all the way up together.

So we start here with the cube, and then go to the idea of what you call the four-sided pyramid. This will be now as if the cube has begun to collapse, what you will begin to understand is that the first three proto-forms will actually be decreasing. You will be, in a sense, shedding the idea of mass in raising your vibration. So the form will actually become more compact as you will see, from the cube, to this the four-sided pyramid and also its attendant orange color, it’s attendant hearing sense, in this way; and the idea of the stomach chakra, the belly chakra. And then to the next, and third, final proto-form: the tetrahedron, the three-sided pyramid. Again collapsing, once again, further down, shedding more and more mass, becoming more concentrated; also you see its attendant color and chakra and sense.

And now shifting into the hyper-form of taking this tetrahedron and doubling it, now you are getting the reflection, now you are getting the polarizations, now you are getting the astral or etheric doubles of these things and they will start to build back up.

Going to the next, you now have the octahedral structure. Now, this is a very critical point as well. For this is also representative of a balance point and a turning point, with regard to the sustenance of your physical form itself, and this has to do with breath and oxygen; oxygen being the eighth element, in that sense. Very key, and has a lot to do with the idea of transforming disease; and allowing yourself to be balanced and centered in life.

Now, moving on up, the next form is basically called a Tesseract or a hypercube. And what you are seeing here, for those of you who are not familiar with this particular form, is actually a third dimensional shadow of a fourth-dimensional form. What you are seeing is not literally just the idea of cube within a cube, but it is as if you had cube and looking in each side of the cube, you saw a different cube. So this cube contains completely different cubes all overlapping, but the only way to represent that is in the following diagram, which is simply a shadow, in three-dimensional terms, of a true fourth dimensional structure, in which one thing can actually co-exist inside something else, or pass through something else.

This is the etheric or astral state, in that sense, and is connected to the third eye, which is also connected to the true sixth sense of direction or orientation that allows you to perceive into different dimensionality. That is your true sixth sense and it is governed by the substance magnetite in your sinus cavities. This is simply, also, the sense of direction, following the electromagnetic lines of your planet that animals use to navigate themselves around your planet; and what gives you your sense of direction when you allow yourselves to have one. (AUD: Laughs)

Now, moving up, moving up into the omni-forms; this is the true representation of the key of the crown chakra. It is a rotating torus, or a doughnut shape that is rotating, not only this way and this way, but also within the doughnut, this way and this way. It is the true gate, through which passes the physical and the non-physical to join. Now, I want you to realize something, what does this look like? It hovers above the head and you’ve seen it in many of your religious paintings. This is the halo; this is why people have said there is a halo above the heads of enlightened people. That’s the true shape of the crown chakra gate. Now you understand that you all have halos. You are all angels in waiting.

All right, all right... once you pass up through this seventh and topmost, you then proceed up and above into the non-physical realities of white light and clear light. Now, the first shape above this is what you might call a flattened sphere, an oblate spheroid, which encompasses many multi-dimensional experiences but not everything, not everything. And then moving on ahead, we have the pure sphere, the All That Is, the high vibration, encompassing everything, knowing all, being one.

Now, again this still has the capability of going full circle, or as we said, full spiral. By now, going very quickly through the transformatives, transforming this illness back into the singular state at the center, collapsing to a disc, collapsing to a line, collapsing to a point, and back. Now, then at that point you arrive at pure information. What we are saying is that you allow yourself to raise your vibration to the point of a sphere, when you’re at that point is when you use the tools we have given to manifest what you want. When you have done that, when you have done it, when you have used it, when you have put it out there, you must let it go.

And the way you do that is by then using the transformatives – to take the sphere and collapse it back to the point of pure information, pure information, so that you can begin the next series, the next spiral, whatever else you wish to do. You must reorient yourself at that point, and you must then know that what you have done is put out, to the Totality, what it is you need... you have used the tool in the strongest way you possibly can, and you must trust, at that point, that it is doing what it needs to do to bring you very quickly the things you need to see, to know that that tool is working for you. And then you let it go by collapsing it, and going back to the point of information.

And then the next thing you want to do, the next time you need to use the tool – you raise yourself back up again, use it, collapse, let it go, send it out, burst of energy, explosion of creation. What you are doing is actually creating the entire creation all over again, the Big Bang, all over again, every time you do this within your personal universal reality. Each of you is a Big Bang unto yourselves. Exploding, expanding, being, collapsing, exploding, expanding, being, collapsing.

Learning how to use this tool as you will, when we go through it in the meditation, will change your entire vibration, will change your entire, eventually, cellular structure; will change your entire genetic structure, everything. Believe me, this is stronger than you think. It will actually, literally, start to transform you physiologically, and that’s why we have waited until now to deliver this, because it is a live wire. And you needed to have the proper installation, the other tools, before you could handle this, because this will change everything about you. Nothing will be left the same.

Keys of Ascension
Keys of Ascension I: Meditation

B: There will be nothing that you will need to pay attention to. Do not have anything that will demand your attention, other than what will happen spontaneously within your imagination in the following meditation. Do not attend to any other physiological needs or desires or wants. Just let them go. You will miss nothing; you will know everything that you need to know. Allow yourselves to close your eyes and take three deep breaths. And, once again, we will underline that your imagination knows what it is doing.

Therefore, if at any time during this meditation you find yourself focused on something different than what you feel is absolutely literally being said: let it go that way. Have faith in yourselves, you know what you are doing, you will miss nothing, it will all sink in, believe me, it will all sink in. Let us be concerned about that. We will find the doorways as you open them, we will INSERT the key into the locks; they will open. Just be willing; just be willing. That is all you need to do, just be willing, and you will be open enough to receive the benefit that you need to receive.

You may find, that once this meditation has been delivered, you will want to listen to it a few times, you will want to gain practice with it, and I would suggest that you do practice with it. Every day, if possible, practice it until you really know that you have really become familiar with that vibrational state, that vibrational state of your higher self.

Now, let us begin: breathing evenly, at peace, feeling the joy and the love, the unconditional love that you were created with from All That Is. Relaxing into your true natural selves. All the ideas of doubt, all the ideas of worry dissolving, dissolving, becoming more and more transparent, allowing you to see them for what they are... just thoughts, just notions, just beliefs. Not steel, not concrete, not even wood, not even paper, not even air... insubstantial, only as real as you believe it to be; on and off, here and gone, opaque, transparent, heavy and light. Light. Light. Light.

Now, let the light fade, fade to darkness; an all encompassing, all embracing, all supportive, deep velvety, velvety darkness of great potential formlessness; absolute eternal formlessness. You are floating, just floating, in that formlessness, deep, rich. You sense the potential within that formlessness. Yet all directions now are the same, infinite in all directions... you are the center of a place that has no center. It is formless, timeless, spaceless; no place, nowhere, nothing; nothing at all.

But then, a realization, a cohesiveness, a crystallization, takes place within the consciousness itself that is the formlessness; a realization that even nothing is something. And it crystallizes, COLLAPSES. The infinite depth of the formlessness collapses to a single point, a single point; an one dimensionality. And a birth, a birth of self-reflective awareness is concentrated in that single point. All potential exists in that one space, that one point. It has no real thickness; it has no real depth, it just is in its Isness itself. Concentrated, concentrated existence.

And now the first step: feel the vibration of that Isness, that fundamental L-O-W VIBRATION... DEEP, RESONANT VIBRATION: A HUM OF ALL THAT CAN BE. ALL THAT CAN BE. FEEL THE DEEP, DEEP VIBRATION OF ALL THAT CAN BE. And now in that realization... sense, sense the concepts of polarity, of self-reflectivity, of a mirroring... one point, now two points, and between them a LINE connecting them. The two points or simply two ends of a line, but the line can stretch to infinity. And the two points become two points on the line. The line is straight and true; the line of light, stretching forever. Feel the slight rise in vibration, from the single point of the VIBRATION RAISING to a LINE. Stretching forever onward. Forever outward, forever and ever, and you feel that pitch, that vibration.

And now another REALIZATION: if you can move in this direction, you can move in another direction, and the line vibrates like a cord of a string. VIBRATES, VIBRATES, giving birth to a new dimension. And it turns and vibrates, and turns and turns into a plane, flat and true; stretching perpendicular to the line forever and ever and ever; humming and vibrating with potential and energy, in a thin, thin, thin plane. No thickness at all; just thin, just plane, just out and away, all directions, out and away; a never-ending horizon, never ending horizon. Vibrating, vibrating at a higher pitch, containing an infinite number of LINES which contain an INFINITE NUMBER OF POINTS. An infinite number of points rising to an infinite number of lines, rising to an infinite plane; an infinite plane, vast potential... and yet you know, yet you know there is something more, something higher, yet another direction that you can move in. It’s no longer an outness is it, what is it? You search for that new direction of reflection. It is not just an outness, but it is an outwardness; an upness, a downness, a depth, a weight, a mass, a space, a volume, a time.

And you stretch, you stretch up and down, into the cube, the cube of physical space. The grounding, the anchoring, the solidity, the sharpness, the definition, the volume, the depth, the richness that it contains; the sense of withness, withoutness, volume, volume, physicality, physicality, structure, crystallization, dimension, reality, realization, reflectivity; all these concepts in the new vibration, the new equation of the cube. And out of the blackness that was there before, a new frequency... dim at first, you scan for it in the depths of the cube, the black depths of the cube, you scan for it and it begins as a soft glow, a glow you have never seen, never knew was possible. The glow is deep, deep red, deep burning embers, the fires of creation. A new vibration, hot, hot and pure, deep and true, deep and true; and as you allow yourself to feel that vibration of redness, it fills that reality, fills the infinite cube... you are immersed in the deep glowing embers of that vibration of deep red.

And you feel it concentrate and focus, focus on one of the lines, one of the volumes within that cube; this volume becomes the concept of a body, a crystallization taking place, a solidification taking place. And this red, this red, flows in, flows in and through an opening, a gate, an energy, a swirling energy. Collecting, compacting, amassing in what becomes the LOWER CHAKRA of this upward line, this upward form, this new body, this new crystal. It is the lowest point, the root, the grounding, the foundation, the beginning, the outcome, the bottom line. And you feel this vibration of REDNESS, this VITALITY coursing through the entire crystal; but keeping it’s focal point in that bottom position, that first position; the first of yet many to come. And you feel its deep vibration as the sense of touch itself, of awareness, of physicality itself, aliveness, physicalness, vibrancy, vitality, sexuality, sensuality, warmth, warmth.
And now, as you feel that hum, that deep, resonant hum vibrate throughout the ENTIRE CRYSTAL, it echoes back, echoes back. And where the echoes, where the ripples cross themselves, a new vibration, a higher vibration; more energy collects, and it raises the red vibration upward and upward and upward until it takes on an orange glow and forms the second point. And the cube seems to collapse in upon itself to form a four-sided pyramid. And it glows with orange golden fire.

And all of a sudden a new dimension erupts within this space, an orange glow that takes its place above the red and forms the containment, the receptacle, the feeding source, the sustenance, the stomach, the belly. The idea of that which provides, that which sustains, that which gives energy, that which, in a sense, gives a form of emotionality, of contentment, of support of All That Is.

And this orange glow allows you a new sensation, of touch, one that starts a new vibration, and the echo comes back...the first echo is heard by you. And the sense of hearing opens up, a whole new dimension of receptivity, the first echo creates the hearing sense and brings it into existence and manifestation. And as this new hearing comes back again, self-reflective echoing upon itself, a new vibration, a new energy ever upward begins to turn the orange brighter, brighter, brighter into a hotter, hotter, hotter fire of golden yellow glow. And the pyramid, the four-sided pyramid collapses, yet again, into a tetrahedral structure, three sides.

A base of an equilateral triangle, and three more equilateral triangles, collapsing in again into a sharp, sharp bright point; and this rises upwards into the pits of what becomes the solar plexus under the growing rib cage. That which sends out a beam of yellow golden light to connect you to the concept of past and future selves, a beam, perpendicular running through the new body; ever outward infinitely, ever outward to connect you to the ultimate future, the ultimate past. Allowing you to know yourself as a linear time frame being. Knowing your connection to all time, all places, all dimensions, along all of the electromagnetic planes of physical fourth dimensional reality; all futures and all paths within time are you.

And this vibration, this golden glow, this feeling that permeates you with warmth and energy and vibrancy erupts into a new sense like a dawning sun, and sight. Behold, sight appears. Let there be light. The first dawn, the first day, the golden glow of the rising sun, and all is before you. The land, the reality, the waters are laid out before you. All is made of you. Physical reality is the expression and the echo of the center of your being, the knowingness, the conviction...conviction, vibration. You see and behold, and as you behold now more clearly, do you see the reflections and the echoes that have been coming to you. You see as in a mirror in brightest day, in brightest day, you see these reflections come back and add and build and raise the vibration yet once again.

But now, now you understand the polarity, you see the light, you now understand it is the opposite of the dark and as you understand polarity in physical reality, as you move the vibration up into green, green, brilliant emerald green, a crystallization, an understanding takes place, and polarity manifests in a new dimension. The tetrahedron pointing up, now gives you a tetrahedron pointing down. Now you know you move in both directions, that you are both directions, that both directions come from the center of your being and it opens up a new center, a new chakra – your HEART. You are flooded with understanding, compassion and feeling, in the JOY of creation, the emotion, the e-motion, the energy motion of creation vibrates and resonates and sings throughout you. Vibrates the crystal that you are with this new shape, this color, this new understanding. And it enriches, enriches the reality, this new shape gives you a new subtlety, shading, coloration . . . and a sense of taste is born; the appreciation of the degree of differentiation and subtlety . . . this enrichment and love and verve for life itself.

You taste of life, you drink of life, and you explode with sensation, large and small, subtle and strong. Life is rich, rich beyond imagination, beyond compare. Green and abundant is the vibration of the heart chakra, and as you are overcome with joy, overwhelmed, you must find an outlet for this energy, and so you raise the vibration yet again, and it becomes a deep crystalline vibrant blue. Blue, electromagnetic, electromagnetic fire – this vibration is intense. You are vibrating the entire crystal of your being, it hums, hums with a high pitch, a high frequency, as you glow with this electromagnetheric fire and light.

And this new expansion turns into the octahedral crystal of eight, eight, eight, eight, the key of infinity, the key of life, the breath of life. And in comes the sense of smell, of everything having to do with breath and breathing and air . . . eight, eight, the air, eight, eight . . . the oxygen, the invigoration, the burning fire of life, the breath of life, the high vibration of physical vitality. You are alive and connecting and connecting and connecting to other energies, to the breath of life. Less and less and less dense substance do you need to sustain yourself, you are alive with life and light and breath, and breath sustains you and light sustains you and supports you. And it is what you eat and it is what you breathe, and you become this blue fire, and you crystallize and refine and clarify and purify, and sing with a pure TONE of blue light; a high vibrant, clear, resonant vibration and tone of pure mathematical energy and light.

Mind is created; you are aware of self-reflectivity through mind and intelligence. You key into all electromagnetic phenomena, you vibrate in accord, in resonant harmony, with all dimensions of vibrational electro-magnetic phenomena. You know and understand that all matter, all minerals, all vegetables, all animals, all consciousness within the physical plane vibrates in accord with this blue light, and you speak your truth, and you breathe your truth. And as you do so you rise yet again and rise and rise into the deep, vibrant indigo light of the third eye. And it opens doorways, doorways of dimensionality and changes, changes, as the indigo vibration goes deep within you . . . deep, deep, deep blue vibration within you, opens doorways, self-churning like the deepest portions of the ocean. Containing much information, much knowledge and becomes the Tesseract, the Hypercube.

Dimensions and doorways open and open, open and open, unfold, unfold, unfold. And this third eye chakra allows you to perceive that you have a sixth sense beyond the five: touch, hearing, sight, taste, smell, a sixth sense of orientation, of direction. Magnetically aligned behind your eyes, outward like a compass, outward like a needle, through all dimensions, through all thresholds . . . you know what you know, what you know . . . you are the vibration of knowledge and information. You are the Akashic records. You are all the lifetimes, future and past. You are the vibration of the total seed of all physical reality.
And this seed, this seed, this deep indigo blue seed with the hard shell casing, vibrates and vibrates and vibrates, and a sprout cracks the shell and moves upward, upward like a blossom to the CROWN, the crown... and blossoms with a beautiful vibrant violet flower. And causes there to be a glow, an expansion, and the Tesseract collapses into the taurus, the ring, the halo, glowing vibrantly, white hot at the center of the violet light. White hot and surrounded in the gentle, beautiful, beautiful violet glow that sings a thousand songs and bears a thousand petals and is a thousand stories... a thousand vibrations, a thousand chords in one harmony; a high physical vibration. You are at the peak, you are at the pinnacle on the mountaintop of physical reality. You are fulfilled. You see far and wide, you are the vista of life itself, you contain it all, you are it all.

You are joy and passion, you are ecstasy, the vibration of ecstasy. And as your ecstasy builds, and as your ecstasy grows, that white-hot center grows and grows and grows... the white-hot ring in the violet light grows and grows and becomes a spinning disk, a spinning thick sphere flattened like a galaxy, a galactic disk. You are rising above the mountain, levitating up and up and up, faster and faster, higher and higher, until the world is far below, and you become, you become, you become the stars and galaxies spinning at it's center... spinning, spinning.

You are ONE VIBRATION OF WHITE LIGHT... knowing, glowing, spinning, being... COMPASSION. And as you spin and spin and spin and spin, you expand, and expand and expand and expand into a sphere of clear transparent light; silvery, silvery, clear transparent, a sphere, a sphere... All That Is, All That Is. UNCONDITIONAL LOVE... ALL THAT IS. And at this moment, the moment of perfect power, perfect place, perfect peace, perfect energy, clear, silver transparent energy, LOCK, lock this vibration and UNLOCK all your potential, turn all of the keys, all at once, everything opens. You are a flood of light. YOU ARE LIGHT ITSELF. Pure, undifferentiated light itself.

BE! Use all the tools... in whatever way now you wish to use them. To apply, for whatever purpose, for whatever desire, for whatever excitement... use the tools now. On this level, use them – see, feel, be, know, do, assign meaning, give, know, be, top all, everything is – use the tools. Expand and expand and expand and expand to Infinity, expand more and more, and more and more. Let the energy carry this idea out, let the energy carry out who you are, what you are, what you desire, what you know you are, and let the bubble POP. Let it go, collapse to a disk, collapse to a line, collapse to a point and rest, rest.

And as this point, as this point, as this point slowly evaporates back into the formless All That Is, it becomes the idea of birth, of information; a seed, a seed of new potential that knows, that knows that its heart of hearts, and its highest wish has been sent to the universe. Let it go, let it work, allow All That Is to answer. And as you dissolve back into the formlessness, you feel, you feel the gentle ripples, the gentle ripples of the answer, the echo from All That Is, of what you have sent out come back to you. And the ripples say, yes, yes, yes. As the waves of the ocean constantly remind you, yes, yess, yessss. The calming, the soothing YESSSS...

Breathe with the assurance that you are a new being, a new reality, a new you. Yes. Yes. The universe has answered your wish. Yes, yes, yes. This vibration is yours. This tool is yours. It is our gift to you. Change your reality, change your world, change you. BE the you you desire to be... because you say so. Yes. Yes. When in doubt, remember: THE UNIVERSE SAYS YES. Yes to you. Nothing is held back. Nothing is denied. Yes, yes. You want to be who you really are: your true self, your true self. The universe says, yes, yes, yes.

Take a deep breath. Open your eyes. Use this tool! Use this Tool! Every day. Every day. I guarantee the changes will be profound. Thank you for allowing all of us to have arrived at the creation of this point, wherein we were allowed to share this with you, to reflect this to you. Thank you for expanding this reality.

Keys of Ascension I: Meditation
King’s Chamber Revelations

Q: Alexander the Great as well as Napoleon were said to have had transformational experiences inside the King’s Chamber of the Great Pyramid.

B: Yes.

Q: Napoleon would never talk about it, and he wouldn’t write about it. Can you comment on what took place?

B: He met his father in spirit form.

Q: His deceased father?

B: Yes, and also fathers of lineage past, times past and connections to that ancient civilization reincarnationally.

Q: Was there a connection between Napoleon and Alexander the Great?

B: Only in the sense of, what you might call, an Oversoul resonance.

Bashar: "Knowing Your Own Truth"
Circa 1995

Your actions, between us, are for the purpose of all of you knowing what information you have access to and not just simply asking us out of convenience, doing your own research so that you KNOW what you know and don’t just know it because I have said so. Because there are many different kinds of approaches that we take in communicating to your society, sometimes we will tell you that a thing is one way for a completely different purpose than you may think. A lot of times, what may seem to come from us to be a pat answer will not necessarily be true in all contexts but, perhaps, only in the one that we were discussing in that moment. So do not necessarily assume that we are giving you the FINAL WORD on everything.
Knowingness and Compassion

Q: I want to create a reality for myself where there is no hunger. And what I’m...
B: Now, realize that you are in accord with the overall mass consciousness as well.
Q: Yes. And I realize that you are in accord with the overall mass consciousness as well.
B: All right.
Q: And so...
B: Use your imagination.
Q: So all I... the timing is right to amass those beings, entities, people, kingdoms, life forms around me that want to be in this new reality that I’m creating. And all we simply have to do is talk it over, meditate it over, and get a picture of what we want; and that picture, that visualization, will then, all on its own, effortlessly, create it.
B: Now, realize that you do not even need, in that way, I’ll say, per se, for yourself, to talk it over, think it over, picture it out in that way, if you already know that you are that reality. All those manifestations will unfold automatically, and all the talking will take place quite automatically, by what you term to be a massive event of coincidence.

(Audience exclamations)
Q: Well, won’t we just be moving into that reality?
Q: (Simultaneously with previous): (inaudible) ... into the future and enjoy it. Is that correct?
B: Just being that reality, yes.
Q: Allow the future to be now?
B: Yes. Thank you.
Q: Well, doesn’t that reality exist now?
B: That is what we just said.
Q: Okay. So when we move into that reality... but still there may be a reality where hunger exists, but we just won’t be in that...
B: Perhaps.
Q: We won’t perceive it.
B: Oh, perhaps.
Q: Okay.
B: Realize again, that within the overall idea of that reality, it will not be perceived in such a total frame of reference, so that you may not even make the comparison between your now, present reality, which has no hunger, and any other reality which you think may have.
Q: Because, I was thinking that for every reality there exists some kind of opposite reality...
B: In a sense. But again, understand that within the idea of the integration of that polar oppositeness; understand that within the physical dimensionality alone do you experience the separation of those ideas – which are blended perfectly within all the other levels of your own consciousness, and not seem as dichotomies or polarizations.

Q: But why do we have to try so much to believe?
B: You do not have to try to believe. Again, ‘tis simply a matter of knowing.

Q: How do we tell ourselves that?
B: Go ahead. Say, “I already know.”
Q: I already know that I believe.
B: Now, do you believe yourself?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Now, are you really sure?
Q: Yes.
B: Why?
Q: Because I am.

B: Thank you. Because exactly that – you ARE here…you ARE the creator. You are infinite. You ARE, and always have been, and always will be, All That Is. Therefore, yes, you are.

And you can always know that that is your indestructible core, in that way, and that always, always, always, you may simply always know yourself as All That Is. And in so knowing yourself, provide quite automatically all the service to All That Is that will support and continue, I’ll say, reinforce, all the manifestations within your physical life that will always represent that support of All That Is. And in that way, you will be supporting yourself. Yes?

Q: What is the difference between being unaware – I mean, refusing to look at something that – let me see if I can put it right…being unaware of things going on around you, and creating…creating a different future. For example, we were talking about cruelty to animals, and you were saying that cruelty – we won’t be – we won’t perceive the cruelty to animals if we create…

B: Again, understand what you will be manifesting with those individuals who partake of that, I’ll say, projection, as you term “cruelty to animals” in that way, is to simply understand that as you vibrate within your own understanding of the reality you wish to perceive, then in their existence, in every reality of existence, you will be perceiving those facets of those individuals who will reflect, I’ll say, their existence of your vibration, and in that way, they will to you seem to have simply changed. But, you will be dealing, really, with different facets of those individuals, I’ll say, representative of that level of vibration.
Q: I understand that, and yet I, I can’t help but – maybe it’s that I’m perceiving an aspect of myself, but I can’t help thinking that somewhere these animals are suffering still, and...

B: All right, then, in that reality of your own choosing, they always will be.

Q2: Because they always will be anyway, everything is always now.

B: Understand, again, simply that by worrying about that idea, you yourself are feeding energy to that idea.

Q: Okay. Okay.

B: But again, understand one very important thing in all of this total idea: All That Is always is All That Is. So what! Then you again remove the importance of attempting to take responsibility for those other ideas – you are always creating judgment in the doing so, in that way. And therefore, understand that that idea of “So what” will always allow you to understand that, as you allow yourself to form exactly that reality for yourself, through the idea of an extension of yourself into the idea of your reality of All That Is – of yourself, AS All That Is, of yourself, therefore, as service to All That Is – then you can really simply know – know, know, know, know, know. Know, without a shadow of a doubt, that that, in your terms, in your reality, in all the realities that you allow yourself to comprehend or perceive or, I’ll say, in that way, view, then there is, in that way, no manifestation of that reality.

Q: Hmm. Right.

Q: To a certain degree, is the Orion going to shift and go into parallel universes and the same thing that’s...

B: Yes. But again, their shifting, in that way, is in accord with the vibratory level that they allow themselves to experience. Now, in that way, understand that many individuals upon your own planet have vibratory existence of other civilizations, other levels of consciousness, in that way; which still allows them to act out, to some degree, that idea, but in a different form, which will allow them more opportunity to change, again, that idea if they so choose.

Q: Okay, so... I didn’t understand that, but – are there some channels on – going into Orion, to cause them to do service for self, and other channels going into the underground guys to help them evolve into serving All That Is, and that...

B: Realize that, in this way, your terminology as expressed is not clear to us. What do you mean by channels “going in”?

Q: Well, their mass consciousness of the people in the underground are creating mirrors for themselves to see themselves evolving into All That Is through service of all...

B: Yes.

Q: And the other guys are creating channels, or existences of future selves that are creating service to self that’s...

B: Yes, very good.

Q: Great, great.
Q: Well, with regard to these guys on Orion, now that’s only a facet of themselves, too, so it’s like…
B: Yes.
Q: …we can just simply grant life to their wholeness…
B: Yes, and again, as you do so, in that way, you will be revoking the idea of responsibility for, and the judgment of yourself in comparison to that idea, and allowing yourself, again, to integrate within the fourth vibrational reality, in which you will not, in that way, experience that effect.
Q: Yes.
B: Again, by sharing your compassion, by being, by knowing that you are All That Is, and expressing the compassion that you know exists within All That Is, to have created All That Is.
Q: Uh-huh.
Q: Can you explain the difference in ideas or vibrations at the fifth and sixth and the seventh levels?
B: Only briefly at this time.
Q: Okay.
B: Understand that there will be, again, upon those levels, more and more, simply, the idea of that integration into All That Is. And it will be expressed in a number of ways, which, I’ll say, at this time, really have no translatable idea in your language. Do you follow me?
Q: Mm-hm. Is that just in our language, or in just in…
B: Realize that at this time, it is the only language you are perceiving from what you experience as the channel.
Q: Can you speak other languages?
B: In that sense, yes, but realize I am not really speaking your language. Realize there is no need, in that way, for me to learn your language. There is, in that way, telepathic concepts being transmitted, and the channel is acting as a translation device in that way, allowing there to be automatic responses within what you term to be electrical stimulation of the brain. So that there will be, I’ll say, concurrence within ideas that are understood in the way, which will form, on our understanding, the symbols necessary for you to, I’ll say, receive the telepathic communication.
Q: So it’s just that the channel doesn’t – he speaks English…
B: Yes.
Q: Oh.
B: That is why also, then, you’ll find that the same, I’ll say understanding or entity, or identity or consciousness, in that way, may channel through many different individuals, although their languages may be different.
Q: Do you channel through people in different countries?
B: Yes.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Knowledge Embodied In Ancient Structures

Q: Is the face on Mars a genuine artificial creation?
B: Yes.

Q: What is it, or was it supposed to be... I mean, is it part of a larger structure?
B: Yes. And it is a marker of a timing similar to the idea of many of the artifacts on your own planet of earth, in that it has been likened unto what you call the Sphinx; which is an embodiment of knowledge and information in a geometric, archetypical, artistic format – so that it can always be gleaned, and always remembered. And no matter what else might happen, the information, if it is there in stone, is there forever.

And thus, it forms a bridge and a link to awaken – no matter if you may go incarnationally to hark back upon your own past – for many of you are incarnations of the civilization that used to exist when your Martian planet was capable of supporting life. And thus, as you look back on that face, you look back on your own faces in those ancient incarnations. And also make the connection to what has been done on your planet, especially in what you call the Egyptian area, which of course, again, as a reminder, in the ancient language of your planet, the name Cairo means Mars.

Thus, there is a bridge and a link between the idea of the storage and preservation of information in the Sphinx and the pyramidal forms, at least the ancient ones, that is directly connected to the idea of your history, your understanding of the nature of the Solar System, Physics, Mathematics, Science. So that if ever anything should occur that would allow you incarnationally to forget, all you have to do is look back to those edifices and glean, once again, all basic knowledge you need. You understand?

Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Does this help you?
Q: It does, indeed.
B: Thank you.
Knowledge

While it is critical and important for all of you to gather knowledge, data, information, it is equally important that you apply that knowledge, information, data, through your actions in your daily lives. For if you do not, you will not fulfill the connection that is necessary for the manifestations you desire. Knowledge – it’s all well and good, ideas are all well and good, but without the application of knowledge there really is no effect, for you are not at call in your life, in that sense. You must allow yourself, always, the understanding that while meditation will help clarify who you are, by putting you in touch with the infinite knowledge of All That Is... in your center as you are quiet, you align, you harmonize, you synchronize with the infinite knowledge of All That Is. But once you have some knowledge, some understanding, if you do not then come back into focus in your lives, and through joy, apply that information, then you are not creating the balance between Heaven and Earth, as you say in your language, that is necessary for you to see the rewards, reap the effects of that knowledge, of that information.

You are physical beings and application and action are just as important as aspects of spirituality as any idea, or concept or information that you may have within your imagination, or within your heart of hearts. Your desires, your wishes, these are important, powerful and potent energies, but you are a channel, you are a conduit for those energies, and it is through your actions, your behavior in physical reality, your body language, your attitude, the things you do, the way you do them, how you say the things you say that radiates that frequency outwards into your physical reality, making you a magnet that attracts the manifestations of reality that are reflective of that frequency.

If you are content to just sit in your easy chair and think good thoughts, you may have a wonderful and pleasant dream life, but you will find that without some degree of action many things that you desire will not come to you because you are not giving off the sign that you will do anything with what you are given. You are an active principle of life. You are an integral part of the mechanism of creation itself, and without acting as that bridge you cannot allow what is coming into you from higher levels to come all the way through into your reality. It is really as simple as that, you are the switch itself, the bridge itself, the link itself between Heaven and Earth.

The idea, again, as we have said before, when you get in touch with the way things relate with the ideal reality, it is not the purpose to run away from the Earth in search of that ideal reality, but to bring that energy down to your planet, to create Heaven upon the Earth, as you poetically say in your language. Because that is why you have chosen to be where you are at this time, to be of service, to be of help. And each and every one of you, make no mistake, has a great impact upon the whole planet. Each and every one of you has a purpose in being where you are, and you can know this and you can feel this, and you can experience this, if you will but act in accordance to your dreams and desires. Being physical...the representation of the kind of energy, the kind of conviction, the kind of knowing certainty, that is already of the world you say you want to create. For in being that state in thought, word and deed, do you thus accelerate the ability of that reality to manifest all around you.

You are...you are, if you wish, again, a poetic analogy, "God’s Paintbrushes." Allow yourself to let that creative spirit come through and paint broad strokes upon the canvas of your reality. You are the brush, but you are also the paint, you are also the canvas, you are all of those things, simultaneously, you are the action itself, you are the experience itself, you are the process itself...no segregation, no separation, no process to learn to live life...living life is the process. And if you simply do it as best you can, in all ways, on all levels, you are fulfilling your purpose, your self-chosen purpose; just by doing the best you can at any given moment...it’s all you need to do.

We thank you for allowing us to share a slightly different perspective of this idea, once again. We find that it is important to urge you into action, for we know, we can see, the kind of realities you can manifest if you would but move as if you already lived within them. And we know it will delight you no end, when your idea of yourself and the way you express yourself are one.
Closing Comments

We will extend, once again, to each and everyone of you our deepest appreciation for this reflection and for allowing us to be, momentarily, temporally, a mirror to remind you that anything and everything you have ever realized within this interaction has been because you gave it to yourself. I have given you nothing, except an opportunity to love yourself and that is what has given you everything else and you have allowed us to experience the gift of being allowed to give the opportunity and we thank you for that great gift.

Our unconditional love to each and everyone of you and all of you and your whole world and your whole being and all your spirits and all your hearts and all your minds and all your bodies and all your souls for ever, good day.
Latitudinal Dynamics and Releasing UFO Information

Q: Good day, thank you for this opportunity once again.
B: And you, as well.
Q: The first thing that I would like to discuss with you is perhaps connected to a similar phenomena that happens to the crop circles, and it has to do with the upwelling of energy at 19.5 degrees in our Solar System, in the hyper-dimensional physics. On the earth we have a volcano…
B: Yes, we understand the concept. What is your question?
Q: What is the mechanism behind that phenomenon?
B: One moment… the idea, to explain it in terminology that would translate appropriately, would be to view this as the largest chord of the tetrahedral template that can be expressed in your physiological reality – according to anything that has congregated or formed an accretion in any particular locale. Now, did that make any sense?
Q: So it acts like a relief valve, in a sense?
B: In a sense, but it is also an activation. In the sense that a spherical object, in space, will, because of the equal pressure in all directions of the forces that generated it as a spherical object, exemplify and express, or act as a medium to express, the largest tetrahedral chord that can be expressed, in the underlying tetrahedral, vibrational energy template that makes up the components of physiological reality.

Let me put it to you this way: you have on your piano the idea of a note; you have on your piano an octave; and you have on your piano an idea of all the notes and all the octaves, and all together that makes up the whole idea you call the piano. You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: There are the notes, the small tetrahedral structures that underlie, that act as a template upon which physical reality is formed, is based, grows, is crystallized. There are the octaves, which you may find in a variety of different levels of dimensional expression on your planets.
The idea of the crop circles is that which is taking advantage of a whole octave, in a sense, to translate themselves into your physical reality. And then you have the whole piano, which is the representation of that overall tetrahedral vibrational chord that happens to come out at those latitudes on your planet. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you.
Q: The next area…
B: Yes.
Q: …we had a deregulation process going on in many of our industries, as you have commented would happen. The telecommunications with the phone…
B: Yes.
Q: . . . we’ve had the airlines, and now concurrently with this is that we are having an energy deregulation. And as with the airlines and the Value Jet crash, and as in our nuclear industry, there seems to be more demand on better performance . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . and what’s happening is that a lot of parts and different equipment is being manufactured that perhaps is not to specification.
B: Yes.
Q: And one of the things is that there are 110 plants in the U.S. currently, and 435 in the world. Do you see any possible further episodes, such as Chernobyl, happening in any of these plants?
B: In their own way, perhaps, not necessarily as wide spread, but in their own way there will be the possibility, at this time, as we scan the energy, of at least 3 in 57, 3 in 57 plants. And out of 57 that are experiencing the idea of threshold regulations, three may go critical in their own way – though this may not, necessarily, translate exactly into the same type of idea that you recognize Chernobyl to be. But the idea, in and of their own right, of collapse, will be to some degree detrimental to the surrounding environment.
Q: Would you agree that Chernobyl is the worst accident in human history, in our current history overall?
B: No, what you would call the devastation of the ecology in your oceans is – far greater. There are sections of your entire oceans that, for a lack of a better term, are dead.
Q: And to change the subject: is there any duress directed towards our government from within our own civilization, or from without, to not let the UFO information out? Because a lot of our top investigators and government officials who really are active and want to release the information are brought in for a briefing, and within 30 to 60 minutes they all come out saying that this information must still be kept covered up.
B: Then you already understood that there was duress and did not need to ask.
Q: What is the main agenda that these people are being informed about, that causes them to have such a 180-degree shift in perspective?
B: We cannot discuss that at this time.
Q: Okay. And the last thing I would like to ask you is that there is a device on our planet known as the Neurophone, which translates audio waves into square waves . . .
B: Yes. This can greatly amplify the concept of learning; you may explore and experiment as you wish.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: One moment, one moment, one moment, one moment, one moment...interface, interface, interface (the renegade reptilian, Alpha Deyo, comes through...)

Learning as Remembering

B: The idea of the purposes of each and every one of you in your collectively, the reasons for which you all draw yourselves together into any gathering, any grouping, any recognition of any portion of the mass consciousness that you are, is a part of the process that you have chosen for this physical life to remember who and what you are. Recognize that all of what you call in your civilization learning is the process of remembering who you are. For the idea that you have created in this physical reality has been the idea of being able to forget who you are. That is what you have been exploring for many thousands of your years.

Now you are at the ending of this cycle of exploration. Now, therefore, you have created the idea in your consciousness of what you call 'new age awareness.' This is simply your symbol to reflect that you are going through a transformation. This transformation is simply one of defining yourselves anew, recognizing more of yourselves that already exists, becoming more aware of more of your being, more of your consciousness. Remembering that you agreed, individually and together, to create this – what you recognize as your physical reality, and to project yourselves into it for the purposes of exploring the idea of limitation, the idea of separation – which is simply one more way that All That Is has of expressing Itself.

You are remembering that you know everything you need to know. You are remembering that you are in a sense the gods. You, in your reality that you see 'round and 'bout you, see yourselves reflected in that as if it is a 360-degree spherical mirror. What you perceive as your physical reality – which surrounds you, in which you think you exist – is a projection from the center of your being reflecting back to you from the screening you have built round you to cut yourselves off from the rest of yourselves.

It has been your grand experiment. You are no one’s experiment but your own. This is your reality. This is your dimension. We, and other civilizations and other consciousness levels – or what we call densities – are now able to lend to a certain extent some assistance in your recognition, your remembrance of who and what you are, but only to the point that it does not interfere with what you have chosen to experience in this life. This is the transformational life upon your planet.

This is the transformation of consciousness from third to fourth density, the raising of your vibrational level so that you will create more awareness of more of yourselves, have more of yourselves present in an energy relationship, and gather to yourselves all that you have ever been in this entire exploration that you have called your lives within your Earth plane of experience. Are you all following along so far?

AUD: Yes.

B: Therefore, we are connected in a sense to you all. Any other civilization that is interacting with you is connected to you through consciousness. We have all co-created the experiences that are manifesting in your lives simply because we can. Simply because we can. Recognize that many of you on your planet, because you are coming out of what we call the habitual rituals of separation and limitation, have come up with the idea that your lives to be lived need a specific purpose. And in a sense it does, but many times not what you think.
You, the individual personality construct that you have created yourself to be in this life now – that, to be that completely: that is your purpose. To be exactly completely who and what you have chosen to be: that is your purpose. Being true to yourself, living with the conviction of knowing what you are all about, allowing yourself the freedom of expression without judgment, without invalidation.

To express yourself fully, as the being that you are is to then be living as the complete facet that you are of the multidimensional crystal that is All That Is. And in being fully yourself, you then extend to fill your universe, your particular facet. And by extending to fill your facet, and not a withdrawing and shutting yourself off, do you allow yourself to then along those borderlines touch all other facets and feel the connection that you have to everyone else, to everything else in All That Is. You all follow me?

AUD: Yes. (A muted response)

B: Are you all alive?

AUD: Yes!

B: All right. Thank you.

AUD: Thank you.
Learning How Attitude Changes Our Experience

Q: (A child about 9 or 10) Hi.
B: Hi!
Q: I wanted to know...I was having some problems recently with my family...
B: All right.

Q: And I don’t know, I’ve just been having...I’ve been being really inconsiderate.

B: Inconsiderate, in what way?

Q: I wouldn’t think about what I was doing. I mean I would do something and not think about how the other person would feel about it. I mean...
B: All right. But are the things that you do – do you mean to hurt those other people?

Q: No.
B: All right. Then first and foremost don’t be too hard on yourself. If after you do something like that, and you feel that it was something you really did not want to do and that you were hurting those other people, once you become aware of that, then simply allow yourself to recognize that it may not be something you wish to do again. And then simply don’t do it. You do not have to be angry with yourself. You do not have to worry about yourself. You do not have to think less of yourself. If you did it, you did it; it is over and done with. If it has allowed you to learn that you don’t want to do that again, then simply don’t do it again, and there will be no reason to think badly of yourself.

Q: But that’s my problem – that I tell myself I won’t do it again, and then I do it again.
B: All right. What is it that you are doing that seems to be so hurtful?

Q: Well, like...let me give you an example.
B: All right.
Q: The other night I had a friend sleep over.
B: Yes.
Q: And my Mom wanted us to go to sleep, and I was kind of arguing that I didn’t want to. And I didn’t notice that my friend was tired. And then finally when we did go to sleep she just totally fell asleep. And I didn’t realize that she was tired and that she fell asleep. (Half crying)
B: All right. All right. There is no need to feel badly; it is all right. Now, why do you think that you would like to change?

Q: Because I don’t like hurting people’s feelings.

B: All right. Do understand that even though this might be something you can change, that if at first you don’t mean to hurt their feelings, then individuals can choose to believe that their feelings are hurt whether you are actually doing anything about it or not – whether you are the cause of it or not. Individuals can act like they are hurt when they don’t have to. You understand so far?
Q: Yeah.

B: So it’s not always going to be because of what you are doing – not always. People can act like their feelings are hurt when you have done nothing truly to hurt their feelings. So do not always think that you always are responsible, just because someone is acting hurt. There may be, in what you are doing, something that they need to look at as well. Now, you are attempting to take responsibility for your actions, and this is beautiful, and we love you. But responsibility doesn’t always mean blame; responsibility means the freedom to act as you prefer to act.

Now, if you feel that you are being hurtful, that you are being inconsiderate, that you are being thoughtless, then this may be a reaction to the times when you perhaps believed that someone else was being thoughtless about you. You may simply be creating a reaction because perhaps you feel that other individuals are not being considerate, or in the past have not been considerate about you. Are there times when you believed that other individuals have not been considerate of you?

Q: Well, I know that I’m often inconsiderate with my mother, and . . .
B: But that is not my question. One moment.

Q: Yes, But she isn’t inconsiderate with me. And . . .(Crying)

B: All right, all right. Now also understand something else: in no way does this mean that you are any less than anyone. But, as we perceive it, you are still what you call a child in your society, and you are learning the things you need to learn. Do not think for a moment that you are incapable of learning. It is not a problem; a problem is only the way you have been taught to think about this situation. A problem is only a situation that you will not allow to change. Let’s play around and experiment with something if you are willing. All right?
Q: Okay.
B: Let’s assume for now that you are saying that you are in a habit. And that this habit is that, before you think of anything else to do, you believe that you act inconsiderately. All right, but that doesn’t mean there aren’t other things and other ways you do think of to act as well. You follow me? You do know that there are other ways to be – yes?

Q: Yeah.
B: All right. Now, if you find that you are acting, in your estimation, inconsiderately, then do not add to the problem by being harsh with yourself, because that does not allow you to change. What will allow you to change is to acknowledge – as you are doing now, but not in a sorrowful way – that you were perhaps inconsiderate. Say, “All right, all right: I now stop myself. I realize I was being inconsiderate. All right. So I chose to be inconsiderate; so maybe I believe I have a habit that the first thing I will do is be inconsiderate. All right, I believe I have a habit. However, I now acknowledge, I take responsibility for having that habit. Which means I’m not trying to get rid of this idea; it means I am willing to accept that that’s the way I believe I am right now. That’s the way I have chosen to be.”

As soon as you accept that that is the way you are, then it is easier to change. But if you find that you are being that way and you don’t like it and you try to get rid of it – if you don’t face it and you are judgmental, if you are harsh on yourself – then you are not using your energy to change. You are using your energy to stay the same. Because all you are doing is scolding yourself, and in scolding yourself you are being inconsiderate of you.

So if you are going to find that, from time to time, you may be inconsiderate of others, all right, take responsibility for that, as you are doing. But what will allow you to stop doing that is to first stop being inconsiderate of you. There is nothing wrong with you. If you have that habit, you have it for a reason; it is there for you to learn something.

Perhaps it is there for you to learn how easy it is to be considerate of other people. So if you will remember the following thing: everything happens in life for a reason. You chose to be in this life, whether you remember so or not, you chose to be born in this life. And you choose the situations that you are in, in life.

So allow yourself to realize that you knew what you were doing when you chose to be born in this life, and that you would not do pointless things. You would not choose to come into this life and have a pointless life where things could occur that have no reason for being there – where things could occur that make no sense.

The things that occur in your life are there for a reason. So the first thing you can do is treat yourself as if even the things you don’t like are there for a reason – to get you to learn something about yourself. And if you’re willing to simply learn it, and not scold yourself, then you will change.

But the idea is that everything you do experience has a place, has a reason for being there. It is there to teach you something. When you spend time feeling sorry for yourself, and being inconsiderate of yourself because of the things that happen, then you are not learning the lessons in these situations, and then you are not changing in the way you say you want to.

So, first of all, don’t be so hard on you, even when you might be hard on others. The only reason you are hard on them, and inconsiderate of them, is because you are afraid. You are afraid that what they are doing will not let you be who you are.

But there is no way that this life will not let you be who you are. Everyone that you interact with, you are interacting with for the purpose of allowing you to be who you want to be. You do not have to be afraid that situations will interrupt your life and not bring you what you want. All situations are in your life because you want them there, because there are things you want to learn from them so that you can become who you want to be.

Q: But how come... I understand that I learn from things that happen, and I think about that afterwards – what I learned...

B: Yes?

Q: ... and what I can do so that they won’t happen again. But they keep happening anyway.

B: That is simply because your fear is greater than your curiosity at this point. Do you like to explore things? Do you like to explore things more – or do you find that you are more afraid of what you might find when you explore things? When something new happens, when some situation in your life happens, do you find that you would rather not know why it happened? Or would you rather explore how you can use it, how you can learn from it?

Q: It depends on what happens.

B: All right, but you see, that’s the point. You are making the distinction that it matters what happens, and that there is a difference. And it is that difference you are making that does not let you feel that everything can be learned from. There are no situations that are too horrible to learn something from. And it is only your belief that the situation is horrible that doesn’t let you learn something from it.
There are no horrible situations. There are only beliefs of horror. There are no horrible situations. You can learn something positive from anything. Be willing to look at everything. Be curious. When your curiosity overcomes your fear, then you will stop punishing yourself, and these things will not continue to happen.

But you see, it is also an illusion that these things keep happening. Nothing ever happens twice – nothing. It is a different thing. It may appear to be similar, but it is not the same situation because it is not the same time. It is another time, and that is enough to let you know it is not the same situation. What makes you feel that you have a problem is that you have been taught to believe that when it appears to be happening again, you really think it is happening again.

Think that it is not happening again. Think, this is happening for the first time – because it is. It is not the same situation. It’s never exactly the same circumstance. And you are not failing at something. You are exploring many facets of the same idea. So when you learn something from the first situation, you then create perhaps a similar situation. But it is different in important ways. Explore the differences. Do not focus on how the situation is the same; focus on how it is different. That is your clue.

Do not think it is happening again. When you allow yourself to believe it is not happening again, that it is not repeating, but allow yourself to believe that it is different, and focus on how it is different, then your attitudes will change. And when your attitudes change, your reality will change. Your experiences will change, and very soon you will understand that you have never – ever, ever – done anything again. So focus on what is different about the situation, not about what is the same, and that will make a difference. You understand?

Q: Yes. I wanted to know. . . a few days ago I was up in Yosemite National Park. Well, something happened . . .
B: What happened?

Q: We were ice-skating – about ten other kids with me – then we decided to walk back to our cabins, a place which was about one or one and a half miles. And we got lost. . .
B: Not really. But I understand what you mean.
Q: Yeah, we couldn’t find our way back. And I was trying to think . . .

B: All right.
Q: . . . what I had learned.
B: All right. Well, here’s one thing you can learn right now: you are never truly lost – never. Anywhere you find yourself is where you need to be. And also, you are never truly alone. You are a beautiful part of the whole universe. And the whole universe is alive. Alive! Even if you were out in those woods all by yourself, you are never alone. All you need to do if you find yourself in that situation is to know you are not alone, and ask to be shown that you are not alone. And instantly you will know where you are and where you need to go. Just open your heart.

Q: Well, something like that happened and, well, after a while, when I was really, like, praying and meditating, while we were walking along this road a lady came by and she told us how to get back; and she brought us back.

B: There you are. That is all you need.

Q: But still – I don’t know what I learned?

B: You learned that you were able to attract to you someone who could help, that you are never really alone. That’s what you learned. You put yourself in a situation temporarily where you forced yourself to face the idea of whether you would believe you were really lost or not. And what you did, and what you succeeded perfectly at, was proving to yourself that you can never really be lost, that there will always be some way that you will find where it is you need to go. That’s what you learned. You understand?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Thank you very much, and may I tell you something?

Q: Yes.
B: I love you.

Q: I love you, too.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Learning How Attitude Changes Our Experience

“Learning the difference between, falling into the illusion of power . . . and learning to use the power of the illusion.”

Las Vegas, NV

Monologue
B: All right I’ll say good day to you this day of your time how are you all?

Audience: Great, Perfect, etc . . .

B: Once again we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you first of all for allowing this transmission to occur in this manner and through this particular window on this day of your time. Each and every time you allow such a transmission to be conducted a link is formed, a bridge is built between our perspective realities and we get to experience through our interactions with each and everyone of you more and more perspectives, more and more facets, more and more aspects of the Infinite and more and more points of view of creation. And this expands our understanding of all that creation can be and so we thank you for this gift of sharing.

We would like to begin this transmission with the following idea. We would like to remind each and every one of you individually and collectively, altogether, about an idea that we will call “Learning the difference between, falling into the illusion of power, the difference between that, and learning to use the power of the illusion.”

Many individuals on your planet, for quite some time, have fallen under the illusion of power. Thinking that power exists in the outside world and must be, in a sense, harvested, must be attained, achieved. That things, circumstances, situations, even people, must be somehow manipulated, controlled, brought into the position that you desire them to be brought into in order to achieve a certain thing.

Many individuals have fallen under this illusion of power, and of course the result has been a great deal of strife, separation, segregation, pain, suffering and so forth.

But now, many individuals are beginning to awaken from the illusion of power, and are beginning to be able to actually use the power of the illusion. They are beginning to understand that physical reality doesn’t really exist outside you. That you are physical reality, it exists within you. That the power of the illusion is in learning that it is, in a sense, an illusion. Learning that that’s what reality is. And in learning that it is manufactured in a sense, within you, learning the means by which this is done, learning the means by which you can change it, internally, by changing yourself. And understanding that as you change yourself, so you change the entire world, for each and every change is a total change, not just a small change but a total change. And when you know, that physical reality is a mirror, a reflection, of your strongest beliefs, your strongest thoughts, what you believe is possible, most likely to occur, then you can use the outer mirror illusion reflection, as a guide line, a marker, a reminder, [of] what kind of thoughts you are having, what kind of definitions you are believing, what kind of concepts you are buying into. And you can use it as a feedback system to show you, whether or not you prefer to

But as we have said before, and this is one of those, what you call in your language, catch-22’s, is the idea that, it must be an unconditional change, must be an unconditional internal change. Which is another way of saying that if you make a condition, of changing in other words you say, “I will change IF I get then the response I want to get.” Then you are making it conditional and you are still putting the power outside yourself. You’re still projecting outside yourself and saying that the power of change comes with the outside, comes with the change in the outside, rather than simply determining that the change has happened within you. And that you are who you want to be for its’ own sake. Regardless of what goes on around you.

In other words that’s the secret of true change - is that you will change and will behave differently than you did before, even if the outside reflection is still the same. When you can be that, when you can behave differently than you did before even when the outside hasn’t changed, then, then you have really changed. And when you then have really changed, the outside has no choice, as a reflection, like in a mirror, but to change, to mirror you.______

But if you do it to get the change, you short-circuit it, and it will not happen. Because you make it conditional. That’s the power of the paradox in this situation. And the power of the paradox between the difference of the illusion of power and using the power of the illusion.

Now when we say illusion, again understand, in your semantics, in your language, that’s what reality is - it doesn’t mean that there is no reality. Except that there is no reality, except what you define it to be. But that’s what reality is. We are not saying it doesn’t exist, but we are saying simply that reality is only the definitions you bring to the forefront of your belief system structure and that forms the reflection, the illusion if you wish, that you see, that you perceive all around you.

Now again, remember, this is not just a philosophy. This is physics. You are energy. Energy is information. You are patterns of information. You are a perspective. You are a point of view. Of consciousness, of awareness, of Existence itself. That’s what each and everyone of you are. A point of view.

And as you design and define your point of view of who and what you believe yourself to be, or who and what you believe yourself capable of being, that’s what you get reflected.

It may not always be a one to one reflection literally, it may be quite symbolic because the reality mirror, the illusion is in that sense capable of reflecting back to you in many symbolic ways, the representative of many states and levels of your consciousness, your emotional self, your spiritual self, your mental self, your bodily self.

There are many different ways that your mirror has of reflecting back to you those symbols that are representative of the beliefs you hold most true. And so it is up to you to be imaginative, to be able to learn to interpret your own reality around you - the things that you see, the people that you meet, all have significance. There are no accidents in that sense. It is a type of orchestration, a choreography. And it is up to you to let it in, in your heart, your mind, your spirit, your body, let it in, to be open to what your reality has to say to you, to what your reflection is showing you about yourself, so that you can learn to truly master the power of the illusion, instead of being the slave to the illusion of power - that many of you in your society have succumbed to for thousands of your years.

This is what this transformation is all about, that’s going on in consciousness on your world - the awakening, the opening up of your self to more of your Self. The realization, the Real-I-ization, of who and what you really are, what you’re really created to be, and thus the total surrender, that is to say, total acceptance of your self. So that reality can show you, who you actually are, rather that playing the illusion game, of who you think you’re supposed to be. Which only has you running around in circles, and tiring you out. And you have been so very tired for so very long, as a society.

Time to energize and wake up, and the way you will do that is to surrender to who you are. Accept who you really are in your heart of hearts as a dream-er, as an imaginative creator. And accept reality as a reflection of you.

You are not a victim, in any way, shape or form, on any level what-so-ever. Unless you decide that’s the game you want to play. And if you do, it will be allowed, because you are always supported, in everything you decide is true. Because again, Infinite Creation is nothing but Unconditional Allowance and Love. And will allow you, through it’s unconditional support and love to have any game scenario you want. Even a game scenario wherein you can pretend you are not loved. It loves you that much. And so use that love to your advantage, and allow yourself to wake up into that love. To love yourself. And to understand that, anything, anything at all, is possible for you within the context of the reality that you have chosen, and that you are now expanding, even the definition, of that reality, now that you understand, or at least are beginning to understand the power behind the illusion.

So, as it expands you will expand, possibilities will expand, reality will change. And you have begun to see many of the symptoms of that, as space and time become very much more slippery. And things are not quite so ridged, and all the different belief systems that have existed on your planet for thousands of years are now all coming out at once, on to the table, battling it out in a sense - positive, negative, pro and con, everything coming to the surface, all the deep dark secrets, all the fears, all the doubts, along with all the possibilities of infinite joy, all coming out on the table all at once, so you can choose, because that is the ultimate tool of freedom and power. The ability to know YOU CAN CHOOSE. And that’s all there is to it.

And it comes, it begins from the realization, that that’s all you’ve ever done...is choose. WHAT YOU GET, IS WHAT YOU CHOSE, CONSCIOUSLY OR UNCONSCIOUSLY, TO BELIEVE WAS THE MOST LIKELY KIND OF THING YOU WERE CAPABLE OF GETTING.
Now that you can begin to see yourself as a true aspect of the Infinite, you will know that Infinity is open to you.

And it is up to you to determine just exactly how much of that Infinity and how much ecstasy you can handle, at any given moment. You determine the rate, you are the valve, completely and utterly that determines the rate of flow, of that ecstasy. Because it’s only your energy that you’re going to be feeling. And it’s up to you to determine exactly how you want to feel your own vibration, in what context and in what form. Whether you want to feel your own energy as Joy, or whether you want to feel your own energy as Fear. It’s up to you. But both can be instructional, and both can be educational. If you use them that way.

We will once again thank you for allowing us to experience each and everyone of you in this link, in this transmission and we now ask in what way may we now be of service to you?

Audience: Bashar!

B: You! Good day….
Leaving Your Body

Q: When people are experiencing a great deal of physical pain, I notice that they forget. It’s like their soul leaves because there is so much trauma. Where do they go?

B: Generally speaking, you expand your consciousness into, what you would call, the "astral" or "ethereal" realms.

Q: And if and when we are able to reincorporate with the body, then we come back? Do we ever leave a little piece of us flying out there somewhere?

B: All right. From one perspective I will say that is actually a fair question. First of all, the question of leaving your body is not literally "leaving" your body. Your consciousness is not "in" your body; your "body" is in your consciousness. You expand beyond the concept of your body momentarily, but from the physical perspective you say, "I’m leaving my body." The idea is that your Oversoul, your higher self is already "out there” – it’s already expanded. You’re just shifting your focus from this kind of focus to that kind of focus, momentarily.

When you choose to reincorporate, to refocus, in a sense, yes, the experience has changed you. The expansive experience has changed you in a certain way and, in a manner of speaking, you do not quite come back the same way. So it could be said you leave a little bit of yourself "out there." You are different.

Q: And when they actually die, then what happens?

B: For some of you the idea is that death is recognized as multileveled, stretching through many dimensions of experience, connecting many dimensions of experience. You can take one of your "elevators" to any floor. Understand? Transformations occur all the time and death, physical death, is simply one more of them. You need not necessarily treat it as a negative thing. You will understand that it is all simply transformational.

Q: My mother is ill with cancer and I was just told today that there is nothing more that can be done for her.

B: All right. There are many more things to do.

Q: Well, that’s what I’d like to know.

B: One of them simply is, if that individual has chosen now to become non-physical, then you can assist them in the transference from physicality to non-physicality, so that there will be a small or no degree of confusion about where they are and what they can do once they are non-physical.

Because many individuals in your reality will find that once you become non-physical, you may at first carry with you the strongest belief you had about life when you were still physically alive. And that will create a reality around you that you will perceive to be the real reality. Because you are non-physical, you are a thought form in a world of thought forms, and what you think is instantly what seems to be physically real around you. And that is why many individuals may not even know they have died, when they have died.

Therefore, you can be of great assistance to that individual if they have chosen to become non-physical, to allow them to become non-physical with dignity, with joy and effortlessness, with love, with ecstasy, with ease. To allow them to know, to allow them to remember that it is only the idea of stepping from one room to another room in the same house; that is all death is. They have made their choices. Allow them to do so with dignity.

There is no real separation; there is no real loss. The love is always there; it is always able to be felt. You are never out of touch unless you believe that you are. So allow yourself to simply take stock of what you are learning about yourself from this situation, because there is obviously a reason why you are involved with that individual and why they are going through what they are going through at this time. There is something for you to learn about yourself as well as what they are learning about themselves.

Use all the knowledge in a positive way and you will enlighten yourself. Raise your vibratory level and you may then be quite astonished to find that, if and when they choose to make their transference to non-physicality, your willingness to treat the whole endeavor in a positive way, by raising your vibration, will mean that when they transfer into non-physical reality they are not actually "so far above you" as you used to think. Just a little side step to the corner, that is all. The difference between physical reality and non-physical reality, what you call physical life and physical death, is not as large as you think. It is a very, very short step between your physical vibration, that which makes you physical, and that which allows you to be non-physical, a very short step, very short.

You are quite consciously holding yourself in physical reality, if that is where you find yourself to be. A very small shift is all that is required to go into non-physical existence. Therefore, allow yourself to project your love to that individual so they can use your love to slide gently into that next vibratory level. Then you will remain in communication as you need to and you will not feel that you are out of touch. You follow me? Does this assist you?

Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you very much. Give that individual our love, if you will.

Leaving Your Body
Letter Z and The Tetrahedron

Q: Hi.
B: Hi.
Q: I would like to explore with you further in regards to the letter Z and nomenclature.
B: Yes.
Q: Just elaborate a little on that. In regards to the nomenclature...
B: Z, for you at this time, in our perception, represents the placeholder. Nomenclature – that opportunity, that availability, to name something, to understand its vibration – it is, in a sense, like unto what you call the parenthesis in your grammar, which you can fill in. Now, the essence is there, no matter what label you apply upon it.

To some degree, that letter is similar to our translation of one of the worlds in our system, which in our ancient language is called Themar. Themar means “the zone,” the area, the holding-place, the placeholder – that which represents something unidentified, but of which the essence is felt, nonetheless.

Z – your letter – functions in much the same way. It functions as a dial; it functions as a translation device. It functions as that which can connect into many different frequencies, many different vibrations, by which you can know the essence of them. But not necessarily that you must label them anything beyond Z: a placeholder, the end of your alphabet, the end; the omega, in that sense, the other side of the polarity that you are exploring. In many ways, it simply allows you to attach something without necessarily rigidizing it by a full label.

It is a tool of flexibility; many things can occur within the “zone,” and you can lump them all under the nomenclature of the zone, without necessarily having to identify each and every one of them to get some use out of them. You follow me?
Q: Is now included in the zone?
B: Yes, in a sense. The idea now is for blending, not separating. It is, therefore, a limbo nomenclature. And many references, many names, which are given to many of you in the contacts that you make with your own channeling – some of the names may begin with Z, in that sense. And that lets you know that it is being used as a placeholder, that it will do, for now. The energy is real; the name is not important. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes. I’d like to ask you something that branches off from that: the letter Z and the angles, and the A. And the other day I was... you told me to make a little... if I wanted to make a triangle or a tetrahedron. And I got both of them made, more or less – close enough.
B: All right.

Q: I was playing with the triangle, and I was just thinking what it would look like if I were in one of the angles – I would see two points. And if I was on one of the sides, I would see one point. And just in regards to vibrations and angles, could you say anything about those?

B: Well, as we have said, the triangle tetrahedral structure is the basic building block of the physiological universe. All structures in the physical universe are based upon the tetrahedral pattern. And it is the one representational symbol that can define all aspects of physics.

All understandings of vibratory awareness, within the dimension you call physical, can be gleaned and derived from the one symbol of a tetrahedron that points up, and a mirror image that points down; for it contains, in its definition, all the dimensional definitions that describe and define what you call the physical reality.

So, it is that which allows you to work with the fundamentals of creation, the template upon which all physical reality is based, is patterned. All things occurring in threes, in that way, so that any two will support the one. The apex, the foundation and the apex – the totality of your consciousness, the three sides of the prism that you are as an artificial personality construct: belief, emotion and thought. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.

Q2: I just want to share that... I’ve heard it a million times, it seems like, uh, imagination creates reality. And it just started clicking either yesterday or today – like that really is becoming more and more real – that imagination is real.
B: Yes. Yes, it is.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. SHARING!
Levitation and Crystals

Q: Hello. Lately I’ve been feeling interested in gravity.
B: Gravity!
Q: Yes, and I would like to ask you if it has any relationship with levitation...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and things like that.
B: Yes.
Q: I would like to see if you could give me some more information about levitation.
B: It can be produced tonally; do you understand this?
Q: Yes.
B: There are certain vibrations... when you match the signature vibration of any particular object you can then create an isolation field around it with those tonal vibrations, and alter the gravitational dynamic tensor field and create it, in a sense, to slide upward, by tipping the field in a different direction, through tonal vibration; by altering the shape of the gravitational field, in that way – the electromagnetic field.
Anything which levitates, it is not just the idea that one gravitational field has let go – in a sense it is as if it is being drawn into another one, in a balanced equilibrium. It is sliding upward, towards a new gravity source.
Now, certain areas in what you call Tibet are very familiar with the creation of the tonal qualities necessary to levitate many different objects.
Q: I see. Why Tibet?
B: Simply because the culture in that area upon your planet has not forgotten what many of you used to know. For that is in many ways how some of the ancient structures upon your planet were built, in that way – through the levitation of the massive stones, simply by sound.
Q: By sound?
B: By sound, through the creation of certain low frequencies and high frequencies, in harmonic accord; there is literature that exists in your society that can give you some insight into the mathematics of this.
Q: Okay. Low frequencies and high frequencies you said?
B: In harmonic accord.
Q: Okay, because that’s another thing that keeps coming into my mind, you know, frequencies. I like to play with frequencies and vibrations...
B: Yes.
Q: ... but I don’t know how to start.
B: Sure you do! What does your imagination say? Now, you may have given yourself a picture and think you don’t know how to start because you wave the picture away as not having any validity. But what pictures did you get? No matter how silly or just symbolic they seem, what pictures did you get? When you think about the ideas of frequency and tone, what pictures do you get?
Q: Well...
B: Do you see yourself playing musical instruments or something like that?
Q: No, mainly I see, or I imagine using this energy to... well, like almost manifesting shapes.
B: Yes, very good!
Q: And using it to awaken my love so much that I can use those shapes to awaken some love in people, like the right shape for each person.
B: How very creative!
Q: And they might also like to do that with me.
B: All right.
Q: So I’ve just been imagining that and it sounds exciting to me.
B: Yes, and your imagination is real you know.
Q: Okay.
B: If you place yourself in an environment that you believe is conducive to allow that imagination to be real, and do not invalidate it or judge it by the belief patterns of others around you, then you can create, with what you may call some practice, the idea of getting used to these harmonic vibrational frequencies, and you can begin to create shapes out of the electromagnetic energy.
Many of you are actually beginning to do this, in a sense, and this is responsible for what you call some of the flashes of light in the sky that have no apparent source. Your consciousness, collectively, is beginning to play around with the manifestation of the electromagnetic field in very concrete ways. So go and play with it in your imagination, exercise that mental muscle. It does not mean it is a strain. It is an allowance. It is a vision – literally.
Q: Yes. What I get a lot of times is a lot of light... like a light energy...
B: Yes.
Q: ... but I don’t know what to do with it.
B: Play with it for now.
Q: Okay.
B: You will know how to use it in service. Let your imagination simply remain open for anything that will point to a direction in which you can use it in service.
Q: Okay, and you talked about how there is some information here. You talked about some books or something that talk about vibrations and things like that...
B: Go and look in what you call your books on metaphysics regarding the idea of levitation and gravity.
Q: Okay, thank you very much.
B: Thank you very much. Happy Singing! Sharing!
Q2: I have gone with by brother to the desert a couple of times now, to find crystals, and most of them have been all clear, very bright and clear. And my brother found a place where all the crystals that he found were smoky on the bottom, clear in the middle, and cloudy in the tips; and they’re all the same, it’s really interesting. I was wondering if you could tell me anything about them?
B: In a sense they are a special type of capacitor that draws from what you call the old negativity on the bottom, and the idea of the new balance of positivity on the top, and allows them to blend in the center. And when they do blend in the center, in that sense, you get the clarity that you require, in life. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: It is simply a symbol, in that sense. When you blend the old and the new, the negative and the positive, the dark and the light, you get clear, in the center.
Q: Yes, it seems pretty transformational to me.
B: Yes.
Q: They also, for some reason, remind me of the Indians, I don’t know why... all of them together remind me of Indians.
B: Well, perhaps you can go and ask the Indians. For they do recognize that the world you call your typical universal reality is, in a sense, the clear space in-between all that is within, and all that is without. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that serve you?
Q: Yes.
B: They are, in a sense, very powerful fuses. A high vibratory frequency since they are, in that sense, symbolically blended, and represent a very powerful ability to act as a trigger for many of you, for the purpose of allowing you to feel the alignment of the negative and the positive energies within you – of the polarity.
Again remember, you are that energy; but it can function as a trigger for many of you, in that way, allowing for a very strong alignment very quickly, in the center.
Q: Quick?
B: Yes! Is that disturbing?
Q: No, I love it!
B: All right! Thank you. Sharing!
Q3: Hello. I have a daughter and she is two and a half years old, and she has a fascination with triangles.
B: Yes? Me too!
Q: And me too! I may have helped facilitate that for her! We go to restaurants and she finds triangular windows in the ceiling. She goes around to the patrons in the restaurants and wants them to hold her up to the triangles.

B: Yes.

Q: And one of my neighbors, he gave my daughter and myself a hug in the street once, and told her it was a triangle. So now she goes around asking for triangles all the time. (AUD: laughs) Anyway, I have this feeling, in a sense, that she is a very old soul and that there is some really strong connection there, and I...

B: You have a physicist in the making.

Q: Yes?

B: A new one. One who understands that the basic template of the universal reality that you call physical, takes its form from the basic shape of the tetrahedron – the triangular structure. Which is the simplest shape in which the principle of activation in your reality can exist. The two polarities and the third idea that gets them both moving, that prevents them from being a stalemate.

Q: I see.

B: The triangle – the gateway, the doorway to all interaction, all motion, all manifestation.

Q: And she has remembrance of that now?

B: Oh, absolutely!

Q: How can I help facilitate her using that?

B: Oh, thank you very much! I have one suggestion: she receives information through what you may call an imaginary triangular window, or door.

Q: Oh!

B: Ask her simply to tell you what she is getting.

Q: Oh, wow! I ask her, but she’s two and a half, and she has difficulty communicating that to me.

B: All right. Wait until she is three! (AUD: laughs)

Q: Oh, okay. (Laughing) I can wait!

B: Not that you cannot ask, but simply the clarity will be there when she is three.

Q: Wow, thank you.

B: Thank you very much!

Levitation and Crystals
Levitation and Whales

Q: I’ve heard you talk about sound and sounding.
B: Yes.
Q: And I was remembering when you said something about sonar being used for anti-gravitational purposes.
B: To some degree.
Q: Like floating of large stones into place with the Pyramids.
B: Yes.
Q: Was that done through devices? Or were people able to sound themselves – individuals?
B: People can do it and devices can do it. They are similar to the idea that you call horn like structures, bowl like and bell like structures. This is some of the idea of what you call the recognition... although what you would call, in a destructive sense... of Jericho.
Now, in this way, a sympathetic vibration was set up. You can set up a type of sympathetic vibration based upon certain ratios. This is understood very succinctly in the area you call Tibet, where you can actually levitate the stone, rather than breaking down the molecular bonding.
Q: Tibetan bells or something?
B: Yes. There are, again, specific patterns that are outlined in some of your literature, or in the area you call Tibet. And in this way, setting them up in a certain fashion, reinforcing the vibrations in a certain way, in a hemispherical fashion, they can be focused upon the idea of creating a reinforcing matrix of tonal vibration that will allow gravity to be isolated and canceled in one particular area. Not so much that it is actually canceled, per se, but you set up a series of reinforcing vibrations that has the same effect.
Q: Overrides it, you mean, in that area?
B: Yes, in a sense, overriding. Imposing a new pattern upon the gravitational dynamic tensor field.
Modulating it, in a certain way, by creating a very highly intensified field in a very tight locale.
Imposing a completely new set of vibrations. Saturating an area with certain vibrations, so to speak, so that the overall mass conscious agreed upon electromagnetic field does not exist in its typical modality in that area.
Q: This explains the dolphins... just the idea of the dolphins being able to fly in space?
B: Do you mean astrally?
Q: I’m not sure what I mean, I was asking you. This image has come up, you know, all over the place of dolphins flying in the air and space.
B: Oh, the idea is simply, to some degree, literal in the astral sense, but symbolic in the sense that that is how you perceive them. You perceive them to be that free. And they do transcend from one medium to another very easily, so to speak.
Q2: There is a school, of philosophy I guess, called Transcendental Meditation.
B: Yes.
Q: One of the big things about it is you take a particular course, and you learn to levitate your own body.
B: Yes.
Q: And apparently it really happens.
B: Yes.
Q: What are they doing? Are they using...
B: They are doing what we have just described. They are redefining, re-identifying the entire idea of the energy patterns that they are, as they are connected to the gravitational dynamic tensor field. They are simply, let us say, re-channeling, warping, if you will, the definition of that pattern, so that it does not have to have a reference point connected to what you perceive to be the ground, but can have a reference point anywhere.
Q: I’ve been doing that for about eight years now.
B: Yes, one octave.
Q: Yes... of the TM, the first level of it.
B: All right.
Q: I wonder if you would like to give an endorsement of that for other people, or is that only for certain...
B: It is valid for those who are excited about doing it, period. Anything you are excited about, you supply the energy for its validity. If you are not excited about it – good luck! (Audience laughter)
Q: When will the next octave come through? We’re expecting to have more substantial...
B: There is a general overall momentum... but your individual rate can vary.
Q: Is there a collective tonality that emanates from our civilization?
B: The earth vibration is approximately seven and one half cycles per second.
Q: No, I didn’t mean the earth’s vibration, I meant a tonality – you talked of tonality.
B: There is an overlay mentality, tonality, yes.
Q: Do the dolphins and the whales respond to this?
B: Oh, yes.
Q: All right. Why are the whales beaching themselves? Is it anything to do with that? Are they...
B: Some of it is because some of the electromagnetic shifting taking place on your planet does confuse their guidance systems. But it is also an opportunity for you to extend your compassion to them and initiate, with feeling, some of the foundations necessary for the continuing communication between you.
Q: When they beach themselves and resist our efforts to free them, and resist our efforts to heal them from the injuries they sustain, are they in fact transcending and telling us that’s what they’re doing?

B: To some degree. Some of it, to some extent, is also in their own terms, which is not exactly like your terminology, some of it is also karmic – for them. However, the idea is that you can extend your energy field to them, and completely alter the field around them so as to reorient them in the appropriate direction.

You are creating, as humanity, highly focused magnetic nodes in your atmosphere. These nodes are attracting some of these beings. So overwhelming are some of these nodes, so highly focused, that they do not perceive they are coming upon the shore. Do you follow me?

Q: Hmm. Is surrendering their title to life on this planet, as we understand it, an inappropriate direction for some of these entities? Is it inappropriate for the whale to surrender their life?

B: Nothing is really inappropriate, let us say; it does not have to happen. If you begin to accelerate in your understanding of the blending that you already have begun to create upon your planet, you will find this occurring less and less. To some degree, it is a reflection of the simple confusion that many of you are going through at this time.

Electromagnetic fields are unlocking and creating voids or limbo states, in which you feel you do not have the ability to navigate. Some of them are caught in the same transformation.

They do this in order to be able to identify with you, whether it be consciously or unconsciously. They do not have to do it. But it is basically timed according to the rate at which you are both blending together. When you begin to equal out, then disorientation in that fashion no longer need occur. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: You will then be relying upon each other for guidance, and you will always be able to provide it to each other. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
Life Choices

Q: How do you discover what your purpose was, or your choice in life was to accomplish?
B: By allowing yourself to recognize what is happening in your life. Your physical reality is an obvious reflection of the path you chose to be. What is happening to you is what you want to explore. You cannot have anything happen in your life that is not a part of what you chose to explore.
How you choose to explore it is up to you. Every situation is fundamentally neutral, if you choose to explore it in a positive way, then the exploration of that particular fundamental neutral situation will have a positive result. If you choose to go into it with a negative attitude then the effect will be negative. But you will have explored the general situation, nonetheless.
Q: You made a comment that we agreed to be part of this similar equation…
B: Yes.
Q: …who was the agreement with? Was the agreement with ourselves or was it…
B: With yourselves and with everyone else that you are experiencing in your reality. It is all by agreement.
Q: All the souls or all the entities have made this agreement?
B: Yes.
Q: And so, no meeting is by accident?
B: No.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Life Does Not Happen To You; It Happens Through You

Your reality does not have a mind of its own. It cannot change without you. You can pretend this is so, but there really is no such thing as saying, "Well, it just happened that way. I don’t know why, it just happened." Life does not happen to you; it happens through you. Because each and every one of you are the eyes of Creation. Every being in Creation is yet one more way that Creation has of seeing itself from a different angle, a different perspective. But you have been created as an "I" with free will. You can decide what aspect of Creation you will see and how you will see it.

Many of you have been taught to think that your physical senses are used to "see" reality. You have been taught to think that your physical senses are windows that allow you to see the Universe. In a sense, this is true; however, your senses are not as much a window as they are a filter – keeping out 99% of everything you don’t need to see, or want to see. Your senses allow you to see only the reality you believe in most strongly; that’s what they are for. When you expand your awareness of what you could be seeing, your senses will expand to include that.

To some degree, there will be limits to what it is you can experience with your senses, as long as you remain as a physical being. But there is far more leeway than many of you have been taught to think about that you could be seeing in your physical reality. Not only do you exclude 99.999% of all reality when it comes to focusing on your physical dimension, it is even understood by some of your own scientists that your senses exclude 99.999% of your physical dimension. You can only see within a very small range of light and hear within a very small range of sound.

As you expand your vision and your insight, you begin to become sensitized to more of the energy that is around you all the time. Therefore, not only your physical vision but your non-physical "insight vision" will become more sensitized to more forms of information. That is why, now in your transformational age, many individuals are beginning to see things that are "not there" and hear things that are "not there." But those things are there – just on a different frequency from your own. All reality is the product of varying frequencies within the primal energy out of which all the Universe is created. Other dimensions of experience co-exist with you right here and right now, but on a slightly different frequency. Therefore, you do not perceive them.

Now and then, when your conscious guard is down you will allow yourself to perceive momentarily some of these other dimensions. But because of what you have been taught to think about what reality is supposed to be, sometimes those experiences cause great fear within you and you shut them off. Those that do not shut them off you label, "insane." But they are seeing realities just as real as the one you are seeing. It is simply that they are seeing realities that are not the mass agreed-upon reality.

Sometimes you will notice they experience great difficulty in seeing these other realities and great difficulties in relating to your world. The difficulty they have within their own lives is not the product of being able to see other realities – the difficulty is created by not being allowed to communicate what they see back to your reality. Sometimes an individual will be clever enough to figure out how to communicate what they are perceiving back into the reality they are familiar with. When they allow a smooth transition of information from one reality to another reality, you do not call them crazy anymore, you call them geniuses. Or perhaps, from a more artistic perspective, you call them by the label that is what this interaction all about, visionaries.

The main difference between, what you call, an "insane person" and a “visionary" is that the visionary person has figured out how to manifest at least a portion of what they perceive. As far as we are concerned, you are all capable of being visionaries. In a sense, you already are all visionaries because you use your imagination to create the realities you already get. But because many of you have not been taught how to t best. Allow me to take this opportunity to remind each and every one of you that there is no "right way" and no "wrong way" to do this meditation. The key to understanding is that your imagination is specifically keyed to the vibrational frequency of the being you are. Therefore, any variation in what I will suggest to you that is created by your imagination will be appropriate for the being that you are.
Life Focus

Q: A couple of weeks ago you spoke of a parallel origin point, time track.

B: Yes.

Q: I wondering if that is true for all beings, or mainly for Earth beings or...

B: For those who have projected themselves into the idea of multi-dimensional physical realities, yes. However, there are beings that, in this way, in your terminology, have never been physical as you know it, at all; and thus have no need for the idea of the “parallel-ity.”

Q: Certainly. Then this would apply also to Earth Servers?

B: Yes. Though it is not as focused, and that is why there is more attention to the idea of Earth Server – as opposed to having an origin point somewhere else. Even though, again, everyone has already been everywhere else.

Q: Right. So how is it unfocused, or less focused?

B: Simply the idea that you do recognize more association to other points of so-called origin than the Earth itself.

Q: Kind of within a context of the importance of certain things...

B: Yes, in a sense.

Q: ... like, that origin is not as important as my origins here.

B: Yes. Understand that you create your origin with each life, because it is the focus for one of the reasons why you are here. In different lives you can have different origins, so to speak.

Q: Right.

B: You are sort of backtracking to a certain place that represents a symbol that you are exploring here, now.

Q: Then the creation of the origin point for each life is this parallel origin point, track, right?

B: Yes, in a sense.

Q: Okay, in what sense?

B: Simply that it can take many variations of form and dimensionality.

Q: Okay. Would you say that generally an Earth Server is one that has been here for an extended period of time?

B: Can be, does not have to be. You can make a decision in one life to be an Earth Server, and that will bring with it all of the feelings that all of the other things are not as important.

Q: In what way?

B: Simply as we have said, regarding those individuals who are recognizing that they are “more attached” to the assistance of the transformation upon Earth at this time, from an Earth point of view, than they are from any other Extraterrestrial point of view.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Sharing!
Q2: Do you guys tell jokes where you are? (AUD: laughs)
B: Only in a sense.
Q: I mean other than ad-libbing. I know you’re very good at that...
(AUD: laughs)
B: We have joy, we have fun.
Q: Would you tell me a joke? Do you have jokes... like with a setup and a punchline?
B: Only in the sense of this manner – one of the ideas we have already expressed to you, is that within our society in a time passed, we began to use this expression as a greeting, as in this interchange:
“How are you?
Well, things are not going as I expected.
Congratulations! Things are not going as I expected either.
Very good!!”
Then we know that we are functioning within our Higher Selves!
(AUD: Much laughter, applause)
Q: That is very good, that works well!
B: Oh, thank you.
Q: Okay. (Laughing)
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Life Lessons

Q: Good evening. Back in 1979 I had a very serious head trauma, an accident; I was struck by a truck and it was a very serious accident and I almost died. After that time I began to take life for granted, thinking that if I could outlive something like that, I could outlive anything.

B: You do outlive everything.

Q: And I was becoming very reckless in all the things that I did, and I thought it was an accident and I was playing the victim for many years – well, for about five years. Then about two weeks ago, when I thought my life was running real smoothly and I was very happy in my life, I had a biking accident. I tore the ligaments in my shoulder and I don’t know the reason that that happened, and I wanted to ask if you knew why?

B: All right, allow us in this way to talk about the idea, the notion, that was, as you say, deep within you, about “getting back on track,” and creating a mirror reflection, a mirror circumstance, a mirror situation to compensate for what you believe was an over-compensation. Now, even though it seemed as though you have been running smoothly along, to some degree, you gave yourself an opportunity to recognize that you did not necessarily have to be bound by any of the previous boundaries. But that still within you there may have existed – and this is not the whole story – several parameters, deep within you, that allowed you to continue to believe as if you had not necessarily gotten back on, what you perceive to be, your original track.

You can remove and can soften the idea of any ligament damage, but let us begin from another direction: what is it that you are in your life? Who and what is the idea that you are?

Q: (Pauses)

B: Can you answer?

Q: Aah... I’m real new to this awareness of myself... and I’m becoming more aware of me and searching that out.

B: Have the so-called accidents given you an opportunity to do this? Have they focused you in certain ways you may not have focused if you had not given yourself those experiences?

Q: Aah...

B: How have they served you? What have you learned about yourself by creating these scenarios?

Q: I don’t believe they’ve served me.

B: Everything serves you. And unless you are willing to believe that, then you will not extract the positive service that they can be to you. Now, we are not suggesting that it has to happen again, but individuals – and this is one of the primary reasons for what you perceive to be a re-occurrence – individuals who do not learn what they need to learn the first time something happens may create a repeat performance until they are willing to believe that it does serve a purpose.
Not that you have to have done it that way at all. And you can learn many things without having to go through the idea of struggling and suffering. By all means, you do not need to struggle or suffer. But if you created a scenario, to begin with, in which you created the idea of the suffering and refused to believe that it had anything at all to do with your life or any place in a positive sense, in what you needed to learn in life, and refused to acknowledge and learn from it then, many times, when you are coasting right along, you will re-create that event to give yourself another opportunity to look at the things you refused to look at the first time.

Q: If this was five years ago, I wouldn’t have taken responsibility for this. I have now taken responsibility for it, but at this time I’m not aware of what it is I’m supposed to learn from this incident.

B: I have simply asked, how has it served you? In the sense of: what are the things that you are now exploring that are different? What are the ways that you are looking at life, now, that are different than what you called before the accident?

Q: I’m not sure what those things are, but I am aware that I had a lot of self-esteem issues, self-confidence issues in my life.

B: All right.

Q: And it was pointed out to me that maybe, because I was having – prior to both these accidents I felt like my life was at its prime, you know, running smoothly – and maybe that I subconsciously created the accidents because I don’t feel that I deserve for things to run so smoothly for myself?

B: Do you believe that?

Q: Yes. I just thought that maybe there was possibly some other reason?

B: What better reason need there be?

Q: None.

B: The ultimate understanding in life is that you do in fact deserve all the happiness you can imagine. And that there is no such thing as something that is too good to be true. And therefore, if there is something in your life that is going very well, there doesn’t have to be the belief that is it too good to last; and that any changes that occur in life do not have to be, in your terms, negatively drastic, in order for you to look at other things.

However, there may have been certain circumstances within your attitude that simply, perhaps, would not have been willing to understand those things, until you gave yourself the opportunity to do it in this way. Now you do not have to create the idea of any physiological suffering again if you are willing to understand that you do deserve ecstasy, and that you can, in a sense, cruise along smoothly. And that if something wishes to get your attention it doesn’t have to do so in such an overt manner. Do you follow me so far?

Q: Yes.

B: Is it still an issue with you that you do not feel you deserve happiness?

Q: No, it’s not at all.
B: All right. What is it in life that excites you that you like to do?
Q: Exactly what I’ve been doing.
B: Which is?
Q: I’m new to my career. I’m a computer analyst.
B: All right.
Q: And I really enjoy my career, and I enjoy doing physical activities that I’ve been participating in.
B: All right. Why do you enjoy what you do?
Q: Because it excites me. I can’t tell you why.
B: Yes, you can.
Q: Aah... it just brings myself great pleasure.
B: What kinds of connections do you find yourself able to make? Do you pay attention to your imagination?
Q: Not always.
B: All right. Do you find yourself – if you had to describe yourself in any particular way – that you are far more analytical than intuitive?
Q: Yes. Well, no... I’m very intuitive but I don’t always follow that.
B: Why not?
Q: I don’t know. That’s something for me to look at.
B: It is an opportunity to blend and balance the idea of analytical thought with intuitive feeling. Because you may find also that one of the things your intuition was attempting to show you is that there may have been signals and symbols leading up to the accidents that you simply patently ignored and, in a sense, rationalized them away.

It is an opportunity to look back, to examine certain feelings – not that you have to necessarily delve all that strongly – but the idea is to pay attention to certain things that occur within you, that you have been taught to ignore in your upbringing. And that these things do carry information that is vital to you, that is necessary to you.

And that when you begin to listen to these subtle codes and cues, you will understand that you have an opportunity and an awareness of exactly what is going on, on the path you are traveling at any given moment, and there do not have to be negative surprises. Although there can always be positive ones.

So, in your excitement, in working with your computer, allow yourself to remember the direction that your computers in your civilization are headed. You are, many of you, working on what you call programs to promote artificial intelligence, do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you find this exciting?
Q: I do, but that’s not what I do.

B: I understand, but recognize that even in the form that you are using it, it is all part and parcel to understanding consciousness itself. And when you create the idea of your so-called artificially intelligent computers, what you will discover is that all you have done is create a mechanical symbol that makes it all right for you to actually carry on a conversation with what you call your Higher Self. And you are exploring your part of that awareness.

The connection and the programming that you are doing is allowing you, in your own way, to make the connections between your analytical self and your intuitive self, so that you will, in your estimation, walk and ride a balanced path. And not one so thin and so narrow that you may find yourself, from time to time, falling off of it and getting “scraped up.” It is a very wide and stable path, and the more you balance and blend the analysis and the intuition, the wider and more stable it will become.

If you walk the razor’s edge, you have to expect to get cut. So, do not forsake the keenness of your analysis, do not forsake the keenness of the edge of your perception, but allow yourself – it is simply our suggestion, you do not have to do it just because we say so – to soften that edge with intuition when you need to.

We understand that for some individuals intuition does not seem comfortable because in fact it is so fuzzy, it is so soft. But when you balance and blend the two you will have all the awareness you need in a very crystal clear and sharp way; but it will be connected in a very broad pattern, and not just limited to one particular focus or direction. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Does this work for you?

Q: Yes, it does. Thank you very much.

B: Then, our wishes with you are: fly fast and free, in an open way, loving all that you encounter, both individuals and circumstances, for you create your reality and you do so for a reason. Pick yourself up laughing and you will re-balance and be on your way in no time. Deny the experience and you will sit there and bleed in a pool of self-pity. This is simply a general, symbolic reflection. Thank you, very much!

Q: Thank you!

Life Lessons
All right, I’ll say good day to you this day of your time. How are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for co-creating this transmission and this interaction this day of your time. We thank you for allowing this communication to come through this particular window, through this particular gateway, in this manner.

Once again, each and every time you allow our civilization to communicate with you in this way, it allows our world to experience through each and every one of you that many more perspectives of infinite creation. And we thank you, thus, then, for the expansion of our awareness.

In return, we would like to begin this transmission, this day of your time, with the concept of lifestyle changes. Now, we have, of course, for some time, and you have heard this, of course, many times from different sources in talking about the idea that this is the age of transition and transformation on your planet. Many things are shifting and changing rather rapidly; many old ideas breaking down. We would like to reinforce very strongly and very briefly, once again, that within the overall transition, within the overall shift, however long that may be, there are always minor shifts. Minor moments of acceleration when things will change abruptly, when things will loosen up, when things will, in a sense, break apart, when old things will no longer function, when you will experience yourself in a transitory state, in a kind of limbo state and, in a sense, be forced to make new decisions and move in new directions. As we have said, your October month is one such highly accelerated time, as many of you are aware of by the experiences that many of you may now be having; when things are being rattled, shaken, disturbed, in a sense, knocked out of their complacent areas that they, perhaps, have resided for so long. Forcing things to get jumbled up, to be looked at in new ways, to be re-assessed, re-evaluated.

Now is such a time of high acceleration, high fluidity, high flexibility that does in many ways demand a lifestyle change. We strongly urge you to go with the flow of these changes. Now more than ever, especially in this transitory time of high acceleration, it is more important than ever to allow the lifestyle changes that seem imminent. Allow yourselves, if you will, please, to understand how important it is now, when things come up that point in new directions, when things come up that point to the importance of changing the way you go about doing things: where you are, where you live, the kind of work you do, the kind of associations and relationships you make. When things come up to point to the importance of making a change in these things, we urge you to take a close look, a hard look, as you say in your language, at these that come up, at these signs, at these indicators and really begin to understand which things really are representative of your true self and which no longer are. And begin to really act and take movement in the direction more than ever of the things that are, and to leave behind those things that you have truly assessed to have nothing to do with your truth.

Do not hold onto the way that you have always done things, if you find yourself being told by your inner guiding light that it is no longer helpful for you to do so. Do not hold on to the places that you frequent, if your inner guiding light is telling you that you really need to be somewhere else to be more of who you are. Do not hold on to the way that you go about doing things, in that sense, the modes, the methodologies, the behaviors. Do not hold on to thinking that you need those things to be safe and secure. Do not hold on any longer. Let go, for even though that may seem to be very scary to many of the humans on your planet, that is the most secure and stable thing you can do. Because in letting go your only letting go of the things that are not you, and are allowing yourself to make that leap of faith toward the things that really are; even though you may not be that familiar with them yet.

Trust the signs, trust the indicators that you are giving yourself when you do begin to recognize that things are tapping you on the shoulder, that things are positioning themselves in front of your face to get your attention, to allow you to look, to force you to look at the things that you heretofore have believed in; the things that are getting you to think again, to look at things in new ways, to the things that are rattling your cages, the things that no longer seem to work. Look at them, look at them closely, they are the signs of the imminent breakdown of the old reality and the indicators and the arrows pointing in the directions of the new you. Move with them. Flow with them. I urge you more strongly than ever, now at this time. For again, those things that are not you, that you are not willing to let go of, those life styles you think you need and you do not need, those things that are not you; if you hold on to them they will only cause damage, disruption, difficulty, danger; all the things that are the warning signs of imminent change. It is not that the change itself needs to be feared. But, paradoxically the holding on to those things that are not you that will generate the most fear and the most chaos in your life.

Allow yourself to use this time of transition in a constructive way. Be within faith of yourself; have faith in your ability to attract to yourself those changes that will lead you into more of yourself, into becoming more of who you naturally, truly in the core you, were created to be. Let go, let the life style change commence. Do not be afraid or, if you are, make the change anyway, for fear will not stop you if you do not let it. You can always still choose what to do even while you are afraid. And you can learn to use fear as your ally to point out to you those things in your beliefs and those things in your definitions that are not working for you. Use fear constructively in that way, feel the fear, use the fear, transform the fear, in that way, make the life style change. Do not wait.

We thank you for allowing this idea, for you in this way, though you have, to some degree, heard it before, you have never heard it this way; and perhaps this is the way that will click for you. But be that as it may, whether it does or does not, always, we are willing to reflect to each and everyone of you the idea of our unconditional love and willingness to interact, if only because you have invited us to do so. So in return for the invitation and in return for the gift that you are giving to our civilization, at this time, in allowing us to communicate with you in this way, I ask in what way may I now be of service to you?
You, good day.
Q: I’d like to ask you if you could talk a little bit about light?
B: Light!
Q: Yes, as an elementary…
B: Everything is made of light.
Q: Yes.

B: Everything! Light is Love; it is the prime manifestation, in energy terms, of the unconditional love of Creation. Light is love; love is light. This may not sound scientific, but that’s what it is.
Q: Okay.
B: Light is Love. Love is the prime chord, the primal frequency, primal vibration. Everything is made of light – literally.
Q: Okay. Thank you. I’m confused about what you are saying now, and why it seems like a bar…not like a barrier, but like a limit in the physical universe. Like the speed…please talk about the speed of light. Some people say that…
B: It is only a definitional barrier, it is only a definition; it is the definition that creates what you call the physical universe.
Q: Mhmm.
B: That is all. In and of itself, it is not a barrier. One manifestation of light – what you recognize as pure light – is only one manifestation of an overall phenomena of light. The one manifestation you recognize as light is simply the definitional barrier of your physical dimension. But there are dimensions beyond that. They’re all made out of light, but not the same type of light.
Q: Okay. When some people talk about using this to transport themselves, or whatever…
B: Yes.
Q: And how is the…you talk about vibration too. So what is vibration?
B: The idea is to recognize that when you exist in a physical universe, you are a particular frequency.
Q: Yes.
B: If you then change your frequency, you can literally define yourself out of that universe and into another one, without really having traveled at all. You simply redefine yourself and reappear wherever the new definition befits.
Q: Yes, but what about doing it with the body? Because I feel like I do that…
B: You can do that with the body too. And you actually do that with the body all the time.
Q: Mhmm.
B: When you take a step from one spot to another, you are actually constantly recreating yourself, redefining yourself. Now simply, as a society, you are learning that you don’t necessarily have to create the interim steps between A and Z.

You can just create step A, step Z; there you are. It is all up to and how you define the idea of physical reality. It is very fluid, very malleable. Since it is literally made of light, you can project whatever kind of shadow you want by creating whatever type of definitional structure you want. And whatever structure you create will then, because of the light that illuminates all, project whatever kind of shadow physical reality is representative of the structure you have created – the definition.

Q: Physically I’ve been doing some…well, like a drill, okay?

B: Yes.

Q: So when I see a light, like this white light for instance…that fascinates me…like creating shapes.

B: Yes.

Q: But these shapes…the only thing is, I cannot make it like…how can I say it…like they vanish too soon, you know.

B: Yes.

Q: And I was trying…making some other shapes, like animals or whatever. And I see the shapes, but then they vanish.

B: Yes, but the shape is only a symbol. It is a symbol of an idea. And the idea is that, when they vanish, it is not that you have gone anywhere; it is that you have become it. It is no longer outside of you; you are it. Understand?

Q: Yes. So it’s like I’m…I’m wanting to do something, and that’s as far as I could go.

B: You can go as far as you wish, as fast as you wish. It’s up to you how you define the reality.

Q: Okay. Thank you very much.

B: Thank you very much!
LINEAGE AND SPACE / TIME TRAVEL

Q: During one of the sessions a woman was talking with a Grey that is involved directly with the hybridization process right now.

B: Yes.

Q: And I remember her asking you, I believe it was you, were you an actual descendent, in terms of direct lineage, from the faction that is now hybridizing with our species. And I think you said no, because if the hybridization process had ceased at that point, you would still exist.

B: Yes.

Q: So, you are not a direct lineage of the hybridization process that is now occurring, is that correct?

B: Not of that group, of another group, and not in the same time line. That’s why I would still exist, even if it stopped, because I am another time dimension reality offshoot, at this point.

Q: I guess maybe that’s hard for me to conceive of.

B: Oh, all right. Look at it as parallel realities.

Q: Okay.

B: What your people think of as time travel is actually travel into multiple parallel dimensions of reality. In a sense, you do not go back, if you go back into your own past, you go into a parallel reality dimension that then allows you to become a part of that reality’s time stream.

Q: Really?

B: Yes, so in a sense, the idea is that the hybridizations going on from that particular faction, are not only spatially limited in terms of how many offshoots actually come from or result from those particular hybridizations, and what branch of hybrids that results in ... not being my branch. I am from another branch, a different series of hybridizations, if you will ... but also, at the same time, I am part of another space/time dimension parallel reality of that, anyway.

Q: That actually brings up another question.

B: Remember, that when we remind you that there are an infinite number of Earths, you must also understand that there are an infinite number of "interactions" from an infinite number of factions of Greys, with an infinite number of Earths. And I am from one stream of those parallel reality interactions, not directly linearly the one that is going on in what you consider to be your reality stream.

Q: Well, and this, of course, is one reality for us, we are popping in and out as well.
B: You are, which makes it even more fun.
Q: Yes, it does, it makes it very interesting. Now, supposedly, we have had time travel since 1936 on this planet?
B: Not really.
Q: Really? We haven’t?
B: You have, from time to time in certain places, conducted experiments that did allow for the idea of certain time/space portals to open. And there have, from time to time, been experiments on your planet that did allow some results to occur that would, for lack of a better term, be considered space/time travel, but it is not at this time in your reality a controllable thing.
Q: All right. Is it true that we have made or created tears or rips in the time fabric?
B: Yes.
Q: And how did we do that, through nuclear explosions?
B: That is one way, and that again is uncontrolled. Some of the idea of the space/time experiments that you are talking about also caused what you would call shattered fragments of multiple parallel reality dissemination.
Q: So that allows maybe a greater number of extraterrestrials to enter our third dimensional reality?
B: Well, so to speak. More precisely, it allows for a greater experiential number of parallel reality time streams that may contain more extraterrestrial contact.
Q: Okay, that makes sense.
Living 4D

Q: Can you describe fourth density and what it means to be living it, and the experience of it?
B: It is, in your terms, living in the now. It is, in your terms, understanding third density, seemingly objective perception, to be subjective and an illusion. It is allowing synchronicity to occur, that is, always knowing you are in exactly the right place, at the right time, exactly interacting with who you need to be interacting with and, in this way, knowing that your life is ecstasy, living it, fulfilling it and enjoying it. In this way, you will find as you increase the acceleration of your energy vibration you will sustain yourself less and less on third density material sustenance and more and more on direct energy. You have already, many of you, begun to do this now, not that you have to force yourself to do so, but many of you are recognizing that you now prefer to eat, in your terms, lighter. In this way, you find that many ideas of physical materiality will begin to drop off. In this way, you will function less and less upon your internal organs, more and more upon your glandular system, and then, ultimately, simply upon the energy field that surrounds you. This will be more towards the end of fourth density—hundreds of years. Will that do?

Q: Can I give a little follow up? Can you give us any suggested methods of breaking down our self-imposed barriers towards our own experience of ecstasy?
B: What have I been doing all night? (Audience chuckles)
Q: Thank you. (More laughter)

Many individuals have discussed this notion of the higher self, many of you have wondered, "What is the higher self?" Let us explain it in the following way – the higher self is, in a sense, the idealized self of any particular life you may have. It is what you are aiming for in this life, it is that which is representative of the combination of goals, of themes, of destinies that you have set out for yourself, as the person you chose to be in this life; that which you are, bit by bit and day by day, learning to become.

The idea of communicating with the higher self in any given life ... and there is, therefore, obviously a higher self for each and every different life ... but the obvious idea, in understanding that it is representative of your ideal self, is to recognize that communication with the higher self, is in fact, the process of becoming the higher self, of acting as the higher self. Not just simply carrying on some separate dialogue with something "above" you, for it is you, it is what you have planned to be, to become in this life, as best as you can.

Yes, there is a non-physical higher extension of yourself that you could say is the higher self, at times you feel you can be communicating with it, but remember, it is you. And, in that sense, you are really talking to yourself, talking as yourself, talking with yourself, convincing yourself to be your best self, to move in the direction of the things that give you joy and passion and excitement, because that is the vibration of your true self, as we have discussed many times, with many of you. That feeling of excitement, that feeling of passion, that feeling of joy – that vibration, that feeling that is the true you, the true state of your natural self, notice I did not say your normal self, your natural self. And the higher self is the goal, in a sense, to attain in this life, following that passion the best you can, being as unconditionally loving as you can be, both for yourself and for others ... for if you do not start with yourself, how can you give to others? Knowing that each and every one of you is a facet of the multidimensional crystal of All That Is, and that the goal and the purpose of any individual life, is to be that facet completely; that is your mission, that is your purpose, to be the you you are now.

Yes, yes, yes, yes, you have many lives, but the you you are now, only has one life to live, therefore, the purpose of this life now is to be the best you, you can be ... the fullest you, you can be, the true self, the natural self that you have chosen to be. And your Higher Self contains all that information, it is your self-chosen destiny, your self-chosen form of expression of your naturalness, of your truth. And the best way to talk to the higher self, as I said, is to be the higher self in physical terms ... for remember, remember, your consciousness is not in your body, your body is in your consciousness. And the idea, therefore, is to recognize that the less separation you make, the less barriers you impose between the concept of yourself as a physical being and the concept of yourself as a non-physical being, then the smoother flow you will have, the greater opportunity you will have to act as the higher self.
And as the higher self, then to recognize that physical reality is not something you live in ... it is what you are, physical reality is you. It is an expression of the total consciousness that you are, you do not live in physical reality, it is simply an extension of how you see yourself, it is a reflection. The very process of evolving spiritually, of becoming the higher self, and the higher self becoming the oversoul, and the oversoul becoming one with All That Is, in however many stages you choose to create that event to take place. In that process is the process of becoming the realm, of becoming the reality, of becoming the dimension itself that you previously thought you existed within. So, it is more a recognition of integration and actions that are representative of integration, of those things that you have segregated and separated within yourselves, of those things you have created to be a multitude of fragments within your consciousness, instead of a holistic understanding of motion, of intention, of integrity, of action.

Integrity really, really fundamentally, is nothing more than an alignment between your intentions and your actions. That is what integrity is, and as such, you can certainly see, from that simple definition, that there can be positive and negative integrity. Because if your intentions are negative and your actions are negative, then you are aligned and you have negative integrity. You are integrated in that sense, although the concept, in and of itself, generally, of negativity, implies a lack of integration, overall ... we understand that. But positive integrity brings with it, therefore, an acceleration in positive ways, because positive energy is generally more integrative, brings things together, connects things to each other, allows you to see the holistic view. This idea, therefore, of becoming the higher self will involve your ability to align as strongly, as clearly, as precisely as you can ... your intentions with your actions. So that you are not hiding from yourself, not running from your fears but facing them, diving through them, learning from them, and thus, expressing, in your life, the new person you become through that process.

Remember, very important, remember, fear will never stop you from doing anything. Only if you are afraid to feel fear will you stop yourself, feeling the fear will never stop you from doing anything. If you will feel it and use it and transform it, then you will achieve anything you wish, and you will reintegrate yourself and become the higher self in physical reality. And as you do that, obviously, you change the vibration of your entire world, each individual makes a difference ... each individual makes a difference. I cannot possibly stress this enough. Every change, every change ... take me absolutely literally ... every single change you make within yourself, changes the entire universe. All the gears are connected, big gears, little gears ... you know, if you have a collection of connected gears where all the teeth are touching, that even the smallest gear, if it is turned even in the slightest degree will affect all the other gears. It is One thing, you are not isolated in that sense, every change you make, changes everything.

We extend to each and every one of you our deepest gratitude at being allowed to interact with your society in this way, at this time. We thank you for acting as ambassadors of your world, and allowing us to function as ambassadors of ours. The more you choose to function as equals to each other, to yourselves, to us, the more you create the possibility of our direct interaction with you. We thank you for the gift that may, one day soon, make it possible for us to interact freely with you, to play with you, to join with you, to share with you, in ways far bolder than even this interaction today. In return for the gift that you have been willing to give us, I ask you now, in what way may I be of service to you? Sharing may begin.
Q: Could you speak a little bit about Horus, as the son of Osiris and Isis? He seems to be like, kind of heading up things on this planet, as far as...
B: Heading up things?
Q: Well, you know what I’m talking about don’t you?
B: Depends what department you wind up in.
Q: Oh okay, thank you. That’s a good clue there.
B: All right. However, as the representative symbol of the hawk vibration, it does to some degree represent a relatively high perspective.
Q: He seems to be pretty narly too though, he’s into vengeance and...
B: Narly. (Audience laughter)
Q: Well you know, he's into, like, its retribution and he fought with Set.
B: Well no, not really. Let me explain it to you from another point of view.
Q: Thank you.
B: The sharpness of the beak, the sharpness of the talons, simply give no quarter for those who aren’t absolutely true to themselves.
Its not retribution, its not punishment. But it is: if you’re going to walk this line... you’d better walk this line. Because if you deviate, if you fluctuate, if you flop off, you’ll get cut. Its the same idea in general, or a similar idea to, what you would call perhaps, the warrior path, the samurai way.
The idea that, when you make a commitment to live on a certain level, on a certain path so to speak, then you must understand, that as you expand in the glory, you also, in a sense, demand that you be very, very, very, precise. And the way that you demand that of yourself by invoking that energy, by matching that energy, is to very sharply remind yourself when you do deviate from that frequency.
The claws, talons, beak... the idea therefore is to understand that its not a retribution but a reminder; a very quick and sharp one, and an absolutely convincing one. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes.
B: So, if you’re going to choose that path you simply have to understand that that’s what goes with it. Because as soon as you start to expand yourself... and this path by whatever name you wish to call it, it doesn’t matter, but as we have said, its walking the edge... as soon as you decide that there is really only one thing in any given moment that is really representative of your truth, then deviating from it is going to have far greater impact on you, far greater feedback on you, a far bigger slap in the face to remind you than it took before, that you are dealing with higher energies now and you better pay attention. You better stay focused, otherwise, to deviate from the path at that frequency can be exceedingly hazardous to your health.

Q: Yes, I found that out.
B: Yes. So in a sense, it's a reminder that while you are walking the path, even though it may seem that there are sharp blades whirling all around you on either side, the point is that they remind you that that path is the only thing you want. Do you follow?
Q: Yes, I'm realizing that now.
B: All right.
Q: It's a living zero point, in a way.
B: Exactly.

Q: But it's like I have to be willing to “die” in every moment.
B: Yes.
Q: To my... to who I thought I was.
B: Yes.
Q: It's pretty intense.
B: Yes! (Audience laughter) Never boring!
Q: No, no, its not... its not boring at all.
B: Congratulations for being willing to know you are that strong, that clear; that willing to be yourself. That’s also what it reminds you of.
Q: That remains to be seen.
B: Well, yes... usually “death” does leave some remains. (Laughter)
ANIMA: As we have been discussing your idea, the idea of the end of practice time and the beginning, as you would say, of living time – this evening of your choosing, is to put into action, as you would say, those ideas, those imaginations which you have held on to, to this point. Held on to, not believing, not believing they are valid for you in what you would term life-style way of life. Held on to as less, less solid, less fruitful, less rewarding, less realistic.

All right, but now you have your idea of your mass consciousness changing your reality; so what you have held to be less realistic is becoming more realistic, becoming more realized. The actualized being brought forth from that place you have termed imagination. That place you have held as unreal, but for which you are now, as a mass consciousness, beginning to realize is really the real, real.

Now, you are stepping into that reality, you are bringing that reality into focus. You are diffusing; diffusing your focus upon the reality you have held. That is all it takes to make a change in your physical reality; a diffusing of your focus, a changing of your perspective. Very simple, you will learn within your collective mass conscious realization how to do so very rapidly within the next several of your decades; how to shift, increase the momentum of the shifting of your idea, your focus of your own reality, and that of the reality you share which you call mass consciousness.

You will allow yourselves, from this point forward – when you allow yourselves to live, and not practice, but live those ideas – you will allow yourselves to recognize more fully the mass consciousness. You will allow the mass consciousness identity to fully recognize itself as the culmination of all its parts, which are you.

Again, taking nothing away from the idea of your identity, no. The strengthening in the idea of your own identity brings about an easier recognition upon the part of your collective mass consciousness in providing strength, strength within the idea of your own collective personality. When you allow yourselves the strength of your own collective personality, the total integration of your own collective personality and identity, then you are saying to the mass consciousness: “Here I am.” You are speaking out loud. You are acknowledging your complete identity and thus, making your complete identity available to the mass conscious identity.

It will then, in a sense, tap into your identity to form what it needs of its own sense of self, its own sense of its own conscious awareness; its collective conscious awareness, formed by its own personality parts, which are you; and then onward to form former collections, if you would; former mass consciousnesses, if you would.

Now, we began with the idea of ending the practice by understanding the interaction, the interaction between all of you, among all of you. The idea that you can, in a sense, reach out and feel the link, feel the interaction; become aware of the non-verbal, non-physical interaction which occurs continuously between all of you. It is never broken; only your awareness of it allows it to seem so. Only your awareness of choice, that which you do not wish to look at, makes it seem like there is no connection. It served a purpose in this time; now you are changing your own time. That time allows for many new ideas. It allows for us to bring you... it allows for you to recognize your own connections.

Now, you may at this time be more familiar than you were with your own feelings of your own connections to your other identities, which you regard as past and future lives. These, in a sense, are now integrated to the point where you need not delve too much into specifics. You are able, if you wish, at this time, to simply absorb the idea, absorb the energy, absorb the information, which you are constantly sharing with all of your lives. Including those which co-exist with you in this time, which you call also past lives, and what you call future lives.

There being no future; there being no past, there being only now. They co-exist simultaneously, and this you now no longer need to hear. You know this, you can feel this; you have brought yourself to the point of knowing. You can tap, relate, and directly communicate with all of your own portions, with all of your own feelings about those portions, with all of their feelings about you. They have feelings about you too. Do not forget that they are, in their own right, conscious entities, with their own sense of identity. They have feelings about all their other portions, including you. You can look at yourself from any point along the time track, if you wish, since you have created the time track to begin with. You may shift to and fro, up and down; any which way you so desire, any which way.

You will find there is, tonight of your time, this sense of blending, this sense of bringing in other portions of identity, this sense of demonstration of connectiveness, of fluid motion between consciousnesses; of removal of the separation between the ideas of conscious, subconscious, unconscious, hyperconscious, and mass consciousness. You will find at this time that energy being given out to you.

You may allow whatever feelings, whatever flowings you find yourself performing between your own portions, your own past, your own future, in your own willingness; your own willingness to allow. Allow, not make, not force, but to allow those connections to commence within you; that blending of all of your portions; that blending of each portion within every other consciousness around you; each consciousness around you possessing a part of you, in a sense; an extension of you, in a sense; a projection of your own idea of yourself, in a sense. There is, if you wish, intensity in the blending; there is calmness in the blending, if you wish. Do you understand this idea of blending?

AUD: Yes.

ANIMA: Allow me to tell you the energy is about thirty percent. There is, if you wish, time for the idea of questions concerning this idea of blending, if you wish.

Q: Do you mean thirty percent of what it could be, or what it would be?
A: What it could be; something of your understanding at this time, at this moment.

Q: So if we were ready it could be more right now?
A: All right, allow me to ask a question of you, all of you. Who wishes to act? Who wishes to be? Who wishes to perform their lives as opposed to watching?

AUD: Me. I do.

A: Who does not? Now realize this is no chastisement. Realize your feelings are always, in a sense, a form of action anyway. Who feels, in a sense, they do not perceive the idea of extending and blending the portions to be something that’s serving? Realize acceptance within searching of this idea; for the idea that you have the willingness to say you do not connect to the idea of blending will bring, in a sense, its own rewards. I will ask the question, how much do you see in other individuals?

Q: Only potential.

A: Really? Allow me to tell you that you see 100% of yourself in every other individual, and not one percent less. Never. Realize that when you attract, when you create a reality, round and about you; when you attract consciousnesses, when you allow yourself to accept their idea of themselves, and you create a version of them for you within your reality, then that version of them, for you, is 100% a reflection of your own creative ability. It is 100% you.

You are not, in a sense, in your terms, as you understand them, ever seeing that other individual. Realize there are situations in which one individual and another individual, as you say, in your terms, do not get along. Yet, there may be a third individual who receives them both equally. Realize there are portions being created within each individual’s sphere of reality, some of which are not shared between, as you say, A and C; but are shared equally between A and B, and B and C.

Therefore, you will find whatever is in your reality is created by you as your representation of that consciousness. You do not always allow yourself to receive everything that other consciousness transmits. You choose; you pick and choose what you wish to see of that other consciousness. That which reminds you of you; those portions only which you are willing to acknowledge within yourself, willing to view and integrate of more of yourself. When you are willing to view and integrate, and allow more of your own personality to come to the surface, you will find yourself allowing further integration with other individuals.

You will find yourself allowing them to allow more transmission to reach you. You will find them allowing more transmission, from you, to reach them. You will be sharing more of yourselves; you will be blending more of yourselves only when you are willing to look at more of yourself.

Q: And how can you do this?

A: Again, you may first acknowledge that each and every portion of your personality is there; created by you for a reason, for a function, for a purpose of your own choosing. Why will you suppose you would create for yourself superfluous identities that you have no use for? Creation being completely self-contained, being completely aware of its own purpose, creates no extraneous portions; it is always self-contained.

Your awareness will focus on what you have told yourself you need to focus on. Always know you will be able to draw from an endless well. As you choose to allow yourself to do so, you will always find more and more of yourself to draw on. You will always be able to constantly create, in a sense, greater and greater more integrated realities containing more and more awareness of various consciousnesses, both upon your world and upon other worlds and within other dimensions of thought. The further you are willing to look at yourself as a complete and total creator, the more of creation you will allow within your reality.

Q: When you say "getting to know all the different parts of yourself," are you also referring to those parts of your personality that are perhaps dormant or could exist?

A: Yes. They are not dormant by any means. Realize, that in order for you to create physical reality you have created the idea of polar opposites and paradox. You have allowed this idea for you to create a sense of time, past, present, future, darkness and light. It is the willingness to understand that you have created these ideas within yourself to make yourself complete within this realm of reality, and that none of those personality portions can ever do you harm.

If you allow yourself to emerge into reality from the center; the center between both sides, recognize the fact that you can allow the energy of both sides to serve you in positive ways. Recognizing that anything you might deem to be a negative experience in dealing with those portions of your personality – that you deem perhaps, in your terms, less suitable than any other portion – can be used instructively for you to create positive circumstance out of that lesson you have given yourself.

Realize that the stronger you focus upon the idea of suppression of those portions of yourself, the more energy you give to them. The more solidity you give to them, the more you shift your balance of energy over to them, then the more prominent you allow them to be in your life.

When you recognize that each and every portion of your personality is completely equal to every other portion of your personality, and completely equal collectively to the whole identity that you are, you will exist, in a sense, in constant momentum, perfectly still. Again, the paradox; do you follow the idea, constant momentum, yet perfectly still?

AUD: Not completely.

A: All right, you may imagine that in creating all of your reality round and about you, extending your perceptions out from your own center, you can accelerate your idea of shifting, your idea of growing, your idea of experience, your ideas of sharing, your idea of blending, of living, of being. You can accelerate those ideas round and about you, bring to yourself all that you will need, all that you deserve; which is everything. Did you get that? Everything. All that you deserve is everything. You are already everything. Why would you exclude a portion of yourself from yourself? You contain everything; you are the creator, you have everything, you are everything. There is no outside, there is only you, there is no outside of you.

Since you contain everything, you may allow everything to work together without fear. You contain fear too, yes, you will never get rid of fear, so you might as well learn it is equal to every other portion of yourself you have created. Once you realize that fear is equal to every other portion, including joy, you will recognize the purpose for which it was created. You will allow it its due; you will allow it its place. You will allow it to function, in your terms, harmoniously with all of your other portions.

You will begin, therefore, to recognize yourself from a central viewpoint as a creator. You will recognize the purpose in the lightness and the dark, in having wished to experience, in your terms, the creation of physical reality. You will see your own purpose for yourself, your own purpose as a creator, your own purpose within the entire universe – multiverse consciousness, if you wish – when you allow yourself everything you deserve. And you deserve everything. Do you follow that?

Q: Yes.
A: How does that make you feel, a little bit nervous?
Q: Yes.
A: So you are saying you can never get rid of fear?
Q: Yes.
A: Allow it to work with you. You have created this fear simply as an idea for yourself to understand certain of your own abilities. Allow it to manifest its own energy in positive ways. Allow it to show you that it exists as a reminder that you are as powerful as you wish to be. Do you follow?
Q: Yes.
A: Do you feel comfortable with that idea? You may, if you wish, play, play, play with your fear. It will be more fun that way.

Realize you were never meant to struggle. Nobody. If you wish to create struggle, create struggle for the purpose of finding out that you do not need to struggle. Once you have done it, it is enough. You may learn to experience joy, creative joy, in every other endeavor you undertake from that point forward. All right? Play in your imagination. Image, image, image, you have created here, for yourselves, what you term to be a visual reality, yes. That is one of the primary features of your physical dimension.

You have created what you term in your minds, a visual reality. You have created, in fact, minds with which to experience the idea of visual reality. You have created from your consciousness the idea of mind. It is mind, in and of itself, which is responsible for sustaining visual reality, which you think of as physical. Physical reality is only visual experience; no more, no less. Therefore, use the tools you have created with which to experience this reality.

Imagination, your imagination, your mind’s visual capabilities are the tools that form what you term to be your physical reality and that connection of your imagination which bridges this visual experience as the dream reality. Still visual, but maintaining no direct sense of physical, as you say, “laws,” which you have created for this visual experience. It allows you to circumnavigate your own direct visual physical dream state, which you are now in, and your hyperconscious awareness state.

It is a direct working tool, a direct bridge between this reality and your hyperconscious awareness that is the dream reality. It is also very real, and you exist there, very, very consciously right now. Right now. You are all conscious in the dream reality. Simply, you allow yourself to become aware of it when you cease to practice visual physical reality. That is sleep – when you cease to practice visual physical reality. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
A: You allow yourself focus of consciousness within the dream reality in order to work out for yourself what you wish to experience in your visual, physical reality. Everything, everything you experience in your visual, awake, physical reality, you have worked out in your dream reality first. Everything you experience in your dream reality, you have worked out in your hyperconscious awareness reality first. Everything you have worked out in your hyperconscious awareness reality, you have known first; known from your center, from yourself. From your creatorhood, you have known that which is created. Do you follow?

Q: Yes. If we create it already in the dream state, even though we haven’t created it visually in this state, why do we have to act it out?

A: This will seem quite simplistic and possibly even funny to you. Since you have chosen to create physical reality that is why you have to act it out.

Q: Then why don’t we just act it out without, umm...

A: It is your choice. Realize there are many, many consciousnesses that have not chosen physical reality. Since you did, I will assume you had a reason.

Q: Is the reason individual?

A: Yes. You are here for your own reasons, no one else’s. When you allow yourself to completely integrate with all of your portions, those reasons will become more and more clear to you. Not that you have to go off, as you say, on a wild goose chase to find those reasons, no. That is when you can set traps for yourself. You can allow a great portion of your energy, and many of you do, if I may say so, in trying to figure out why you are here, and in so doing you miss the reason: simply experience, living one form of yourself as a creator – now that is the overall general reason.

You have your own reasons as individual creators if you simply allow yourself to live. If you simply allow yourself to experience the reality you have created for yourself, you will find yourself understanding the reason for having created the reality. One idea will support the other. Do you follow me? You will unerringly arrive at whatever goal you have chosen, no matter how you get there.

Q: Do we all choose unerringly?

A: Yes.

Q: Are we in a continuous flow of no error?

A: You may create the idea of error if you wish to experience that idea, but realize that in creating it you have complete control over the situation and as such, in a way, there is no error. It is all up to you what you wish to experience, and experience is the key. You are experiencing; you may continue to do so in any way shape or form you wish. Change is the only constant factor within experience. It is up to you.

Q: Do we inherit knowing the difference between right and wrong at all times?

A: You have allowed yourself to believe that you do not consciously; and only consciously does that concept exist. Only consciously, physically, does the concept of right and wrong exist. You have created those concepts of right and wrong for yourself to experience. Again: the existence of a paradox and polar opposites, which form the reality of physical existence.
You will find when you become consciously non-physical – in your terms, that is when you are asleep, while you are out of your body, as you say – you will understand concepts of right and wrong in a very different manner. You will understand them as the balancing of energies. You will see very transparently some of the purposes that your ideas of right and wrong can serve.

Realize there are many, many negative results that can occur from your concept of rightness in your world. There are many, many positive results that can occur from the concept of wrongness in your world. And also realize that your concept of right and wrong will vary, not only, as you say, from country to country, but from individual to individual. All of it is contained within your higher self where each and every one of you together, collectively, understands exactly what you are doing. You cannot hide from yourself on that level. You can sneak around all you want down here if that is what you have created.

Anima gives way to Chepop, a fiery being from Sirius:

Chepop: All right. Now, Anima, I will say, in your own terms, has a tendency toward leniency. You will not get that from me.

Q: Why not?

C: Because you do not need it, and it is about time you thought so. How about that? Allow me to tell you that the energy was very, as you say, quiescent before. It was the calm before the storm. Now the storm will be your own recognition of your own momentum, your own energy, your own creativity. Now, I will not let you get past that.

Realize I am going to create for you very brief moments of what you term to be anxiety. Realizing that you have chosen to live, I am going to allow you to make yourselves take those choices.

Now, you will learn how to use your anxiety to positive benefit. You will allow it to spur you to make the decision to live, to flow with the momentum you have created for yourselves. It is your own choice. You have allowed me to come here to tell you that. Thank you.

Q: I have been trying to not use anxiety and instead switch to choice and preference, and they don’t seem to have the same intensity.

C: Then that is why you will learn how to use anxiety’s energy – if you cannot understand that choice and preference have the same amount of energy. If you understand the energy of anxiety, then you can use that energy positively. Get it?

Q: Yes I do, but how can I learn that preference and choice have the same equal energy?

A: When you give in to the fact that you can use the energy of anxiety to give you your sense of momentum. Once you allow yourself to fall into your own momentum, you will create for yourself a viewpoint in which everything will seem equal. At that point you will recognize that you could have got in there by using choice and preference, but you chose not to, and you will see why. Get it? You are learning about yourself; you are learning about your chosen path.

Q: Okay, I got it.
C: Thank you. Who else feels anxiety with the idea of being forced to live the way you have chosen to live, fully within faith, fully trusting yourself that you are not going to do yourself in? Who feels anxiety taking that step? Go ahead, raise your hands, speak out.

Q: I do, I do.

C: Just because you say I do, does not mean you will necessarily have to do it immediately, but you can say I do as a separate incident. Who else? Come on . . .

Q: I feel it only when there is no trust.

C: All right. Who else? – I’ll take that as a yes.

Q: An evasive no.

C: No, a manifested no. Understand a manifested no: meaning, yes, I am exploring the idea but I am allowing it to elude me for the moment. But I am getting the hang of it, it is becoming very clear to me, but I need a little more time; but that is ok. It is a realized no. At the same time, therefore, it is an acknowledgement that it exists; if it was allowed to manifest so strongly, it is a recognition. And recognition and allowance of that portion of yourself is the first step.

Now you can expend that energy sometimes in what you call dis-ease. It will take the idea away from anxiety that may be looked at as having fear. You do not wish to have fear so you have dis-ease instead. Get it? It is another manifestation of that anxiety. It is all right... it is very creative. Since I am here, I will assume you wish to become more able to simply take that energy, that anxiety, and use it creatively, purposefully, transparently; and make yourself live that dream, live that idea which creates so much anxiety for you when you measure it up against other things, and only then. When you measure it against the background of the reality you have created for yourself in your visual physical reality, you allow yourself to create in your mind the concept of anxiety.

Q: How do we interpret the physical diseases by deciding that creatively?

C: You have created so many ways of avoiding using that energy that it continuously manifests into new undiscovered diseases. You constantly project your fear, your lack of willingness to simply be who you are, into more and more ways of avoiding even having the ability to look; in other words, incapacitated. You are telling yourself that your senses will not function well enough to even work on the problem. You are sick: “leave me alone; I do not feel like thinking about it, I am sick. I take your sympathy. Ok, I will let it go that far; ok, but that’s all. If you do not sympathize with my sickness, what is your term, “misery loves company," you can go away. I like having created my misery, it keeps me from looking too closely at myself – then I might be more miserable.” But really, it would be your instantaneous cure, and also that is what is responsible for what you term, miracle cures, not a mechanism, just the realization.

Full acceptance and acknowledgement of that portion, portions, if you wish, which were not being looked at, full acceptance, full trust – full trust of self always brings you back to your zero rest point of perfectness. Always.
Therefore, in any endeavor you wish to undertake, you may always comfort, if you wish to say that, comfort yourself in realizing that you will always be able to bring yourself back to your rest point by simply keeping the trust going. The more you trust in the endeavor you have chosen, the easier it will be for you to stay on that path, because you will always be operating from your center.

Q: If you don’t know what the illness is, can you just accept the illness itself?

C: If you wish you may work it that way. Again, you have created many ways – any way you can conceive of, you may look at yourself. If you wish to simply view the experience through the viewpoint, backwards, at yourself through your dis-ease, you may do so. You may come from any direction you wish since you have created them anyway. It does not matter; that is primary, it does not matter, the energies, they are interchangeable.

You, as a society, now know this to be so – inter-changeable matter energy, both again, polar opposite ideas from a primal existence. The center point that is you: existence, you at the center. Existence manifesting in your creative magnificence the idea of matter and energy, rearranging those ideas into various separate components around you, creating separations out of the matter and energy and allowing them to interact and blend and form a panorama for your amusement; also for your education, but education through self-expression; that is reality, central self-expression.

Now before any view that comes to you, comes anything that you create for yourself; which seems to come to you through one of your self-chosen perspective games. And which, ok, you will realize is part of the self-expression. Anything. Trust it. Where else can it come from but you? Because you have created this idea here, and you have created those ideas from here, so you are already blended.

Allow yourself to realize that it is because you are blended that you can even come across this idea, and then this one, or this one. It is creation; it is your creation. They are there because you have put them there to simply reflect back and forth to show you, you are always in the center. Negative is not bad. It is there to form the other mirror; otherwise if it wasn’t there you would not see the center path. You would not maintain your sense of where you are. If you looked in on one side only, the reflection would go off into infinity; you would see no center.

Therefore, know that you can rejoice when you find negative and positive; it shows you you have your paradox. It shows you you have your balance; it shows you you are creating from your center.

When you allow for the dark and the light to come up anytime, as we have said, anytime you allow paradox, both ideas, to exist simultaneously within your life, when you coexist and blend two ideas which seem to be opposite together in your life; when you allow those things to manifest in your life so you are forced to look at them yourself, you know you are being with your higher consciousness, because you are ready to accept both sides and create for yourselves a reminder that you are always in the center manifesting outward all that you see which reflects back to center, in, out, in, out. All right?

B: Margo, we can explore one or two ideas about your research.

MARGO: There seems to be no written explanation, at least what I have gotten from you and Seth about the vacuum in the center of the brain; and the explanations I get from you are very difficult to correlate with what I am reading.

B: Now you will find there are, at this time, very few cases in which your doctors as you call them, your scientists, as you call them, have discovered this idea with regard to, only recently, the idea of disease. Now realize, they are relating this idea to the idea of disease at this time. They will find, in your near future, that there are certain individuals choosing to review this state of physical existence so that they may understand the nature of the brain, in that term.

That is, you will find certain of your scientists have recognized that there are individuals who can function quite well with large portions of the center of their brains totally evacuated. You will find this to be a direct manifestation of this idea that the further you enhance your own understanding of your own sense of evolvement, you will need to use less and less of your physical brain to accomplish more and more awareness.

You will allow that center communication point to the rest of yourself to increase symbolically in size. Until it reflects the idea that the outer shell of the brain, such as your body, has been created to represent, in a sense, the outer shell of your soul, as necessary for you to understand everything you need to understand about your physical reality. Do you follow me?

MARGO: Yes. How does the energy that you manifest through the channel – how does that have anything to do with the vacuum in his brain?

B: It will, upon his allowance to perceive himself as becoming more integrated, provide, in a sense, a very comfortable background energy which will allow him to begin to manipulate, without what you term negative effects, those portions of his physical shell which he will find is necessary to alter for the purpose of representing, symbolically, yet physically, the idea more completely to himself of utilizing the minimum amount of solid energy that is physical matter necessary to perform certain functions. Particularly as he will find them necessary with regard to the idea of, in your terms, travel through hyperspace in the future.

You will find that the majority of individuals who have achieved what you term to be the technological, all right, “breakthrough” into traveling through hyper-space will have already achieved, to some degree, a lessening of the physical material within their brain structures; an allowance of that enlargement, that symbolic enlargement, which represent more reliance upon the center of self. More direct access to the center of self. Do you follow me?

MARGO: Yes. Then why is Lazaris having us do meditations to enlarge the hemispheres of the brain? You say those hemispheres are getting smaller.

B: All right, now, just as you may find that for very many, as you say, physical phenomenon, the less that is contained within, forms a situation where the remainder will expand. Again it is, in a sense, a physiological symbolic reaction to those laws you have created within your physical reality. You will find that less substantial ideas will tend to expand outward again, symbolically enveloping a sense of enlargement of scope. It will be a direct reaction to that evacuation of the center that the remainder of the exterior will, in a sense, seek to expand outward, hence the idea of enlargement.
Now, thank you all very much for having chosen, whether you consciously realize it or not at this time, for having chosen to live, instead of continuing to practice to live. Again, simply by your own choosing have you determined that you will not give yourself, in your own terms, much time left to practice.

You are bringing in mass consciousness momentum energy, right to the very forefront of your conscious awareness. Dissolving, bit by bit, moment by moment, that idea of separation between the various portions you call your conscious awareness, unconscious, subconscious, hyperconscious, and mass conscious awareness. You are allowing the walls to fall. There are beginning to be patches of light leaking from one level of consciousness to another – light bridging the gap across the different consciousnesses.

Q: Is that what I see when I see lights and sometimes patches of color?

B: To a degree, you are also perceiving, along your own physiological nerve system certain activities of energy, which you are creating, which will exist beyond your physical capacity to hold them. They are, in a sense, released as discharges. But it is indicative of activity going on, on levels of your consciousness which you are not allowing yourselves to physically, consciously, perceive at this time, yes.

It is a very, very normal thing for your civilization to experience, in that you have not yet allowed those barriers down between the levels of consciousness. You will find yourself experiencing them, in a sense, more often in your future but you will find they will take greater form. To a degree, you may even begin to experience, in your terminology, real time hallucinations. Do not be afraid, they will simply be your ability to scan, if you wish, through your library of potential realities. You will simply be giving yourself the opportunity to understand that you have access to any portion of yourself you so choose. Have fun.

Now, allow yourself to go through the week boldly, not timidly. All right? Thank you all very much, again, for allowing us to be a reflection of you. Thank you. Goodnight.

AUD: Thank you.
Living on the Edge

Q: What about all these earth changes being predicted these days?

B: Our understanding – and this goes for all such so-called predictions – is as follows: changes there will be; and there may be isolated events in which individuals may choose to believe they need to experience the transformation in catastrophic or disastrous ways. However, no one needs to experience the transformation in a negative way. If individuals are willing to wake up within themselves now, and recognize they deserve happiness without having to go through trials by fire in order to believe they deserve happiness, then they won’t have to place themselves in a scenario where they are shaken awake. Allow yourselves to recognize that any such information is only an opportunity, not an absolute dictum, to be aware of the energy within you and what reality you choose to believe is more true for you. When you recognize you do not need to experience that type of a tool, then you will find that even if you were to remain in a locale that did experience it, you would not. And if enough individuals in your locale understand they do not need to experience it that way, the entire locale will not.

Many of you enjoy earthquakes; you love “living on the edge.” You are finding that the energy excites you and spurs you on to greater creativity, and you choose to congregate in areas of high seismic activity. That’s why you are where you are (California). You are learning to direct this energy, learning to use it rather than fearing it. You are attracting yourselves to particular places that represent different degrees of energy, and in doing so, giving yourselves the creative opportunity to know you can flow that energy through you, and you can begin to identify with the power that is actually within you. For no magnitude of any quake that has ever occurred on your planet matches even infinitesimally the amount of power you have to create your reality.

You are learning to direct your energy by feeling it externally in ways that show you how much power you have, how much power you are. So you can get more and more used to the idea, at whatever rate is comfortable for you, of living with that much power, and of understanding what that much power is capable of doing. You are choosing to flow that power in a positive way, rather than a negative way, choosing to allow that power to destructurize but not destroy. Thank you all for being so bold.

The Fluid Future

The idea is to simply be in touch with the fact that the so-called future is always fluid. There are many probable realities; and when someone says – or you perceive – "Well, this is going to happen then, and it’s going to be very catastrophic," it is simply one perception of one bandwidth frequency, one probable reality. Now that you are aware that there is energy behind that probable future, if you don’t prefer it, you don’t have to stay on that frequency.

It doesn’t necessarily mean you have to move. If you find you are in any locale wherein the majority of consciousness insists on experiencing the transformation in negative, or in catastrophic destructive ways, and you know you don’t need to, then whether you even try to or not, you will automatically attract into your life an opportunity which will remove you from that locale without your even trying; without you even planning to.
So if you are following what is most exciting for you, and you find yourself not attracting a situation in your life to remove you from the locale you are in; that is, if you do find the locale you are in is the most exciting locale you would like to be in, in general, then take it as a sign that you will be able to remain in that locale, and nothing will interrupt the path you chose to be.

Q: What if I find that place is not feeling right?

Then go where you find it to be more exciting. But recognize that it doesn’t necessarily mean you are taking yourself out of the place that will experience destruction. You are simply following the flow of your own path and going to where you are most excited to be, surrounding yourself with the environment that is conducive to the idea you are being. That’s it. No part of your planet has to experience the change in catastrophic ways; none of it has to. It depends on your willingness to wake up.

Atlantis

November 1, 1988:

Q: You said something about Halloween being connected to the destruction of Atlantis?

B: Yes, from your ancient times All Hallows Eve, or Halloween, represents the day before the destruction of Atlantis. November 1 is the day of destruction, and November 2 is the day after. In some of your religious vernacular these days this translates into All Hallows Eve, All Souls Day and All Saints Day, and is the idea of the destruction of your Atlantean landmass approximately 11 to 12 thousand years ago.

The issue you are dealing with on your Earth at this time is connected strongly to both the planet Maldek destroying itself long ago and a repetition of the cycle of Atlantis, although on a smaller scale than Maldek. In your current time frame, the United States represents the idea of the replay of Atlantis, for you have much of the same technology and the same position in relation to politics around the world. Also you have many of the same individuals from Atlantis who have now restructured themselves to the point of deciding whether or not they will destroy the world again. You all chose to be here in this transformational age to see that you do NOT replay Atlantis and destroy yourselves and your Earth this time around.

Q: It was stated in the Ra Materials, Bashar, that no one had ever left this density since Jesus’ time.

B: Actually you have all decided to remain and return because the transformation is so attractive and exciting. It is not so much that no one has been able to leave; it is that no one has wanted to. And as you say, "You are where it’s at." Your planet is going through such a strong transformation that not only do the individuals on it not necessarily want to leave – because they want to be a part of it on some level, physically or non-physically – but you also have attracted the attention of thousands of other civilizations and dimensions of consciousness. These wish to watch what’s going on. Thus, you have all wished to add to the momentum of the group karma of the transformation.

Economic Resources
Q: You say we are transforming. How do we transform our economy? Or will we have an economic depression?
B: You will to some degree. But the idea is that there does not have to be a depression. You are simply recognizing that your economic structure is shifting, is changing. And yes, in your terms, the old one may need to break down. But that breakdown does not in any way mean it must be in a depletive manner. It can be replaced; it can be re-grown in a different way; it can be transformed.
Q: But do you feel that there will be a major shifting in the economy?
B: Oh, yes.
Q: Do the values in America reflect that in a certain unconscious or conscious way?
B: The values of your entire earth reflect it, because you are now becoming global. And so you need a global economy, in a sense. Although it will not be economics as you have known it.
Q: Do you have anything to say to us about ways that we may accelerate ourselves through that shift?
B: Yes. Begin by basing your economics on each other, not on a symbol! You yourselves are what back your services. That is all there is to it. Direct interaction between individuals, with the removal of the limitations, you call, borders, will facilitate an interactive global economy. It is simply the idea of the reapportionment of the resources you have, and the re-shifting of your priorities. There is really no lack on your world at all; and there is not actually overpopulation. Rather there is simply a particular disbursement of individuals and resources in such a way as to make it seem as if there is a lack. Balance your economy by the sharing of responsibilities – in any task, corporation, or whatever – and the reliance upon the resources of all, rather than the hoarding of, or the fearing of others, in terms of being able to deplete your own resources. Create a republic of ideas, in a sense.
Q: I also read that there’s an impending axis shift on this planet.
B: All right. There are changes of electromagnetic energy. But again, the overall fundamental idea is that any transformation can be experienced in a positive or a negative way; it’s up to you. Whatever vibration you buy into most strongly will be the way you experience the shifts going on in your electromagnetic field. Individuals who have a great deal of fear about the shift will lure themselves into places of destruction. Individuals who understand they can use the energy to enlighten themselves, and elevate and accelerate themselves in a positive way, will simply know, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that they do not have to give themselves the idea of a trial by fire, and they will lure themselves to places on your planet where they will experience the energy as a destructurization, rather than as destruction. The more individuals on your planet there are who recognize they can use this energy in a positive way, rather than simply fearing or believing it has to happen in a negative way, the more readily the energy of the entire planet can change.
Thus, the idea is that, yes, there are shifts in your energy taking place, both in you and in your planet, since in a sense you are one and the same thing. Here and there, as you have experienced this day of your time, you may see pockets of adjustment in your landmass, but it does not have to be as devastatingly overwhelming as many of you used to fear it had to be. You have already done much to change that energy; you have already changed it in a positive way to a great degree – just by being willing to understand you do not really have to truly shake yourselves completely awake. That is, if you are willing to wake up now, you do not have to suffer and struggle and go through all sorts of negative trials in order to wind up with the understanding you could have now: that you deserve happiness; that you can create your reality to be whatever you prefer it to be.

Choosing the Positive

A lot of the idea of someone experiencing a transformation in a negative way is that he is holding on tight to an old belief, and will not allow himself to let it go and trust his natural flow; it seems to take that degree of violence to make him break his grip. Sometimes an individual will even take himself out of physical reality in order to allow himself to start afresh. But he does not really die; nothing ever really does; it is all eternal and infinite.

However, you don’t have to struggle, and you don’t have to suffer. Any time you are made aware of an idea, and it is presented in a potentially negative format, take it not as an absolute prediction chiseled in steel – or neutronium, or whatever you may think is most difficult to change. The idea is presented as an opportunity: "look," it says, "you can vibrate in synchronous accord with the negative energy of this idea, this fear, and attract yourselves to it and attract it to you. Or you can vibrate in accord with the positive energy. Experience the opportunity, the exploration, the excitement, rather than the anxiety and the fear, the limitation and the segregation."

Whatever vibration you choose will be the reality you get. Remember, no circumstance has built-in meaning; all situations are fundamentally neutral – blank, empty, zero – zip, as you say. You give them the meaning. Because of what you have been taught to believe these things mean, the meaning you give it is the effect you get; positive meaning in, positive effect out. Negative meaning in, negative effect out; simple physics; simple mechanics. You experience the reality you are the vibration of; you cannot experience the reality you are not the vibration of.

Q: But what about Nostradamus, Edgar Cayce, and the others who are predicting catastrophe?

B: There is no such thing as a prediction of the future. There is only a sensing of the energy that is most prominent and probable to manifest at the time the prediction is made. There is no absolute future; it is only a probability. When a prediction is sensed, the individual making that prediction is sensing the energy as it lies, at that moment, behind whichever idea has the most momentum and has the most likelihood of manifesting, IF – important – if the energy doesn’t change.

You always have the opportunity to change that energy. And in very many ways the reason that predictions exist is to let you know where the energy IS. Then if you don’t prefer it being there, you change it. So predictions, when they are understood for what they are – rather than the rigidized, unmovable structures many of you have been taught to believe they are – when they are understood for what they are, then you will realize that a prediction, when it is made, and therefore, when it is known in your consciousness, renders itself obsolete many times just by being known.
Let me stress that your awareness of where it lies, changes that energy! Now if you don’t prefer it to be there, you can do something about it, because your consciousness is focused upon it. If you hear a prediction, and you do not think you have the ability to change the energy – if you generate more fear – then you reinforce the energy that the prediction first picked up on, and make it more likely the prediction will come to pass. But if you are willing to realize that a prediction in no way determines that this is the absolute thing which must happen, then you can understand you have a great deal of flexibility with regard to the predictions.

Old Perspectives

Also, any time a prediction is made, it is made within the context of the time frame that it occurs in. Many ancient predictions, many ancient sensings of the way the energy of the entire culture in which you exist was to be experienced followed from a certain belief that existed in your culture at that time. That belief, generally summed up is as follows: the great transformations that were sensed that were going to occur could not be understood as being able to occur without everything that already existed coming apart first. So when those predictions were made, they were made with the understanding and the belief that in order to experience the transformation, things were to be absolutely destroyed to make way for that transformation.

Now things do have to change, things do have to, in a sense, break down for another reality to take its place. But that breaking down in no way must be destructive; it can be creative. A breaking down can simply be the willingness to allow something to change, rather than holding on to the way you believe it must stay, then the situation – then the culture, the structure – will break down. It will change; it will transform into the type of structure that is capable of representing the transformation in a less catastrophic way.

Therefore, any time you hear of these so-called predictions that are put in that manner, it is your opportunity to realize that what you are being told is, "Look, this is where your society is stacking all of its beliefs. It is still running off of the idea that you cannot deserve ecstasy without first going through a trial by fire." But this is an old perspective. Your awakening to the understanding that you deserve happiness, in and of itself, has already changed much of the original energy that was sensed back then by those individuals. So now that you know you are made of love and light and ecstasy, and that ecstasy and happiness is your birthright, you now know you don’t have to shake yourselves awake. You are waking up without that violent action. As was stated earlier, if enough individuals in that area all realize collectively that they do not have to experience catastrophe, then the energy of the entire area can change, and that manifestation does not have to occur in that area at all. 'Tis up to you.

In fact, you are all now the funnels, the channels, the valves through which that energy can be released and transformed in a positive way. You can put that energy that was going to go toward that idea of breaking you down in such a catastrophic way, shaking you up in a violent way – you can now put that energy toward constructive ideas. Any individual who knows, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he is waking up, that he does not have to shake himself awake, will know that that experience is not something that he needs in his reality. Therefore, even though there may be isolated pockets around your world where individuals believe they must experience it in that way, those who do not have that belief will no longer be in those areas, as we have said.

Therefore, any time you hear one of those predictions, do not take it as an absolute law of the universe: "This is chiseled in steel!" No, take it as an offering, as an opportunity to examine where you are being told the energy lies. And if you don’t prefer it to be there, take it as an opportunity to change it by doing the things that excite you in life, being of service, and acting as if you know you deserve ecstasy.

Channeled Predictions

Q: Some of the channeled entities today are telling us about catastrophes coming, and many people are in fear and panic.

B: Many of you have shared with us certain information being told to you by various entities being channeled in your world, information delineated in negative scenarios, negative aspects. And you are afraid these must manifest through the idea of earthquakes, floods, famine, and much of the like. As we have said, this energy potential does exist, but only as a potential. It may have a great deal of momentum behind it, a high degree of backing behind it from your civilization, but recognize that – not that you are being lied to by these entities, for you are not – but recognize you are being allowed to see in these sharings that you have an opportunity to decide whether what they say is true for you, in terms of what you know you need to experience in the transformation taking place on your planet right now.

Therefore, in each and every interaction that has ever taken place between any of you and any entity coming through a channel, when you hear something that does not strike a vibratory chord within you, do recognize that there is no need for the idea of accusation from you to them. For all that is being shared with you is a perception of an area in your civilization – or a potential reality – that does have a great degree of momentum and energy behind it ... due to the fears many of you generate. But if you are willing to hear these words from entities who speak of the transformation in catastrophic terms, if you are willing to hear them as an opportunity to understand and reflect what you know to be true for you, then you can utilize the situation. You can be an equal to them, and not continue to feel that what you are being given as information is any more powerful than the information you have within yourselves – with regard to the reality and a world which is, after all, yours.

If we may suggest, therefore, the following: if you find yourselves in a certain scenario where such information is being imparted to you, and you are willing to have conviction on it, this may be shared with that entity – in the form of a letter perhaps:

Dear Entity:

I recognize that what you are sharing comes from your love for us, and your desire to serve us and to allow us to expand in our awareness of the transformation – which is a reflection of all we have ever been and can become.

At the same time, I would now wish to share with you, dearest Entity, that your sharing affords me the opportunity to recognize that the transformation, in the terms of catastrophe you have delineated, is not the reality I, as a co-creator of this world, prefer. I choose to give energy to the idea that if I am willing to face all portions of myself, and accept and allow all situations in my life to be of positive service, to be in my life for positive reasons, that I can allow my experience of the transformation to be one that is positive, and not in need of the expression of catastrophe in order for me to understand myself and grow.

I recognize that expressions of catastrophe may be the only way some individuals can believe a transformation will have a lasting effect. However, do allow me at this time, dearest Entity, to ask for your further love and your further assistance in suggesting to us ideas, ideas which could allow us to assist our world, so that as many of us as possible can now let ourselves also realize that there is no longer any need to believe that transformations and changes of lasting positive effect must be created through trials by fire.

I am willing to share that I believe ecstasy is our birthright. Will you share with us your perspective on how we may accelerate, within ourselves, to sufficient degrees, to allow there to be upon this world that we hold dear, the smoothest, easiest and most loving version of the transformation that can occur?

Thank you.

What You Are

Each and every one of you willing to utilize that situation, once again, not in an accusatory way, but in a sharing way, in a convicted way – to stand up and make a difference, and be the individuals you know yourselves to be and express what you know to be true for you – each and every one of you willing to utilize the situation as a reflection for that opportunity will make a geometric, a logarithmic difference in the ability of your entire world to allow its next step to be that much easier.

Even as a single individual you add that much energy to the momentum of your ability to experience your transformation in a positive and loving way. For you are energy, and experience it each of you will. You yourselves are the experience you are having. All of the physical reality, all of the emotional atmosphere, in which any particular manifestation or experience does occur in your lives – in a seemingly objectified manner – all of that materiality, every subtle nuance, is all you, in different manifesting reflections back to yourselves.

You have created the idea of yourselves to be physical reality, and there are many manifestations of physical reality. But in this particular manifestation of the idea you are being, you have been playing out, as your particular unique physical reality, a great deal of separation and negativity so that you could explore all of the ideas of what it means to be limited, as we have mentioned to you before. Therefore, you have created yourselves to be the idea of a reality whose only cognition, basically, fundamentally, immediately, is a material reflection seemingly outside of yourselves, so that you can feel as if you are in a material universe, rather than knowing that the material universe is what you are.

That is what you are now beginning to explore within the idea of integration. You are beginning to experience the integration, the blending of more and more awareness of more and more of yourselves.
You are beginning to blend the dream imagination and physical realities into one, to experience all the ideas of this transformation: the disorientation, the confusion, the limbo state, the seemingly surrealistic attitudes and atmospheres you encounter from time to time – which allow you to feel disassociated from the material physicality you have been used to experiencing for so many hundreds of thousands of years.

Now you find yourselves integrating and beginning to see through the illusion you have created of physical materiality. It has served you, and served you well. But an illusion, a tool and a creation it is, nonetheless.

Personality Construct

We have said, many times of late in your time frame, that what you consider to be your personality is an artificial construct, and is not who or what you are. Recognize, therefore, that although you have created, for many thousands of years, the idea that you are a humaniform existence, understand that the idea of your humanity, the essence of what you are, is not restricted to your humaniform existence. Begin to allow yourselves to recognize that in a non-physical state you are not human; you are quite something else. You are an essence, a primal idea of energy consciousness – a being or a soul, if you will – which can project itself as basically any form, any symbol, any idea it wishes to.

We know that your civilization, to some degree, does recognize, at least intellectually, the idea that you are not human when nonphysical, and that humanity is only the idea of the physical reflection of the soul. But also realize that many of you, because of the habit of being human, many times may not realize that when you think of the idea of the disembodied soul, you still find yourselves making the analogy that it is a human soul.

Understand that the soul, the energy essence, is not intrinsically human. Many different civilizations within the third/fourth density reality, which you are experiencing, do have similar humaniform, or humanoid appearance. From our perspective, in considering ourselves to be our own form of human – to us you are humanoid. Recognize however, that our soulness, your soulness, is not actually human; it is an essence which is above and beyond, and which transcends that limited definition.

Therefore, begin to understand that one of the reasons – as you make the shift from third to fourth density, and recognize more of your consciousness to be what it is – one of the reasons you are beginning to experience many ideas which disorient you and confuse you, and do not seem to fit into the structure you are used to, is because you are beginning to view, from time to time, from a point of view that is not strictly human. It is the essential viewpoint of the beingness, the consciousness you are, which can be human and many other things.

Recognize that you can begin to understand yourselves in this homogenous sense as everything and nothing at the same time – as a principle, as an idea, as an essence. By simply allowing yourselves to view, from the viewpoint of this essentialness of your existence, many of the things which are now beginning to occur to you, in your transformation from third to fourth density, may carry a new clarity – if you allow yourselves the opportunity to discontinue the limitation of expecting everything to make sense in humaniform terms.
For the idea, or the projection, of your humanity has been a definition which has served you and, in a sense, will continue to serve you through the idea of your fourth-density experience – although the type of humanity you will be in fourth density is not the same type that you were in third. You are rapidly evolving, once again, and you will find, to speak linearly, that further on in the middle, and very much so toward the end of your fourth density cycle, you will not be humaniform in the way you have considered yourselves to be at all.

As you progress from quasi-planar physical reality to nonphysical existence, going from fourth to fifth density, you will allow yourselves the opportunity to experientially become the energy matrix of focused consciousness within the homogenous energy field of All That Is that you actually are. And the idea of expressing yourselves as humanity will be a tool no longer necessary for your experience.
The idea of humanity, though well it has served you in this way, again, is but another tool within which you have clothed yourselves. It has suited the purposes that you chose to explore and experience. But do recognize, that as you all exist on many different planes of reality simultaneously, there are many other guises that you also exist within that are human, humanoid, and not human at all.

By simply shifting the perspective of your consciousness, as you make your transformations from third to fourth density, you may even begin to understand that, from time to time, as it suits you, there may be opportunities to look even through the eyes of the aspects of your selves that have nothing at all to do with humanity. For it will broaden your perspective in many different ways. Though you will remain focused, for the most part, in the idea of your humaniform fourth density existence – as long as that suits the purpose of this fragment of your consciousness that is channeling through the prism of this artificial personality construct that you call your human body.
Living The Way You Prefer

Q: I just wanted to share with you that this gives me great joy to share this vibration. My first question is: the best way to handle, or to cease, negative thoughts that I suppose come from what is known as the alter ego, or the Anti-Christ – what would you suggest in that area?

B: Allow yourself to recognize that as you become more expanded, as you contain more of Creation within you, you are obviously going to become aware of more of it. And that includes the negative as well as the positive. But just because you are aware of it, that doesn’t mean you have to put it into practice.

Again, the idea is to go back to your conscious commandment. And we can now couple this with the concept of the library analogy that we have used and shared with many of you from time to time. Think of all of these ideas, all of these thoughts, as the books in a library. They are all sitting upon the shelves. You can go into the library; you can take any one of them off the shelf; you can open it up; you can read it. All of the joyful books, all of the scary books, you can read them all. The only one that goes home with you is the one you consciously decide to check out. So it does not matter how many of these thoughts pass through you, or where they come from.

You are going to be cognizant that it is a probable way to exist; but if you simply know that it is not the way you prefer, then you will not put energy behind it, and you won’t have to worry about it. Worrying about the fact that they are there puts energy behind them.

If they occur, let them occur. Examine them for what they are; use them from a perspective that you can get something out of them. Maybe some scenario will occur in your life that will allow you to hearken back to the thought you had, so that you will have a perspective and experience that may assist you in assisting someone else.

When you become familiar with the idea of that negativity, then, when someone may seek your assistance, you will have a frame of reference to discuss the idea from. Simply use it in whatever way, shape or form allows you to continue to express your service in light and love and integrity. Does this assist you?

Q: Very much, thank you.

B: Well, thank you very much.

Q: My next question is: I wish to visit Inner Earth.

B: Go ahead.

Q: Thank you. Can you give me an approximate…

B: That way!

Q: Place and time?

B: Not really. However, there are many areas upon your planet that are relatively conducive, that contain energy vortexes that may allow you at least the beginning of a communication with that particular dimension of experience.
For do remember: it is another dimensional plane; and in your dimension is not literally in your planet. That is the apparent direction you will appear to go in encountering those beings, but it is on a slightly different vibratory plane. They’re not physically – in your dimension – inside your planet. You follow me?

Q: I follow you.
B: One very strongly conducive area to acclimate to the energy, that can put you in touch with their consciousness, is in what you call the Shasta area or the Sedona area. All right?
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. And enjoy all the surprises and the unexpected ways in which they will appear.
Q: If one wishes to channel a wondrous entity like yourself...
B: Oh! Wondrous entity!
Q: Or a wondrous entity like I am, what could we do – anything?
B: Be yourself; and any agreements you have made will express themselves in whatever ways they need to, to allow you to continue to be who you are. Do not forget that when it comes right down to it, of course, as you have said, you are a wondrous being. And channeling is only doing what you love to do. Have a good time.
Q: Thank you.
B: Happy channeling. Sharing!

Living The Way You Prefer
Living Your Dreams

Q: So, what is coming from you now - and listening to what we were talking about earlier - is that we are not the result of our past, right?
B: Yes!
Q: That we could be using our imaginations differently, or in different...
B: You will be living in it. You will be experiencing your imagination as...really as you have been experiencing physical reality... You follow me?
Q: Yeah, but it’s like daydreaming.
B: Yes!
Q: You will - as we have said many times - be living your dreams. Did you think we were being figurative? When we said you will be living your dreams, we were being quite literal.
Q: I’m not talking about the night dreams. I’m talking about daydreams.
B: What is the difference? Night dream, daydream...
Q: Well, the difference to me is that in the night dream my body is asleep, and I’m more at the affect of the dreams that I now...
B: All right. But that is your definition. There are, in your terms, individuals who have, quote/unquote, some pretty strong daydreams: "Oh, hello, anybody there? Come in; come in. Can you hear me? Hello!" "What? Were you talking to me?" Do you follow me?
Q: What do you tell me that for? I don’t...
B: Because that is how many individuals find themselves, deep within, even in a daydream, so they do not hear when other individuals are calling them. They might as well be physically asleep.
Q: Right.
B: It is the same thing. You are simply in the meditative state; it is the same thing.
Q: Right. I... I believe that. Because sometimes I have my dream, or my daydreams are so colorful and so true, that I really believe that I make them up at that time.
B: You do.
Q: Yeah, I know.
B: All right. All we are saying is that now the barriers, the definitions, that allowed you to create the idea that a night dream, daydream, and awake physical state, are different, are now dissolving. It is all going to be one experience. We do not, in your terms, really ever sleep. You follow me?
Q: That’s right. Yes, I follow that.
B: All right. Because we are living in that dream and therefore, never need to wake up into physical reality; we are awake.

That is what is meant by living your dreams. Through experiencing your life as if it were the type of reality you think is only relegated to your night dreams. The impossible made possible.
Q: But it’s not tangible.
B: It will be.
Q: Oh, I see what you mean. Because sometimes I’ve got dreams that...
B: That is simply because you are still making a distinction between the dream reality and the physical reality in the way that physical reality is more real.
Q: No, I’m not saying that it’s more real; just that it’s more of what I find that...
B: That is what I am saying. Pay attention for a moment. As long as you still wake up and remember having had a dream that does not seem to apply directly to what you experience as a tangible physical reality, you are still making a difference.
Q: Oh, I see what you mean. Instead of having, living, that dream...
B: Yes.
Q: . . . it seems that I recall the dream...
B: Yes.
Q: When actually, I am dreaming all the time. It is not physical reality and then a separate dream reality; it is all one thing, all one dream.
B: Yes.
Q: Got you.
B: Thank you.
Living Your Philosophy

Q: You teach us to not hate war but to love peace, and I really think that is my ideal, except I have an ex-wife and her lawyer coming after me day after day, for money, money, money. It is very difficult for me to turn the other cheek and love them for their teaching me a lesson – or whatever they are trying to do. And I would like some guidance from you as to what I can do to understand – to see the purpose of what they are trying to do to me.

B: They are not trying to do anything to you. Do you love yourself for creating this situation?

Q: On some level I do, yes.

B: All right. Where would that level be?

Q: On a philosophical level.

B: A philosophical level?

Q: I guess... yes.

B: You guess?

Q: I know. Yes, the philosophical level.

B: All right. Can you tell me what is really the difference between the philosophical level and the physical level?

Q: Paying the bills! (Laughing)

B: Really?

Q: Eating!

B: Oh, really? Are you sure?

Q: I’m sure, yes.

B: In other words, you are saying that to be a philosopher requires none of this?

Q: I don’t follow.

B: You are saying that the difference between the philosophical level and the physical level is that the physical level has to be concerned with the ideas of paying the bills and eating. And you are saying that the philosopher has to do none of this.

Q: I think the philosopher, if he chooses to, can take a different avenue on which to live his life; different from what I’ve seen and done.

B: All right. Now in saying already that you have a philosophical level, does that not also mean that you are a philosopher?

Q: Yes.

B: Would you – in assuming, therefore, that this philosopher fellow can choose a different avenue – would you not like to be that philosopher?

Q: I can choose not to be the philosopher, yes.
B: Would you like to choose to be the philosopher?
Q: Yes.
B: Why would you?
Q: (Silence)
B: Why do you choose to assume that this philosopher fellow is somehow going to stay apart from you, the physical fellow? Why can you not be the philosopher that can make a different choice?
Q: It doesn’t seem to be my choice. I seem to be reacting to all the things that are happening around me.
B: Yes, you are reacting. But understand that you created the situation to give yourself the opportunity to react to. Now, allow me to say, first of all, nothing happens to you, it happens because of you. Recognize that every idea you create is an opportunity. When you allow yourself – when you allow yourself to allow the situation to serve the purpose for which you created it, rather than trying to get rid of it, you will then allow it to change, to transform into something else.
First of all, recognize that very blatantly, on the surface, it is an opportunity to realize that you can create for yourself the idea that you do not have to be attacked. It is an opportunity for you to realize that this is one way that you do not wish to exemplify in your life. Relax within the situation. First of all, simply relax and realize that, simply, you have your part in creating this. All right. No big deal!
No need to judge them. No need to judge yourself. Within judgment is where you become caught up in the reactions, because you are judging that what is going on is somehow not a part of your life as it “should” unfold. In making that assumption, in making that judgment, you are then interrupting your own path. You are not allowing what is happening to be a part, a valid part, of what you chose to experience to allow yourself to grow.
Simply, very simply, when you allow what is occurring within your life to be a valid part of the path you have chosen to unfold, then you will only manifest positive effects from it, because you will always allow your situations to transform into their positive aspects.
It is only judgment of the situation that separates you from the idea and makes it seem that you are not in control, nor have created the idea; and thus, brings about the negative effect of being separate from an idea which then seems to control you.
Understand, you do not have ideas – but you have situations. Nothing happens to you. You are ideas. You are the situations. You are the events of your life. You are – you are the actions going on around you. They are pieces of you, projections of you, back to yourself. Allow yourself to be those ideas. Then you will understand that if they project from the center of you, you are in total control of them, because you are granting them equal validity with any other possibility that could manifest in your life. Only by granting equality to every situation in your life do you then give yourself the opportunity to choose among them. As long as you do not grant equality to every situation, then there is an imbalance that keeps you stuck in the one you are not granting validity to. Because you have upset the balance of your energy, tipped the scale, and in that way you can not allow yourself to move from plateau to plateau because you are somehow feeling less, lower than another idea you feel to be higher than the one you are experiencing. And thus, you feel you must climb out of the situation to get there.

Each and every situation, in being allowed to be equal, will simply put you in the position of being at the highest point, seeing every single plateau from the top, and knowing that if you prefer a plateau you can simply step over to that one. Not that the one you are on is any less than that – it is simply different. Are you following me?

Q: Yes. Can I just ask about a point though?
B: Yes.

Q: I understand everything you’re saying except for one key word. When you say learn to relax into the situation – is there a technique that you would recommend?
B: There are many techniques. Understand that if you wish to use the terminology best, then you may understand that your own imagination, because it is key to your vibration, because it is you, will always afford you the “best” technique for anything you wish to do. How, in your imagination, do you visualize would be a good way for you to relax?

Q: How do I visualize I could relax?
B: Yes.

Q: Well, I meditate now.
B: Does that relax you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Then by all means proceed with that. If you think of something else that you think would relax you also, go ahead and do that. Any tool that you create for yourself, any technique, will be as valid as you allow it to be. Understand that that is also another idea and must then share equal validity with every other idea. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: How do you feel?
Q: I feel different. Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you very much. It was your choice.

Q: (Laughing) Thanks.
Losing Eyesight

Q: I want to talk to you about my eyesight a little bit.

B: All right.

Q: Most of my life it’s been very good, but last year it seems to be getting worse and worse.

B: All right.

Q: I was wondering if you . . .

B: The first and fundamental primary idea which we have shared many times with your civilization – which is a fundamental underlying idea for many of you, because of your old habits, let us say, many of you are now defocusing from the structure you have been in, so that you can attune to an inner sight. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: It is as simple as that.

Q: Yes, thank you. That’s what I was thinking.

B: Oh really? Then begin to trust what you are feeling for yourself.

Q: I was actually wondering also how bad it’s going to get, because I’m holding my books out about 18 inches now.

B: Tis neither good nor bad. It is valid to the degree that you are willing to explore certain ideas within yourself.

Now, understand that because you have now created the conviction of the interaction, of the recognition of one of the ideas, of the purposes behind that, you will now also begin to change in other ways. Therefore, it is not so much that it will continue linearly – although it may a little bit – but it will also begin to expand volumetrically in different ways.

Q: Volumetrically?

B: Yes. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

Lost Love
Q: For about three years now I’ve been suffering from a loss of a love that was very traumatic. And it seemed that a lot of things in my life fell apart because of that. My phone service was shut off; I lost my home, my business fell apart, and so on. It caused me a lot of soul searching.
B: And what did you discover?
Q: Well, it seems I’m still searching. But I’ve gone through a lot of pain.
B: All right. Are you tired of this now?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
Q: No.
B: I do not want to stop you from creating more pain if that is really your intention.
Q: That’s what I’m wondering because I’m struggling with creating a new direction for my life.
B: Well, that’s all right. Now let’s go “back,” as you say, and talk about this concept of loss. Can you describe the kind of idea that you mean when you say, “loss”?
Q: I’m not sure except that I think the loss I suffered was more a catalyst to remind me of some other losses I’ve experienced in my life which apparently I’d forgotten about, that I blocked off from early childhood.
B: But the only reason that you may not have been willing to look at these ideas, the only reason you may have pushed them down and now are seeing them come up is because you are defining these ideas as losses, when they do not necessarily have to be defined as such. This is actually what I am saying.
Q: I’ve heard that and I agree, but it still...uh...
B: Still feels like a loss. Yes?
Q: Exactly.
B: All right.
Q: This seems to be my struggle now – to feel what you’re saying.
B: All right. Do you understand, even in what you might call an intellectual fashion, the concept that whatever it is you feel must be based upon a belief? You cannot have a feeling without believing something to be true first.
Q: I understand that.
B: You understand that. Therefore, when I refer to the concept of your definition that something is a loss – it is your belief, your definition that "something has been lost" which creates the feeling of loss within you. Do you understand that?
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, that is why it is important to get involved in the definitions that you have within you, find out why you have those definitions and help to redefine them, so that the feelings you have no longer come from the old definitions, but from the new definitions you prefer to have. Now. What definition exists within you that allows you to believe they represented a loss?
Q: I’m not sure.
B: Well, let’s explore that right now. In what form do you believe the love was lost? How did you, I’ll put it simply, lose the love? What physically happened to make you believe that the love had been lost?
Q: I was separated from someone and I experienced a lot of pain.
B: What do you believe about the idea of relationships? What were you looking for? What expectations did you have that were not fulfilled that allowed you to feel as if the expectations were not fulfilled? Let’s find out what you thought should have been there to begin with. So what did you think should have been there?
Q: Well, I desired to be in a relationship of common support.
B: All right. Then in that sense, what you are saying is, if that type of person was not exhibiting what you preferred to be in a relationship as an equal sharer, then that was not a relationship you preferred.
Q: Right.
B: Then if that should change, why are you in pain?
Q: Well, it did need to change and what I think happened is this event was a catalyst for me to experience other painful stuff I had never allowed myself to feel or even remember.
B: All right. Then it has served you in a positive way. Have you explored these other issues that have created pain within you? Have you dived into them?
Q: I’ve been working really hard. Yeah.
B: "Really hard." All right. You don’t have to really work too hard. You can just be consistent about it. That is really all it takes, willingness and consistency. You do not necessarily have to struggle with the idea. You don’t have to feel badly about yourself in that sense, just because these issues may have come up. You have not lost anything in that sense.
You have utilized the relationship in exactly the way you intended to, so you could allow yourself to become more integrated by discovering all of these fragments that you have created within your consciousness. And in that sense, the other person, in doing what they did, in co-creating the separation with you, actually did the most loving thing they could have in the situation because it served you by putting you in touch with other issues which may have been interfering with your creating the relationships you truly do prefer. You do not have to define it as a loss because you gained a greater understanding of yourself from the interaction. Understand?
The fact that you exist is a sign that you deserve to exist. Creation has not created any superfluous things. Everything that exists belongs and deserves to know that it deserves to belong. You are no exception. You deserve everything that you can imagine and desire. You must, however, be in touch with the belief systems that you have because you are the creator of your experiential reality, both in physical terms and even on some levels of what you would term non-physical.

Lost Love
Lost Mars Probes
1996

Q: Bashar.
B: Yes, good day.
Q: Good day, how are you today?
B: Perfect and you?
Q: My first question is in regard to Mars…
B: Yes.
Q: …600 million years ago, that’s when the civilization existed, approximately?
B: 6 million.
Q: And how long did that civilization stay in existence?
B: Do you mean the overall span of that civilization?
Q: Yes in the physical plane.
B: One moment, one moment, one moment … several hundred thousand of your years.
Q: Was it similar to our Atlantis or Lemuria?
B: There are certain analogies, yes.
Q: The Martians that are currently visiting our planet, that are in fact part of our planet now, are they from that time period?
B: They are from that time period having been genetically altered and thus transported by another species from their time to your time and helped to adapt to your atmosphere in their hiding places now, yes. All of those that remain of the ancient race in their original form are back in that time period.
Q: So currently as their compared with our time period there are no…
B: Martians on Mars?
Q: Yes.
B: No, there are not. It is no longer capable of supporting life, as you understand it.
Q: In 1938 when we had the Orson Welles, “War of the Worlds” broadcast…
B: Yes, you’re on to something aren’t you?
Q: Is that in the timing with the coming of the Martians?
B: Yes.
Q: That was their first check in?
B: Yes.
Q: Now is this current information released about the Mars rock…
B: Yes.
Q: that something that’s being required for our probes to go up and feed us data back?
B: Do you mean the idea of beginning to release information of the existence of extraterrestrial life, even though it may be a step at a time?
Q: More specifically in relation to the other probes that were taken out because NASA had decided not to release information, is this part…
B: It may be that many individuals within your NASA organization are still not completely aware that the basic criteria that will allow them to have their probes be allowed in that area is to begin sharing information with your people, many of them may not necessarily realize that, but the idea to some degree is that, do to a variety of social and political pressures, they are beginning to realize that they have to begin sharing the idea that there are other extraterrestrial beings that do exist and this is their way of, shall we say, breaking the news slowly.
Q: So they are not fully conscious of it then?
B: Many of them are not, although a few of them do recognize and realize what is going on. Many of your people are quite smart and they recognize that after two probes being shut down, exactly as they arrived at Mars, they began to recognize that it was a statement and a message that they would not be allowed to look at certain things there, were they not more forthcoming in and of themselves with letting loose of some of the information they have kept from their own people on earth.
Q: Now the individuals that are responsible for the probes discontinuing their mission, are they the Martians that are currently on our planet? Do they still have interplanetary travel capabilities?
B: It is not their doing directly though they are involved in the decision of understanding that that is going on. It is their wish that the information not necessarily be gleaned to its fullest extent until such time as your planet is willing to accept a lot of the information that is being suppressed. So they are playing their part, or shall we say in your ancient lingo, casting their vote for how it is that these things are being done but they are not he ones specifically that are in that sense shutting down your probes. This is a mixture of several different groups including the idea of what you would call one faction of the Greys.

Lost Time and Fourth Density Blending

Q: I had a dream last week where I dreamt about sighting UFOs, but while I was watching them I felt very paralyzed and going in and out of consciousness.
B: Yes.
Q: Was that dream to help me prepare myself for what may be coming up, as far as viewing a UFO?
B: In this way, you may also understand that on one level it was an actual interaction.
Q: Yes... I know that.
B: Then, in this way, the preparation and the event are one and the same.
Q: Why did I feel paralyzed?
B: In this way, you will find that there will be many ideas within you that will create the sense of paralysis because of expectations, because of judgments, because of fears. Also, it will simply be that when you are experiencing something in a half physical, half astral state, many times you will think that you can still move in the same way, but you cannot. So you will feel paralyzed because you are trying to move in a way you are used to, but there is a totally different idea to movement in that state.
Q: Yes, I got it.
B: There is also the idea that in this interaction, there is preparation again, also on your part, in simply, in your terms, getting used to the idea of the equality of the sharing. All right?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q2: Yes, I just wanted to cap on that... I had that same experience, but it happened quite a few years ago.
B: Yes. Many of you will now find, in this transformational age, as things accelerate, as you bring different levels of your consciousness together, to blend, that you will retrieve many of those experiences and bring them to your surface consciousness and you will, in your terms, recapture, what has been called, lost time.
For many of you have had experiences in between the moments that you consider to be the real moments of your reality. And as you blend, you will find that many of you are very much more in touch with many different levels of consciousness and civilizations and beings than you think.
Q1: Last February I lost about ten pounds and my body was extremely hot at night and then in cold sweats.
B: Yes.
Q: Can you tell me...
B: Simply, again, it is part and parcel of the idea that, as you form an acceleration, an increase in the levels of your energy activity, but are still viewing the idea from a third density point of view where you consider yourself to be both a slower you and a faster you, as you continue to create that dichotomy and bring the two ideas together in the same body, you will create friction between the different rates of vibration. That friction may sometimes physicalize itself as heat or fever.

It is one of the symptoms of the fourth density transformation and is an indication that you have still, within you, some remnants of old beliefs. They will acclimate, and you will blend the idea out and not need to experience the energy as fever, but simply as ecstasy.

Q: But I’ve had both... the fever, and then my body temperature just drops way down also.

B: Yes, the idea of the cold will be the reflection of what is called superconductivity. For once you form a blending, then you will be a material in a crystalline fashion, as an energy, that will then allow energy to flow through you that much faster. And you have become, what is called, super-conductive, or crystallized – that will be the cold sensation. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

Lost Time and Fourth Density Blending
Q: Hello.
B: Good day and good New Year to you.
Q: Good New Year. Same to you.
Q: A lot of things have been happening to us, our family group and everything, very exciting. And…
B: Speak up so that all may share.
Q: I’d like to thank you for your encouragement all the time…
B: Oh that’s easy.
Q: …and to play those games. And something else has been occurring that… I don’t quite understand what’s happening, and that’s why I’ve decided to ask you.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: It is about our little daughter. She’s almost 4 years old.
B: All right.
Q: She was sleeping pretty well every night until suddenly she started waking up with some panic and… that’s been happening for about two and a half months, something like that, every night around 11 or 12 o’clock.
And then I started receiving myself some kind of panic that she was feeling. I started feeling it myself. So that helped me to use some techniques on her, and so it has been useful for me too.
B: All right, very good.
Q: And I found, like, it helped her, too, to confront some negativity, some fears in herself. But right after that, she suddenly wasn’t afraid, but she was still waking up.
I asked her what was happening, and she said, guys came, you know. She said it was a little guy who comes to wake her up at night. And she said he says: “Scarlet, Scarlet. Let’s play with the toys.” And she said he starts playing with the toys.
B: Yes. I see nothing unusual in this so far.
Q: But then she says… I ask her more questions about how does he look? She says, “About my size,” and all this. And so she says he came flying through the window. So I relaxed and I started understanding what I think was happening with her, or whatever.
B: Yes.
Q: So I stayed awake several times, too. So I’d just like to ask you what’s happening? Right now… after that she’s a little bit sick, you know, some congestion in her chest. I’ve been helping her, but still she has a little bit, like cold and congestion, and things like that. So I just want to ask you what’s happening, please?
B: All right. One moment, until what you call the age of seven, certain ideas from other lives and agreements that you have all made are going to continue to be worked out. You are going to continue to receive some assistance in working those out, and processing the energy through each and every one of you – the members of the family, up until that time in various ways.

Approximately, at the age of seven – of your daughter’s age, in that sense – there will be a change and a transformation in the way the energy and the agreements and the assistance is worked out, or experienced by all of you.

The child is simply still in what you may call a state susceptible to changes in energy, and has picked up certain belief structures from the society, of course, and has learned now – is learning now, through you, ideas that may manifest, here and there, as a small disease in that way, a processing, a purifying, a clearing out.

Our suggestion would be – not that you will necessarily stop the occurrence of waking up, for at those times of your high receptive psychic activity time, when some of the strongest communication can go on between yourself and those you have chosen to function as your guides, which is what the being represents...

Q: Yes, I see.

B: ... on many different levels, in many different ways. A suggestion is that, perhaps together, if you can, while you are in your own rooms – if that is the arrangement of your house – you learn to breathe together. You set aside some time with your daughter and with anyone in the household, to be in your own rooms and learn to breathe together. To know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that the pacing of your breathing is being mirrored by all other individuals in the house – and that you are breathing as one.

So that you do not have to feel disconnected or compartmentalized in separate rooms. So that you all know you are in the event together, as one; and so that you can become more telepathically, psychically sensitive to what each is experiencing and the reasons for why you are experiencing these things.

Now, I cannot – I am not allowed to go into great detail with the specific ideas that are involved in the communications, for those things will play themselves out in the lives – the physical lives – that all of you are living in very blatant and obvious ways.

Your daughter has the ability and has chosen – as we are allowed to perceive – the agreement to be extremely psychically sensitive in that way. And this will come into play through major activity and roles after the age of seven. Between what you call the age of seven to ten will be a very concentrated, very highly focused time of assimilation for your daughter, as we perceive her energy.

In all the things that the guide has taught, and all the things that the friend has taught, from the age of seven to ten she will have to learn how to assimilate all that knowledge in a way that can be applied in your physiological society.

It may be a time of high concentration; there may seem to be some idea of conflict or polarities involved with her particular exploration at that time. But from the idea also of ten, forward to approximately thirteen, there will be a complete uprooting, complete rearrangement of the foundations in her life. So she will then, from that point forward, through her period of adolescence, have the opportunity to discover what it is she will define her reality to be.

Now, if you allow yourself the opportunity now to learn to breathe together as one, you also will be sensitized to the changes that she will go through, in such a way that will alleviate your fear that what she is going through is inherently negative. And strengthen, with your co-breathing, her ability to be able to assimilate all that knowledge – all that raw, open, exposed energy and information that she will be drawing in – in a way that will be able to be applied physically, materially, in a beneficial terminology.

So our suggestion for now is to learn to breathe together, breathe together. Set aside some times to learn to breathe together. First you can begin by doing it in one room, and allow everyone to understand the pace of the easy, deep and relaxed breathing. And see bright blue-white light filling you and surrounding you and immersing you. And you are breathing it in.

And then, when you are in your separate rooms, remind her: “All right, breathe together now, as we drift off into sleep. Breathe together. We are one; we are breathing as one. Everyone is together; no one is apart. These are the things we have agreed to do. We are wrapped in love; we are warm in the blanket of light and life.”

Everyone will then be able to participate in a union with the idea of the guide energy, and will not feel as if anyone is being singled out or picked out, or isolated in that way. So those fears, those ideas of isolation, the uncertainties and the doubts will not have to manifest as strongly.

You can lay a foundation – a very loving and warm foundation – by filling your lives and your house with the breath of life, the breath of certainty, the breath of absolute trust that you are really one being breathing together. You understand?

Q: Yes. Thank you, very much.

B: Now, there has been much more that we have imparted, other than what you heard verbally. And some of this will come out in your dream realities and assist you in learning how to soften and balance the ideas we have discussed, in terms of energy. And there has also been transmission to your child as well, but mostly for you, to the child within you.

Q: Okay.

B: We thank you.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: And pleasant dreams. Sharing!

Love and Support for a Child’s Transformational Experience

Love is All That Is

Let us begin with the understanding that the transformation of consciousness you are undergoing on your planet at this time involves the very simple concept of learning to be in love with the entire world in which you exist, in learning to be in love with the entirety of the multiverse, the entirety of creation. Love is the primary vibration out of which everything has been created by the Infinite Creator. It is the very substance, the very fabric you all experience as your manifestable reality. For each and every one of you is made of love, and thus, in a fundamental sense, everything you do is an act of love.

You have talked about love for quite some time in your civilization; but many or you have not realized that what you are actually talking about is the very essence of creation itself. All of physical reality, all of non-physical reality, any experience, any conception, any imagination, pulls from the fiber of love the energy required for the idea to blossom into any type of reality that can be experienced by your form of consciousness – whatever form you have created your consciousness to be.

In the idea of learning how to create the realities you wish to create, in the way you wish those realities to be, it is all the process of learning how to be in love, how to identify with that vibratory fundamental basic out of which you create everything anyway. You are all natural creators; you are all automatic creators. We are not suggesting you must learn something new that you do not already know how to do; we are here to assist you in realizing that you create your own reality anyway. And thus, if you are willing to shift the focus of how you create that reality, you will be able to perceive and experience the type of reality you say you prefer.

Do allow yourselves to recognize that the whole process of understanding is not the idea of learning something new, but the process of remembering more and more of what you already are. When you allow yourselves to truly work with, and not against, the fabric of love out of which all reality is created, and blend with that flow, you will be able to sculpt your reality out of that love into any form that represents your true heart’s desire.

Love is All That Is Love-Making

Q: How often do you yourself actually engage in the physical act of making love?
B: Whenever it comes up.
Q: How often is that?
B: The idea occurs spontaneously, wherein the reflection of my life so attracts an individual who wishes to interact in that way. Again remember, however, that at this time in our society, while there are remnants of a physiological act, it is more of an energy act.
Q: This sexual exchange of energy, how is it different?
B: It is a direct exchange, an activation of the cellular structures within the body. That is due more to the actual flash exchange of energy, rather than what you would typify as a physiological act of procreation. It becomes less and less physical. In a sense, in many ways, when you blend the physical and the non-physical together, it becomes less of a distinction. It becomes the same thing, all one act, all one idea of blending. Not meaning this to sound strange to your ears, but because of what our society is, any such exchange between any individuals is, on some level, actually felt by the whole society. And that adds to our overall ecstasy and sense of joy.
Our interactions are a blending, an identification as. It is like moving into a common daydream, sharing therein the exchanges of emotionality and desire. We recognize that this act, truly as fulfilling on every level as you are used to thinking of the idea of consummation, will cause whatever cellular and structural changes that need to change to do so within our physical forms – that which we maintain to be the belief of our physical form – and will instigate the union, if necessary, of a third identity wishing to be born. If not, then it will simply consummate according to whatever we have to learn from each other. It is not that we can give you any particular idea of regularity; it is always spontaneous; and, in a sense, is always unknown until it happens. We just accept it for what it is when it happens.
Q: Is that what you feel when you’re coming through the channel sharing this daydream?
B: Yes, somewhat. It is a form of lovemaking. That is why, when each and every individual on your planet is in love with every other individual, you will also be of one mind; and then you will be telepathic. You will identify as each other, and therefore, you will interpret the vibrations of Infinite Creation in a similar way. That is why individuals on your planet, whom you recognize as being in love, often share the same thoughts. It is not that they are literally reading each other’s minds directly, it is that they are on the same wavelength. Thus, the vibrational pattern that they are, sharing the similar idea, interprets the Infinite Creation in a similar manner, in similar thought forms. You could therefore say that the physical channel and I are now exhibiting to you an act of being in love.
Love, The Connective Wavelength

Q: Can you explain more about what Love is?
B: Thank you, I will keep it very simple. In a sense, Love is actually what you are all made of. The way that it might be easiest for you to understand the idea is that if you consider the idea of all your material universe to be solidified out of a homogenous background vibratory energy, then perhaps a simple way to understand Love is to consider that background vibratory energy or essence, out of which you are all made, as what Love actually is. The very fabric, the very substance, the very fluid out of which you congeal yourselves into seemingly isolated solid individuals. You are made of Love. Love is the connective vibration of everything. Thus when you allow yourself to synchronistically harmonize with that background vibration, it means that you are automatically on the same wavelength as the energy that gives rise and gives birth to everything. Which means, therefore, that you can be in touch with anything. You follow me?

Q: Yes, and then you can be in touch with anybody, as long as you go in the feeling of pure Love Itself.
B: Yes, unconditional Love for all allows you to be in touch with whatever aspects of anything you need to be in touch with, to allow yourself to be the individual in this life you chose to be. Yes.

Q: Yes, thank you.
LOVE

Q: You say that to get in the frequency of a person, you have to love. And can you explain more what love is?

B: Thank you. I will keep it very simple. In a sense, love is actually what you are all made of. The way that it might be easiest for you to understand the idea is if you consider the idea of all of your material universe to be solidified out of a homogenous background vibratory energy. Then perhaps, a simple way to understand love is to consider that background vibratory energy or essence, out of which you are all made, as what love actually is – the very fabric, the very substance, the very fluid, out of which you congeal yourselves into seemingly isolated solid individuals.

Thus, when you allow yourselves to synchronistically harmonize with that background vibration, it means that you are automatically on the same wavelength as the energy that gives rise and gives birth to everything, which means, therefore, you can be in touch with anything. You follow me?

Q: Okay, so then you can be in touch with anybody, as long as you go in with the feeling of pure love for yourself.

B: Yes.

Q: Unconditional love for all will allow you to be in touch with whatever aspects of anything you need to be in touch with to allow yourself to be the individual in this life you chose to be.

B: Yes!

Q: Okay. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much!
Loving Relationships

Q: They talk about how you teach best what you most need to learn, and all of that. And so I feel that perhaps a relationship is the area that I’ve come in...to have this an area of expertise.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: With someone, I hope, in the near future.
B: You what?
Q: I hope?
B: Hope? That means you doubt.
Q: Apparently. That’s probably one of the reasons why I’m asking questions today.
B: All right. Can you all hear this person?
AUD: Speak louder.
Q: Okay.
B: Be bold, yes.
Q: The thing in my entire life that excites me the most is a relationship that I’m in right now.
B: All right.
Q: And by following that excitement, I found some of the most incredible teachings in my life... B: Yes.
Q: ...and wonderful feedback.
B: Yes. Now what do you wish to do with that information?
Q: I’d like to be as clear as I can possibly be about it...
B: Yes.
Q: ...so that I can have the clearest relationship possible, and be able to share that with others.
B: All right. Go ahead.
Q: And I feel like some clarity is still necessary. I still have...
B: In what area?
Q: Um, in the way that the relationship seems to show up on the surface... there still seems to be some dichotomy in that it is the relationship that I want to have, and would like to have, for what I can see to be an eternity, or through this lifetime.
B: All right.
Q: And different feedback from what he says it is, to what I say it is; and yet not really different in the manifestation of the relationship. So I want to understand why there seems to be the dichotomy. I guess I want to know that the relationship is all that I have seen it to be, and believe it to be.
B: The relationship is anything you create it to be.
Q: Uh, in some ways I mostly feel that I don’t have all of the skills to be able to do that.
B: Maybe. But what skills do you think you need, other than the living of your life to the fullest?
Q: Well, I guess I feel like I want to have the clearest communication skills.
B: All right. Can you imagine what those might be?
Q: I’m starting to think about it in terms of energies and kind of a knowing acceptance.
B: All right. You mean a trust?
Q: Yes.
B: A knowing acceptance doesn’t necessarily mean, however, that you settle for something you do not prefer.
Q: Right.
B: Understand? And that also means that you are willing to allow whatever changes do occur to happen.
Q: Uh huh.
B: The first... again, first relationship is with you to yourself.
Q: Right.
B: Now, sometimes there is a single individual who may have made an agreement with you, to reflect the idea back to you for the duration of your life span; sometimes not. Sometimes many individuals, sometimes both, it will depend.
Q: Well, I’m most interested in this particular one.
B: Yes, for now. Yes. And it may be the idea that can manifest for the duration of the life span.
Q: Uh huh.
B: But first and foremost, if you know that is so, then allow whatever is happening within it to be representative of what needs to be in the relationship. But only to the point where it is not an absolute polarization of what you prefer to experience in your own reality.
Q: Right. Okay. Well, it’s somewhere in between right now. So I’m...
B: Oh, all right. Well, are you still learning?
Q: I am still learning.
B: Then continue to do so. Because that’s what any relationship is for.
Q: Right.
B: Plain and simple. And if you are going to be with this individual for a long time, in your terms of time, then there are simply going to be the opportunities to learn many and varied subtle things.
Q: Yes.
B: Enjoy the path. You are getting out of it, at any given moment, obviously, what you need to get out of it, if that’s where you prefer to be.
Q: Well, one of the aspects that I’m curious about is how I can take action according to what excites me, and still be respectful of whatever space that he might want to have in his life.

B: Do you trust the relationship?

Q: It’s still here.

B: All right. Then, in that sense, take whatever action represents what really excites you. But also, at the same time, recognize that if another individual is not ready or willing to receive a particular communication from you, in the way that you are ready to give it, then trust that that is also a part of the timing.

Q: Are there keys that I might have, in terms of some of the aspects that I’ve been working with energetically – to be able to understand better how to communicate in the moment, more lovingly, more respectfully? How to make communication over a distance, even though the distance seems to exist, and I don’t have access to talking to him or seeing him every day, or going with him all the time in that way?

B: But you are connected.

Q: Right. So are there keys to knowing that, and utilizing the space to actually expand upon my energies, or my ways of communication?

B: One way would be to express yourself in many different ways as well.

Q: Uh huh.

B: Is there any other service that excites you to be doing?

Q: Outside of the relationship? Or within . . .

B: As you mean it, outside the relationship. It will all be a part of the relationship, but as you typically mean it, yes, outside the relationship.

Q: Okay. Yeah, I would like to take all that I’ve assimilated, and be able to communicate it to people. And I feel that . . .

B: Then as you do so, and as you form an outlet for communication in that way, you will continue to learn the things you need to learn to recognize the timing within the relationship more precisely. It must be expressed in both directions.

Q: Yes.

B: Understand? Then it will be a full circle.

Q: Mhmm. So that’s where I should put my attention.

B: I’m not going to tell you you should.

Q: That would be a good place to, if I chose to.

B: I would suggest that it would allow you to be more well rounded.

Q: Uh huh.

B: And therefore, give yourself more capability of recognizing the timing on either side.
Q: Okay.
B: Understand?
Q: I feel a little time pressured with the holidays, because my sense of my excitement tells me that I would like to be with him during the holidays.
B: We understand that. But also pay close attention to the idea that sometimes there is a very fine line between the energy that you actually are honestly labeling excitement, and when it becomes anxiety and desperation.
Q: Uh huh.
B: Because that’s not really excitement; and you’re being dishonest with yourself if you call it that.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Understand?
Q: So if I can get clear that it’s excitement, then maybe I can have it? (Laughing)
B: Merry Christmas!
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you, sharing!
Q2: Good evening.
B: And to you good day.
Q: I came here to experience your wisdom. I’ve never been here before.
B: Well, do not forget that you are experiencing your own. For we are only a reflection of what you all already know. And every time to us is the first time, as well.
Q: I did not put my name in to be selected, and yet my name was called.
B: All right.
Q: The only way that I can explain this is that you had some communication that you wished to deliver to me. Ah... that is my question: what is the communication you wish to deliver to me?
B: Nope! It will be the communication you wish to deliver to yourself.
Q: Hmm!
B: Now, we will begin, once again, in the form of a question. Are you doing in your life what excites you the most?
Q: I’m searching for what excites me the most.
B: Ahhh! When do you assume you might find it?
Q: (Laughs)
B: Let me ask it another way. What would you really like to be doing that you’re not doing?
Q: Um...
B: Have you ever had any kind of a fantasy?
Q: Oh, well! (Laughter) A satisfactory primary relationship.
B: A satisfactory primary relationship! But as we have already said, that begins with you.
Q: Right.
B: So aside from that idea, in terms of actually being of service doing something – what you typically call making a living – what do you want to do that you’re not doing?
Q: I want to spread myself out to the point where I... I feel that I have a good relationship with myself.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay.
B: But how do you express it in your physical actions?
Q: In my physical actions, um... in terms of living a life of giving?
B: All right. And does it allow you to feel, in that sense, that you are infinitely abundant, and can attract everything you desire when you really need it?
Q: When I’m living life that way, yes.
B: All right. Are there times when you do not live life that way?
Q: We all do. (Laughs)
B: I beg your pardon, I don’t. Please speak for yourself.
Q: There are many times when I’m not constantly living a giving life.
B: All right. Would you prefer to be constantly living a giving life?
Q: Yes.
B: Well then, why aren’t you? What definitions do you contain that make it seem as if you must, from time-to-time, not live in a full ecstatic way?
Q: Interesting concept!
B: Well, thank you. Do you want to discuss it now, or would you like to ponder it?
Q: I guess it’s looking inward. And when you start looking inward, you’re not living a giving-type life.
B: Oh no, no, no, no. Looking inward is the key. What must go along with it is doing outward. Looking inward and action outward – with that inner knowledge.
Q: Even when you’re acting on your own wants?
B: Yes. Why not?
Q: Okay.
B: As long as you know that you are doing so with full integrity, and that you deserve what you desire, then why not? Do you believe you deserve what you desire?
Q: Definitely.
B: All right. Then do you believe you have a clear definition of what it is you say you desire?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Do you really honestly desire it?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Is your overall intention clear in life, your attitude, your approach?
Q: It’s becoming more clear.
B: All right. And are your actions clear? In other words, do you act upon the opportunities at any given moment that excite you the most that you are capable of acting on – whether they appear to be connected to what you think you want or not?
Q: Um, I think that I’m getting to the point that I am, yes.
B: All right. Then you are, in that sense, on the threshold of creating what we would call, in ship technology, a flashover – where you can simply understand that any definition you believe yourself to be the most strongly, will be the reality you experience, plain and simple.
But as you have already understood, the first relationship is with yourself, to yourself, to the Infinite; and then the idea of the relationship with yourself to all other beings equally. By allowing the relationship you are to all other beings to be equal: that is how you are able to consciously, clearly, choose any particular individual that represents a reflection you desire to share.
Many times when you place more importance on one particular thing than it deserves to have, above and beyond anything else – in terms of devaluing everything else – then you do not create an equality that makes it easy for you to pick and choose, because not everything is now on the same level.
When the thing you really desire – even though that desire may make it seem to be more important, and even though that thing may be more representative of who you are – that doesn’t mean that that desire and that representation make that particular idea, or object, or person, place or thing, literally, more important in a value sense to any other thing that could happen in your life.
When you equalize everything, that’s what gives you the greatest ability to choose anything you want. Because everything’s on the same level, you do not have to reach very far to get it. It’s all right here, right now, right with you, right within. You simply once again radiate an idea, and that’s what you attract. But many times if an individual thinks they really need it, then they are placing an undue importance upon it. They are creating it to be a desperation, and that vibration is what keeps it at bay. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Is this being of assistance so far?
Q: I think it is great.
B: Now, the idea of this primary relationship: what do you imagine it would be like?
Q: I’ve given up the idea of projecting ideas. I’m to the point where I’ve stopped projecting...
B: Why?
Q: I’ve stopped projecting ideas to the point where I’m reaching out for one specific thing.
B: Oh, you can still do that. All we are saying is do it without invalidating everything else.
Q: Okay!
B: Do you recognize that it may be your preference? By all means, allow yourself to project. But what do you define the idea to be? How do you define primary relationship?
Q: Well, I’m looking for a relationship that would... looking for someone who would be an equal reflection, as you say.
B: Yes. A reflection of what, what would they be reflecting to you?
Q: Well, someone to share a life with.
B: Yes. What would you be learning about yourself in that interaction?
Q: What... I don’t know.
B: Which is what?
Q: I can’t say what that is now.
B: Oh, all right. Fair enough.
Q: If I did, I would know.
B: Ah, but you see, you do know. You do know; on some level you do know.
Q: Right.
B: In general – we are not asking you for specifics – in general categories, what would you be learning about yourself by being in a relationship? Would you be acting differently in that relationship than you are acting now?
Q: Depends on the interaction... probably not.
B: Of course.
Q: But depending on the interaction, I would be growing.
B: Yes, of course. You’re always going to do that.
Q: Right.
B: But let’s say right now, let’s say you were in that relationship. What would the differences be?
Q: The differences be? I would probably be living life – at least at the present – on that constant exciting level that you were talking about.
B: All right. Then love that way now, and you can attract the relationship more easily.
Q: Good.
B: Because if that’s the way you will be in the relationship, and that’s not the way you constantly are now: be that way constantly, and the relationship cannot help but be attracted into your life. Because if that vibration is representative of what the relationship is, then be that vibration. And you’ll have it.
Q: Live life passionately every day.
B: Yes, as we have said, the most important thing of all is the thing you’re doing now.
Q: Thank you.
B: Well thank you! Live in the now; live in the now, it’s the only time there is. It’s the only place there is. Right here. Right now. When you live in the now, anything else that’s going to happen in your life won’t have any other place or time to happen in, except now, because you will not create there to be any other place or time for it to happen in.
Q: Thanks...
B: ...sweet dreams to you.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much for allowing us to share and interact in a spontaneously created way. At this timing, and with much joy, you may all participate in a short break. We will resume contact in approximately 10 to 15 of your minutes.

Loving Relationships

Lunar Deposits and Aligning with your Truth

Q: On our moon there are supposedly deposits of Helium 3 and they are imbedded in the ground...

B: There are many things locked into the lunar soil, many different kinds of elements that can be extracted, or even the idea of gases released, yes.

Q: Is it feasible for our world to send some vehicles that have containment apparatuses to unlock it and bring it back down to earth?

B: It would not be, in your terms, economically feasible for you at this time.

Q: So you don’t see that as happening in the future?

B: It will be unnecessary. You will ultimately learn to develop travel of such a nature that that will be unnecessary.

Q: And in psychoanalysis we have a condition called reaction formation.

B: Yes.

Q: In which a lot of times we do the opposite of what we would really prefer to do.

B: Yes.

Q: Does that stem, primarily, because we are inculcated and have ingrained within us, beliefs that we are told are true but actually are not?

B: Everything is true. It is simply that they may not be aligned with what you believe is your truth.

Q: Well, in the sense that for our maximal integral good... a lot of time we take in things from our parents, television and society that later we learn are really not in our best interest...

B: Yes. So?

Q: Does this, having been, let us say, inculcated with beliefs like that and holding them...

B: Yes?

Q: this act as a trigger mechanism for the release of...

B: Of course, everything is based on definitions, you know that.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. Sharing!
Lunar Deposits and Aligning with your Truth

Q: On our moon there are supposedly deposits of Helium 3, and they are embedded in the ground…
B: There are many things locked into the lunar soil, many different kinds of elements that can be extracted, or even the idea of gases released, yes.
Q: Is it feasible for our world to send some vehicles that have containment apparatuses to unlock it and bring it back down to earth?
B: It would not be, in your terms, economically feasible for you at this time.
Q: So you don’t see that as happening in the future?
B: It will be unnecessary. You will ultimately learn to develop travel of such a nature that that will be unnecessary.
Q: And in psychoanalysis we have a condition called reaction formation.
B: Yes.
Q: In which a lot of times we do the opposite of what we would really prefer to do.
B: Yes.
Q: Does that stem, primarily, because we are inculcated and have ingrained within us beliefs that we are told are true but actually are not?
B: Everything is true. It is simply that they may not be aligned with what you believe is your truth.
Q: Well, in the sense that for our maximal integral good... a lot of time we take in things from our parents, television and society that later we learn are really not in our best interest…

Made of Ecstasy

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
B: Are you all alive?
AUD: Yes. Yes.
B: Thank you! Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time by laying down a few of the following foundations. We have discussed with many of you the whole issue of the fact that you, as many of you already know, are the creators of your own physiological reality. But not many of you understand how you do that, what the mechanism is by which you create that physiological reality. We have discussed many times that this mechanism is directly inter-linked with, what you call, your definitions, your belief system of the physiological reality you think you ought to be experiencing, the physical reality you have been taught to think you ought to be experiencing.
The idea always falls down on the notion of definitions. Your own physicists now, many of them – not all of them, but many of them – are beginning to realize that your physiological reality really does not have an empirical existence apart from you; that there is no such thing as physical reality without your definition of it, without your imagination to give it life, to give it breath, to give it existence.
The idea, therefore, is that you are capable of getting in touch with the definitions by which you have created the physical reality you have been experiencing for many thousands of your years. If you can change those definitions to form whatever pattern you desire them to form, then you can, very simply and very easily, create the realities you desire to create – when you want to create them, in exactly the way you do, in fact, want to create them. As long as you understand that you are doing what you are doing, that you are expressing the desires you are expressing through joy, through love, through light, through service, through integrity, there is absolutely nothing – nothing, nothing, nothing, nothing! – that the universe will withhold from you.
You have a birthright of ecstasy, you are made of light and love; you are made of joy. It is the prime fundamental vibration of creation, that which you call unconditional love. You are made of it. It is the prime frequency, the prime medium, the prime essence, the prime substance out of which all physiological reality is, shall we say, crystallized. Everything is energy; everything vibrates at different frequencies. The only reason they are different things – the very definition of the word "different" – simply is because there are energies and frequencies which are different rates, different pitches, than other frequencies.
That difference in frequencies is exactly what determines what you perceive to be this object from that object, this person from that person. Everyone is made out of the same one homogenous substance, shall we say. The only reason you appear to be different is because of the pitch, the vibrational rate, at which you operate, the level at which you operate, the level at which you define yourself to be.

Because you are – and every being within creation is – a self-aware, self-reflective, free will entity, a holographic representation of the Infinite Creation, you have the ability to operate on any number of frequency levels that you desire to. Those frequency levels are automatically determined by what you buy into most strongly as the belief you believe is most true for you. Now, because of the type of society you have created, many of you have been for a long time, shall we say, heavy into self-invalidation. This idea of being self-invalidational has allowed you to buy into belief systems that are not necessarily representative of the belief systems that would be precisely reflective of who it is you have created yourselves to be, of who it is you desire to be.

Many individuals may put invalidations and judgments upon you, and you may – without sometimes even consciously being aware of it – buy into those invalidations and say, "Yes, you’re right. I’m this; I’m that. It’s not what I really want to be, but you must be right, because so many people tell me this idea." Now sometimes individuals can be reflecting to you something that you may be doing that is not necessarily in accord with who it is you could be. Sometimes they can be reflecting to you when you are not necessarily working within your integrity; but that’s all right. If you can simply take the advice in the best light of unconditional love and know that your desire, your overall intention is for integrity, then you will always be able to use it in a positive and a constructive way.

But when your society creates patterns and habits that are generally negative, generally domineering, generally power-removing, then those particular atmospheres are not necessarily – just because you hear them over and over again – representative of something you really need to work on. Just because everyone else has an opinion of what you ought to be doing does not necessarily mean that it is who you are or what it is you are best at.

The idea is to remember that everyone is a mirror; that is how every being in creation has been designed. But a mirror doesn’t mean that what you see in it is an absolute one-to-one reflection of exactly the things you need to work on. Sometimes an individual will attract into his life certain individuals who may seem to be invalidational, because in attracting those individuals – by not accepting their invalidations, he reflects back to those individuals an opportunity to see what it is like for an individual to stand on his own two feet when he is absolutely sure of what it is he desires to do.

And to give back to that invalidating individual an opportunity to stand on his own two feet for what he believes in. For what everyone believes in is also just as true and just as valid as any other belief. All truths are true in the ultimate sense, because you create your own reality. Some of them may lack integrity; some of them may have a high degree of integrity. But nonetheless, they are all real experiences; they are all true dimensions of reality, and not any one of them is any more or less valid than any other – as an experience, as a lesson.

Every situation has the potential for you to learn something from it in whatever way you wish to apply that idea; it is completely up to you. When you are as clear as you can be about the definitions of life you have bought into, then you can use every situation and see how it matches up to the definitions you prefer to have. You can take advice where it works for you; you can let it go where you believe it doesn’t. And later on, if you change your mind, that’s all right too. Because you have that capability; you have that capacity, and you have that right.

The first step in the whole idea of creating your reality to be what you desire it to be is in ceasing to invalidate yourself. Because you – you, you, you – are the only thing you have to work with in your universe. You are the representation, in your way, of the Infinite.

And if you invalidate that, any part of it, then you do not allow yourselves to function as whole beings capable of using whatever information may come to you from individuals in a constructive way. If you do not allow yourselves to love yourselves unconditionally, then you do not know who you are, and you do not have something to stand up for – to reflect back to everyone else so they can see in you the shining example of what they can also be in their own way. Are you all following along? Is this translating into your language adequately?

AUD: Yes.

B: Thank you very much.

The idea, therefore, in all of the interactions that we have with you – the bottom line, as you say, for all of these interactions – will be to remind each and every one of you of your own personal power, that you already are aspects of the Infinite. And to put you squarely in touch – or roundly in touch, or triangularly in touch – with your definitions, so that you know why your reality is the way it is – so you can create it to be the way you prefer it to be, as soon as you believe you are capable of doing so. It is completely up to you, completely in your hands. Completely.

At this timing we will take this opportunity to thank you and extend to you our deepest appreciation in allowing us to experience your consciousness. To us, our civilizations, we are always most full of gratitude in being given the opportunity to experience the gift of your sharing. For through you we are allowed to see that many more ways that Infinite Creation has created itself to be; and that expands our understanding of creation and of what we have to explore and to learn as well.

Remember, everyone is an equal teacher and a learner, and therefore, a sharer, like anyone else. We do not know everything. We know everything we need to know to be who we need to be at any given moment. You also know everything you need to know to be who it is you desire to be at any given moment.

When you need to know something else, you will know it when you become something else. You do not need to know it before that. You can know other things, but remember: everything you discover, everything you know, can be pertained to who you are and who you desire to be in the present. Remember that the present is the only place you actually ever exist, and the only place you actually ever will exist, and the only place you actually have ever existed. It is always now and always shall be now, no matter when it is. You are eternal beings, infinite beings, and you are capable of a multitude of changes in multiple dimensionality.
That is what it means to be made in the image of God, in the image of the Infinite Creator, a multidimensional being, you are multidimensional creators too. And in these discussions and interactions it is our desire to remind you of that, to reflect back to you what you already know. For remember: no matter what you think of yourselves, we believe in you utterly.

And so we thank you for choosing at this time to be representational of your civilization. We thank you for being ambassadors and diplomats of your civilization. We thank you for allowing me to be representational of our civilizations in the Association of Worlds, for there are many listening in on this side as well. In return for the gift you are allowing us to experience by co-creating these interactions, I will ask you now at this time, in what way may I be of service to you?

RJ: Can magnetic fields be programmed with intention?
B: Yes you can, and you do it all the time, because electromagnetism is the first level of the manifestation into physicality of, what you call, spirit. Your intention very strongly and very profoundly affects electromagnetheric fields which then function as the templates for what physical reality does, so, yes, intention is very strongly connected to that idea and its formation, yes.
Q: How many, presently in 1994, extraterrestrial civilizations are visiting the earth?
B: There have been many that have come and gone, there is almost always a stable cord of approximately seventeen.
Q: What do moths represent?
B: Moths represent, to some degree, secret knowledge and the discovery of the inner light, as they are always attracted to the flame.
Maitreya and the Second Coming

Q: In Christianity they have the coming of the Messiah, the Second Coming of Christ; and in Buddhism they have the coming of the Buddha, Maitreya. Is that the same analogy being played out again?

B: Yes. Yes. And again, remember that the idea of the so-called second coming is the awaking of that consciousness within each and every one of you. Not the idea of an individual embodiment returning, though there will be symbols of that idea. The awakening within each and every one of you is the actual so-called Second Coming. Make sense?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Making a Difference

Q: So, how can I assist and make a difference in the world? I can’t talk to my mom about this stuff. And even my children don’t seem to show much interest either.

B: You can assist in the elevation of your world if you are willing to apply what you actually do already know, by acting upon the ability to create that in your world. If you act upon that endeavor, you will find that you actually already do know far more than you may think. And that is one of the reasons why, if you act upon that, you will assist your world in understanding what it needs to know to understand. You follow me?

Q: Sort of.

B: You are assisting with the transformation in your own chosen way. Continue to do so in whatever way excites you the most that can be done through your integrity. The things that excite you the most are the indications of the path you chose to be of assistance in this transformation. That’s why excitement exists, to let you know what the things are that represent your purpose in this life, and how you can be of best assistance by being the fullest ”you” you can be. So that is why we say, acting upon what excites you the most – that is having an equal conversation with us. Not just talking; acting; doing. Creating your planet to be one that has an equal vibration to our world, so we can interact face-to-face. But you do not have to; it is up to you.

Q: Is this something I should share with her? I’m just wondering if I should just suggest to her that we have a picnic and try?

B: It’s up to you. In whatever way you sense she will comfortably be able to share in the information, do that. If you sense it would not be comfortable for that individual then simply share it from whatever level you understand she would be comfortable with. All right? Take the initiative; create the initiative. It is coming from you anyway. Simply because we have suggested it does not mean it is not your creation. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Can you create an idea in your letter form communications that would allow them to begin to share with each other a new kind of cohesiveness? An exploration of new ideas, new inspirations, to allow them to know that they really can do whatever they wish to in life? Can you generate this kind of momentum, this kind of spark, this kind of thrill, this kind of electric shock wave through all of them, by some creative act on your part that you can initiate?

Q: I can try.

B: Everyone is interested in understanding that they can have a life of ecstasy; that they can do whatever it is that they desire – with integrity. Everyone is interested in knowing that they can create the reality they want. You have more than enough ability to be very clever about how you say and share these things.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
MAKING CONTACT

Questioner: I wanted to ask you, when Darryl stops channeling you . . .
Bashar: Yes.
Q: . . . we know that no one else is going to be channeling you, but are any other Sassanians going to continued to be channeled, like Elan or is there any other . . .
B: No comment.
Q: . . . as individuals?
B: No comment.
Q: Will you elaborate as to maybe why?
B: No comment.
Q: Okay. When you do decide to make contact with us, when the timing is right, is there a way or place for us to look . . . will you make radio contact, will it be such a public announcement or will the government . . .
B: Are you speaking of my actual physical presence?
Q: Yes.
B: You will know.
Q: How will we know?
B: You will know.
Q: Okay, I mean is there a place that we should be paying attention to . . .
B: YOU WILL KNOW . . . BELIEVE ME YOU WON’T MISS IT! Much laughter Except in that you may be worried that you’ll miss it.
Male and Female Energies and The Mind

Q: Are the presence of many spacecraft still planned for what we call the future?
B: The presence of many spacecraft are around your world right now. You follow me?
Q: Yes. That wasn’t really my question.
B: The idea of creation and co-creation of what you would call physiological interaction with other beings, and those spacecraft, is very much in the co-creational dream that your civilization and all of our civilizations are becoming, yes.
Q: At one point in the last several months, you said that would occur sometime in the next seven of our earth years. Is that still likely – possible?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. I have another question. Because you have spoken of male and female energies...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and it’s a question which many people have written books about here on Earth...
B: Yes.
Q: I’m wondering whether these kinds of distinctions were merely physiologically based? Anyway, I would...
B: In a sense, yes, there is polarity – positive, negative; and the idea of those attributes experienced in physical reality creates what you call maleness and femaleness. In the soul there is not so much the idea of maleness, femaleness, but the polarity of the positive-negative energy. You follow me?
Q: I follow you, but you have used... what interests me is that you have used the term from a... I gather when you use the term, you are coming from a place that is separate from physicality. And nevertheless, you have used the... you have made the distinction...
B: My civilization has a physicality; we have male and female.
Q: But is the fact... Okay. In the reality that we are sharing here...
B: Yes...
Q: ... the fact that there is male physicality and female physicality...
B: Yes?
Q: ...is the result of a distinction having been made, if you will, before the manifestation of physicality.
B: Yes. But in the soul, in the non-physical self, that polarity is not really looked at as, so to speak, maleness and femaleness. It is looked at as a positive and negative polarity, in physical terms. And because you are physical, and because we are physical: that is why we have been utilizing that term. Even a disembodied soul has used that term many times, because that is the idea you understandably express in your society. So we will use maleness and femaleness to express the ideas that are embodied in the positive/negative polarity energy that does exist within every soul.
Q: Could you speak of the maleness and the femaleness, or the positive and the negative – somewhere in between those two concepts? In other words...

B: Well, simply, the idea – and it is known to your society by its, let us say, its symbolic attributes – simply what you call femaleness as nurturing, acceptance; maleness as commandment, aggressiveness, but not negative aggressiveness; and the femaleness, the idea of receptivity. You follow me?

Q: Are these distinctions applicable in other parts of the physical universe, or just Earth?

B: Oh, yes.

Q: How did (—?) soul level?

B: Simply that you have the interaction between, and the blending of – the idea of – outwardness and inwardness simultaneously. The expression outwardly and the knowingness inwardly: that is that same expression. And any variation of that theme will be using one side or another, or a blending of the sides of the different parties, to different extents.

Q: That’s why a soul will experience many lifetimes as either female or male?

B: Yes… Yes?

Q: Is there, that you know of, a civilization in which the beings present have chosen to call those two separate manifestations differently? For example, a civilization which...

B: There are many variations.

Q: … the female physical form is agreed upon to be assertive, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera – all of those characteristics that we in this civilization call male.

B: Now: you can have assertiveness within a physical female in your own civilization.

Q: No. I understand that.

B: All right. But that is simply then the recognition of what is called the maleness energy...

Q: Right. I understand that.

B: … within the female.

Q: Therefore any...

B: All right. There are civilizations that, yes, have created themselves to reverse the labeling. But that is only labeling the idea that assertiveness is, in your terms, female, and receptivity male. Yes, there are civilizations like that. But again, it is only labeling, as per the experience they are living out – and does not basically, fundamentally, make a difference in the idea that those two energies exist.

And it does not matter to the soul how those energies are expressed because, to the soul, it is not really the idea of maleness and femaleness, it is simply the idea of polarity.

Q: Yeah, it’s only the idea of positive and negative.

B: Yes.

Q: I understand, but…
B: Yes.
Q: I understand that, but clearly the idea of receptivity . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . is better aligned with the female body than a male body.
B: Why?
Q: Well, physiologically.
B: Why?
Q2: The equipment is receptive.
B: All right, but so what? Depends upon what the scenario of your culture is.
Q: That’s true, too. Okay. I have another question because of something you said earlier: Do you make a distinction between the mind and the brain? You used the term “brain” earlier.
B: Yes, in a sense. Your brain is the physical object, the physical symbol that allows your consciousness – non-physical consciousness – to become physical mentality, or mind. The idea is that you generate, with your non-physical consciousness, electrical energy fields. That concept, acting through the symbol of the physical brain, generates a reflection – a symbolic reflection – of your consciousness in physical terms. And you call it mind, or mentality. Do you follow me?
Q: No, I don’t.
B: All right.
Q: Look at your entire world – at varying degrees of solidity, in one electromotive magnetic fluid. All right?
Q: I understand.
B: Thank you. Then: the expression of non-physical consciousness in a physical medium is perceived by you in the physical medium as mind, or mentality – because it makes use of the electromagnetic fluid that has been created to generate the electromotive apparatus of the brain, that can represent the idea of the consciousness’ interaction into physical materiality. You follow me?
Q: Okay.
B: That reflection, when perceived only through the physical sense of the artificial personality construct, is considered to be the mind, mentality. And it is the product of the action of consciousness upon the electromagnetic force.
That is why you can have what you call ESP – because you are all in the same magnetic fluid. And your mentality can synchronize with another mentality, because it is simply a matter of oscillation of the vibrational electromagnetic field at an identical pattern rate.
Q: Okay. Does that... in my thinking up to this point, it has seemed... I understand that.
B: All right.
Q: It has seemed to me that the brain, the physical gray matter inside the skull...
B: Yes.
Q: ...was merely...it didn’t have too much to do with that. In other words, you could accomplish the same thing without that.
B: You are consciousness without matter, yes. But matter gives rise to mind, mind is not consciousness.
Q: So what is mind, then?
B: Mind is the physiological representation of consciousness.
Q: I thought brain was the physiological representation.
B: It is the physical apparatus. The mind...all right, let us say it is the physiological field that represents consciousness.
The brain is the physiological apparatus that represents consciousness, but the mind is the physiological activation field – the electro-motivation field – that allows there to be activity of consciousness in matter – activity.
Q: I got it. So a mind, as you are using it, is part of this electromagnetic fluid.
B: Yes.
Q: Got it.
B: It is a specific arrangement – a pattern, a vibration – as determined by the consciousness. And it is what allows there to be interaction on physical levels. Thank you.
Q3: I’d like to go back to the fourth density discussion we had earlier. It seems to me that I’ve been having more and more occurrences of my life being like a dream. And I was wondering if that was relating to what you were talking about. You were talking about the...
B: You know it is.
Q: Okay.
B: Simple, is it not?
Q: Almost too simple sometimes.
B: If you say so.
Q: I guess we can create it to be too complex.
B: Yes, you can – and you have – many times. Thank you! For it has been a loving creation; and it has gotten you where you are. That is why you do not need to judge what you have, for it has gotten you where you are.
Q: Beautiful.
B: And if you love yourself in the now, then you will love all that you have ever been. For now, in that way, is the idea of yourself. Now, you have made a connection that where you have been has gotten you where you are, and I am using that terminology only linearly. Now you have the opportunity to understand that everything that you are now is what gets you where you are. For the path is also now.

Q: Mhmm.

B: Thank you! You may all take a short break.
Male Sexual Balance

Q: I was wondering if you could tell me a little about the cause of male sexual dysfunctions, like impotence. What would, uh . . .

B: Can be for many different reasons, in this way. Can be for the idea of fearing to blend the male and female aspects of your own energy within yourself, and in this way, allowing the idea of what you may feel to be an imbalance within you to extend to someone else.

Can also be the idea that you simply recognize that interactions with certain of, let us say, the idea of the feminine entities that you interact with are for other reasons, other than the idea of the sexual exchange. And so you may, in that sense, curb yourself that way to allow yourself to explore the other avenues that you need to make the connections on, first. Can be for these reasons.

Q: May I ask you another question? Is it possible that the penis has its own reality at times? Can it, like, think for itself?

B: No. (AUD: laughs) Although again, you will find that, once again, any part of your anatomy, what it will pick up on is the fundamental reason for any situation, and it will act accordingly. So you may find that it may simply be a sign to allow the idea and the understanding that there may be other levels of communication that are more paramount first. So that wholeness within yourself, the interaction and the relationship, in that sense, with your own maleness, femaleness, will then allow you to extend the same balance to other entities, including the idea of the female sex.

Q: Now if you experience, uh, that experience, can you use your imagination in that area?

B: Yes. First of all, let it be for a reason; and what you may find most beneficial is allow yourself to know it is for a partner who you will then be allowing to be of assistance to you on the energy levels that perhaps the impotence is for. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Then you will build the rapport from a place that will create a type of momentum that will then flow into every portion of your body, so that you will be sharing with all of you. Not just parts. (AUD: laugh)

Q: Thanks.

B: Thank you.

Male Sexual Balance
Q: I have a question. When I put my attention on somebody, I’m there with them, and I would be able to visualize and see them. Or I just know how…

B: All right.

Q: Sometimes my body will manifest also. I have been told that sometimes I’ve appeared in two places at the same time…

B: Yes.

Q: …aside from where my body actually is. And I do this… I love people deeply, and I guess I want to know how it is… and I know how it is with them. But my question is: how does my body materialize, and they see the body? I mean, it’s like I’ve got three bodies then, and I get confused about it.

B: All right. Now, first of all: allow yourself to know that since you are doing this quite naturally, there is no reason to be confused. Simply understand it is a natural expression of your creative love. And as such it will tell you in no uncertain terms that you are All That Is, and do exist everywhere at once. Therefore simply understand that you are able to create your own counterpart selves in that way, each having equal validity, because the only idea to you which is important is simply the exchange and not the how.

Q: Mhmm, that’s true.

B: Therefore understand that since you are not standing in your own way, you are more than able to manifest that portion of your reality for yourself at whatever location or idea it needs to be manifested to be experienced. Simply because it is the experience to you which is of overriding importance, and not the “how am I going to experience it?” So you are very creatively allowing those doorways to be opened for your re-creation of that idea of yourself and all those various points of interaction. And since you already exist everywhere there is to exist anyway – why not?

Q: I can see now that I manifest the body when it’s necessary for the person to see the body.

B: Yes.

Q: Thank you, I just cognized on it. Whoopee!
B: Also understand that if they perceive it, it is because they have agreed to share that manifestation, and for themselves to create their version of the manifested form that they perceive.
Q: Right. Absolutely! Thank you.

B: Thank you. Very good. And very loving of yourself.

Q: Oh, thank you.

"MANIFESTING"

If you want something to manifest you must be the vessel through which it can manifest, otherwise there is nowhere where it can manifest. If you are not being that vessel, how can it manifest? You have to be that state in order for the reality to manifest. Again remember, life doesn’t happen to you, it happens through you. If you’re not vibrating like the gate it can’t come through the gate; it cannot manifest, it cannot crystallize, it cannot solidify. You can be the idea of a cup all you want, it won’t hold water! You have to be the cup, physically, to hold the physical water.

Most of you rely only on the concept of the imagination to be the "manifestor," instead of understanding that physical action is the expression of the imagination. When you don’t make a separation between physicality and spirit there is no separation between belief and action. Your imagination becomes real only as you are the manifestation of your imagination through the action. If it really were real to you, nothing would stop you from acting it out. You would become one and the same with your imagination, and there would be no thought of there being a difference between you and your imagination. As long as you keep saying you have an imagination, you are not being your imagination, and that’s the difference.

You are creative thought. You are physical reality, you’re not in it, it is you. Be the reality according to the highest degree of the vibration of excitement that you are. You can imagine many things, but they are in "potentiality" in your particular dimension, except for the one that is representative of your particular conduit of excitement ... that one can physiologically manifest if you act upon it.
Many Faces of One Reality

Q: I’ve been reading some Seth materials: Seth Speaks.
B: Yes.
Q: And there’s a concept in here that I would like your help on.
B: All right.
Q: “The soul can be described, for that matter, as a multidimensional infinite act, each minute probability being brought somewhere into actuality and existence. Each mental act opens up a new dimension of actuality. In a matter of speaking, your slightest thought gives birth to worlds.”
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Now, in words that are a little easier – I’d like some examples. In words that…
B: All right. Do you understand that everything exists on different levels of relativity?

In other words, to use your pragmatic example on your own planet: the idea, let us say, of the difference between something that is human or, let us say, an insect, is that the relative degrees between what you assume to be the perspective of the insect is that they would look upon the human as encompassing a large portion of their reality. You follow me?
Q: Mhmm.
B: And then, relative to that, you say: “Well, the entire planet compared to me is a large portion of my reality.” Well, simply stated then, you can extrapolate further extensions of your consciousness to assume that there is a planetary consciousness that considers itself to be a singular being, and to that being, there are then galaxies, universes that are large part of its reality; and on and on and on.
But everything is connected. Everything is the same one thing, manifesting in all the ways it possibly can. So whatever form it takes, the insect, the human, the world, the galaxy, the universe, it is the same thing expressing itself in a different modality.
And so it is the same thing having the same thought. Every thought it has changes everything, everywhere. You create whole worlds – literally. Because all of physical reality is a product of the imagination, so to speak, of Infinite Creation, which everything is made out of; and every single concept that you define as a separate concept contains the whole of all creation. Is this making it any clearer at all?
Q: Yes, much.
B: In a very pragmatic sense also, different dimensions of experience have the same degree of relativity to other dimensions that your insect may have to you. Though we are not saying we are denigrating the idea of the insect.
But simply put: your thoughts, literally, literally, can be the driving energy behind what some other beings in another dimension may see as a gigantic natural phenomena. Just as what you call stars – even though they are a part of your physiological reality – are also aspects of whole other levels of consciousness activity. And you see them in your universe as stars. That is how they interpret in physical dimensionality.

They have consciousness too, but not consciousness as you understand it, in terms of human consciousness, and they are parts of greater consciousness still, whose thoughts created your world, your universe. Everything supports everything else. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm.
B: Is this making it clearer?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: One other question: right after I started reading this, I started getting a stiff neck that would go into a headache.
B: Yes.
Q: Could you help me on the symbology of that?
B: Generally speaking, any time you find yourself opening up to grander and vaster levels of siphoning energy through you, many of you will react in the channeling chakra area at the base of the neck, between the shoulder blades and up the bottom of the base of the skull.
Because that is where you usually first receive that type of energy. It is connected to the Kundalini energy in your spine, and it indicates that you are now flowing energy in an area you are simply not used to flowing it.
And the pain is the result of portions of you that are now waking up, in the same way that when you know you have cut off your blood supply for a long time and the blood flows back, you feel your arm or your leg waking up within that prickling painful sensation until it acclimates. So many portions of all of you have been asleep for so long that when you allow the energy to flow back in sometimes it’s painful, because that portion of you is now waking up again. You follow me? As soon as you let it flow smoothly, you will acclimate; there will be no more pain.
Q: Yes.
B: So use the energy, use it to do what excites you. And that will accelerate the flow and alleviate all pain – because all pain is simply the product of resistance to a portion of yourself that you are now rediscovering.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Many Faces of One Reality

Q: Good day Bashar. I wanted to catch up on some questions, probably with my personality which means that I’m not doing a good job of letting go, I guess.

B: I’ll right but you do not have to judge yourself, number 1. Number 2, you must understand before you continue, I do not mean to judge you, but before you continue you must understand that now that we have arrived at a discussion of surrender, anything that you have to ask will need to be connected to that concept, that process, that procedure and, though you may ask whatever you wish, from this point forward we will not allow any of you to step, shall we say, backwards too far into the old paradigm. So, some of your questions we may be able to address, some of them we may no longer be able to address because we may now find that it is important for the timing of your planet as a collective and a timing of each and every individual on a Spiritual path to face a idea of what surrender is all about. And so, in your own best interest, not that we will live your life for you, but that we are simply reflecting what all of you have asked us to do, we will not let you go too far back into the past, but will endeavor to keep you present and within the concept of surrender as best we can, with that in mind, do continue, if you can?

Q: Okay, what can you tell us about the picture that came back from Mars of the sphinx, or what looked liked the sphinx in the low resolution picture, but in the supposed high resolution picture it looks like a piece of garbage that’s obviously not a high resolution picture, what can you tell us about that?

B: Well you have in a sense your answer. You have just already stated what you have seen and what you have seen is in many ways, obviously, to some degree, your answer. You are not being given your accurate photos of the area in question. You are not being given accurate photos of the area in question.

Q: So, in other words, they did get a clear picture but there’re just not releasing it?

B: It is not even so much that they have a new clear picture but that they are allowing the pictures to be scrambled, so as the pictures are not clear. You understand?

Q: No, can you clarify?

B: Again, the signals that come in from your probe go through, pass through, a process of enhancement, you understand me so far?

Q: Yes.

B: This process itself has been compromised so that they can in all truth say, "they have allowed the picture to come through," but what is coming through, in a sense, is unreadable because it is not being allowed to be clarified properly. You understand?
Q: And that’s being done intentionally in this instance?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, can you tell us if the UN is going to be involved, as far as any kind of a representative goes, when we start to become more active in the Federation of Planets, Federation of Worlds?
B: One moment, repeat your question.
Q: Is the United Nations going to be involved with the Federation of Worlds?
B: Not directly.
Q: Okay.
B: There will be a time in your near future that your Earth is ready for participation for what we refer to as the Association of Worlds, by the time your planet is ready what you call your United Nations will not really exist as such. There will, however, be several individuals, who are at present involved with the United Nations, who may also, at that time, be involved, you understand, but not so much, exactly as the organization that you know now.
Q: And can you tell us anything more as far as the likelihood of the Nuclear attack on the U.S.?
B: No.
Q: Too old a paradigm?
B: Simply not appropriate at this timing.
Q: And do you have any idea what Clinton is doing in China and in Africa,? Why he’s going?
B: We have some Ideas.
Q: Can you share anything with us?
B: No.
Q: Is something happening in China that ....
B: Why are you asking this kinds of questions? What’s your motivation?
Q: Just curious?
B: No! You are lying. Why are you asking these kinds of questions? What is your motivation here?
Q: I was just curious.
B: No you are lying. What is your motivation here. I do not mean this in a malicious way.
Q: Okay.
B: But what you are saying is not your own truth to yourself. Why are you asking these kinds of questions? It is not just curiosity, a lot of it has to do with fear. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: The correct answer is fear, I’m scared. Not, I’m just curious. That’s why we say you are lying when you say I’m just curious the correct answer is I’m afraid. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, why are you afraid?
Q: Well I was actually on that particular question, I was a...someone had asked me to ask you about that, so I was....
B: You can not side step the issue. If it was of no concern to you, you would not have asked. Why do you find yourself the position of asking such a question at this time? Why did you take on the responsibility of transmitting such a question if you yourself found no reason to be involved?
Q: Honestly I was just, to the best of my conscious ability, it was just sure curiosity. I personally had the information that....
B: No, no, no. This is way it is very important for you to go below the threshold, deep below the threshold of your personality because when you say in all honesty you will find, while to a degree, you are being honest. You are only staying in a very thin strata of your personality. If you go deeper you will find that there are other issues that you are not voicing, deep within you, about why you are involved in these kinds of questions and coming from these kinds of perspectives. I’m not chastising you but I’m simply helping you to understand that these kinds of questions are surface questions that usually stem from the idea of feeling out of control, feeling like you don’t know what’s going on, feeling like you are not in touch with the reality who you would prefer, feeling like these other realities have some kind of power over you and what decisions may be made in those contexts would some how effect what it is you prefer in your life. All these ideas stem from a psychology that is born within the thin strata of a certain level of your personality, you must go deeper and you must understand that the kind of depth that we are talking about has to do with the total surrender of who you think you need to be.

Q: How intuitive you are.
B: I am only reflecting what you are really, more than you think, giving off. You are actually radiating these things quite obviously, at least to me, it really requires no intuitions at all. To us it is actually very obvious, many of you are actually very transparent, I don’t mean this again, in a negative way, you are far more transparent to us than you think. It takes no special ability to understand, as you say in your language, where you are coming from when you ask these questions.

Q: Well part of it is the topic I would discuss with you, that I need to let go of, that I need to surrender about, is a subject that you refuse to discuss with me.
B: Yes, and the refusal is because you need to let go of it and we are helping you do that by not providing a platform or a forum for discussing it because the more you discuss the more you become entrenched in it. And we are helping you move away from that entrenchment, if the only way we can help you is to put the subject off limits, then that’s what we will do. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.

Smoking Gun Evidence For Face on Mars
From William
4-10-98
Here is the SMOKING GUN PROOF that the images from Mars Global Surveyor have been either DOCTORED and/or ALTERED.
The image attached to this email shows clearly how in the NEW images of the "Face on Mars" from MGS the "trench" like area where the mouth should be is WIDER than the "mouth" in the original VIKING IMAGES and MOST IMPORTANTLY it is LEFT WIDE OPEN at its edge UNLIKE the "mouth" in the original Viking Images that was clearly CLOSED!
This is ANOTHER piece of SMOKING GUN PROOF that these images of the FACE ON MARS have been ALTERED and/or DOCTORED to remove any FACE LIKE FEATURES!
MARS, Earth, Orion Connections
Q: First of all, I went to a UFO Expo.
B: Oh well, all right.
Q: I caught a short lecture on the Monuments of Mars.
B: Yes.
Q: And there was a discovery of a lot of connections to the equilateral triangle, as mapped out by studying this phenomenon.
B: Yes, and the tetrahedral structure which is the basic unit of geometry in physiological reality.
Q: Right, and there was also a very interesting slide of the moon.
B: Yes.
Q: Actually many slides, and as it got closer to the moon there were revealed triangular shapes...
B: Yes.
Q: the surface of the moon with a circle around it.
B: Yes.
Q: The speaker was basically suggesting a connection between the monuments on Mars and that shape on the moon.
B: Oh there is a remote connection, not a direct connection but a remote connection, in that two different civilizations are utilizing the same kind of understanding of technology.
Q: Two different ones?
B: Basically at this point in history, yes– two different ones.
Q: Ok, you mention over and over again that triangular shape, and in my discussing with you about my experiences in Sedona...
B: Yes.
Q: have suggested to me that the next time that I go there I should bring with me an equilateral triangle.
B: Yes.
Q: I was just curious as to which extraterrestrial civilizations or civilization this particular symbol refers?
B: It touches, to some degree, on our bandwidth, but it also touches into the Sirius bandwidth and it also touches, to some degree, into a few other bandwidths that, right now, we will not go into.
Q: OK, when you say our bandwidth, do you mean Essassani?
B: Yes. It is an amalgam bandwidth that you are connecting to.
Q: Ok, does that mean that the Monuments on Mars are connected to these civilizations of Sirius and Essassani?
B: No, not directly, they are more connected to the civilization from which your humanity reincarnated upon the earth.
Q: Which was?
B: Yourselves.
Q: Right, but we reincarnated from?
B: That civilization that used to be on your Martian planet millions of years ago.
Q: And that one was civilization that was on Mars was...
B: Came from the systems of Orion.
Q: Orion?
B: Yes.
Q: OK, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Martian Connections

Q: How are you doing?
B: Perfect and you?
Q: Good. I’ve, upon your recommendation, read that book, Cosmic Voyage...

B: Yes.
Q: ... where they said there was a Martian civilization living underground in Mt. Saint Baldy.
B: A slightly genetically altered remnant of the ancient civilization exists in a few places around your world, but not the entire civilization. That has not been brought through yet, from the past time of the inhabitation of that other world. But yes, there are a few genetically altered remnants that do exist upon your planet, yes.
Q: Well, according to the book, the ones at Mt. Saint Baldy needed our help and we needed...
B: Santa Fe Baldy.
Q: That’s right, Santa Fe Baldy.
B: Yes.
Q: They needed our help and we need their help, and apparently we need, like, a pioneer or a liaison?
B: In some senses this is so, and any and all of you can function in this way, to some degree.
Q: Well, I wanted to go there, and I was wondering if you could tell me EXACTLY how to get to them?
B: You will have to trust your instincts on this, because this is part of the idea of functioning as a liaison: to extend your senses and extend your energy to them in unconditional love and acceptance, and allow them to determine when they feel the timing is right to expose themselves to any member of your society – for that is completely in their hands, not yours.
Q: So I couldn’t go there and sort of drag them out?
B: YOU CANNOT DRAG THEM OUT, NO! What purpose would there be in that?
Q: Well, to try and help them? And...
B: Oh, I see. So, in other words, you feel you can help them by forcing them to do something they don’t want to do yet. Is that what you are saying?
Q: Well... well, I was under the impression from the book that...
B: IS THAT WHAT YOU ARE SAYING?
Q: Yes.
B: Why would you imagine that you could help someone by FORCING them to be uncomfortable?
Q: Well, because I think that they are afraid of us.
B: Yes, of course. Do they not have good reason?
Q: They have good reason, but I feel that I could protect them.
B: Oh, I see. Then you, in that sense, cannot help them at all.
Q: (Pause)
B: Understand: you cannot protect anyone! The idea is to get beyond the concept of needing protection. If you will create with them, co-create an environment of more unconditionally loving energy in which no concept of protection is required, they will then know that the environment exists in which they can function openly. But if you go in with the idea that “I will protect you,” all you are doing is reinforcing that protection is required, which simply gives them the message it is too dangerous for you to interact. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that make sense to you mechanically?
Q: Yes, definitely.
B: Does that help clarify the situation?
Q: Yes. Do you have any helpful hints or recommendations?
B: Just gave you the biggest one I could. Get beyond the concept of the world as you now see it, and help create vibrationally, in thought, word and deed, the world as you know it can be, and as you know it exists within your heart of hearts.
That is what they will read, that is what they will pick up on more strongly than any assurance, verbally or mentally, that you could give them that it is SAFE and ALL RIGHT to come out; because they know, in a sense, that it is not. All right?
Q: I see.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes.
B: Then by all means follow your intuition and your instincts about going to the area if you want to, because it WILL make a difference that you make a showing. But, again, it will be up to them to gauge your energy, to gauge their energy, and to make the determination for themselves as to when they deem it is appropriate to make any kind of solid contact with any member of your species.
Q: Could you give me a closer area besides Santa Fe Baldy - like what part of the mountain?
B: Closer to what?
Q: What part of the mountain.
B: Again, you will have to trust your instincts.
Q: Trust my instincts, okay.
B: Because if you do not develop those instincts it will not be possible for you to find their energy frequency and to, in that sense, let them know that a new reality can be created. Because part of the process is, in a sense, meeting them halfway by expanding your sensory apparatus in a similar manner to the level on which they exist.

Q: Do they understand that they are Martians? That they are from Mars?
B: Of course they do.

Q: I heard there was a civilization in South America that didn’t remember their roots.
B: There are many members that do not, but in general the elders do. It is not that important that they remember in the way that you might think, but they KNOW it within their being that they are, in a sense, assimilating into a new reality.

Some of that assimilation, in and of itself, may make the so-called connection to Mars become less of an awareness within them. In the same way that many of you are reincarnations of beings that at one time may have lived on Mars, but also have no memory of that except in what you might call a very large archetypal overview. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes, definitely.
B: Does that help you then?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Then have a good trip.
Q: Ha, thank you.
Martians and NASA

B: Good day.
Q: Good day, how are you today?
B: Perfect, and you?
Q: Fine, my first question is in regard to Mars.
B: Yes.
Q: It was six hundred million years ago when the planetary catastrophe occurred?
B: Six million.
Q: Six million.
B: Yes; not six hundred million, six million of your years.
Q: How long has that civilization been in existence?
B: Do you mean the overall span of that civilization?
Q: Yes, in physical time.
B: One moment, one moment, one moment. . . several hundred thousand of your years.
Q: So they were similar to our Atlantis and Lemuria?
B: There are certain analogies, yes.
Q: The Martians that are currently visiting our planet, and are part of our planet now, are they from that time period?
B: They are from that time period, having been genetically altered, and thus, transported by another species from their time to your time, and helped to adapt to your atmosphere... in their hiding places now, yes. All of those that remained of the ancient race, in their original form, are back in that time period.
Q: So apparently, in comparison to our time period, there are no, ah...
B: Martians on Mars?
Q: Yes.
B: No, there are not. It is no longer capable of supporting life, as you understand it.
Q: In 1939 we had the Orson Welles, “War of the Worlds” broadcast.
B: Yes? You are on to something, aren’t you?
Q: Was that in timing with the coming of the Martians?
B: Yes.
Q: And that was their first check in?
B: Yes.
Q: Now is this current information release about the Mars rocks...
B: Yes.
Q: . . .is that something that is being required for our probes to go up and feeds us data back?
B: Do you mean the idea of beginning to release information of the existence of extraterrestrial life, even though it may be a step at a time?
Q: More specifically, in relation to the other probes that were taken out, because NASA had decided not to release the information. Is this . . .
B: It may be that many individuals within your NASA organization are still not completely aware that the basic criteria that will allow them to have their probes be allowed in that area is to begin sharing information with your people. Many of them may not necessarily realize that, but the idea, to some degree, is that, due to a variety of social and political pressures, they are begging to realize that they have to begin sharing the idea that there are other extraterrestrial beings that do exist, and this is their way of, shall we say, breaking the news slowly.
Q: So they are not fully conscious of it yet.
B: Many of them are not, although a few of them do recognize and realize what is going on. Many of your people are quite smart and they recognize that after two probes being shut down, exactly as they arrived at Mars, they began to recognize that it was a statement and a message that they would not be allowed to look at certain things there, were they not more forthcoming, in and of themselves, with letting loose of some of the information that they have kept from their own people on earth.
Q: Now, the individuals, who are responsible for the probes discontinuing their mission, are they the Martians that are currently in our time, do they still have interplanetary travel capabilities?
B: It is not their doing DIRECTLY, though they are involved in the decision of understanding that that is going on. It is their wish that the information not necessarily be gleaned to its fullest extent until such time as your planet is willing to accept a lot of the information that is being suppressed. So they are playing their part, or shall we say, in your ancient lingo, “casting their vote” for how it is that these things are being done. But they are not the ones, specifically, that are, in that sense, shutting down your probes. This is a mixture of several different groups, including the idea of, what you would call, one FACTION of the Greys.
Q: Thank you for your elucidation.
B: Thank you, you’re welcome. Sharing!
Martians and the Release of ET Information

Q: I’ve seen Abraham again, those entities.
B: Yes.
Q: And somebody asked them a question about if there were any extraterrestrials that were here on our planet. And they said, no.
B: Not really, there are not.
Q: What about the Martians?
B: Well, the idea is that they are no longer extraterrestrial; they have been adapted genetically to your environment. They live in your world; they are not extraterrestrials. They lost their planet a long time ago.
Q: So that is why they said, no.
B: No, in the context of what you would clearly call an extraterrestrial at this point. There are comings and goings, but no permanent inhabitation by anything that lives on another planet. The Martians that have been adapted to your world are no longer extraterrestrial, in the same way that you no longer consider yourselves, in the United States of America, Europeans. You understand the difference?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: You consider yourselves to be Americans, even though your ancestry comes from the area that you call Europe; you do not call yourselves Europeans, you call yourselves Americans. The Martians that have been adapted to your planet no longer consider themselves to be Martians.
Q: So there actually are none that are living on our planet then?
B: Not yet. The infusion of those that are still within some of the caverns underground on Mars, that still contain the high degree of original race genetics, are not yet on your planet.
Q: But they’re coming soon.
B: They are coming, soon is relevant.
Q2: You mentioned earlier the life on other planets – like they have been giving us a lot of information, or putting into our minds that there is life on Mars, all of a sudden. There always has been life on Mars, has there not been?
B: In a sense, although there has not been, what you would recognize as life, on that planet for quite some time. It became, shall we say, uninhabitable to life similar to your own many millions of years ago.
Q2: I understood that there was some type of life within the planet. Maybe not on the surface like we dwell on the surface.
B: The idea of the ancient race dwelling within internal caverns is that they are there in your past and will be brought through a time barrier to your present. They do not exist there now, in your present.
Q: Do we have any established human bases of any sort that you know of up there?
B: Do you mean on your Martian world?
Q: On the Martian planet or the Martian moons, either one?
B: No, you do not.
Q2: Okay. I guess that answers my question.
B: Thank you.
Q2: Thank you.
Q3: What do you mean that the Martians will be brought forward from the past?
B: In the idea of what you would call the planetary catastrophe that allowed their planet to become uninhabitable, another race is assisting them by adapting them genetically to be able to eventually co-exist with you on your planet. But the majority of the ancient race, that in the past still exists in protected caverns on their planet, has not yet been brought through to what you call your present time. Only a few have been – as, shall we say, “test subjects,” to make sure that the compatibility will stick and that the interaction between your human species and that species will eventually become politically compatible.
Q3: When do you think this might happen?
B: You will find that there will be an acceleration in this probability sometime after your year of 2005, as we read your collective energy now, and certainly, definitely, by your year of 2013 will this be understood to be happening.
Q3: All right. I just read a book about the Philadelphia experiment where the Navy transported a ship...
B: Yes.
Q3: ...did that actually happen?
B: Yes. There were many negative side effects.
Q3: Yes, that is what I understand. Was this by exploring the Unified Theory, that the...
B: In some senses, yes, although with a different twist than many of your scientists understood at that time. More of your physicists understand, now, what it is that they did back then in that named experiment, as you say, Philadelphia, whereas back then it was not clearly understood what they were doing. But that was their idea and their approach that they thought they were applying, what they called, the Unified Field Theory, but they actually got something quite different and that is why they didn’t know how to control it.
Q3: Do they know how to control it now?
B: On minute levels, yes, but not to any great extent.
Q3: Are the government scientists, are they able to transport through time right now?
B: No.
Q3: I read that Eisenhower had a face to face with ETs, is that correct?
B: Yes.
Q3: Have all other Presidents or any other Presidents had face-to-face contacts?
B: No, there have been others that have seen what you would call the remains of extraterrestrial bodies, if you want to call that face-to-face, yes. But the idea is that there have been only...one moment, one moment, one moment, one moment, one moment...the one in what you would call an official capacity, that you have named as Eisenhower. The one that you would call... in a telepathic communication with a physical projection, or at least the physical appearance of a projection, in the one that you call Kennedy; and the rest in simply observing the idea of what you would call, the dead bodies, in that sense.
The interactions between any other live extraterrestrials on your planet have taken place between other individuals in what you would call those clandestine organizations, but not what you would call your country’s President. Although they do know about it, but they do not know everything about it, for they are not told everything about it.
Q3: Are they restricted from making any of that public?
B: Yes.
Q3: By these secret organizations?
B: Yes. Although there is more and more pressure from even within them now to release this information to you.
Q3: So you say next year we’re going to have more awareness of this?
B: Yes, there will be more, what you call, information leakages and more preparation to see how your public will respond. In some sense, what you have now received as your initial dispensation of information concerning the concept of the possibility of life on your Martian world is the first stage in preparing your public to realize that there is more than just a few bacteria floating around. Because already you will recognize that even with the announcement of the concept of the possibility of bacteriological life off your planet, there is already a wave of discussion within your political and religious organizations as to what kind of impact that is supposed to have on your society – even just the bacteria is causing ripples in you religions and your politics and your economics.
Q3: Right.
B: Imagine what the full-blown information would do. So they are taking their time, but they are under, in a sense, a deadline, as you call it.
Q3: I had a thought tonight...
B: Oh, all right, congratulations.
Q3: ...that the timing to this awareness that they are going to let us have...
B: Yes.
Q3: ...is going to be timed with the default of our economy as we know it, and that the government will let us be aware fully, and that we all over react, our economy goes down a little bit, then they blame the restructuring of the economy on our over reaction, as opposed to them squandering...

B: This is something that has been a matter of discussion with certain individuals, but this will not occur.

Q3: All right, thank you.

B: Thank you.
Martian’s Contact
B: Good day.
RJ: Good day to you; nice to be in your presence once again.
B: And in yours, all of yours, as well. Be brief, be brief, be brief.
Q: Can you tell us if you or any other Sassanians have had Atlantian incarnations?
B: Yes, some have.
Q: What time frame would you say the Sassani consciousness intersected with earth, physically? Does it tie into the Anasasi...?
B: We are already intersecting.
Q: Well the original inception?
B: There is no way to pin this in your linear time.
Q: Well, you said that you interacted with the Anasasi and the Mongolians to form your race of Sassanians, and they were fairly recent in our civilization’s history.
B: But the idea is that we interact in a number of different levels, a number of different ways. And we did not give you all the details of the style of the interactions. You are at this point attempting to pin something down linearly that really has no linear answer at all. You must see us, and our interaction and intersection with you, as a series of cyclic loops, without beginning, without ending, but cyclic. We interpenetrate at different timing, again, different points of what you would call history in a variety of ways, yes. You will even find literal reference within what you call your ancient Middle East for some of our interaction there energetically, for part of the civilization named themselves after their perception of us. You will find this from about what you call 200AD to 1000AD. They are, in that sense, in the Middle East of what you now call Iran, the Sassanians. There is an entity in that time frame with a name, Mazda, in that sense it was a entity that recognized, through certain psychic methodologies and means, the idea of a vibrational connection to our civilization. And an incorporation of many of the principles of our civilization was attempted to be infused into the society at that time, although, of course, it took its earthly bent in its own unique way. It expressed itself as other than the way it came across, but this was the nature of channeled interpretations at that time, though they were understood as high vibration, they were still adapted to the methodologies and culture of the day.
One moment, one moment ... for what you would refer to as the inception seed, even though we are cyclic, let us just say, “it is approximately, in the moment of the entire conception linearly of the human race, of what you call now the modern version of about 300,000 of your years ago.” We were in the inception seed concept of the collective consciousness that dispersed and defused itself into all the manifestations now interacting with itself. All the manifestations of one being, a large being, now interacting with itself from a variety of directions and representative of what you would call many different races and cultures and civilizations and timings.
Q: In relation to the Greys and their not being accepted into the Association of Worlds, because of their interference with our civilization...

B: One level of them.

Q: Was the level that that went to Mars and discussed in the book, Cosmic Voyage by Courtney Brown, another level?

B: Yes. There are factions of the Greys that are part of different confederations, but, again, as we impart the idea of our Association it is also slightly different of what you understand to be your Federation. Remember we are in an alternate reality universe from you, our Association is like a parallel construct of what you call, perhaps, or allude to as your Federation, in your particular universal reality in your particular local.

Q: So there’s not an identity there then?

B: There is no Grey to be an identity in our reality, we are what they have become.

Q: Is there any problem with any kind of microbe contamination with the beings from Mars?

B: No.

Q: Is Courtney’s idea of sending radio signals to Mars and the moon a way to contact them?

B: Yes.

Q: Are they operating on that level?

B: They can, they will in time, maybe. But it is an endeavor worth attempting, but not any further than that; for there are no radio civilizations within your immediate star systems that will respond in that way, but within your Solar System there are beings who have the capability of responding that way, should they so choose.

Q: The last thing, the idea that they are covertly hiding out from us because they are afraid of coming out and not having the “proper” recognition, what about the idea of the UN or the United States, what type of scenario are they looking for?

B: They are not looking for a particular scenario, except that which contains the open heart and the open hand. However this can be accomplished will be the first establishment of the communication, there are many among you that have ideas for different ways that this might be approached. Attempt all that you feel are representative of the concept of open heart and open hand. We will leave the rest, for now, up to you. At this timing....
Q: Okay and what can you tell us about the Martians – what do they look like?
B: At this point as we have said, mostly now because of the genetics—mostly human although in the more ancient form which still exists in some of the species they have a little bit of what you might call a proto—now this is just an affectation—it is not really as distinct as what we are about to describe as the animal form, but in that sense they are humanoid or what you would call humanoid but they have a slight characteristic of what you would call a type of proto-simian and, or, almost a cat-like face. But again, this is very slight affectation, again they would appear to be just a little bit beyond the edge or the threshold of what you might typically on your planet call, a different race. You would recognize them as non-human but they are not so non-human that they would appear to you to be much more different than just to you perhaps a very distinctive other race.
Q: Yes. And how technologically advanced are they?
B: At this point you will find, again, that they have an advancement about 100 to 150 years ahead of you but in their ancient culture they were really not as advanced as you are now on Earth. They have been given this technology by the Greys, to aid them in their survival.
Q: Alright, so they’re in contact with the Greys—open contact?
B: O yes. It was the Greys who were responsible for the injection of the humanoid genetics that will help them survive on your planet.

Masters of Limitation

Q: Before, you were talking about the ideas of the mastery of limitation.
B: Yes.
Q: What are those limitations, are those fears?
B: Judgements, separation, forgetting who you are, creating the idea of cycles of repetition that, in of in themselves, bring with them an innate inability to remember that you create them to begin with. You follow me?
Q: Yes, with forgetting so much, do we forget in part our right to happiness?
B: Yes.
Q: Are right to what we deserve?
B: Yes. That is a part of the limitation. You have limited yourselves so much that is why you are master of it. Almost anyway that a being can be limited, you have limited yourselves. (Audience laughs)
Use your imagination. Thank you. Sharing!
Mayan Connection
Q: I would like to know if you could comment on the Mayan people; I know you’ve talked about the Kachina dolls.
B: Yes. They are an Atlantean offshoot that maintained, to some degree, most of the original aspects of the more beneficial modalities of Atlantean culture – although they had to redefine it after the destruction, to some degree. They resettled and eventually, collectively knew there was no longer any reason for them to continue to incarnate in that modality, because there were many other things that had to happen in the transformational ages coming up. So they simply allowed themselves to translate into non-physicality, eventually, and simply did not choose to reincarnate in that society anymore.
Q: Will they come back?
B: Well, they are back, but in a variety of ways. Some of them, however, have remained on the spirit level to act as guides for what is going on. Most of the spirits you would recognize as having had a great degree of familiarity with Mayan incarnations have remained as spirit guides – to suggest and inspire you to get back in touch with your true selves, and to not allow the cycle of destruction to repeat itself. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Meaningful Relationships

Q: As to my question, I seem, in my lifetime, to be attracted to unavailable men. I would like to know why. As a result, I’m here by myself.

B: All right. Perhaps you are an unavailable woman.

Q: Well, I never thought of that.

B: All right. Again, the idea is always to understand this from a couple of different perspectives. One is that your situations in life are generally reflective of who it is you are at that moment. Now this does not mean anything positive or negative. It just means that you have chosen to reflect to yourself certain understandings and ideas about your path in life, your chosen path that always reflects back to you the things that are most important for you to understand in this life. In no way, shape or form are we saying that you cannot have the idea of companionship, but you must also look at the things that have been impressed upon you in your upbringing with regard to your ability, and your availability, with regard to interaction on certain levels with other members of your species. I will ask you a question. In the interactions that you have allowed, as far as you have allowed them, what kinds of issues have come up?

Q: Oh, I’m not quite certain of that. I only know they are good but they are not exactly long lasting.

B: All right. I have another question for you. If you were your imagination for a moment, just play, just play – no judgment, no qualification – just play. If you were to imagine that you do attract, as you say, an "available" individual. After you have done that, what would be your strongest fear? Let’s say you have done it. Now, what is your strongest fear?

Q: That it might not last, I guess.

B: And why would I believe that? What has happened in your life to reflect that idea to you? Have you seen examples of that which have impressed you?

Q: Yes, the relationships that I’ve had... have not lasted.

B: Before that. Younger.

Q: Younger, I didn’t have too many meaningful relationships.

B: How about with your parents?

Q: I feel that was good.

B: In what sense?

Q: In that I knew I definitely was loved.

B: What was your first relationship where you extended yourself to someone else and found a lack of availability in response? What is the first time you remember that happening?

Q: Well, it was while I was married.

B: Yes.

Q: I fell in love with someone else that I thought had fallen in love with me.

B: Someone other than the person you were married to?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. And?
Q: The agreement was that we would first divorce our spouses and then be together.
B: And how did you feel about that?
Q: I thought it was the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me.
B: And what happened?
Q: I got my divorce and he didn’t.
B: Oh. Where did that leave you? Hanging?
Q: Hanging, yes.
B: All right. Why would it be surprising that you would not want to make yourself available for that fear again? You are afraid because you see it as a risk. You have, in that sense, been stung in your estimation and you do not want to go through that pain again.
Q: Then why do I keep involving myself with...
B: Because there is always the desire for love. That is more overriding but, in a sense, you have created a mental pattern within yourself that is sabotaging your expression of love. Because there is always the loop imprinted upon you that you will always be left hanging, that you will extend and the extension will not be reflected back. That is very strongly impressed within your emotionality and your mental pattern. That is what you need to dissolve. Now, the idea of having felt the way that you felt for that other individual and you extended yourself in that direction, and the other individual did not – what was the other person’s reasons for not doing so, or did you ever know that?
Q: The most obvious was loss of his money.
B: Loss of his money?
Q: Yes.
B: I see. So what you are saying is that you found out that individual had a greater love than his love for you.
Q: Right.
B: I see. Well, that is no surprise that hurt you; it hurt you very deeply. May I ask you another question?
Q: Yes.
B: How are your abundance issues?
Q: Oh, they come and they go.
B: They come and they go. All right. You have many interesting things entangled with many other things in this one experience: abundance issues, love issues, abandonment issues, risk issues. All these ideas are tied up in that one particular incident within your pneumonic patterns. One moment. I wish you to open your imagination now and as you open your imagination also open your heart. Just envision them opening up. Right now, for this moment, you are safe. All right?
Q: All right.
B: Now, imagine a time in what you call the future; it can be a day; it can be a week, a month, a year, it is up to you. Whatever feels comfortable. Imagine a time when you are looking into the eyes of another being and that being is loving you back in the way that you prefer. You have your love reflected to you. Can you imagine this?
Q: Oh, yes, I imagine that all the time.
B: Can you now feel what that would feel like?
Q: What it is? What, that feeling is a remembrance of what it was?
B: As you remember what it was, you are generating that feeling in the present. You’re feeling it now, yes? You’re not feeling it "back then." Remembering is feeling now; it is recreating in the now. So, do you feel what that feels like?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Look into that person’s eyes; see that person looking into your eyes. Feel that person’s heart; feel that person feeling your heart. Feel joy at being together. Feel light in that you support each other and reflect to each other, mirror to mirror, face to face, heart to heart. Feel these feelings now. Feel the vibration now. Just allow yourself to bathe in that energy for a moment and as you do so, as you feel these things and see these things as we have described them to you, feel yourself changing, relaxing, melting into that idea.

If a little fear crops up here or a little fear crops up there, that is all right. Invite them in. Invite them into your crucible and let them begin to relax and melt, knowing that they no longer have to be cast out into the cold, isolated on their own, cut off from the central source of being, but invite them back in to relax in a warm, glowing, golden rosy liquid. Feel that liquid gold within you. Melt them.

See all those fears, like dark lumps of coal lying on the surface of this golden liquid; see them become red hot. See them melt, melt, softly, gently, releasing, releasing their shape, releasing their rigid form. Melting and softening until they are slightly different discolorations of the pool of golden liquid, until there is no difference anymore. Feel that. Know that you deserve that. Know that is your birthright.

Allow your vibration of the golden liquid to become white, white, white hot, burning with passion and joy and excitement and creativity. Burning with sharing, beaming, beaming into the other person as it is reflected back to you, as you reflect back to him, as he reflects back to you. Carrying yourselves both higher and higher as light beings, light bodies, ethereal forms, until you become both transparent, clear, floating upon the clouds in the blue bright sky, together as one crystal, as one idea, as one reflection. Distinctly a couple but one idea. Sharing, reflecting, being, loving, breathing as one. Release this energy into the universe. Allow your Higher self to know that you now know you deserve this ecstasy. That it is what you are made of—unconditional love. Put it out there into the Universe and let it go.

Now, just reawaken as yourself and as you gather yourself back together as the "you" you now know that is more like the "you" you prefer to be. You are a different person now; not the same. Every change is a complete change; you are not the same person that began this discussion. She is another; you are different. She has her own history; you have another history. She is she. You are you. You have put it out there for your Higher self to take care of the details. Relax. Feel the joy every day in your life and, without expectation, allow your higher self now to bring back to you the reflection of the joy the new you knows you are made of. All right?

Q: All right. That was beautiful.

B: So are you. Thank you for sharing.

Q2: I’ve been keeping myself away from a relationship – especially in terms of my relationship to, or with, myself.

B: One moment. All right. For a moment that did not translate, for that is quite impossible. You always have a relationship, no matter how you define it.

Q: Yes.

B: Proceed with the definition of the relationship you are creating.

Q: In other words, what I am not creating is a male/female relationship.

B: All right. We assume you mean in a specific way.

Q: Correct. In a more romantic way. Last week.

B: Last week?

Q: Evidently I created three rather extraordinary men. Each successful, powerful, wealthy, interesting, who all seemed to be wanting me in their lives for the rest of their lives.

B: All right. So?

Q: So, I was told by another person that I carry a certain energy, one that triggers something in a man that makes him think that I am "the one." And so it leaves me feeling a bit strange.

B: All right. What you are basically carrying with this idea, is that you are attracting individuals who you are then giving an opportunity to begin to open up and recognize the changes going on in your world. You are beginning to realize you are all married to each other.

Q: Ha, ha, ha. Yes.

B: And the idea of relationships does not have to be mutually exclusive to each but can be enhancing.

Q: All right. That was the next thing. I wanted to see what the purpose was of this situation coming into my life.

B: That is one of them.

Q: Okay. The other part is, two are in the film industry; one of them is a star and the other a producer. My feeling is that I am supposed to be joining with them or serving them in some way to bring something larger than just the personal relationship there. I feel that a personal relationship is not what I’m supposed to do.
B: We understand your definition. Proceed simply with your feeling. Do what is integrated for you. Be who you are, and you will allow them the best opportunity to learn who they are.

Q: Do you see a larger sense of purpose? In other words, is there a film that I will bring to one of them, or...

B: A film is a larger sense of purpose—than learning who you are?

Q: When one makes a film, that produces an impact on many people.

B: We know. Impact, yes. It is highly probable. However, not unless you are being yourself and allowing full communication within the entire relationship that you are to allow them to understand who you are, truly who you are, honestly. Communication will be critical in these endeavors. If they do not believe they can interact honestly, then you may create difficulty in any form of impact.

So you must be honest about who and what you are, and what you are attracting. And if you recognize that what you are attracting is representative of who and what you are, then make the assumption that it is mutually enhancing, not exclusive. And that they themselves are connected in many ways or they wouldn’t be connected to you.

Q: Ha, ha! Oh great! So you’re saying, maintain these three relationships.

B: I am not telling you what to do; I am suggesting that you follow your cleanest and dearest, most integrated instincts and allow things to be natural. Not normal, natural. You follow me?

Q: I think so.

B: All right. Do not necessarily impose or superimpose the particular frame of sociological reference upon these ideas that your society may want you to impose sociologically. Understand that if you have attracted them all, there is a reason for it.

Q: Do you think I should maintain a non-sexual relationship with them?

B: That is up to you and your feelings. I cannot guide you in this; I cannot tell you what to do. It is your life and you have the capability of trusting your instincts. You have the capability of knowing why you are doing what you are choosing to do. But first and foremost, in all endeavors, it is our suggestion that the lines of communication about what you are doing be absolutely clear between all involved, so that all know where they stand.

Q: Yes. I’m doing that, except with one.

B: All right. “I’m doing it except with one.” All—except with one. What a fascinating language you have.

Q: Yes. [Laughing]

B: Complete the triad. Make it all. Relax; enjoy; take it easy. Observe; act with trust. Do what represents who you are, don’t do what represents who you are not. Period. That’s all there is to it. It’s that easy. You have been together many times before, all of you.
Q: Aha!
B: You are simply playing out a dance; let it be a smooth one. It does not have to be a struggle. The old patterns don’t have to come into it. You follow me?
Q: Yes. But this one I’m with tonight in particular really wants an exclusive marriage relationship.
B: You will understand tonight.
Q: [laughing hard] Okay. All right. Thank you.
Many times in understanding the growth, the evolutionary patterns that are taking place upon your society, we will recognize that many of these patterns, will, shall we say, play themselves out in your artistic endeavors, your, what you call, media events. And so we watch these very closely to understand the different concepts you are now examining and exploring, because very often you will explore these ideas in your media events before you will begin to really allow yourselves to communicate socially these ideas "out loud," in public. And when we observe that certain ideas that are being presented to your different forms of media are being accepted, are being examined, are being expanded upon, then we get to understand how you are changing, and in what way you are growing, and how much more, perhaps, you are, as a society, prepared to be with other societies such as ourselves.

We refer to such expressions as your television programs, your radio programs, your theatrical film events as indicators of what is foremost in your mind, what is foremost in your ability to explore and believe. We have, from time to time, mentioned to you that it is quite common for various societies that we have observed, many different civilizations, to express their timing through some form of sociological, artistic event. And we have mentioned, in times past, the particular creation you have upon your planet called Star Trek, is an indication, very strong indication, of many of the different concepts that your society is now willing to become aware of.

It is utilized, if you will, as a forum for displaying and dispensing and discussing new ideas, new directions, new expressions, new perspectives, in what might seem to be a very inoffensive and harmless way, a non-threatening way. And yet, at the same time, is available to examine different sociological and political and economic and religious forums that can bring about an acceptance of new methodologies that will allow your society to move – perhaps, at first subtly, but eventually, in a more accelerated way in those directions that we have observed your society to be expanding in – where you are changing your political, economic and social structure toward more global consciousness and unification.

You now have within your media yet another television program that we are aware of, going by your name of Sliders. This show, Sliders, deals specially with the concept we have discussed many times, and even your own scientists are now quite aware of, and that is the existence of parallel realities, parallel probable Earth realities, universal realities, a myriad of them, an infinite number of them. Each slightly different or even as you say, sometimes wildly different from the Earth time-stream that you know. Each possessing a different history, a different present, and a different future, if you will.

Now, the reason that we bring up this concept of parallel realities once again in this particular way, is that, as have we have said, we recognize that now that this concept is actually then extended into what you call one of your television formats, that is an indication that it has "sunk into" the collective consciousness to a sufficient degree that you can utilize this concept in another way.
You are wave upon wave of radiant energy: be at the center of yourself. Know you are the center, the eye of Creation through which Creation learns to see Itself in all the ways that are possible to see. You, us, all beings in Creation are all the ways it is possible to see.
Be the waves that beat upon the shore of your own reality, changing with love, changing with touch, changing with involvement, changing with time and space, all the ideas you have ever been. All that you require is to find that place of power. All that you require is to feel that place of power. All that you are is that place of power.
Be the imagination that you were designed to be. For do remember, an imagination is not something that you have, an imagination is what you are. You are a dimension unto itself.
We radiate our love, we radiate our pulse. Feel the pulse, feel the heart, the universal beat that synchronizes all beings in love and light. Feel the pulse.
We wash through you as you wash through us. We bid you ... the stars.

Meditation and Imagination

Q: Since I came here tonight my heart is beating kind of erratically...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and it hasn’t happened for a long time...
B: There will be no answer, other than the obvious. You are simply becoming more sensitive to the accelerations and the shiftings that are taking place upon your planet.
Q: Okay. I did a meditation last week, and in the meditation you visualized whatever colored light you wanted to come into your crown chakra, and then followed it to a spaceship.
B: Yes.
Q: And I did, and I followed it to... and I haven’t really, you know...
B: Proceed! No excuses.
Q: Okay. Well, you know I haven’t really manifested with ships and stuff before, so...
B: No excuses.
Q: I went ahead and went into the ship, and the questions that I raised in my mind were about how the beings seemed humanoid looking, they didn’t seem any different than us...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and there were, like, four of them, and they just kind of looked at me with more of a puzzled state than judgmental. Their facial expressions were like: “Oh, that’s what he is,” or something like that.
B: Yes.
Q: I thought it was a very small ship. Was it Pleiadian?
B: Yes.
Q: Right, thank you.
B: Sharing!
Q2: Many people have used the word meditation tonight.
B: Yes.
Q: And I’m not understanding...
B: What is meditation to you? Life is meditation.
Q: Life is meditation. When I go inside to get in touch with my own awareness and sensitivities...
B: Yes.
Q: I leave imagination to the side.
B: No.
Q: It’s not consciously left to the side, but there’s a...
B: You are going into the dimension of your imagination when you meditate.
Q: Isn’t imagination then a certain channeling of mind energy?
B: Not so much the idea of channeling mind energy, although that can come into it, but imagination is the conduit and the channel between all that is your physical reality and all that is not. Not that it isn’t real; it is just not visible.

Q: (Pauses)
B: Where do you wish to take this?
Q: I’m not sure.
B: What is it you are looking for? What do you find that the idea of your meditation does for you?
Q: It does different things.
B: Yes.
Q: When I was sitting here and the physical channel sat down in the chair in the very early start of the evening, it was quiet, and I just closed my eyes and everything stopped inside.
B: Yes. Which means you were infinitely accelerated.
Q: And then when you started speaking, I got incredibly drowsy.
B: Yes, it is not unusual.
Q: And I remained in that state...
B: You are disassociating, unlocking from realities you have previously considered to be the only realities with which you have interacted. You are disorienting from them and reorienting to other realms of yourself. That can, in your civilization, from time to time, cause the idea of drowsiness, as you are, to some degree, pulling back or pulling out of a strong focus in physical reality.

You are forming conscious connections while you are awake with more of your consciousness, and at the beginning it can cause the idea of drowsiness. So that you create a buffer that is comfortable in which you can experience that idea. Do you follow me?
Q: If this drowsiness... it sometimes feels like a block of wanting to prevent myself from delving into what actually is going on, or the energy that’s going on.
B: It can feel that way, but you do not have to consider it a block. Simply consider it a sign that points in an unexpected direction – follow it.
Q: How do I shake myself out of that drowsiness?
B: It is not the idea of shaking yourself out. That is the point. Use it. Go into the dimension of imagination and explore.
Q: When I go into that drowsiness, I sleep.
B: That is only because you judge it. Go into it, and do not judge it.
Q: When I sleep, I lose the consciousness.
B: No. No.
Q: That’s what makes me...
Q: I don’t remember.
B: But that lack of memory is created. You are choosing to be unconsciously knowing. But choosing to be unconsciously knowing is the same thing as being consciously unknowing. Which is the same thing as being unwilling to know, consciously, what you think you know unconsciously. It is the same equation.
There is no need to carry with you the belief that you do not know what you need to know, consciously. It is only an assumption upon your part that you do not know it consciously, that creates for you a situation in which you can know it, which is only in the unconscious state.
Know that you know whatever you need to know, consciously, and allow physical life to also be part of your meditation. You do not have to shut physical life off in order to meditate. You can flow with it. And that can allow the idea of drowsiness to become dream-ness: dreamlike qualities, not drowsiness, but dreamlike.
Your life can begin to take on dreamlike qualities, and as it does you will recognize – if you choose to – that you are now living your dreams. And they are one and the same. And your imagination has functioned as the conduit that has blended physical reality and dream reality into one dimension of imagination. Which may, from time to time, have dreamlike qualities. But it does not have to translate into drowsiness.
Simply utilize your imagination. Recognize that it was your imagination to begin with that gave you whatever method of meditation you are comfortable with. So recognize, far from setting your imagination aside, your imagination is what was responsible for creating the type of meditation you do. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Then imagination is the source of all you wish to accomplish. Go within that, and you will be awake and aware in the dream.
Q: Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you!
Meditation And Integration Of Energies For Earth

Q: I wanted to ask you this question: I just came across a book... and it said the weakest link in the Earth’s atmosphere, on the Earth, is from the twenty seventh to the thirty eighth parallel, where there are all the earthquakes and all the volcanic eruptions and all that. And that only mass meditations, group meditations, can save the Earth at this time. And it also says that around the middle of 1986 there will be a big change. Is that when most of the people on Earth will recognize that only meditation can save us?

B: In a sense, now understand it is not the idea specifically that only meditation can “save” you. Recognize the subtlety of the idea of the difference: It is the INTEGRATION OF YOURSELVES WITHIN THE TOTALITY OF YOUR CONSCIOUSNESS that will allow you to know that you do not need saving. And that you can transform any physiological symbols of what you term to be the Earth’s shifting. Transform them into another type of energy where you do not need to experience that idea to allow you to believe you can transform without struggle, without strife.

Now, recognize you had created approximately ten ideas of the transformation that were in a sense, a little bit negative. But recognize that, through the idea of blending and integration, you have reduced them to approximately three, in that way. And they need not be experienced in the totality as negative – as they heretofore would have been.

Recognize that this, in a form, is the same idea as having created a meditation that allows you to “save” yourselves. For it is not an idea of saving, it is an idea of re-channeling the energy by simply allowing yourself to know that there is no need to go through a transformation with strife, and that you can deserve to transform into anything you wish, without suffering. This is what has been expressed by that idea.

Recognize it is being expressed somewhat colloquially, so that certain individuals will be able to understand the message. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. Now, what about all the energy coming back from Atlantis and from other places?

B: What about it?

Q: It is like we are bombarded by all that energy.

B: Again: You are that energy. You are that energy.

Q: So we are connecting with that energy?

B: Yes, in a sense. You are that energy.

Q: It’s like we are opening up the switch to the electricity.

B: In a sense. YOU ARE THE ENERGY. Do you follow me?

Q: But why are there only a certain few people, in connection, today?

B: Many more than there used to be – do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Understand that this is the idea again within physical reality – that there is an expansion. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. The only thing I don’t like is that many groups are really... how do you say it... they have an idea to fix something, and they are not open to the whole universe.

B: So what?

Q: It’s like they are fighting the darkness.

B: So what?

Q: But there is no darkness. Or the darkness is...

B: All right. Understand again: yes, that which you deem to fight, you will reinforce.

Q: That’s right.

B: But again, that is their reality. So what? What has that got to do with you?

Q: But it’s part of the universe. There are groups that are becoming really, really big.

B: So what? Do you believe that they will affect your reality?

Q: (Pauses) ... No!

B: Thank you. End of conversation. (AUD: laughter)

Q: Thank you.

B: Sharing!

Meditation and Integration of Energies for Earth
Meditation

Let us, again, close the eyes...and let us extend, in a brief meditation once again, for the purpose, again, of strengthening this connection and alignment, of grounding a connection to the Infinite Source.

Take a deep breath in, remember the heartbeat, remember the alignment, remember the flow...and out; and, once again, in...and out; and, once again, in...and out. Three times one for each aspect of the personality: belief, emotion, and thought pattern action and to align the prism of your personality construct.

Continue to breath in a regular manner, and imagine that you are standing in a beautiful place: either a grassy park or a beach or some form of nature, anything in nature, anyplace of natural views, anytime either day or night, imagine standing straight and tall and true in this place of peace and tranquility and expansiveness.

As you see that you are standing in such a place and with your inner sight you look around at the expanded arisen and vistas before you, the sky, the ground, the trees, the rocks, the water, whatever there may be...allow yourself now to become more aware of the different chakra points within you, as if they are beads on a string, beautiful glowing beads. Each of a different color: in the root chakra a glowing ruby red, a beautiful glowing red. Moving on up the string, a glowing orange, topaz like stone. Moving on up into the Solar Plexus a beautiful yellow citrine crystalline stone. Moving on up into the heart chakra a gorgeous flawless green emerald, like the verdant grass that surrounds you. Moving on up a state of beautiful sapphire light like stone, a beautiful light sky blue in the throat. Moving on up into the third eye a deep, deep purple amethyst stone. Moving on up to the crown chakra, the beautiful amethyst spiral, the spender and radiance of its blooms and gleans. Now the crown chakra is actually shaped like a ring, a circle, a crown, literally, and in this sense, again, as been depicted in many of your religious paintings, as what you call the halo, the crown chakra. Allow yourselves to look up the string and see that there is a cone, point downward, spiraling up and expanding outward, a beautiful white light up and up, and up and up, becoming more and more and more crystalline and transparent until it aligns to the top into a beautiful transparent flawless crystalline clear sphere of energy, way at the top of the line of light that runs through. And then from there look down, all the way down the string back through every little chakra point, let it tickle as you go down, and feel it go down through the root, down into the knees, where forms a base, a structure, a support system of flexibility, and motion, and through you into the deeper colors of reds and browns and earth tones, below the feet, deep, deep, deep into the earth, to the core of the planet itself. Feel the string go all the way down, anchoring, so that you feel you are like a giant being suspended on a string, suspended on a beautiful string of light, from the center of the earth, up to the top, up through the crown, back up to the crystalline source.

Now pluck the string on top and hear and feel the resonant vibrations, the harmonics above you singing like a chorus of angels as the music of the spheres. Pluck the string below your feet and hear the deep resonant tones of the foundations of the rumblings of the earth and the solidity of the knowledge, of ancient knowledge and wisdom. And feel the string within you, pluck it, and the beautiful harmonies of all the different sounds and voices, of each of the beautiful colors and of the strings that provide the spectrum of light that make up your physiological selves. And as you feel this string, this light, then come down, allow the now to expand further up, further down, allow the crystal to be on top sore away from you – higher, higher getting away from you, as far as it is possible to go and time and space beyond those barriers is finished forever and ever. And the string below you to expand to infinity, down, down, down until it becomes deep pulsing black, the blackness of night. Unbroken by the stars and beyond all thoughts of sound, go down, deep forever, forever. Up and down, then bring the crystal leaf back down, bring the foundation string back up, and bring them closer and closer, closer to your body, closer and closer there just feel them resonate above and below. The likeness, the purity, the ringing of the crystalline bead on top. It is the deep foundational vibration below your feet, the subterranean bellows, then stretch them back out to their normal place, just so far away on top, just so away on bottom, to the center of your earth, and up into the stars and again see that you are in this place of perfect peace, perfect balance of the center, surrounded by the beauty of nature, and see the you stretch out your hand to the right and the left and allow, allow, allow your left palm to face up, your right palm to face down and feel the energy of perception, of allowance in your left hand, all the energies flowing down from the heavens, pouring onto the palm of your left hand, flowing up your arm, around your elbow, in your shoulder, down pouring through you, filling up your body with this beautiful liquid light. All the way to the top of your head as if you were a hollow crystal shell, and feel it flow out your right arm, down, down to your wrist and out the palm flowing downwards into the earth, downward into the earth. And feel energy rising from the earth, going in the opposite direction of that flow and at the same time coming up into your right palm a deep, a deeper orange. Flowing, again, in your right hand, into your right arm, filling you up blending and mixing with the other fluids, flowing. The beautiful white, golden light from above, mixing with the beautiful deep, deep, deep colors of the earth. And flowing out your left your left arm, and flowing back up to the heavens out of your left hand, so that there is this flow in both directions. See yourself doing this, feel the vibration, then, then, when you are full bring your hands together and complete the circuit so that these two substances of liquid light, these two flows, now flowing in both directions, bring your hands together in the prayer mode, flowing in both directions from palm to palm, around and around in your body, up and down, through and through in both directions. Then open your fingers, touching only fingertips, and bring your hand down and down to the solar plexus, and feel there a beam of light, forward and backward, future and past, suspending you in the present, balancing in the now, then raise your hands apart and flow energy out, and take energy into this beautiful place you have created yourself to be in. Feel yourself connecting to all the elements of nature, the ground, the soil, the rocks, the trees, grass, animals, earth moving, clouds and sky...everything. The sounds the sights, the smells, feel align and vibrate, new, first-born, yet ancient, ancient and old and wise. All the same time the blending of all polarities, male and female, light and dark, past and future, all ideas blend from the center. All ideas come from the center. You, again, are the glowing crucible in which all the realities melt and are reformed, according to your intention, which is illuminated by your excitement, your joy. The vibration of your destiny your chosen past, self created karma in this life to be uniquely you, the you you are. To cherish, to love the unique you that you are, to relax into the unique you that you are, so that you do not to fret, so that you do not need to worry – so that you do not need to create stress. You can know what you need to know when you need to know, if you will but be who you know yourself to be.

Take a deep breath in while standing in this beautiful place of perfect peace, smelling the rich smells – let it out. Take another deep breath in, feeling your alignments, your belief patterns, and your emotions, your thoughts, your bodies, your minds, your spirits, knowingness, your consciousness, your awareness, everything tingling, vibrating. Take another deep breath in, and out. It is beautiful just to be, it is beautiful and powerful to simple choose to be what you wish to be. It is beautiful and powerful to recognize that you can align and be aligned with all the ideas and can still express a unique diverse richness of self.

GO back into that blend, because that’s where all realities are, that’s where information is, that’s where all answers lie. Remember: it is natural, natural, NATURAL when you know you cannot find what you need in the reflection of the external outside world, it is natural for you to draw within. This is not negative depression, as you have defined it, it is only negative and becomes lonely and isolating when you define it as a negative, as an unnatural thing, as something being wrong. It is compression; it is going to where you know the information is, in the center of yourself. It is GOING within the crucible to restructure, re-identify, redefine what you are. And to thus thereafter emerged as a new being, like a butterfly from the chrysalis. Spread new wings of beautiful vibrant color, flap them and fly. This is what going within is all about. It is natural without judgments…allowance. It is a creative act of rebirth, giving birth to yourselves, over and over and over again – infinitely, for change is the only constant that really exists within the manifested reality of your world.

Now open your eyes. And, again, understand: you are, at every moment, you. You are not those people who existed, really, at the beginning of this workshop, you are new. You are a new ideas and the changes you have made have changed everything in Creation, everything, everything. Go forth and act in the manner that shows you know this to be so. Do not put heaviness and hesitations upon yourselves, if you allow yourselves to lighten up, you will find that you are capable of anything and everything when you remove expectations that you must do everything perfect. This, again, is the paradox, not to really use paradox to your advantage, not to see it as a trap, not to see it as an obstacle, but to feel the vibration, to go within, to know that in that space, in that time, in that spacelessness, in that timelessness is all probable realities, is all possible experience. You recognize in that space who you are, to choose to be through your imagination who you wish to be and you emerge through your actions to express that idea in whatever way shape of form is reflective of the excitement of the joy and the unconditional love of THIS NOW moment as you have deemed it is to be so. You have free will, use it.

Now then, how are you all?
AUD: Excellent. Great. Fantastic. Et cetera…

There will be time now for some interactions, that which is to you called questions. Sharing!
Q: I would like to ask you about a dream…
Memory And Living In The Moment

Q: I have a question about music.
B: Yes.
Q: I’ve always wanted to have a fantastic memory, and it’s never been there. And I wonder . . .
B: Oh, that’s all right. Many individuals on your planet now, because this is the transformational age, will begin to recognize that they no longer need the way you typically use your memory. For the idea is that, as soon as you are living completely in the moment, you will know what you need to know, when you need to know it – according to whatever idea you are truly fully being at that moment. Whether you have ever known it before or not. So, memory: begin to treat it as a thing of the present, not a thing of the past.
Q: And it terms of retention?
B: Again: you will know what you need to know, when you need to know it. And when you don’t need to know it, you won’t. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: That is living in the moment. Look at the idea of an animal, if you will, as an analogy for a moment. Let us say you have – let us use the fourth-density symbol – the cat. For you know it exists on more than one level. It knows the spiritual side as experientially as it knows the physical side. It exists in both worlds – what you call the ethereal and the physical, simultaneously – and knows it. It crosses one of your streets, and along comes one of your automobiles. The cat avoids it, runs across, goes under a fence, or over a fence, and surveys the yard beyond the fence. And jumps into the yard.
Now: for the cat, the avoidance of the idea of the automobile is, at that moment, the total absorption it is in. And soon as it is approaching the fence, the total absorption is on the fence, on climbing the fence. As soon as it sees the yard, the total absorption is in the yard. The idea is completely lived in the moment. There is no need for the retention to the aspect of the interchange with the automobile, because that does not serve the cat in looking at the yard. When it looks at the yard, that’s all it is doing – doing everything it needs to do to look at the yard. If there is an aspect of the interchange it had with the automobile that will serve it in allowing it to look at the yard more completely, then that aspect will be there in its knowledge. But it will not be memory in the same way you think of as memory. It will be absolute understanding: knowing in that moment what the animal needs to know to be what it is, and what it needs to do at that moment.
That is what many of you are learning also to do. So an individual, who is completely, at any given moment, being the idea of the musical piece that they desire to play, will play it. They will know it, note by note, exactly when they need to know that note. And if they allow themselves to channel that trust and knowledge, then their fingers will move magically, automatically. It will be an in-spired performance. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much for your inspiration.
Q: Thank you.
B: Breathe: inspire - breathe within. Inspiration. Thank you.

Bashar: Channeled by Darryl Anka
Circa 1997
Men in Black
Question: The Men in Black are they hybrids? Are they inter-dimensional beings?
Bashar: We have discussed this and the idea is that, from time to time, they actually have been several things. Number one: there have been a few instances of what you have called literalization, in the sense that there have been, from time to time, beings that have actually donned the garb for the purpose of dissuading information flow on certain subjects. Sometimes, in a few instances, they have been also members of your own society, in what you would call some of your shadow government aspects, but for the most part, they have actually been the idea of other kinds of beings. But the largest level, of what you refer to as Men in Black, is actually a physicalized manifestation of a certain level of the collective subconscious of your reality reflecting back to itself, its willingness or lack thereof, to penetrate the deeper mysteries of life.
Q: So it is a myriad of things, really.
B: Yes. It has become all mixed up in what you would call your collective mythology.
Q: Do you think that mind control and Satanism is rampant in this country as much as....
B: They do exist and there are many programs that are relatively far reaching and wide scale. It may not, in that sense, be what you would call RAMPANT but, nevertheless, they are widescale enough to be having, in certain areas, a significant impact.
Q: Okay. Two more quick questions: is it possible that a reptilian, which is obviously capable of shape shifting, could actually take the body of ... let’s say a government official for a certain length of time?
B: This kind of thing, with a large concentrated and cohesive focus from many different levels of the collective consciousness, can happen. It does not happen, or has not happened to any degree near the percentage that certain individuals on your planet sometimes espouse that such a thing has occurred. It has occurred from time to time, but in the overall scheme of things, let us say, going to what you would call zero to one hundred percent of all such occurrences, you’re actually looking at something that in the entire history of this being done by those beings, you would only really hover somewhere around, perhaps, three percent.
Q: That’s a lot though. That’s significant because I’ve only heard of it in one instance. For some reason it just ... the person that told me ... it felt so real.
B: Yes. Now, again, also remember that even when such a thing may have occurred, it doesn’t necessarily mean that it is a perpetual thing. Sometimes it can simply be a very temporally, momentary type of manifestation for a very specific reason.
Q: That’s exactly what I thought, it was only for a year or something like that.
B: And there are also other types of beings that have done this for a variety of reasons as well.
Q: Really like what? Like whom?

B: Now we are stretching the edge of the envelope of information that is allowable at this time on your planet but we are allowed to tell you that sometimes one move has a countermove. There is a game of chess going on...
Q: Really?
B: ... and sometimes one side makes a move that another side will countermove in exactly an identical way.
Q: There seems to be some kind of struggle going on...
B: It’s not a struggle, it is a game of chess.
Q: Definitely, something coming to a head, I feel.
B: Yes ... checkmate.
Q: Soon? Is it a checkmate?
B: Yes, in a sense.
Q: Who are playing? Who are they?
B: Everyone.
Q: Oh, our collective consciousness.
B: Yes, although there are those that are in positions to have a better view of the board and understand exactly how the pieces can be moved.
Q: Global elite being one?
B: We are talking about something much bigger, though they play their part and are represented on the board by their piece.
Q: And you can’t tell who these groups might be? We are very curious.
B: Oh, yes I can...
Q: Will you?
B: No, but I will not because it is inappropriate at this time. It would be, in a sense, like giving away certain moves in a game of chess, rather than simply allowing them to occur spontaneously and let the game unfold in the way that it needs to.
Q: Well I guess we are helping all we can by raising our consciousness.
B: Yessss.
Q: A friend of mine told me...
B: One moment ... there will be allowed more on this specific subject later.
Q: Wonderful.
B: One aspect of the energy intelligence more actively and more consciously aware of the specific moves in the chess game will talk at a future time, all right?
Q: All right. Was that another entity that came through?
B: Partly.
Q: Can you identify?
B: In tapping in we will always exemplify a part of the energy that we are referring to and I have already told you that this will come at another time, so don’t ask.
Q: Okay, I just thought that you would like to share that...
B: I already told you that we could not, that is the energy we were referring to when we said that we could not, or would not.
Q: Very exciting, I can’t wait to...
B: But in the delivery of the message from that entity, that such a thing could happen, in the future, you received part of the energy, a small fragment of it, but already it was told to you that its identity would not be revealed to you.
Q: Okay, well I wasn’t sure it was same entity.
B: Now you are.
Q: Okay. One other question, I had the feeling that I might have another implant in the in the right side of my face...
B: No comment.
Q: Okay, one other thing, a friend of mind, a guy that I was seeing about a year ago, told me that he saw me shift into a snake and I was wondering if that was a momentarily shape shift type thing?
B: Yes.
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: Thank you. That’s why, at least it is one of the reasons why, the agenda of the interaction between your species and what you call the Greys has a time limit, because they know they can only pull you into their dimensional reality so often before you will become masterful at navigating in that dimension on your own and, in a sense, become equal to their technology.
Q: Several months ago you talked to somebody about Merlin. Could you explain what Merlin is and how we can touch the Merlin in each of us?

B: In a sense there are others who will deliver this information; but the idea of Merlin is, in a sense, its own identity; and it is an archetypal conglomerate of your civilization’s mass consciousness that does express itself as an individual being.

Q: Okay.

B: Others will deliver more of this connection. At this time, that energy, for now, is not our place.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Metaphysical Concepts

Section One

Now we come to the idea that, in your vernacular, is termed metaphysics. With the blending from third to fourth density, you are now able to begin to understand how many of the ideas you have previously held to be metaphysical, that is more than physical, can also, to some degree, be included in what is becoming your more rarified, more accelerated physical reality in fourth density, as you will come to know it.

You will begin to realize that all these ideas that you have considered metaphysical will fall into place as simply more or less symbolic, separated viewpoint ideas of your own abilities, your own connections, put into frameworks that would allow you to function with those abilities in a more or less acceptable manner according to whatever mores were prevalent in your society at the time you were exercising these abilities publicly. Thus, you have created many symbolic ideas that you have placed under one heading you call metaphysics, to define and describe the action of the abilities you have always had and always will have. But you chose to make connections for these abilities by creating symbols in physical reality that would represent these powers that you found yourself in possession of without necessarily having to point a finger at anyone for doing something that was not allowed in the society at the time.

Now, you will find that in the very beginnings of these ideas, when you first created the idea of separation of yourself from All That Is, these abilities were then, when exhibited, attributed to the idea of the deities, whether one or many, you believed in and had created to exist outside yourselves. Simply, you could always point your finger at something that could be above reproach. It could not be called to task for expressing itself in that way, as it was expected that the gods should express themselves in mysterious ways. Thus, the first idea of metaphysics extended from assigning these abilities to some supposedly greater power than yourselves, and in this way, as you sought to define these greater powers within a limited perspective, you began to assign aspects and, I’ll say, trappings to these deities that would explain some of these powers in ways that you could interpret through objects you were familiar with in day-to-day life.

Thus, your intuition, your imagination, allowed you to make symbolic connections between certain objects and certain aspects you had assigned to these deities. Having thus projected that portion of yourself outside yourself and created the idea of these deities, you allowed yourself to then feel that these objects that symbolically represented these aspects of these deities could also, in themselves, contain the same powers, and these powers could be utilized, coaxed, extracted from these objects so that you could be in communication, consciously, with these deities you had created, but did not know you were creating.

In this way you find that the things of nature were first used, utilized as the symbols. Plants, rocks, twigs, animals, crystalline forms, became refined over a period of years into more modernized versions of these ideas; twigs into wands, crystals into crystal balls, and markings, the idea of symbolic representation, into writings, runes, cards, and so forth. Still, you could transfer these abilities to these objects and stay in touch with these aspects of these deities you had created, even though your civilization became more and more modern.

Recognize that much in your society still holds to the belief that it is the objects themselves, which contain the power. You are now beginning to realize, in recent times of your counting, that each and every one of you actually exhibits the power, the ability to sense remotely, to know, to pre-cognize yourself, to create future memory, to recognize yourself, to create past memory, re-cognize. In this way, you are now beginning to create the idea that the tools of metaphysics are simply this, only tools, and they are symbolically representative of the abilities and the powers that you yourself contain.

Now, many times, you will still find that many of those practicing what your general society considers to be metaphysical attributes, whether it be palmistry, tarot card reading, healing, psychic functioning, or what-have-you, many of these individuals exhibiting these traits still, to some extent, will remove these abilities, the source of these abilities, from themselves and place it on a greater power than they perceive themselves to be.

Now, understand, we are not saying that there is no creator that recognizes itself as a single entity. There is. But also the creator recognizes itself not only as a single entity, but as the conglomeration of all entities that are created within it, and, in a very holographic way, it recognizes that each entity it has created reflects the totality of the whole creator, and thus is, in itself, actually the whole creator, since to the creator, that which it can think is real reality. Thus, the concept becomes the actual dimension of experience and each and every being exhibiting these traits finds that it is its own source, his or her own source, of these abilities.

Each individual, thus, being the creator, and in your society, since, to some degree, you are still choosing to create the idea of separation of the event of your life from yourself, rather than as yourself, then, many times – even though you may recognize that you have these abilities yourself - many times you will still choose to create a symbolic tool to allow you to trigger these abilities within you, to re-cognize these abilities within you, to create past memory, and pre-cognize, to create future memory of these abilities, and focus them in your present application through the mechanism that is called channeling.

Now, many times in your metaphysical jargon, the idea you call channeling or, as you used to call it, mediumship, will represent something very specific to you. Your colloquial vernacular will have it that the channeler or medium will be allowing the spirit of a deceased individual, deceased consciousness, nonphysical consciousness, to inhabit their physical form and speak through them, or to be able to sense the communication from the nonphysical consciousness and speak for them. Now, while this is, in a sense, a possibility, recognize that the idea, intrinsically, basically, foundationally, that you call channeling is any function of creation from higher self to physical self. Thus, music is channeling, painting is channeling, any kind of creativity in any endeavor at all is channeling in a sense. Thus recognize, simply that, first and foremost, the vernacular of metaphysics on your planet as it exists now, many times, will find that all of the practitioners, the conscious practitioners, that is, subscribe to specific schools of thought, and still recognize, even though they are the conscious practitioners themselves, a differentiation and a separation between what they are doing and what any other practitioner is doing. There is no unification, and there are just as many theories for why the practitioners are doing what they are doing as there are practitioners.

Simply recognize that every practitioner is a channeler, even the unconscious ones. You are always channeling, channeling the energy of your higher consciousness into your physical reality for whatever purpose you wish to express it. The symbols that you have created in metaphysics have allowed you to become consciously aware of your own channeling abilities; consciously aware of the fact that you create your own reality, and this is the common bond for all practitioners, conscious and unconscious, that you are creating your reality.

Now, recognize that many of your directions of sensing will be representative of that which you innately know, but find you can only ascribe to certain methodologies of perspective. And so you have created the different disciplines to allow for all the different aspects, which you have created in physical reality, out of the consciousness and the mentality from which you function, to give you this idea, this illusion of physical reality.

· Therefore, you have the ideas you call astrology to determine the aspects of your predetermination and freedom of choice, which you call fates and destinies.
· You have the idea of palmistry to detail the physicalized representation of these choices.
· You have the card reading to detail not only the physiological but the emotional patterns which you have created in creating your life.
· You have the idea of psychic sensing to allow you to divine the belief structures and the emotional and the physiological structures.

You have created many different levels of tools to allow you to function on whatever aspect or level of understanding that you wish to create. Simply remember that you have created yourself to be this way.

Now, again, all of these ideas are simply tools. The individuals utilizing the tools are the ones exercising the sensing, the powers.

Now, astrology will be, to some degree, an exception, in that not only is it a subjective tool but it does, to some degree, represent vibrational patterns of agreement within the overall mass consciousness choices that have been made. To some degree, it does reflect a sensing of the mass unconscious and subconscious, and you bring to the surface, through this tool you call astrology, your relationship, not so much to the idea of the stars and the planets, but to yourselves, to other aspects of your own consciousness, symbolically represented by the stars and the planets, in terms of the level of the vibrations they represent to you, which is equal to the vibrations of your higher consciousness, symbolically, in an archetypal fashion.

You will find that all the ideas of palmistry, leaf reading, card reading, crystal ball gazing, direct psychic sensing, psychometry, and so forth, are simply all the same type of extension of sensing, the same type of utilization of your knowingness, and in this way, you are creating specific triggers which, in and of themselves, because of the choice you have made, reflect certain portions of ideas that the ones exhibiting the powers are exploring about themselves in their own physical life.

Thus, someone can easily read, in a sense, the reader, by seeing what approach they have taken, and exactly how much of the idea, of the total idea of themselves, is apparent in the particular methodology that has been chosen by that person expressing themselves in that manner.

Now, the idea also of crystal gazing will be a different kind of sensing, in that the tool in question, the crystal, will represent a symbol, again in the mass consciousness, and will reflect the orderly matrix of energy that the consciousness is in sustaining the existence of the physical reality. Thus, it becomes a high vibratory tool, a very, very, in a sense, naked reflection of the mentality that has been ordered into existence and put into orderly existence by the consciousness itself. Thus, an affinity for crystal will exhibit a high degree of compatibility between the mentality and the non-physical consciousness.

Affinity to astrology will exhibit a high degree of compatibility between the mentality and the emotional vibrational level of consciousness.

The idea of the majority of the other forms of sensing, in terms of tool using: leaf reading, palmistry, card reading, rune reading, anything that describes the idea of a line, a configuration, or a shape, specifically, will be a reflection of compatibility, an affinity, for the mentality to itself, in a sense, a reflection of the orderliness of the mentality itself, the idea of translation, and a direct link into the imagination mechanism.

Thus you will find that within these ideas are represented:
· The shape or configuration reading, the mental thought process, physicality and imagination,
· The astrological type of sensing, or vibrational pattern sensing, the connection to the emotionality pattern of the personality, the understanding of vibration and movement, e-motion, energy motion.
· And the crystal gazing - direct sensing knowingness.
· And what you call channeling, specifically, reflective of the idea of an affinity, and a representational symbol of the belief structure of the personality, as we have defined this; the thought, emotion, and belief structure to be the three facets of the personality prism, the artificial construct, and thus, these categories will represent, to some degree, the idea of the approach, the overall methodology of the being that is exploring itself in this physical life.

You will find that, as you begin to understand all of these ideas, all of these meta-physical ideas, as something that is now becoming blended within the knowingness of yourself and the transformation from third to fourth density, they will take on different aspects. In the second half of this particular chapter, we will discuss the effects of this blending, as we have done in the previous chapters for each respective subject.

This will be the termination of Section One of this chapter of the work.

Section Two
Now, allow us to discuss this idea of metaphysics when viewed through the perspective of the fourth density reality that you are creating in your society at this time.

All the ideas we have discussed and the various levels through which these symbols channel themselves through the personality into physical reality will all begin to become far more personalized. As we have said, everyone is channeling, in a sense. Therefore, this idea will embody the facilitation of a conscious recognition of the higher self and direct communication with that portion of the consciousness.

You will find that the individuals upon your planet can begin, in a sense, to actually see themselves as the symbols they have previously held to be outside themselves to represent the abilities they were expressing. Now, this does not mean that you will become a deck of cards, a cup of tea-leaves, no. But you will understand. You will identify completely with the reflection that the archetypal symbol represents, and in so identifying, you will become one with the energy that you used from your subconscious/mass conscious level to form that symbol for yourself.

In other words, you will see exactly how this particular symbol was chosen by yourself, what it reflects, why you chose it, and in this sensing, in this direct sensing, you can allow yourself to remove the need for that specific tool and simply function within a constantly knowing state that can always be in touch with its own reasons, its own extensions of thought, its own extensions of feeling, and its own shared beliefs within the overall mass consciousness as it is transforming.

Thus, you will find there will be an ability for metaphysics to become the physics of the land, in a sense. As we have already described, physicists will, on your planet, begin to discover that consciousness is a factor. They will begin, and have begun, to some extent, to include consciousness into their equations. And the parallels between the now existent forms of metaphysics will begin to grow between that and physics as you understand it, until the two, in a sense, will become one idea.

Now, realize that this may be appalling to both physicists and metaphysicians upon your planet, to some degree; but this is only because of the judgments that they hold for each other. You can simply recognize that it is the same exploration, from polarized viewpoints; physics is becoming metaphysics, metaphysics is becoming physics.

Physicists are becoming metaphysicians by allowing themselves to recognize the active participation that consciousness, a non-tangible substance, plays in the physical world.

Metaphysicians are becoming physicists by allowing themselves to recognize that what they have previously held to be sacrosanct, beyond the idea of what they judge to be mere physicality, is in fact blending into an ecstatic explosion of an enjoinment of physicality that recognizes that physical existence is also spirit. It is no less than nonphysical existence, and the idea of applying reasoning is just as valid, and just as livable as any ideas that would tend to obscure or hide the understanding of your own consciousness, as has been implied by the term that you have most often used to describe metaphysics, and that is occult, which means hidden.

Therefore, both ideas are blending because they are allowing each other into each other’s realm of experience. Both are recognizing that experience itself is the defining factor, and that all the ideas of proof from the physics side, and non-ability of proof, or the necessity of occultism; from the metaphysical side are both extremes of viewpoints which have only been created from the judgment from one side to another.

Physics is in harmony with the experiential self; even the nonphysical experiential self and metaphysics are in harmony with not only the nonphysical but the physical self, and it can be understood that there really is no difference between the two, nonphysical and physical reality, except as you have created the idea.

Therefore, the final perspective, in a sense, though not ultimately final, but only from this particular exploration of this particular dichotomy in this particular sequence of life as you know it, will be to understand, physically and metaphysically, everything in your world as ideas; simply ideas, perspectives, points of view.

Now, from that it will be then extrapolated that, since we have already, from the physics and metaphysical point of view, understood that space/time is an extension of the consciousness, of the perceptions, and therefore, in many ways, an illusion, except where you wish to apply it, you can now understand that all things, therefore, are simultaneous, and all space is here, present, here and now.

Therefore, once you become aware that both physics and metaphysics simply are the creation of ideas, you can then see that the next step will be to recognize the self as an idea, and in this way, each individual will be able to function as their own physicist and metaphysician simultaneously, recognizing the validity of the nonphysical and physical realms, the equality of the nonphysical and physical realms, and therefore, the ability to abide and live in both consciously, simultaneously. Being both and neither at the same time.

Now, allow me to illuminate that this is one of the reasons why, what you term to be your Western culture, when it encountered what you call your American Indian culture, could not find common ground to understand each other.

Recognize that American Indian culture existed consciously, both in physical and nonphysical reality, whereas Western culture, as you call it, had only assumed the physical reality to be real, and the rest to be simply flights of fancy or imagination, and not to be paid much attention to as having any possible way of having an effect upon your lives. This will have been, and still is, the idea of the dichotomy between those two cultures.

And the reason why they met at the time that they did, in the timing that they created, that they co-created, was for the beginning of the blending that you are now beginning to explore within yourselves, and the merging of the two realities, physical and nonphysical, outer awareness and dream consciousness, through the link and the bridge we have defined as the imagination, so that your world can become a product of your own conviction, your own directive-ness, your own self-empowerment, your own freedom of choice. These always exist regardless of what any physicists or metaphysicians may wish to tell you through self-ego gratification. There is no one-way to do anything; there is no one path. If there were, there would only be one person.
Recognize, there are as many paths as there are individuals. In fact, each individual is a path, and you will know that the idea of the need for specified physics and specified metaphysics will blend, simply, into the ongoing process of experience itself. Experience itself, the experiencing of the All That Is that each and every one of you individually and collectively are.

Dr. Chandley: I’d like to ask you a question about two psychological terms that we use to describe energy, called transference of energy and counter-transference of energy. How is the transference of energy happening within the channel as you, from your point of view, and what is the counter-transference of that energy as it affects the channel?

The Association: Thank you. In a basic foundational sense, the answer to both of your questions is the same, and it is something which is still little understood in your society, and this is, however, something which you think you recognize as being with you all the time, and the one word that defines and describes the mechanism which gives rise to both the transference and counter-transference is what you call imagination.

Understand that imagination is a dimension unto itself, and in that dimension it is the hyperspace, the All That Is, the center point through which and in which any blendings, co-creations, transferences, exchanges, alterations, take place.

Therefore, within the dimension of imagination, I blend with the physical consciousness of the physical channel and form the third personality, which you are perceiving, which is the combination of my imagination consciousness and the channel’s. And in like manner, in the reciprocal movement, the consciousness of the physical channel goes into his own dimension of imagination; in the same way mine goes into my own dimension of imagination. Therefore, it is always a constant flux, coming and going; the cause and the effect being the same event. There really is no separation. It is all one thing. There is always, automatically, polarity, even though you are experiencing a coming and a going. It is simply a merging and becoming the dimension of imagination itself, in which any seemingly perceptual exchanges can take place. Is this clarifying the idea to some degree for you?

Dr. Chandley: Yes. In the holographic model, for instance, when we start with the beam or the seed, and split into the imagination, would the reference beam then be the imagination?

The Association: In a sense. Understand that the interference pattern caused by the original beam of your higher consciousness, and the reference beam of your physical personality, the interference pattern, is actually the dimension which bridges the two, which links the two. This is why we have said that your imagination is the bridge and the link between your higher consciousness, or your dream self, and your physical consciousness, or your physical reality, your mentality. The interference pattern created by the original beam and the reference beam is the interaction of the two beams, and as we have always said, you are neither the original beam nor actually the reference beam, but the interaction of the two polarities.

Thus, imagination and the dimension of imagination is actually what you are. Any transference and counter-transference is simply the activation and co-blending of both individuals involved in the process, both consciousnesses involved in the interaction becoming the interaction itself. Thus, where I come from, and where the physical channel’s consciousness goes is into the center of being the interaction itself.

Now, we have defined it, many times, as an analogy, as if the physical consciousness of the channel becomes lost in a daydream. This is one physicalized analogy for being in the dimension of imagination; but simply recognize, all that is happening are the expressions of polarities from both consciousnesses being the interaction itself, being the dimensional reality, the universe of the interaction itself, being at the center, at the source together, and recognizing it. You follow me?

Dr. Chandley: Yes, absolutely. Thank you. Is there a place within the physical being that we can actually visually see, from where the imagination is presented?

The Association: You may understand that it can, to some degree, be viewed as being the center point of a trinity, three-sided pyramidal structure, the base points of which are centered in the pineal gland, the pituitary gland, and what you call the base portion of the brain, at the junction of the spinal chord and the physical brain. Now, though this may not geometrically describe what you call a three-sided pyramid, in an energy sense it will. And you can simply recognize that the center point will be the black hole, in a sense, the doorway, the gateway, the white hole, in a sense, both black and white hole, in and out, transference point, in the center the corpus callosum between the two hemispheres.

You will recognize, you will come to recognize, there is a small group of cells in the center of the brain, touching either side of the corpus callosum, which will be responsible for the regulation or the translation of the black/white hole energy into your physical brain, and from these two core seeds the brain will grow. You follow?

Dr. Chandley: Yes. So, is part of the counter-transference of that energy happening through that center or corpus callosum in the brain?

The Association: All of it.

Dr. Chandley: All of the transference of energy also?

The Association: All of it. Now, you may perceive that there are black and white holes in the center of every cell in your body as well, and it may seem to be an infusion coming from everywhere and nowhere in particular; but as you define the idea of your physical brain representing the controlling network of your mentality, which represents the projection of your consciousness into physicality, you can simply recognize the primary black/white hole in the center of your brain to be where all of the transference and counter-transference is being created.

Dr. Chandley: Would there be any way that that counter-transference and transference could be negative?

The Association: Yes.

Dr. Chandley: How?

The Association: Simply, as it is created, it will always still, because you are physical beings, have to proceed through the prism of the artificial personality construct, and the beliefs within that personality construct may filter some of those ideas, either in a positive or a negative way. The initial point of transference is neither, or both, positive and negative; but the feedback can set up, to some degree, a resonance; a positive or negative harmonic resonance can be set up, by reflecting through the prism where the beliefs, emotions, and thoughts then become connected to the occurrence that is happening with the transference.

You follow me?

Dr. Chandley: Yes. So, in order for there to be positive transference and counter-transference...
The Association: There must be allowance in the personality.

Dr. Chandley: Of the medium or the being who is...
The Association: Yes. Allowance and trust. This is the opening of the clarifying of the personality prism, which allows there to be positive harmony in expression between the physical personality and the initial transference point, the higher consciousness. A blending.

Dr. Chandley: So, there’s no way that that energy system could bypass the personality construct of the medium?
The Association: There can be varying degrees of what seems to be a bypass, but some portion of the original consciousness must always be there, except in the case of what you call a complete and total walk-in. You follow me?

Dr. Chandley: Yes, and then it would no longer be channeling. It would be...
The Association: An exchange...

Dr. Chandley: ...of energy.
The Association: Yes.

Dr. Chandley: Is there something that you would suggest for those mediums who are integrating their personality construct so as not to filter the information as much, and to have more of a positive transference and counter-transference?
The Association: Simply, first of all, that they are offering their channeling out of service, out of unconditional love, not needing to take anyone’s power away, not needing to make or force anyone to do anything; but allowing them their free will, and in so trusting their higher consciousness, allowing whatever will come through to be a part of the unfoldment, no matter whether their physicalized personality thinks it likes it or not. You follow me?

Dr. Chandley: Yes, I do. Thank you.
The Association: We will thank each and every one of you, once again, for the sharing you have been willing to create with us. We will, until next week of your time, as you count time, bid you a fond good evening.

Methodologies of the Grey Agenda

Q: Let me ask you, we talked about Alpha Deyo...
B: Yes.
Q: ... in terms of him basically exiling himself from the Reptilian agenda.
B: Yes.
Q: Then you said that the Reptilian agenda is basically the Grey agenda.
B: Basically.
Q: Okay, because I am assuming that there are many factions and many people in charge in different areas with different agendas.
B: Yes.
Q: But generally, what was the agenda that Alpha Deyo left or exiled himself from?
B: The idea of the creation of hybrids from your society and their society, the Greys, in order to perpetuate their species.
Q: He is not in agreement with that?
B: Not any longer.
Q: And ... but he is with you ... is there a part of your particular species that is not in agreement with this going on right now?
B: Many of the methodologies that have been utilized are not within the scope of the vibration of, what we would call, our preference of integrity.
Q: Really?
B: Yes.
Q: So, it’s really not out of the question for us to have felt at some point, very disturbed by these experiences?
B: No, it is not out of the question.
Q: And is some of the objection on your part due to the pain from us?
B: We object to nothing.
Q: Well...
B: We recognize what is and is not our preferential frequency.
Q: Why is it not preferential to you?
B: Certain aspects may contain the idea of, what you would interpret as, force against will.
Q: Hmm ... and so not all are pre-agreed upon contracts?
B: I didn’t say that. But we would also not prefer for you to harm yourselves.
Q: To harm ourselves?
B: Yes, for then there can be seen the idea that many individuals, because of the fear that has been instilled within, they may find themselves attracted to and agreeing with the idea of attracting others to bring the idea of force against will, against them.
Q: All right.
B: We simply disagree with this mechanism, in that sense, and we find that it is maybe, perhaps, not excusing the perpetrator, but simultaneously a self destructive mechanism.
Q: So you feel that maybe our free will, on some level, is usurped by their powers?
B: Well, not exactly usurped but, shall we say, made to appear to bend.
Q: So you think that possibly many of us may be manipulated in some way to think that maybe these...
B: Many of you allow yourselves to play the manipulation game, yes.
Q: Now, how can we be clear on whether this is a contract?
B: Be yourself and, in that sense, get in touch with your definitions that are generating the fears within you that would make it seem to be a motivation to want to be immersed in a manipulative game.
Q: Well...
B: Yes?
Q: I just want to be clear.
B: Well, all right, by all means, please do.
Q: I don’t want to just, in a blanketeted way, or off-handed way, accept that this was a contract. I mean I’m really questioning every move that I make in terms of unraveling this.
B: All right, but you don’t necessarily have to second-guess yourself. Again, go back to the idea that we spoke of in the initial moments of this transmission ... respect your choices.
Q: Right.
B: And if any of you find that you have allowed yourself to make choices in life, or if any of you find that you have been taught to believe in certain ways that then allow you to make certain choices, whether conscious or unconscious, that bring you into an experience that appears to allow you to divest yourself of your power – accept that that’s the choice you made. So that in accepting that that’s the choice you made, you can use the experience of giving your power away, and use the experience of appearing to be manipulated, to see how that experience can connect you to your self empowerment, instead of assuming that you have to run away from that experience to find the connection to yourself.

Methodology of Karma

Q: You shared an experience with us in which you took responsibility once for another person’s actions. And in order to balance this act which occurred in the now, you went back into one of your past lives, presumably in an alternate time track, and produced a disease.

Now, if you create your universe, if you create your own reality, if the universe reflects whatever belief system you have: why didn’t you change your reality or belief system, such that the issue of integrity, or the balancing of actions, did not enter? Now, if you could not do that, it must be that there must be some absolute cosmic laws, which must be adhered to;

if that’s the case, then believing in your own reality is limited to adhering to these cosmic laws, or at least within the universe. If there are, what are they? If there are not any absolutes in the universe…

B: All right. Thank you.

Q: ...then why did you adopt that belief system that you…

B: Thank you. Recognize, first of all, that the so-called absolutes for all universes is but one – the fact that you exist.

Now, each and every universe can create its own apparent absolutes, to some degree. And by that particular rule – by those particular rules of that particular game – then there are generally agreed-upon absolutes that will generally be followed. And in abiding by those, you will then maintain the balance of the energy within the total game that you are playing.

That is also dissolvable, but only when you extract yourself from that universal absolute that you have agreed to create. They are not absolute absolutes, but they will appear to be just as solid as a so-called absolute, as long as you agree in general to abide by them.

Within the universe in which I exist, I agree to abide by the notion of the balancing in that way – that there were scenarios in my past life, wherein the playing out of certain positive and negative ideas was, quote/unquote, acceptable then. And therefore, any idea that would fit into allowing that being I was then, to learn what it needed to learn through that particular understanding, or disease, at that time, was put, in your terms, into good use.

Q: Is karma an absolute law in the same sense?

B: No, except in the sense that it is only a representation of a momentum, karma is completely self-imposed; the idea, the methodology, so to speak, of the karma are completely self-imposed. The so-called absolute within the universal game is simply that it will represent a momentum, a balance, a carry through of an idea once initiated. How it carries through and how it balances out can occur in many different ways. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: The karmic absolute is simply that the energy, once initiated, will carry through as a momentum; but how that plays itself out will depend upon the reasoning within any given life that requires that manifestation, and can use that manifestation to learn something from. In other words, the generation of that balance point that I created was usable in one of my past lives. So I allowed it to stand, in that way, knowing that that past life had the belief systems that would generate that type of reality. And therefore, it could use that type of reality to learn that it did not need to create that type of reality anymore.

And that is what allowed me to maintain the existence that I do now, where I know I am the creator of my reality; for, the me that had the disease, was not in cognition that they were the creator of their reality. And the disease allowed them to learn that, so that I could be who I am today. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, it does. The personality in that previous life was in an alternate time frame: was that personality associated with your soul? In that case, does that mean that one’s soul has multiple numbers of personalities and multiple time tracks?
B: Oh, absolutely, the oversoul has an infinite number of fragments. It may choose to project these fragments into any given game at any given moment.
Q: In an infinite number of time tracks.
B: Yes.
Q: If the soul is that infinite, what comes after the soul? What could be more infinite that that?
B: Nothing. But you are assuming that there is an after, and there isn’t. Everything only is – now, simultaneously. The notion of a before and an after is one of the games you are playing.
Q: It’s my understanding that there comes a point in evolution where one no longer needs a soul. Is that true?
B: One is a soul, in a sense. You may no longer need particular manifestations of the spirit that you are, of the soul that you are. But in a sense, a soul is what you are, although there may be many different definitions to that, many of which might be semantically arbitrary. Your meaning of a soul, and a fifth-density being’s meaning of a soul, might be pointing to two different fluctuations of representations of energy.
B: You follow me?
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you. You are simply consciousness, if you will. You will always be that – in whatever way you choose to manifest yourself. Thank you.

Middle East and The Presidency
(1990)
Q: What are your feelings as to what is going on in the Middle East, and toward, shall we say, putting together a one world government, say in the next ten to fifteen years?
B: Again, it is still our perception that this will be achieved by your year 2025. But there will be upheaval within your Middle East area approximately in and around your 1997, and what is generally occurring now will continue until that upheaval when all things will be reassessed and many realignments will be created. This is one way for that area to break down its older structures. It is in a way, replaying many past scenarios, very quickly.
The idea still is that there are many aspects that need to be worked out within that oversoul consciousness. And it is in the throes of a dream, a negative dream. It is only just awakening in certain ways and has yet to awaken to certain aspects of its own inner light.
But this awakening, in our perception, will come around your year of 1997, and then there will be great shifts and great change in the three years following that.
For now these scenarios are as if different aspects of one mind, of one oversoul, continue to present different faces of itself as it reflects negative aspects of itself and fears that it has back to itself, in a self-contained, self-convoluted, self-generating, self-perpetuated nightmare, of sorts.
Q: You make it sound like just one person over there doing these things.
B: In a sense, it is. One mass mind.
Q: You’ve mentioned one point also, that the President we now have for this country, will be the last time we elect a President. Do you still feel that way?
B: In a sense... yes.
Q: Why do you... I wasn’t there for that, could you elaborate?
B: The idea again shall be, that as you spread yourselves throughout, as you connect yourselves throughout other systems on your planet as they go through their upheavals, your nation will find that it has anchored itself in too many directions. The anchors that it will have in all of these directions will begin to pull and pull and pull even harder over the next decade, until the center is pulled apart.
That center will no longer be a point at which one individual can seem to run things. But will be an ever widening circle that will make it obvious that a different form of regulation, a more republic form of regulation is required, in order to maintain a stability and a balance of identity. And different policies, different attitudes, different notions of responsibility will again begin to shift and occur over and around your next eight years of time, until you have completely shifted the system you now have at present, into more of what you may call an electorate board.

Q: That’s all very interesting, thank you very much.
B: Thank you!

In this way, recognize that what you often consider, in your civilization, to be miracles, you consider to be out of the ordinary, above and beyond the mainstream reality that you are used to experiencing in your day to day world. But recognize, what you typically call a miracle is, in actual fact, recognition of the fundamental workings of the universe. It is a recognition of when reality, physical reality, the experience of physical reality, as you have come to know it, is actually working in a synchronous harmony with all other levels of reality. And thus, a miracle is actually representative of where the universe is working most naturally.

Physical reality, the day to day events that you typically experience that seem to be different from what you call miraculous, that, in a sense, is even more of a miracle than a typical miracle, as you call it. For a typical miracle is an indication of the natural state of the universe, where everything works hand in hand, absolutely flawlessly, and can create whatever manifestation is indicative of the way the mind and the heart and the belief of the individuals involved in that circumstance wish it to be.

Whereas, what you call, your day to day life is the product of divergence, many times, from the so called natural awareness or natural state of creation, natural state of reality, and, in that sense, the things that you most often take for granted are actually the exception to the norm. In that sense, the way you have structured your reality, all of the different diversifications, separations and specific endeavors that you create in your day to day lives, those are the miraculous manifestations of the foundational energy.

Your daily life is, therefore, miraculous. And when you see, in your life, what you normally call a miracle, when all of the normal, what you think of as normal, activities that go on are, for a moment, seemingly suspended to allow this so called miracle to occur – in actual fact what you are seeing, therefore, is the very fundamental, the homogenous, balanced, natural energy that everything in your daily lives is created from. Do you follow along?

Audience: Yes.

B: Therefore, recognize that your lives, at any given moment, are made of magic, if you will, are miraculous in that way, and that what you typically call a miracle is not something that is an interruption in what you think is a natural or normal way that life exists, but it is actually a manifestation of naturalness. A manifestation of the basic root foundational energy out of which all of the divergences in your daily life are created.

A miracle is a calm spot, the eye of the hurricane, as you say, wherein you allow all the different energies, the homogenous energy of the foundational creation itself, to simply work in its purest form. When you know, in that state, that everything does fit in with everything else, everything does work in life, and a miracle is simply your willingness to allow, on all levels, all at once, life and the universe to work in the way it was designed to work.

So, if you wish your lives to become, as you think, more miraculous, and for life to become a more and more effortless expression of that level of creativity, then all you need to do is allow your life to revert back to this natural state – to the zero rest balance point – to allow the things in your life to be there that need to be there, rather than thinking that you must make or force or push those ideas into creation.

Desire and determination, those are tools that can allow you to allow your reality to work. But desire and determination do not have to be expressed in a struggle type of mode. Desire is the activation seed that will bring to you anything you believe to be possible to experience in your life. And when you allow your desire, your excitement, which is your indication of your connection to the primal energy out of which all is created – when you allow your desire to bring those things into your life, then your life will be effortless, will be miraculous, day to day to day. Do you follow along?

Audience: Yes.
Mirroring Of Vibrations And Orca Symbology

Q: Hi.
B: And good day to you.
Q: I’d like to know why do people take on the characteristics of other people that they hang around with?
B: Because they start identifying with their vibration and start mirroring it – because they, in that sense, identify with them. They wish to reflect to them certain ideas. They wish to join a particular miniature consensus reality and flow in the same direction, so they can, in a sense, work together as one. Even though they are individual.
That is why individuals in love will very often exhibit similar traits to each other, and know each other’s thoughts, because they are identifying with each other so strongly that they are mirroring each other’s vibration.
It is not that anyone in that sense is literally reading each other’s minds directly. It is that when you identify very strongly with an individual and you exist on the same frequency, then you translate your thoughts in the same way, or a similar way, to the way they do. And you become very much alike, even though you still have differences.
Q: But, I mean, it’s like when you go up and you first meet someone…
B: Yes.
Q: …just the way they speak; you start speaking like them, even though you’ve never met them before. You start acting like them or doing…
B: Yes. Because as a form of communication it allows you both to express to each other that you are willing to see in the other their validity. It makes communication easier, because you are reflecting back to them an aspect of themselves that you discover within you as well.
It is simply, to put it on a very simple level, called mirroring. And when you mirror someone – not in a mocking way – but in a truly identifying way, it allows a flow of communication to go more easily. Because you are creating a similar vibration, a similar wavelength, by literally copying each other’s format.
And it allows communication to flow more easily, because you’re on the same wavelength. Literally, you can create the same wavelength by physically mimicking someone else. Again, not in a mocking way, but your body language – if you identify it strongly with another individual’s body language – will automatically create a flow of communication, not only a physical, but a non-physical level. And it will make communication between you easier. That’s why it’s an automatic thing. Understand?
Q: Yes. All right, thanks.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!
Q: Good evening.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I’m so glad to be here with you again.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: And I must compliment the channel on his wonderful T-shirt with whales. That’s what I want to talk about.
B: Whales!
Q: Whales.
B: All right.
Q: I went to Sea World yesterday again.
B: All right. Getting to know you there, are they?
Q: Oh yes, I think they are. I’m certainly feeling that they are.
B: Yes.
Q: This time I was able to pet the pilot whales.
B: Pet the pilots, yes.
Q: They are so wonderful. And I felt during that interaction with them, when one of them actually stayed in front of me and let me pet him for some time...
B: All right.
Q: ... I felt that through that I was really contacting the consciousness of pilot whales everywhere.
B: In a sense, yes, to some degree.
Q: This has been something I’m very interested in because... I spoke to you before in Hawaii, about working with the International Wildlife Coalition on a project to allow the Faroe islanders up near Greenland to see that they don’t really have to slaughter pilot whales, that there are other ways to interact with them.
B: Yes.
Q: Much more positive, much more loving ways.
B: Yes. Ways that the whales would also prefer.
Q: Yes, I’m sure. So through the interaction with these two pilot whales at Sea World, I really felt that. I don’t know if I mentioned that before, I guess I talked to Friend about it. I actually took a very smooth, sturdy – neoprene, I guess – beach ball down there a few weeks ago, and threw it into the middle of the pool for the dolphins to play with...
B: Yes.
Q: And my one concern... I knew that the dolphins couldn’t hurt themselves, and no one could be injured, and I knew management wasn’t too pleased about the idea of anyone doing that, but I knew they couldn’t hurt themselves. And as a matter of fact, the girl that was on duty there took it out. And then she gave it to me because she said that she didn’t have the authority to throw it back in. But she… when I told her that I had put it in, she said, “Well, I can’t throw it back in.” So she let me do it.

B: Yes.
Q: My one concern was that, perhaps, because the pilot whales are so large that they conceivably could swallow it.
B: All right.
Q: Although I didn’t think they would.
B: Not really.
Q: No. And what happened was, they swam around and they played with it. But they just pushed it with their noses. And I felt that they had actually picked up the idea that I had.
B: Well, to some degree, but understand, they already knew it. They were, to some degree, reflecting. And what you were sensing as your desire for them, in a sense, you were actually picking up from them. But they already understand the parameters of their environment to that degree.
Q: Yes.
B: It would be analogous, let us say, to someone tossing you what you would call a tennis ball. Do you think you could swallow that very easily?
Q: No, I see your point. It would have to be a ping-pong ball.
B: Yes. And even then, you have what you call your gag reflex.
Q: That’s true. Why is it then that the dolphins occasionally do swallow foreign objects, and sometimes fatal…
B: It would depend on the symbology. Remember that they are still individuals as well. And they have, in many ways, certain ideas that they are willing to play out within their own lives in different ways; certain symbols that are reflected to them in certain ways. And societal patterns that, to some degree, they also are reflecting in their individual motives.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Understand?
Q: Yes. I do.
B: Well, thank you.
Q: Would you be willing to share something with us about Orcas? My friend Karen is here and we’re both…
B: Well, you know what we already have shared about the idea of the Orca: the sorcerers and the samurai of the seas.
Q: I love it.
B: Yes, the black and white of polarity. That when you, in that sense, mimic their path, then you are very boldly expressing conviction. And in very many ways there is no turning back.
Q: I have felt that more and more lately.
B: Yes. They are the expression of polarity consciousness itself. And as you have already suggested and as we have said: they are the samurai and the sorcerer, they are the warriors of the sea. Not meant in what you would call a negative way. But they have that spirit of conviction.
They tunnel through different dimensions. And if you ride with them, you must expect to go on that ride with your eyes open, and be prepared for all the changes that occur, for they are very strongly transformational beings. And any structure that you may have built up that doesn’t fit in their world will come apart very quickly. They will allow you to face anything you might call a fear, and process it now!

Q: Yes. I know that is true.
B: Yes.
Q: That’s why it is so exciting to get to go to Sea World and see them playing with their trainers and to see the love and the interaction and the trust.
B: Yes!

Q: Yesterday they were . . .
B: Be brief; be brief.
Q: Yes. They had two more Orcas there from a facility in Ohio that are there on vacation; and so there were four Orcas and four trainers. And they actually rode them out of the water up on to the platform. And it was magic, it was great.
B: Thank you! Love to you. Sharing.
Q: I thank you. Love to you and Essassani.
B: Our love to you. Sharing!

Mirroring of Vibrations and Orca Symbology

Missing the Train

Q: I have a scenario in my life that I feel that I should have completed by now.
B: Should - should - should - should - should - should! All right.
Q: It’s beginning to cause me stress.
B: Ah! Oh, etc. Here it comes, right? “It" is beginning to cause you stress. It?
Q: I am beginning to cause me stress.
B: Thank you.
Q: Well, it’s making me uncomfortable.
B: It?
Q: All right. I have created a situation that I am making myself very uncomfortable in.
B: How creative! Why? How does it serve you to be uncomfortable?
Q: At this point, I don’t think it serves me any longer. The serving, I feel, should have been completed several weeks ago.
B: Should?
Q: All right.
B: Now, let’s take it one step at a time. Your physiological reality – and everything that happens within it – is there because it is a reflection of what you believe the most likely event that can occur. Therefore, if something is happening in your reality, it is there for a reason, no matter what you like to think about it. When you accept that it is there for a reason, perhaps you will allow yourself to begin to realize that it is actually never the same thing.

You may have created what appears to be a repetition of a familiar symbol. The only reason that it may continue to feel like a repetition of the entire event is because you continue to insist on imbuing the familiar symbol with the same meaning over and over and over again. But no symbol has built-in meaning; no situation has built-in meaning. All situations and circumstances are fundamentally neutral, blank, zero, empty; you supply the meaning. The meaning you supply, and the type of meaning you supply – positive or negative – determines the effect you instantaneously create in your life.

Now, recognize that many times when you know, quote/unquote, things should have changed; when you know you have changed – but apparently they haven’t, it is only because you do not truly believe that you have changed. And therefore, you think, “well, if the symbol doesn’t change, then I must not have changed." You are taking your validity from the symbol, rather than giving your validity to the symbol. You follow me?
Q: I do follow you.
B: Therefore, if you know, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that you have changed, that you are now the idea you prefer to be, then allow whatever symbols occur in your life – whether they appear to be the same symbols that used to occur or not – to not have the same meaning. When you give them new meanings then you will allow the symbols to change. You still do live in a linear time frame reality. And therefore, any change you know has occurred within you, as an idea of yourself, may still take a little bit of time for the outward reality to go along and follow suit.

However, this can happen the most quickly when you simply take it for granted that when you know you have changed, you have changed. KNOW your entire reality is now different, and don’t keep supplying the same meaning to the symbols you used to use. When you give them different meanings is when you allow them to change along with the change you now know yourself to be. You follow me?

Q: I do. It’s my most difficult one, I find.
B: If you say so. That is a belief.

Q: Okay. Could it be, though, that I would be operating under an old belief system that I am not cognizant of?
B: Oh, it could be. Do you think that is the case?
Q: No, I do not.
Q: Then thank you. Trust your feelings. You are different. If you know you are different, act like it. Do not believe that what used to be a symbol for you has the same meaning. Look at it this way, perhaps, if you actually were a different person, do you not think that the different person might have a different meaning for the same symbol?
Q: Perhaps. Yes.
B: All right. Then, in knowing that you are changed, it means you are a different person. So why look at the same symbols in the same way that you used to – because you are no longer that person. Look at them in the way a new person would. Redefine them. It is up to you; your symbols are yours to define. When you say, "this is difficult to do," that is your symbol. Redefine it. Why is it difficult to do? Why? That is only a series of words.
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, trust that whatever it is that is happening is a representation of the new person you are – no matter what it appears to be. It is a representation of the new person you are. Then that perspective is what will allow you, in very short order, to see how the situation that is in your life does represent the now (new?) reality you know yourself to be. You will see it transform; you will transform it.
Q: I understand that.
B: When you simply trust, once again, that the symbols in your life are there for a reason, and when you trust you have changed, then you will know that no matter what the symbols are, no matter what the situations are that appear to be in your life, they are no longer representative of the you you used to be; they are representative of the you you are now. And therefore, when you allow them to be there for a reason that befits the new person you are, you will allow yourself to very quickly discover why those situations are occurring, relative to the new person you are – not the person you used to be.
By analogy, let us say the old person – once again with the train story – the old person you used to be is on their way to catch the vehicle you call your train. You arrive at the station; the train has left. Now that is simply the neutral situation. There is no meaning in this. You are standing on the platform; the train is moving; you are not on it. Period. That is the neutral situation.

Q: Okay.

B: Now let us say that is a symbol, that when viewed by the perspective of the old you, might have been negative. "Oh, gosh and darn," you say, “I have done something wrong. This is very bad. I am now very angry. Those train people, they were too early. I was not late; no, no, no. They were too early. I will now go to someone and complain.” All right. Your choice.

Now you are the new person, the person you now know you have changed into. You are going for the train, you arrive at the platform; the train has left. Once again, the neutral situation, you are on the platform, the train is moving; you are not on it. But now you know, you know you are different, you know that everything in your life is there for a positive reason; you know that.

So no matter that the symbol is the same, you know it is now filled with a positive reason. Because you now trust that, and do not go stomping off to complain, your anger no longer blinds you to the fact that having just stepped off everything will be synchronicity in your eyes. Thank you very much.

Q: Thank you.
Bashar: Channeled by Darryl Anka
From "Moment of Pause"

Bashar: The idea, again, is that in the void, in that moment, in that infinitesimally small space, that moment of pause, are all things. In that moment you shift to the frequency you prefer, then expand on the other side, embodying that frequency and manifesting the result of that frequency. At any time you can always go back into that collapsed state of co-fusion and pick another selection, pick another vibration, another frequency and re-emerge, re-expand, incorporating that frequency into your day-to-day reality. This is why you cannot go into that space and take anything with you, because you don’t need to.

Everything is there but in a neutral fashion, so you cannot bring your already, shall we say, "patterned baggage" with you into that space. You have to let everything go, be totally stripped of all those habits, patterns, expectations. Just go into that space, collapse into that singularity wherein all dimensions are one and thus, choose fresh. In that space everything is, in a sense, flat, neutral, devoid of any meaning, until you give it meaning – and realize it, manifest it, based on the preferential vibration you have chosen to emerge with.

Q: Do I have to give it meaning?
B: If you do not, you will not have an experiential reality of any kind.

Q: Ah.
B: There is nothing wrong with giving things meaning. The idea is simply be consciously aware of what meanings you are assigning, and so recognize what effects you are getting out of those assigned meanings.

Q: And what assigns the meaning?
B: You do.

Q: Your Spirit, your personality?
B: In general, your society allows the ego structure to, more often than not, assign the meaning because the ego structure contains the patterns and the habits that you have been imprinted with. And very often it is, therefore, an automatic function. You see something, you assign a meaning, you see something, you assign a meaning. The moment of pause allows it to be neutral – whatever it is you experience in your life – so that you can take your time to discern more consciously from your totality, from your total Being what meaning it has. And it doesn’t even necessarily always have to be specific, the idea is to at least to begin by assigning the general meaning that it must be happening for a positive reason, and in that you will always extract, ultimately, a positive effect from it, no matter what it appears to be on the surface.

It’s just that you’re becoming more conscious of what you’re doing, so you can, euphemistically, get a handle on it. So you "see" the moment of creation, instead of being unconscious about it. You are constantly all imploding, exploding, imploding, exploding, imploding and exploding. Going within, coming back out, going within, coming back out, recreating yourself, redefining yourself, every single infinite second. It is just that you don’t know that consciously. Now you are beginning to. And as you become more conscious of this, as IS already happening, your reality starts to break down because you are assigning the things to it that you prefer to. And everything else that is not of that frequency starts to crumble and crack and collapse and fall away and dissolve. And so, at first it may seem chaotic, but there is always an underlying order to all chaos. You have to get to that template consciously.

Q: So you can then get to a point where you can move past the total essence of humanity, to the total essence of life itself?

B: Yes, but not invalidating the expression called humanity...

Q: No, of course not...

B: Only recognizing it as equally valid to all forms...

Q: Including...

B: Yes, including, integrating. Yes.
Monatomic Elucidations

Q: Some of the monatomics contain a high degree of magnetism, such as cobalt and nickel; whereas other elements are highly conductive, such as gold, silver and copper, but do not retain any magnetism; and some of them are used for hardening, such as palladium...

B: Yes.

Q: some other elements. Is there a correspondence to the way they are in their metallic state and the effects they will have, when adjusted, in their monatomic state on the body?

B: There is not much correlation, except that because of the essence of their difference in the metallic state, it will give you some indication in the monatomic state of what that particular monatomic element might affect within the body, physically and symbolically more than another thing than it might affect. For example: those that in metallic state exhibit a high degree of magnetism or magnetic affect, in monatomic state might be that which enhances, specifically, the magnetic signature of the cellular structure of the body more than another monatomic element might do. Whereas another monatomic element might more adequately, perhaps, let us say, enhance other kinds of fields, or the communication fields of the cellular structure, or specifically affect a particular organ signature or something to that effect. You follow? So the metallic affect gives you a clue symbolically to what it’s monatomic affect will be in the body.

Q: And the things that are more conductive like silver and gold work better in relation to the nervous system?

B: To some degree. Yes.

Q: To make it more conductive?

B: Yes. And again, once again, in EVERY case combined with chromium it will allow it to become much more effective in anything that it can do and extend its abilities beyond what it would normally have.

Q: What type of chromium do you suggest to ingest with the different monatomics?

B: Monatomic chromium, of course.

Q: And rhodium seems to come out in the urine, when the urine analysis is done...

B: Yes.

Q: , iridium seems to be absorbed by the body, is there a...

B: It comes out in your perspiration. The body always has the ability to regulate and balance itself, for from time to time it may find that it has a adequate supply of what it needs and it will divest itself of any surplus, because it knows you will always get more, that is, of course, if you are living a natural life. (AUD: laughs) But the iridium will come out in your perspiration, just as the rhodium comes out in you urination, and other elements will come out in other ways.
Q: And can you comment on urine therapy?
B: It is sufficient for certain, very specific purposes, in very specific moments with specific individual conditions. It is not necessarily as generally, as you say, across the board effective as might be something like the ozone therapy; for most individuals it is not as generalized as that, but it will have some benefit for some individuals in certain circumstances.

Q: And what type of specific uses would ruthenium have for the body? What system will it work best with?
B: You will find that ruthenium has great advantages for thyroidal action, you will find that ruthenium has great advantages for adenoidal action, you will find that ruthenium has great advantages for thymus action as well. There will be a small secondary effect in the idea of the allowance of bone degeneration macro...
Q: Bone marrow?
B: Yes.
Q: So for things like leukemia and stuff like that?
B: To some degree. Yes.
Q: What about cobalt?
B: In monatomic form you will find that when ingested in small, small, small, small, small, small, small amounts... ten to thirty milligrams only, ten to thirty milligrams only; this is your WARNING, WARNING, WARNING – ten to thirty milligrams of monatomic cobalt only. In the human form in its present state will build up within you a type of thermal regulation system that will allow your energy field to be greatly enhanced, greatly accelerated. More than that will actually engender spontaneous combustion. Do you understand?
Q: Does that have a relation to the blue color?
B: Yes. It is highly electromagnetheric and more than that, your physical bodies at this state of your evolution CANNOT sustain. You will find that some of the instances of, what you call, your spontaneous human combustion are because there are certain build-ups of monatomic elements of this nature in your body; and when the earth’s magnetic field fluctuates up and down in certain ways it, shall we say, piggybacks with the frequencies of those monatomic elements in the body and when the earth’s magnetic field rises in frequency, it pulls that frequency up and “poof” goes your body. (AUD: laughter)
Q: Flux collapse?
B: Flux collapse, yes, because it cannot sustain, it cannot keep up with that elevation in frequency to that degree, so you get out of phase; and when you get out of phase there is the flux collapse and, again, colloquially speaking, “poof.” (AUD: more laughter) From the inside out as you have observed in cases of spontaneous combustion. The heat does not come from outside, it comes from inside. Every single cell disrupts and collapses and increases their electromagnetic amperage, sometimes by a factor of ten million. Then, of course, as it disintegrates there is nothing to carry the heat and so it dissipates quite rapidly and rarely affects the surrounding environment to any great degree. Which is why the body will burn but not the chair that it is sitting in. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Because there is immediate disintegration and therefore nothing to carry the heat.
Q: And does nickel and the green have a warning?
B: Nickel, nickel? One moment...you will find that in a variety of ways nickel will be a difficult thing to sustain in monatomic form unless combined, again, with the catalytic chromium. Even though they do not interact in the same way that many atomic interactions occur, the presence alone of the chromic field will allow nickel to be maintained more adequately in monatomic form. And when it has done so, it is a very, very, very, good enhancer for the idea of the learning capabilities of the neural net of the brain.
Q: How come nickel and iron don’t seem to be able to retain their state very long?
B: They are, as you would call it, too stably connected to other forms of representation, if they were not so, if they were not, as you would say, grounded in this way and have to go back to their state of natural physical grounding matrix, you would find that your would fly apart. Thus they maintain the stabilization necessary for the other monatomics to function. In much the same way, again, as you need a grounding effect to allow other effects to function, you need a foundation for the house to stand, and so only rarely do things such as nickel and iron and a few other substances automatically shift into monatomic state.

In fact, they almost never automatically do so, unless they are in the presence of the chromic catalyst or some other catalytic energy that can allow them to do so in certain circumstances where it will not cause too much disruption. But they automatically and instantly re-stabilize, otherwise you would have an instant chain reaction and a large section of the planet would all of a sudden convert into the monatomic state, and thus, back also immediately almost into energy. Similar to the concept of what you would call matter and anti-matter, but not exactly the same, but it would become highly unstable, highly unstable.
Q: The only other two that you haven’t commented on are palladium and silver.
Q: We have, to some degree, commented earlier on the idea of silver. Palladium, one moment, one moment...vision, palladium is good for vision...one moment...and reparation, reparation.
Regeneration of certain cellular structures that are, as you would say, duty specific – such as things like the rods and cones of the eyes, the taste buds of the tongue and other things that have to do with sensory apparatus.
Silver has some benefit in that area as well, but also...one moment, one moment...it aids, to some degree, in the reparation of bone, especially the dental enamel, but not in the way that you use it in your dentistry, but in monatomic state. You see, in many ways, many of you instantly understand that the silver is supposed to be applied to the teeth, but you don’t know how to apply it. So not, in what you call, the filling in metallic form, but in monatomic state, it will aid in the reparation and the strengthening of such things as your dental enamel and other things in the body.
Q: And does that also apply to help overcome mercury toxicity?
B: It can.
Q: And when one starts on the monatomic journey, will that state that’s engendered, let’s say, overcome the negative effects of mercury amalgams?
B: Beyond a certain point, yes. But it may take a while, in that it has to fight the toxic effect that may be present within the physical form. Eventually it may, in that sense, as you say, over power it.
Q: Because it’s almost the same amount of money to get most of the amalgams removed as it to purchase the substance.
B: You most also understand that there is a great degree of monatomic salts, so to speak, in seawater. And rinsing your mouth in seawater, of course, that is unpolluted will go a long way for the aiding of dental health.
Q: Is Hawaiian water the best?
B: It is at least one of the best that remain upon your planet at this time. And also, of course, the dissolved monatomic gold in seawater also will infuse itself into your cellular structure as well.
Q: Is this how the cetaceans access it?
B: Yes. But they also do something else. Because they have the ability to focus their acoustic beacon in certain harmonic ways, what they do is to create a harmonic acoustic equivalent in water of a superconductor, and allow the monatomic elements to simply be drawn like a magnet into that acoustic beacon, and thus, concentrated, and thus, then absorbed, taken internally. They can actually use their acoustic beacons in this way as a siphon for monatomic elements, because they know how to tune them to those frequencies and create water superconductors.
Q: Is that a similar effect that we can have with music?
B: You can create that effect with music, yes. Take your cue from the dolphins, they will be willing to teach you as long as they know you will use it in positive ways, because I will tell you this, it can be an extremely destructive power as well. Does that help you?
Q: Yes, and when Moses was producing, or when they were producing the monatomics back then, what process did they use to get the gold? And it was said he was on a higher form of the monatomics than.
B: You must understand that they had available to them technology not of your world.
Q: And could they precipitate it like Sai Baba?
B: Moses could, yes.
Q: And was it the gold?
B: It was many things, at different times for different reasons, all right?
Q: Yes, and can the monatomics be projected radionically?
B: Again, the field around any monatomic element can be tapped into, in that sense. To some degree, the concept of radionics may apply, but not exactly in the way that you’re using the idea on your planet at this time. More the idea that simply the exposure to the field is more apropos to the idea of allowing your body to pick up upon the particular frequency that it needs to key to. If you want to talk about the transference of frequency energy, in that way, that would be a more direct route to the idea you call, radionically, which involves an intermediary step, which is really unnecessary.

Q: Thank you.
Monatomic Explications

Q: Can you comment on the heightened state that is engendered by the ingestion of physiological monatomic substances?

B: Again, it is that which allows you to be present. That’s what it is doing, that’s what the state of superconductivity is: your body becomes super-conductive in a field of hyper-conductivity and allows you to remain in the present to process all information rapidly, readily in the way that best suits and befits whatever you define yourself to be at the present, and allows you more clarity as to which definitions you can chose.
Q: Good day, Bashar.
B: And to you, good day.

Q: I have spent the last year, ah...
B: One moment... moment.

Q: I’ve spent the last year, ah, not analyzing myself because I did get very tired of it.
B: All right.

Q: I have spent, probably, my entire life not knowing what it is that I want to be when I grow up.
B: Well, I would not say your entire life, but I understand what you mean. There have been moments when you did know and there have especially been moments when you were a child that you knew very well who you were. But, of course, as with most of you, you were taught out of that knowledge; but there have been moments when you do. It is something that you can remember. But do continue.

Q: Then it would have to be music.
B: All right, music it is, if you say so.

Q: Well, I would like to remember that moment.
B: Why? Make the moment now. Create the moment any time you want. That’s what know-ingness is all about, totally exist in the here and now, create the moment. You don’t have to go back into the past and retrieve a memory. Memory is created in the now anyway. When you re-member something, in a sense, you are not actually going back there, you’re creating that mem-ory from here. So create whatever memory you want and make it the present reality, if that’s what you want to do. Does this make any sense to you or does this seem too daunting a task?

Q: I guess so.
B: All right, are you releasing emotion?
Q: Yes
B: All right, that’s very good. It means that you are in that process, letting go of things that inhibit you from living in the moment. That’s what some of these emotions you have are for, so, by all means, feel them, don’t push them down. Let it out and, in that sense, then you are making music. You are making the music of yourself, which is the sweetest music that there is. And the first music that there needs to be for you to express any other kind of music, there must be the music of you; for you are the first note. Does that make some sense to you?

Q: Yes.
B: So the more you let go of that which is not your song, the easier it will be for you to express your song in many other ways and many other modalities. Make sense?
Q: Somewhat, but it reminds me that....
B: Yes.
Q: I’ve spent my whole life....
B: Ah, ah, ah judgment. There is no such thing as wasted time. You understand?
Q: No I wasn’t going there.
B: All right, where were you going?
Q: My life, I have ignored...
B: Yes. What, ignored what?
Q: That...
B: That the fact that?
Q: I need money to do the things I want to do.
B: Ignored the idea?
Q: Well just played like if I need money, I don’t have any, so forget it.
B: All right. So, you were using that as a way of telling yourself you didn’t have to do those things, is that what you are saying?
Q: No.
B: What? What, what, what?
Q: Well, I still can’t believe that you have to have all this money.
B: You don’t necessarily have to, but you can.
Audience: Yes, you do.
B: No, you don’t!
Audience laughs.
B: You don’t have to, but you can. Now, we recently talked very specifically, in an entire transmission, about the concept of money. We did what you call a money workshop, last transmission. One of the most important principles that we shared in that workshop we will share with you now. It really is the most fundamental principle you need when dealing with the idea of attracting money into your life. And this is how it goes, are you paying attention?
Q: Somewhat.
B: Somewhat, all right, well, I’ll wait....you paying attention now? Do you want to know this principle?
Q: Sure.
B: Well then, are you paying attention?
Q: Yeah, I was just know I get so emotional that....
B: Well, that’s all right, it doesn’t mean you can’t pay attention and be emotional. So are you paying attention while you are being emotional?

Q: I’ll just pay attention.

B: Thank you, you see you always have enough attention to pay, you’re abundant there. Now, here’s the principle, you, all of you, goes for all of you, were created as you are, and as you are, you have sufficient ability to do, or at least begin to do, anything you want. When you allow your imagination to come into play, you will find this is true and you are nowhere near as limited as you may think. But the point is, that when you start out, if you are just yourself in the middle of nowhere, with nothing idea to understand is this – when you learn how to do more with less, you will be able to do less and get more. All right, all right, thank you, we will give an example.

Q: I think of the Internet right away.

B: Well, all right.

Q: You can get to a lot of people.

B: Yes.

Q: All over the world.

B: Yes.

Q: With less capital.

B: Yes. So in a sense this is, perhaps, one example. The idea is that the individuals who began that idea started out very basic, with not very much. They learned how to do a lot with very little. And once they learned how to do a lot with very little, with whatever they had and made it go far, made it stretch, milked it for everything their imagination could pull out of it, when they used all that they could out of what they had and made it go very far, then it amplified itself, it magnified itself, it took off into something that then made it necessary to do very little to be able to do and accomplish quite a lot. Does that work as an example for you?

Q: Yes.

Audience: Just one more example?

B: Oh more, more examples?

Audience: One more.

B: Oh, just one more, all right, all right, all right. Well, we’ll go back to the example that we used in the workshop. Let us say you are an artist. All right? Now, you know that to be an artist, contrary to what many of you are taught, you don’t have to have fancy pencils and pen and paints. You can take a stick, you can burn the end and you can draw on a wall with the charcoal that results from the burning. And as we said in the workshop, many of you now know that these so called primitive cave paintings, that were accomplished in exactly that way, are very sophisticated forms and expressions of art. And in fact are highly prized, even in your modern artistic society, as being very sophisticated expressions of art.
The idea, therefore, is that if you were an artist and all you had was a stick and you sat around thinking that you needed more in order to be an artist, you would be stuck. But if you didn’t let that get in your way and you said, well, I can be an artist with a stick, and you burned the end and painted a picture, or you took more sticks and tied them together and made sculptures or whatever came to your imagination. If you did that and did everything you could with what you had, then someone comes along, recognizes the genius in your art and perhaps works with you or brings you some other means or methodology to expand your art. Then, bit by bit, you will find that you will be able to attract other people and other aspects of your reality to magnify and amplify what you have already done, and give you the opportunity to do less and get more. In other words, once you become, in your own mind and in everyone else’s mind, an accomplished artist, do you not find that the greatest artist must do, perhaps, nothing more than sketch a few lines to have that paining to be highly valued? Because it is the fullness of the expression that goes into such simpleness, in such a genius way, that actually still captures all of the artistic essence that may have been in an earlier, but perhaps, more complicated painting. And so the greatest value, many times, is actually placed on some of the simplest art forms because it took the absolute expression of ‘artisticness’ to create that ultra simplified form in just exactly the right way that it expresses what allows other people to feel what the artist felt. So you can accomplish more with less. Once you learn how, how to do more with the less you already have.….

Q2: Bashar isn’t what’s part of that to be the love upon us with….
B: Well, of course.
Q2: For example, the guy painting on the cave wall with the stick.
B: Yes.
Q2: Was he not invoking this part of himself fused with the animal?
B: Yes, of course,
Q2: So, therefore, that is key in all of this process.
B: And it is simply key that you are in love with the expression itself, no matter what it represents. Yes, of course, that, in a sense, goes without saying but it is already been said, so that is all right. But yes, the idea is, is that once you understand that your love, your passion, your energy gives you automatically the ability to take whatever it is you have at hand and use it to do more than you may have been taught to think you can do with it. You will then find that it will turn around and you will not need to do as much to attract and accomplish a lot, including money. That’s the principle, when you learn to do more with less, you will need to do less to get more. That’s the principle, plain and simple; it can’t be said anymore simply. Does this make some sense to you?
Q: Yes, especially the ‘simpleness,’ because I require that things be simple.
B: Well, you see creation knew what it was doing. And by simply creating you, if you were out in the middle of nowhere with nothing, it knew that it had to be simple, because that’s all it gave you. That tells you its simple, because you weren’t given anything else.
Q: I would still like to know what I want to be when I grow up?
B: That’s up to you because that’s everyone’s gift, to decide what that is, or to know what that is, and to feel it and express it. And, on the other hand, in some ways, I hope you never grow up. In some ways allowing yourself to be that child is the most grown up thing you can do. And you know that that makes sense, yes?
Q: Yeah, but being a child as a grown up is very tiring.
B: All right, then be a grown up as a child, if it is tiring for you because you are resisting old ideas. Then let them go and just pay attention to the knowingness that is inherent in the principle we just gave you, of simplicity.
Q: Well I feel like I’m resisting new ideas, you have to do this, you have to do that, you have to go to school, you have to be somebody.
B: Yes, well, have to, have to, have to. You are somebody. You are somebody. YOU ARE SOMEBODY!
Q: And I believe that.
B: Do you?
Q: Sure.
B: Sure, but do you know it? That’s the point of tonight’s discussion. Believe it all right, but do you know it? Which means you do not have to think about it, you just are.
Q: I think....
B: You think?
Q: I know it, but I don’t believe it?
B: Maybe you do believe it, but maybe you don’t know it? Which is it? Which do you want it to be? Which do you prefer it was?
Q: To know it.
B: Well then, let that be true and act accordingly, in simplicity, in passion, in vision, in creativity. Let yourself express it in whatever modality you say is your modality. If it be music, so be it. If it is something else, so be it. But let it be and let yourself understand and absorb that principle of learning to do more with less, so that you can do less to get more. That’s how it works, that’s how it works. Your imagination is key. Your willingness to play is key.
Q: Okay.
B: All right?
Q: Yes.
More on Absolutes/The Prime Radiant

Q: I have a question about the Three Absolutes.
B: Yes?
Q: Which seems to be an extrapolative jump, where you see that you are The One, The Self, separate from everyone else, and you can be sure of that idea, but yet, you cannot be sure of the relationship of external things relevant to you? Then how do we make that jump that those things are us? Can you explain this idea with a little more lucidity?
B: There are many ways to express this concept, however, first of all, there is the First Absolute, which is simply that you exist. That Existence Is, that is the undifferentiated idea unaware of itself, no self-reflectivity exists within that first concept. However, in the Second Absolute – One is All, All is One – that is a result of the Isness becoming Self Aware, in a sense, reflecting itself to itself. The jump occurs because isness, in and of itself, being a complete state, still is not, shall we say, in your language, completely complete, because it does not contain the concept within the Totality of the separation. So the separation must occur. It must also exist in order for the Existence to be a total existence. But when the separation occurs, that automatically creates the split off of reflectivity so that the isness can see itself as isness, and as soon as it sees itself as isness it understands that separation can occur, thus, when it understands, because isness to the infinite...there’s no difference between understanding and creating. The second it understands that Isness can occur and see itself, it then becomes all that it can be, all of what you call the individualized aspects of the One reflecting itself back to itself in all the ways It possibly can. Is this translating into your language in any way that makes sense to you?
Q: I understand what you are saying...Ah.
B: Oh that again.
Q: But.
B: Yes, but...
Q: In this fractionated world, it just seems difficult, sometimes, to see how we are everything, especially those things that we don’t prefer.
B: All right, do you remember the idea we gave you called the Prime Radiant?
Q: Yes.
B: How even physiologically everything is constructed out of one thing, just euphemistically, to use this term, one single subatomic particle is zipping around at infinite speeds as quickly as it is creating the appearance of multitudes of atoms, making up multitudes of things, but in fact it is all the same one particle standing next to itself because it can move at infinite speeds.
Q: I remember that.
B: Well, that is the physical interpretation of everything being one thing. So even the thing that you don’t prefer, in a sense, shall we say are perspectives of yourself that from this particular point of view, do not align with what you are defining yourself to be here and now. However, from another point of view of yourself, what you don’t prefer here and now may be exactly what you prefer there. So it is just a matter of geometry, angles coming and around and through you from all sorts of different points and each point in that geometry deciding what perspectives aligns and reinforces its existence and its autonomy. Does that make some sense?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help clarify the idea to any degree?
Q: Yes it does.
B: Does that help you then?
Q: In a sense that’s how you often say how everything is simply physics and that it is all just mechanical.
B: Well, in some sense, of course, we are usually referring to physiological space–time reality when we are talking about that level of it.
Q: Right, and when we align our definitions and beliefs, we get the results that follow, but simultaneously with that you often say to expect the unexpected and to make a friend of the unknown?
B: Yes, yes.
Q: Now how does one get motivated to act, when one aligns and clarifies their beliefs, and they see all the situations occurring according to the definitions and beliefs that they maintain, but yet, not being allowed to have any expectations in relation to the Third Absolute–what you sent out comes back. How do you maintain trust in your actions when the universe itself seems to contain random, paradoxical contradictions?
B: Because you understand what it is that does occur is the best possible reflection at that moment to illuminate more and more and more and more of the self that up to that moment you were unaware of, and that is what you become excited about is knowing that what is going on, being that it wasn’t necessarily a direct reflection of what you expect must occur, but is the reflection of the combination to all your definitions, is a reflection that will lead you, if you use it this way, to understand more of yourself and that is an exciting prospect.
Q: So, there is the ultimate trust, in a sense.
B: Oh absolutely, does that make sense?
Q: Right. Thank you.
B: Thank you for the opportunity. Sharing!
Q: Egypt.
B: Yes.
Q: Is a wonderful, wonderful experience.
B: Yes.
Q: The opening of the secret chamber...
B: Yes.
Q: there dangers?
B: No.
Q: You don’t have to worry about the wall coming down.
B: No.
Q: Or knives coming at you?
B: No.
Q: Nothing at all?
B: No.
Q: They said they could be dangerous?
B: No, because the ones that will open it will be the right ones.
Q: I see. The opening. can it be down in the pit. When you get into the pit there’s a hole, a deep hole, just to the right of that hole there a grate, there’s an opening there and there’s a grate over it.
B: That is an opening to other things not to the chamber that we are talking about now.
Q: Well, it sounded good.
B: Yes. Thank you.
Q: Now, the other thing about this, when I went to Egypt...
B: Yes.
Q: we had the last session.
B: Yes.
Q: Elan was on the panel.
B: Yes.
Q: What they told us then was what we project into the universe, if we project enough love, then you will come.
B: But not because you project it so that we will come.
Q: No.
B: When you project enough love into your universe, love yourselves unconditionally, then we will have an atmosphere in which we can come and nothing will stop us. But if you do it only because it will make us come, you cancel the effect.
Q: Your words are much better than mine.
B: Not so. Mine are only appropriate for me, as you use appropriate words for yourself.
Q: Okay.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Mother Ship Description

Q: Hi.
B: Hi.
Q: I know you’ve taken some time before in the past and diagrammed your own scout ship. And I know that we did a meditation once where we all went on to the mother ship, and went around and explored.
B: Yes.
Q: But I wanted to know if tonight you would just take a few moments and just diagram a little bit one of the mother ships, and what the different sections are for. And I know that each one might even be different . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . but if you could pick one.
B: Well, we will use the same one we have used before; what in your terminology would translate out into the name of the Solar Wind.
Q: Okay.
B: It is approximately one of your miles in length, almost – just about. And the idea is, it will be a cylinder in form, generally speaking, and will have many decks within it. But those decks are also, in your terms, cylindrical – a cylinder within a cylinder within a cylinder within a cylinder, and so on; for approximately, what you would call, thirty cylinders within.

What this will be is that you can then circumnavigate the entire cylinder on any level, all the way around. And then decks are apportioned accordingly to different sections. There are approximately three main engines that bridge all decks; one in the center and two near either end. These are also cylinders, or disk-shaped in fashion, and are cavernous, bridging all decks; what you would call a sixty-deck cross section.

The idea therefore being that there are thirty cylinders, which means you have, from the outer skin down to the center core, thirty decks. And then, of course, a repeat of the thirty decks from the center core out to the other side. The center is where all the engines are connected. And in the very center there will be what you would call a non-inhabitable space, all the way through the central core of the ship, that will be the drive mechanism, in colloquial terms.

At either end, also in a cylindrical fashion, is what you would call, colloquially, your bridge – at either end. In the very outer shell will be the hangar bay for various scout craft that come and go. There will be the idea, once again, also, of manufacturing of many of these scout craft in that outer hull. The idea also will contain, in the outer hull, many different civilizations.

Q: Why just the outer one?
B: Because it is the easiest access. As a ship enters the hull, obviously, the first deck they hit is the outer one. So they can then simply propel their craft right into an environment, and step right out of their craft at home. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Then, as you progress toward the center of the ship, you will find there will be many different levels and decks that are relegated to various forms of exploratory enterprise, as you would call it – research, in that sense.

There are also vast arrays of open space that are relegated to very park-like atmospheres, for we enjoy the idea of nature, and in that sense bring it with us. The idea is also that there will be many levels simply for experiencing different environments – to accommodate different beings – to shift from one to another, as they may choose to do. These might be called pressure chambers, in a sense, although it is not exactly as you mean the term.

There will also be the idea of the communication stations that we have called, in very, very colloquial terms – not literally at all – the communication stations we have termed the chapels, in that sense. Which are rooms, chambers of crystalline formation, that allow an individual to be touched directly in with the Infinite.

There will also be what you would call amplification modules, which allow individuals to tap into specific frequencies of different dimensions, for the purpose of some of the channelings, as you call them, that go on in this form of communication. For do remember that the most natural receiver device is living beings.

The idea also is that certain other decks will contain many of the ideas that you would call leisure activities, where individuals may simply play. And there are whole simulated environments that individuals can create, simply by a connection to the main computer with their consciousness; and they can explore different realms in that way, almost as if they were literally, physically, visiting those dimensions, and able to exist in those atmospheres without actually existing physically within them. You understand?

Q: Mhmm.
B: There will also be what you would call the Association council chambers, wherein can be the projection of many different levels of consciousness to gather in meetings, as it were; to understand the ebb and the flow of the organization and the communication that goes on between the hundreds of worlds of the Association.

There will also be the creation of experimental environments, environments we have not encountered, per se, but environments that we can create, in that sense, to explore and experiment with the many ways that the universe can manifest itself.

Large vast areas are given over to the creation of entire ecologies on the ship, so that we may understand the full workings of any particular planetary society – by literally recreating vast areas of their entire ecosystem.

Q: Would you have any Earth-like…?
B: Yes.
Q: You do?
B: Yes, and on the Solar Wind, as on Essassani itself, there are a few dolphins. There will be a few other ideas, a few other chambers whose purpose in that way will not necessarily be that easy nor brief to describe.
By the way, some mother ships have the ability to disassemble portions of themselves to create whole planetary colonies if necessary.
Q: Okay. This was sufficient.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Sharing!

Motivating Teenagers

Q: I would like some assistance and guidance. I have a daughter who’s fourteen.

B: Yes.

Q: I find that the idea of judgment . . . I find it very difficult not to be judgmental with my daughter – simply in the area of getting her to do the schoolwork; and just the regular things that we do with teenagers.

B: So! She has taught you that it is easy for you to be judgmental.

Q: Yes. But I don’t like it. I notice . . .

B: Then, don’t do it!

Q: Well, I feel that . . . the area I have difficulty with is, I feel the responsibility to have her understand reading, writing; learning her school work . . .

B: If you are learning to be responsible to her, then you don’t have to be responsible for her.

Q: That’s where it gets difficult . . .

B: If you say so.

Q: Yes, I do.

B: All right. What is there a high interest in?

Q: At this present time there doesn’t seem to be too much.

B: Have you asked? Do you think you have presented yourself in such a way that she would feel comfortable in telling you?

Q: Not recently.

B: Then why don’t you? Find out what the interest is that is there. And perhaps, by sharing the ideas that can be learned from that, you can adapt the interest in ways that will allow that individual, your daughter, to adapt the energy in her own way – to allow there to be the learning that needs to be there.

If you allow the individual to learn, in their own terms, what the energy is that they define themselves to be, this is what will allow them to learn. Rather than enforcing a particular methodology upon them, which you may think is the only way in which somebody can learn.

Q: I personally . . . I left out the aspect of my husband, who has a much stronger viewpoint on enforcing that she do her schoolwork and that stuff, and I feel that I have to carry his torch. And I’m very tired . . .

B: Is it getting heavy?

Q: Yes. I don’t want to do it.

B: All right. But again, you can share with him, as well, the understanding that to find out what is the driving motivation of another individual, is what will allow you to see how you can suggest to the other individual how they can use their own driving motivation, to learn what they want to learn.
Q: Thank you.

Q2: What do you mean by being responsible to? I understand the part about being responsible for.

B: I thought so. Being responsible to someone is being the most complete version of yourself you can be, so that they have an accurate reflection of you to see themselves within. Being fully who you are allows them the opportunity to see within you, opportunities that they have chosen to be, for that is their choice.

Q: With children it can be a problem. I know I have a...

B: It can be a what?

Q: Well, a challenge or whatever.

B: It is a situation.

Q: I have a fifteen-year-old son – I was listening to him talk, and I could sympathize.

B: Would you like to get the son and daughter together? Perhaps there may be much in common for the families to discuss.

Q: With him I realize he has a need to define himself now on his own terms, and I want to be comfortable in allowing him to do that, and still be harmonious together.

B: Then you can share the understanding that you have of what is being done. And simply reflect to that individual that every individual is as powerful as they need to be, to be anything they want – without having to hurt anyone else to get it! So define away; and simply recognize that if the individual comes upon a definition that requires that they enforce, or force themselves upon someone else, there is an easier way.

Q: Okay. Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Motivating Teenagers
Motivation

B: Remember that you’re motivated by your definitions to choose to behave the way you behave. This goes for all of you. Definition leads to motivation... leads to choice. That’s it, that’s it, that’s it, that’s it, that’s it... that’s it! A B C; 1 2 3. There it is... it can’t be said any more clearly.

Your definitions lead to motivations... lead to choice. So the choices you make, the way you behave, the way you are MOTIVATED to behave is absolutely, inexorably, utterly connected to what you define to be true; and that’s why you make the choices you do. Period.
Multidimensional Access

Q: Another channel that I know also has parallel life experiences, and during an interaction she was able to observe it. She went into a few parallel lives and . . .

B: Yes, because of the nature of the energy field being a transference field, it opens up a multidimensional conduit, that if you are unlocked from the specific frequency that is utilized to draw you into their dimension, you will find that you have then the capability of random access to all of the multidimensional fields and doorways within that overall zone that is created, yes.

Q: In that overall zone that is created, how limited is that?

B: It is unlimited. You can be anywhere and anywhen that your intention brings you to, while you are in that zone. It is how we function in our spacecraft, by allowing us to translate ourselves into whatever reality we wish, without actually traveling any intervening distance.

Q: So ostensibly one could do that and if you were able to stop during the unlocking process, if you were able to stop and not lock onto their frequency, you could open this gateway up.

B: Yes. You can unlock from their frequency and initiate your own frequency to whatever your intention decides is appropriate . . . that is where you will be taken. That is the doorway through which you will . . . fall.

Q: So during that process you create a mind, focus, intent, that’s your own.

B: Yes.

Q: Excellent, very nice, very wonderful.

B: Does that help you?

Q: It helps me enormously.

B: Then pleasant dreams.

Q: Thank you.
Multidimensional Communications

Q: In this lifetime I had a son who died at the age of 32 years, about ten years ago.
B: Yes.
Q: And I’ve had some communication where I feel that he was communicating – he was waiting for me and possibly his sister.
B: All right. Many individuals who choose to form life bonds with certain other individuals – and then partake of a transformation into non-physicality before, so to speak, the other individuals – do so to function as spirit guides for those still alive.

For many times you will find that your desire to communicate with that individual will then be what lures and spurs you on to extend your senses to reach into different areas and different levels of yourself. In a sense, therefore, they – by having gone on to another level – are luring you to extend your senses to that level of yourself as well.
Q: Okay, well, he didn’t seem to be doing terribly well in his lifetime here. Nevertheless, he could be in the fourth density at this point.
B: Non-physical fourth. Now, at this time, there is also a perception on our part that, as we perceive the energy of that individual, there is also an opportunity for an aspect of that individual to also have already formed a reincarnation.

This does not mean that you cannot still be in communication with another aspect of them. For on the level of the fourth density non-physical, the idea of who they used to be no longer strictly applies. Therefore, many ideas and counterpart formations can be accomplished, and other aspects of the soul can be incarnating, while different aspects still carry on a communication with you.
Q: All right. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Multiple Relationships

Q: I have two girls whom I’m fond of.
B: Oh, all right. I have many.

One moment.

The ideas that we are discussing here have to do with what your society thinks relationships ought to be and what relationships can be, normally. Do you follow along? The idea to understand is that relationships happen for a reason. If relationships do happen naturally then you can learn many things from them. In other words, if certain things go on that seem difficult and they are not the product of running away from something then they can serve a positive purpose. If the situation you are in is not the product of denial it can be something which results in much expansion for all involved. Are you measuring your present situation against a particular idea you think ought to be happening instead? Is there difficulty being experienced in your situation? And if so, what type?

Q: The difficulty is I want to decide on just one.
B: Why?
Q: Why?
B: Yes, why? This may seem like a strange question to your society but it is not a strange one to me. What we are suggesting here is that the idea of your desire may simply be the result of an expectation rather than a natural act. So, why? Are you suggesting that things would be easier if you could make a decision?

Q: [silence]
B: Do you not feel like talking about this? I’m not here to force what you do not want to discuss. This does not have to be complex. What are you experiencing right now? What is your hesitation?

Q: Talking on this topic in front of so many people.
B: No, you’re all alone. These [indicating the audience] are all aspects and extensions of you. You are simply in a room full of mirrors. But they are all tilted at various angles and all the different reflections look slightly different from one another. So, speak freely; it is just you talking out loud. No one will judge you. For understand, if they judge you they lower their vibration to the same level.

Q: I feel as if I cannot run away from them, either of them, and I want to know where this feeling comes from?
B: Well thank you very much. First of all, you are obviously connected to both of them very strongly. Running away would only be a denial of the relationships you naturally attracted. Understand that if you really believe you are functioning with full integrity to the best of your ability, then if both relationships still remain, then that’s the natural result.
In our civilization we do not place expectations on how relationships should manifest. We allow them to be what they are, not what we think they "ought" to be. Because when relationships are allowed to be what they are they always work themselves out flawlessly. Now, we understand that there may be an idea in your civilization that relationships should occur in a specific way. But you see, there may be many things that you need to learn from different individuals and not necessarily just one.

In our civilization every individual is, in a very real way, "married" to every other individual and the relationships that occur within our society all happen within "The Marriage;" because all our relationships are allowed to happen in an open, honest and loving way. Therefore, if more than one happens at the same time, we know there must be a reason for it. We do not see multiple relationships as mutually exclusive; we see them as mutually enhancing. Of course, it requires that open and honest communication occur between all individuals involved.

But you see, we do not necessarily place an assumption that one individual may find only one individual to spend their entire life with. It can happen that way, but we do not expect that it must. If one individual has a relationship with only one other individual during the entire life span – we don’t know that until we reach the end of that life span. We get to the end of the life span and look back upon our lives and say, "Well, no one else came along. I guess that was a one-on-one, wasn’t it?" [audience laughter] So the idea, first of all, is to ask yourself, do you enjoy both relationships and do you still learn something from both of them?

Q: Yes.

B: Well, then. Allow yourself to allow them to teach you what they need to teach you; allow yourself to continue to be of service to those individuals. All things work themselves out with unconditional love. It is only the expectations of how you think you ought to be acting that is creating the confusion and the difficulty. Relax. Understanding that you created the situation will allow you to learn from it what you need to, to allow it to change in the way that is most beneficial for all individuals involved. And thank you very much for the boldness of your sharing.

Q: Thank you.
Q: I’ve been trying to understand the ramifications of when one person takes another person’s life. My brother murdered his wife and I am wondering if that came about as a result of free will, of pre-agreement before they entered this life?

B: It does not have to play out that way. There were pre-agreements, but in no way does any pre-arranged idea or pattern that you’re going to play out in any particular life – in no way must it play out through negativity, through lack of integrity. Those agreements can all be reconciled and transformed in a positive way. Yes, it took place through free will; but basically speaking, endeavors which express negativity to that degree take place because the individuals involved have not been taught that they actually do have free will. They have not been taught that they actually do have self-empowerment. So individuals that perform those type of acts act generally out of the belief that they are powerless and they strike out to take others with them so they do not feel they are going down alone. Do you follow? They try to project upon the external world all the ideas they are not willing to be responsible for in their internal world because that responsibility is too much for them to bear. They have not been taught they have the power to transform responsibility into positive action and understanding.

So, in a sense, the pre-arranged agreements have to do with the type of interactions and the things that those individuals work out between themselves. But in no way do those pre-arrangements have to result in a negative act. It could have been arrived at in a positive way. However, since it did happen in that way you can still recognize it as an opportunity for the individual who died to choose, if they desire, reincarnation or not, and to provide certain levels of assistance to the individual who committed the murder – to allow that individual to gain back their power so that they can recognize they never have to do that again. That is, they never have to give their power away to such a degree that they think they have to control the external reality of everyone else’s life in order to feel powerful within themselves. There are many levels on which the murdered person can be of great assistance to the other individual, when and if that murdered individual goes through the confusion they may be feeling when they first enter the non-physical realm. Because, in playing their part of having been murdered, many times that is also a creation of confusion and the lack of belief in one’s own self-empowerment. So in a sense, both individuals are acting out a belief in lack of self-empowerment, each in their own style of expression. They have both played out a scenario that has come to its logical conclusion when you deal with the idea of belief in lack of self-empowerment.

It gives both of those individuals an opportunity to examine the ideas of what they have done; to take responsibility for it. Acting through integrity they no longer need to create a reality within themselves, or reflect a reality to each other wherein they believe they are not self-empowered and cannot create the reality they desire without having to hurt anyone else or themselves in order to do so.

Anything, no matter how negative, can always be transformed into a positive. Do remember: everyone is eternal; everyone is infinite. And in that sense, in the long run it does not really matter; what matters is what you make of what you do, what meaning you give to it, and how you choose to learn from it and transform it in positive directions. The being that was murdered still lives. Many individuals, almost all of you at one time or another, in the thousands of lives you have had, in the tens of thousands of years of reincarnation you have created, have all murdered and been murdered at one time or another. Here you are again, to choose once again: confusion, self-empowerment. You follow the idea?

Victims & Perpetrators

Q: Well, I was thinking about the holocaust, what we call the holocaust in Germany around 1945. Why did so many people, almost as a group, choose to create that collective experience?

B: There are race and culture-wide belief systems as well. And recognize that gatherings are no accident. Again, remember that when we say you choose and create your reality, that doesn’t mean it’s always a conscious choice or act, "Oh yes, I want to be killed today." No, no, no. That is not what we are saying. What we are saying is that individuals of like frequency will find themselves gathering together and existing within a type of a reality that is generated by their particular frequency that they give off, that they generate from their individual or collective beliefs.

There are many reasons for that particular kind of manifestation. One reason is simply that it was a manifestation of the fear, of the belief in persecution, that many of those individuals have with their cultural beliefs. It was partly a manifestation of that. It was also, to some degree, a karmic manifestation. Again, not that it has to happen that way, because karma has nothing to do with retribution. Many of you may believe that it does, and many of you have created karma and reincarnation to be of a kind of retribution. But karma, in and of itself, has nothing to do with judgment and retribution. Karma is self-imposed. Many individuals, in creating an unconscious recognition of things they have done in the past, or in past lives, have gathered together as a group and taken upon themselves the idea of the guilt and the idea of the persecution. Sometimes to atone in the ways they think they need to atone.

Again, it does not have to happen that way. But recognize that the particular culture that you refer to as being persecuted in the holocaust have had many holocausts of their own where they have been the persecutors in times past. Therefore, simply recognize that all we are saying is that when you create confusion in your own reality, many times in your past that has been done unconsciously out of fear, out of doubt or out of guilt.

In no way, shape or form is what I am about to say an implication or a definition that needs to be thought of as a distinct label for any one particular person or group of people upon your planet. But you yourselves in your own cultural awareness are very ready to admit that there are some cultural groups of people that deal very strongly with the idea of guilt much of the time. And that is what you have referred to. So the idea is to recognize that there is a grain of truth in the understanding that the willingness to operate within guilt will usually attract someone to pronounce sentence. That is another reason this can happen.

Now, the individual that became the persecutor is in no way excused, nor their actions condoned for having chosen that role. It was their duty to be strong enough to ignore the frequency of any individuals that might cry out for persecution with their unconscious fears. But still the idea is, those individuals took it upon themselves because of their unconscious fears to become the symbolic representation of all that was reared within the other culture. They are victims and perpetrators, two sides of the same coin—the coin of “lack of self-empowerment.” One side of the coin cannot exist without the other. And when one side does not exist, the other cannot exist and will not exist. So, if and when individuals no longer decide they want to play out the idea or believe in the idea of victimhood, there can be no perpetrators. When individuals realize that they are self-empowered and can create the reality they desire without having to hurt anyone else or themselves, there will be no more perpetrators. When the perpetrators decide not to play that game, there will be no more victims. They will not be able to find each other.

Pre-Life Agreements

Q: Do you have a way of generally describing these kinds of pre-life agreements, between perpetrators and victims, as a chosen life experience by both of them?

B: We base our system of understanding upon something we have already defined and explained at various times: the idea we have called “knowingness.” That being, knowingness serves to function as a neutral place. Belief, emotion and action are three things; each possessing a polarity, which creates six. Thus, from your knowing Self, your neutral Self, your fulcrum point, your lever point, the gateway or doorway through which your existence pours itself into physical reality, so to speak, you create a prism, a three-fold prism with, of course, its polarized counterpart. But fundamentally, it is a three-fold prism of belief, emotion and physical action. We have rendered this idea into the formula of manifestation called, "See it, Feel it and Be it."

The idea is that your knowledge, your neutral, knowing Self, is rendered into a template that is defined by: 1) a vision or blueprint; 2) by a feeling or emotion which, in that sense, is the activation principle, the energization principle; and 3) the being it, the physical acting-out or action principle. All three are necessary. And the dance of these three between their polarities are necessary in order achieve or be able to create any physiological manifestation that would then express itself as, what you have called, a "pre-agreement" or overall life theme of a chosen lifetime for the persona.

Thus, it is recognized that the persona, created out of the three-fold prism of belief, emotion and physical action portions of the template are responsible for at any given moment expressing the particular point along the path that you are at as a soul, the particular reflections you are creating in your life, and the personality aspect that is reflective of the themes you are exploring in whatever way your free will has decided to explore them. And, as such, the persona is, in that sense, an artificial or flexible construct which can be transmuted into any other kind of persona at a moment’s notice. Hence, this is why we say, "It does not have to play out that way." There may be pre-agreements, but in no way does any pre-arranged idea or pattern that you’re going to play out in any particular life, in no way must it play out through negativity, through lack of integrity. Again, those agreements can all be reconciled and transformed in a positive way.

When you align the overall energy of the persona with the knowing self, or the "highest self," so to speak, when you synchronize and have balanced the three within the polarity structure – taking that whole – the three have become balanced with the knowing energy. You thus achieve the balance between the polarity of the physical and nonphysical reality and evolve into, so to speak, becoming one with your Higher Self and have completed the cycle of your physiological manifestation for that lifetime, for that particular, shall we say, fragment of the Oversoul.

 Murder
Music On Essassani and Interacting With ET’s

Q: I have some sharing and also a couple of questions from my brother, who interviewed you the other night from Channel 9. He is working tonight, otherwise he would be here. First of all, I’ll ask a question that maybe other people are interested in hearing, and that is about music on your planet. Do you have scales, and what kind of musical form do you have? And also what kind of instruments?

B: We have some degree of instruments that are created, many of which are spontaneous, many of which are remnants from older times in our civilization. The majority of our instrumentation will usually be percussive – bell-like. There are a few strings and a few of what you would call wind instruments; but there are very few.

And again, they would be similar to what you would call your oriental instruments – Chinese, Japanese, in that way. Very simple tonalities will be created with these instruments, as the majority of the tonalities we experience are actually now, at this point, created telepathically and shared in that way.

Q: That’s interesting. Would our Gamelan orchestras be similar in some ways? It seems to be...

B: Define. The terminology does not exist within the memory banks of the channel.

Q: Uh, it’s Indonesian – bells and gongs, and...

B: To some degree, although you will find that they will be simpler in structure, in many different ways. And in this sense, you will then allow yourself to recognize that many of them may be tuned to particular tonalities, which represent the general combined total pattern of our civilization. They will be few in number, and very simple in construction.

Q: That’s interesting. Okay, now the sharing: you described to me... when the medium was going into the place, and you appeared... he (brother) saw light and he could just feel you there.

B: Yes. He simply was tuned into the wavelength of the event in which he/we was taking place. Everything is a single event, even though you may perceive yourself to be an individual part of it; you bring to the event your own energy, and take from that event the energy of the combined event. He is simply sensitive and open to receiving information in that way; and hence with his own abilities he was able to tap into the wavelength that represented, in whatever terms made sense to him, the idea of the event. Or terms that would soon make sense to him.

Q: Also, he would like to have an experience of actually an encounter with a space craft, and...

B: In time.

Q: Also, he would like to be a go-between, between the extraterrestrials and the news media...

B: If that is his interest, in that way, and if he is willing to simply, at any given moment, follow in life what excites him the most, then he will lead himself into that type of interaction. He has already placed himself into a particular type of activity that is very conducive to creating situations of that kind.

All he needs to know is, if that is what excites him, then he will lead himself into such interactions. Simply keep himself open, and do not put expectations in his way.
Q: Also he is working on scripts for television, and he was thinking maybe he could reach the general public with, you know, a fictional way to prepare them, in...

B: It is one way that many individuals upon your planet create and assist in the preparation for your world to be able to interact with other worlds – by slowly but surely, and definitely and solidly, rearranging the concepts to come in from other civilizations, as well.

For do understand: our interaction with you is not to be at the cost of your own culture. So it must take place at whatever rate will allow your culture to maintain its integrity, and at the same time be open and willing to interact with other cultures as well.

Q: Could he get some help in a creative way from...

B: He will, once again, attract what he needs. All he needs to do is center himself and open up to his own higher consciousness, and all the concepts he requires will come through from his guides, from his own higher consciousness, and from any other connection he has made – whether it is, in your terms, extraterrestrial or not.

Recognize that every individual has their own connections in many different levels, and none of you are original to this planet anyway.

So the idea is that, since time is your illusion, all of those connections and all of those lives in other civilizations still exist. Tell him he can find the counterpart of himself in another civilization, and ask the counterpart what ideas may be necessary to allow this civilization to learn what it needs to learn.

Q: That’s exciting. Thank you very much.

B: Thank you for your sharing. SHARING!
Mystery and Understanding

Q: Hi.
B: Hi!
Q: Last Saturday I was sick, and it was in my abdomen, and it was on the left and right side. And they took me to the hospital because it was so severe a pain. They took tests, they gave me medicine, they took blood and everything, and they didn’t know what it was. And they said: “Well, since you’re feeling better, we’re going to let you go home, and it will be a mystery.”
B: Oh, a mystery!
Q: And that I wouldn’t know what it was. And I was wondering why I created this situation for myself, and what was the sickness?
B: Do you find that at this time, you, in one sense, have allowed it to be demystified?
Q: Not really.
B: How long did it take for the situation to alleviate itself – approximately what you would call one to two of your days?
Q: No.
B: How long?
Q: About three.
B: Three. All right. How do you feel now?
Q: Not too great, but okay.
B: All right. One idea is to simply allow you to know that, regardless of the structure of information that has been set up in your society, regardless of the structure of information that you refer to as “authority,” even to that structure there are many things that are a mystery. And that you – you – are your own final answer; you are your own exploration of any mystery you create. Everything does occur for a reason, and many of the reasons can be extremely simple. The reasons, in and of themselves, do not have to be mysterious, in that way.

Many of the things that individuals may not understand at any given moment, they, as you say, chalk it up to mystery. But that may simply be another way of saying that you do not have to have conscious analytical awareness of all the things that occur in your life, or why they occur at that given moment. But that somewhere down the road, it will make itself clear, make itself plain. Now, one of the ideas was to allow you to know that you don’t necessarily have to worry about relying upon the authoritative structure so much, and that you eventually will alter yourself, one way or another, regardless of what they say they can or cannot do.

It allowed you to go through a door of trust regarding authority, and allowed you to know that the final authority is in you. That is one of the reasons you created that idea. Because in the past, you see, you have created – in many different lives – many run-ins, as you say, with authority. Now you have given yourself an opportunity to know you are relaxing your creating of authority’s hold over you. You can interact with them freely; you can allow them to be who they are. And you can discover that even the authority that is supposed to know everything still contains mystery and room for exploration. So that you will become more equal with them, in that way; and they, in a sense, will not have to create a gut ache in you.

You will learn how to allow yourself to encompass them; they will learn how to also, themselves, to encompass you. So that you can allow each other to be who you are, and respect each other for what you are, and not think that any one of you has to be more right than the other. There are a few aspects of this idea that your guides have to share with you as well. And this will be showed, perhaps, in some of the events that occur in you daily life or in your dream realities, beginning tonight of you time.

But in a sense you have taken yourself through a process, and you have allowed that process to take you beyond the old expectations of the old society, placing you on a different level. Recognize, in many ways, that you were clever in doing what you did, and the experience you created was not unlike the experience that many other individuals have had, and the physical channel before you has had. For recognize that that particular area of abdominal pain is an area your medical practitioners have absolutely no way of doing anything with. There was nothing they could do for you. That is an area outside their understanding, but not outside yours.

You created an occurrence – an occurrence that they desired to assist you with, but could not, because of the limitations they have placed upon themselves. More and more individuals that give them the opportunity to recognize that there is something here that they are unfamiliar with will allow them to explore more and more in different areas, now knowing that the studies they already have do not answer it all. You are luring them, in a sense, out of these shells. And that is one of the reasons you have co-created that with them.

And you have, in many ways, also, used it as part of your own process to take you through a gate. Sometimes those gates are painful simply because of the expectations and belief systems you have been brought up with in your society, but bit by bit those gateways and processes will become less and less and less painful. What is your physical age?

Q: Eleven.

B: You are at a master number; 22 and 33 are also master numbers, at which you may experience another threshold gate. But you have actually adopted, at this age, an idea that it takes many other individuals until the year 33 to act out. You have cut that into thirds, and so you are accelerating that much more quickly. We thank you for your boldness in that way, for it will make a difference in the other interactions you now have, from this point forward in your life, regarding what you decide needs to be mysterious. Or it can simply be understood for the commonplace occurrence that it is, and the creation that comes from you, and serves all individuals involved.

‘Tis not isolated within you – just what you have to gain from it or learn from it – but also what they, what their part, your medical world, whoever else you interact with, have also to learn from it. You are a very bold teacher, in that way. You will be boldly teaching for quite some time. And each interaction that you have, in our perception, will become more and more bold as time goes on. Thank you.

Q: Yes, okay. (AUD: Laughter and clapping.)

Mystery and Understanding
Q: We're all familiar with, what we call, especially in the Western World, mythology.
B: Yes.
Q: There is much written about this, the Greek and Roman mythology, Egyptian mythology, the Isis and Osiris mythology.
B: Yes.
Q: Druidic mythology, the legend of Merlin.
B: Yes.
Q: Old Testament mythology, the stories of Moses, et cetera. My question, going clear back to Mount Olympus and well before that – how much of what we look at as mythology has some truth in fact, or not a lot of truth in fact?
B: All of it has truth in fact, but not necessarily as you think. In other words, there are different categories of why some of these things originate. One, the archetypal level ... in other words, your collective consciousness has the ability to generate a collective consciousness archetypal representation that represents one aspect, one facet of the total consciousness that your species is. And that can actually be an autonomous consciousness, self-aware and actually present itself in many ways to beings that are sensitive enough to perceive them. Sometimes those were looked upon as the "gods." You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Sometimes the mythologies actually represent interactions with real physical beings from other dimensions as well, either extraterrestrial or extra dimensional or so forth. Sometimes some of the mythologies are representative of certain attributes or beings that were even created in your society. In Atlantean times, for example, there was genetic manipulation, genetic engineering and, what you call, the myth of the mermaid comes from actual creations that were made at that time. Do you follow along?
Q: Yes, and the Centaur.
B: And that as well, yes. Those things were actually physiologically created in genetic laboratories a long time ago, not with very pleasant results. The idea, also, can be recognition of ancient memories of other selves, other lives, other dimensions of experience of your own beingness that you are remembering and calling into fruition. Calling into manifestation within yourself, and recognizing were true existences that you may have had in other realms, other dimensions of experience. There are many, many, many different levels; that might be why certain mythologies that you have now may exist. But all of them are true in fact ... it’s just that they have different reasons for how they originated.

Q: And the stories of Isis and Osiris and Merlin, they were real people then?

B: Merlin was a real being. Isis and Osiris were, in a sense, based upon real beings, but also were based upon archetypal projections of other dimensional aspects of those beings as well, and became a little "bigger" than the original beings upon which they were based. Which were originally beings that were connected to the star system of Sirius. You understand?

Q: Yes, thank you.
Natural Anger

Q: I think one of the most creative things is to raise a child.
B: Yes.

Q: And I think kids’ vibrations are wonderful, but sometimes it doesn’t match with mine and we struggle.
B: Yes.

Q: I like my kids and I do my best to be a wonderful parent but sometimes I get angry, raise my voice and spank them.
B: Anger. All right. Anger. Now first, natural anger does not last more than 10 to 15 seconds. If it lasts longer than that it is denial; it is definition; it is criticizing; it is punishing; it is expectations. It is all sorts of other things but it is not true anger. True anger is clarifying, it is aligning. It aligns you so you know, "All right, this is my reality. This is the reality I prefer. What I’m seeing is not representative of the reality I prefer." Yet, as you choose the reality you prefer, you can still respect that another’s choice of the reality they prefer in no way has to impinge on what you need to accomplish in your reality.

So, what is it within yourself that you are not coming to terms with? What is it that is touched within you in those circumstances? What anger do you have within you? Are you simply reacting to belief systems that you also bought into when you were a child and think that you should pass on? Are you angry the child might remind you of things within yourself that you yourself do not prefer? I ask a lot of questions, don’t I? Can you answer any of them in any way?

Q: Well, I have my own pace, and if I don’t finish my work for today then I won’t be able to sleep tonight.
B: Why?

Q: Well, the next day I have to work. I have to do my laundry today. So I can’t just take care of my kid.
B: So, what you are saying, as I suggested, is that what you are angry with is fitting into a schedule that is not a schedule that you prefer, a schedule that you believe you have to buy into. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: So, once again the question is, regarding your job, are you doing what excites you the most? Because you’re only making ends meet? Because if you do what really excites you the most, you will automatically create a schedule that will allow for the perfect pacing for everything that is truly important in your life to occur.

Is there something that excites you that would allow you to work out of your home so that you can be with the child in the way you wish to be? Is there a situation that would excite you the most that would create a schedule or attract someone into your life where the child could be, while you go and do what you need to do? All the components of whatever schedule you create will work together in perfect harmony if you are doing the thing you truly love to do.
But if you are forcing yourself to do something that is really not representative of what excites you, then, of course, the only schedule that’s created will be a schedule that does not work for you. If a schedule doesn’t work for you smoothly and effortlessly that’s a sure sign that it’s not your schedule, but someone else’s schedule buried in your subconscious teachings. It might be the schedule of your parents, might be the schedule of your society, but if it doesn’t work for you, it isn’t your schedule. If it’s not your schedule you’ll never have enough time. If it is your schedule everything will happen in perfect timing. Is this a clear concept to you?

Q: Yes. You’re right on. I think the kid cannot really resonate with me so I have to resonate with his vibration. But is there any way that I can be on his level?

B: You are missing the point. The child chose to be born to you. Whatever the true vibration of the child is, whatever the true vibration of you happens to be is automatically synchronized if you are being the true you.
Needs

Q: My needs are tearing me apart against my preferences. There are physical needs to do things; I tend to run ahead – run away – from those things. I understand what you’re saying, as an action of go ahead and do the exciting things, and feel the ecstasy, etc.

But my needs– I feel grounded, I feel...

B: Why do you think they are needs?

Q: Well, I tend to try to ignore them. That’s why...

B: Tend to try? Does that mean try to try?

Q: I try to try to ignore them.

B: Who says you have to ignore anything? Ignoring things is what allows them to become overwhelming.

Q: Okay. Let me describe, in a way... like, I don’t really want to work to make a living – to be in a physical body, to be in physical time...

B: Now, one moment. You are physical body in physical time. So you can allow one thing to be obvious. If you are where you are, you obviously chose to do so. Therefore: first of all and fundamentally, allow yourself to recognize: as long as you remain physical, you obviously still think there is a reason for it. The second – the microsecond – you truly no longer believe you have a purpose in being physical, you won’t be. So as long as you continue to remain so, take it for granted that you think you need to be so, for some reason.

Q: Well... okay, thank you for that. The feeling I get... I feel as though the awareness that when I’m here in the physical body, this one here: I feel in pain; I feel like I’m more of an energy unit or something – more of a-just another space; I feel I am another space.

B: You are your own space and your own time. It doesn’t fit– okay...

Q: It doesn’t fit here; I don ’t feel like I fit. And I realize...

B: We understand what you are saying; but again, by definition, if you truly didn’t fit, you wouldn’t be here. So take it for granted that you obviously do fit; otherwise you would be somewhere else.

Q: Yeah. Okay. I appreciate that. And...

B: The idea of fitting, however, doesn’t have to mean, "conforming."

Q: Oh, yeah. I acknowledge that. I feel as though I’m attenuating– to end on a brighter note —I feel like as though I’m attenuating, like something– like you say, accelerating.

B: Yes.

Q: I’m getting toward the last little upward spiral – the little thing – before I’m no longer involved in that dichotomy of myself.

B: All right. But do recognize that the paradox of the situation is, in order to experience what you are talking about, the first thing you need to do is become fully involved where you are, in the moment. By being in the now moment, where you are, is when you connect to all that you possibly can become – and then become it.

Q: I’ll improve on that.
B: You will simply be different.

Q: Thank you. I had a realization about that concept of the idea of complete willingness to be an earth person.
B: Yes.

Q: And many of us, I know – that down through the years – have been unwilling...have an awareness of past and future, other planets, other civilizations...
B: Yes, yes, yes.

Q: having the unwillingness to be – and since we are here, we very much are earthmen...
B: (in a female voice: –and women. Much laughter.)

Q: That’s why I said "earthperson" the first time. And it’s a complete willingness to contact the moment. And this is something I’m working on.
B: Yes! For this is just as valid as anywhere else you have ever been, or could ever be.

Q: Exactly.
B: If it isn’t, then you invalidate everything else you have ever done as well. For they are all here now. Thank you!
Q: Thank you.

B: Yes!
Q2: Are they going to be asking us questions or.
B: They may, you can ask them questions as well.
Q2: Okay, I didn’t know if that was going to be.
B: All we have done is laid the foundation for the reason for the contact to let you know a little bit about them and what it is you will be dealing with. You don’t have to come from a place of having to convince them. In fact if you do that it will be unlikely that you will convince them. Just be yourself but understand that in their own way they are making an assessment as to whether are not to become a participant in these kinds of dialogues.
Q2: Right.
B: They simply, at this point, without judgement, do not perceive a great deal change with regard to the information that you have already been given in your society. But you may dialogue with them however you wish to dialogue with them. They will, of course, exhibit a personality, a personality structure very different from my own and you may have to get use to that but, nevertheless, that should not stop you from either asking a question or answering one should you feel free to do so.
Q3: It sounds a lot like Sodom and Gomorrah, like looking for a few good people or something.
B: That is a very interesting statement and it will be very interesting to see how that might factor in to what it is they think about your planet, if you want to bring it up in their dialogue. Number two, continue.

Q2: When the hybrids come on Earth, how many are there going to be, about?
B: This is not yet determined.
Q2: Oh, it isn’t?
B: No.
Q2: Okay.
B: It is not like they are picking numbers out of a hat.
Q2: Well I didn’t know how many of them?
B: There are hundreds of thousands.
Q2: Hundreds of thousands.
B: Yes and eventually there will be hundreds of thousands but upon what you might refer to as relatively first contact, it is yet as underdetermined though obviously the number would be far fewer than that.
Q: Right, okay. And there will be children and adults?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Are there adult hybrids here now in our physical form?
B: Only from very rare, from time to time. Nothing permanent at all.
Q: Okay.
B: Not yet.
Q2: All right, I want to talk about. . . .
B: the ones you are referring to. There are in a sense humans, so to speak that certainly exhibit a high degree of hybridization in their genetic structure if you want to refer to them as hybrids, you may, but they would be Earth hybrids not the ones we generally mean when we talk about the hybrid children who are on the spacecraft’s now. You understand?
Q2: Yes, thank you.

“Neutral Situations”

Even a negative situation can be used in a positive way, regardless of anyone else’s intention; a positive effect can be gleaned out of it. So, create the neutral situation and continue to act upon the most exciting thing you can, trusting that somehow, in some way, shape or form, it will come around to serve you. You may not, in every circumstance and situation know, ever have a conscious understanding of how it did, in specific terms, serve, but in some way, shape, or form it will serve you in a positive way if you stay in that frequency. You will find that when objects or symbols involved in the situation are very specific to you – when you remain in the neutral state and go into the positive one, more often than not the specific understanding of exactly how that serves, will be had in relatively short order. But, you will not see it if you don’t stay in that vibration. If you’re not in that positive vibration then that reality with all it’s positive reflections and symbols will be invisible and will not manifest.

You may have lost something, for example, that you place extremely high value on. This is good practice for you, an object that you have placed such high value on is the thing that you will use, because they are the best practice for you to remain neutral, because of how you have placed such extremely high value on them, and now need to allow them to be completely neutral, like a kind of self test, yes. Because remember, your physical reality cannot change outwardly – that’s not the first sign that you have changed, that your physical reality changes outwardly. The first sign is, do you respond differently to your physical reality, even if it stays the same? That’s the first test as to whether you have really changed. Then, when you respond differently, even if your physical reality looks the same as it did before, then your outer reality can actually reflect the real change within you. But if you keep going – "I thought I had changed, why did this happen?" – you’re still reacting in the same old way, and thus, you haven’t changed ... the button can still be pushed.

Question 1: I have another question.
Bashar: Yes.
Q: Since this channeling is coming to an end fairly soon.
B: It is not coming to an END, the channel is stopping.
Q: Right, and I imagine that the channel has been asked many, many questions over these years, but I’m sure there are some questions that no one has asked?
B: Y-e-sss....
Q: And that the answer would be very helpful or surprising or interesting to us. (Much laughter) And I was wondering if you would give us those answers now? (much laughter and applause)
B: An ingenious question.
Q2: How about the answer then?
B: No. However, we will see in the remaining transmissions what might occur.
Q: Okay.
B: I will be able to tell you now this, however, some of you might not be familiar with what we are about to say but most of you will be, the Neutrals have decided to interact.
Audience: Yea, yea....
B: But I will not tell you how.
Q2: Will we find out before our ending with you?
B: Only a part of it. I will not tell you now, how.
Audience has many different and varying guesses....
B: I will not tell you how.
Q: We will interact with them?
B: But I will not tell you now!
Audience: More guesses
B: I will not tell you how! I will not confirm your guesses.
Q: They were here for the convergence, weren’t they?
B: I will not tell you how, nor will I confirm your guesses.
New Every Moment

Q: (Small child) When it was break time, I was – I had a real loose tooth. It was about to come out, and at my last bite – I was eating a cookie – and then it felt weird, where my tooth was almost coming out. And then it wasn’t there, but it was in my mouth – then I didn’t know where it was.

B: All right.

Q: So could you tell me where it is?

B: But you do not need it. Recognize simply that the idea is that you are giving yourself an opportunity to change one idea for another idea, which will grow in its place. And as that idea grows, to recognize that you, with the same natural smoothness, can change the entire being that you are.

In this way, you do not have to search for aspects of your past, for you are creating your past from now. Allow what has been in your life to serve you. Allow what you are now to be just as beautiful as anything you have ever been. There is no need to look back. But simply recognize that you are always in the process of becoming something new – always being a new idea. Go on forward. All right?

Q: All right, thank you.

B: Thank you.

B: There are many other species observing your planet that, for lack of a better term, are "waiting in the wings" to present themselves that you know nothing of yet.
Q: Can you give us a brief idea of what others there might be?
B: I will ask. One moment ... we will see if it is appropriate timing for one of them to perhaps give you a hint or a clue. One moment ... one moment ... one moment ... one moment ... one moment ... one moment ... one moment ... there is a lot of discussion going on ... one moment ... it involves many different levels of consciousness ... one moment ... it involves a scanning of many different time lines and probable realities ... one moment. We have to some degree mentioned one, we have never mentioned another. One that we have mentioned to some degree will be that civilization you know from what you call the star system of Tau Ceti that will ultimately be great friends to humanity. They are in that sense, brownish of skin tone, humanoid to some degree in appearance, though there are slight differentiation’s.
The others that are waiting in the wings, that none of you yet have any knowledge of translate their identity to you for perhaps lack of another term, as either what you would call "Weavers" or "Latchers" or "The Loom." They are a race of beings that specifically guide, aid and assist in the bringing together bits of information that seem unrelated, to be brought together into one understandable tapestry. They are aiding and assisting in a number of energy levels, they talk to many of you in your dreams ... one moment ... one moment ... we will see if they are willing to part with a description of how you may perceive them from time to time, in some of the interactions that you have ... have ... have ... one moment...one moment.
Another is also willing to reveal itself to you symbolically. You would perceive this other race – we will get back to the "Weavers" in a moment – as literally you would perceive them ... they are not literally thus but you would perceive them in your dimension as "Light Through Stained Glass." One moment ... one moment ... one moment ... one moment. Both, The Light Through Stained Glass and the Weavers, to some degree work in concert to aid and assist you in formulating a stronger understanding of existence in dream reality, and assisting you in understanding that physical reality experience is, in fact, a dream. Therefore, you may experience them both mostly as some of the emotional urging or patterns, or considerations, or investigations, or curiosities that you have in your dreams, about what you are experiencing, about what your dreams may mean to you – may indicate their assistance and or influence within their guidance, of your ability to understand yourself as a self-created dream. There are physiological manifestations of both of these civilizations that you will ultimately encounter in years to come.
But for now, they are willing to present themselves to you – these two additional civilizations, in addition to the Tau Ceti civilization – they are willing to present themselves to you symbolically, so that you at least can be aware of their energy and have a symbol by which to represent them – so that you can be in stronger awareness and contact with them. Weavers and Light through Stained Glass, will be the way they choose to represent themselves at present.
New Paradigms Of Behavior

Q: As I’ve been accelerating my energies, I’ve noticed that the people I’m close to are concerned for me.

B: All right.

Q: And what my reaction to that is – in terms of their concern – is that I don’t wish them to fear for me, but obviously I don’t want to stop my...

B: Do they fear for themselves?

Q: That’s what I think they might be doing. You know, maybe it’s threatening their belief systems or something?

B: Maybe, maybe not.

Q: And I realize I have no control over that, I don’t want to...

B: If you are always clear and concise within your openness of communication and your integrity, then you are responsible to them by being yourself.

Q: Yes. And I would also like to ask you about compassion.

B: Yes.

Q: When I hear that someone is having a problem or a physical ailment or whatever they feel they have, I feel for them in a... now, I understand what you mean that you don’t say you are sorry for them, or...

B: Or pity them.

Q: Or pity them. Exactly. But I feel for them.

B: Compassion is not pity.

Q: What is your definition of compassion?

B: Compassion is recognizing that, in a way, it is similar to what you may think of as pride – but not in a negative sense. You are proud of them for the strength that they have to undergo the limitations that they have created for themselves. And you know that they have created it from their strength, and that they can chose something else if they desire to.

But as long as they are in what they have chosen to be in, you have compassion for them as a fellow being who has chosen to express their strength in the manner they have chosen to do so. That is compassion.

Q: Hmm. I feel more a sense of feeling what they’re feeling.

B: That is empathy.

Q: Yes.

B: You can form that type of identification if you wish, but you still do not have to allow it to transform into sympathy. And in this way, it does not make you cold. Recognize that individuals in your society are not used to exercising compassion and that compassion, because it is, in a sense, a knowing state of existence, may seem to be detached, so to speak, from the normal range of emotions.
Q: Yes, that’s the next thing. I’ve just been told that I’m not emotional.
B: Understand, in this way, that emotionality is a tool, like anything else. And it falls, in your terms, below knowingness. If you are in a knowing state you simply know what you need to know without necessarily having to go down through the gamut of emotions to understand it.
Q: Right.
B: You are not without compassion and understanding. And in this way, if that allows you in the eyes of another to maybe seem aloof or cold, simply recognize again that if you know you are functioning within your integrity and are willing to communicate this idea to them in compassion, then you have performed your responsibility to them and you can, beyond that point, not be responsible for their choice of reaction.
Allow them to share the idea and see if it is something they may also be able to get in touch with for themselves – but they do not have to choose it.
Q: Yes, I see.
B: Very good.
Q2: When you speak of expressing this compassion and this love, I can feel it for others like you, but I just can’t feel it for everyone. How can I achieve that loving state?
B: By not achieving it; by allowing yourself to understand the idea that the only reason you would have for feeling dispassionate with someone would be because you are judging what they are doing as being less valid than what you think they should be doing.
Q: Well, you know I try to feel that exchange of love with them, but when I see there is a wrong thing and a right thing to do, and they choose...
B: There is no right. There is no wrong.
Q: Okay, but then I end up feeling like them, energetically.
B: Recognize again, as we have said, if you truly believe in the power of love then that is what you will use for your exchange, rather than feeling like them and increasing the energy that you find coming from them in the world. Do you follow me?
Q: Hmm...
B: Are you going to say, “Well, that’s very difficult. It is very hard to love someone like that.” (AUD: laughter) Now, understand in this way, this is one of the primary ideas that the Christ Consciousness was all about. Do you believe in love, or do you not? Do you believe that love will make a difference? Or do you fundamentally believe that the power of the idea being expressed in a negative fashion is more powerful?
Be a peaceful demonstration of love. Not just saying, “I love you,” but be the idea of the demonstration of that love – the expression of the faith that they are choosing to be the way they are primarily because of the way you have all chosen to be you.
Understand, in this way, that you can allow yourselves to be expressions of each other’s fears, and you are connected in that way. You can allow yourselves to be expressions of each other’s joys, if you are willing to not be afraid of love, as you have been – all of you.

Notice that even within your society, how many individuals, and particularly within the structure you call your government, are very afraid to show love – very rigid individuals; because you have created there to be an energy “out there;” because you are afraid to express the connection that you have with everyone. And so when you separate someone from you, when you separate you from the rest of your All That Is, everyone else that you now no longer know you are connected to becomes an unknown factor, and it creates judgment, suspicion, and hate. Because you fear, in yourself, what you sense within them – because you know you are connected.

Q3: I have a little problem with that. What do you express to someone who, say, is mistreating you in some way, and their idea about it is... do you just keep loving them back?

B: Yes, it is that simple. Yes. And this was even done, in a way, by one of the people who participated in these interactions some time back, when they found themselves, in your terms, being accosted, and in your terms, robbed. They chased the individual and caught the individual, and in this way expressed that the individual was welcome to their money, but would they please give back the pocket book they had taken, for that would not serve them.

And simply also it was recognized that the “accoster” needed the situation, but that they felt helpless and did not feel they had any other way to express themselves; and that the individual that they robbed did understand and was willing to give them more than they had originally been able to take. Whereupon the individual who did the robbing began to cry, in release, and shared intimately with an understanding that here was an individual who was not afraid of his power and could show that other individual that they did not have to be afraid of theirs.

Q: It would be good to think that as I walk around I could help others in that way on this planet, but...

B: You will make a difference.

Q: ... I don’t know.

B: All right. It is up to you.

Q: I would like to!

B: It is up to you.

Q: Sometimes a part of me gets really angry, even though I would like to be considered peaceful.

B: Now, who says you are not?

Q: It is just that when I feel that anger at...

B: All right. Understand that it is not anger that allows you to choose something other than peace – it is judgment.

Q: I can see the anger may be a habit... but well then, when I’m in the middle of a judgment what do I do?
B: Start by not judging the fact that you are judging. If you find yourself judging, all right, recognize it: “All right, I have just chosen to form a judgment. All right. So what? No big deal. Now that I have recognized it then already I am no longer judging.”

Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Then also you can understand something else. The idea that you may continue to do something “out of habit” can also be looked at as a belief. In other words: habit, what is habit? It is an idea. You are giving the word habit the strength that makes it seem as if the idea of having a habit is something difficult to change. That is not a law of the universe.

You are giving the word “habit” the power that it has. Redefine your vocabulary, your understanding, your definition of yourself. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, that’s great.
B: All right.
Q4: When you related the incident before, I couldn’t help but imagine a hypothetical situation about “what if” the perpetrator was arrested.
B: Understand that when you create a hypothetical situation and create the game of “what if,” then that is where all of your negative confusion comes from. When you instead begin to live “what IS,” you will not have to play these “what if” games.

And no one has to arrest anyone. You are your own governments. When you allow yourselves to function as equal to them and every other individual, you will make a difference in that direction, and you will all come to the understanding that it is not about adding further limitation, but allowing each and every individual to sense their own self-empowerment. So that no one has to be arrested and no one has to do the arresting, for both are victims and perpetrators. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. So when the world comes to that point when everyone feels their own self-empowerment, there won’t be any war and poverty and famine any more? That would wipe out all those things?
B: Yes. You can then make the understanding that simply each and every individual will look around and say, “This is a tool that has served me. I now prefer to recognize my own abundance on every level. Therefore, we will now work together to allow each and every being to realize their own abundance by being of service to every other being, where and when we can. Knowing we will therefore, automatically, be served by other beings in exactly the right place, in the right time, to allow us to experience the idea of abundance as well.” That is how it works.
Q: You can individually do that right now in your own life.
B: Yes.
Q5: We are really, but we just don’t realize it.
B: Yes.
Q: I mean, we are always of service.

B: Yes, you always are of service. Also in this way recognize that it is still a choice of how you wish to be of service. You can be of service negatively, or positively. Positive service will allow you all to know you are being of service, whereas negative service doesn’t let you know it.

Q: Can you give an example of negative service?

B: Well, someone robbing you perhaps – because you are still exploring the idea of your own abundance. But that is simply that you have attracted somebody to do that who is not feeling their own power strongly enough to refuse your invitation to rob them. (AUD: laughter) So they do not have to reinforce your willingness to play victim. So they do not have to be your victim, by playing perpetrator. And you do not have to be the perpetrator who attracts them to play the perpetrator for you, to reinforce your victimhood.

Q: So our understanding of this, individually and globally, is really crucial in this time of transformation to 4th density Earth?

B: Yes.

Q: And our making an actual demonstration of this love to each other – you know, getting beyond those old habitual reactions – is allowing the transition to happen more smoothly?

B: Yes!

Q: Thank you so much.

B: Oh, thank you. Sharing!

New Paradigms of Behavior
Nikola Tesla And Free Energy

Q: Could you tell us a little bit about Nikola Tesla and who he was?
B: He was Nikola Tesla. (AUD: laughter) And that individual simply recognized the connection of the idea of the primal energy vibrations that were inherent in your electromagnetic fields upon your planet. He understood that they could always be channeled and transformed into whatever type of energy was necessary for whatever your imagination so conceived.

Q: I recently watched a movie about his life and they put forth the idea that he had developed a system whereby energy would be free...
B: Yes.
Q: ... to everyone.
B: Yes.
Q: And you would merely need to put up an antennae.
B: Yes.
Q: So, is that available to us?
B: Of course.
Q: Okay.
B: Do you wish to build it?
Q: It sounds exciting.
B: Then go ahead. Rely upon the seven and one half cycles per second Earth frequency; and recognize as that individual recognized, that a transmission tower that would vibrate at that frequency would create a wavelength that is radiating outwards from that tower in circular fashion, exactly, coincidentally, the same as the diameter of your planet.

Therefore it would reach the equator, go to the other pole of the planet, bounce back and create a set of vibrational harmonic resonances with the entire planet, that would activate, crystallize and energize your entire electromagnetic field. Allowing you always, through any conductive material inserted within the ground, to be able to draw upon that energy. It is like turning your entire planet into a generator.

Q: A very interesting idea. Could you suggest where I might find reading material please?
B: You will find it.
Q: Okay. And how tall are we talking about the tower being?
B: You will find out. Again draw from the wealth of information around you and trust your own synchronicity. Also, do not forget that at this time, that particular consciousness is also tapping into those who are tapping into him, and will assist.
Q: Did he reincarnate again?
B: Not really.
Q: Could you explain the seven and one half cycles again?
B: Simply you will find that the circumference of a planet divided into what you call the speed of light, will give the cycles per second in the frequency of the world.

For it simply is the equational relationship to why the idea of any given material body exhibits the frequency that it does. Because you create the idea of the speed of light to be the representation of the primal energy pulse within your third density vibration.

In other words, what you call one hundred and eighty-six thousand, three hundred miles per second, divided by the twenty-five thousand miles circumference, will give you seven and one half. Seven and one half cycles per second.

Q: I see.
B: All right.

Q2: So, could we construct the tower on the moon in the same way and get all the energy we need by its frequency?
B: If you are on the moon.

Q: Well, you know they’re always talking about how difficult it would be to set up a life-station on the moon and...
B: We understand what you are saying.
Q: Sure.
B: Yes, it is a good idea, in your terms. You can also, in your terms, convert the energy, and beam it to your planet. You can utilize your moon as a generating station.
Q: Well, if we could have this idea on Earth, why would we need to do that?
B: In this way you may find, that because of the systems you have set up upon your Earth now, the system we are now discussing would probably disrupt them. Therefore, if you were to set it up upon your moon, you could convert it at your own leisure away from all the systems you now have upon Earth, and simply convert it, and beam it to where you wish to. Without burning out the systems you have.

Q: Sure. Okay, thanks.
B: Thank you!

Q: What do the 33 degree masons think they know that they think we don’t know?
B: Sometimes it has to do with bits of esoterica in terms of literal physical formulations of energy vibrations, and ratios of relationships to the underlying foundational structure of physical reality as expressed in architectural terms and vibratory resonance’s and things like that.
Q: Wow, gee
B So mostly in that sense technical knowledge, but also the assumption that most individuals do not realize that you create your reality which of course they are right in assuming–most individuals, on your planet, do not know that they create their own reality. And, of course, the idea that we discussed before, that there really are NO SECRETS! That you can access any information you have a strong intentional desire to access and so one of the biggest secrets of their organization is that there really are NO SECRETS. You understand? Does that answer your question?
Q: Yes it does.
Non Resistance

Q: Many of us are experiencing physical symptoms ...
B: Yes.

Q: ... with this process that we’re going through. Can you ... is there any way you can help us to know ... is there anything we can do to help ourselves?

B: There are any number of things you can do. All you really need to understand is that a lot of these physiological symptoms that you are experiencing, that may at first seem quite uncomfortable, are simply the remnants of resistance that exist within your belief system structure. Look at this analogy – if you know that your potential is a huge dam filled with water, that can flow through you, full force, yet the only avenue you provide for the release of the water is something the diameter of a garden hose, there’s going to be some resistance and some pain in the volume and pressure of water trying to bust through that small little opening. That is a direct analogy to what many of you are experiencing.

Your belief systems, negative belief systems, belief systems that are out of alignment, out of tune, out of phase with your true core Self, will literally, like the electronic analogy, create resistance when the energy starts to flow, so heat will build up, and that will cause in your neurological net, all manner of disease and pain. But the idea is to understand that the more you let go of old definitions, the more you are willing to let them go, the more you lighten up, in that sense, and drop the excess baggage, the more you will expand your willingness to give yourself permission to let all of your energy flow – the easier it will be for that energy to flow through you unimpeded, and thus cause no resistance, and thus no painful symptomatology. But this is simply part and parcel of the transition at this time ... do the best you can and it will be solved.

Q: Thank you Bashar.
B: Thank you

Notes II
Oct. 20, 2001
Explains a recent contact of a different civilization that will do some things to our consciousness, just hearing about the experience – so unique was it to them.

The name is Thook. They have an extremely unique quality that we have never encountered before. When you interact with them physically, any member or group, it doesn’t matter, you can see them and hear them and know exactly what they look like, but if you are not in their presence you cannot remember what they look like.

There is only one other member in the entire Association that is able to remember what they look like after removing themselves from their presence physically. And the Thook have made an agreement with them not to tell anyone what they look like. It is very important to the Thook to retain this ability. They, the Association, don’t know if it is a quality of their physicality, or something that they inherently do to their consciousness, they do not know. They cannot remember what they look like, until they are standing in their presence, but once they are not looking at them they cannot remember, and they will not allow themselves to be described when someone is in their presence. It is their taboo. They can tell you what their ships look like: “very elongated footballs.” But they do not know what the pilots look like?

Imagine looking at a friend and then you cannot remember what they look like. There is a reason for telling us. It will take us to an interesting and new story.

Question number two.
Question number 5: Female would like to know about the application of viruses of a pathological nature. Should we be surprised to find viruses in our genetic code in the next months and years? What is the likelihood?

B: “No more than 37% right now, it may go down to 26% depending on a few things. It may go down to 12% in one to two to three years.”

Q: How can we change this into something positive.

B: “To be the you for whom such things have no effect, or a positive effect.”

It is not some nice way of talking about things; they are talking about reality physics, vibrational physics. This is why it is all right to be you, and to not choose fear. Understand you are the you that accepts yourself, loves yourself as fully as possible. You can only extract the things that are positively aligned with your vibration, regardless of what was intended from the original vibration.

These responses are not to avoid specifics, but certain kinds of responses don’t do you any good. They give us the type of info that they know we are capable of activating and incorporating in our life. That will be the direct answer we seek to give us the results we are asking about, rather than specifics as such, which only confound, rather than clarify. End of question #5.
Continuing Notes 1:

It is our choice to respond to their call of RSVP. The consequences will be ours. One of our myth, legends, symbols, one of our axioms, is that the “the sins of the father are visited on the son.” Understand these things and you will understand yourselves. See these things and you will see yourselves. But they do not want us to look under every rock for things that we imagine “might” be there. This is not what this energy is all about. “And it is certainly not the way to really ride the wave to the best of your advantage.” So they invite us to “drop our story.” The ones we would call baggage. The ones that have become heavy, especially in the light of what has happened. More than ever, it is time to let it go.

Every individual that they are communicating with can change their energy and if you don’t change, it is your choice. Everything is choice, NOTHING, NOTHING, NOTHING!!! is stopping us…NOTHING!!!

Nothing is holding us back, except the choices we make about who we believe we are. Things do not hold you, you hold you. You have to have reasons to be held, but they still love us no matter what. They see our creativity, and they see we can do a great deal, especially being the ability to hold ourselves back. When you realize that being who we really are as they see us, is so much fun, you will not wait a second to change – if we would only see ourselves as they see us.

It is an unusual event because the extent of the other beings – The Councils, The Associations, The Alliance, other beings, parallel realities, other levels of consciousness – participating in this event is large, especially on their side of dimensionality. Many times larger than those gathered before the channel. Every member of the Association is paying attention to what is going on with us, and many other communications are taking place around the planet. And they will continue for some time.

Open up to the fact that we are loved that much to have that much attention.

Who can tell him what a “sub-theonic” particle is? Or a sub-theonic resonance pattern? Or just a “theon?”

A particle of God. Everything in existence is a theon. We are sub-theonic resonance patterns. He is not trying to de-personalize us. “Anything that is a thing, that is one of the many of the one, is a subtheonic particle, by definition.” “So we are elementary particles of God.”

We have the same characteristics of elementary particles: spin, charge, electro-magnetism, gravitational attraction, instant transformation, and teleportation. We have all these things as subtheonic particles. As we build and network as subtheonic particles, we will eventually connect up to the point where we become GOD, the All That Is.

But remember that “every part is the whole, even as every whole is the part.” It is holographic. The One is the Many and the Many are the One. Feel yourself as that aspect of All That Is. Nothing is out of touch or reach, all of it is now and here. We are one relationship to ourselves. The more you allow each other to be who you are, the more you become the One. Oneness is not the losing of one’s individuality, just the opposite, it is the strengthening and the supporting of all of us and our individuality.

For that is what God is, God is love. That means that God is unconditional support of ALL that God is. Otherwise God would collapse. God supports himself for one moment, but that one moment is eternal. If you feel God you will explode in unconditioned ecstasy and love. Feel the unconditional support you have, to be who you are, without excuses. There is no longer any reason not to be who you want to be, except the “reasons you create.” “And that is up to you.”

Pay attention to how you have set certain things up on your planet for certain things to occur in certain ways. BUT DO NOT DWELL THERE!!! Know it, but don’t live there. They invites us to live in a different dwelling place. Allow yourself to be whole. It is now available to you to ride beyond, to know that it is not your fault, but to be more, and bigger. To bring the mountain top down to earth. Don’t be afraid to be that you – that you have that much love.

Don’t fall back into old patterns. A habit is something you do that you don’t know you are doing, but once you recognize it, it is no longer a habit, it now becomes a choice. Consciousness, awareness, is a whole new ballgame, play that game and you will be playing with us. But if you want you can continue to play with yourself. Let go of the old ideas of whom you think you ought to be.

They have seen us, nothing will shock them. We have never not been, and we are never alone. Except that we are allowed to be silent and be our own person and given space, but God is in all spaces. So we are never alone, we are simply all One. Allow yourselves to understand what is being said by The Council here tonight. A major change has occur in the collective consciousness. Do not paraphrase, but quote verbatim.

Events are shifting due to what has gone on and what is going on, to now make it likely, 95%, that our world may “officially know about the existence of extraterrestrial life by our year of 2005.” He didn’t say that they were all going to land in their ships, but this is a big step. Keep our energy up, and stay tuned for more updates.

They will tell us something if we need to hear it, they help where it is appropriate, because we have asked them and because they love us. They can tell us only so much, not because they are holding anything back, but because we have told them how much they can tell us and how much they cannot tell us. We are calling the shots, and collectively we communicate with The Council more than we think. They take readings, ask our advice, and see how we are doing and they take a pulse, and only give us what we really need by our choice. They take it a step at a time. Every change is a whole change. They are willing to wait. “Enjoy where you are or you will never get where you are going.” Why? Because you are not going anywhere. Enjoying where you are tells you that where you need to be is right here, because this is where everything is. There is nowhere else.

Enjoy where you are and you will be where you are going. And where you are going, which is where you are, will keep changing to reflect how much you enjoyed the last expression of the here and now.
And the next and next... Fear not.
Goes to questions...
He asks everyone to set aside their expectations and assumptions about what they expected from their communications. And they have a very specific agenda for the evening. He has his reasons but does not specify.

He reminds us that he had commented in 1999 that there was a 97% chance of a terrorist strike in NYC. At that time the energy was dark enough to have been a nuclear strike, but had been reduced down to the airplane strikes.

Because of the terrorist strikes we now have come to fruition and have passed on to the other side of a specific energy threshold, hence their agenda is to communicate again. Since time is meaningless to them, 1997, the time of the last channeling, is like a minute ago to them. They needed the shift to reconnect with the channeling. No specifics were given.

He extends to all, membership in his Association of Worlds, Interstellar Alliance, Federation, whatever we wish to call it, it doesn’t matter to them.

Interaction with their consciousness was necessary before such time as a more physiological interaction between our respective worlds; and then we will become a recognized member of the Association. They wish to help us in our next step of our evolution. We are welcome to continue our association with their Association. We are at this point “honorary members.” We don’t quite yet have a vote. Except the most important one, which is the vote for our planet.

He reminds us that the things he discusses with us have a PURPOSE which isn’t always apparent on the surface. The words they choose have more than the meaning coming from the words coming out of the channel’s mouth. While they talk about one thing there are many other things going on, on many different levels, being delivered.

They invite us to a different place than most of us have been on, in the past couple of weeks. This is not so much about who did what to whom and why, or what is going to happen now. This is about taking stock & responsibility of whom you are; this is about ENGAGING each other, into more action and activity. In order to act more like the members of the Alliance.

We are honorary members of the Association and the Alliance by our participation.

There are things to say and do without pushing or demanding, but with love. Remember to act with body, mind and spirit. The greatest power requires the lightest touch.

If you find a lack of receptivity, MOVE ON, move around or under. Flow over, flow through like water.

Ask with love.
Title of communication is RSVP, because it is an invitation to RESPOND. Respond, not react, but respond. Which is the root of responsibly: your ability to respond.

We have an unprecedented opportunity in the collective energy: look at what is happening, look at the unification. Also very crucial is that our culture has been taken by surprise. We are still very much in a state of shock and surprise, bewilderment, amazement and wonderment.

One of the main reasons for the current interaction is because our culture is like clay. Our rigidity has gone out of us. There is still rigid reaction but this is a fragmentation. It signifies, like bones in a body, some time to change. We are now open, we are ringing like bells, and they can hear and feel it. And that is why it is necessary for them to respond NOW. This state will last for a little while, perhaps for the remainder of our year. It is a precious and important time in our society for change and action in word and deed.

There will be a sense of wondering, and questioning who we are, why we are here. Just put yourself out there and act, be and do. Show love, allowance, helpfulness, relationship. There is only one thing and it is all of us. Creating different notes and an orchestration of allowance.

Destruction is not power. It is easy to destroy. That’s because it takes no power. Power is in creation, relationship and unity. It takes no power to destroy, that’s why anyone can do it, and it is easy and quick. Create and bond together a foundation that will be unbreakable across the planet. Teach through action, not through: “you must know this or else you are not one of us.” Not that. That is not teaching, it is only fear that what you say you believe in, might not be so.

Look to stories, myths and legions. One of the strongest in our society is Star Trek. It reflects certain things about us, and there is no accident about the timing of the episodes, they have actually used it many times to see the reflections going on, on all levels of our society. Look where the new Star Trek is going – all new. The same thing is happening in our society. Pay attention to all the reflective mirrors in society.
Questioner: Would you be able to explain what is happening in Iraq?
Bashar: Would you be specific? There are many things happening in the area on your planet that you call Iraq.
Q: Yes. Well okay, I hope I don’t sound a bit simple, but I’ve noticed since being in this country for the past three weeks the entire focus in the news has been on the affairs of President Clinton and the girl and it seems to me to be a full on blanket of attention on this when all the time something is happening in Iraq. And right at this time they have the prime Minister of England here along with the president.
B: all right.
Q: It feels to be that there’s something much bigger going on...
B: Yes.
Q: feel to me as if the entire population has been given a blanket on the news to do with this Monica, what ever her name is, and so on.
B: Not really by their choice.
Q: No, no, no, but I just don’t understand…could you give me a greater overview on exactly...
B: Do you mean that there is a covert operation being planned to remove someone from their life? Yes!

Q: And back in, I believe it was 1975, October or November in Northeast Canada and as far as Montana, several of our military bases were witness to a large football field sized UFO’s that first appeared orange and then appeared to have red lights around its exterior and they were able to ... they came over some high security military bases and messed with the Sequence Codes to some of our nuclear missiles...

B: Yes.

Q: ...what were they showing us here?

B: That you would not be allowed to have a nuclear war. But, as we have already described, this was shown to you after you had already decided, really fundamentally on a collective consciousness level, that you would not. That is why it was possible that you could be shown this by reflection.

Q: Did we come to any kind of agreement with these aliens for any type of ... because there seems to be a disarmament going on now?

B: It is not that you have come to an agreement with any extraterrestrials over this, you simply came to an agreement within yourselves, which the extraterrestrial craft was willing to reflect to you.

Q: And this will be upheld by all the nations?

B: There, again, is now still the possibility, within your reality, for individuated and localized terrorist activity involving nuclear weapons, but in terms of the idea of your nations, yes, this will be upheld; you have simply passed the cycle where this is now a possibility.

Q: The number 6 you’ve reference to the number of technology, can you explain further?
B: The idea is that which is based upon the vibration itself of atomic structures and crystalline structures that are the based—vibrationally—for all things you would understand to be technological in nature as an expression in your reality.
Q: So it’s a molecular connection?
B: In a sense, that is a simplistic way of saying it. We can get into that, in more detail, at another time.
Q: Saturn: It was known as the God of melancholy? And it took on a negative connotation in our past. We have the Saturn Council which is connected to the Council of Nine, I understand?
B: Yes.
]
RJ: What engendered this negative connotation?
B: Simply forgetfulness and misinterpretation of the idea of what might pass for melancholy, but in fact is simply—calm wisdom, calm knowing. Do you understand the difference?
Q: Yes.
B: Does this help you?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: At this timing, We will....

Q: Looking at the 666…
B: Yes.
Q: …series.
B: Sirius? Is that what you said?
Q: Yes. (Audience laughter)
B: Yes. What do you wish to discuss?
Q: Is there any difference between that and the 999 series?
B: Of course, everything that is altered is different, by definition. But the idea is that it has many connotations, and has been given many definitions, both positive and negative in your society. It is a recognition of certain elemental energies, certain levels of consciousness expressing themselves in a certain physical way in your reality. But there are individuals who also have created a negative archetype to go along with that, as well as a positive archetype. In its own reversal, the negative and the positive polarity is expressed.

There are many ways to interpret this idea of what you call the three sixes. One that has been given in your society is simply the basic understanding that it is the fundamental symbol of the element of which your physiological life form is based – what you call carbon. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Six, the element with its six protons, six neutrons, six electrons – 666 the number of the physical world, or in your biblical reference the number of the Beast. You understand the concept now in that sense?
Q: Why was it the number of the Beast?
B: Because physical reality, according to many of your religions, is considered base, and to be the kingdom of the animal. You understand?
Q: Base matter?
B: Base matter, base intentions, base energies, that which in your biblical frame of reference was assigned to the idea of animals, which were considered more base than humans – thus the beast, lower in vibration, though not really true. So it was inscribed as an ancient memory of the life of physical reality being based on the carbon atom, and was ascribed with the numerals of 666, being the number of the Beast, being the number of physical reality, which in many of your religions was deemed negative, just inherently.
Q: Umm.
B: Because of how it ascribed the idea of going from spirit into physical matter as being the “FALL.” You understand?
Q: The fall?
B: Yes, the fall, you understand in your biblical reference?
Q: Yes.
B: The “FALL” of humanity.
Q: Yes.
B: Thus, the idea of physical reality already in that religion being given a lesser quality than the concept of the spiritual reality, even though the two are equal, but different. Therefore, that is one avenue through which is formed the idea of that thing. But it is also connected to the Sirius energy, for it is representative of a very “HIGH” frequency of sixth density vibration, yes. Nine is simply a way of expressing that energy in what might be considered to be a council of light, or guide-like form. Does that make sense to you?
Q: The 999?
B: The number nine and any derivation thereof, is an expression of what might be called council energy. When you take high energy of consciousness and spin it in a manner, or filter it in a manner, wherein it becomes the idea of a council, or a reflective guide of any kind, then you have the number and the vibration of nine.
Q: Um, okay.
B: Does any of this make sense in the translation into your language?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: All right. Proceed.
Q: It came to mind because I’ve been thinking a lot of the Oliver’s Castle crop circle.
B: Yes.
Q: And we talked about it as the sixth density star burst from Sirius.
B: Yes.
Q: And of course, there along each of its six arms are three points.
B: Yes.
Q: So in a sense you have 666, but you also have a relationship to... because of the threes.
B: Yes, of course, and also the relationship to the triad.
Q: Right.
B: Which is very important in terms of the idea of your physiological reality, which always expresses the triad of beginning, middle and end.
Q: All right, okay.
B: And also expresses the triad of Earth, and our world (Essassani), and Sirius, in terms of the idea of evolution and progression.
Q: Um, oh that’s nice, so that is in there too.

B: Of course, in the idea also that you and your planet are moving from third density to fourth, we are moving from fourth density to fifth. And Sirius energy, in that sense, being high sixth, is also moving into seventh, but it encompasses the idea of lower fifth as well; but in and of itself, it is three densities thick.

Q: Um.

B: The Sirius consciousness is located in the sixth, in that sense, loci, in the middle. Located in the sixth, in the center, but it encompasses the seventh and the fifth, above and below itself, because it forms a natural bridge within itself. Does this make any sense to you?

Q: Yes, it is great.

B: What it means is that when you attain a certain level, then within that level of recognition and understanding you recognize that you ARE THAT DIMENSION OF REALITY. It is not something that you any longer think you exist within, you recognize that you ARE the dimension itself, and that you also contain all that you need to create yourself to be another dimension – to expand in that sense. You recognize yourself as self-contained, as capable of expanding within yourself from within, rather than believing that you need any kind of externalized assistance.

Q: Hmm.

B: Because you realize that all assistance exists within you, and even though it may also be connected to elsewhere, it still all comes through you from within you, because you and you and you and you and you and you are your own universe. And in sixth density this is more fully realized, more fully consciously realized. Does this make some sense to you?

Q: Yes. I see a great relationship between what you just said and the most profound teaching of the crop circles.

B: All right, anything else?

Q: Because of this Oliver’s Castle crop circle – it’s become almost like an archetype of it.

B: It is an expression of the archetype; in fact, all of them are, in general. As we have recently said, the idea, in general, of the crop circles are as the symbols of the collective consciousness of your world speaking to itself as it wakes up. It is dream symbology. We assist in helping, like a lens, to focus the electromagnetic energy of your planet, to allow the manifestations to occur in some physiological way that you can relate to, that you can experience physically, tangibly.

But many of these things are – not all – but many of these symbols are literally the dream symbols of your collective consciousness, waking up and speaking to all of the components of which it is composed. You understand this? In the same way that you dream and have dream symbols, these are physical manifestations of the dream symbols of the awakening of your collective spirit of the world. Your collective mind, your collective heart, your collective soul. It is a direct language of your self, your total self to all the components that compose it. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes, it does. So as individuals out in the field, are we sometimes acting in symbolic ways, as archetypes?

B: Yes, very good. Each such individual that participates may take on the total aspect of the whole archetype in those interactions, and thus, understand a great part of the whole.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Observer and Secrets

Q: I just want to acknowledge the great It, the Observer. And thank him, and send my love – I mean, it, thank it. I mean I have felt Its energy around me coming through on an aesthetic band, a very aesthetic, loving, very powerful, “humongously”... compassionate...
B: “Humongously”?
Q: Yes! Humongously – divine level for me.
B: It is in many ways the essence of unconditional compassion for it to be able to function as it does as the Oversoul of the Association...
Q: Yes, very understanding...
B: ... for only in that degree of ALLOWANCE could so many different civilizations and beings interact in what you would call a smooth, ecstatic and energetic way.
Q: Well, I am really feeling the acceleration.
B: All right.
Q: And I am just acknowledging synchronicity at every moment.
B: All right. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Q2: My other question last session we had here, we were talking about the Observer... B: Yes.
Q: ... and I just had this, um, this thought that... was the Observer, God?
B: In some senses all things are God, as you say in your language.
Q: Yes.
B: But since things do create themselves to exist on levels, it could be said that it was one face, one reflection, of what you may call the Infinite. At the same time it might be more precise in terms of describing its relationship to energy within creation, as being the Oversoul of the Association of Worlds to which our civilization belongs.
Q: Right.
B: Do you understand that concept? The Oversoul of all the civilizations of which our Association and affiliations to what you might call a Federation, is made up.
Q: Right.
B: Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes it does.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes it does help me. Thank you.
B: So, we would now like to continue with another idea that will really be more in keeping with the idea of a new orbit, a new year (1997) a new understanding and a new way to proceed in your lives. A more, shall we say, in your language, candid and frank idea to begin to explore. This in its timing is important we recognize that on what you call your first day of your new year; the channel himself was in discussion on this subject with a member of your gathering. And we find that it is important enough to share now and expand upon, for it is something you all need to understand, and thus we take from the conversation that was had, the synchronicity that this is indeed the first and most important thing we can say to you this day of your time, and it is this:

Many of you for quite some time in your investigations into what you typically call “New Age Information” have come across also the concept of many things that have been hidden for a long time, what you call – secrets. And what many times, in many of your minds, goes hand in hand with the idea of keeping the secrets...conspiracies.

Now, we are not saying that people on your planet do not make attempts to hide things – we are not saying that. You have created your society to be what it is. You have compartmentalized yourself, to keep secrets from your self, in a sense. And thus it is no surprise that that idea of how you treat yourselves inwardly should be reflected outwardly in the structure of your society in that you create organizations that are compartmentalized and thus have the ability to function by keeping secrets, keeping information, or at least attempting to keep information from other members that they deem should not have that information, for one reason or another.

But now we would like to really illuminate, pun intended, for those that get it. Illuminate the idea beyond these ideas and that is this: the ultimate idea behind all these concepts of secrecy, behind the very notion of why that exists is to understand that there is one ultimate secret. Are you ready to know what that is?

AUD: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
AUD: Yes. Yes. Sure.
B: I’m not convinced.
AUD: Yes! Absolutely!
B: Oh all right. All right. All right. The ultimate secret is that there are no secrets. Now understand this in its profundity, “There are NO SECRETS.” And I mean this literally. The are no secrets.

Again, we understand that individuals may make attempts to hide information for a variety of positive and/or negative reasons from time to time, depending upon circumstances and situations. We are not saying that you cannot in that sense keep something to yourself; however, when we say there are no secrets what we are reminding you of is that every single one of you has the ability to access any piece of information at all, and in that sense nothing really can be kept a secret if you have a desire to know it. There are no secrets ultimately in the sense that everything is accessible to all of you. Nothing is kept from you in creation, nothing.

But the idea – and here is where it gets very interesting in your society – the idea itself, pay attention to this, the idea itself that there are secrets is the first step toward the idea of control. Do you understand this? Keeping you trying to figure out what the secrets are is the way to actually remain within the idea of control, or the domination of those that want you to believe more than anything else that there is such a thing as a secret you don’t know.

It doesn’t even many times matter whether there’s any information behind that. The very idea itself that there can be such a thing as some secret you can never know is all it takes to keep you running in circles.

So, pay attention; the idea is again – not that there haven’t been individuals who have in some senses participated in what you might euphemistically call a conspiracy here and there, or attempted to keep something hidden here and there – but the idea itself of getting caught up in the fact that there is a secret that you must break, that there is a secret you must expose, is part of the manipulation.

When many individuals on your planet think they are getting to the point where they are about to expose the secret, they think, in that sense, that they are breaking the manipulation, when in fact by believing that there is a secret, they are reinforcing the concept of being manipulated.

All you need to do in any circumstance is understand, from the beginning, there are no secrets. Every bit of information that exists is available to each and every one of you, if you want it. If you want it. And that’s the key. Because many times you will find that you will actually not want it, because you love the game. And you might create fear within yourself to find out what it is that you are afraid to find out. Because for some reason you may have a definition or a belief about what that will mean – it will lead to this, it will lead to that, so in many ways you actually perpetuate the game because you don’t really want to know.

But I tell you this; any thing you really, really, really want to know is available to you. There are no secrets. None what so ever. Take that to heart. Now, again, we remind you not because any one thing necessarily needs to work any better than anything else, all things being equal, and they are.

Again, we remind you to take advantage of what you already have available to you in your society. Allow yourself to understand that we will once again at this time recommend – suggest to each and every one of you that because you have already created it, and it is already available to you that you make use of some of the literature that exists that can help you. But it is very clarifying, and again, we suggest, for now at this time one primary suggestion and recommendation the creation of the literature by the individual you know as the name of Walsch, that book you have called Conversations with God. It is clear. It is direct. If you will read it until you know it, you will never, ever, need to speak to anyone but yourself again to know anything. So I would suggest you learn it. I suggest you live it. And that is all it takes.
Q: Will we, within the remaining time period of this civilization, have the ability to colonize either Mars or the moon?
B: Yes.
Q: And is there sufficient liquid and water on Mars that can supplement . . .
B: Yes.
Q: be used?
B: Yes. It is locked in, what you call, underground chambers.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
B: The idea of consciousness is contained within every idea, every single element, every atom, and every component of creation. And in that way, as you recognize that physical reality and the constituents thereof will follow the idea you call the course of time, then you may understand how the energy will transform and transfer from one idea level to the other, until it allows itself to work its way up, and through, to the entire complete totality of all creation. And that when it reaches the one whole totality idea, it will recognize that it very much started out that way to begin with, as one complete idea before it, quote/unquote, branched out. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Therefore, it will arrive at the same place it started from. This will then form the loop that represents within the idea of physical reality, the boundary limit, in a sense, to the physical expression, whereby you then transform and elevate to the next magnitude of dimensionality – to understand the mechanics from that point of view.

Q: Would it be accurate to say that we, our souls, started out that way, in a sense?

B: In a sense.

Q: Taking it one step further, it has also been indicated that suns, stars, are very, very evolved beings at a high-density level.

B: Yes, also, in a sense. Understand, again, that everything in physical reality is a symbol for consciousness of one form or another. Recognize that you exist on every level of existence that there is. Although right now you are focused, to your way of thinking, from this level, through this idea, right here, right now. There are forms of your own consciousnesses which to other dimensions of reality do appear as stars. It is not so much that they represent the idea of being evolved beings beyond yourselves, but that some portion of your consciousness and the portions of other consciousnesses, in that way, will represent themselves by that physical symbol in other dimensionalities. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes and no. It could be any of us, in one other aspect of the totality of the universe?

B: Yes, they will in the most part represent certain connective consciousness ideas.

Q: Is this in fact what the term, planetary logos, means?

B: Yes, thank you.

Q: Thank you very much.
Q: You mention the One light, where did it come from?
B: It always Is. It did not come from anywhere, remember again, Isness only has one quality—Isness. There is no before to Isness. Isness has never not been Isness.
Q: But before awareness it was dark.
B: Again, this is an analogy. Remember: when we say before and after these are only concepts that exist within Isness. There never was truly a before and after. This is difficult to translate into your 3rd density reality domain. Nevertheless, this is the best that can be done with your language.

Q: I understand non-linearity somewhat.

B: All right, all you have to do is learn how to pronounce it. Audience laugh’s.
Q: The light I understand to be intelligence.
B: You can understand it that way, although, more specifically, just to put a more precise definition upon it that is more relevant to your reality intelligence, although it can be used the way you are using it, intelligence is really, more precisely—the application of awareness, not awareness itself. Consciousness is consciousness, awareness is awareness. Intelligence is what you do with that awareness? The application there of, although again, we understand we don’t have to be that strict with the definition, and if you want to say that it is simply intelligence we will understand and acknowledge that idea.
Q: What is the difference between consciousness and awareness?
B: Yes, in a sense, again, it is the idea that there maybe consciousness that can be aware in a variety of ways. Although, consciousness to some degree implies the idea of awareness, self-awareness so on and so forth. There may not even be a term for what you might call that SUBSTANCE that is unaware—you understand?
Q: Okay.
B: So we, just in your language, translate it to Isness, that would be the term that would best represent that idea of that substance you are referring to; that once it became aware is referred to as consciousness. Does that make sense?

Q: Okay, yes, to some degree.

B: So Isness is simply like the fabric of existence itself. Consciousness is when the fabric knows it is the fabric. And, also immediately creates the idea of reflective self-awareness that creates difference in the fabric. In other words, awareness of the threads that make the fabric up. Does that make sense?

Q: Yes.

B: So Isness, then, is awareness of itself as the fabric and then self-reflective awareness of the threads that make up the fabric. But, at the same time, going back to Isness and understanding that every single thread is also—THE WHOLE—THE ISNESS. Does that make sense?

Q: Okay, that makes some sense.
Opening Night

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great. Fine. Etc.

B: We thank you in this way, and we begin this evening’s interaction with the idea that we have discussed with you a few times about your physiological reality being a shadow of the real you, your physical reality being a shadow of the soul, in this way.

Now, in no way, shape or form do we intend with this discussion to denigrate the idea of physiological reality, for physical reality is valid as an experience, as an expression of life. And it is in every way equal to any other level of being. It may be more focused in many ways; other levels of being may be more expanded, as you call it, may be grander in their scope. But the idea of physiological reality is simply another way in which you can express yourself as spirit. And the idea of your physical body is simply, once again, spirit, energy coalesced into a particular frequency pattern. And in no way is meant to imply that physical reality is any less than any other level of existence upon which you already exist. And therefore, by the examples we will now give, no denigration is meant of physical reality; we are not making light of it.

But we will remind you of something you are very familiar with. You’ll know, and you have seen many times – and many of you have yourselves played this game – this idea of shining a light on one of your walls and raising your hands and making shadows upon the wall. And living out through the idea of fantasy the images and the shapes that are projected therein. As you play this game you may use this as an analogy, as a reference, in the sense that the soul is doing much the same idea. It is, in a sense, using the light of creation, and it is allowing that light to pass through itself in such a way that upon the artificial screen it creates are projected the images, the shadows that you call physiological reality. Now, the soul from that level, from the level you are as a non-physical being, knows that this physical reality is simply the shadows.

And in this way, it recognizes it – and again, no denigration is meant–as a game. It simply knows that what is projected upon the wall is not literally who and what it is, is not the end-all or be-all of its existence, but is simply one way in which it can present and represent ideas. It is one way in which it can play scenarios out upon a particular type of stage, if you will. And just as the shadow seems flat to you, seems two-dimensional in a sense to you – at least the part you can see on the wall – you recognize that to the higher self, physical reality is also, in a sense, flat, an illusion and a projection. It contains no substance; all of the substance, the essence, is in the soul that is projecting the image.

But that image is still a part of the soul. It is a representation of the substance, of the essence of the soul.
It is an outline that represents an idea, a configuration, if you will. And thus, for the purpose of the scenario being played out, it will do as a representative symbol; it will get the idea across. But there has come a time in your reality when you have, as we have discussed, forgotten that you have been playing this game, forgotten that these images are merely projections upon the wall of the soul’s reality.

And many times you feel that these shadow images become more substantial, more and more solid than even you feel at times yourselves to be; many times you allow the idea of these shadow actions to overwhelm you in that way. You think of these ideas as impenetrable. You see only the darkness of the shadow, and think that there are many things hidden within, not realizing the true insubstantiality and flimsiness, if you will, of the shadow.

It is only a projection of your minds, of your ideas, of your beliefs of the things you think are real, of the things you decide are true for you. And therefore, when you allow the idea of this shadow-projection game to become something that happens – not from you, but to you, seemingly from outside, seemingly not under your control – that many of you have allowed these shadows to take on your own illusionary forms. You give them more dimension, in a sense, than they truly have by themselves. And it is that added dimension of fear that gives them the substance and the solidity they seem to have many times. It is the fear that makes the shadow overwhelming. But it is only an appearance; it is only something that you label the shadow to be; it is only the label of an actor in a play.

Feel it is only a name. The idea, in and of itself, is no more intrinsically overwhelming than any other way to look at physical reality, any other idea you could label the shadow to be. Recognize therefore, that many times all of the so-called suffering, all of the so-called struggling that you are doing in life is really nothing more than shadow boxing. You are feinting with specters, with reflections in the mirror of your existence. They are no more substantial than you believe them to be or want them to be.

But while you are in that play, because you have decided to be one of the actors, then you will believe that it is real. You will play it out in that sense. And the play: the more you believe it is real, the more the only reality it will become, the less you will remember that you have the ability at any given time to step back from that stage and be in the audience watching yourself, recognizing it for the scenario that it is, for the play that it is, for the prop that it is.

It is a prop, and it is a valuable prop. And you can learn much from watching the play. And you can understand much about yourself from participating in a play. But recognize you are the author of the play, and at any given moment you can decide what lines to say, what actions to write into that play. No one pulls the strings. You are not a marionette; you are not a puppet. You have set the stage; you have ordered the props. You are the designer; you are the author. You are the producer; you are the director. You are all the actors and actresses. You are the stage itself. You are playing life within yourself, within the idea, within the universe that you are. In this way, therefore, allow yourself now to know that what is occurring in your play is that the house lights are coming on. You are lightening up; you are awakening self-enlightenment. You are saying, "All right, up with the lights, and now I can see that this has only been a play.” Not that that invalidates it, for it has been a beautiful piece of art. But it is a play, and plays come and go.

You can change now the new play that will be on the stage that you are. A new show, a new opening, “Opening Night.” That is the title of your tape. And so as you now lift pen to paper, if you will, and begin to write the first act, allow yourselves now to know that you are writing with the lights on, and you can see clearly the paper before you. And every word that is there will be your penmanship. You will decide what you will be, what you will play, what the act will be all about. You will orchestrate it; you will direct the play that you are. And all the other characters will be there because they chose to audition – and you gave them the part.

This goes for each and every one of you. You are appearing in everyone else’s plays, starring in your own, starring in everyone else’s, in a sense. You are that creative, you are that simultaneous and you are that spontaneous, if you are willing to believe it. You are very creative playwrights. The play that you have been acting out has been going on now for some several tens of thousands of years. The seats have been full every night. Sell-out performances every life!

And so, have no fear – any new play you write will be just as popular. You will still find as many individuals who will want to act in that play with you; you will not be alone. Just because you now find that the play you wish to write is something that perhaps has not been a part of the play you have been acting in, does not mean that it will not be seen for what it is, and it will not be enjoyed for what it is. And it does not mean you will not find all the individuals necessary who are willing to participate in the new play.

Create. We know you are quite capable of it. So the curtain is going up. Sharing!

Opening Night
Opening Your Astral Eye

Q: One of the things that I do in a waking state – physical waking state – is I will imagine myself moving out of my body, sometimes above it, above the rooftops...

B: Yes.

Q: I can move around. When I re-engage with my body, I get a rush, like a rush of energy is occurring.

B: Yes.

Q: And in this state I don’t have a visual perception. It’s more of a knowingness perception, where it’s as though it’s dark out and I can’t see anything, but I just know that I am above the tops of the roofs...

B: Yes. Sometimes because, once again, simply out of the habit of being in physical reality, it may take a little while for you to get used to the idea of how to open your astral eyes.

Q: Okay.

B: To really know that you are seeing. Because, understand, you are not seeing in the same way at all. Because you do not have eyes, as you understand them in the astral state.

Q: Right. Well, that bears on a related area of this question; which is that while I’m doing this, I also have full perception of what my body is experiencing. I can still feel my body lying or sitting, touching, tasting, whatever it might be.

B: You can form relative degrees of disassociation from your physiological reality.

Q: Well, what I’m saying is that I’m doing both at the same time. I’m aware of being out, and also in – not really in, but out and still feeling.

B: Yes.

Q: Is this technically astral projection?

B: It can be; because, once again, technically, your body is inside your consciousness. And therefore, it is always contained in any expansion of consciousness. Let’s look at it this way, physiologically, as a mechanism: think of your consciousness now as a sphere. All right?

Q: Yes.

B: Think now, that when you are physically focused, that the sphere, let us say, is simply in the shape of your body. All right?

Q: Okay.

B: Then when you go out of body, it is not that you are actually exiting the body, it is that you are expanding the sphere, so that your consciousness is now out here, further and further and further. You follow me?

Q: I do understand that concept.
B: Your consciousness, therefore, is actually always 360 degrees around your body, which is at the center, so to speak. Or physical reality, in a sense, because it is so dense, represents the center of your consciousness. You collapse and condense inward to form a solid reality. You expand and go outward like a bubble to go into a more ethereal realm.

This is why, when you expand the bubble of your consciousness, you can travel here and there, and here and there, with absolutely no time involved between traveling, because your consciousness is everywhere, 360 degrees. And all you’re doing, when you go from this point on the bubble to this point on the bubble, is closing your eyes here and opening them over here, to see a different point of view.

So, if you, perhaps, use this mechanism in your imagination and consciousness to expand the bubble, and assume that you and the consciousness always move with the skin of the bubble, and yet, at the same time, can always be aware of what is contained within the bubble, then you can jockey, as you say, back and forth, back and forth. Or remain in the skin, or go into the physical reality, or expand the bubble as large as your wish, or as tightly as you wish.

This is a direct mechanical analogy of astral projection. It is not simply just the idea of a spirit leaving the body. It is an expansion of your entire consciousness, so that your focal point is now on the skin of the bubble moving outward. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I was aware of this concept. Yes. And when I said I was leaving my body, I didn’t mean to imply that I thought my consciousness was actually my body.

B: Oh, we do not mean to imply that you were implying that. We are simply giving you, perhaps, the idea of a mechanism to explain the effect you are feeling.

Q: Okay. And when I asked, is this technically an astral projection, you said that it can be. So, how would it not be?

B: We simply mean that it is one way to describe it.

Q: Okay.

B: So, technically, yes.

Q: Technically, I’m astral projecting.

B: Yes. It just depends upon the idea of where you choose to focus the mainstay of your consciousness. Many individuals, in other words, would assume that it is not completely astral projection unless you lost the realization of the focus of your physical form.

Q: Yes.

B: It is still astral projection, but it may simply be that your consciousness is not focused in the skin of the bubble, but throughout the entire thing.

Q: Multi-focused, certainly. Well, I understand that the whole phenomenon of perception, anyway, is the selection of a viewpoint. . .

B: Yes.
Q: a created space.
B: Yes. So astral projection is simply one of those viewpoints, in the sense of being completely disconnected from the body. That is simply another point of view.
Q: Okay. Well, you're saying that astral projection technically would require this disconnection, or apparent disconnection, from the sensations of the body? Or does...
B: It doesn't have to.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: But because of the habit your society is in – and I'm not saying that in this way it has to be with you – many individuals will not allow themselves to believe that it is has actually been done, unless they are capable of forming that apparent disassociation, to know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that they actually can shuttle their focus of consciousness back and forth between the physical and the non-physical.
Q: Okay.
B: When you are, quote/unquote, physically dead, that is when the disconnection apparently happens naturally. Although, again, when you elevate to higher and higher levels, you will once again re-form the connection that you are feeling now. So, in a sense, what you are doing, in order to feel the connection, is you are expanding astrally to a much broader realm than the immediate sphere just around your planet. You're actually passing through that, so that you can maintain an awareness of the connection all the way through the different levels.
Q: Okay.
B: You follow me?
Q: Yes. So how would one go about opening the astral eye, as you said?
B: Again, there can be many ways. You can use the analogy of your own physical eye; and while you are expanded, simply begin, bit by bit, to remove your focus from the physical. One thing that can assist many of you is to assume that you can also turn around on the skin of the sphere and look outwards.
Q: Wow! Certainly.
B: See what that does. That is one way. Use your imagination, as always.
Q: Okay.
B: And also there are many suggestions within some of the literature on astral projection – that individuals in your society have already written about.
Q: All right. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.

Opening Your Astral Eye
Opportunity for Blatant Interactions Coming Up
Circa (1987)
Q: I have this interesting phenomenon that’s going on in my life right now. I’ve sort of emptied my vacuum a few months ago, and it’s been filling up at a pretty fast clip.
B: Yes.
Q: I find myself, if I’m not mentally activated, or physically activated, wanting to be asleep.
B: Yes. Sometimes, again, this will be a typical symptom for now. For many of the connections you allow yourself to make with different aspects of your consciousness – for some of you still are more easily made while you are unconscious, while you are asleep. So you will sleep very often to make all those connections. And as soon as the connections are made, you will then have more energy, more awareness of those connections when you are awake. And you will find yourself sleeping less.
Q: I see. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: One other quick question: in this lifetime, will we be sitting down to dinner with aliens such as yourself in your natural form?
B: Yes. Although we may not eat what you eat. But it is a high probability, as we have said, within what you call the next decade of your time, two decades of your time, there will be far more opportunity for blatant interaction, as you call it.
And within the format of three decades maximum, there will be a whole series of interactions going on in your society between our respective societies.
Q: That’s wonderful. Thank you.

B: Thank you for creating a conducive atmosphere to allow us to share with you the ideas that you are. Sharing!
Q: Is was brought to my attention that the Orca community has a bifurcation amongst themselves, in that there are two groups, one they call a transient and one a local or residential group; and that the transients wander off and they eat other dolphins and sharks and whales, and that the residential Orcas only eat fish. Is this true?

B: For the most part, unless there are seasonal changes or imperatives within the biological realm that make it so that they must go and do something else.

Q: And that the two factions haven’t communicated with each other for a hundred thousand years.

B: This is not true! You must understand that communication is not experienced by your species on all levels that they experience communication. On one level, it may be so that there seems to be this separation...on other levels they are in constant communication.

Q: What frequency are you coming through tonight?

B: At this particular moment?

Q: Yes.

B: Two hundred thirty-seven thousand cycles per second; now, two hundred fifteen thousand cycles per cycles per second; now, two hundred fifty-four thousand cycles per second, does that do?

Q: How is our collective frequency in this room tonight, what is it vibrating at?

B: The collective frequency?

Q: Yes.

B: Two hundred and eighty seven thousand cycles per second; two hundred seventeen thousand cycles per second.

Q: And what electromagnetheric frequency do the Orcas usually operate at?

B: It is a little bit different for them than it is for your human species, there is a slightly different registration taking place. Let us just say that they typically operate somewhere around two hundred and thirty-seven thousand cycles per second, on the average.

Q: And will there be a time when our United Nations will recognize them as a nation, as a civilization?

B: No! There will be a time that your species recognizes them as such, but by that time what you now call the institution of your United Nations will no longer exist.
Q: What’s the difference between, or is there (any), between believing and knowing?
B: All right. Thank you.

Let us put it in this particular category, or categorization if you will. First there is existence itself. Then the first state of separation is self-awareness, knowingness – when you simply know something; when you are absolutely aligned with what you know is your truth.

Then there is belief, which usually has to do with particular definitions that go into the creation of a particular format, or experimental universe. Then next comes emotions, which are reactions to things you already believe to be true.

Then there are what you typically think of as thoughts in physical terminology. And then there is physical manifestation. So it is existence, knowing, belief, emotion, thought, physical manifestation. That is the basic order of the degree of energy.

So in a sense knowingness is, in your terms, higher than belief. Belief is higher than emotional reaction. Emotional feeling is higher than thought. And thought is the last filter though which you create the manifestation of your physical reality, the final projection on the screen. Understand?

Thank you very much! Sharing.
Origins of Alchemy

Q: Can you give us the origin of the word alchemy? Is it Egyptian or Chinese? Does it come from Chem, which means black sand from Egyptian times?

B: No, one moment... the word, as you understand it at this time, would have more of a Grecian origin, and it is, in that sense, an alteration of an earlier form of word, but not, in that sense, Egyptian, for the Egyptian was also an alteration. One moment... the closest original variant would be the idea of chemo, but in that sense, it is what you would call a lost language.

Q: What civilization etymologically does it tie to?

B: An offshoot, but not directly linear, of the Atlantean civilization.
Bashar:

From: “Orion and the Black League”

Questioner: What about Ra, what’s, what is Ra?
Bashar: You may understand that terminology in such a way as to understand that it proceeds, I’ll say, from an entirely different dimension of reality as you understand it, in that way, projected into your own dimension of reality as, I’ll say, much in the same way that you experience the idea of the Association. Do you follow me?
Q: Mm-hmm.
B: It is a collected understanding of consciousness, which proceeds from another vibratory level of existence.
Q: Bashar, I’m trying to understand that the best way to serve all that is, is to live your life without judgement. And the more you live your life without judgement...
B: The more opportunity you will create for yourself to unfold in positive ways that will allow you to manifest your service towards all that is. Understand that by allowing yourself to experience the judgement of yourself, you are vibrating, then, within that negative energy vibration which creates the negative effect that you feel and manifest within your life. Simply understand that by KNOWING that you ARE all that Is, in that way, you will always be reinforcing that overall ecstatic, I’ll say, evolution of the understanding of service, in that way, to all that is, and that your manifestations, I’ll say, within your physical life, will always go towards the reinforcement of the positive, I’ll say, unfoldment of all activity within the support of the idea of all that is.
Q: So, you were saying a couple of weeks ago that we were gonna be able to use computers to help us tap into our unconscious self?
B: That will be one idea.
Q: Do you know when? Or does it matter?
B: That is being explored right now. Again, realize that many of these ideas or manifestations will, in terms of your time, at this time, in the energy momentum behind the idea that you have in your mass consciousness, take place, I’ll say, unfold to, I’ll say, a specific degree within, I’ll say, the next thirty of your years. Question.
Q: Isn’t biofeedback a beginning of that technological....
B: Yes, very well.
B: What about hypnosis?
B: To a degree, But again, understand that your idea expressed as what you term to be hypnosis, in that way, is simply the realization that you’re always, I’ll say, in that sense, hypnotizing yourself to perceive whatever specific reality that you wish anyway. All hypnosis as you understand that idea is always self-hypnosis, by agreement.

Q: So, can you get closer to... can you ... not judging will help you to be more of a channel...?
B: Of all that is, in that way. Or yourself in the knowing state of all that is, and the support of that idea in a positive way.

Q: What dimension do these people on Orion exist in right now?
B: In what you term to be much the same plane of your own existence physically. That is why you are vibrating equally with that idea.

Q: So they’re in the third plane.
B: Yes.

Q: Is their civilization much like ours, with a little bit of chaos and that type of thing going on, wars...
B: There are other civilizations of that nature, yes.

Q: But I mean, on Orion?
B: In a sense.

Q: Uh-huh. Like, if you went to Orion it’d be similar to ours?
B: Somewhat different, but you will find that, within that idea complex, there will be some similar ideas, yes.

Q: Hmm. Okay, the other question I had that ... is if you serve self with the idea of a positive integration, in a sense that would be the same thing as service to all, right, because they’re the same thing.
B: Understand that the idea being expressed to you as the service to self, in that way, is simply the idea of the reinforcement of judgement within the domination, within the aggrandizement in that way. Realize that to express the idea of service to all that is, is automatically expressing the idea of true service to self, by recognizing the self as all that is, and already expanded in that positive way.

Realize, therefore, that there is no need to, I’ll say, approach the idea in that way, by the recognition of the limited focus of service to what you perceive to be exactly, the self.

Q: Okay, so in a sense, although they are the same thing and you could end up in the same way, because if you really served self you would serve all ... the concept that was formulated, that is, that if you follow the idea, even if you’re integrating the negative into the positive, serving self would dichotomize out, as opposed to serving all would blend it, then, and cause a positive transformation.
B: Yes.

Q: Okay. Can I give you an example, Bashar, and ... of what, just to play it back at you, in my life, of the what I perceive as the positive –
B: Play away.
Q: Okay. I was creating this thing of creating a community where, basically, people were . . . everyone was doing . . . it was like a dance, you know, everyone was doing exactly what they loved to do and did well, and it . . . and everybody . . . it all . . . they all played the parts they exactly needed to play and everybody was doing wonderful. And we were beginning, it was like this doorway opened and we almost took this step to bring it into physical reality in a very real sense. And then, just the night before it was supposed to physically starts to happen it just all fell through. And for about . . . for several hours I was in this space of, kind of like, oh, fuck it, I’m just gonna go, you know, take my family, just fuck everybody else, we’re gonna go off and live in a trailer out in the middle of nowhere and just, screw it, right? That kind of a flow. You know what I’m saying? Is that what you’re talking about, the negative stuff?

B: Now, in a sense, but again, understand that, to a degree, there simply may be for you at this time, simply the idea of the re-examination of the belief structure in that way, so that you may, I’ll say, build, in that way, another idea or another exploration of the positive self, and so manifest that idea more fully.

Q: Well, so, in other words, we could all take off into a trailer and go out in the middle of nowhere, but not with the Idea of, well, fuck you all.

B: Right, very good yes.

B: Again, as long as you allow yourself to understand that every manifestation within your life is not an interruption . . .

Q: Yes.

B: . . .but part of the overall positive unfoldment in that way, and therefore you will be removing the idea of judgement, and therefore not vibrating on the level which will manifest a connection to that negative energy.

Q: Yeah. Yeah.

B: Yes.

Q: Two things: If you’re Darryl’s future self, we who have decided to make it have already made it. The other thing that I wanted to . . . uh . . . forgot. Never mind

B: We will wait.

Q: Oh. Those who decide to make it will make it, and those who decide to don’t make it, won’t make it.

B: All right, now realize again, everyone will, in your terms, “make it” somewhere.

Q: I know. Some will go . . . some will evolve into an Orionish type civilization and some of us will evolve into a Essassani type civilization.

B: In a sense, but realize that you have your own parallel understanding of this idea. ’Tis not that you will be absorbed and lost.
Q: Right, right, right. And, in a sense, that is a possible occurrence even within, or on, this planet.
B: Yes.
Q: There could be total happiness and total unhappiness at the same time.
B: That is what is meant by the idea of the splitting and the creating of the parallel universes.
Q: Okay, I got it, I got it. Got it. We got it!
B: Thank you

Orion Energies Completely Balanced

7-86

Q: I’d like to add something.
B: All right.

Q: It helps to remember that we’re multidimensional. And that doesn’t mean dimensions that are vastly different from our current reality. It means dimensions within our current reality.

In one respect, a person could select to associate with other beings’ multiple dimensions – or other dimensions – and experience his negativity if they choose, or…

B: Yes.

Q: …witness his negativity. Or he can actually choose not to associate with those dimensions or those beings at all. And his reality will be entirely positive; he won’t even see any of the negativity. So it’s really a matter of choosing the various dimensions of the individual beings that you are in association with.

That helps clarify it for me anyway.
B: Thank you for your sharing and clarification.

Q: I have another couple of sharings.
B: All right.

Q: Uh, we had a really neat earthquake a couple of days ago.
B: Yes. Two twenty-two.

Q: Aah. That’s right.
B: From seven-seven. (7-7-86)

Q: Yah.

B: ‘Tis the gateway that we spoke of last week of your time, seven-seven. It is a representation of a transformation of an entire body of consciousness that was channeled in a shift in your electromagnetic field – and therefore, your physiological plates as well. Its specific merit – in the area that you call your Palm Springs – has to do with ancient energies, which arrived upon your planet in that area long ago.

And because of this doorway, because of this release, it has now been crystallized. Do you follow me?

Q: No.

B: The idea we have discussed of: much of the Orion energy arrived upon your planet at that point. And in this way, the exemplification of the crystallization of the electromagnetic field in that area has now allowed much of that energy to be completely and totally balanced.

Q: It was a very widely spread earthquake, but it didn’t seem to do much of what we would call damage. I mean there was some damage, but not really severe life lost…

B: No. It was mostly though the idea of a physiological reflection of a crystallization of an ancient energy…
Q: Uh huh.
B: now allows for balance.
Q: It was on 7-8, not 7-7.
B: Close enough.
Q: My girlfriend and I were feeling tired and we took a nap that evening prior to the earthquake. I didn’t tap into what was happening, but she kind of had a presage of the earthquake happening, and then it happened.
B: Yes. Many individuals had – as you become more and more connected to ALL That Is, you will be able to always read any type of communication.
Q: Un huh. I have another sharing.
B: Yes.
Q: I had an interesting realization. You’ve been saying that you can take any of that, which is fundamentally neutral...
B: Yes.
Q: . . .and perceive it as a negative or positive.
B: Yes.
Q: And if you desire a positive dimension, you will literally be going into the positive realities. It’s not a matter of experiencing the negativity in the same dimension, or the positivity in the same dimension – that you would have got positivity in the same dimension that you would have got, anyway . . .
B: Correct.
Q: It’s really a different reality.
B: Yes. Absolutely! Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Q2: On the earthquake, there was an interesting news clip where a fellow, whose house actually was damaged, was talking about how he was dreaming while it was happening. And as he woke up and the room was falling apart around him, he really felt he continued to be in the dream. And I thought it was a very interesting reflection on what you’ve been talking about – that dreams and realities are blending into one.
B: Yes.
Q: I thought it was sort of . . .
B: Thank you.
Q: Excuse me. What did you mean by the energy had crystallized?
B: The idea we have expressed many times of one of the reasons of the Orion energy in this way becoming physicalized in your sphere – your earth sphere – was for the purpose of learning the balance of the positive and the negative. This idea is now the balance of the positive and the negative. This idea has now been crystallized.

Q: Meaning what?
B: Meaning that within individuals who are connected to that energy in specific ways: they can now avail themselves of knowing that within themselves is all the opportunity of all the balance and all the acceleration they desire, from this point forward. For the idea is that the road is clear – and that energy is now completely and utterly connected back to the original system to also create a balance within that system.

Q: What would be the opposite – the conditions prior to the crystallization: how would you describe that?
B: Simply limbo state – uncertainty.
Q4: An amorphous energy?
B: In a sense. What you have already described as just before, the fork in the road.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: Now the fork has been arrived at for that particular consciousness manifestation, and has crystallized into the positive reality.
Q: Ah. Is there a specific area in Orion?
B: There are many systems. One of the ideas and understandings would be associated with what you refer to in your language as one of the stars in the belt called Mintaka. The planetary system associated with that, or closest to that stellar grouping in the language of the original system, would be Hoova.
Q: Thank you.
Q3: I have a question about past lives.
B: Yes.
Q3: If it has... if that’s part of the different dimensions...
B: Yes.
Q3: ...that we have.
B: Yes.
Q3: The different realities we have.
B: Yes.
Q3: Are they maintained at the same time?
B: Yes. All is simultaneous. Linear time is an illusion – though it is real while you are in it. And once again, to utilize a phrase that one of your own has recognized already: because you were desirous of experiencing limitation, and keeping everything separated, then time is one of the ways to keep everything from happening all at once – as you have said upon your own planet. It is a convenient way of allowing yourselves to become objectified.
But it is all occurring now. The past and the future are created in the present. You follow me?
Q: Yes, I do. Thank you very much.
B: Yes.
Q4: It would seem like the picture we’re painting here – or whatever we’re creating, the energy that we’re creating… it would seem like the energy that we’re creating, whether we choose to play the third density or the fourth density or the fifth density or the second, or whatever…
B: Yes.
Q4: … it would just be what process we decided to run at that particular point in time, or what game we decided to play?
B: Yes.
Q4: Period?
B: Yes.
Q4: Until you get tired of it and try another one.
B: In a sense, although it is not so much the idea of getting tired of anything, but simply recognizing that you have fulfilled your particular needs along that line.
Q4: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Orion Transformation

Q: I have a question in regard to some information that I was studying about a year ago.
B: All right. Speak up and be bold.
Q: Okay. Well, I’m trying to create a blend and integrate all the...
B: Trying! I am creating a blend.
Q: I am creating a blend.
B: Is that your intention?
Q: Yes.
B: Then say you are doing it. Have some conviction.
Q: Okay, great, I’m doing it. And I’m wondering if you could give me some focus as to where the connection is. I studied something called the Cosmic Mandate, the blueprint for immortality.
B: All right.
Q: And it’s channeled from the Orion energy by a woman with the name of Patricia.
B: The idea now is that it is representative of some of the first stages, some of the first levels of the transformation of the old Orion negativity into Orion light, into the positive idea, the positive side. It is the laying down of a lighter template, a lighter structure – one far more interchangeable, far more malleable, than the older Orion structures used to be.
The idea, of course, always, fundamentally, for everyone, is to understand that every single ritual, and every single methodology, is just one more tool, one more way. And if it works for you, by all means enjoy it and use it. If it no longer works for you, or if you change into some other methodology, then go with that. And no longer use the ones that don’t work for you. It is as simple as that. No other connection really needs to be understood. If it gives you joy, if it helps you grow, if it serves you, and helps you serve others in a positive way – use it. If it stops doing that, you have changed. Use something else.
But you are connecting into the idea of the changing of the format of the old Orion light into the new Orion light – from dark to light. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you? Is that sufficient?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Are you sure?
Q: Well, no. Not really.
B: All right. I did not think so.
Q: The universal principles that are behind the blueprint are what I was kind of trying to figure out.
B: How do they allow you to feel when you use them?
Q: It feels like a very solid foundation.

B: All right. There are only, in a sense, a few things that describe the solid foundation of existence – those background principles: One – you exist; that is common for everyone. Two – the one is the many and the many is the one. That is common for everyone. Three – what you put out is what you get back. That is common for everyone. That’s it. Does that help you?

Q: Yes, it does.

B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Orion Transformation
Orion, Earth and Pleiades – Full Cycle

Q: What is the synchronistic relationship between Orion, the energies of Orion, and our present transitional Earth?

B: Thank you! Let us put it very simply for now, and very succinctly. Origin: Earth/Pleiades system in Lyra, split off – into Pleiades system and Orion. Pleiades system – retention of integration; Orion system – creation of separation and limitation.

Projection from Orion systems to idea in Earth system known as Maldek – former planet, now destroyed; projection from Maldek to Earth system – ideas of Lemuria and Atlantis, to the idea of the present Earth civilization.

Exploration of the blending of the polarities, positive and negative so as to form in some factions a feed-back system to original Orion systems experiencing negativity and suppression, so that they could also blend. So that there can be, in round about ways, so to speak, re-blending, re-identification with original systems, original families, now to be found in Pleiades, and to form reconnections after balancing, after transformation.

One direction is the path of integration. The other direction is the path of separation. Now, full cycle, the rejoining of original families originated in Lyra. Your faction: through Orion, through Maldek, to Earth. Other side: to Pleiades.

Does that help?
Q: Sure does.
B: All right.
Q: Are we all going to meet?
B: You have already begun to meet.
Q: So that asteroid belt near Mars...
B: Yes, Maldek.
Q: Oh, that was Maldek.
B: Self-destructed.
Q: Okay, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: I was wondering if you could share with us approximately how many members there are in the Association, some idea of the number of civilizations you monitor, and some idea of what they’re like.

B: Oh! Well, a few. The idea, first of all, is that—now this will be, to some degree, an arbitrary perspective, because there are different levels of the Association when you come from different points of view. However, the closest representation to, what you would call, your physical dimensions is as follows. We belong to an association that now contains approximately 360 different worlds. But we are aware—not that all have been contacted, not that all are a part of our association, or even a part of any association, we are aware, simply through the process of scanning with our consciousness, that within this immediate galaxy and the neighboring four galaxies, thereby considering the local five galaxies—and this includes what you would call your galaxy of Andromeda—there are no fewer than 67 million inhabited worlds.

But the idea is that we have contacted almost none of them. Simply because of the timing of our interactions, what it represents; and simply the timing of their interactions, what it represents. They may have their own associations. Some of them may know of us; some of them may know nothing of us. But it is our perception that that is a figure that is generally representative of the local five galactic groups, in terms of the amount of civilizations that there are to discover that would at least have some degree of commonality with you.

Now this does not mean that the life forms are all of the same variety. But there are many of, what you would call, humanoid, in that sense, because that represents a certain level, a certain vibrational dimensional experience. And life expresses itself similarly within a certain range of frequencies. So there are many humanoid, as you would call it, life forms; although, if I were to come from my point of view, I could say you are Essassani-ish, being that I’m not exactly like you.

The idea is that you will—when you begin to explore the idea of space in the way that we have—usually come upon life forms that are more your style than not, simply because that’s the frequency you are used to; and it is, therefore, more likely that those are the types that you will encounter first. As you expand your notion of dimensionality, then you can begin to encounter life styles that are very unsimilar to your own.
Now, it is our perception that when you begin to explore and interact with other worlds, much in the same way we are interacting with you now, one of the first civilizations you will begin to interact with—in fact, you have already begun to interact with them in your dream levels—is a civilization that is in the Barnard star cluster, as you name it. On one of those worlds is a civilization not unlike your own, but approximately, evolutionarily speaking, where you were on or about, let us say, your Renaissance period, technologically speaking. They are already aware of some of the communications you have had as a society with them on the dream level. And sometimes you will find that some of you are actually channeling through some of the members of that society.

Now they do not, in their society, label the different names, the different channels, as different things; they see it all as one phenomena. The word, in their language, for the entire phenomena of either dream communication or channeling of any sort is simply, weha. That is their term for the entire process. They do not segregate it out into different entities; it is all the same level to them.

In time, as you expand, you will begin to interact with them in similar ways to the ways we have interacted with you, and in a sense, you can become their UFOs. And in time, you can blend and assist them in their transformations in similar ways to the ways we are assisting you.

(Words missing) ...to yours in certain ways goes by the label of Iraks. The Iraks have placed upon themselves a very fascinating limitation. Their facial structures are almost completely bony, as you would call it, and they are incapable of expressing any emotionality on their faces whatsoever; it must be expressed completely in different ways. They are of, what you would call, creamy whitish-yellow waxy skin configuration.

There is one, very unlike your civilization in many ways, that operates on a completely different dimensional plane, that would best translate out into Thirrrrrr . . . one moment, all right, that best translates out into the idea of Dila. Now Dila operates in a completely non-physical sense; and yet they do have, to your perception, a physicality. But they are extremely plastic in their nature, in a sense. They have no real discernible features, and can take almost any form they wish. They are of a completely primal dimensional state; they are not really physical, as you understand it. But one of their, let us say, prime exports is a sense of humor. They are of a very, very light vibration.

Their entire world is very simplified, you would perceive it literally as a smooth sphere, with no surface features— that do not need to exist until they are required. Then they are literally drawn from the surface to form many different things. The Dila themselves, in that sense, can merge with the very substance of their world, in that sense, being very plastic or, what you would call, molten state.

The way you would perceive them physically would be through almost nothing but primary colorations; they would literally appear to be very plastic-like to you, with no discernible features. They can mimic your form, but that is not their natural form. In a sense, they do not really have one, except perhaps, what you would call, a very flattened oblate spheroid in, what you would call, a state of rest, but they do not really rest.
There is, closer at hand, some of the ideas of civilizations that have been interacting with your society of late in this transformational age, the idea of, what you would call, Pleiadian society. They are very much like you: humanish, primarily because many of you are from the same offshoots. They are literally your brothers, sisters and cousins; and the split-off occurred a long time ago. Now you are rejoining many of them, and literally rejoining members of your family.

Another society would be the society from the star cluster you call Zeta Reticulum, and this will be, what you would call, short beings, of very wide eye, very pale skin, and very enlarged heads. And are the ones that are most representative of the idea of the interactions you call the abduction phenomena. Although, if you will allow us, we would prefer the term detainment ... since everything that goes on in those interactions is all from agreement, even though members of your society may not remember having made the agreement. And it is all for the purpose of serving in the transformational age. The idea of any fear that individuals experience in those abductions are the fears that are simply things and ideas that have been suppressed in their own consciousness coming to the surface. Nothing about the interaction itself is fear invoking.

Another civilization would be both semi-physiological and completely non-physiological: a civilization that orbits the star you call Sirius. And Sirius, with our civilization of Essassani and your civilization of Earth, form a particular triad of consciousness, of which you would say Sirius is at the peak, and represents the further step in the evolution we are going through and you are going through. And which both of us will accomplish in time.

The level of consciousness that is mostly in contact with your world, that you would call Sirius, will be the nonphysical sixth-density level of consciousness, and goes by the terminology of Siskeen. Now, they have been in telepathic communication with members of your society for quite some time, and are responsible for some of the mythological manifestations in your perception of, what you would call, the amphibious gods ... both in your Sumerian cultures, and in some of your African tribal cultures and American Indian recognitions. The idea simply is that because they exist in an energy sea, you have translated them as amphibious beings. Although they do have a semi-physical counterpart that to some degree is physiologically amphibious.

One of the reasons for this particular manifestation being very strongly connected to your planet also has to do with the fact that, as we scan your Earth, we find that there is not one, but two alien civilizations upon your planet: land humans and water cetaceans. Dolphins and whales are thinking, self-incarnating, self-aware souls like you. They are not animals, as you classify them, in that sense. So recognize that your planet is blessed with two civilizations that can work side by side and learn to love one another, and grow in creativity. They have already begun to assist you, by entering your dream states and teaching you how to play in spontaneous ecstasy.

Go to them; share with them; they love you. But because of their environment, they have been in telepathic communication with many different civilizations off your planet for quite some time – especially a strong connection with the Sirius civilization, since they have much in common as a consciousness, and are telempathic and exist, to some degree, in a buoyant environment.

Whales are, to some degree, the embodiment, in physical terms, of the higher consciousness of a dolphin. You simply do not have a physiological manifestation of your higher consciousness because the gravity of your world would not support it. So it is up to you to be both the manifestation of the individual consciousness and the higher consciousness itself. But usually you relegate the higher consciousness into non-physical terminology, whereas the higher consciousness of the dolphin can manifest physically as the whale because of the buoyant environment of your ocean. But they are there to assist, to love you. And when you blend as one society that will also make it easier for you to interact with other whole societies.

But now look at this, look at the sparkling opportunity you have created. You do not have to go anywhere in order to interact with an alien civilization, you have one in your very ocean. Learn to communicate with them, and they will teach you much about the way you will be communicating with all other civilizations that you will encounter.

There are approximately, at this time, anywhere from between seventeen to twenty different civilizations interacting in various ways with your civilization, assisting you in this transformational age. But the idea will fluctuate to some degree, and primarily the decision is up to you, and the empowerment is up to you. Will this have answered your question sufficiently?

Q: That was wonderful.
B: Well, thank you very much.
Out of Body States and The Child Within

Q: Hello.
B: And to you. (Female child, about 9 or 10)
Q: Um, I have something to share with you.
B: All right.
Q: And everybody here. Um, well, I think a week ago – not I think, I know, a week ago – I was doing some schoolwork . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . and for a moment I was channeling through – I think it was a Dolphin: it was a Dreamer. And it felt very good.
B: It usually does, yes.
Q: And then, it was nighttime, and then in the morning I channeled again. And since I have channeled that, I have had better experiences going out of my body.
B: Yes.
Q: Because before when I went out of my body, I had this awful feeling. And when I went out, I would picture – I would see – lots and lots of bridges.
B: Yes.
Q: With very dark-toned people.
B: Yes.
Q: On their skin.
B: Yes.
Q: And I would feel very horrible; but ever since I channeled through, I have had better experiences. And I wanted to ask you: has that helped me?
B: Oh, yes. You have opened yourself up to a higher vibration.

And therefore, when you leave your body, you therefore go to a higher level that does not contain the vibrations of the individuals that you perceived on the bridges before. The bridges are symbolic; they are symbolic of the linkages that those individuals are still seeking.

You were passing through the level where individuals who have physically died still do not know that they are, in your terms, physically dead – and are still walking across all the interconnecting links to life, trying to find themselves and where they fit in.

You simply have now elevated yourself through and above that level. And so you yourself are lighter; you yourself are higher, in that way. The consciousness you have channeled through has simply aided and assisted you to remember more of yourself, so that your vibration is more open, and faster, higher – so that now when you explore the different levels of yourself, you now have a tendency to go farther, faster, and not hang around the lower levels. You follow me?

Q: Yes. And when I went out, I would feel like I was – the vibrations were going up, straight...

B: Yes.

Q: Yes. So it would be like... say, I would be in class and I would be standing up, I would sort of go out, sort of pass out, like going out of my body.

B: Yes.

Q: And I would see this picture. But now that I’ve been going out of my body I have not pictured anything, but I have felt that it isn’t going up; it isn’t that awful feeling... it’s going out.

B: Yes.

Q: So now, what you have said is what has happened to me: my life has been much better. And some people say that I have been more, you know... like lovingly...

B: Yes.

Q: ... you know, feeling better.

B: You are fuller, more fulfilled.

Q: Yes.

B: You are a fuller, loving vibration. Also you have transcended the fear reaction that many of you have when you leave your bodies. Because to many of you, leaving your body means death, and you are afraid of that. You have already transcended that fear; death holds no fear for you. You know you are eternal. And so you know that you are safe.

It is all right to relax and explore as far as you want to. You will always be at home no matter how far you go, because you never really go anywhere. It is all within you. You are simply more expanded, and now you contain more understanding of the universe within you.

Q: Thank you. Is that – like when I was channeling through – that loving feeling came. So now that I have had that, it’s always been this way, and it’s...

B: Yes.

Q: And when I go out of my body, it can’t cut through any more. It’s all love.

B: Well, Thank you very much. (Much laughter and applause.) Now each and every one of YOU!! has this child within you. Let it out!

I mean it literally!!! You all LITERALLY have that child within you – THAT CHILD AND YOUR CHILD IS THE SAME CHILD! You are all the same energy; you are ALL holographic!

Every individual that you see that allows you to experience any feeling of ecstasy and expansion: use that experience in a positive way; see that image. You have a living example. Mimic it! Live it!

Be it! Be that child!

Out of Work

Q: I’ve been getting progressively more depressed from being out of work. The longer I’m out of work, the less trust I have in myself and my ability to find work in something that’s going to excite me.

B: Then create what excites you to be your job; that’s the whole idea. The idea is not to look around, necessarily, for the things that excite you that already exist. If you do not find something, then allow what excites you to become your job. Somebody had to start the jobs that exist in your society. They didn’t always exist in the format they exist in now. Someone had to say, “Wait a minute! Look around; the thing that really excites me the most there isn’t a job for. I guess I had better start one.” And now, at this point in time, you think that’s a typical job.

But if you look around and do not find something that excites you; if you look around and find that your path simply does not lead you into these things, then allow yourself to truly examine in all honesty what it is that really would be exciting. Take it for granted that you then, if that thing really excites you, and no one else at this point is doing it, or you do not attract into your life an opportunity to do it where it already exists, then take it for granted that your ability to conceive of what it is that excites you the most also represents your ability to create that to be the job that will support you – automatically.

Again, this is a matter of truly trusting that what you come up with, what you really know would excite you in life, you are capable of doing, whether any structure already exists for it or not. If no such structure exists, then it means that because you thought of it, you have the structure inherent within you, and all you have to do is let it out. Let it unfold, and then the reality will be able to build itself on that template structure. But you’re not letting it out.

Q: I feel so incompetent...

B: That means you believe you are. No feeling comes without a belief already being instilled within you. There is no such thing as simply feeling something for no reason, out of the blue. Feelings are not generated out of thin air, out of a vacuum. If you are feeling something, it is because you already believe that something to be true.

Feelings are a reaction to a belief; they are secondary to beliefs. Feelings are not the primary experience of reality; beliefs are the primary interface. First you believe something is true; then you get the feeling; then you have the reinforcing thoughts – which may re-reinforce the belief; and then you regenerate more of the same feelings. But the feeling that you are incompetent comes from the fact that you simply choose to believe you are incompetent. It’s your choice to believe that, but you don’t have to.

Q: I want to let you go of it, and every time I try, I keep getting these voices that tell me, "Remember this time; remember that time when so-and-so happened..."

B: Let them come up! So what? You see, you are trying to shut portions of yourself off. You think that when you integrate, you will never hear those voices again. And that’s not true; you will always hear those voices. As a matter of fact, the more you integrate, the more you will hear them because you are accepting everything, every way you are, into your life. And those are some of the ways you can exist. They come up not to show you you have failed, not to show you you are stuck, they keep coming up to give you the opportunity to realize how much you must have changed. You don’t relate to them the same way you used to unless, of course, you choose to do so. When you say, "Oh well, look, the voices are still coming up. That must mean I have failed; that must mean I’m not doing the right thing the right way," you are choosing to maintain the same relationship with those voices; but you don’t have to. The voices are there as an opportunity to realize you can form a different relationship with them. All right, here comes the voice: “Well, remember when this happened that way? Well yes, but so what? That was then; I have learned since then. And because you, oh wonderful voice, have now reminded me of the way I did it then, I have a great and positive opportunity to see how differently I am going to do it now."

You are giving yourself a measure. It is the way to allow yourself to recognize you are going through an evolutionary process, if that’s what you believe you must go through. From time to time you may find, well, the voice comes up: "Look, this is the way that happened then." And then you may say, "All right, this time it happened almost the same."

But there is the key word. If you are a positive individual, you will lock onto that "almost the same." It was a little bit different, and that’s good enough for you, because if it can be a little bit different, it can be a lot different. Next time when the voice says, "Well yeah, but remember when it happened this way," then you can recognize that the last time it was different, and next time it will be more “more different.” "So you just keep reminding me, little voice, of the way it was, because when you keep reminding me of the way it was, it gives me an opportunity to see how much more different it’s becoming all the time."

Everything in your life can be used in a positive way – even the same old little voices. It’s up to your willingness to allow your imagination to work for you. Trust it; have a positive attitude, and that will determine everything. If it’s there, use it as a tool. Don’t think that just because it’s there, it means you’ve failed. That’s your old attitude; that’s your old belief.

Q: I just get reinforcements from other people in my life telling me also...
B: No one can give you reinforcement; you have to accept reinforcement.
Q: Well, they’re agreeing with the voices...
B: So what? The inner reality is the outer reality; it is one and the same. If you have the little voices within you, of course you’re going to have the voices outside of you as well. But when you start using those little voices in the way we have just described, then the outer voices will also change. You understand? The inner is the outer reality; the outer is the inner reality. They are not two different things. It is one.

As you believe in, so do you see out. As you sow, so you reap. That’s what that means. The seeds you plant within yourself are what you see growing in the garden around you. If you do not like the flowers you see growing, then change your order of seed. Plant something different, and then something new will grow. The inner is the outer. If the outer is not the way you prefer it to be, change the inner and the outer will follow.
Q: I’ve worked on saying those things. I guess the belief was still the old one; I didn’t get rid of the old belief.
B: You cannot get rid of anything.
Q: What I said was, "Okay, I can do this, and I can handle the job." But that belief was still hanging on...
B: Listen to the way you sometimes phrase things, as well. Many times the way you phrase things is an indication of the way you really believe. "Okay, I can handle it!"] Right there it lets you know the way you are saying it means you think it’s overwhelming to begin with. And that’s what the real belief is. The belief, therefore, is not really that you can "handle it," because if you knew, beyond the shadow of a doubt that you could, you wouldn’t have to convince yourself. If you find yourself using phraseology that indicates you are attempting to convince yourself, then you do not believe it naturally.
Let yourself know that you do not have to think twice about something you already own. When you phrase things in that manner, when you say, "All right, I can handle it," then you are indicating that you do not really believe it is handleable. You do not have to "handle" things in that way. You already control everything. Therefore, if situations occur in your life that seem to be non-preferable manifestations, you controlled it for a reason, for a positive reason, into that format.
Q: Even though I don’t see what the positive reason is?
B: Let the positive reason at least be the fundamental reason that you’re giving yourself an opportunity to realize you don’t have to relate to the scenario the way you used to. And you may be checking yourself to see if you still are.
Q: What phrases could I use that would be more beneficial to me?
B: "How does this serve me – exactly the way it is? Exactly the way it is, how does it serve me? What can I learn? How can I positively learn something from this?" When you let it be the way it is, that is when it has the greatest opportunity to change into something else. If you deny the form in which it comes, then you are not allowing yourself to see what is inherent within it. You are not allowing it to present itself in the way you have created it to present itself. You are denying your own creation, your own format. Only when you acknowledge your own format of delivering messages to yourself, exactly and completely the way it comes to you, do you then create the conscious freedom to transform that delivery system into a way you prefer it to come.
If you constantly treat your delivery system as if it is malfunctioning, then you are not listening to it. You are thinking something is going wrong within you, and therefore, that’s the belief you reinforce. And therefore, that’s the cycle you repeat. "Something is wrong; something is wrong!" So of course your reality constantly reflects back to you, "Something is wrong; something is wrong."
Everything is just fine. In what you used to consider the most dire circumstances, let yourself realize everything is just fine. "I’m in control of this; look at how much control I have, to have created such an absolutely exciting scenario. Everything seems to be wild and hither and thither and all over the place, and seemingly wild and unconnected and out of control. But since I know I’m controlling that, look at how much power I have." Are you beginning to get the idea?

Q: Yes.

B: For the only thing you are experiencing is the idea that you have old habits that are difficult to break. If that’s where you are coming from, all right: "I have habits that I believe are difficult to change. So if I believe in the idea of habits, then I’ll use the idea of habits in a positive way and create positive habits. I am in control of everything. Even when it seems like it’s out of control, I’m controlling that." Get used to knowing and believing there is a positive manifestation that can occur from every scenario. With no exceptions! None.

Q: I felt like I was, but when I lost my job, I just went down…

B: But you see, you assume that not being in that job for some reason has to be an inherently negative scenario. Why make that assumption? It is only an assumption. How do you know what losing that job may be making room for – perhaps something you would just explode with delight to receive – that you wouldn’t have room to receive if you still had the old job? Trust that when things like that occur in your life, if you know you are doing the best you can do at that moment, and those things still occur, then assume it’s for a good reason, and let yourself see how it is for a good reason.

Only when you insist that those things occur not for a positive reason, do you then keep the reason from coming to you that would let you see why you lost the job for a positive reason. Because you’re sitting there moping on the idea, "Oh well, the only thing I can think of that losing my job means is that it must be negative. Something’s wrong." And when you are focused in that way, you can’t see the positive side of the coin. You can’t see it until you choose to look at it. You have to decide consciously that you will look at the positive side of the coin in every single circumstance, or you will not be able to see positive manifestation. If you are constantly insisting that circumstances are inherently negative, then, "Losing a job must be a bad thing. It has to be; everyone knows that." If that’s the way you choose to look at it, that’s the way you’ll experience your reality. When you insist just as strongly that to lose a job must be leading to a more expanded and broader positive experience, that’s what you will get in your life. That’s it; it’s that simple. Honest!

Q: I guess I got impatient, because I did state that. I said that exactly. And what happened was I did get an interview for a job that paid more—

B: Yes? And then what? Did you bring back the expectation, "If I don’t get this, I’m failing?"

Q: Yeah. Then when I blew the interview and I didn’t get the job, you know, then I started to go into my old…

B: Remove the expectations! It doesn’t have to manifest exactly as your ego or your habits think it should. It doesn’t have to! Let it manifest along the path of least resistance. Stop fighting yourself. You do not have to push yourself into a mold; you fit exactly where you are. You do not have to conform to a particular idea of what success represents. You are successful exactly as you are.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank You.
Overcoming Inertia:
28 January 88
BASHAR: All right, I’ll say: how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist? Are you all alive?
Audience: Yes. Yes.
B: Thank you! Allow us to lay down some foundations for this interaction this evening of your time. And if I may say so now, I will be a little bit more long-winded than usual. The idea is simply that there are a couple of ideas that we wish to discuss.
The first one shall be a very important point for many individuals, and something that we will further a discussion of at other times as well. But for now, it may simply be entitled, “Overcoming Inertia.”
Now: we are referring in our analogy to not only what you may call the physiological form, the scientific definition of inertia, but also the sociological form: the idea of overcoming what seems to be a sluggishness, or an impedance, to you moving at the rate you prefer to move within the endeavors you say you want to be involved within.
There is a similar definition for both. This definition, with a very slight change, can be applied not only to the scientific idea of inertia, the physiological, the physics idea; but also the sociological one.
Now: the idea as your society understands it, to put it on a very simple level, is that inertia usually, as you say, represents the tendency of an object to remain in the condition or the state that it is in, unless acted upon by an outside force that moves it in another way. The idea, however – to us, from our point of view – is that inertia is the effect, an effect that is created by the relative interaction between dissimilar frequencies of matter.
To put it on the sociological level, and perhaps to underline the physiological definition, social inertia – that sluggishness, that slow moving, that idea of having to overcome what seems to be obstacle – is the result of the effect that is created by the relative interaction between dissimilar frequencies or states of being. In other words, any time you have, in a physiological object, non-homogenous, disassociated, disconnected objects, each of those will have a different frequency, a different idea, a different definition of itself relative to everything else.
And to define this analogy more clearly, let us take the notion of many of your technological vehicles – your spacecraft, your automobiles, and so forth. When you deal with inertia in the physiological realm that you live in, it is usually defined by the following analogy.
Let us say you have a vehicle; let’s say for now it is simply a box, a hollow box. And there are passengers within it – little objects that you put in the box. And now you take that box, you fling it with all your might against a wall. Now, you know what happens to the objects inside – and sometimes even to the box itself.
The idea is that the inertia of the objects at rest remain at rest. And when they impacted the wall, their motion was abruptly changed; and they simply, as the motion keep going, rest relative to the box – they were still moving relative to the earth – they kept going and smashed up against the front of the box. Now all of you understand this example in physical terminology.

However: many of you have realized and recognized that within our spacecraft we seem to exhibit properties that would indicate that we are inertia-free; that these craft can move at many thousands of mile per hour; and can abruptly, or execute very sharp turns, at seemingly no harm to the occupants. The reasons for this goes back to the definition we have given to inertia. That it is an effect created by the relative interaction between dissimilar frequencies of matter.

So: what we have done in our technology is to create a type of field, a type of energy. We have created the crafts substance and the occupants’ substance and the air within the craft – its substance – to all operate on the same frequency. So it all becomes ethereal matter. Thus the spacecraft the air within it and all of the occupants, and any other artifacts, all function as one homogenous substance.

It is more analogous to the idea of having a solid block, rather than an empty box full of separate particles. Or it is perhaps more analogous to the idea of taking that hollow box with all the separate occupants, and filling it with a substance that immobilizes everyone.

So that it does act like a solid object; when you throw it against the wall – because they are immobilized – all the objects within the box simply cannot move because they are held within a type of pressure field.

Now this does not mean we cannot move around within the craft. It simply is, however, that the atmosphere within the craft – and I do not necessarily just mean the breathable substance, but the entire energy atmosphere of the craft, the entire energy reality– is of one vibratory frequency. Therefore the entire craft functions as if it were a solid object. So it can stop abruptly, it can make right angle turns, and the occupants do not even know they are moving. Because relative to the craft they are immobilized within that energy reality.

Sociological inertia can be similar. The only reason there is resistance and friction in your life is because you may not be of the same frequency as the idea, the event, the vehicle, you say you want to be a part of.

Therefore, if you are traveling at one rate because of your definition of yourselves; and the idea is traveling at another rate because of your definition of it; then if it all of a sudden stops or takes a right angle turn, you are usually turned into emotional jelly.

The idea, therefore, is to begin to understand that the way you overcome that inertia is to – as we have said many times, in many different ways – accelerate and uplift your vibratory frequency to match that of the event in your life you say you desire.

Be, in other words, equal to the idea; and do not consider yourselves, nor invalidate yourselves to be anything less than that idea. Then your frequency will not be dissimilar. You will not experience the idea of resistance and friction in your sociological interactions.

And you will move in an accelerated manner, smoothly as one with the event itself. Traveling, so to speak, through the changes in that event at the speed of thought, in a very smooth, a very homogenous way. Because you and the event will be one solid idea. Not made of various components that can become jumbled up and detached; but one interconnected homogenous idea.

So: the way we have discussed many times to do this is, of course, in accelerating your energy. It is doing the thing in your life that excites you the most; and knowing that when something does excite you, it is who you are. And feeling equal to that idea. That’s too big for me; I can’t handle that; I don’t deserve that. That’s going to be difficult."

"I have to overcome this and this and this in order to do that. I’ll never be good enough." And many other ideas that keep your frequency lower – or at least different – than the idea you say could be so exciting.

Be at one with your vehicle; and it will carry you anywhere, as fast and far as you want to go. Smoothly, effortlessly and with absolutely no inertia to overcome. Because you’ll be on the same track in the same frequency. Everything will be, in your terms, no longer, quote/unquote, differently relative.

It will all be from the one point of view that you desire to be. And your vehicle will then be seen to be an extension of you. Even as we understand that; even though we use the format you call space craft, we know they are literally an extension of us – even as any physiological object is.

Your own rocket ships, your own automobiles, your own airplanes, your own boats – any vehicle, any idea – your own bodies: they are an extension of the idea that you are; they are a representation of the idea that you are. And they are absolutely representative of the frequency you operate on and the acceleration that you believe is possible in your life.

Second idea: to add some more wind into the conversation. There will be, and have been for a while, many ideas now coming up regarding the issue of spirit versus will. All right. There are many, many areas of information that are now coming into your society regarding the notions of spirit and will.

And for a long time, your world has been denied the idea in many ways and in many forms, of what you call your physical consciousness when you deal with spiritual matters.

The idea we have outlined many times is simply that you cannot really, quote/unquote, become more overall spiritual by denying one level of spirituality, one level of reality... the physical reality.
Overeating
Q: I have a relationship with my eating and my body that I’d like to stop. I eat, or rather binge, when I’m not hungry physically, and I tend to do it sometimes until I throw up.
B: All right. Do you have a good time? (AUD: laugh).
Q: No.
B: All right. May I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you doing in your life what excites you the most?
Q: No.
B: Why not?
Q: Umm...
B: May I ask you another question?
Q: Yes.
B: What, right now, excites you the most that you would or could be doing in your life?
Q: Playing the piano.
B: Why aren’t you?
Q: Umm...
B: Here it comes. (AUD: laugh). In no way, shape, or form am I denigrating or being demeaning to you; but recognize that many individuals, when they create the so called reasons for why eating is going on, are basing these reasons on foundations they think to be solid, but carry no more weight than any of the reasons themselves.
Now, truly, is there truly one, I’ll accept one, good reason for why you are not doing what you really want to do? Just one. I’ll make it easy for you.
Q: (laugh) Umm...
B: One good reason.
Q: Okay. I need enough money to...
B: Uh, that doesn’t do it. (AUD: laughter) I’ll tell you why, because money is only a tool like any other tool. It is only one way to think of and manifest, what you call, abundance. Only way. Recognize that every idea– the idea that you are a pianist– is an idea. Every idea comes complete with all the ingredients necessary for the support and manifestation of that idea, automatically, synchronistically. Now, the idea is that if you are willing to be that idea and act fully like that idea that excites you the most, you will then automatically, synchronistically, coincidentally attract whatever ingredients, situations, relationships are necessary to support that idea. Whatever is there, is what is necessary to support you in being that idea. Whatever is not there, is not necessary.
Therefore, you may find that you are only creating an expectation and an assumption that money has to be necessary in order for you do this idea. Now, if it is truly necessary, the moment you start acting like you are already a pianist, the money, if it is necessary, will automatically flow to you. Or an opportunity that will allow it to flow to you will flow to you.

The idea is that you do not simply trust that you are that idea. That it will not support itself automatically, like every other idea you are willing to be supports itself automatically.

Q: And if I start doing more of what I really want to be doing, I’ll stop eating like that?
B: You can. For you will recognize that many times the idea, it is somewhat connected to the idea of, what you call, “overweightness,” in the sense that many individuals find that they will create that scenario for similar reasons, and that is that they are, by a coincidental cross reference in your language, find that they are overweight because they are not doing, they are waiting to do.

Q: Oh. (OTHER AUD: laugh). No!
B: When you begin to do what you know you want to do, you stop waiting. (AUD: laughter and comments). Therefore, the idea is that you’re only replacing all of the energy with some substitute symbol – the food. You know it is not what you really want, therefore you get rid of it just as quickly as you pile it in. But the idea is to simply know that all you are reflecting is the idea that you do recognize that there is a flow of energy going through you; but you are not placing it in the direction you know is true for you. The way to tell which direction is true for you is to pay attention to your excitement, because excitement is the physiological translation of the fundamental vibrational energy that represents the path you chose to be. Follow your excitement. You will always be exactly in synchronous harmony with the person you chose to be in this life. Follow your excitement. Then you will be feeding yourself in a spiritual way that will flourish you in a way that the physiological food cannot.

You simply find that the food is a substitute for the symbolic reflection that you feel you are starving spiritually, not physically. Do what excites you. You will be supported. This is one of the few things I can guarantee one hundred per cent. (AUD: Laughter and comments). That goes for each and every one of you.

Q: Wow!
B: When you do the thing that excites you, synchronistically and automatically all the necessary ingredients to support you in continuing to be that idea will flow into your life, because you have been willing to be completely vulnerable.

Being vulnerable is not being weak. Being vulnerable is being completely open to All That Is. Being open to All That Is and willing to receive all the ways in which All That Is can manifest in your life is being connected to All That Is. Being connected to All That Is is being ultimately strong. So, vulnerability is infinite strength, not weakness. (AUD: comments and applause).
I will assume, of course that you are all applauding yourselves. (AUD: laughter) Thank you. Sharing!
Oversoul, Higher self and Soulmate

Q: I would like to know the difference between these terms: Oversoul, soul, entity, Higher self and soulmate.

B: Thank you. In this way Oversoul can, simply be the way, the idea of all, all of the individualized souls that you have every been, or will every be. Everything, everywhere, anytime, anyplace, combined together it is the Oversoul.

A soul may be view as a fragment of the Oversoul, that you may recognize as a life or and expedience in any level or dimension.

Higher self can also be a reference to the Oversoul, but it can be a specific reference to the portion of the Oversoul that you call the soul. That is what, in a sense, regulates the primary purpose of the physical life should a portion of the soul become the type of reality that creates a need for a reflection or a remembrance to its, in a sense, greater self. You follow me?

Q: No, can you explain that little more further?

B: Let us say you have an Oversoul, you are all that you can ever be, you decide that one of the all’s that you can ever be, will project itself in a certain experience. That fragment of the Oversoul, still in a non-physical state, will decide that a fragment of itself will experience the idea of physical reality. To the physical consciousness, that portion of the soul it may refer to the rest of itself, the fragment of the Oversoul, as the Higher self, or even the Oversoul as the Higher self. Depending on what types of connections are made for whatever purposes are being explored in that physical life. For the most part a Higher self is only a point of view that occurs within a physical reality. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Although, the Oversoul can view a concept of a Higher self by imagining itself to be blended with all Oversouls in the Oneness of All That Is. That to the Oversoul can be view as a so-called Higher self as well. It is only a definition that in general terms says that there is, in a sense, another portion of you, that when you chose to look at yourself from that perspective will be the perspective that will allow you to be more aware of more of yourself, than the particular portion of yourself that is contemplating the ability of where it is.

Q: How about soulmate?

B: The idea is simply in this way that there are individuals with whom you make agreements to share purposes in live, to reflect to each other ideas that you have chosen to explore— the knowingness of yourself, the idea that you know that you are functioning within equilibrium and synchronous harmony with any, so-called, level of yourself that you have created. The idea upon your planet, many times, is, however, in a sense, backwards. That many individuals feel that if they could only find their soulmate everything would be wonderful, when an idea of a so-called soulmate is a reflection of when you already know everything is wonderful. That is why you are able to attract, because you become the frequency of completeness. You become the frequency of ecstasy, and it is being that completeness that allows you to attract an individual who purpose it is to share with you a reflection of the completeness you now have created yourself to be, so that you can reflect that to them as well. That is the idea of a soulmate.

Q: How does the soul communicate with the Higher self in terms of the Oversoul?

B: Through the dimension of imagination, in a sense. More directly in the non-physical state by becoming that idea, by identification, by direct identification. Simply the turning of the consciousness through that idea will form the connection. In all reality the connection is always there, but if you chose to view that there can be times when it is not, then simply being cognizant of the idea that there is a connection, will form a connection, that is the way it works in physical reality as well. Once you allow the idea of your imagination to be just as real as your physical reality, the simple notion of being in communication with all levels of your soul will instantaneously put in conscious communication with it.

Q: Does the Oversoul then in turn communicate with All That Is?

B: Yes, although, again, so do you. Every level is an arbitrary creation, in a sense, but it is holographic in nature. Every level is connected to every level. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: You do not necessarily have to go through channels, no pun intended, but you can allow yourself to recognize that you yourself, no matter what state of being you recognize yourself to be in, you are always directly connected to All That Is. And it is even more than that, even the idea of a connection implies that you are something separate to begin with. In a sense you have created yourself to be that idea of separation, but also it is true that you actually are All That Is, and therefore you are never separated even to the point where you have to reform a connection. You are simply the same thing, one and the same thing. Talking to All That Is, is talking to yourself. Talking to yourself is talking to All That Is. You follow me.

Q: Yes, I sorry.

B: Thank you. One moment, do not be sorry, there is nothing to apologize for. TRUST is all that is necessary as the mechanism, in a sense, that will allow you to know that you are in touch, exactly, as you need to be.

Q: Thank you.
Oversoul Expressions and Gateways

Q: One of the main things that I wanted to find out about: I recently have become aware, as you are aware, of another aspect of the same oversoul of which I am – who is in my physical surroundings.
B: Yes.
Q: And it’s brought up ideas, questions within me, about that relationship. One viewpoint might be that beings exist…let’s say an oversoul exists, and then chooses to have different experiences, and so divides itself up…
B: Yes.
Q: …and sends these aspects out into different places.
B: Yes.
Q: Actually my question is: then are those aspects re-homogenized at the end of the physical life, or is it a much (−?) process than that?
B: Yes and no. Once something is created, it continues forever in many different ways. It is more – although all of this in your language is rather arbitrarily being put, but it will suffice – it is more the idea that the re-absorption always seems to take place from the point of view of every single aspect.

In other words: as each and every aspect becomes more and more and more expanded, more and more and more aware of itself as its own oversoul, this seems to happen from the point of view of all the different aspects that the oversoul created. Each thinks it is becoming its oversoul. And so the oversoul is expanded even from that.

It becomes many oversouls, in a sense. It plants many seeds, which then grow into blossoms that allow the original single flower that gave all the seeds to the soil to turn into a vast garden, each now its own oversoul. And so the oversoul is expanded even from that.

It becomes many oversouls, in a sense. It plants many seeds, which then grow into blossoms that allow the original single flower that gave all the seeds to the soil, to turn into a vast garden, each now its own oversoul; and collectively, the garden an over-oversoul; and so on and so on and so on. Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, it does. On last thing, I’m getting ready to leave in the morning, to go back to the Monroe institute and…
B: Have a good time.
Q: Okay. I was going to inquire whether there was anything else that you might wish to say to me before I go to do that?
B: If you see what you recognize as a gate: go on, jump through it.
Q: I will.
B: You don’t have to hesitate: there will be nothing that you could possibly encounter that you wouldn’t be able to use in a positive way. And like another individual said: “If you might, for a moment, experience a little anxiety, enjoy it and it will turn into excitement.”

Ride; flow with it. Jump; you will be supported. Jump through the gate. You will discover many ways this time that you can translate the gate, so that you will begin to recognize the gate in its many forms. For you have seen it many times, but not necessarily understood it for what it was. Simply because of the previous definitions you might have had within you.

This time many of those definitions are no longer with you. You will begin to see the gate and the doorway to your higher self in many different forms, and recognize them all to be the same gate. Enjoy.

Q: Okay. Thank you.

B: We thank you very much. Sharing!

Oversoul Expressions and Gateways
Oxygen, Gold and AIDS

B: There are also many forms of healing now being understood that relate to the molecule of oxygen. These are the clues, these are the cues, oxygen is the key to many different things, and also the element gold. There are certain energies that could be adapted through the use of oxygenation and gold that would allow the body to realign and attain a sense and degree of longevity and imperviousness to certain ideas of disease.

You must understand the cause of AIDS in the sense of philosophically, metaphysically and energetically. As we have said, the idea is that your society has for a long time built up around itself a type of barrier of all the negative things it has feared to face. Now that you are examining those things, that barrier is dropping away. You are losing your barrier to these things and as such, this is being reflected in your physiological form as a dropping away of the immunological system that protects you from things you are afraid to face, from processes you are afraid to integrate. Primarily, especially in your society, the integration, blending and balancing of the male and female aspects within each and every individual.

Overall, the idea is you will find that oxygenation and all ideas surrounding the electromagnetic vibration of the oxygen molecule will contain what you would recognize as a realignment of the body that could be called a cure for AIDS, or any disease whatsoever. You follow? Have a good time with your exploration of these ideas.
Pacific Energies and Kachinas and Dolphins

Q: Can you comment on the relationship between the idea of Atlantean and Lemurian energies, and my being drawn to go to New Zealand?

B: There is much strong dolphin consciousness in that area. That is where the consciousness we have referred to as “Dreamer” originates from. In that New Zealand area there is a very specific type of vortex energy that represents a type of ancient foundation, and at the same time, an ancient capstone to an old, old, idea. It is the repository, if you will, to many of your psychic pasts, your energy pasts.

Hawaii is, to some degree, connected to this idea. New Zealand will contain certain particular aspects that will add a certain completion to the story of your lineage with regard to Lemurian interactions. For it is in many ways, as you would say, primeval. The energy there, as does the energy in Hawaii, contains many different spirit forms, spirit guides. The area you call Hawaii is alive with spirit guides. They are much more distinct in this area, and they are much more individualized in this area, because the area more naturally accepts them and has not, in your terms, blocked them out with what you call technical civilization.

In New Zealand there are many connections – now, many of you may be surprised, although it will be different in that area – you will find that there are many, many origination connections to the same type of energy that many of you recognize in your United States of America to be Kachina energy.

In New Zealand are many of the origination points for when that particular type of consciousness first intersected your Earth. It is very primal. You will get in touch with a strong primal foundation. It is a gate from an old world into a new one, continued through Lemuria and held in its old style, to some degree, by what you call the Hopi Indians in your United States. They represent the last fragment of that old world, and the Kachina energy was very strongly connected to it.

Q: Can you tell us more about Kachina energy?

B: Only that they represent a type of extraterrestrial consciousness that, let us say, resides in-between the dimensional barriers that separate one universe from another. They are their own universal energy, and our civilization is only yet beginning to explore and come into contact with many different aspects of their energy.

If you wish us to put it in extremely Earth terms, Kachinas are the extraterrestrial’s extraterrestrial. They are ninety degrees out of phase with all that we understand and share with you as our common universe. They are in a completely different quasi-planar reality. We are, ourselves, just beginning to explore this idea, but they are most enticing!

Q: Is our current rising interest in New Zealand a direct reflection of your current study into Kachina energy?

B: As an offshoot, to some degree, but it is more indicative of the blending of the dolphin consciousness, at this time. It has that higher tonality. For again, many of the Dreamers reside in that area, as many of them also do in your Hawaii and also off your Japan islands. They are, again, of a specific group and represent a certain stepping-stone along your path of self-awareness and self-remembrance...
That is one other thing you can learn from the dolphins – a childlike curiosity about everything. Absolutely everything. Play with them, play with them, play with them as they play with you.

In Hawaii there is a strong, what you may call, magnetic beacon, both around specifically what you call Molokai and also, the crater you call Haleakala. These areas and the shores around them are prime attractants for dolphin consciousness. They are only slightly submerged; again, representing the waiting, on their part, of when they sense within you that you have recognized and awakened to the fact that the rest of infinite creation lies just beneath the surface. They lie just beneath the surface, sometimes laughing to themselves. But only out of joy of the expectancy that they know is about to explode upon you. They are just beneath the surface.

So find, as it has been suggested to you, the dolphin that you are, just beneath the surface of your hu-man-ity. Find the dolphin you are and you will identify as the dolphins they are. In a sense, many of them have already found their hu-man-ness. You are now finding your dolphin-ness.

Many times, in Atlantis, did you share and exchange bodies in reincarnational senses. This is now something that can be possible again in your near future, but first you must learn to remember your friends. They have been remembering you for a very long time, and are most overjoyed that the sounds of their happiness are finally waking you up.

They are singing to you, but not a lullaby that puts you to sleep. They are singing you a song of dawn, a song of awakening; a song of life, love and happiness; a song of eternal joy and ecstasy. You share the same dream; you swim in the same sea. You are of one soul.

Wake up and dream... wake up and dream... (pause)

Dreamer Dolphin Speaks: Feel yourself floating in the sea of energy. Feel yourselves swimming with us. Feel your heart beating with our heart. Feel the same blood pumping in your veins, the same warmth, the same birth. We are born together and we live together! We share the same world together.

Feel our joy. Feel our brotherhood, our sisterhood. Feel our love. Feel the nurturing Earth within yourself. Feel your own playfulness. Break through the shell of your humanity. Be, as you know yourselves to be. Reclaim your birthright. Swim in the energy sea. Swim with us in the same physical dream.

All is a dream... all is a dream. Explore with us. Explore yourselves. Go into yourselves and there you will find us. We swim in your soul, come swim in ours. We love you. We dream you. You dream us. Together we share the same dream.

(Pause)

B: We extend to each and every one of you our unconditional love and energy. Feel the vibration, feel the vitality of the life that beats within you! Live life. Live as you. Live as one – individually and collectively. We thank you for your sharing. We thank you for sharing the dream that together we are forever; pleasant dreams, and an unconditional and loving good day.
AUD: Thank you!

Pacific Energies and Kachinas and Dolphins
Pain & Death
From: Theology Class
11-17-87
San Jose, CA
No. 3

Q: If we are responsible for our own reality, and our reality is some kind of pain: does it end with death? And does your society experience death as we do?

B: Not similarly. We do, as you say, translate from physiological to non-physiological formats, but we do it with our eyes open-consciously-and simply translate our physical form back into energy and continue on, in a more expanded way.

Know (that) the idea of the generation of pain in no way, shape or form means it must culminate in what you call physical death. It can always be transformed, especially now in your transformational life, where you are beginning to be aware of the fact that pain does not have to remain. So the idea is that in our civilization we no longer experience the idea of pain.

Now, the ideas of pain-all pain: mental pain, spiritual pain, emotional pain, physical pain-all forms of what you call pain are, from our perspective, the result of resistance of your natural self. Pain is friction, to put it on a simple terminology. Resisting the natural flow of yourself as an aspect of the Infinite.

And usually this resistance occurs when, having been brought up in the society you have been brought up in, you have been fed, and bought into, definitions of limitation. So that in trying to live out these definitions that are not necessary representative of who you really are, you are going against your grain, so to speak. And going against the grain gives you splinters.

So the idea of going against the grain will stab you and create the idea of pain. In fact, pain is one of the ways that can function as a barometer to let you know when you are attempting to swim upstream. It can be used in a positive manner in that way.

The idea goes hand in hand with the concept that we have discussed with your society many times as follows: Excitement-what you call the physical sensation, or the knowledge, the knowingness, of yourself that is translated as excitement, is your physical translation of the vibratory energy that represents the path you chose to be at that moment of your life.

So when something excites you more that anything else, that excitement is there to tell you three things. First: this is who and what you are. The circumstance and the situation that comes into your life at any given moment that excites you more than any other is letting you know: "this is who you are; act on it."

You see, excitement is the sign that many of you ask for.

"What can I do in life? Why am I here? What is my purpose? What is my mission? Give me a sign!"

"Hey, look over here; here’s a very exciting thing you could be doing!"

"Don’t bother me now; I’m looking for my purpose. I’m too busy searching for my mission in order to have a good time." "Hey, look over here! What about this exciting thing?" "Not right now; I’m looking..." for my mission in life."

But you see, the things that come with excitement are the answers, are the signals, are the signposts; that’s what excitement is. It’s tapping you squarely on the shoulder saying, "this is what you want to be doing right now."

The reason it excites you is because it is aligned with the idea of who you are; that’s what excitement is. The second thing it tells you is because it is who you are; it will be the thing—if you act on it with trust and conviction—it will be the thing that can be the most effortless thing you will ever do, because it is who you are. You are being yourself.

And so of course it will be effortless. The only time you have struggle is when you’re trying to be someone you’re not—again fighting the flow, buying into the definitions of what the other individuals say you ought to be.

The third thing that tells you when a situation comes along that is more exciting than the other is: this is the thing that if you do it, will support you in the most abundant way to allow you to keep doing it in a more expanded, ever spiraling expanding way.

One: excitement tells you it is you. Two: it tells you that because it is you, it will be an effortless creation. Three: it tells you that because it is you and will be an effortless creation, you will be able to attract the abundance you need in whatever form you need.

And understand that abundance is just more than money. What you call on your planet money is one of the valid ways to represent abundance, but it is not the only way. There are many ways. So let us add one more definition.

Abundance: the ability to do what you need to do when you need to do it. Period! That’s all abundance is. Two individuals—one in your terms with more money, one in your terms with less money—if they are both capable of doing what they need to do when they need to do it, they are equally abundant because that’s all that matters to them. And that’s the level they have defined themselves to be. If someone has a more expanded idea of what it is that excites them, then perhaps they need more symbols of abundance to flow into their life to represent what it is they are.

If someone simply has an idea that is sufficient to the symbols of abundance that are already in his or her life, then they will still be able to accomplish it as smoothly, as effortlessly and easily as anyone else.

So the idea, fundamentally, is that any time you feel pain, you are basically ignoring—either because that you have been taught to ignore, or because you do not believe that you can deserve the ease of creation—but you are basically ignoring the thing that really excites you the most.

And when we say, "the thing that excites you the most," We do not mean you have to have, at this particular moment, an idea of the thing that will be the most exciting thing you will ever do in your life. No. Take it a step at a time.

At any given moment, whatever it is at that moment—if you honestly assess all the things you are capable of doing—what ever it is at that moment that is the most exciting thing you could be doing, that you have the capability of doing something about, do it! It will align you with all of the flow of Creation, and life will be effortless.

This is actually what is meant in your society by the term surrendering. You’re not actually giving up your power; You’re actually flowing in complete accord with your power. But because it seems effortless, and because your world is used to thinking in terms of things being under your control if they require an effort, then you don’t think you’re in control when there is no effort.

And so you create this idea that you are giving your power up to a greater force. In a sense, yes; but not really. You’re actually taking your power, owning your responsibility, when your life is effortless. That means you are going with the flow of who you have created yourself to be specifically and what you were created to be generally; an aspect of the Infinite.

Is this making some sense to you? A great deal. So you can always transform pain by finding out within yourself, "what is the definition I have brought into that would create the pain to begin with? What must I believe in order to have this pain reaction?" When you get in touch with what the definition is, rewrite it! And then act like you believe the new definition is now more true than the old one.

And as soon as you do, your life will be representative of the new definition. Because your physical reality is always the product of what you hold to be the strongest truth, the strongest definition. That’s why there really isn’t any "the truth!"

There are only a few fundamentals that could be called the basics of existence that are common for everyone; but there aren’t very many of them. All the specifics are your creation. And the ones that seem similar from one person to another are similar only because you telepathically agree to create them to be similar so you can all play the same game.

But there is no real "the truth!" in specifics terms, against which to measure other truths for their validity. "The" truth is composed of all truths. And all truths are actually real.

Any definition you have at any given moment generates a self-perpetuating, self-fulfilling, self-sustaining, self-fulfilling automatic system of manifestation to support the definition, and make it seem as if for that moment it is the only true thing. Because every reality is real; every perception is a reality.

Your imagination is the gate, the library, to all probable realities. You cannot imagine non-existence. Whatever you imagine is, on some level-somewhere, somehow, somewhen-real. And there are various ones that can be manifest in your particular dimension. Yes, there may be some that are nonetheless real.

So the idea is to get a handle on what are the definitions that have created your experience? And if you find there are definitions you prefer, maintain them.

And if you find there are definitions you don’t prefer, change them. That’s what you have free will for.

Does this help you?

Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you very much! Sharing!
Pain & Suffering

Q: Well, I’m trying to see; but how can death or suffering possibly be good for me? How am I supposed to trust that something good is coming out of all this? It made me think about other people who have a great deal of pain. How can that help us to become better or more advanced?

B: All right. The idea, in general, is to understand that no one is saying you have to have pain. The whole idea, fundamentally, of having pain is to learn that you don’t ever really have to choose pain again. However, the idea must also be looked at from a very high perspective. You must begin to remember that you are an Infinite Eternal Being. What happens in your physical reality is the most temporary of experiences. And very often, a being, a consciousness, as soul, if you wish to call it that, will understand that there is something they wish to experience in life, in physical reality, and they wish to experience it in a specific way to accomplish a certain understanding or level of acceleration.

Now, individuals may realize that they need to balance something out. They may realize that “Well, I could balance this out in small doses, or over several lifetimes, or I can lump it all into one and be done with it.” The idea of experiencing what you as a physical being might perceive as very difficult and deep pain in one lifetime, from that point of view of the soul might really be nothing more than getting your foot stuck under a door, having it heal and be done with it. Do you understand? You have to look at it from the big perspective too, not just from the perspective of the physical reality where things can sometimes seem interminable and not understandable. But from the soul’s point of view, some individuals will want to experience a highly concentrated focus in a certain direction which will then accelerate them that much more quickly in the areas they feel are important to them.

One of the difficulties is that very often many of you, because of the way your reality exists, don’t remember that you made that choice for that reason. So you sit there and question why you are suffering. But in the overall scheme of the Oversoul’s perspective of the "you" you will be once you become non-physical again, you will remember at that moment why you chose that experience, and you will sometimes then be given the opportunity in the overview to understand all the good that may have been accomplished.

Also remember that sometimes an individual will choose to undergo that kind of experience in life not from need of their own balance, but so that all individuals that come in contact with them will learn what they need to learn in their life. Understand? A very advanced, evolved and unconditionally loving being will sometimes realize that this is something they are willing to do if other people need to see something in them in order to learn a lesson that they need to learn in life. These individuals will accept the idea of a lifetime of pain or momentary pain so that they can assist other beings to evolve and elevate themselves as well.

Q: Would this also apply if some souls come back for a very short time, such as three months or so, to teach others?

B: Very often, yes. Now, the idea mentioned earlier of "the foot getting stuck in the door," to some degree, has an analogy to this. In the first example that we gave, the idea may have been that you decided that there are certain directions you wish to go in and you may have realized that there might be more than one way to go about it. You could have recognized, "Well, the belief systems that I have ingrained in me right now, for me to go through this particular area, may require another five years. I don’t prefer that. Therefore, what would it take to bring my focus and my attention to a certain point right now that will point me in a certain direction, where I will then pass through certain ideas and integrate certain notions and belief systems within me in a much shorter period of time.”

"Well, I know that is one way I could do it. I could cause myself to have pain in this one moment of time and that will create the kind of focus that I need. Yes, I could do it in other ways, but this appears to be one of the fastest ways I actually could do it. Now, I know I don’t have to prefer to choose the pain, but I understand it will only be temporary. And the temporary amount of pain I will feel will more than make up for what it is I will learn by having done it that way. So I decide; I will choose to experience that because it will be done and over with. And that will be it, I won’t have to experience that ever again.”

You may have decided to choose it for that reason.
The point is, your mind will not always know the specifics, the “why” of the many things you are choosing in life. The way you help yourself to have faith in that choice is to understand that it is an opportunity to extract a positive reality or understanding from that life experience.

See the positive effects ultimately in your life, even if your mind never really understands exactly how the arrangement or orchestration occurred, nor for what reason. At the same time, on the other hand, the idea of choosing that for yourself can also be an indication that you in fact might have a certain kind of belief systems or habit patterns or something within you that you don’t prefer to have within you. You create an experience to show yourself that you are a little bit out of balance here or there, or doing something in a way that you don’t really prefer to, and so you draw immediate attention to it in a way you are absolutely guarantee not to ignore. Sometimes that is called “pain.”

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Paradox and Dolphins

Q: I have one here.
B: All right.
Q: I wanted some clarity on an apparent paradox – a philosophical paradox...
B: Philosophical paradox! All right.
Q: Now, I’m very, very familiar with all the writings of Jane Roberts and the Sethian teachings, and I quite believe all this, but I perceive a paradox in the difference between everything being in a constant state of becoming...
B: Yes.
Q: ...as Seth teaches...
B: And everything already existing.
Q: And everything already existing. Does everything, in all its possibilities, already exist? And does our focus simply change?
B: Yes.
Q: Then how can there be any becoming?
B: Do recognize that the term becoming is mostly conducive to your third density point of view, because you think of a beginning and a middle and an end – and you think of things becoming. But there is also true creation. When you realize that thoughts are things, then any new perspective or point of view is also the act of becoming – even though the perspective is about something that already exists. Does that make any sense?
Q: Yes.
B: So any perspective that you generate, that may be in your terms a new perspective, a new way of looking at something that already exists, is – in and of itself – also a new creation. We do understand that it does translate as a seeming paradox in your reality.

But understand that paradox, when you are dealing with paradox, then that’s when you know you are dealing with the higher levels of reality. For you know that if you can perceive a conflict or dichotomy – since it is your perception that there is a polarity – you know that both sides stem from you and, somewhere within, must coexist, must be blended as one thing.

When you see a paradox, it is simply, let us say, a translation difficulty into third density terms. But everything is the same one thing manifesting in all the multidimensional, simultaneous ways that it can, at the same time, in different ways. Does this make any sense?
Q: Oh, yes. It all makes sense; that is the problem.
B: ‘Tis not a problem, you can utilize...
Q: No, it’s not a problem.
B: You can utilize it as a tool.
Q: Yes.
B: Simply assume that the universe and Infinite Creation has the label “Infinite Creation” because all things are possible, even paradox. And on one level, it is not a paradox, simply because it is accepted for what it is. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Enjoy it. If it makes you laugh, use it that way. Paradox is getting in touch with the center of yourself.
You.
(Other: We’re close to closing time.)
Closing time! You are very close to opening time. Thank you. So at this timing, therefore, we will respect your schedules. And in this sense, we will extend to each and every one of you our appreciation…yes?
Q: One more question.
B: One more question.
Q: Yes, about dolphins being aliens.
B: Dolphins being aliens. Well, to us they are, since they are on your planet and not on ours. But they are the co-sentient species on your planet. And in this way, when you allow yourselves to begin to utilize the co-interaction with them as your “practice” in interacting with other alien – if you will – civilizations, then you will react and interact with us as one whole world.
For you have the wonderful gift of having two sentient species upon your planet. In a sense, they have just as many incarnational connections, in many different ways, as you do. And in that sense, they are the same type of soul that you are. So in that sense, since none of you are original to the planet, neither are any of them. And in that sense, they are just as alien as you are.
Many of you interacted in the times of Atlantis. Many of you incarnated as each other. This is something that has not gone on recently simply because the humans have locked themselves into a particular cycle. But it is something that may occur again, when you loosen up.
Q: Are they conscious of having been human?
B: Some of them; not all of them, for many of them are also locked into their own cycle at this time. But they do have a broad memory of your familial connections; and that is why they are very eager to interact with you.
Q: Will we ever be able to understand their language, as they seem to be able to understand ours?
B: Yes. But it will be mostly an emotional understanding. Even though you can have an analytical understanding of the sounds they make, you will find that perhaps the quickest understanding will come through emotional attachment, because true telepathy is emotionally activated. When you love unconditionally, then you know what that person is all about. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you for your sharing! Thank you for your willingness to allow us to share with you our unconditional love, and our belief in the idea that we co-create together.

We would simply, once again, remind you: give yourself permission to wake up and dream – for physical reality is but what you dream it to be. You are living a dream right now; and dream reality is real. Create the dream you desire. Follow your excitement; it will never lead you astray.

We thank you for allowing us to experience this interaction. We bid you a fond and unconditionally loving and exciting dream life and life dream. Good day.
AUD: Thank you. Thank you.
B: Good night.

Paradox and Dolphins
Paradox

B: All right, I'll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
B: How's the dream going?
B: Yes. Reactive. Let us begin with an interaction based on the idea – and this is also the title, if you wish, for tonight, "Paradox." All right?
AUD: All right.
B: The idea, once again, that we have illuminated and outlined, to some degree, within many of the interactions we have had with you from time to time is that when you find yourself coming across the expression in your lives, you call, paradox, then you know you are dealing with the higher consciousness more directly. For you will find that the higher consciousness has a tendency to be broken down into seemingly, seemingly, diametrically polarized occurrences in physiological reality. Therefore, when you begin in your expansion, in your so-called search for your spirituality, to come across more and more and more understandings of more and more situations that seem to be paradoxical, expressing what you call dichotomy or polarity, then you know you are standing firmly and squarely at the center of those two seemingly opposite events. And that means that they both come from you; they are both projected from you.
You standing at the center, are the very example and the very indication that both of those things – in coming from you because you have the ability to see what appears to be both sides – means that within you they are blended, they are one concept. They are one event; they are one idea; they are one thing. Within that blending there is no dichotomy. Polarity, paradox are expressions of the manifestation of the unbroken wholeness of your higher consciousness in physical reality – because, by definition, physical reality is that which separates, so that you can see the components, so to speak, of which the higher homogenous wholeness is created.
Thus individuals for many tens of thousands of years in your society have gone about living their lives. And according to what they have bought into, in terms of the belief of what that life should be, many of them will find no paradox occurring so much in their lives. Or if it does, they will have a tendency, or have had a tendency to ignore it because it does not fit into what they have been taught is the life you are, quote/unquote, supposed to live, the way things are, quote/unquote, supposed to be.
Now that you are expanding in your awareness, now that you know that there is no one way, but that each and every one of you is your own path toward the understanding of the Infinite Creation, you are going to run into more and more of the idea of paradox. And you are going to see it not only expressed in the daily events in each individual life, but in mass events – as you find different, quote/unquote, factions within your society becoming more and more polarized within their estimation as to how to relate to the reality around them.

At this time there are three – once again a triad – three basic groupings of mass consciousness upon your planet that we perceive. The dynamic interactions of these three are what is spurring you forward, whether at times it may seem like it or not, into the fourth density higher consciousness reality. It is the interaction and the momentum created by this interaction playing off of one another that is allowing you to examine all the different facets of the paths you have lived for many thousands of lives, many thousands of years.

And now (this is) allowing you to be capable of integrating these reflections you are getting from each other so that you can come to a clear and conscious understanding of the fact that all that seems to be paradoxical within life is, in fact, blended and contained within the one higher consciousness that you are. The three basic divisions, shall we say, that now exist upon your planet are individuals – now, before we begin, in no way is any of the following definitions meant in any way to indicate that something is better or worse than anything else. You follow me?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

B: These are simply distinctions, as we perceive the conglomerate energy of your society. And they are in their own right completely and totally valid – for each is playing its part in the spurring of the momentum towards fourth density. One will be – and again these definitions are very general, very general – one will be those that generally – generally – recognize themselves to be the creators of their reality, what you may generally lump, as you say, under the term metaphysicians, so to speak. This is a very loose terminology.

One will be the idea of an individual following in any way in accordance with what you would call religious aspects, the individuals, who in your terms, follow a schematic they believe to have been laid down by one or more facets or reflections of the Infinite Creator. The third will be what you generally term the scientific approach, and into this will also fall any sociological structure that is so based, including what you refer to as politics.

These three ideas are playing off each other and allowing there to be the foundations of the three aspects of physicality, mentality, emotionality and the spirituality in life.

The idea is to recognize that many paradoxes, many polarizations will continue to increase between these three factions for a time, although you will find that there are, as always, hints and clues as to where each and every one of these three blend with the other two. You are beginning to see that ideas that have for a long time been held to be religious or metaphysical are cropping up in science. Ideas that have for a long time been held to be completely scientific are cropping up in religion and metaphysics. And ideas that have been long held to be simply religious can also be shared by the other two ideas.

They are now beginning to form the foundations for the blending of the three, but at first, primarily for one reason, they will continue to separate a little further, gaining dynamic tension for a while. This dynamic tension is building up for the purpose of creating there to be a very strong springboard, once the dynamic tension is snapped, so that you will go through the doorway into fourth density in a very dynamically propelled fashion.

But you are beginning to recognize that there are underlying foundations into which each and every one of those three aspects all have a degree of commonality. They are, of course, simply different aspects of the same one thing, but your society does not realize this yet.

The one reason, the primary reason, that this is not realized in your society is simply because of definitions. That is it. Semantics; that is it: the idea of the definitions of what you think you believe. For you will find that one faction will say, "Well, that other faction or this other faction – they say this and this. And therefore, I do not agree with them, and I will fight them to the death." However, recognize that all that is being done is that what is being said by one faction is simply interpreted by the other factions in their own terminology. And according to only what they understand, or what definitions they have applied to those particular aspects of life that will determine how they choose to understand what another faction is saying.

Therefore, still quite often you will find that one faction, while they may think they understand what another faction means, very often will only understand what they themselves mean by their definition, the definition they have been taught to believe about what another faction means, and not really what the other faction means at all.

This is why we have discussed with you of late the idea – not that you have to analyze this into oblivion – but the idea of being very concise and very clear in your communications with any other individuals in your society about what it is you believe. For you can then provide for them the clearest and concisest definition of how it is you actually mean, what symbols you are using. For meaning, once again, will vary from individual to individual, and the biggest assumption on your planet is that what one thing means to another individual is the same for everyone. And this is nowhere near the idea. For do not forget, no symbol comes with built-in meaning; they are all blank. You fill in the meaning, the meaning that has relevance and significance to you. Your interpretation is what you experience of life.

The idea therefore, fundamentally, of the expression of the paradox will be, first and foremost in the creation of a blending, in recognizing, as we have shared, that the paradox of what an individual may say to you: "There is only one truth." All right, there is only one truth, and the paradox is that that one truth is (this), all truths are true. That is the paradox.

So you see, it is not something that has to be a conflict, something that has to be contradictory, in that sense. Each and every faction simply has their own way of saying it for themselves, they know what they mean in their own relative point of view. But it is still all the same information because it is all the same universe. It is simply that as a co-creator with the Infinite Creator, you are creating your version, your interpretation of the one creation, and that is how you create more creation – even though everything already exists. There’s another paradox. You follow me?

AUD: Yes. Yes.
Q: Allow yourselves, therefore, as these things crop up in your society, to not necessarily have to fall into the idea of battling these other individuals to stand up for what you know to be true. But recognize that if you truly do believe what you say you believe, then simply continue to live your life in that manner. And if you change your mind, change your mind. Ultimately it does not matter. You follow me?
AUD: Yes.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Paradox

Question: As we are shifting, and as the shift continues, those persons who choose, I guess generally, a negative Earth or a negative set of beliefs...

Bashar: Yes?

Q: ...will be on their own Earth?

B: In a sense, yes.

Q: In a sense, and those who choose positive will be on, sort of, a positive Earth, in a sense?

B: Yes, yes.

Q: Will those who ... will a person from the negative and the positive, so to speak, actually be able to see each other?

B: After a certain level of threshold vibration, no, once you go strongly into fourth density, no. Right now, you are still generally within the overall definition of the transition that will still allow some interaction between all those worlds. Once those who finally crystallize, ride the wave more into fourth density, go with it, they may be, to some degree, aware of the more third density beings, because it is a higher state of being. But, generally speaking, you will no longer find yourselves really capable of interacting or even really perceiving each other. They will simply no longer be in your life; you won’t necessarily know where they went, you will just no longer interact. The first example of this so called "splitting," will literally be that people simply will move out of your life and you simply will not interact with them, and their schedule and your schedule will simply never coincide. But eventually you will actually, really be in two different vibrations that will be, in a sense, invisible to each other.
Q: I understand that we all have infinite versions of ourselves.
B: Yes, your talking about the concept of parallel realities?
Q: Yes.
B: Yes.
Q: And, is each one of these selves, does each one have a autonomous, separate...
B: Yes, that is the nature of creation-that every point in creation sees itself as the center point of creation.
Q: Is there any communication between those selves?
B: Yes, many times you do not recognize the communication, sometimes it is experienced as bleed through inspiration and imaginations and things that suddenly dawn on you, but sometimes these things are actual bleed through from others parallel selves having certain experiences, some of which may simply strike you as interesting to try in your own reality, and vice versa.
Q: Is the degree to which we have such a communication any different than the communication you would have with other past lives?
B: In the general context no. It is all simply based on resonance identification and what piece of information has the frequency that is most germane for the frequency you are operating on at any particular moment.
Q: When you speak of frequency vibration.
B: Yes, vibration.
Q: What is vibrating?
B: What is vibrating? A number of different things, but you can simply, right now, sum it up as your collective energy. You have a particular signature collective vibration and that is what magnetizes anything of similar frequency to you and is translated as information or experience.
Q: But the energy that’s vibrating is vibrating in what sense?
B: In relation to everything else, for that is the only way that there can be a vibration, is that, it has to be in relation to anything else, otherwise if there is nothing to relate to you would not know that there is a vibration, and there would not be. A vibration is simply a motion, an oscillation in relation to everything else. Does that make sense?
Q: No, I mean I know what a vibration is, and a period, and an oscillation I’m just not sure how that applies to the general concept of a energy.
B: Well again as a simplistic analogy, look at what you would call your visible spectrum of light. You understand that it’s all the same basic type of electronic energy but that green is a different frequency of that electromagnetic energy than red.

Q: Right.

B: Well similarly, different parallel realities are all of a particular kind of energy expression or consciousness, but it is different because it is vibrating at a different pitch. That’s why you don’t perceive it because it is vibrating at a pitch that is simply not the pitch you are vibrating at and therefore whatever is not vibrating at your pitch is invisible to you, incapable of being processes and experienced by you until you come into more direct contact with it’s particular frequency. Did that make any sense?

Q: Well it’s not getting to the question that I have about exactly what is vibrating, what the period is, but it doesn’t matter right now....

B: Well there are different periods, ultimately it is simply all consciousness, but consciousness expresses itself in different dimensional realities domains as different types of energy. You could say it is simply light, if you want to put it that way, since that is one of the first manifestations of consciousness in physiological reality, and sense we are talking about the idea of different parallel physiological worlds then you can simply say what is vibrating is Light at different pitches, different frequencies, different vectors.

Q: Okay, I’d like to ask you more about the concept of the bleed through that we get from past lives and other selves. If there ’s a bleed through that is not like creative energy, but there is another self or a past life that’s in jeopardy or is in fear, how do we deal with that kind of energy—to protect ourselves or...?

B: It is...well, why do you first of all define that you must be protected? Because that in and of itself begets a particular frequency and the need for protection actually functions as a magnet to attract that which you are afraid you need protection from. So the idea, first of all, is not to think you need protection from it because that has the, in fact, opposite effect. Do you follow that?

Q: I do and I didn’t really mean protection so much as healing.

B: All right, well again there are any number of ways you can interact with that energy and sometimes when you may, for example, experience a moment in your life where you may be, as you would say, under duress and all of a sudden perhaps, for some reason, you don’t know why, you don’t know how, you don’t know where it comes from you simply find yourself suddenly feeling love, support or some kind of assurance that everything will be all right, that in fact may actually be coming from another parallel self-future, past alternative reality doesn’t matter what the label is, that in fact may be coming from another aspect of the total self that is, in a sense, aware of the fact that other aspects may need assistance, and you thus then can pull yourself up by your own bootstrap’s. You follow?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: So, you perform that function for other parallel reality selves, and other parallel reality selves, just to speak linearly, have performed that function for you, but it’s all you of the greater sense, on the larger level
Q: Right, you said that I had a parallel reality self that was involved with the Association and in the near future you might tell me more, describe more of the involvement, can you do that now?
B: The involvement is as what you would call a type of functionary, in the sense of cataloging and amassing information about a variety of different kinds of interactions that go on between various kinds of civilizations for the purpose of allowing other individuals to know, to glean, to extract like a library from this concoction of information the subtleties and nuances that are important to understand with regard to conducting those interactions fluidly. Did that make sense to you?
Q: Yes it does.
B: Does that help you then?
Q: It does, thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Parallel Time-tracks and The Grandfather Paradox

Q: Is there ever a stage that a person reaches where they can enter a time frame at will?
B: Yes. Recognize that, in a sense, that is what we do when we visit your world in our spacecraft. For in this way, we are transcending dimensionality – and all travel in space is travel in time.

Q: Okay. If I wanted to go back and look at the dinosaurs...
B: Yes. Have a good time. (AUD: laughter)

Q: Is it a question of waiting until I am evolved enough, so that I can re-enter that period and I can see it as graphically as I see this right now?
B: Well, in a sense. But it may also be, not so much the idea of needing to evolve, but simply reaching a point in your timing where that will serve some purpose in the life you chose to live now. And do recognize that if you have conceived of the idea, and it is something that excites you, that, in and of itself, might be an indication that now is the timing. So simply avail yourself of whatever methodology your imagination comes up with that you think would be an exciting way to perhaps, quote/unquote, achieve that; and simply play with it as often as you care to. Perhaps, one of those times, you will surprise yourself.

Q: If a person dies and is between lives, are they more able to access...
B: Yes, in that sense, as you mean it, yes. There is automatic cognition of the entire time frame. You can perceive any portion of the entire simultaneous, interactive idea.

Q: Wow. And you could time-travel too, to that point in our history in your spacecraft, could you not?
B: Oh, yes, and have. But recognize, also, a subtle distinction in this idea: let us say, in your particular frequency band time frame, that at a particular date in your history we were not there, but we decide to go there. Now, in a sense, we may be perceiving all of the ideas that are necessary for us to perceive, to allow us to feel that we have had the experience as validly as we need to; but it is not that we are exactly there – where we weren’t. We are in a slightly paralyzed, “parallel-ized,” parallel, idea.

Q: Because your existence there changes the experiment.
B: Yes. So it is not exactly the same place and time, but it is enough of a parallel to not so much make a difference.

Q: Okay, so you’re saying that it wouldn’t change our reality, as we perceive it.
B: Correct. As you have utilized in your analogy that we have discussed before, what you call your “Grandfather Paradox” in time-travel. Which is simply that you posed the question of the idea of, let us say, going back in time, and doing something that causes the physiological death perhaps of your parents or your grandparents before you have an opportunity to even be born.

Now, in this way, you say, “Well, what does that mean? Well, I cease to exist, what will happen?” But recognize that in your time frame that is not what happened. Therefore, any such change that occurs is not truly exactly the product of your time frame, and what you are doing is projecting yourself into a parallel existence, and you are a completely new factor in that existence, unto itself. Isolated to that time frame. You are not exactly the child that would have been born to that person, had you lived. You are someone from another time frame.

Q: By making a minimum of changes, you access a parallel dimension that’s very, very close.
B: Yes. Close enough for the purposes.

Q: Yeah. Theoretically, you could come down and pick one of us up and take us back to that time couldn’t you?
B: Yes.

Q: Must make a date some time in the future and do that. (Laughing)
B: Maybe you will meet us there. (AUD: laughter)
Q: Thanks.
B: Thank you.
Parallel Versions of Atlantis

Q: A while ago I asked you a question. I said, “to what degree am I talking to myself, when I talk to you?”
B: One hundred per cent.
Q: You said one hundred percent, yeah. Do you have any judgment? No, you couldn’t have any judgment.
B: Let me see... we could if we wanted to.
Q: Do you consider that the accuracy of the statements that you are making...
B: We do not deal in accuracy; we deal in validity.
Q: Validity.
B: Not the same thing.
Q: Right. Understood. Do you feel that the validity of your statements are more valid than mine?
B: For me or for you?
Q: As an example, if I were to make a statement regarding Atlantis, and you make a statement regarding Atlantis...
B: Yes?
Q: Is there a consideration that yours is more valid, has more validity?
B: Accuracy is a judgment that there must be one truth, and measure everything against it. And there is no “one truth.” There is mass conscious experience, yes, and there are many truths within it. “The” truth is composed of all truths.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Does that clarify the idea?
Q: To some degree.
B: It goes along with the understanding that when we say you are your collectedly total whole universe unto yourself, we mean it literally. You can have experienced, what you deign to have experienced, within your own experience of the idea of Atlantis; and for you in your reality, that was your experience – until you decide to change it.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Understand, again, you are creating your past and your future from your present. And when you change the idea of yourself in the moment, everything changes. Your entire universe: all of its past; all of its future. Do you follow me?
Q: Instantaneously create that.
B: In other words, recognize there are parallel realities in which the idea of Atlantis did not destroy itself.
Q: Mhmm.
B: And you could just as likely say, “well, my perception is that Atlantis didn’t destroy itself.” And I would just as easily say, “you are right.”
Q: In my perception.
B: In your reality.
Q: In your reality it did destroy itself.
B: In the reality that we share with the idea of co-creating the reality you have decided to share with us, it did.
Q: I understand.
B: However, recognize that both are real. There is an Atlantis that did not destroy itself; and there is an Atlantis that did. And both are real. It is not this or that. It is this and that. “The” truth is composed of all truths: this and that. And the one that is yours is the one you experience, plain and simple.
Q: Right. The truth will not…we’re not going to travel to your planet; we’re going to evolve to the ability to create an experience…
B: It is not impossible to travel to our planet; that is also a truth.
Q: Mhmm. But aren’t you presenting – or we are presenting to ourselves – an invitation to create the reality of which you speak?
B: Yes. To shift yourself to the reality that contains that, if that is what you need.
Q: Okay. And the physical – we’re not going to meet physically – or this concept that we will not meet physically…
B: When you say “we,” recognize that the you that is saying that is not the you that might meet us.
Q: I understand.
B: Therefore, you cannot really make that statement.
Q: Well, I can make the statement. I made it. But I…
B: We mean in the sense that it is true for you right now, that the you, you are now is not meeting us.
Q: Yes.
B: But if, so to speak, you meet us, it is not the same you.
Q: Of course.
B: Therefore, it is not the you, you are now that will meet us. Even if you do meet us, it will be another you.
Q: I understand.
B: Thank you.
Q: What is it – I don’t like to use the word judgment, but you’re saying, when we consider ourselves equal to you…
B: Yeees?
Q: Then we will meet physically.
B: Yes. Simply: when you become equal to the vibration of the reality that is defined by us meeting physically, that is the reality you will experience. We are projecting our reality to be that reality, that vibration. In a sense, we are already meeting you – the you that you will be when we meet you.
Q: Right. Our chosen path is to develop more of the spiritual awareness of ourselves…
B: And choose what reality you wish to experience to fulfill the idea of what you are.
Q: Outside of that, validation of the physical is senior to our subjective viewpoint.
B: Everything is your subjective viewpoint.
Q: Okay, but that’s what we’re coming to.
B: Understood.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
Q2: Where is the Atlantis that did not destroy itself?
B: In parallel realities. Do you understand the concept?
Q: I understand the concept, but I can’t do anything with it.
B: All right. Then that is doing something with it, that you need to do.
Q3: What are you doing with your hands when you’re listening and talking?
B: Nothing...I, in my physical form, am perfectly still.
Q: What do you do with the channel’s hands?
B: I am not doing anything with them. The reaction that you may see, as you exemplify the idea, is simply, let us say, in increasing the pulsation of my mentality so that the physiological body, by definition, must translate the extra energy in some way, shape and form, if it cannot be translated vocally.
Q: Mhmm. I see.
B: Does that answer your question?
Q: Yes it does. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
PARANOIA TEST 12 Sept 97

Q: Last night on Art Bell a...
B: Art Bell, all right understood.
Q: OK. He was knock off the Air. Somebody had called in and said an inner-dimensional being or an inter-dimensional race that had been working with Area 51 was planning on knocking out our major population centers. The guy sounded very paranoid to me–Robert had recorded the tape.
B: Yes.
And then, after all that, Art Bell supposedly lost 50 satellite earth links.
B: I see.
Q: Do you, can you put any meaning to this or does this have anything ... .
B: I will give you one spin and one spin only.
Q: OK.
B: Long Pause: Each unto what they belief most strongly. An opportunity was given, as you say, what you call fear and or paranoia was expressed. And opportunity was given to see whether or not the individual wanted to continue along those lines, when and if, the subject of the paranoia came to pass. In other words, I’ll put it to you this way, many individuals on your planet get a thrill out of crying wolf. It is very curious to see what they do, when they actually encounter one? And if from that point forward they wish to continue that behavior, when they understand what crying wolf really means in terms of the vibration of creating that reality. So that individual and other individuals listening in, were given a opportunity to see whether or not they wanted to continue to buy into that frequency by being given a taste of what that frequency brings about. Do you understand this?
Q: Yes
B: So I will you tell you that many individuals changed their mind—immediately. Do you follow?
Q: Yes
B: Not all, some of them went even further in the other direction. In other words an opportunity happened for increased polarization, many beings were happy to accommodate that shift. Do you follow that?
Q: Yes
B: So, it is all about self-fulfilling prophecy now. Pay attention to what you wish for—you will get it, you will get it, not you may get it. You will get it. it.
Area 51 ex-employee calls into Art Bell’s Show
On September 11, 1997 while Art had planned an exciting evening of taking calls from Area 51 employees, little did he know that the cosmos had more instore that night. (We will have all of the Area 51 calls posted on the Sound Clips page soon.)
Midway through the program, during a pretty interesting call, the radio program abruptly went off the air. First it was thought that the content of the callers message, may have caused some powers that be, to pull the plug! But as you are soon to find out, it was the GE Americom satellite going out of "Earth Lock."
These clips are from the C-Band Satellite feed. Since that feed itself is fed from the KU band feed from the network, you will hear the network feed at the bottom of the hour start failing, then later into the program, Art’s signal drops out. We present the entire episode here in a Real-Audio, with a transcript of the call and a chronology of events.
Chronology
We pick up the network feed at the bottom of the hour approx at 12:30 PDT. This Real Audio clip runs 30 minutes.

Here is the elapsed timeline of this clip:
0:00 - Art breaks at the bottom of the hour
2:30 - First network feed glitch starts
2:47 - 3:36 More signals breaks of the network signal
6:00 - Art comes back from break (all clear)
12:47 - Art takes the Area 51 caller on the air
Read along with this transcript, courtesy of Wes Thomas.
Art: On my Area 51 line, you’re on the air, hello.
Male caller: Hello, Art?
Art: Yes
Caller [sounds frightened]: I don’t have a whole lot of time.
Art: Well, look, let’s begin by finding out if you’re using this line properly or not.
Caller: OK, in Area 51?
Art: Yes. Are you an employee or are you now?
Caller: I’m a former employee. I, I was let go on a medical discharge about a week ago and, and... [choke] I kind of been running across the country. Damn, I don’t know where to start, they’re, they’re gonna, they’ll triangulate on this position really soon.
Art: So you can’t spend a lot of time on the phone, so give us something quick.
Caller [voice breaking up with apparent suppressed crying]: OK, um, um, OK, what we’re thinking of as aliens, Art, they’re extradimensional beings, that, an earlier precursor of the space program they made contact with. They are not what they claim to be. They’ve infiltrated a lot of aspects of, of, of the military establishment, particularly the Area 51.
The disasters that are coming, they, the military, I’m sorry, the government knows about them. And there’s a lot of safe areas in this world that they could begin moving the population to now, Art.
Art: So they’re not doing, not doing anything.
Caller: They are not. They want those major population centers wiped out so that the few that are left will be more easily controllable...."
Art [fragment]: ...discharged...
Caller [sobbing, then fragment]: I say we g ....
Continuing with the timeline of the sound clip:
13:00 - First glitch occurs
14:30 - 14:55 More signal breakups
14:55 - Signal dead! Art’s signal gone 15:20 - Network feed is still up, so music started 16:40 - Network plays
taped program of Mark
Furman interview
18:00 - Network feed starts to drop out now on C-band link
19:55 - Network feed to
C-band is dead
20:55 - Network signal starts returning
26:50 - Art is back on Land-Line to Network
26:50 - Network link to C-band still bad
At this point, Art and the network are telephone land-line linked to each other and the network is LL linked to the digital uplink satellite.
So all the affiliates are receiving the program fine (through the digital system), however the KU to C-Band feed is still choppy and so my personal signal and the signal that AudioNet receives is still intermittent. Here is a sound clip of that portion of the program.

After the top of the hour break, Art gets Toni Howell from the network on the air to explain what has happened. By now the "event" is over and all signals are back to normal. Art’s radio network engineer reports that the network’s communication satellite lost 50 channels (including Art’s feed) at that moment, possibly due to a "lost earth sensor" (so it no longer pointed to the earth station).
Toni explains the phone call she had with GE Americom in this RA clip.

Remember, even though they thought the network signal was working, (as it was for the digital feed to the affiliates), the KU signal from New Jersey to Denver, which feeds the C-Band signal, was having signal problems along with Art. It is interesting to note, that each signal dropped out at different times. While Art’s signal was OK, the network was not, and while the network was working, Art’s signal alone dropped out. So it took awhile to figure out what had happened. Different channels on the satellite dropped out at different times.

Later in the program, a new caller asked: "What happened during that one minute of the Area 51 employee call, that we didn’t get to hear?" Art just happened to have a witness in the studio that night. A reporter from Penthouse Magazine was there doing a story on Art. So when asked, Art puts the reporter on the headset and has him answer a few questions about the call. Here is that segment.

Well, that’s about it. If we get the official story from GE Americom, we’ll post it here. This program will be repeated this weekend, and as I stated above, I will post all the calls that did make it on the air, to the sound clips page in a few days.

MJ-12 Strategy: Military Development of Anti-Alien Weaponry

Military - Develop Anti-Alien Weapons that can destroy their spacecraft, and as importantly, destroy their underground bases which the secret U.S. government originally helped the aliens to build. The positive benevolent alien’s are not permitted by their own laws to help us by giving us defensive weapons against the malevolents.

The SDI cover program and other programs are in progress and it is believed that some weapons have been developed, but not the critical weapon that can destroy the underground alien bases. Also develop escape alternatives for a select group of humanity in case the malevolent aliens are successful in their strategy.

Also develop contingency plans for implementing martial law as a means to effect damage control BEFORE the aliens actually make mass colonization efforts obvious. That way, the media can be completely controlled and free speech can be stopped from making the whole truth available to most people.
Past – Present – Future

Q: So, in fact, the past, present and future are equal in significance then.

B: They are also equally right now.

Q: Yes. So I’m interested in going way back into my past.

B: Why?
Q: To understand.

B: You cannot.
Q: To know.

B: You are only right here and right now. You cannot go into your past.

Q: Not go. Integrating all…

B: Why do you feel it is not integrated?

Q: I do feel it’s integrated and…

B: Are you sure?

Q: And sometimes I don’t…

B: All right. Why do you feel that you wish to become in touch with ideas that you are now creating from your present, to be in your past?

Q: When you ask the question like that… ha ha.

B: All right, very good. Understand you have a little bit of a block with that idea. Now understand the reason: understand that as you perceive the need, as you create the need to understand your present self in terms of viewing your past, you are creating, right now, from your present self, all those ideas and projecting them into your past. So that you remove them from your present in a way that you find acceptable to view – still allowing yourself to be comfortable with the idea that you may discover something in your past that will lend insight into that desire of the reality you really wish your present to be, but are not yet quite willing to allow.

Q: I am actually very willing…

B: All right, then understand that you are creating a little bit of the idea that without that idea projected away from your present and into your past, you will not be complete as you are. You follow me?

Q: You’re saying it; I’m not. I…

B: Do you follow me?

Q: I do follow you.

B: Understand that everything that you are is right here with you, right now. Now, I am not saying there is anything wrong with the idea of experimenting with many different ideas of yourself within the idea you call the past, and understanding yourself in that way. Simply understand that you have the ability right now to simply know the entire effect of yourself, and to know that that entire effect is complete in and of itself.

If you truly believe that discovering that idea of yourself in the past will allow you to be what you wish to be in the future, understand simply that you are creating a scenario for yourself to discover yourself, within that purposeful limitation that you have created of your viewpoint, by creating the idea of time. So that you may experience yourself in an acceptable way that can be absorbed into your present. And so allow yourself to identify with the future – right here and right now – that you want to create for yourself.

Understand also, that as long as you allow any idea that you wish to be, right here and right now, to exist in the future, that is also where it will stay – in the future. Just as any idea of yourself in the past will stay in the past, and not be allowed to integrate within your overall idea of yourself in the present. Therefore, explore all you want. But understand that it will always lead you back to the understanding that you have that right now. Now, what do you wish to explore?

Q: The very beginning of all universes…
B: What beginning? All That Is is. And at every point in time, as time was created within All That Is, it was always possible, and is always possible, and always will be possible, to simply say that All That Is is.

Q: All right. Okay.

B: Now, what do you feel about the idea expressed in your terminology as a beginning? What do...(Tape change; words missing)...focused so that you will be focused on one idea at a time. That does not mean you cannot simply know within you that you have the effect of all the portions of yourself operating simultaneously – to reinforce each and every one of those limited focuses that you experience at any one time. And as such, you do not have to worry about losing anything. And when you allow yourself to know that that idea and that effect are always equal to you – no matter what you allow yourself to experience, no matter what limitation of focus you create for yourself – you will always find yourself re-emerging from that limitation with a broader sense of understanding of a more integrated version of you.

And as such, you will always allow, therefore, the momentum of yourself to always go forward, in terms of time, as you know it to exist. And you would increase the momentum by simply allowing. Realize you do not have to make anything happen. You have to make something stay the same.

Q: Right.

B: That is why you do not have to make anything happen, but allow it to happen. You have to make something stay the same.

Q: Uh huh.

B: And that is the creation, through your judgment, of what you term to be a problem, which is simply an idea you will not allow to change shape.

Q: Resisting.

B: In a sense, but again do not judge yourself even in the resistance. You will be compounding your artificiality. Understand that if you have created the idea, you created it for a purpose. Concur with the idea of the exploration of yourself within this dimensionality, and as such, you do not judge those particular viewpoints of yourself and understand that they served a purpose. Then they will also be allowed to change, and you will always move.
Q: Thank you very much.

B: No. Thank you. Once again, understand that within the idea of expressing a question, you may now understand that that too has been of service to you within the maintenance of the idea of the separation from the knowledge from yourself. But now, simply understand that if you can ask the question, you have already made the change. Otherwise you would not even perceive there is a question to ask. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.
B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you!

Past – Present - Future
Q: But, isn’t their (the Grey’s) initial agenda creating you? Isn’t that a major part of what is going on?

B: In some senses, yes, but there are many different factions involved and many different kinds of things being done within the agenda that simply have nothing to do with his (Alpha Deyo ... a rebel reptilian) resonance. Thus, it isn’t necessary that you must look at this in the same way that this will play out politically on your planet. There is no punishment involved here. There is simply the idea of resistance and the attempt to turn oneself more towards the vibration that one deems to be true for oneself. Thus, the assistance that is being given is simply helping to solidify that reality for the being.

Q: Just as the Greys can’t join the Association, by his turning towards you more he’s able to reach that frequency?

B: In some senses, yes. And now there’s another thing also for you to understand ... pay attention ... again, as we give this to you, to some degree what we are telling you, from one slice, is linear. But do not assume that what we are about to tell you is the ONLY thing that is going on. If you assume that what we are about to tell you is the only thing that is going on and the absolute end all be all of all the information that has to do with this, you would be making the same assumption as if I said to you that people from England come from Europe, and by that you assume that only people from England are from Europe and only Europeans are from England. You understand?

So, keep that in mind when I tell you the following: in what you may call an ancient time, within what you would call the Lyran system, from there came those beings you understood to be the Anunnaki. Many of you already know this. And they, in many ways are, to some degree, involved in the genetic manipulation of those species that ultimately created the reptilians from the dinosaur stock and your human species, as well as many others, from some of the indigenous stock on your planet. The idea being, in that sense, of course, that the reptilian species derived from that stock was removed from your planet whereas the human species was not, due to various changes and shifts going on within the agendas of the politics, so to speak, just for now euphemistically, of the Lyrans, of the Annunaki, as you call them.

After the idea, also, and during this time, to some degree, but after the idea of the destruction of natural causes of the Lyran system when there was the Diaspora into other star systems, such as some of the Orion systems and the Pleiadian systems and so forth, of what you would call in the past, the Annunaki. Then it can also be understood that certain factions of the Annunaki, in arriving in the Orion systems, did continue the idea, besides the ones that were isolated upon the Earth, of going in certain directions and ultimately led them to self-destructive ways. In some of these factions that experienced these self destructive ways within the ancient Lyran Annunaki systems, you would find that the destructions they caused upon themselves is what ultimately allowed them to become what you understand them to be today, this faction called the Greys. In that sense, therefore, the Greys and the Reptilians are still cohesive, in that the Greys, as the ancient Annunaki created them. And the Greys and you are still cohesive in that as the ancient Annunaki, they created you. In that sense, they are trying to gain back what they lost, in that sense, as the ancient Annunaki, to render themselves to some degree into that state again, by utilizing the genetics that they have already spliced within you, based on their own original genetic patterns which makes you compatible.

Thus, they are attempting, in the creation of the hybrid races such as our own, to regain the idea incarnationally of what might be, in their eyes, considered to be some of their former level of status and glory. But this is only one faction, in that sense. Some of what some individuals, in some of the abduction scenarios, have recognized as tall, muscular, Nordic types, are actually some template recreations of the idea of the ancient Annunaki bodies, in what your ancient people refer to as the gods, in that sense, of great stature and build. But these are not in any way, shape or form, the idea of what you would call absolutely sentient beings with free thought. They are, to some degree, the idea of puppet templates to allow them some idea of creating certain genetic resonance patterns that would help them fulfill their particular agenda in that level. Regaining whatever it is it is possible for them to regain; though it will never be exactly the same.

This it is given to us now, at this time, to give to you and we have done so. But again, remember, that this is a description of one slice of linear reality. It is not the whole story....
Past Life Explanation & Health Issues

Q: You told me the reason I was having difficulty getting over a situation was because of a past life we shared and...
B: No, that is not the reason why. It is something that may form a basis that you are connecting to, but the reasons why any of you experience difficulty is because of what you have been taught to be motivated to choose in the present. Past lives are never reasons for why you may be having difficulty in the present. Simply that you are using this as a template to give yourself an analogy to draw upon.
Q: So what was the lesson I came here to get?
B: That service is not sacrifice. That you have to allow yourself to be equal and in that sense, worthy of being who you are, without sacrificing yourself just because someone else says you must. It is an issue of self worth and an issue of the idea of allowing yourself to know that you would not exist if you did not deserve to. That you are worthy to exist as you are, and that it is a matter of being of service to others by being yourself, not by sacrificing yourself. For if you sacrifice yourself you can be of help to no one. That is the lesson learned.

When it comes to health again, fundamentally – and this is a simplification but it is also a truth at the core – fundamentally all health issues, no matter when or where they finally attach themselves to physiological mechanisms, all health issues begin in the basic energy state of simply being dis-ease. That’s where they all begin. You are stressed. You are ill at ease. You are out of sorts with yourself. You are dis-appointed from your self. You are cut off within your understanding of your self worth and your validity, and your life essence. That is where all disease begins, no matter what form it ultimately takes and no matter whether physical ideas can help it or not.
The idea is that the physical is never the original root cause; so it is always the original state that you need to get back in touch with. Even if you attract yourself synchronistically to some physical idea that could assist you, in helping you to bring yourself back to center, still the dis-ease will always come back if you do not allow yourself to completely clear out the original root reason, which is always, always, one of consciousness and definition.
Q: What I would like to do is share with you the specific ones, and hear what you feel is causing this on the physical level, as well as...
B: We will see what we can do. We may not address them all, as it may not be appropriate to do so in the midst of your process of self-discovery.
Q: Okay. Well, I have been getting in touch with my own feelings about what it is. Primarily the two that have been, I feel, affecting my ability to enjoy my life – ummm – is that I have TMJ with my jaws and grinding my teeth, to the point I have bad headaches. I have to go to the chiropractor every day as my vertebrae goes right back out.

B: Yes, well this originally again is stress induced. It originates within the idea of stress. Do you understand?

Q: I understand that, and I have been, I guess, at a loss as to what to do. I have been doing things like... the same thing, I have a pain in my shoulder that I have had for a couple of years that goes out to the rib here. I have been saying things like I am willing to release the pattern within me, or the need to...

B: Are you sure you are?

Q: Well, I keep having to say it because I am so accustomed to it. It almost feels to me like it needs to be that way, and I have been working on releasing that belief.

B: Yes, but that is not what I am asking you. Are you sure you are really willing to let it go?

Q: No, I am not, because I wouldn’t be talking to you about it right now if I were.

B: All right. Then why aren’t you willing to let it go? Because you see, the idea of being willing to let something go, is not just an exercise of a statement, it means that your behavior would be completely different after you actually let it go. Is your behavior completely different after you say you are willing to let this idea go, or do you still behave in similar ways?

Q: Behave in similar ways.

B: Why are you so motivated? You feel that you are getting something out of choosing those things. And until you give yourself the opportunity to define the change that you say you want to make – as being more enjoyable and less painful than continuing to choose the things you are familiar with – you will continue to choose the things you are familiar with, no matter how painful they are.

So you need to find out in your definitions what is going to motivate you to choose something different, instead of being motivated to choose the same thing. Because that is all it is – motivation. You have to find the motivation to choose something different.

Q: Is it the same for the Candida that I want to talk to you about... about what’s physically causing it? It affects my health in lots of ways and the doctor...

B: You may have many different kinds of allergic chemical reactions going on in your system at this point, because of the stress induced into your system so long ago. Yes. There again may be many different kinds of physiological things you can do to assist yourself on this path, but we also sense that in some senses you are looking to these physiological remedies to alleviate the situation and that is not going to happen. The idea is that you need to alleviate the choices you are making before any of these things will really have a lasting affect as a physiological assistant.

Q: Alleviate the choices?

B: Yes.
Q: What do you mean by that?
B: What we said before. You are making choices based on your definitions of why you believe it is important to be motivated to behave a certain way. And until you change that, all the ideas of any physical assistance is only going to be temporary at best.

Q: Oh, what I have seen for myself is that I know that these particular diets... you know cut out the sugar and the wheat and all that... I don’t stick to it whatsoever; I find a lot of resistance.
B: That’s because in some senses you know that’s not really what it is all about at the core. You know that, and you are forcing yourself – for this may simply be your way, as it is the way of many of you on your planet because of the way you have been trained – you are forcing yourself into a more dire circumstance so that ultimately you will finally give yourself enough reason to finally be motivated to make a change that’s really a real change.

Sometimes that is the way many of you do it. You don’t have to do it that way. You don’t have to. But if you refuse to do it any other way, if you insist on not changing until you give yourself a good enough reason to change, then you will – believe me you are all very clever – you will invent that reason. Even if it means you almost have to kill yourself to do it.

Q: That’s exactly it. I have been afraid I was going to give myself cancer or something.
B: Well, all right. Well let yourself get cancer then. Maybe that will motivate you. I am not being facetious. I am not being facetious. Listen to this: it is not something you have to look at as a negative thing. This is what many of you do. I am not saying you have to do it.

Q: No. What I am saying is that I actually have a fear that maybe that’s what I am going to need in order to finally change.
B: Then the way to allow yourself to translate that fear into something other than cancer, is to own it, and accept it, and dive into it and not avoid feeling it.

Q: Feeling that fear.
B: Yes. Don’t avoid feeling the fear, dive into it, it is the avoidance of diving into it that is going to cause the stress that will bring about the cancerous reaction. It is not the fear itself. It is the avoidance of the feeling that will bring about the stress because you are going into denial that you have the fear. So go into the fear. If you acknowledge that you have a fear that your fear might cause cancer, than that is something you need to dive into wholeheartedly. To explore it, to own it and find out why you have the fear of the fear. Because only when you do so will you then be able to glean from the fear and from your avoidance of it, what information you need to integrate within yourself in order to not need to force yourself into a corner that way.

So the idea, again, is to simply use what is going on within you, not run away from it, but invite it in – bigger. Make it bigger if you are afraid that your fear is going to cause cancer in you; amplify that in your imagination as much as you possibly can. Dive into it. Be terrified that that is what is going to happen. Allow yourself to imagine it going all the way. Imagine it going all the way to death. When you do that, you are willing to explore every possible avenue of information that might be contained in that kind of an experience before you have to have the actual experience. It is your lack of willingness to explore those feelings that actually forces the experience to come about in physical reality.

Do you understand?

So by all means, if you realize that you are afraid of that possibility, then go in that direction with your exploration, not away from it. Don’t be uncomfortable to explore it. That’s what’s going to cause the problem and the difficulty – being uncomfortable to explore these things because your society has taught you to define it as uncomfortable. Do you understand?

Listen to the reaction that we got when we said go ahead and let yourself get cancer. Automatic negative definition; when in fact, for some people it may be the most positive thing they have ever allowed themselves to do. Because of what it puts them in touch with. And then because of what being put in touch with that thing, allows them to transform, from that point forward. You don’t have to do it that way; we are not saying that. But we are telling you it is nothing to fear, in and of itself. Does this make some sense to you? Are you willing to explore them and really dive into them? To behave like an explorer? Are you willing?

Q: Pause…
B: Yes, no, maybe?
Q: I am willing. It is just when I let myself get in too deep, what you might call dark feelings…
B: Yes.
Q: It makes my TMJ act up more, and then I get bad headaches and then it is hard to function.
B: Yes. Yes. Yes. And, again, let it be all right. That’s the paradox. You see, you are trying to avoid something. You are trying to avoid having the experience. When you are in the experience the only thing you want is to be out of it.
Q: Right.
B: The paradox of life is, the only way to get out of it, is to go further into it. That’s the paradox.
Q: Then I have been on the right path because I recently decided, as somebody pointed that out to me, that when I have these bad headaches, rather than trying to find a chiropractor on a Sunday afternoon, to just be with it and get in touch with what exactly is causing this.
B: Yes. Because the sooner you use what is there, the sooner it doesn’t have a reason to stick around.
Q: I got that really strongly. That the reason they come back every day – even though I just went to the chiropractor, even later that day – is because I have been running from something, and that this is the only way that I am going to face it, if I have to have it keep coming back so often.

B: So look at this as excitement and then you will see that when you actually let it be all right, whatever it is that happens when you let it be all right, will automatically dissolve because you have used it, and then used it up. Does this help you?

Q: Yes, thank you.
Q: You told me the reason I was having difficulty getting over a situation was because of a past life we shared and…

B: No, that is not the reason why. It is something that may form a basis that you are connecting to, but the reasons why any of you experience difficulty is because of what you have been taught to be motivated to choose in the present. The idea is that you need to alleviate the choices you are making before any of these things will really have a lasting affect as a physiological assistant.

Q: Alleviate the choices?

B: Yes.

Q: What do you mean by that?

B: What we said before. You are making choices based on your definitions of why you believe it is important to be motivated to behave a certain way. And until you change that, all the ideas of any physical assistance is only going to be temporary at best.
Q: Oh, what I have seen for myself is that I know that these particular diets... you know cut out the sugar and the wheat and all that... I don’t stick to it whatsoever; I find a lot of resistance.

B: That’s because in some senses you know that’s not really what it is all about at the core. You know that, and you are forcing yourself – for this may simply be your way, as it is the way of many of you on your planet because of the way you have been trained – you are forcing yourself into a more dire circumstance so that ultimately you will finally give yourself enough reason to finally be motivated to make a change that’s really a real change.

Sometimes that is the way many of you do it. You don’t have to do it that way. You don’t have to. But if you refuse to do it any other way, if you insist on not changing until you give yourself a good enough reason to change, then you will – believe me you are all very clever – you will invent that reason. Even if it means you almost have to kill yourself to do it.

Q: That’s exactly it. I have been afraid I was going to give myself cancer or something.

B: Well, all right. Well, let yourself get cancer then. Maybe that will motivate you. I am not being facetious. I am not being facetious. Listen to this: it is not something you have to look at as a negative thing. This is what many of you do; I am not saying you have to do it.

Q: No. What I am saying is that I actually have a fear that maybe that’s what I am going to need in order to finally change.

B: Then the way to allow yourself to translate that fear into something other than cancer is to own it, and accept it, and dive into it, and not avoid feeling it.

Q: Feeling that fear.

B: Yes. Don’t avoid feeling the fear, dive into it, it is the avoidance of diving into it that is going to cause the stress that will bring about the cancerous reaction. It is not the fear itself. It is the avoidance of the feeling that will bring about the stress because you are going into denial that you have the fear. So go into the fear. If you acknowledge that you have a fear that your fear might cause cancer, then that is something you need to dive into wholeheartedly, to explore it, to own it and find out why you have the fear of the fear. Because only when you do so will you then be able to glean from the fear, and from your avoidance of it, what information you need to integrate within yourself in order to not need to force yourself into a corner that way.

So the idea, again, is to simply use what is going on within you, not run away from it, but invite it in – bigger. Make it bigger. If you are afraid that your fear is going to cause cancer in you; amplify that in your imagination as much as you possibly can. Dive into it. Be terrified that that is what is going to happen. Allow yourself to imagine it going all the way. Imagine it going all the way to death. When you do that, you are willing to explore every possible avenue of information that might be contained in that kind of an experience before you have to have the actual experience. It is your lack of willingness to explore those feelings that actually forces the experience to come about in physical reality. Do you understand?
So by all means, if you realize that you are afraid of that possibility, then go in that direction with your exploration, not away from it. Don’t be uncomfortable to explore it. That’s what’s going to cause the problem and the difficulty – being uncomfortable to explore these things because your society has taught you to define it as uncomfortable. Do you understand?

Listen to the reaction that we got when we said, go ahead and let yourself get cancer, automatic negative definition; when in fact, for some people it may be the most positive thing they have ever allowed themselves to do. Because of what it puts them in touch with, and then because of what being put in touch with that thing allows them to transform, from that point forward.

You don’t have to do it that way; we are not saying that. But we are telling you it is nothing to fear, in and of itself. Does this make some sense to you? Are you willing to be more courageous and more bold about the things that you know do exist within your emotional structure? Are you more willing to explore them and really dive into them, to behave like an explorer? Are you willing?

Q: Pause...
B: Yes, no, maybe?
Q: I am willing. It is just when I let myself get in too deep, what you might call dark feelings...
B: Yes.
Q: It makes my TMJ act up more, and then I get bad headaches, and then it is hard to function.
B: Yes. Yes. Yes. And, again, let it be all right. That’s the paradox. You see, you are trying to avoid something. You are trying to avoid having the experience. When you are in the experience the only thing you want is to be out of it.
Q: Right.
B: The paradox of life is the only way to get out of it is to go further into it. That’s the paradox.
Q: Then I have been on the right path because I recently decided, as somebody pointed that out to me, that when I have these bad headaches, rather than trying to find a chiropractor on a Sunday afternoon, to just be with it and get in touch with what exactly is causing this.
B: Yes. Because the sooner you use what is there, the sooner it doesn’t have a reason to stick around.
Q: I got that really strongly. That the reason they come back every day – even though I just went to the chiropractor, even later that day – is because I have been running from something, and that this is the only way that I am going to face it, if I have to have it keep coming back so often.
B: So look at this as excitement and then you will see that when you actually let it be all right, whatever it is that happens, when you let it be all right, will automatically dissolve because you have used it, and then used it up. Does this help you?
Q: Yes, thank you.
Questioner: We have, on our planet, for inventors, patents and for artists, copyrights. Is this something that you see eventually disappearing?

BASHAR: Yes.

Q: And for those of us now who are interacting at this level, what do you recommend – pursuing things like that?

B: Yes, we recommend that you maintain the integrity of the system that recognizes the idea of origination at this time. Eventually it will be unnecessary because the recognition of origination will be innate and natural and will not require the idea of structure of law to enforce it, and certain things will also be shared in a number of ways that will also make it unnecessary in certain circumstances.

Q: And this will occur around the transitional gate of 2011 - 2013?

B: It will begin in that time frame and continue on for, again perhaps, another decade or so and then it will cease as a system.

Q: Thank you, very much.

B: Thank you.

"PATIENCE"

B: You may commence with sharing, number one.
Q: My question has to with, ah...
B: Speak up and be bold, so that all may share with you.
Q: Okay, my question has to do with patience. How important is patience?
B: Patience, how important is patience? All right, now we have discussed this notion a few times. The idea, from one point of view, even though we understand what your society generally means by the word patience, we prefer to redefine that term in a very specific way. Before we redefine it, we can say that the notion generally that your society has, that is called patience, is similar to what we have already discussed in the tool of five, that is called persistence and conviction. If you believe in a thing, if you know that a thing is true for you then the idea is that you will have the persistence, you will have the conviction, effortlessly. You will have the patience effortlessly and automatically to continue to pursue that thing, to create that thing, to allow yourself to realize and manifest that thing.

However, in redefining the notion, in giving it a different perspective, a different slant, allow us to say that we prefer to define the term in such a way as to say that you don’t really need patience at all, in its classical sense. The idea of needing patience implies that you are not having a good time, that you are not enjoying the challenges that you are choosing to attract into your life, that you are not seeing them for what they are and experiencing them for the learning lessons of joy that they can bring to you. In needing patience to allow yourself to suffer through the things that you are attracting in your life, to wait them out until they go away, in needing patience, you then create the feeling called impatience. You create impatience by needing patience, at all.

If you understand that every moment of what you experience is your choice to experience, that you can transform the experience in any way that you want and if you are having so much fun, at any given moment, then it does not matter whether anything else ever comes along after that at all; then you will not need patience because you will be living in the moment. You will not be waiting for something else to happen. And if you are not waiting for something else to happen and you are living in the moment and enjoying it fully, then you don’t need patience, then you do not feel impatience. And, we will trust that to some degree this has answered your question. Has it?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: Is that of benefit to you?
Q: Definitely.
B: Well, thank you very much and remember ... relax.
Patterns and Meanings

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

AUD: Great. Perfect. Etc…

Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time with the entitlement, “Patterns and Meanings.”

Patterns and meaning. We have discussed many times the idea with you that all situations and circumstances within your physical experience, your day-to-day reality are basically neutral props in relation to each other, with no inherent meaning within them other than the meaning that you give them. Everything being blank, empty, neutral allows you, by giving the appropriate meaning, to extract from the circumstance the effects that you desire. As we have indicated, positive meaning in; positive effect out. Negative meaning in; negative effect out. Simple physics. Simple mechanics.

Now, let us take this understanding a little bit further. We have discussed the idea that what you experience to be your physical reality, in a sense, is a combination of vibratory frequencies. This combination of vibratory frequencies represents all the probable or potential realities there can possibly be. They all exist right now; right here all at once. They form what can be called the background reality, so to speak.

Not that there is any one real reality any more real than any other. Not that there is one truth against which to measure other realities for their validity or truth. But the background reality is the composite of all realities, all truths, in a holographic fashion: overlaid, intertwined, interwoven. In a sense, laying in wait for a specific stimulus to bring to the surface of that general background any particular reality that you may choose to call a dimension of experience, or a universal realm.

How you call those particular vibratory frequencies to the surface and allow yourselves to experience that particular reality is through your beliefs, through your attitudes, through the vibration you create yourselves to be. Through, for all practical intents and purposes, the meaning you choose to give to the idea of a fundamentally homogenous background, through the meaning you create, do you then actually create the physical reality you experience. So in a sense, it is not so much the experience that gives rise to meaning; it is meaning that gives rise to the experience.

When you project yourselves into physiological reality, and determine as non-physical consciousness that you will create certain types of experiences, that is the meaning you are giving to that particular life you are creating, that particular aspect you are creating for yourselves as non-physical entities – to experience as limited, physically focused entities. It is that meaning, that overall desire that then vibrates at a certain frequency, and then calls out of the background vibration, through a sympathetic synchronization, all the circumstances necessary that represent the meaning you have injected into the general life theme or structure that you are about to live as physical beings. Is all of this making some sense so far?
AUD: Yes.

B: All right. Simply put, the idea is that all circumstances are neutral. The meaning you choose to believe, the meaning you choose to create in life, about your life, is what generates the particular types of circumstances you experience, to reinforce and reflect and represent the meanings you are creating. Giving meaning is the actual act of creation itself. To give meaning to something is to create it into existence in your particular experiential realm.

Nothing has built-in meaning. There are no inherent meanings in anything. All vibratory realities are simply a neutral set of circumstances in relation to one another, to some degree, representational of a type of crystal lattice work that represents the overall holographic experience of all reality, of all creation. But the meaning that you generate within your attitudes, the idea that you create within the being that you are is what generates the type of frequency that then pulls out of the homogenous background all the experiences that then represent the meaning of your lives.

Many of you, as you have discussed with us, go through life searching for the meaning of your life. But you see, your life is created simply by the meaning you give to it. So when you are searching for the meaning, in that sense, you are chasing your own tail in many ways. The idea is to recognize, as we have discussed, that you have the power of conscious commandment, the ability to make decisions consciously that you know are decisions that represent the life you prefer to live.

And then when you give your life that meaning, that is the style of life you experience. For the vibration that you are will pull out of that background all the circumstances, literally, all the situations, literally, all the relationships, literally, all the objects, literally, that represent the meaning, the vibrational resonance, the harmonic you have given to your life, you have given to the circumstances that you have generated through the initial meaning that you had – which created the spontaneous creation of your life to begin with as a physical being, as a physical entity.

So simply allow yourselves to know you are the definers, ultimately, of the life you experience. And as you define it, as you give it meaning, your life takes on only, and can only take on the coloration and the characteristics and the flavors and the atmospheres of the meaning you decide your life will have. And that is what you will see reflected in the holographic background, the matrix of all universal probable reality.

The idea we have also discussed is that everything is synchronous, synchronicity; everything is interconnected with everything else. This is a part of the holographic weave. Every single portion of the whole contains the total information of the whole. Every single area is representative of all creation; everything is all here, all now. So whatever vibratory frequency you are on determines what aspects, what faces, what facets of the total reality that is right here that you will see and experience as your life.

So the way to generate most easily the particular vibratory frequency of the life you prefer is to give your life the meaning you prefer to give it, and to cease to assume that the situations that occur in your life intrinsically come with a meaning that you may not like. There is no reason to play victim in this; there is no reason to assume that you are assigned a meaning in life, and that you have to stick with that idea, that you have to live that out – even if it is a struggle, even if it is a suffering.

When you decide what meaning your life has, in that sense, what your life is to be represented by – what attitudes, what actions, what preferences, what knowledge, what applications you decide are pertinent to who you are – you give your life the meaning that it can then take its clue from and pattern itself after. Looking for the meaning in the events as they occur, in a sense, is after the fact. Give your life the meaning you prefer to give it, and it will conform in all aspects to the meaning you have decided it shall have. You all understand?

AUD: Yes.

B: Oh, thank you very much. At this timing, allow us once again to extend to each and every one of you our utmost appreciation and joy in your willingness to interact with us, in your willingness to function as ambassadors from your civilization and allowing me to function as an ambassador from our respective civilizations in The Association of Worlds. And in return for the gift of your sharing, I ask you simply now, how may I serve you?

Patterns and Meanings
Payoffs and Generating Your Reality

Q: I’m working with the Lazaris tape that you mentioned to us a couple of months back... “Secrets of Manifesting” what you want.
B: Yes.
Q: In cleaning up the tools to use for manifestation, I find it difficult to find out what my payoffs are, and my blocks are quite large. I wonder...
B: If you say so.
Q: I wonder if you can shed some light on what...
B: Why do you believe your blocks are large? And first and foremost, what is your definition of a block?

Q: The denial that I have a payoff for negative action in my life.
B: Denial that you have a payoff for a negative action. Would you clarify that please?
Q: Okay. I’m exhibiting lack.
B: You are exhibiting lack?
Q: Yes. I don’t have the kind of car that I want, and the money that I want to do the things that I want. And I don’t know – he says find out what your payoff is, and I can’t imagine why I want to do this.
B: All right. Perhaps one suggestion, only a suggestion: to allow you to discontinue looking at it as a lack, and focus on the things that you already have. So that you know you already are abundant in one way, and that you can be abundant in other ways – rather than assuming that you lack anything.
Q: Hmm.
B: Because if you are approaching it from that end, that point of view, then you are only reinforcing the idea that you are not abundant – that you lack something. Approach it from the point of view that you already are abundant in whatever ways you have needed to be abundant. And that you can be abundant in other ways, more expanded ways – rather than assuming that just because you are not, right now, abundant in a particular way means that you lack abundance at all. You follow me?
Q: Mhmm.
B: So examine the other end of your tool as well.
Q: Okay.
B: Now, it also does not necessarily have to be that complex; it may be as simple as you simply have the habit of generating that particular type of scenario. So whether you actually have an ingrained belief that you need to suffer, you may simply be in the habit of generating the reality the way you are generating it.
So, allow yourself to know that you are in the process of creating new habits now. And that it is not necessarily so that you have to dig and scrape for that deep, dark secret you are holding from yourself. You follow me?
Q: Ha ha. Yes, I do.
B: You do not have to dig quite so hard.
Q: Okay.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Perceiving Sirius B

Q: Is July 23\textsuperscript{rd} the date that Sirius A and B line up?
B: One moment...
Q: And can it be perceived from our dimension?
B: You can certainly perceive the major star you call Sirius. You cannot really perceive, with your technology, the idea of the white dwarf star encircling it. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: But you can perceive it with your senses in a variety of ways. The 23\textsuperscript{rd} is a representation of certain synchronicities of certain alignment connections between Sirius A and B. It is not necessarily representative of a literal physical alignment, but a certain alignment of energy synchronicities that they exchange. It is the 23\textsuperscript{rd}, the sign itself of synchronicity. The number 23 is the sign of synchronicity mathematically.
Q: So there is not a moment, in the morning or on that date, where you could actually see a glimpse of B?
B: You cannot perceive the idea of that star from your position in space. It is a white dwarf; it is far too small even for your strongest instruments.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.

Perceiving the Essence

Q: Hello.
B: Good day.
Q: As an artist, drawing people has never been easy for me. Is this a laziness on my behalf not to push something that was not easy, or something from a past dream – life?
B: To some degree, it is a representation of not wanting to be too honest about what you see. Because you can paint “windows,” and other individuals, on seeing them, in seeing how you have portrayed them, will learn much about themselves. You are simply, perhaps, a little bit afraid that in painting such a clear picture they will see things they do not want to see, and blame you for that. That is the only thing that makes it difficult.
See all beings for the beauty that they are, in every aspect, and you will grant yourself the type of focus that will allow you to channel the image very cleanly, very smoothly, very easily. We have a suggestion for you, perhaps something that can allow you to get into the habit of channeling the drawing, rather than placing your analyzation in the way and allowing it to be difficult.
Q: Yes.
B: Take a piece of paper. Place a dot on one side, and a dot on the other side. All right?
Q: Yes.
B: Take your pencil and place it on the first dot and draw a line to the second dot, watching the line as you go. Perhaps, if you wish, glancing at the dot now and then, and then going back to the line, and see how it feels to draw that line, to get it to go from one point to the other point. Then after you do that, take two more dots on another piece of paper, in the same position. Place your pencil on the first dot, and then simply look at the second dot and draw a line. See how much easier that is.
Q: Okay.
B: Instead of watching the line, watch where you’re going. Your hand will automatically go where it needs to.
Q: Very good.
B: Allow yourself this trust, this willingness, and then you will begin to look at the images of people differently. And you will allow yourself to see the essence of what they are, and your hand will simply draw what you really see.
Q: Thank you, that is very, very helpful.
B: Thank you.
Q2: I have a curiosity question.
B: All right.
Q: Sometimes when I meet people energy comes out of their eyes into me.
B: Yes.
Q: It’s only with certain people, and I was wondering if that was a way of recognizing other pieces of the self that you are, so to speak?
B: Yes, that is one way. It is also a way of recognizing individuals you have made agreements with, and that you have interacted with very closely, that you have made contracts with, and that you have had experiences with before.
Q: Right.
B: You are recognizing the flow, the lines of the web of the matrix, the pearls in the net.
Q: When I walk in other bodies on other worlds, and things like that...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and things speed up and I tend to lift up, these things just kind of happen to me. How can I cause them to happen?
B: By continuing to live the life you know you are. Because all of those things occur in the proper place and timing to add to the understanding, and add to the acceleration, and add to the energy of the person you are here. And which also gives an opportunity for some of those other lives to interact and feel the bleed-through and the blending of what you are doing here as well. Do not forget: it is not a one-way street. There is very much merit in those lives feeling what they feel from you, as much as there is in you feeling what you feel from them.
Q: I didn’t assume it’s a one-way street – it’s too real.
B: Yes.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much for walking all the roads, and now allowing them all to be the same road. Sharing!

Perceiving the Essence
Perceptions

Q: Anima, do we always just perceive our own creation of everyone else, or can we attune with other’s universes and see how they perceive themselves?

Anima: Yes. Realize, your word perceive, because of the amount of separations that have been created by your idea of perceptions, covers a wide range of, I’ll say, frequencies. You can perceive as you do, physically. You can perceive mentally, you can perceive emotionally, you can perceive hyper-consciously, you can perceive ultra-dimensionally. You can perceive in many, many, many, many ways.

Realize, you are always, always, always, always connected. Connected to the one idea... the ONE. To ALL... to ALL THAT IS.

It is you, you are It. Separations stem from that point, spiral outward, creating the various ideas of different dimensions and physical realities and non-physical realities.

So there is, in a sense, a root perception of the One. From that point all other perceptions are creations of the mind, in various states of awareness, and various states of consciousness. Do you follow?

Q: Yes.

Anima: So while you can, in a sense, trick yourself into perceiving in a very limited way in one reality, you can at the same time be perceiving in a multiple number of ways in other realities. And you can choose to ignore or listen to what you wish.

Realize again, again, again, you have ULTIMATE CAPACITY to choose any variation of reality you so desire. Anything you can imagine is, in some sense, real. Any variation on any theme: Well, I choose to perceive five thousand two hundred and eighty one different kinds of frequencies... Well, I choose to perceive five thousand two hundred and eighty two. Realize that those are two separate ideas, two separate realities.

And how you choose to perceive each and every one of those ideas is in and of itself, another universe, another idea, another reality.

You have ultimate choice, in at least as many directions as you can imagine, and most likely more, in a sense. Do you follow that?

Q: I do. But I’m not sure if we’re talking exactly about the same thing, because I’m talking about what I consider to be other people’s separate realities.

Anima: That is the very idea – what you consider.

Q: Okay. They’re only separate because I consider them that. If I think of them as being one, then I would perceive as they did.

Anima: Thank you, in a sense, yes. You would not necessarily need to loose your own sense of identity, no, in so doing. That is, in a sense, a major blockage which you have imposed upon yourselves, which prevents you from perceiving all as ONE. You will not lose your sense of identity if you do not choose to.

Q: And so would I, in a real sense, be perceiving as someone else or just as I imagine they perceive?
Anima: In a sense... in a sense, it will be real enough to suit your purpose. It will be real enough. Do you follow?

Q: To the point where they would agree to what I feel I am perceiving, if that was my intention?
Anima: Allow me to say this... (pause)... a difference which makes no difference, is no difference.

Q: Okay. Thank you.
Anima: Thank you.
Perceptual Paradox

Q: If there’s a tree out in the middle of nowhere and nobody’s around to see it, and a leaf falls, does it make a sound?

B: Maybe. Now recognize this, when you say no one is around to see it, that does not mean that your telepathic, mass collective unconsciousness is not aware that it is there, and is not aware of the fact that you have created a universe in which it must make a sound. That does not mean it has to, and in all reality, if no one is creating that idea to exist, then not only does the leaf not make a sound, there is no leaf and there is no tree, until you decide to perceive that there is.

Q: Oh, okay. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Perfect Timing

Q: If I am everywhere...
B: Yes.
Q: can be overlapping then of beings that I choose to exist in, in physical form...
B: You can create overlap, yes.
Q: So then you can really, actually run into yourself in a lifetime?
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: In another person?
B: Oh, you have counterparts, yes.
Q: All right.
B: The idea of counterparts is simply what you would normally call a past life and, or, a future life, but existing within the same time frame as what you would perceive to be another body, as another persona. It can be a part of the same soul that you generate from.
Q: Right.
B: Yes.
Q: Thank you. I would like to know who Jay Green is to me? If you could just give me one example, perhaps in a past life we might have had together?
B: What do you feel about the idea of the present? Since you asked who it is, not who it was.
Q: That we were married once.
B: Who it is, not who it was.
Q: Are you asking me about how I feel about him now?
B: Yes.
Q: I like him very much. He is a very dear man.
B: So what is the vibration to you now? What do you feel you share—now?
Q: A lot of similarities, a lot of the same ground.
B: All right.
Q: I wanted to know what our connection was?
B: Would it make a difference? And, if so, why?
Q: No it wouldn’t, but it’s simply curiosity for me.
B: There is no such thing as idle curiosity.
Q: Yes, I know there isn’t.
B: Therefore recognize that many times, we are not being difficult with you, simply that many times your curiosity is there to form connections, so that you can recognize something in the present.
If you already recognize a connection in the present, why utilize your curiosity to go around, full circle, through a past that already has been realized, and you already are manifesting the connection now... for.

Q: I understand what you are saying. What’s happening through me right now is, um...
B: I will say this: recognize that usually individuals you feel very strongly attached to, in your terms, you have shared other lives with.
Q: I know that.
B: Why do you need to be more specific? Not that we will not explore it with you, but why do you need to be more specific?
Q: Because of the way we met. It was such, um, I know you’re going to say everything is planned in its sense, but it was almost as if planned, it was so perfect, meeting...
B: Yes.
Q: it just set off a number of ideas about what might have been with us, and why we were reconnecting now, to do what we need to do now.
B: Then simply, you have but to allow every single concept that has exploded within you to be real and valid for you, and follow it to whatever point you need to follow it.
Q: I intend to.
B: There is no need to inquire and request validation from us, we can not validate, only you can.
Q: Yes, I know that.
B: Then simply recognize that the idea is, once again, trusting that when you form interactions, make connections, whatever it is that does explode within you is exactly, no more and no less than what needs to explode, so follow it. Act upon it in whatever way it seems natural to act upon. And simply take it for granted that: whatever it is your imagination has created for you to follow is exactly what it needs to create to follow, so that you can consciously, simply act upon the interaction going on in the present. All right?
Q: Well, it will do for now. It doesn’t really... I hear everything you’re saying quite clearly and I know it...
B: What feelings do you have about any so-called past connection? Do you feel associated in the 17th century?
Q: I have some questions of what kind of warrior... I want to say, but I’m not certain that that’s accurate, sometimes...
B: There is no accurate, there is always valid.
Q: Then the impression that I received is that of some type of armor.
B: All right.
A kind of soldier and some kind of running away from something, but toward something in some kind of cause, I have a sense of a cause of some sort.

B: You mean like a crusade?

Q: Yes, you could say that, yes, a crusade.

B: Do you see banners, do you see flags?

Q: Yes I do.

B: What color?

Q: Red and yellow.

B: Yes red, all right.

Q: Okay, that’s all I wanted, to get started on that.

B: There’s more. (Audience laughs)

Q: You want to take me through it? All right, lots of horses, I see lots of open grounds, lots of people.

B: Yes.

Q: There’s lots of blood.

B: There is something else that is red besides the flag, besides the blood. It is a rose.

Q: A rose?

B: Yes.

Q: Where is it?

B: In what you call the geographical location upon your planet.

Q: Any particular place in England? Is it Rye? Is it somewhere around there?

B: No access, we have reached the end of our ability.

Q: Well, thank you for assisting me with what you could.

B: Thank you for co-creating the reflection.

Q: Thank you. I have a question about transformational art.

B: All right.

Q: Transformational art is light, color and sound.

B: Is that a question?

Q: It is a statement. And it carries a vibration that can touch people’s… various points of people’s chakras throughout their body and open…

B: That is one definition of transformational art.

Q: Could you give me another?

B: Life.
Q: Yeah, yeah.
B: Thank you!
Q: Thank you very much.

Q: I have a question concerning petroglyphs.
B: Yes.
Q: I was looking at some petroglyphs from the Southwest in a book, and a lot of them looked as if they are actually drawings of men from space, and I was wondering if they’re...
B: A few are. A few are not. A few are.
Q: So was there communication?
B: Oh, yes.
Q: And was the reason for this communication to help the people who lived during this time of...
B: Yes. You will find that some of the reasons for the interactions were for communication and re-establishing of situations that had been created, where such communication had been disconnected, particularly after the time period you call the physical destruction of Atlantis. So, some of the petroglyphs are records of the re-establishment of communication that was broken after that time. You follow me?
Q: Yes. I do. So, was this... so it was just an establishment of communication rather than, for instance, assistance in, uh, the survival and food and...
B: Oh, some of that was there as well but, simply, it was recorded in the manner that you are perceiving as an event in those petroglyphs.
Q: Or else, was it a calling, uh, of some sort? For instance, the very large petroglyphs that can only be seen from aircraft; was that a, some kind of recognition or welcoming, or...?
B: Oh, they could be used for that, but also they had another function. For the understanding of individuals to allow themselves out-of-the-body experiences, so they could describe the ideas from the air, knowing, therefore, that they had in fact been out of their bodies.
Q: Oh, I see.
B: But it was associated with what they had learned from some of the interactions from their friends.
Q: So did this communication then, uh, then integrate into the religion, and...
B: Some. Sometimes. Yes. Some of these communications, when they were no longer understood for what they were, became some of your early religions.
Q: So some of the figures and the idols like the Kachina dolls and things like that are...
B: Yes.
Q: ...actually...
B: Yes. For the Kachinas, even specifically, are representative not only of connections to your own energy level, but also extraterrestrial in nature. But they do represent another type of interdimensional, shall I say, species.
Q: Umm. I have one last question. So then if someone had a past life experience, then there would be a memory of this communication.
B: Oh, yes. An affinity to be attracted to certain ideas, certain artifacts.
Q: Do artifacts carry energy that . . .
B: Yes. Everything is made of consciousness.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
Q: Bashar.
B: One moment. Is there somewhere you wish to go?
Q: Yes.
B: Where?
Q: I would like to go back there, but I’m not sure where that is.
B: All right. What about some of the ideas you call your desert areas in your United States? New Mexico.
Q: Uh huh. Yes. I am a . . . I’m a painter and sometimes, when I’m painting, I have memories of working in stone, or drawing some of these petroglyphs.
B: All right. Do you find you have an affinity also for the area you call Peru?
Q: Peru?
B: Yes.
Q: I, I don’t know much about it.
B: All right. Have you at any time already spoken to any members that you would call the elders of the tribe you call Hopi?
Q: I would say, in my dreams.
B: All right. Why not go and do so in person? You may learn much about your connections.
Q: Umm.
B: Yes, no, maybe? ‘Tis up to you.
Q: Well, yes, I would like to very much. I just wonder how I would, how I would approach?
B: They will feel you coming. Trust. Love. Unconditional love. They will know. The elders will know why you are there. They will help you.
Q: Okay.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
(Session Break)
B: All right. I’ll say, petroglyphs woman.
Q: Yes.
B: Have been speaking with a few friends (AUD: laugh) while you were on your break. (AUD: laugh and comments).

One other thing we can share with you: that maybe some of the energy you will find yourself exploring in the endeavoring of the contact with the Hopi people, may be the connotation of your idea of woman in your polarity world. For it may have association to the idea of the way you expressed your energy within various similar civilizations to the idea of the Hopi energy. And that may be to what they will relate to, when they see you again. All right?

Q: Yes. I have a question, however.
B: All right.

Q: Well, I was wondering would it be all right for me to actually approach and, uh, to actually approach a Hopi Indian and inquire, or would it be something that I would just trust would, would... the circumstances would find me? Um... I mean...

B: That is the same thing.
Q: Oh.
B: Or can be.

Q: Okay.
B: For the Indian you will find will be the one that is arranged by the circumstances you need. So approach away.

Q: Okay. And is this connected with Peru?
B: Only as an offshoot association. There are some portions that are similar and there can be doorways that will lead in that direction.

We simply perceive that by allowing yourself to form this connection in this way within the Hopi consciousness, then you may find that there are doorways that will lead you further, and perhaps further South as well. All right?

Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much.
Peyote as Only a Symbol of Power That You Create

Q: This year (1986) I became involved in the Native American Church…

B: Yes.

Q: going to teepee meetings and their all night peyote ceremonies; and I’ve been using peyote.

B: Yes.

Q: It seems to be a very powerful teacher and I’m wondering what is it…

B: YOU are a powerful teacher. Thus, when you choose a symbol that reflects the level of power you are comfortable in dealing with, you will receive the power on that level. But it is only a symbol, you are creating what you are experiencing and the peyote is only there to remind YOU that you are creating it. You are using it as a symbol, it is not that you need it, it is simply showing you what is possible within yourself. Because you are removing your responsibility from having created it and placing it on a symbol that lets it be alright for you to have that level of experience, because, “I am not doing it, something else is responsible.” But you are doing it.

Q: Umm. Okay.

B: Are you enjoying yourself?

Q: Yeah.

B: Thank you.

Q2: How come we seem to need those symbols? If I…

B: Because once you, again, in your choice to experience separation, limitation and forgetfulness, you tend to forget that you are the source of all you experience and simply assume, out of habit, that it is other things outside yourself, seemingly, that cause these experiences. So in continuing that habit, you will assume that the DRUG is causing the experience, when it is in fact you.

Q2: Would it be easy, to say, for me to go on a LSD trip without taking LSD?

B: Yes. Have a good time. (Audience laughter) In your language, do not many individuals tell you from time to time that they think you are tripping anyway?

Q2: Yes.

B: All right. Let that be your sign. (more laughter) All right, continue.

Q1: In these ceremonies, um, it’s real accelerated in the ceremonies for me and I learn a lot.

B: Yes.

Q: And, you know, like channels are opening up and…

B: It is all because of your level of willingness.

Q: And it seems like outside of the ceremonies… the ceremony is accelerated.

B: When you allow there to be no difference between your symbols and the life, it will all accelerate at the same pace.

Q: Okay.
B: All right.
Q: Can you say anything about the Native American, it seems like there is a lot spiritual . . .
B: It is simply that they have not, so much, forgotten that they exist on more than one level at the same time, and to them all those different levels are real. So they can consciously move in and out of them more easily than many of the other societies upon your planet that have forgotten that they can do so.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Peyote as Only a Symbol of Power That You Create

Q: Does your civilization view the proton belt as beneficial, harmful, or in-between?

B: Thank you. First of all, we believe that most people on your planet refer to the phenomenon you have just described as the photon belt, rather than the proton belt, but in essence it doesn’t really matter. Both terms can actually be correct.

What we view this so-called photon belt as is something a little bit different than the way most people on your planet interpret it. Again, because of what we shall, for the moment, just call the habit of segregation that most of your people have been ingrained with, you have a tendency to see this phenomenon as outside yourselves, that you are heading toward it, or it is heading toward you; that you are tapping through some exterior phenomenology – no.

The photon belt is the leading edge of your collective consciousness. So it is like a bow shock, a bow wave that you are piling up against and through which you will break. It is just now being felt as a bow wave, a leading edge – piling up because there are still so many different frequencies on your planet that are not yet synchronized and aligned. And all of these discordant, disharmonic frequencies are, shall we say, now piling up, piling up, being forced into proximity to each other and building up a kind of wall. But when they align you will be able to SNAP through very quickly.

This is what the photon belt is. It’s the leading edge of your collective world spirit consciousness as it races to meet itself and create its own perfect alignment of transition. Make sense?

Q: Yes.

B: It is, of course, in physiological terms, also built up out of electromagnetheric energy or light. And, hence, recognized intuitionally as a photonic phenomenon – a photon being what you call an elementary particle of light. But it is, nevertheless, this leading edge of the transition itself, of your transformation collectively.
Questioner: The last area that I would like to ask you about is our Sun. In a recent development that measures the photosphere, the surface of the Sun is 5,600° centigrade...

B: Degrees Kelvin.

Q: Degrees Kelvin?

B: Yes.

Q: And then the corona is 1,000,000 degrees...

B: Yes.

Q: Are not exactly sure why the corona would be that much of a higher temperature that the surface?

B: Because it is a different form of free form plasma energy with a much higher energy content because of how it is more capable of interacting with all sorts of different kinds of cosmic radiation, whereas the surface material of the Sun is more compacted and not so capable of freely interacting with other higher levels of cosmic energy. Thus it is not so much of a rarefied plasma interaction, wherein the molecular motion can not be as high as it is in the free form state of what you would call the gaseous corona.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Thank you.
Physical Aging

Q: I was also wondering about when we are asleep. Do we actually physically age at a slower rate then?
B: Yes, because you are living in the Now. What you call or remember as a "dream" is more your natural state. Remember you are dreaming right now. You are dreaming "physical reality." Though you experience physical reality to seem to be more truly the "real" you, recognize that your physical reality is actually more truly “the dream” – the dream of time and space. When you awaken you will not necessarily experience time and space as much.

The idea is to learn to be childlike, to learn to live in the Now. Because the more you live in the Now, then the less time you create. And the less time you experience, the less time will age you. You understand? It will create an agelessness within you. And if there is a purpose in doing so, you will then allow yourself to exist in a more Eternal Now and you will experience what, colloquially, would be perceived as a longer time span, although that’s not exactly what’s happening, because time is your illusion.

The idea is as if you are, this is perhaps a limitation of the language, but it is more like you are “skipping over moments.” You are removing yourself and reinserting yourself at different places in time, so that to everyone else, still lodged in time, it seems as if you have lived longer than the normal time span, but you really haven’t, per se. You have experienced Eternalness, the idea of the suspension or the dissolution of time, and you have accomplished more within the Eternal Now. Because, when you are not guided by time, you can accomplished all things simultaneously, or more simultaneously than you used to.

The effect can be that you look the same, but are actually much older. Your experience of living longer in no way, shape or form is hinged on someone else’s acceptance that that can be so. It is only hinged on your acceptance that that can be so and is proper for you.
Physical Profile of Sassanians

Q: I’ve heard your description about what you look like, what your people look like…
B: Yes.
Q: many times and it’s not satisfactory to me.
B: Not satisfactory?
Q: Not enough, is what I mean to say. What I’d like to know is, you’ve described your eyes as being slightly similar to what we refer to as oriental….
B: Larger.
Q: That’s what I wanted to know. Are they much larger? In other words, looking at the face, would the eyes in the face hold much of the attention?
B: Yes, but that is also because of the energy.
Q: Thank you.
B: Also, you will find that they will be slightly more upturned, slightly larger, in that way, as though the, what you call, the iris will be typically whitish. The eye will usually appear black because the pupil encompasses almost the entire majority of the diameter.
Q: Thank you, really. Thank you. Are the limbs, the arms and the legs, long and thin or they proportional to what we would consider to be human proportions?
B: Close enough.
Q: Are there five fingers?
B: Yes.
Q: What I’m trying to get is a sense of in terms of silhouette, in terms of length…
B: Simply, in this way, envision the average idea of what you would call a relatively slender childlike human, in general.
Q: And the height of around five feet?
B: Average.
Q: Average. What would be the tallest?
B: Approximately, what you call 6’3”, has been the tallest, but it is not usual.
Q: And the females have hair?
B: Yes.
Q: Is the hair colored?
B: Usually white, although again, there are some exceptions.
Q: What do those exceptions run to?
B: More the idea of what you call charcoal. Some have been slightly, in your terms, tinted silvery. Some, now and then, have been black.
Q: Are there noses like we know noses?
B: Yes. Though, in your terms, slightly smaller in proportion to the face.
Q: And are there... do the men have hair on their face?
B: No.
Q: No. They don't have hair at all?
B: No.
Q: Anywhere?
B: No.
Q: The ears.
B: Yes.
Q: There're there?
B: Again, yes, but smaller.
Q: Smaller also.
B: Yes.
Q: So nothing has... except with the exception of the eyes and if one were to look quickly the eyes would be predominately the first...
B: Yes
Q: right. And the skin whitish, bluish.
B: Whitish, grayish.
Q: Whitish, grayish. More white or more gray?
B: That will also vary, to some extent, but mostly more white and, in your terms, white, white.
Q: OK, kind of white or translucent?
B: At times it will vary, but in this way you would perceive it almost, in a sense, as both. For it will be, to some degree, somewhat translucent, yet it will have what you would term to be a clay like silicon like malleability, that would allow you to perceive the texture as being very opaque.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Pi

Q: Hi.
B: Hi!
Q: Could you tell us the significance of Pi?
B: Yes, we can tell you our perspective of the significance, to us.
Q: Okay.
B: It is the gate. It is representative, mathematically, if you wish, of that factor in the universal web – in the universal matrix, in the so-called universal structure – it is that factor that always allows you to expand that structure so that it does not become fixed. It is the doorway out – always. Because it has no settled, fixed value. And yet it is the product of all the other settled and fixed values in creation; and it is also the seed of all the settled and fixed values. But it, in and of itself, is the elusive principle that always allows you to expand upon any structure that you have taken and created out of it. Will that suffice?
Q: Is there more that you could say, that’s…
B: Well, it is no accident that it is connected most often with the idea of the circle, because that lets you know that there is no beginning and no ending. It is perpetual in that sense. It is, perhaps, one of the most precisely representative symbols, if you will, for eternity itself. It is the factor that allows eternity to always exist. It is the expression of the fact that eternity always will exist.
Q: Good. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. It is the open-ended door, and it goes in all directions.
Picking Apart the Tapestry

Q: Our physicist’s this week announced that they have found the top quark. (7-95)
B: All right, good for them, did they find it under a rock?
Q: They’re wondering what’s next? What might…
B: They are wondering what’s next? I have already really talked about the idea that many of your physicists are heading towards – that which we have called “The Prime Radiant.” They will understand still that what they call top and bottom, this color and that color, and charm and so and so forth, as so many of them already suspect, are just different variations, different perspectives of the one, one, one, ONE concept that you call a particle. Which really isn’t a particle, but what we call a Prime Radiant out of which everything is made. You are heading in that direction – that’s really what is next.
Q: And on our earth grid we have what is know as Hartmann lines, which extent north/south, and east/west…
B: Are you talking about something other than what you call the standard latitude and longitudinal lines?
Q: Yes, there’s supposedly… they run in a north/south direction, six feet, six inches, and east/west direction, 8 feet two inches. And then they intersect and create an energy that is supposedly not conducive to human biological response – however cats enjoy them.
B: There are multiplicities of frequency domains that do exist upon your planet that are more conducive to different kinds of life, different expressions of consciousness, than others on your planet. It may be that this is what is being described. It is simply being mathematically defined rather than, perhaps, understood as a holistic vibrational domain.
Q: Those are one set of lines, and they also said that there are another set called the Curry lines, which run in a diagonal direction.
B: Yes, but again, it is the same thing. You are picking apart the tapestry and looking at the thread, but it is all one giant orchestrated multidimensional frequency domain, made of many different frequency domains within. It is just that when you perceive one frequency domain you have the opportunity to describe or perceive it as a series of linear phenomenology, but that doesn’t mean that’s literally what it is – just how it is perceived in your sensory dimensionality, your third density reality.
Q: Do these lines run in a coherent fashion?
B: Yes they do. What we are saying is that the lines that are being described are only bits and pieces and fragments of larger frequency domains.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: The first thing I’d like to request is, if the timing is auspicious for an interaction with the beings from Tau Ceti?

B: Move on ... (audience laughter) ... though we will give you this ... one moment ... one of the strongest ways to pick up upon their frequency at this timing, is to more strongly identify with the life form on your planet that is already capable of being sensitive enough to pick up upon the leading edge of their consciousness transmissions. The life form already sensitive enough to translate and perceive the leading edge of their transmissions are what you would recognize as the tall pine trees.

Begin more interactions in identifying, that is, synchronizing your frequency with that of the tall pine trees – spruce and the like, that are already acting as antennae to pick up upon their energy. For it is a subtle thing now, and as you identify and lock, step and harmonize with their energy, that is, the energy of the tree, you will begin to act also as an antenna for the reception and orientation and clarification and incorporation of the Tau Ceti vibration.

Planet Earth and Nuclear Annihilation

Questioner: Do you see us killing our planet?
Bashar: Right now, yes, but not ultimately.
Q: No? How do you see us changing that?
B: It is our perception, at this moment, that you are basically forcing yourselves into a corner that will finally force you to face the idea that there are more beneficial and efficient ways to go about things. And that it is our perception that within, what you call, the next 20 to 30 of your years, as a society, in full recognition of that fact, you will then do so and transform your world very rapidly. Because once the recognition is made, then the changes can occur, historically speaking, almost overnight. So it is our perception of your energy now that within, what you call, the next 50 of your years at the outside, your society will be fully functioning as, what you would call, an equal member of the Association of Worlds, a fully unified planet – in love, light and harmony.

We also have already perceived – even though this may not be apparent on the surface of your world yet – that approximately 10 of your years ago you have made a general collective unconscious agreement that you will not annihilate yourselves through, what you call, nuclear means. All of the idea of, what you may now perceive to be, an acceleration of violence on the surface of your planet, in a sense, is the last vestiges of these ideas now being brought to the surface; because, in a sense, now you know it’s safe to do so, because all of this is not going to lead to your annihilation.

You see, we have used, what we call, to describe your world, your rubber-band analogy. You understand the device on your planet you call a rubber band, yes?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, let us assume that you have taken this rubber band and stretched it very, very, very far back into the depths of limitation and negativity, as far as you can possibly stretch it. Now you are on the verge of considering exploring the positive side. What do you think is going to happen when you let go of that rubber band? It’s going to snap very rapidly and very far onto the other side of positivity. Understand?

This is the threshold of what you are standing on as a civilization. That’s why many of you may be incredulous to understand, "Well, what do you mean 50 years? That’s all? We’re going to be a unified planet in only 50 years? But we’ve spent thousands of years getting to this point. Yes, you have. Because you have been doing it through the idea of limitation. Once you get the understanding that integration is that much more geometrically progressive and unified, you will understand that all it requires is, as you say, the blink of an eye to accomplish anything you want to accomplish, when you really put your mind to it. And you rearrange, what you may call, your priority. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: So, it is our perception that, in general, again though it may not seem apparent on the surface overall, you are matching the frequency of positive vibration. Only for this reason can we communicate with your world in the way we are communicating now. If, as a world, you had chosen the idea of the path of total destruction, in all likelihood we would not be capable of interacting with you as we are interacting now, because our vibrations would be far too unlike for us to be able to even find you. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Everything is a different frequency; every dimension its own vibration. Vibrations that are not alike do not even perceive each other. So you must exhibit some degree of similarity to our collective vibration, or we wouldn’t even be having this talk.
Now do understand this as well. And the only reason I can share this with you now is because we perceive you have made the decision on your own to not annihilate yourselves. Your planet is your own; you can do anything with it you wish to. It is our understanding that we will never directly interfere with the growth of a world; that to us, as you would say, is sacrosanct, sacred. You are your own life; you make your own decisions. We cannot interfere; we can only interact by your own invitation. However, to some degree, there is one exception, if you had decided to annihilate yourselves by nuclear means, it would not have been possible. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Because, since it is your world, you are allowed to do whatever you wish with it – as long as it remains in your own back yard. Global nuclear annihilation would tear holes in the interdimensional fabric of space and affect other civilizations that have nothing to do with you. That is not allowed.
But understand this as well: your government has been aware of this fact for a long time. And has actually been given physical demonstrations by many of the spacecraft of the Association that your nuclear devices, if they were to be activated, would not function.
Your government is aware of this; they know it. And now many more of your public is beginning to understand that your government has been aware of our existence for quite some time. And only now is much of this information coming out into, what you call, the public mainstream.
The more you open channels of communication – not in an attacking way, not in an accusing way, for your government is only what you have created it to be; your government is you. But if you open up lines of communication in a loving way that allows your government to know you are now willing to take responsibility for the information, then they can begin to share more and more and more and more of the idea of our existence. And not that that is, in and of itself, so important, but simply that they can then allow more awareness that you can function as a global entity, because it has been done on other worlds. And you can do it too, if you want to.
But this information is coming out more and more. And again, within, what you call, the next 13 of your years to 20 of your years, there will be almost not a living soul on your planet that is not aware of our collective existence. It will be taken for granted by them.
Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does this serve you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Well, thank you very much. It is our perception that there will be, perhaps, but a little time left for this interaction, this day of your time.
Planetary Affinities And Space Travel

Q: In the next century what do you see for the civilization on planet Earth as far as growth and government and that type of thing?

B: First of all, realize it does not matter what we see. Realize there is no such thing as the future; there is no such thing as the past. They are both created from your present. Realize there is no such thing, therefore, as a prediction of any particular future. Any prediction is simply a sensing of those conditions which exist here and now in your present, which have the most energy behind them – and as such have the most potential for being physically manifested. Do you follow me so far?

Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, you must realize ‘tis always up to you. You have free will, always, always free will. Your future is your future, not our responsibility, no thank you; ‘tis your responsibility. You have free will. You can make what you wish. I will say, however, that I can tell you at this time those portions of your overall mass consciousness, as you say, which have the most energy momentum behind them, all right?

Q: Thank you.
B: Therefore, you will find that in our view at this time, you will... all right, allow me to say this: if you allow yourself to feel this answer, you will have in a sense, your own answer. At this time, it is allowed to be able to tell you – though you will find there will still be many interpretations of this idea based upon your own understanding at this time – but we may tell you at this time that you may, in a sense, consider us to be, to a degree, your future selves. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. Thank you.
B: Thank you! Question.
Q: What interest do the people from the Pleiades have in our planet?
B: Oh, many! You will find they will coincide somewhat with our interests. Basically you may understand this idea: when you assist any other consciousness with their choice of allowing themselves to become more totally integrated, to function as a mass consciousness, then that realization, that awareness of mass consciousness, adds to the overall consciousness of the universe and, as such, gives every other civilization more to draw from, more to create within. Expanding you expands us, for we really see no separation between us. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Would that have answered your question?

Q: Well, they’re not part of the same triad though, are they?

B: No, quite a different system. You will find, however, that there are many, many, many affinities with many, many planets. There will almost never be simply one affinity, since all is connected to everything else. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you. Question.

Q: Is there anything that you would like to know from us?

B: Believe me, we are learning from you all the time.

Q: Okay. Is there anything that you would like to voice that you would like to know from us?

B: At this time we will continue with the questions.

Q: Okay. What is the nature of the chamber that you use for this channeling?

B: You will find ‘tis not always necessary. However, it will simply be a linkup with what you would term to be a self-aware computer, which amplifies our ability to transmit telepathic information. You will find that in our spacecraft, you will understand that they are operated by a similar linkup. In your terms, the mind of the pilot forms an identification with the mind of the ship, allowing the ship to exactly know where, in your terms of space and time, the pilot wishes to go.

‘Tis the ship which performs the function of removing itself from normal space, realigning its viewpoint or orientation, and then re-emerging into normal space at that new viewpoint without ever having traveled at all. Do you follow me?

Q: I think so.

B: ‘Tis quite simple. When you allow yourself to understand that space is not something that an object occupies, but is a property of the object itself, then you may, when replacing that property, that location, with a property of another location of vibration, realize that the object must, of necessity, at that point discontinue its existence at location A and take up residence at location B – since that is what it now identifies itself with, property-wise as you say.

There is no traveling in true space travel. What your civilization at this time is undertaking is, in a sense, sort of sliding around on the surface of space, not really traveling through. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Now, no offense, ‘tis very valid; ‘tis a portion of the understanding of yourselves at this time; ‘tis not really less of an idea; ‘tis very creative. There are many, many, many ways that many civilizations have of exploring that idea. Question.

Q: Well, it still bears upon the last question. So it seems to me that the propulsion of your spacecraft, then, is integrally related to this chamber that you use for channeling. Is that correct?

B: ‘Tis related. Realize, however, the relationship is in the self-aware computer, which allows for the amplification of our mental wave patterns. Do you follow me?

Q: No, not quite.
B: ‘Tis the amplification of our mental wave patterns which is then projected by that computer outward, telepathically. Do you follow me now?

Q: Yeah.
B: Are you sure?

Q: To a certain degree, I’d say.

B: To a satisfactory degree for you, yes, no?

Q: Is this like mental waves, or like electromagnetic waves?

B: All right, to a degree, yes. You will find that, once again, you may view every idea, every situation, as a variation of the vibration of the primal energy; solidified energy, if you wish, for what you term to be objects, but more appropriately standing waves, cohesive waves, cohesive vibration, forming, to your perception, an object. You will find that when this idea is simply looked at from another viewpoint, you will have those mental waves, telepathic transmission waves, which travel not at all. But similar to the idea of our ships, simply coexist at the point of origin and the point of reception simultaneously, without having traveled at all. Now do you follow?

Q: Yeah, I see. The propulsion of your ships is it like teleportation, or . . . ?

B: In your terms, I’ll say, very good, closer to that idea, yes. When there is a hyper-leap, ‘tis truly teleportation, there is no traveling. Realize, however, that it is simply a slightly different version of regular motion anyway, seeing as how you create yourself over and over and over and over again, every moment of time that you exist, so fast that you think you are one fluid motion. And so you are really teleporting from moment to moment to moment. We simply remove a few of the moments in between. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you. Question.

Q: Have you communicated to different groups of people in the mid-70s in Mission Viejo, California?
B: Do you mean our civilization specifically?

Q: Yes.
B: There have been a few individuals upon your planet, yes. You will find, however, that more often than not, what you will have will be various individuals sensing their own connections, and assuming that they are in a sense being contacted outside – when in all reality they are creating for themselves a surrogate consciousness with which to symbolize their own awareness of their affinity for that particular association. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you. Question.

Q: Would you go further with the explanation of that association? I’m looking specifically for some answers in relationship to . . . well I’ve had the feeling that I’m much more closely associated with your civilization than I had thought some weeks ago.

B: All right. First of all, as we have said: always – always, always, always, always – you may simply, if that idea of association allows you to explore further and integrate further all portions of your personality identity consciousness, then by all means continue to explore that avenue. You will find that it will have meaning; it will have benefit for you in that context. And as such, you may therefore assume that you can, in all reality, identify with our vibration that way. But realize that you have also chosen to be here physically, and that you must not discount your existence here as less than your association to whatever else you may feel associated to. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: All serve a purpose – that purpose which is your own purpose of your own choosing. And to eradicate one idea from yourself will be to cut yourself off from most of your own purpose. Nothing is greater or lesser, better or worse. All are exactly the ideas they need to be in exactly the context that you have created them and, as such, are perfectly functioning to allow and add to the momentum of your overall chosen path. Therefore, you may simply very comfortably continue to explore.

I will say that we will never give you too much information in that regard with your own associations; ‘tis your reality, your life, your path. We will not live it for you – no thank you. You will find that if we were in a sense to tell you certain things, you would focus only on certain avenues and ignore many, many other doorways that you would otherwise have explored. And we would be doing you a disservice of reducing you to a very limited focus of yourself. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: However, I will say: continue your exploration along those lines. You will be all right for now.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Planetary Neighbors in Other Dimensions

Q: Are there any planets in our Solar System, beyond Pluto, that we are not identifying with?
B: Yes.
Q: Are there many?
B: No, but also there are three which, in your estimation, are within the system, but which, within your terminology, are not literally physical.
Q: You mean we can’t see them?
B: Yes.
Q: But they’re there?
B: Yes. They vibrate in accord to another density, which you will begin to perceive later in time.
Q: But they are in our Solar System?
B: Yes.
Q: And they are beyond Pluto?
B: No.
Q: Oh, they are between Pluto and...
B: ... and your star.
Q: They are? So they are between, maybe, Earth and... Saturn?
B: One is, in a sense, within the orbit that you occupy. One is, in a sense, between what you term to be your planet and Venus. One is, in a sense, between what you term to be Mars and Jupiter. But understand that they occupy different dimensional densities at this time.
Q: Okay, and as our density changes or expands, will... are there living human, human forms on these planets?
B: Two, but only in another density.
Q: Right... very interesting.
B: Understand that in a particular density, to another being approaching your Solar System not attuned to your density, the Earth may appear barren as well; or not even there.
Q: And in your Solar System, do you have a sun like we have?
B: Oh, yes.
Q: Two?
B: One.
Q: Who has two suns?
B: You will understand that Sirius will have a bright central star, with what you term to be a white dwarf encircling it.
Q: And in that way we think of it as two suns?
B: It is considered in that way, to some degree, a binary.
Q: Is that why George Lucas had two suns in his series, in his Star Wars series?
B: Not specifically. Understand that that individual was simply reflecting an idea considered by your consciousness to be representative of the idea of “exoticness.” (Laughter)
Q: How many planets are in your Solar System?
B: Seven.
Q: Do you have a moon, like we have a moon?
B: We have no moon.
Q: Oh, does that mean you have no unconscious?
B: What? (Laughter)
Q: We symbolize our moon with our unconscious.
B: So what? Can we not use another symbol?
Q: What is your symbol?
B: Space.
Q: Space is your unconscious?
B: Yes.
Q: Wow, that’s even better than the moon. (Laughter)
B: It has served us as your symbol has served you, no better, no worse. It is simply a reflection of what we consider ourselves to be, as you give yourself all the reflections that you think yourselves to be. We, like you, are also the third planet from our star. So is the one in Sirius, the third planet. Three threes.
Q: That’s our triad?
B: Yes, are you surprised?
Q: Not at all.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Planetary Reflections and Accessing Knowledge

Q: For a long time I’ve been exploring the symbols of Astrology.
B: Yes.
Q: Before I came here I thought that...the closest I got to my understanding it was that maybe we were co-creating it with the planets as archetypes?
B: In a sense, you are.
Q: But now you’ve kind of opened up a new exploration for me. Can you give me some more insight into how...specifically, for example, I notice that a lot of my friends who want to come here with me have planets at 23 Libra; which in our Zodiac would be where Spika, Arcturus are.
B: Ah, in this way, simply recognize that our basic fundamental understanding of the tool you call Astrology, from the point of view within your system, is that it is your, let us say, equation representation of the vibratory energy that represents the agreements that have been made between all the individuals within your society, collectively. You follow me?
Q: Oh, yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Who helps make up those agreements? Do we all do it together?
B: Yes.
Q: Is there no master planner?
B: Yes, all of you together is “THE MASTER PLANNER” of your system.
Q: Do we do this in our dream states?
B: Many times, many times in what you call in-between lives, and at any given moment you are actually doing it because you all exist on all different levels, simultaneously.
Q: Then how would we all pick planets at 23 Libra if we wanted to have this type of experience?
B: It is not so much that you pick it in that way, you simply are that vibratory agreement. And thus, the physiological symbol that represents that idea is reflected to you in the externalized universe.
Q: Okay.
B: Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. Can you tell me more about 23 Libra, and how it has to do with you and all of you?
B: It will be, to some degree, some of the idea of the balance of polarity, and in this way, with specific regard to what you call Arcturus, will also be the cognition for emotional balance. It will be representative of a potential of high emotional activity, coupled with very, let us say, rarefied and/or esoteric service in many different ways. You follow me?
Q: Oh, yes.
B: Thank you. Perhaps there may be more we can discuss on this at another time.
Q: I hope so.
B: You what?
Q: I’ve got tons of questions; whenever you are ready just let me know.
B: Whenever you are ready to answer them, perhaps, that is when the discussion will take place.
Q: Okay.
B: Do not hope, unless you choose to. And remember: if you choose to hope, hope implies despair; hope is not knowing. You follow me?
Q: Ah, yeah, it’s . . .
B: Are you sure?
Q: I’ll have to think about what you said . . .
B: If you hope something will happen, you are not sure. You are despairing that it might not . . . so you think that you have to HOPE! Simply know what reality you are, know what is true for you, and you will not need hope, because you will simply know. You will have the knowledge that you seek. Recognize that a question is the answer, judged and removed from you. But you are giving yourself the opportunity to recognize that if you can ask a question, it is a reflection that you already contain the answer, or the concept of the question would have never occurred to you. You can only conceive of what you contain. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thus, every question each and every one of you has is an indication that you already are the answer, but are judging yourself not to be. So you create a reminder that you are the answer, and you call that reminder a question.
Q: Well, that’s true, sometimes I feel that we . . . that I know everything, but it seems that it feels very arrogant. You know?
B: No, no, no, no, no. You know everything you need to know to function as the being you chose to be.
Q: Right, but sometimes I feel a seepage of another being that knows, and it is . . .
B: There are always going to be cognitions of what you call mind different levels, but understand: no being in the universe knows more than you about what you need to know to be you, because you are the only you. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: That is all there is to it.
Q: But what if . . .
B: It may be that their scope of perception may be broader than your own, but that does not mean that you are not aware of all the things you need to know to continue to function as you. If you did not know even one fragment, even one small variable, if you were unable to know even one small variable of the idea it takes to be you, you wouldn’t be here. Because you need the total equation to be where you are. You follow me?
Q: Thanks dad.
B: You are welcome, my child. (AUD: much laughter) Sharing!
Q2: What you just said was that I don’t know and I don’t have access to all the knowledge of the universe, that I only have access to that knowledge which enables me to be me. And to do those things which I have chosen to do.
B: Simply, by the definition of the reality you have projected yourself into. It is not that you do not have, let us say, connection to All That Is but perhaps, you have limited your access so that you can in fact function as the being you are choosing to function as, in this reality.
Q2: Since, on the other hand, the universe is holographic...
B: Yes.
Q2: ...then we do have all the information.
B: Oh yes. I did not say that you did not have it, I simply suggested that you, many of you, create inaccessibility to much of it, simply because it does not serve you to be who you are. But you have total accessibility to ALL the information that lets you be who you are, in the reality you have chosen to be.
Q2: Yeah.
B: Thank you.
Planetary Service and ET Connections

Q: I’ve had my attention on a spiritual matter: some communication with some friends elsewhere, off this planet. I see three beings, bald heads, out there somewhere, and I seem to have attention on whom these beings are (AUD: Could you speak up a little bit?) I have attention on whom these beings are, and I get a sense of friendship and peace and pulling me that way.

B: Yes. Skin coloration?

Q: Sort of greyish.

B: Yes.

Q: White.

B: White. Yes. (AUD: laughs). Have we ever told you what we look like? (AUD: laughs) All the males have no hair. Our skin is white, whitish-grey.

Q: Yes. And are there sort of almond shaped eyes that go up?

B: Yes. Do you sense largeness about the eyes?

Q: Yes.

B: Yes.

Q: Yes, I see it; but the ones... I sense a delicateness somewhere.

B: Oh, yes.

Q: And I guess there’s an aesthetic quality there somewhere and I want to know…

B: Oh, thank you. (AUD: laughs)

Q: I feel like they’re my friends and I’ve felt this for some time but I’m not quite sure why I see three.

B: Because we form the idea of a triad and we work in threes all the time.

Q: Oh. (Other AUD: laugh).

B: The idea, once again, as it has been expressed, is that a triad formation, a triangular formation, first of all, is the primary fundamental geometric that will always occur in second density and third density. The tetrahedron is the most basic fundamental form of manifestation in third density that you can have in physical reality.

The idea of Sirius consciousness, our consciousness and your consciousness forms a triad consciousness, so that the idea is that two are always supporting the one in that way. Our civilization works in threes, in networks of threes in that way; always upon the principle of forming the triad for support in that way; the two to the one.

Q: I see. And in terms of…

B: Our craft, scout craft, and also triangular.

Q: Oh, I have one more question.

B: Yes.
Q: In terms of this feeling of wanting to go there or a feeling...
B: Or having been there.
Q: Or having been there. (AUD: laughs). It’s just sometimes I feel like I’m not... something about an uneasiness with being here, in terms of even my body and its function. That it’s a little alien.
B: Yes.
Q: In terms of...
B: Yes.
Q: ...being comfortable.
B: Yes; but do not judge it. You have chosen to be where you are, to be of service in the way you wish to be. You simply, now, as you are forming more awareness of the connections, may at first, because of the habit remnants of judgment that you have picked up in this society, you may form an uncomfortableness for a while, simply because you are now making connections to other places that you also are connected to. It will pass.

The more joy you put into the recognition that the connection you are realizing is to be of service on this planet, which you find yourself to be on now, the easier you will fit into the clothes. (AUD: laughs).
Q: Okay. That’s good because I really feel there’s a communication that helps between the two points, and I think I want to just bring them together as a purpose or goal.
B: Thank you. Many of you, once again, visit our level of consciousness many times, and bring back what you need to bring back. Sometimes that is simply more awareness.
Q: Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you!

Playing Together as Equals

Q: I’d like to say that you’ve been a great inspiration to us all.

B: Well, all of you have been a great inspiration to us as well.

Q: So I want to thank you for that.

B: And we thank you. Allow us to remind you that the entire purpose for sharing these perspectives and points of view with each and every one in your civilization is to remind you that you have the ability to do in life what excites you the most... you have the ability to live your passion and to live your dreams. When you choose to know this and when you choose to do this, that’s when you can see the kinds of changes upon your planet which you thought would not be possible to occur in such a short period of time, transforming your planet as if overnight, historically speaking, and allowing many different kinds of magical, miraculous occurrences to take place. When you choose to know this you can transform and change the things in your lives you don’t prefer to the things in your lives that are reflective of whom you now know yourselves to be, individually and collectively.

There are no obstacles, no impediments, no barriers that stand in your way – except, perhaps, some of your assumptions or beliefs or what you have been taught to "buy" into your life; perhaps something you fear to face about yourselves. But all you can ever discover is only another aspect of the Self you already are. And since it is only yourself, there is no reason to fear, no matter how unexpected, no matter how surprising your discovery may be, it is only another aspect of you. So do not fear; you are only meeting yourself.

And when you expand by being willing to meet more and more of your self, your physical reality can do nothing but expand along with your new perspective. Guaranteed, guaranteed, guaranteed. Go ahead with your joy; go ahead with your passion. Do those things; do them with integrity. They will support you, guaranteed. But only when you act on them 100% then the Universe in turn supports you 100%. It is up to you. You are in control. Only you. Explore, explore, explore!

Yes, your world is changing rapidly and will change even more rapidly now in this new decade. I can absolutely guarantee that even within, what you call, the next three years your world will find itself in many different areas "turning completely upside down." Be prepared for a ride. There are many things that are going to take even the most open-minded of you by complete surprise. But enjoy it, because you are doing it. It is only more of you revealing more of yourself to you. The bubbling-up of your consciousness to the surface so that you can choose the reality you prefer, so that you can become one, absolutely one, and yet absolutely the individual that you uniquely are.

You already work. You already function perfectly. Just remember that; just act like it and your life will reflect it. Absolutely. And if there is a process involved in discovering this, accept and acknowledge the process as who you are. It is all beautiful; it is all wonderful; it is all miraculous. Love yourselves, all of yourselves. You deserve it. Absolutely. You deserve it. Guaranteed.
Q: I’ve never experienced the energy that I have felt here tonight. Can you tell me if I have a connection? And also, how can I maintain this energy and focus?

B: Understand that what you are feeling is your own energy. When we connect in this way we give off a particular frequency, a particular vibration. But you match that frequency in order to perceive it. We radiate it but you have to respond to it in order to feel it in your physical structure. Therefore, you are showing yourself that you have this level of energy available to you all the time. And, it is your own energy. It doesn’t come from us even though we might "key" it for you. So, how you maintain the energy is knowing that it is not something that you have to maintain, as if with an effort. It is yours; you can create it any time you wish to feel it; just call it up and it is there. Knowing it is your energy to begin with can make it very easy for you to do this.

In recalling the energy what is actually happening is you are creating that energy in the present. Understand, memory is created in the present. And when you recall, "Oh yes, I remember how it felt," that is a trick of your language. If you remember how it felt, you are feeling it right now. So all you have to do is remember how that energy feels. And what you’re actually doing is creating that energy for yourself right now. Recognize it is your energy; you can use it in whatever way, shape or form your imagination desires to create your own reality that excites you the most. Isn’t that wonderful?

So yes, in this way, we are assisting with the acceleration of your world but it is your planet; it is up to you. We will always assist by sending different orchestrations of energy, different vibrations of energy that will prepare and assist in your planet’s acceleration towards creating a world of peace, harmony and joy. Do remember, do remember, we are always radiating energy to you; there is always communication and information going on between us. Whether expressed verbally to us or not does not matter.

Also remember that in these conversations we are having with you there are many levels of this conversation which you are receiving. The one you are hearing with your ears, you did not hear everything with your ears. Pleasant dreams to you, and never assume that the things we discuss with any of you end when the discussion is over. The conversation always continues forever in all the ways, shapes and forms that it needs to. Things will "leak in" when you open a door, if you choose to open that door. Some of the conversations we have had with you most likely will start to come out in your dream realities when you let your consciousness relax and stop analyzing so much.

Let your intellectual selves relax and assume that you have absorbed exactly what you need to absorb and that you are changing in ways that are absolutely in-line with the ways you prefer to change, and at the pace you prefer to change. Allow yourselves to assume that there are no parts of your consciousness that will sneak-up on you; there is no outside. Assume that you are not a collection of parts but rather, one integrated whole. And as you decide, so shall the whole of you be. There will be no part left out for you are not a collection of parts; that is an illusion. You are a 100% Whole Being – always.

Remember: be open. Only those things that serve you best will be absorbed by you because that’s what you say you want. The things that have nothing to do with what you desire, the things that have nothing to do with your positive growth won’t be absorbed. Why? Because you say so. It is no more complicated than that and no more difficult than that because you are the Creators of your own reality, because you were made in the image of God. What you say goes. The vibration you are is what you get. We are exceedingly grateful to all of you to be allowed to interact with your civilization in this way. It has expanded us in many ways and you have given us a great gift. You have allowed us to experience the gift of your consciousness in its unique manifestation and that enriches us as well. Believe me, we take what we learn from you and apply it in many different areas that help many other beings other than those on your own planet. You are very powerful teachers for many other civilizations because you have chosen to "do it the hard way," by exploring negative limitation to an amazing degree, and therefore, another civilization might look at you and say, "They still find their higher consciousness? Even through all that! Well, if they can do it... I can do it!" [Audience laughter]

We thank you ALL, very much. We thank you for strengthening the relationship that we and you are together. And we thank you for allowing the relationship to be so creative, for all of your sharing. You are a gift to us. We thank you for visiting all the other versions of yourself and for allowing more aspects of your own consciousness into your life – so you can grow and grow and become one big happy family. Thank you very much for that.

Know that interacting with you allows us to see that many more ways that the Infinite can create itself to be, and thus, expands our understanding of Creation. We thank you for this opportunity. We are most excited to interact with you. All the beings that are telepathically connected to me that are sharing this endeavor send their love as well.

We thank you for functioning as representatives and ambassadors of your society and for allowing me to function as a representative and ambassador of mine. Bit by bit, day by day, such interactions will co-create a conducive atmosphere in which we can meet as equals, face-to-face, in which we can share in joy and love in the exploration of the expansiveness of All That Is. We thank you for this opportunity. We are overjoyed to know that you may allow yourselves to create a day wherein we can all play together as you would and explore Infinite Creation together.

We remind you that you are dreaming right now. Wake up and live the dream you prefer. Understand that you are always making choices. That’s your free will. If you do not prefer what you are choosing, redefine it; choose something else. Then lock the new choice in by acting as if the new choice is now the real reality. Do not play "what if,” play "what is."

Be bold. Be who you are. Be in joy and enjoy yourselves. Believe in yourselves. Be all there is to believe in. Live now; it is the only time you will ever exist, no matter how many lives. Even though you are eternal beings, it is always only going to be NOW. Create the NOW you prefer. Remember, you are dreaming right now. Go to sleep and wake-up in your dream, and live the dream you prefer. It’s always your choice.

And, we thank you for allowing us to play together. For we, you, all beings, all aspects, all expressions, all dimensions – all are children of the Infinite. Remember to have allowance for yourself and others.

Can this be sufficient for you and can you absorb the rest on your own for now? There will be more.
Always, there will be more.
Q: Yes, I will do that. Thanks for everything.
B: No. Thank you.

Playing with Dolphins
Q: Bashar?
B: Yes.
Q: I’ve been doing some telepathic communicating with dolphins. Can you give me any guidance that would help me amplify that?
B: Absolutely! At your soonest opportunity, go and physically play with them in your ocean. Learn their environment; let them learn yours. Really become friends in that sense. Really interact in every way you can. Let them rub off on you. All right?
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. And at this timing, allow us to project to each and every one of you, once again, our deepest appreciation, our unconditional love, and our ultimate ecstasy at being granted this opportunity to interact and share and co-create this dream time with all of you.
Remember that you are all dreaming right now! Wake up and live the dream you prefer to, because your physical reality is only what you dream it to be! We thank you for this gift. Our love to you all. A fond and pleasant good day.
Pleiadian and Earth Families

Q: As I’ve been studying the night sky a lot lately, I’ve noticed how different quadrants of the sky seem to either stand out or twist in a different way from the rest of the sky.

B: Yes.

Q: In particular around the constellation of the Pleiades there seems to be a square with a series of arrows and vectors, which seems to represent the idea of a map for a certain way of interfacing with the work with the ships.

B: All right. Very good!

Q: I’m wondering if you can comment on that particular map and how I might work more directly with...

B: You are sensitized to what may be referred to in your language – although they are not exactly direct terminologies from one language to another – what may be called the gravitic, dynamic, tensor-field maps that connect your two dimensional planes. You are seeing the eddies and the currents of the gravitational vectors through which communication is taking place. Let us say, you are sensing the path of least resistance, in symbolic, equational terms through which telepathic communication is taking place between your respective civilizations. Are you getting this?

Q: Kind of... kind of.

B: You have an affinity for that civilization. And out of what may be called your higher awareness – or if you wish, your memory – you are seeing, you are creating for yourself a visual, an inner visual symbolic interpretation, of the linking energies, the equational energies, that represent the vibration of your civilization and the vibration of their civilization, and the common factors that tie the two together. You are sensing the lineage that you each have.

Do understand that, quite literally, the Pleiadians are your respective brothers, sisters and cousins. Literally. The Pleiadians and you are offshoots of the same root race. We are not. But they are – with you. And that is why the Pleiadians will be among the first to re-contact your civilization, because it is the rejoining of families that have not seen each other for thousands of your years. And that is why these “corridors” are beginning to make themselves apparent in your consciousness.

You are beginning to sense, in physical terms, what you know in non-physical terms. And you are bringing symbolic representations into your physical reality to let you know there is something more here, there is something reinforcing, something that makes this seem a little more solid, than this over here. It is an overlay of your knowing self and your physical, conscious self starting to harmonize with the connections you know you have.

Do not be surprised to also learn that many of you have counterparts there – parts of the same soul. And what you may be perceiving are, in Earth terms, symbolic interpretations, subconsciously, of direct telepathic conversations going on between you here, and you there. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, and I feel that there is a task, if you will, to either...
B: You are doing what you need to do. Simply continue to open your heart and act upon your instincts, and you will find that it will be no task that requires effort.

Q: Well, there is a lot of joy in it, not necessarily effort.

B: Yes.

Q: It appears that the symbols are not transferable.

B: Not directly, but you still will understand their essence if you do not try too hard to think about them. You will feel the meaning. You will allow yourself, once again, to identify as that energy. And you will then learn that what you are doing is becoming that, here. That is what creates the bridge – when you become that, here: Heaven on Earth. Then all within Heaven, so to speak, can interact with you. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Does that assist you?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Pleiadian and Earth Families
POINT OF VIEW – A New You

Q: Good day to you.
B: Good day to you. Speak up so that all may share.
Q: Honestly.
B: Honestly.
Q: The only way I can express it is... you say that you’re a reflection of us?
B: Yes.
Q: To ourselves.
B: Yes.
Q: I’m having a very hard time not hiding from myself.
B: All right. What do you feel that you are hiding from? What is it about yourself you feel the need to hide from? Can you define it for us?
Q: No.
B: Will you, as you say, try?
Q: This is, quote/unquote, the problem.
B: The quote/unquote, problem. You mean the problem is... even discovering what it is you are hiding from?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. May I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much. If you are not aware of what it is you are hiding from, why do you assume there is something?
Q: I feel the energy of pushing something down – I don’t know how to express it, except that it’s like something comes up, and I push it away.
B: All right. But do you remember that all feelings are reactions to beliefs?
Q: Yes.
B: Then if you believe there is something there, how can you help but feel there is something there?
Q: Okay.
B: Would you prefer to believe there is nothing...?
Q: Yes.
B: ...that is there?
Q: Yes. Yes.
B: All right. Can you act as if that is so? All right, one moment. Let me rephrase that, just to make it a little bit easier: can you imagine what it might be like to act as if...

Q: Yes.
B: . . . that were so?
Q: Yes.
B: All right.
Q: Thank you.
B: Then imagine it; imagine it now. Imagine how you would be if you believed there were no such portion that you would be hiding from. How would you be? How would you be different than you are now?
Q: Free.
B: In what way free? How would you express it: free? Can you define or describe a difference in an action you are doing now, and an action you would be doing then?
Q: Now at this moment, or now – ?
B: First define how you act now with the idea that you are hiding from something. And then imagine the difference in how you would act if you no longer believed that there was something to hide from.
Pick a particular scenario and define for us how you would act – both in believing there was something to hide from, and then in action in a way that you know there is nothing that you have to hide from.
Q: Whew!
B: What would the difference be? How would you recognize the difference? How would you know you were no longer hiding from something?
How would you recognize it in yourself? What would you see yourself doing that would give it away that you are no longer hiding from yourself?
Q: I wouldn’t be afraid of people.
B: Of people. Define people. What are people?
Q: In relationships…
B: Relationships. Yes?
Q: I would just sense the release and the flow of the energy.
B: Release and flow. You mean the share of the exchange?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Now you obviously have some concept of what that ought to be like.
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Why not simply act in the manner of your strongest and clearest concept of what that would be like? And let everything else take care of itself as a detail?
Q: So, okay. I am doing that now more and more.
B: All right.
Q: Then I will go with that, and not worry about the way I have thought of the problem.
B: So you are saying that you have changed in a positive direction.
Q: Yes, yes, yes.
B: Can you now relate – make a comparison as you say, of the idea of the way you used to be, to the way you are now? In other words: do you remember the way you used to be, as opposed to how you are how? Did you use to be more fearful?
Q: Yes.
B: All right.
Q: Extremely.
B: All right. So focus on the difference now. Focus on the amount of change you have undergone – from then to now. Have you got that?
Q: Yes.
B: Now, project that. Project the same amount of change from now until some undetermined amount of time when you will be yet again that much more different.
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Can you see the you, you will wind up being if you apply the same amount of change to yourself now?
Q: Yes.
B: Let yourself immerse in it, let yourself revel in it. Explore; play for a moment – we will give you that moment – feel the energy of what it would be like to be that you.
Q: Okay. All right.
B: Can you feel it?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. How does it feel?
Q: Fantastic.
B: Then you are that you now – right now. You are that you. Because you are creating that energy now.
Q: All right.
B: Now: it’s up to you – right now – to decide whether or not you wish to go back to being the old you, you were a moment ago, or whether you wish to continue to be the you, you prefer to be now.
Q: No question.
B: All right. It is that simple.
You can change that easily, because remember your persona is only an artificial construct anyway. You, at any given moment, are defining who you wish to be. The decisions you make, stick.

Q: Mhmm.

B: That’s it. Be the you, you prefer to be. Imagine what it would be like. Let yourself get excited about being that you. And as soon as you find yourself feeling the energy, recognize that you couldn’t be feeling that energy if you weren’t already that you right now. You cannot feel the energy of someone you’re not. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: You are that you now. You are that you now! YOU ARE THAT YOU NOW. Act in the manner of that you, this you right now, the you you prefer to be. Act only as this you.

Now, if for any reason, any reason at all, this you decides – this is important: if for any reason this you decides to momentarily act in the manner of the old you, it will not be you becoming the other old you; it will not be you slipping back to the old you.

It will be this you, deciding to momentarily replay, or recreate, another idea. But it will be this you doing it, not the old you trying to be the you, you prefer to be. It will be the you, you prefer to be, momentarily playing a scenario of an old you, you no longer prefer.

Q: Got it. I got it! Beautiful. Thank you. (Applause)

B: All right. Point of view is everything. Point of view is everything. Anything you go through: it’s all right to go through it. But go through it from the point of view of the you, you prefer to be. That’s all you have to do.

Q: Got it. Simple.

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

B: Sharing.
POINT OF VIEW

B: Point of view is the _only_ thing. I will repeat this. Point of view is the only thing that creates different realities. You follow me?
A: Yes, but could you explain further?

B: Yes, point of view creates all the differences within one overall _general_ reality, which is also a combination of many different realities, simply sharing _similar_ ideas, _to some degree_. Each and every one of you, _by agreeing_ as you have, previous to the creation of this physical reality, to _abide by_ the structure of this physical reality, to play your game, have agreed to a part of a certain equation, a symbolic equation. Now you, because of who you are, because of the _idea_ that you choose to be, express the overall equation in general terms as similar to everyone else’s version of that equation. However, you will have your variables within it, and it is those variables that determine that you are not the same as someone else – even though you may be sharing a similar reality. You are not actually in the same reality, at all. You are your own _perspective_. The only one reality that _all beings_ in the universe share, truly, is the simple state of beingness itself.

Existence is the only thing that is the same for everyone. It is the only one reality that everyone actually does literally share. Everything else is your symbol, your definition of existence, your perspective, your point of view and your created version of existence for the purpose of being and exploring that particular point of view – that particular way of looking at existence. As you have said, “Each and every one of you are all the different ways All That Is has of looking at itself.” But All That Is is what everyone is. That is the one reality that is true for everyone. THE TRUTH is composed of _all the truths_ within it. You all follow along?

Points of View

B: All right, I'll say: how are you all this day of your time as you create time to exist?

AUD: Great. Good. Etc...

B: We thank you for co-creating this interaction this day of your time with us. And as a beginning we shall lay down a foundation that we would like to entitle "Points of View." The idea that we will now reflect to each and every one of you is the whole notion of points of view.

Each and every one of you, of course, knows yourself to be an individual. Each and every one of you has your own point of view about the idea of life, about the idea of your experiences within life itself. But the idea has, for a long period of time in your society, usually been looked at in the following way: that life, physical reality, is somehow empirically separated from you. And that your point of view, your perceptions are the perceptions of life, in other words, perceptions of something that already exists apart from you, without you, in addition to you. Or that you exist in addition to it. And that it really isn’t, in any way, shape or form, connected to you nor you connected to it, except by the idea that you find yourself existing within the experience of physical life.

Now, however, your society is undergoing a vast transformation of perspective. Even your own physicists are beginning to understand that what you have for so long called physical reality is actually nothing more than an extension of your imagination, an extension of the definitions you have been taught to believe that physical really is. And what seems so solid to your physical senses is only solid because you also contain a definition within your belief system that it should be so.

Therefore, with this new understanding, with this growing awareness in your society, it can begin to be understood by you that what you have for so long called a point of view is not so much just an observational tool, but is actually the creative tool itself. In other words, you begin with a point of view; you begin with a belief system, and that is what determines the reality you get.

Now, the physiological reality you get may then, through your senses, allow you to have experiences that will reinforce the original belief. But because that original belief is sometimes unconscious, you may not be aware of the fact that you had that belief to begin with in order to have created the experience you are having. The belief must come first; the point of view is always there first.

Because first and foremost you are primarily simply a consciousness, a self-aware aspect of creation. Consciousness, being self-aware, can view itself from many points of view in many ways—in an infinite number of ways, in fact. Any one and all of these infinite number of ways are all equally valid ways that the self can view itself, or experience itself. No one way is more true than any other way. They are all created from perspective, and the strongest belief, the strongest definitions of reality, the strongest perspective you have, utterly determines the type of experiences that you create in your reality. Those types of experiences, as we have said, then work to reinforce the original belief you had, so as to accelerate, so as to solidify, to crystallize it so that you can gain momentum, so that you can expand that reality.

Every point of view generates its own self-sustaining, self-perpetuating system of belief, system of feedback, system of experience. So that while you are in one point of view, that seems to be the only point of view that is real. That’s why there is so much conflict and argument and dichotomy upon your planet – because you have not yet realized that all the different points of view and all the different realities that many different individuals on your planet are perceiving and insisting on as being the one true reality are actually all simultaneously real, all simultaneously true. And that there is no one truth, no one reality against which you can measure other ideas for their relative validity.

There is a common reality, a common existence to all. But that common existence is simply that – that you all, in fact, exist. The only, shall we say, rule or law governing the fact that you all exist is as follows – and it covers everything and infiltrates and intertwines with everything – and that law is this: what you put out is what you get back. That’s it.

The idea, therefore, is that every specific experience that you have ever had is the result of your existence, your self-awareness in that existence, and of radiating a certain frequency, radiating a certain pitch. In other words, putting out a certain idea, and therefore receiving as an absolute truly representative reflection an echo of that radiation. And that echo is what you are perceiving as your experiential physiological reality.

Now, what this means is that while you have, for a long time perhaps, been creating those realities by holding unconscious beliefs – not being in touch with the idea of why you are getting the type of reality you are getting when you say you desire something else, and not understanding how it is you keep getting what you don’t want. The idea simply stems back to the fact that many of the beliefs that perpetuated the original reality are unconscious, that you are not in touch with them, that you don’t know what the definition is within you that would create such a reality.

Therefore, the whole idea in examining your point of view, in being clear about the definitions you hold within you, is that once you get in touch with what the definition is that has been creating the reality you experience, you can change it, you can rewrite it and make it a conscious act, not an unconscious act. And in making it a conscious act, you yourself can finally realize that you are constantly, and forever will be, capable of writing the formula for the reality that you prefer. And that you will get it because the universe has absolutely no choice but to give you exactly what you put out. So it is a matter of being in touch with what it is you are putting out, what frequency, shall we say, you are broadcasting on. Because that is the program you get reflected back.

Therefore, whereas in your past it may have seemed that that point of view is simply a matter of objective observation, it is now beginning to be understood that that point of view is everything, that it is subjective. There can be an objectified approach to things, but there really is no such thing as a truly objective point of view, because anything by definition that is a point of view is subjective. And everything you experience, if you are experiencing it, must be by definition also subjective – no matter the style of your approach. So everything you experience is a product of your subjective understanding of yourself, your beliefs about yourself, your definitions of yourself, the ones you have been taught since you were children to buy into.
Many of you now have arrived at points where you realize, because you are now, shall we say, thinking on your own, that the old belief structures no longer fit the you you prefer to be. And so you go through many ideas of re-examination and re-evaluation of the old ideas that perhaps your parents and peers sold to you, in that sense—not meaning to be derogatory—that you had to buy into in order to survive under their care.

But now the idea is that some of these ideas are so ingrained that it may take a long time before you can change over to the realities you prefer, to the definitions you prefer, to the beliefs you prefer, simply because you have never been taught that the realities and the definitions you had to begin with are already the product of your own making. You have been taught that "This is the way it is!" and that "These things are difficult to change!" and that "Any kind of change or any of idea that really would give you joy in life is something that you have to struggle and strive for and with a great deal of difficulty to achieve!"

These are also only definitions; they are not RULES OF THE UNIVERSE! They are not chiseled in the fabric of space of time. There is only one that is so, and that is the one we have already shared with you—that what you put out is what you get back. That is the actual definition of the structure of existence, and that’s all there is to it. Everything else, as you say, is your ball game. Even if it is an agreed upon one, even if it is a consensus reality, For even though you are an individual, you have obviously made agreements unconsciously, telepathically with everyone else in order to experience any degree of similarity between all the individual realities you are creating for yourselves. So when two individuals get together and say, "There is a chair." "Yes," says the other individual, "there is a chair," you are agreeing to support that common reality. One individual could very easily say, "What chair? I don’t see a chair. What is a chair? I don’t know what you are talking about.

These individuals, the ones that do not go along with the majority consensus reality are the ones you usually call insane. It doesn’t mean that what they are perceiving is actually any less real than what you are perceiving. The things they say they see are the things that are there, and they are not hallucinations. To them they are solid realities. They are simply not the mass agreed-upon reality.

And the main reason why many of those individuals do not understand how to integrate their perception into the mass consensus reality is because, once again, they have been taught from a very young age to believe that if they did not buy into the consensus reality, then they were somehow cut off. They were somehow not to be listened to. And so the channels of communication between them and your society are shut down, and they lock themselves in a self-perpetuating cycle of that particular world, and have no ability to communicate or integrate or apply what they are perceiving into your common reality as well. But what they are perceiving is nonetheless just as real, just as solid as anything you have ever called real and solid in your lives.

Now, this notion of point of view, and the definitions you have within you that creates your reality, serves as the foundation for all of our interactions with your society and your species. The idea at this time is that your society is going through many transformations, redefining itself not only as individuals, but as a collective whole. These redefinitions, in our perspective, are taking you in the direction similar to directions we have explored in our past.

The idea is that you will not do it the same as we did it, but we can share with you some of the ideas, some of the experiences that we have had. We can share with you what has worked for us, so that if you want to, if you choose to, you can perhaps adapt – in your own way, with your own power and your own imagination – the same experiences in your life. And you can understand that what has worked for us can work for you – if you choose that. It is up to you.

At no time are you ever expected, in any way, shape or form, to consider our point of view to be more important than your point of view. We see you as equals. We see you as different, and we are different from you, alien in many ways even as you are alien to us. But the idea nonetheless is that we are the same type of spirit, the same type of consciousness, and we are all a part of the Infinite Creation. We all exist. And what is true for everyone across the board is that what you put out you get back.

So we give you unconditional love and room to grow in your way, room to choose for yourselves, whether you wish to interact with us or not. And what type of realities you do want to experience upon your planet is completely up to you. We cannot interfere; we can only accept an open invitation of equality when your world functions as an equal world.

However, these interactions do create a more conducive ability for us to interact with your world, and bit by bit and day by day we are arriving close to a point where there may be far more potential for us to, shall we say, interact face to face in a physiological manner – but only when you meet us half way by co-creating with us the vibration that is necessary to create a middle ground in which we can both exist with our own individual definitions so that one will not overwhelm the other.

However, this is exciting for us to interact with you in this way. And to us it is a gift to be allowed to experience the way in which you have chosen to express yourselves, the way in which you have chosen to represent your aspect of the Infinite. We thank you for this gift.
Polarity Aspects and Lightening Up

B: There is an idea we have heard expressed from time to time in your civilization from some of the more serious minded of you. Not that we, in any way, shape or form, are offering the idea of proof at this timing of whom we are, for that is not the idea. It is the idea to remain unobtrusive; to share the information so that the ideas are what you will be focusing upon and not who is delivering them.

But some individuals have expressed in their thoughts the idea that interactions between your civilization and another civilization perhaps should be a little more “dignified.” (AUD: laughter) All right. I can be just a somber as any of you. (More laughter) However! Nobody said that what you call extraterrestrials don’t know how to play! And you will find, in all reality, that it is through play and through laughter that you will create the closest bond with us.

Just as with the dolphins upon your planet. They know how to play. And they can be very loving guides to teach you all how to play, in whatever way, shape or form, you desire. And so, recognize that in the majority of these interactions, even when you are perhaps perceiving from us a somber attitude, a straightforward delivery of information, we are always laughing.

And many times we will simply tailor the way the information comes because we perceive you feel that you need to hear it that way to allow it to sound believable, and so you will not think we are laughing at you. Never are we doing that. We cherish you and we enjoy you immensely. And so we thank you for being such a source of joy.

And so, on that note, let us play. Sharing!

Q: Good evening, how are you?
B: Perfect, and you?

Q: Very good. My question is... well, about three weeks ago I was involved in channeling session, with another entity, and we were talking about Orion...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and some experiences that maybe I’ve had there and on the Pleiades as well...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and some healing abilities that maybe I possessed at the time. And then the entity said that you wanted to talk to me, so now I ask you, what would you like to say?
B: Thank you. It is simply a reflection to each and every one of you to recognize your connection to the particular frequencies you call Pleiadian and Orion, which are the polarity aspects of each other.

Blending them backwards if you wish, as a linear representation, into the systems you call Lyra, many, many, many of your years ago. Before what you may call the split into Orion and Pleadian.

The idea is to simply recognize that it is our particular agreement, or there is a particularity within the agreement we have made, to be of service to your planet at this time, to reflect and represent some of the original choices and agreements that were made specifically within the Orion systems.
For we are “geared,” if you will, to allowing the idea of the original Orion energy, some of which may have been steeped in negativity, to find its fulcrum, to find its balance within the understanding of the triad structure of all creation. The polarity and the third point of balance that allows there to be transformation and change.

The whole idea of this blending and this balancing is to simply, truly very simply, always understand, that the second you do with integrity the thing that excites you the most, then you will be allowing for the strongest blending of the polarities to take place within you. Now, we have found from time to time, that the idea also of certain systems that have been created upon your planet, and very strongly specifically the one that is referred to as scientology, will have been, in a sense, a system created by Orions, for Orions, to allow them to assimilate to the idea of the Earth’s vibration. In ways that were similar to the way they assimilated and understood the Orion original vibrations to be. This does not mean that other individuals who have other connections cannot use that system, or have not used it. But it was simply originally created... and much of the ideas of analysis on your planet stem from, some of the ideas of the original Orion filtering.

Therefore, to some degree the way in which many individuals perceive the concept you call science, in and of itself, upon your planet, stems to some degree from a trickle down effect from some original Orion vibrations. The analysis, the idea of the high focus of awareness in what you might call an analytical nature.

The idea simply that we wish to share, and to recognize that our service automatically attracts, is the opportunity to reflect back to each and every individual that is dealing with that particular connection, that the control is always within you – as to some degree you have already discovered for yourselves.

Simply, the attraction at this point and the drawing together, functions as a reflection of something that is now “after the fact.” Something that functions as a reflection of things you have already begun to integrate. Just so much that we can function as a “marker,” if you will, for individuals to know that they are keeping the agreements they have made. And by continuing to accelerate those agreements by doing what excites them, with integrity. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. And the other thing is about a dream I had...
B: Yes.
Q: ... about three or four months ago.
B: All right.
Q: I was encountered by a family and the devil was going to possess me, and the family was possessed already... and I awoke and as I woke up I took a sip of water and lit a cigarette. And before me, an eight foot etheric being, very old, stepped out of thin air. What is that?
Who is that? Is it me?
B: In a sense, yes. But the idea is also to recognize that what you typically call, or what you typify as “the devil,” is simply the negative polarity of the combined consciousness of your entire race, of your entire world – your family. And therefore you gave yourself the opportunity to recognize that there really is no strong distinction between the dream reality and the physical reality. They are representations, different representations of the same reality.

And so, that gave you an opportunity to see the manifestation of that heretofore ethereal projection of your consciousness, an opportunity to see the polarity in actual manifestation. To recognize that you call those things forth out of the immaterial into the material, solely based on the attitude, the beliefs that you are in any given moment.

So it was an opportunity to see the polarity idea, to see how those dream realities bridge into physical reality, how physical reality is but an extension of the dream. So in a sense, yes it was you, but also more accurately, it was an archetypal representation of the collective portion of your consciousness that represents that idea. That ancient belief, a very, very ancient and old belief.

It sometimes can be expressed as the negative from of the dragon.

It sometimes can be expressed as the positive form of the dragon.

It is the ancient, almost the most ancient symbol your planet has to represent the combined collective consciousness in either polarity expression on your planet. Does that serve you?

Q: Very well, thank you very much.
B: Thank you, and exciting dreams to you. Sharing!
Q2: I want to thank you for what you said about playfulness and laughter.
B: Yes!
Q: That strikes a deep chord within me.
B: Oh, thank you for allowing me to play your tune. (AUD: laughter)
Q: It’s my pleasure. (Laughing) I was speaking to an entity/friend about the idea of levitation.
B: Yes.
Q: And it occurred to me that seriousness and somberness have to do with gravity.
B: Yes.
Q: And a lot of mass and weight.
B: Yes!
Q: Whereas laughter and levity have to do with light and they are very spiritual.
B: Yes. Uplifting isn’t it?
Q: Absolutely! And I find myself flying in my dreams quite often...
B: Yes!
Q: ... and enjoying it so much. And the minute I find myself flying I know I’m dreaming.
B: Yes.
Q: And I’ve taken to saying, “I know I’m dreaming,” and then I’ll say,
“lucid dreaming.”
B: Yes. Now will all of you do me a favor? All of you, all at once. You do not have to, but you may find it fun.
Repeat after me: Oh!
AUD: OH!
B: Right now
AUD: RIGHT NOW
B: I am dreaming.
AUD: I AM DREAMING.
B: Thank you!
AUD: (Much laughter)
B: It is very literal, very literal. You are all dreaming the physical reality dream. And the whole idea, as many of you are discovering, is to wake up in that dream, to create it to be whatever you prefer it to be. Because it is only a dream.
Q: One of my favorite things that Bob Dylan said was: “I’ll let you be in my dream if you’ll let me be in yours.” So I want to thank you and everyone here for being in my dream. (AUD: laughter)
B: Thank you. One moment...
Q: Yes.
B: ... one moment. Though we cannot share much at this time, (1987) to let you know what the connection was, but the individual you have mentioned by the name of Robert will have some interesting accelerations within the next twelve of your years.
Q: Robert?
B: Dylan.
Q: Oh! Bob. All right. (AUD: laughs and comments)
B: For the individual as we recognize him already has had a profound effect upon your planet.
Q: Absolutely.
B: In this way, recognize there will now be for this individual within the next three years, an acceleration; and four years after that a very different approach, a very different approach, as we perceive the energy now. And to some degree interconnectedness with more things in a different way.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you for opening the door so we may have perceived that portion of the momentum of your planet.
Q: Who is speaking?
B: It is, as you recognize, I... but with an overtone connection. For now, that will do. All right?
Q: Yes. Very perceptive, thank you so much. I felt very strong connection with that energy...
B: Yes.
Q: ... with that being and the viewpoints that have been shared.
B: Some of it will have very strong connotations with regard to the dolphin consciousness.
Q: I love it!
Q: I can hardly wait.
B: Sharing!

Politics on Future Earth

Q: What is the world and America like in your time?
B: Your planet?
Q: Yes.
B: In our contemporary time zone? (approximately 300 years in our “future”)
Q: Yes.
B: The idea is that there isn’t so much the concept, specifically, of what you call America.
Q: Oh.
B: It is recognized as a region, and in many cases is still referred to as a region, but it doesn’t really exist politically.
Q: Are there politics at that time?
B: Not in the sense that you have it now, no; your planet, in my contemporary timeframe, is a member of what you call The Association of Worlds, and functions as a single planetary system. Even though it is allowed – through the recognition of the balance of diversity - it is allowed, in that sense, it has allowed its own culture to remain defined for the richness of the diversity the different cultures produce. But it is not political.
Q: Thank you.
Polyhedral Structures

B: Let us recount and illuminate the idea of how the polyhedron structures that you are exploring can be utilized in a variety of ways, to enhance and increase and expand your understanding in your ability to connect to other dimensional realms of information within and without you. Let us recap the regular polyhedral structures.

First of all, you will find that there are actually, in total, of those that we will discuss this day of your time – nine. There will be six that will be physiological, there will be three that will be higher dimensional.

Now, more often that not, you will hear on your planet of the five regular solids, specifically meaning, what you refer to as the five platonic solids. Again, specifically meaning that they are associated, their recognition, in a sense, their, quote/unquote, discovery is associated with the entity that you call on your planet Plato. But there are actually six regular solids. One of which was not known to Plato, but has been since recognized by your civilization.

Let us begin with the six physiological, regular polyhedron. Number one: The tetrahedron, being in a sense, a four-sided structure, or not counting the base, a three-sided pyramid, but including the base, four sides, and each side being an equilateral triangle. This you have. Yes?

Audience: Yes.

B: All right, next what you call the cube. Six sides each of which is a square. This you have, yes?

A: Yes.

B: All right. The next being the equilateral octahedron, eight sides, in a sense, that you would recognize as, again, equilateral triangles, the equilateral octahedron. This you have. Yes?

A: Yes.

B: This would be like what you would call two, four sided pyramids stuck together at the square base. You follow?

A: Yes.

B: All right, next you usually count the concept of what you would call the dodecahedron. Yes? But, do you have two dodecahedrons or one? There is two. There is the pentagonal dodecahedron, made of twelve pentagons. There is the rhomboid dodecahedron, made of twelve rhombus shapes, which are diamond shapes. So there are two, twelve faced polyhedron, two types of dodecahedron. You follow?

A: Yes.

B: All right, you can experiment and we will get to this in a moment with constructing the rhomboid dodecahedron, we will explain how to construct such a figure in a bit. All right?

A: OK.

B: All right. Moving on to the final sixth regular polyhedral structure, you have the twenty sided figure, twenty triangles, equilateral triangles, that you call the icosahedron. You follow? Yes? Yes?
A: Yes.

B: All right, thank you, thank you, wanted to make sure that there was someone on the other end of this transmission. Is this true?

Have you not, up to this point, explored the idea of the regular polyhedral solids? Yes.

Q: We’ve been concentrating on the tesseract.

B: All right, that is number eight. But first number seven – and now we enter the dimension of higher realms. What you have now is what we call the tetragramaton, which is like a tetrahedron, in that it appears to be a four sided figure made of four regular triangles, in that sense, equilateral. But, unlike the typical regular tetrahedron, you can now understand that each of the triangular faces, each of the four, is actually the base of another whole tetrahedron pointing inwards inside the structure, as if each face were a completely separate tetrahedron contained within the overall outside tetrahedron. This is because each face is actually the side of an inter-dimensional tetrahedron and they all overlap, all of them overlap. So what you have here is, again, a twenty-sided figure in that you have the overall tetrahedron, the outside one with four and then you have four of four, sixteen and four is twenty. You have another twenty-sided figure but it is twenty sided in another dimension; not in your dimension, it only is, in a sense, four sided in your dimension.

The next, the seventh, is the tesseract. That is the cube or the hyper-cube, as you may call it. Again, the same principle applies, and this is that each square space is the side of a completely different cube. So you have, in a sense, seven cubes. A whole cube outside and each space represents another completely different cube making another six. And therefore, you have forty-two faces in this particular polyhedral structure, but, again, most of them are in another dimension. Again, it would be like you have a cube and you can image that you can step into any face and be inside the cube as if it were simply a hollow structure. But that is what would happen in your normal three-dimensional cube, you would simply step through one of the faces and be inside the same cube. In the hyper-cube, in the tesseract, any face you step through would actually put you into a cube separate from any other cube, you step through any other face to enter. Each face is a side of a completely different cube. They are all intersecting but they do not interact, they do not meet. If you step through one face you are in cube number one, if you step through another face you are in cube number two, and the things that are contained in cube number one, if anything at all, will not appear inside cube number two when you step through face number two. This is the whole concept of the higher dimensional polyhedral physics.

The final, in that sense, is really simply what you recognize as a sphere for in that sense it is unidirectional. You have this, in a sense, even in your own reality and it can be said to be the idea of the zero point, even before the tetrahedron in physical terms, for when you step in a sphere it is the same in all directions. This is the same in the higher dimensions as well. Again, however, when you step into the hyper-sphere you now have an infinite array of possible realities that you can experience because each point on the surface of the sphere is really a completely different sphere. So while in the physical reality the sphere being the zero, not the one, will simply be that you step into a ball and it is the same ball. In the higher dimensions the sphere will be an infinite array of realities, an infinite array of spheres contained within the same sphere. So you have the zero and infinity at either end of the spectrum of the interim eight, or an octave of polyhedra. Are you following along so far?

A: Yes.

B: All right, close enough. Now, so the progression in terms of the sides, in terms of the faces that is, will be, starting with the physical sphere, zero. And, then you will have the tetrahedron for four. Then you will have the cube for six. Then you will have the equilateral octahedron for eight. Then you have two dodecahedrons, two twelve faced figures. Then you will have the icosahedron for twenty. Then you will have the tetragramaton for twenty, again, forming the bridge connector from physical to non-physical reality with the same number of faces inward as the icosahedron has outward. Then you will have the idea of the tesseract or the hyper-cube for forty-two. And then you will have the hyper-sphere for Infinity.

So this is the count then as you have it: zero to the idea then of four and then six, and then eight, and then twelve/twelve and then twenty/twenty and then forty-two and then Infinity. Now the idea herein is to understand that these forms are some of the most basic structures in what you call nature, physical reality. They are some of the underlying templates, or if you wish, building blocks for how things arrange themselves in physical reality. And what this means is, they arrange themselves not only atomically, even sub-atomically, but also on a larger scale, a macrocosmic scale, even relationships of energy follow these patterns in general. This is not to say that there are not other patterns but when you are talking about the regular ones, i.e., ones that have faces that are equal to every other face. These form the basic skeleton of the underlying template of how things are arranged or the relationship that exists throughout many different dimensions that are all connected to your particular universal reality, physical and etheric. And, in that sense, the hyper-dimensional connections as well, but we will concentrate and focus on what will be most applicable to your reality, since, of course, that happens to be where you’re focused at the moment.

So let us begin by understanding that one of the ways, and it is only one, one of the ways to use these forms is, whether you do this in your imagination, in your minds, in your mind’s eye, so to speak, or whether you create some kind of media format in which to view this occurring, will not really matter as long as, simultaneously to any assistive tool you may be using outside, you also will allow this to be going on in your imagination at the same time. When you can begin to imagine or visualize these forms inside your mind, inside your imagination, when you can see them in your mind’s eye, dimensionally, and you can begin to move them, to turn them, to spin them, to rotate them in your mind, you will find that they actually have the capability of making changes within you. First of all they will make energetic changes. Secondly, they will actually instill neurological changes. Thirdly, they can even instill physiological changes within you. They are like skeleton keys and when you can hold the form in energy, strongly, and begin to associate with it strongly, and begin to move it in space and time, then it will move you in space and time, you will go along with it, it will carry you, in a sense, into different orientations, different perspectives, allow you to perceive and access different dimensional perspectives of informational reality.

So these are the keys turning in the locks; and as you become more proficient at turning them, then you will find you will be able to open more locks, open more doors and begin to perceive through inspirational methods, through meditational methods, through artistic expressional methods, through many different creative methods, you will be able to perceive INSTANT insights and perceptions of things you here to for had not imaged. And you will find that you can also use these to take these new perspectives of information and figure out ways to apply this information, to adapt this information to your physical reality to create new things, to have new ideas, to apply new methodologies, to create new results, new effects in your reality. This is the primary utilization that we will be discussing, there will be other utilizations that we can also, perhaps, touch on in this first preliminary discussion about the use of these regular polyhedra. But for now in having laid this basic foundation, let us begin…

Positive and Negative – Good and Evil

Q: Do you believe that there is a dark side, an evil force, and if so what form do you think it takes?

B: Oh, thank you very much. There is always positive and negative energy. Now to us by definition, mechanically speaking, positive energy is that which integrates, that which unites, which unifies and functions as a whole, which blends, which harmonizes. Negative energy is that which separates, segregates, is in your terms, discordant. It seeks externalized control because it does not believe that control comes from within. It seeks manipulation, domination, because it only perceives power as being expressed in externalized terms. That is positive and negative energy.

The reason that we hesitate to use your terminology of right and wrong, and good and evil, is not because we do not understand what they mean in that sense, nor are we saying that more often than not your terms don’t apply to the idea of positive and negative, usually they do – usually when we perceive you saying right and wrong and good and evil, you usually do mean positive and negative energy.

However, the terms good and evil, and right and wrong, are extremely subjective value judgment labels and don’t always tell you when an energy really is mechanically positive or mechanically negative.

All of you who stop and think about it for a moment, will realize that there can be individuals doing things that are very positive and unifying, and yet there can be individuals who say: That’s wrong! That’s evil! And there can be individuals doing things very negative, very segregating, very dominating, and someone can say: That’s good! That’s right!

So, saying its good or bad, or evil, or right or wrong, doesn’t really tell you very much about what is actually happening on a physics level. However, yes, there is consciousness in many different levels that expresses the idea both of positive intention and negative intention. However, most of the idea of negative intention can only be expressed on what you would call lower levels of vibratory states, such as physical levels and a few of the levels in the astral realm just above it. Beyond that it is almost, in your terms, impossible, to express negative energy because by definition those other levels are in and of themselves, integrated energies. And to be existing on that level in a conscious format you must be an integrated being. Which means you will generally not express yourself in a negative sense.

Now, what you generally call a manifestation of directed evil, or what you call the devil, or what you call Satan, in your world, is the polarized idea of your collective consciousness – supported by your fears and your doubts and your hate, and given life. It is, in a sense, a consciousness unto itself, but it only carries its strength from you, from your fears, in that sense. You can deflate it by not believing in it, by not buying into it, by not fearing it. The vibration of fear itself, is what that consciousness would want you to have. Because fear is what feeds it, what sustains it, as an entity unto itself.
In a sense, speaking biblically as you say, the negative combined collective consciousness of your entire planet is what you call Lucifer.

It is the negative polarity of the Christ Consciousness. That is why the idea of the scenario that was created for you biblically of quote/unquote, Christ being tempted by the devil, is simply a metaphor, an analogy for the idea of the Christ Consciousness recognizing within itself the potential to give in to the negative side, but recognizing that that is not the positive idea it is, or chose to be.

So recognizing that there is the positive side and the negative side – and then what you would call the in-between state, the balance point – you can understand that creation, in a sense, is actually slightly biased to the positive side, because the center point is a point of balance and balance is inherently positive. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: So the idea basically, is that again remember, you are aspects of the Infinite. What you imagine to be real, you actually give life to. So the idea of what you may call a negative entity – they can have lives of their own, they can have existence and self-awareness – but the only way you can interact with any negative consciousness is by being of that frequency and attracting it. And one of the easiest ways to be of that frequency and attract it, is to buy into the idea that you have to fear it because you really believe that its more powerful than you are. It isn’t. It would like you to think so, because that’s what generates the fear it needs to feed off of. But you aren’t less powerful.

Whatever you decide, is what you are; and whatever you are, is what you attract. And if you know you decide to be a reflection of the positive manifestation, then you may be able to be aware of the fact that there may be negative manifestations, but they can never interact with you in an effectual way. You will become literally invisible to them. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Does this assist you?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Well, thank you very much!
Q: Regarding the laws that we agree to abide by within our universe: does functioning within your integrity mean living up to those agreements?
B: It depends. The overall agreements do not necessarily have to be restricting, if something that you know represents your excitement and integrity can actually alter them in many ways. If they are then alterable – what you are referring to as “laws” – then that, in and of itself, may be a sign of your ability to express your integrity by being able to allow them to transform them into something else. Because, when you are totally integrated as a whole, then there are fewer and fewer limiting specifics. You follow me? So, the alteration of the so-called laws may actually be an expression of your integrity, in certain circumstances.
Q: Suppose an individual were to go out and kill a hundred people because that’s what excites him?
Suppose . . .
B: But understand, the idea, again, is that “with integrity” means that you are functioning as an integrated being. Integration is functioning as a whole, meaning there is no separation between you and the beings you are killing, in other words, the recognition that all murder is suicide. And if you wish to truly be empowered, then killing off those beings is like hacking off your own arms and legs. And that is not an expression of integrity or power.
And also, when you use the term excitement in that sense, usually you will find it is not precisely excitement that motivates individuals in that direction. It is the negative polarity of the same energy that creates excitement, but the negative polarity is usually expressed as anxiety. You follow me?
Q: Yes. Suppose the victims agree to be victims?
B: That does not excuse the perpetrator for not being strong enough to not fall into the victim’s game.
Q: What would be the consequences then, of violating integrity in this fashion?
B: Perhaps you will create another scenario wherein you will have learned that a violation of integrity, in that sense, does not serve to empower you. And then you will express a lifetime maybe, or an experience where you will be the expression of integrity.
Some individuals may choose to have other individuals attempt to violate them as a sort of quid pro quo exchange. That is not necessary all the time. An individual who murders an individual in one life does not necessarily have to be murdered in another life, although many have sought the balance in that way. An individual can, perhaps, talk someone out of murdering someone else, and fulfill the same balance. Do you follow me? But the overall idea of course, on every fundamental level, is that to the oversoul all experiences are learning experiences.
And since you truly are infinite and indestructible, no matter what you have done, whether it be positive or negative, whether it be an expression of integrity or an expression of lack of integrity, you will still exist; you will still learn; you will still grow; you will still change; you will still have new experiences.
So in the overall sense, it does not really much matter what you have done. But it is simply up to you to understand that your own life, with the expression of integrity, will be far more joyful, far more connected, far more effortless. And you will be able to create, without any struggle whatsoever, all that you desire.

In expressing lack of integrity, you will find that an individual who does that will struggle, will suffer, will feel powerless, will feel out of control, and will create many, many, many versions of their own expression of negativity within themselves, and not allow them to enjoy life. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Is self-imposed karma, then, a way to balance out the integrity agreements?

B: Sometimes, although karma, being completely self-imposed, does not have to manifest in a retribution-style manifestation. Again, the analogy that karma itself is simply the carrying through of a momentum to create a balanced experience.

Again, if you have been a murderer in one life, your self-imposed karma does not insist that you be murdered in the next life to atone for that. You may be able to assist someone, either who has had someone close to them murdered, or someone who wants to murder and you may be able to talk them out of it. And that will be just as much an expression of your balance and karmic imposition as being murdered. And many times just being murdered is not necessarily a true balance.

Q: The balance is something that’s like an absolute that has to be maintained, but the karma does not. That’s something that you don’t have to have if you don’t have that belief system. Correct?

B: In a sense, correct. But the idea simply is, in the fundamental understanding of karma, is that you will usually – since you a collective event – balance the idea out somewhere within your experience on some level. And that is all karma really is – is simply the overall recognition of all the balance that you are, all the polarities that you are.

Q: Where did someone like Adolph Hitler come from? I don’t understand...

B: He came from your society; came as an expression of the combined and collective fears, and perhaps, some self-imposed karmic balances, in a negative way, that your society placed upon itself.

It was an individual who did not feel their own self-empowerment, and so, in your terms, fell into the adoption of the negativity that was sensed in the society, and expressed it as a reflective mirror back to the society – to show the society what the combined ideas of its fears and negative attitudes have been able to create.

Q: That was not functioning within integrity.

B: No. Because it was segregative, separative, domineering. That which needs to dominate does not believe it is in control already.

Q: Okay. Thank you very much.

B: Does this assist you?

Q: Yes, very much.

B: Thank you!
B: All right, I’ll say: continue!
Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day.
B: Yes.
Q: And there is a chart there that really attracted my attention and my interest. And I became aware that I felt like I understood it, but not intellectually. So I would like to ask you to explain it a little bit more.
B: All right, in a simplified way. Which one?
Q: This is the positive and negative manifestation.
B: Do you mean the idea that contains the notions of winning and losing?
The idea simply is: as you read it off, then individuals can create – as you already know – positive methodologies or negative methodologies, to teach them what they wish to learn. In other words: they can learn through effortlessness, or they can learn by creating the idea of struggle. Different degrees of this idea are simply represented by the listings on the chart, all the way up from the idea of winning through to the idea of losing. Now these are your notions – the notions, the labels – you have applied to these concepts. And that is why we have used them in that chart.
Individuals can simply win because they know they win; they can lose because they believe they lose. And all the variations in between – of playing to win, which makes it take some time; playing to not win, which makes it take more time, and always keeps, as you say, the carrot out there. Because you enjoy the idea of getting there – rather than being in a certain place – more than having the idea.
Then there is the idea of playing to not lose, which is just below that middle line. Which in that sense means that you are, quote/unquote, just barely keeping up with everything. You are not really, quote/unquote, losing; but you are never rising above a certain level within your own estimation of self. There is always just enough, but never an expanded idea of the more that you see.
Then there is the idea of playing to lose – which means you’re not really losing so much, but you are playing the game. You are creating a repetitive cycle in which it seems you always give yourself a boost up, only to create the idea of crashing back down.
And then there is simply the idea of losing, reaching what you have termed the bottom of the barrel, which can, in a sense, connect directly into winning to the completion of the cycle. Because, as we have said, when you reach the bottom of the barrel, everywhere else is up.
So it simply represents the polarity spectrum of the different mechanisms that people can use to create methodologies. It is a different way of understanding how individuals look at themselves, and the particular overall formats, or categories, of the type of energy game they might be playing – based upon what they believe to be most likely in their reality. Does this clarify the idea to some degree?
Q: Yes, it does. Where is, “just playing?”
B: Oh, it is all of those.
Q: I see.
B: All of those are playing.
Q: Uh huh. All right. Then, on the other side of the chart, it refers to... that’s not clear. Is that positive action? Or just positive...
B: In other words, the positive side is action, and is represented by the ideas of winning, playing to win, and playing to not win. Those are the positive sides; they are above the line, so to speak. All of that is the positive side, and it is represented by action. Below the line, as you say, is the idea of negativity. And that is re-action.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Does that explain the idea?
Q: Yes, it does. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: Okay, bye for now.
B: All right. Hello again. Sharing!

Positive and Negative Methodologies
POSITIVE MANIFESTATION

We have discussed many times that sometimes when you see events occur, both in your personal life and events occur on the planetary scale that seem to say, "Oh, things could not get any worse," we remind you, once again, that because of the structures you have created in the past, it will be necessary for these structures in some way, shape, or form, to break down in order that they can be reconstructed. How you experience these structures breaking down is up to you – whether you experience them in a negative way or whether you experience them in a positive way is up to you.

And the idea is that it is all a part of the orchestration, all a part of the picture of your planet at this time; and that each event is connected to every other event, whether you can see that on the surface or not. Knowing that it is will help you to allow yourselves to see how they all blend, how they all fit, what your part is within the whole picture and how you can assist your world, as well as your personal life to accelerate towards positive reality, positive outcome.

We again desire to reinforce that we are not just speaking in flowery terminology, we are not just saying these things because it sounds good to your ears. We again, always wish to stress that these principles – the idea, the concept, in and of itself, of creating a reality of joy, constant joy, positive manifestation and ecstasy, is not too good to be true. That this is actually a practical and pragmatic way to live, that this is the way the universe can work for you if you choose to let it do so. Because, in that sense, you have been created with free will, you have been created with the power to choose; you are reflections of the Infinite Creator and what you say in your reality does stick, if you believe that that is the most likely choice that will manifest.

It is a matter of exploring, as we have done many times in the past, the ideas of your beliefs, beliefs that you may no longer require in your life, beliefs that may no longer be representative of who you prefer to be. And in discovering those beliefs, to transform the definitions of those beliefs into what you prefer them to be – and so see your lives reflect those changes physically, in physical terms, so that it changes in the way that is representative of the life you wish to have.
Positive Transformation

Q: Last Friday night I put my hand through the glass pane on the front door and cut my hand and my arm.

B: Yes.

Q: And my roommate and I spent a very interesting evening in the emergency room of the local hospital.

B: Yes.

Q: And I was wondering how I had done this for my benefit? When I first did it I didn’t feel it, and then when I saw what I had done, I had cut my wrist, which to me was symbolic of suicide?

B: All right.

Q: And, uh, I haven’t really found a satisfactory understanding for myself.

B: All right. There is no need to be impatient. Once again, first of all, before we proceed with this idea, do recognize that many of you if you do not have the answer right there within the very next second will say: “Well I can’t get it.” Recognize that many things will fall into place, always, if you are simply willing to trust that they do have a place to fall into. Now, where that will be is very different in every given situation.

But simply understand and trust, first and foremost, that all situations have a reason for being in your life, and whether it is a reason for fitting into what you already understand has already happened in your PAST, OR whether it will fit into something that has not yet happened, it will fit within the entire scheme of your life span.

So recognize, let us say, a given situation may not manifest understandability on the conscious level until, perhaps, because of the timing, many years down the road. But then, when you arrive at that point, then you will say: “Ah, now I understand why that fit in, and I understand why I could not have understood it any sooner.” You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: However, in this case, you can always allow yourself to recognize that it is, at least as far as we perceive your energy, one way of showing yourself that you are passing through barriers. But also showing yourself that you still believe that the passage through those barriers has to be painful, and has to result in the idea of a death of a portion of yourself in a negative way, rather than a positive way. You follow me?

Q: No.

B: A portion of the you – in that sense, the you that you were – has died, and you are no longer that you. You are different; you are literally a new personality.

In this way, simply, what was being shown, at least on one level, is that you had within you a belief, an inherent belief, that you had been taught and had bought into that transformations of a drastic nature always requires some sacrifice on your part.
Q: The same as committing suicide, is that what you are saying?

B: In a sense, the idea that the old you has died, but also that your idea of any transformation, any death, which is a transformation, has to be the idea of a negative one.

Now, you can recognize that one of the things that this has served is to allow you to know that you are no longer that you. You have in fact died. You are now reborn, in a sense. And you can allow yourself to recognize you are no longer the you that has to go through any transformations in a negative way.

You do not have to shed your life’s blood; you do not have to go through trials by fire in order to know that you can allow yourself to go to the next level, to go through your barriers. You do not have to crash through them. You can merge with them and be on the other side smoothly, without shedding one drop of your life’s integrity. You follow me?

Q: Yeah.

B: Integrity is the key. Integrity. Allow yourself to know that you are an integrated being, and that everything around you is you. You are a part of it; it is a part of you. You can merge and blend with the symbols; you do not have to crash through them. You do not have to break them in order to feel that you have passed to another level. They do not have to break you. You do not have to render and render the membrane that you consider to be the membrane between your inner and outer self, your skin.

You can allow the inner and the outer to be one thing, and then any transformation you make will be a transformation of ease, of blending, of merging. It does not have to be shocking, shattering, tearing. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Also, for you, it was a symbol of a manifestation of a past life. You have now completed a cycle, because in a past life you chose the idea of suicide. And you have now reached that point and surpassed it. You have gone beyond. That represented the point at which, if you had followed the same path as you did in the previous life, you probably would have committed suicide again. But you did not.

You have taken responsibility for your life and, therefore, you have created more life to live. You have passed through an idea of yourself, and are no longer the old you at all. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Doorway upon doorways, in your dream reality and in your physiological reality, will now begin to open. Enjoy them. Enjoy allowing your physical reality and your dream reality to merge. Enjoy living your dreams. We thank you.

Q: Thank you.

Positive Transformation
POST TECHNOLOGICAL ADVANCEMENT

Altadena 8-30-97

Now, understand something, all of you, very important: as certain people on your planet have realized when you arrive at a level of understanding not that you have to necessarily pass through this route, but if a civilization takes what you call a technological route, as your civilization has done, eventually as you gain more understanding that everything is resonance and everything is vibration. Your technology will arrive at a point where it will actually begin, in a sense, to appear to reverse and will actually become more simplistic, more natural. You will require less devices and less artificiality to achieve the same ends. Not that you necessarily, again, pass through the technological route to understand this, for many individuals simply have never taken the technological route, and understand innately that simple, natural objects when utilized with the correct understanding are as or more powerful than any technological device would ever be. One individual on your planet is well known for having uttered a famous phrase, this science fiction author has said: "that any sufficiently advance technology is indistinguishable from magic". And if you look around at what you call your indigenous cultures who practice the idea of magic. If you understand it from the context of a culture that has already gone through it’s technological understanding and arrived at the understanding that what they are using now is a more advanced technology, simplicity advanced technology, you will have a different appreciation for having utilized the simple objects in nature, such as a tree branch, such as a leaf. You will understand them in resonance terms, in vibrational terms, and will see them as nature’s extremely advanced technology. You will know how to extract from them the powers, and vibrations, and energies that can get a lot of things done—that a technological civilization might require a vast array of machines to do. So when we talk about the idea of creating such effigies, such resonant identifiers, understand that what you are doing in that sense, if you understand it from this point of view, is quite advanced. Though most people on your planet, in your culture especially, would consider it to be primitive and pre technological. In fact, it can actually be post technological. Do you understand it?

Q: That’s very beautiful.

B: Yes.
Potential Earth Realities

Q: Can you give any information in terms of the Reptilian interactions and if they’re genetic, if they’re energy exchanges, primarily?

B: There is some, but not much of that on their behalf; for the most part they are interacting with the Greys in a variety of functions and capacities. They are, in that sense, in some ways, peripheral to the main agenda, and though they have their own agendas as well, they are in no way, shape or form as sweeping as the Grey’s agenda.

But they are of assistance in some ways and they are into their own agendas for themselves, forming some congruency with the Grey’s agenda and your agendas as well.

Q: Okay, so basically they’re interacting but it is not necessarily genetic on their part.

B: No.

Q: Okay. It seems that the opinion of the fact that we may have irreparably damaged our atmosphere…”

B: In some senses this is true.

Q: Like the ozone is possibly to the point where it cannot be rectified? I mean that’s sort of the word on the…

B: Again, the idea is that in your dream states now, in your vibrations now, and it must be understood, it must be understood, it must be understood, it must be understood – do you understand? – IT MUST BE UNDERSTOOD…”

Q: I got it.

B: …that what is about to be given, in allowance, is not meant, in any why, shape or form to take away responsibly of the actions that need to be taken on your planet that would GENERATE your ability to shift into another dimensional earth.

In your nocturnal co-interactions with each other, you are sometimes, in many cases, generating frequencies in the etheric template that are representative of, shall we simply say, parallel reality earths that are more representative of the vibration of the earth that you wish to be on. And then, in that sense, moving in increments toward that earth, or becoming in that sphere of earth.

So, in that sense, you could say that on one hand, one earth’s atmosphere may be irreparable, but it doesn’t mean that another earth’s atmosphere is not.

Q: Umm.

B: But it still requires the action of responsibility upon your part in your physical reality to GENERATE the momentum that will reinforce, in physical terms, what it is you are setting yourselves up to be capable of shifting to, in your dream template etheric reality levels.

Q: So could it be possible that may be those who are consciously attempting to make a difference and become self-actualized might even shift into another parallel reality on earth and not even know that they are there really?
B: Yes.
Q: Ah, because it just seems to me that having a probable reality... in that case there are many probable realities.
B: An infinite number.
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you?
Q: It is so overwhelming, it is almost more than you can think out.
B: It is designed to be more than you can think. That is why sometimes, perhaps, it is best not to think but to just be.
Q: Yes. And predictions by Courtney Brown and Ed Dames seem to be conflicting which I find rather fascinating, but, then again, there are so many realities and so many possibilities...
B: Yes, and what we have said is, as we have already addressed this issue, to some degree, is to allow yourself to simply recognize what it is you are being given an opportunity to identify with, as the definition of a reality that is your preferential vibration. They are none of them – wrong – they are as you intuit – sensings of different potential realities that are all now, concurrently, in the mix.
Q: Ah, okay, because, I mean, some of it is pretty ominous, it is like living underground in five years, and biospheres, and then...
B: As we have said, many potential reality thresholds are now equally in the mix. Choose thou!
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Power Spots
There are many places on your planet that are called "power vortex points"; very strong electromagnetic aligning energies are in those areas of your planet. When you go to those places you feel yourself immersed in the frequency of those areas. You can allow the energy of the place to align you if you match its vibration. Then anywhere you go on Earth, if you create that vibration, then that place will be where you are and all that are with you can feel the energy of that place. You will be like an extension of that energy spot. All you have to do is use your Imagination and allow yourself to feel like you felt when you were in that energy spot and you will then be that vibration. This can be a way to prepare yourself before you choose to do a healing with someone else.
You can do the same thing if you wish to create any form of art. You can re-create that vibration and then create the form of art that you feel is representative of that vibration. Then that piece of art will have that vibration locked into it.
For example, if you know that your Mount Fuji or your Mount Shasta area is one of the power spots of the planet, you can create that vibration in anything you do. If your artwork then creates the vibration of that place all who come in contact with your artwork will be standing in the vibration of Full. Nature is always very balancing, very healing. Take advantage of the vibrations it provides for you. Many of you already understand that to gaze upon a beautiful tree or a beautiful flower creates a healing vibration, a centering within you.
So understand that when you see representations in art of objects that have a certain feeling, then the vibration of that object is really there. This goes hand-in-hand with what we discussed before about the world being a metaphor, a symbol. You can use the idea of the metaphor, or the symbol, to actually create a healing and balancing vibration because all physical objects have a unique vibration even a symbolic representation of that physical object has the vibration of that object in a specific way.
You see, you are creating physical reality anyway. A physical object is already only a symbol of a vibration within your consciousness. So in some ways there really is not much difference between vibration of a tree and the vibration of a painting of the same tree. You can work with your symbols in this way to generate a balancing atmosphere, even if you are not in physical proximity to the object that is represented by the symbology that you choose.
In the past this understanding was called "sympathetic magic" the sense of creating a sympathetic vibration in model form, or in a symbolic form, that actually has the vibration of the real thing. Therefore, making a connection to that thing from a distance because you actually have the vibration of that thing in symbolic form. Magic is simply the ability to truly transform your belief system transform your reality around you in a very conscious way. Then, telepathically transmitting to other individuals the vibration of that change so that they, if they choose to, can experience that change as well in their reality. Sympathetic magic. There is nothing mysterious about this. It is only the "physics" of consciousness.
So allow yourself to understand: it is all a matter of your vibration. Heal yourselves, heal everyone, by being the fullest "you" you can be. Then if you are in balance, you can allow others through sympathetic vibration to be in balance with you directly, or through your artwork and creativity.
PRAYER

True prayer acknowledges you will always work with whomever it is appropriate that you work with, on whatever dimensional level. But first and foremost, open yourself to those who are immediately in relationship with, what you call, your guides and with your immediate reality. The prayer idea is this – prayer must always be in the present to be effective, because All That Is exists only in the NOW. Thus, the true idea of prayer is to envision and to feel and to radiate and to ask and express gratitude for that which already exists. Instead of asking, "please give me what I do not have," prayer is for the asking for assistance to be shown what you already have, because you have already been given everything. Everything has already been created, in that sense. And the manifestation thereof is simply the process of being helped to be made aware that it is already existing within the reality of your vibrational preference. So, prayer is not asking for things that you don’t have, but asking for enlightenment to see what is already present, and thus, create or allow to be created the manifestation of that which is already within you.
Predicting the Future II

Q: Everything is happening right now, right?
B: Yes.
Q: Then why can’t the future be predicted?
B: It is, but not in the terms you call prediction. Again, recognize the idea of the propeller and the strobe lights. The idea, as we have said, is not so much that you are predicting a future; you are sensing the energy at the present that is most likely to occur, because it has the greatest degree of energy behind it. The strobe light is on that particular setting at the time the sensing, or prediction, is made. The prediction itself might change the setting of the strobe light. Understand what your physicists now understand, you cannot make a conscious decision that doesn’t affect the reality you are deciding about. You follow me? Every thought changes the reality you are thinking of. Therefore, so-called predictions are only sensings of the energy most likely to manifest at the time the prediction is made. The prediction itself can change the energy. If what has been sensed has a great deal of energy momentum behind it, it will, in your terms, be unlikely to change. But it is not the future that you have predicted; it is the present. And it simply doesn’t change to the point where it manifests. You follow me?
Q: A little. I’ll chew on it.
B: Keep it simple, keep it simple, the past, the present and the future is all now.
Q: Right.
B: Understand it this way: you have a radio, yes?
Q: Yes.
B: You have the idea of being able to tune to different programs, yes?
Q: Yes.
B: Just because only one program at a time is coming through your speaker, it doesn’t mean all the other programs aren’t there. And you can make a prediction that if you tune the dial, you will get another program. That is making a prediction. But it is only because you are aware of the fact that the program already exists that you can do so. It is the same thing. You follow me?
Q: Yes. Could I…
B: One moment.
Q: Could I express my reality by way of answering her, to see if you would agree with my view of it?
B: Proceed.
Q: If everything is happening now, and there’s only the present, the past and the future created out of the present…
B: Yes.
Q: And all of them exist right now.
B: Yes.
Q: All of them.
B: Yes.
Q: So the question is not whether they are there, because they are.
B: Yes.
Q: The question is which one you will wind up choosing.
B: Perfect.
Q: Well done.
Q: Thank you.
B: Yes.
Q: Yeah, I was saying, why talk about the future at all, since there is no future?
B: It is all, present.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Questioner: Can you tell us...
Bashar: Good day! Good day! What happened to good day?
Q: Good evening.
B: All right, good evening. If it is evening where you are, all right.
Q: Can you tell us how, give us any idea, how much longer the ear
B: Well now you have created an interesting question and, of c
Q: I guess I mean the mess we’re in...
B: Mess?
Q: are dropping bombs everywhere, etc...
B: Oh, I see, all right. Well, may I ask you a question first?
Q: Of course.
B: All right, thank you. How long will the earth be in the mess it is in now, since you’re the one living
Q: I don’t know.
B: Oh yes you do. You can at least give me a general answer. How long? How long will it take for your Q: When we decide to change it.
B: Thank you, thank you, so when will you decide to change?
Q: Right now.
B: All right, some of you say, “right now.” And therefore, pay attention, therefore for you, it will change
For those that don’t necessarily allow it to change right now, it won’t. Because remember, remember physical reality is a mirror.
Now, yes, I understand that you have all agreed on some type of mass consensus reality, and you have agreed on diversity and so it is possible that even though you are living your life quite differently than someone else, you will still, even though you might be living a very balanced life, be capable for a while of watching others that might be out of balance. I will give you this answer in a number of ways.

Number one: In general as we read your energy collectively now, because there is no such thing as a prediction of the future, NO SUCH THING AS A PREDICTION OF THE FUTURE, there is ONLY a sensing of the energy that exist at the time the prediction is made. If that energy doesn’t change then the prediction comes to pass and you have read the future, but you haven’t read the future, you have only seen a probable future based on where the energy is at the time the prediction is sensed. If that energy changes then the prediction goes out the window. And many times the fact that the prediction is made changes the energy and renders itself obsolete.

So the idea first and foremost is to understand that what I’m about to answer is an answer based on the energy as we read the collective energy NOW on your planet and what we read is that it is most likely, the momentum is most likely, that sometime between your years of 2011 and 2013 you will probably not be exhibiting the same behavior that your countries are exhibiting now. Now, that will be in general the beginning of some major changes and by about your year of 2027–2037 you will find that your world will be change potentially enough to become, what we might call, a member of an Association of other worlds. So the idea, however, is that before that, of course, there will be other shifts, other thresholds to cross and it will all be determined on how willing any single individual on your planet is to change and live as the person that they want to be as if they’re already living in the world they want to live in because by example you will allow others the opportunity to see in your behavior how they can behave too. Not that you have to force them, because you can’t, but by living the way you want to live, by being who you really are, then you know you’re doing everything you can to help others choose to do that too because they see by you a living example of how they can live their joy as well. And so the more of you that begin to do that, you build a momentum, you cross the threshold and you allow your world more opportunity to choose what it says it prefers. And that collected energy SEEMS to be heading toward certain kinds of overall resolutions sometime between 2011 and 2013 although there will be some very major, major changes coming up at the turn of your millennium, information wise, as you say, and specifically also between 2005 and 2007 that will begin to throw a lot of light on a lot of circumstances. But it takes a great deal of willingness to be responsible for the choices that you make and the consequences you create. Does that make some sense?

Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes.
B: Is that sufficient?
Q: That is.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Prediction and Free Will

Q: I went to a psychic and he told me a number of things that would happen, some of which have happened.
B: All right.
Q: And you talk about creating our own destiny.
B: Yes.
Q: He...
B: Destiny and...
Q: What, what is...
B: ...the idea of the physiological, experiential reality are slightly different things.
Q: What? He...
B: Go ahead.
Q: He was able to see certain things. Would that be destiny? I had not...
B: Yes and no. Not really. Allow us to explain the idea in this way, if this will serve you: first of all, from our point of view, there is not really any such thing as a prediction of the future. There is only the sensing of the most probably manifestable reality that has the highest degree of belief energy behind it, at the time the prediction is made. You follow me so far?
Q: Yes.
B: A prediction is the sensing of the probable reality that has a high degree of momentum behind it. You supply that momentum.
Sometimes just hearing the prediction, just being made aware that that particular scenario has a high degree of energy behind it, can alter the energy - because now you are aware of it. And if you find that you don’t prefer the scenario that has been sensed by the psychic, then you can use the predicting to change the scenario simply by knowing that now you are aware of it, if you prefer something else, that is where you will shift the energy. So the prediction no longer stands, from that second forward.
Now, the idea of the predictions, so to speak, that do come to pass can simply be, in a sense, the sensing of the ideas that you do believe need to come to pass; so you have so much energy behind them they are very unlikely to change, no matter how far down the road they have been predicted. But it is always only an indication of the energy that exists at the time the prediction is made, not of anything in the future, because the future does not exist in the future. The future: the future exists in the present as well as the past existing in the present. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Destiny is the free will of the higher consciousness; but the free will of the higher consciousness expresses itself in only the most generalized of themes, general terms, general themes in life; general whole conglomerate events or experiences – the theme of an event. The theme of a succession of experiences is the destiny; but how you experience that theme is up to your free will, now, as a physical being.
So, let us say the higher consciousness has determined that your so-called destiny as a physical being, as a physical fragment of the higher self, of the over-soul, is to experience many, many themes of events under the title of the theme of “Exploring of Abundance.” How you decide to view that idea of the exploration of abundance is up to you. Positively, negatively, quickly, slowly, so on and so forth. That is up to you. You always have free will, in that way.
What the psychic is functioning as, as a service to you, is to let you know, let us say, on what horses your bets are riding most heavily. (AUD: laughs). So that you are being told the information long before the race, so that if you change your mind, you can change your bet. (AUD: laughs). You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you in that definition?
Q: Yes. Um, is that... is destiny and karma, are they the same th
B: Oh, yes and no, to a certain degree. All karma is self-imposed, and again, the idea of karma is simply the expression of the continuation of a momentum; the idea of a balancing. It is so, but it is not what it is. It is only the continuation of a destiny; but at the same time, the idea of recognizing that you are at all times in complete control. And as to how you experience the general destiny, means that even the fulfillment of your so-called karma doesn’t have to be negative, it can be positive.
In other words, for example, let us say, just to use the colloquial example: You murdered someone in you last life. Now you are in the new life. Let us say, that believing that you have to live out the karma in a negative way has created a scenario for you, which you attract to yourself, in which you find yourself murdered. However, recognizing that the karma is simply an expression of the balance of an idea, then perhaps, you can recognize that there are many positive ways to play out that momentum.
Perhaps you will be of service to someone who is a murderer and change their mind about murdering someone. That can balance your karma. You follow me?
Q: Yes. Would it be the same person from the previous life that you played this out with?
B: Oh, it can be.
Q: Are all the people that we know now...
B: Not all of them but many of them, and mostly the strongest connections, yes, are ones you have lived with many times before. There are, in a sense, psychic energy families - groups in that way. So, many of your physical families always have new members of that family, and you can, in a sense, sense the connections that will always be there on some level; but many of the individuals you feel very close to in this life, you have related to in many, many, many other lives. Yes. Does that assist you?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q2: This does not mean that one cannot create incredible affinity towards someone one has not experienced.

B: Oh, yes. You can. As we said, it is not absolute, and the idea is you can always add a new member... (AUD: laughs).

Q: Very good.

B: ...through an agreement. This association will serve this purpose with this new being. So it will feel just as familiar as someone who has been with you in thousands of lifetimes, because the degree of agreement is just as strong, even if that is a new relationship, so to speak. You follow me?

Q: I do.

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

Prediction and Free Will
Q: I have an interest in the name Gordon Michael Scallion.

B: Yes.

Q: Rather dramatic geophysical changes....

B: Yes, we understand. Many of these original predictions have already been transformed, to some degree, by the mass-consensus. And, in fact, the service provided by the fact that certain individuals will pick up on these energies and make those predictions is for the very service of giving the collective consciousness a chance to alter that prediction, if it so desires. Therefore, some, not all, some of those original predictions have already been transformed in other ways by the collective consciousness. So, at any moment, when you hear a prediction, allow yourself to understand something right off, as you say, number one, the very fact that you’re hearing the prediction adds energy to the overall equation of the mass-consensus reality. And the very fact that it’s there changes the energy of the consensus reality, and may, by the very fact that it’s there, automatically render the prediction obsolete.

Saying it, in and of itself, may be for the purpose of diffusing it, you understand? Because it gives the mass-consensus the awareness that the potential energy is there to go in this direction, and if that’s not what you prefer, get in touch with what you would rather prefer and alter this energy. So, by the very fact that the announcement has been made, it puts it into the awareness of the collective consciousness for debate, and allows the collective consciousness to decide, to vote, as you say, as to how it is they really best believe they need to experience the transformation that that prediction symbolizes and represents. In all cases, the predictions are usually, usually, accurately representative of the timing of a shift. But that does not necessarily mean it has to play out in the way the actual prediction was made; some of them might, but not all of them will. And many of them have already changed to a great degree. Does this make some sense to you?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Does this answer your question sufficiently?

Q: You read my mind.

B: Is there some other idea you wish to discuss?

Q: Ah ... no.
Q: Last night I spent a few hours with a friend of mine who’s a well-known economist. And he was telling me that there’s a rather major possibility of an economic depression about to happen in our country, because of the national debt. Now he says it will probably occur between the next 6 and 18 months. Do you perceive any change in that idea?

B: Are you asking me to make a prediction?

Q: No, just any information you might have regarding that.

B: All right now, understand that to a degree it will shift and vary quite a bit more than your friend has perceived at this time. Understand that it will also represent another remnant cycle in which you will, within the idea of 30 to 50 years of your time, allow yourself to understand that what you now perceive to be your monetary system will undergo quite a drastic shift. A little bit more toward the idea that we have expressed to you, a little bit – not a lot – a little bit more toward the idea we have expressed to you that each individual, and the service that they provide, is in and of itself, a guarantee of the stability of any interaction on an economic basis.

Q: Okay.
B: What is your second question?

Q: On the 15th we were supposed to go through a mass consciousness change on this planet, and I didn’t perceive a whole lot of change going on.

B: All right. Perhaps that is because you assumed you were supposed to.
Q: I did. I did. Something happened I didn’t know about?

B: You will know.
Q: When?

B: When you allow yourself to know. Again understand that that level of expectation will always form the idea of a specific limited viewpoint. Do not feel that you are not in step with the entire mass consciousness and its own creation of that doorway through which it allowed itself to pass. But simply understand that you are still experimenting with many ideas of specific focus for the unfoldment of your own purpose.

And as such understand that you have absorbed much of that transition in ways that will make themselves manifest within your reality in ways that you will allow them to. Based upon your still expanding understanding of the purpose behind which you have created all those different limitations of focus.

Again it is a matter of simply allowing yourself to know – to know, know, KNOW, KNOW!! – without necessarily needing to analyze exactly what – that there will be an effect upon your reality if you simply allow yourself to identify with the idea of the effect, rather than needing to know the cause first.

Q: Oh, I don’t want to know the cause necessarily.

B: All right.

Q: I just want to see the realization.

B: You will. Question.

Q: I’ve got a question on . . .

B: All right, one moment. Yes?

Q: Have you ever heard of a book called – or the concept of – The Law of One? There was a guy named Ra that channeled it. And there were some beings that I believe he talked about from Orion, and . . .

B: We will discuss that later.

Q: When?

B: Question. Yes?

Q: Did . . . what Steve was speaking about, the question just before this one that was asked . . . does that effect have something to do with unity?
B: In a sense. In the sense that there will be – with the creation of the limited focus – perception facing away from the direction of the integration of the self. And as such there will be, with the creation of that specific focus, more of a reaction than an action involving the event itself.

And as such there will be more a move to what is perceived to be the outside of the self – that is the physical universe which seems to stem from outside the self. And as such there will then be the separation from the self and that integration, more toward the separation of self from that integration. Therefore the reinforcement of the self within the time track, but without the perception of the momentum involved and therefore the creation of the question, “When?”

AUD: Whenever. Ha, ha, ha.

B: Do you follow me?

Q: No. Yes, I...

B: Would you like to explain to those individuals who did not follow?

Q: Well, my perception of that is that with an exteriorization of oneself from the physical body, there will be the creation of a lot of movement in the physical universe, and actual confusion in people who don’t understand what’s going on with themselves and their body. And there is actually a unity being created with beings getting to know themselves and that which they really are. But the confusion comes from being separated from the physical universe and that being new to them as an experience. And...

B: And the focus upon time.

Q: Thank you. The focus upon time is part of the physical universe, and brings people back because that is like... the focus upon time is an old method of telling a being where he is. That’s like the one thing that he clings to, to orient himself.

B: All right. Very good.

Q: So he comes back to that and says, “When?” so he has a point of reference.

B: Very good!

Q: Thank you.
B: Understand that your understanding of that idea took place without time. You follow me? You simply understood; you knew. The feeling involved that you were perfectly oriented within the equality of the vibration of the idea we were discussing. You follow me?

Q: Thank you, yes. It feels wonderful.

B: Yes. Exciting.

Q: Very. Very much so.

B: Thank you. And understand then that that excitement, once again, is your physical signal that you are channeling equally the vibration of the idea in which you are immersed.

Q: Hmm. Yes, I felt that as well.

B: Therefore, understand that if you are channeling that vibration, that excitement of that idea, and you are, in your words, therefore in tune with that idea, then that idea becomes your reality – really without regard to having to pay attention to exactly when – since you feel it to be right now.

Again: it is the same idea as when you attempt to propose the idea of what you perceive to be purpose upon All That Is. Simply: All That Is does not need a purpose, since it already is, and comes before the idea of purpose, in your terms of before and after. Therefore the question of purpose, like the question of time, of “when,” simply is a separation from the initial knowing state of the Self that it is already right now. Thank you.

AUD: All right!

Q: Thank You.

B: Now, with regard to the idea of Orion energy, you will find that there are many ideas being undertaken at this time with respect to the idea of the fulfillment of your cycle and the integration of what you term to be positive and negative energy, so that you may make your transformation in a positive way this time. Rather than the negative choice that was made last time – so as to fulfill the completeness and the polarity of the cycle.

To a degree some of the ideas expressed within that work that you have mentioned, through the ideas you call Ra, will exemplify the acting out of being the valve which will channel both the positive and negative light. And allow them to be viewed in a way by your consciousness at this time, so that you may integrate the two in a way beneficial for the overall transformational energy now being expressed by your mass consciousness at this time. Question.
Q: I have a statement.
B: All right.

Q: This is a basic reality that I not only understand but I live, and it has to do with the economic situation that Steve was talking about. There are various ideas about what the economy does or doesn’t do – or is, or isn’t. And if you will look back on past history, you know those things…

B: Whose?
Q: Well I say, of this particular civilization.
B: All right.
Q: There have been times when the, quote, bottom, has fallen out and we’ve had depression. But during those times there have always, always been individuals whom it didn’t affect.

B: All right.
Q: And that will continue to be the case. The ones who…

B: You mean in a negative way, as you perceive it.
Q: Yes. But they didn’t lose anything.

B: Realize, no one does.

Q: Right. But it’s like the suffering of losing everything and having a depression didn’t ameliorate any need that they have.

B: All right. Understand something else, however: what you term to be depression, or losing everything – as you feel, reaching the bottom of your barrel – when you reach that idea, then you realize in the creation of that idea – having nothing left – all the way down at the bottom, nowhere to go, no way out – realize that that may be your first impression, but really when you arrive at that point, you have at that moment completely unlimited options, because every single option is equal and viable.

Q: Right, yes.
B: Do you follow me?

Q: Oh, I sure do.

B: And therefore there will be that analogy within those depressions, to emotional depression, where you withdraw within yourself to go where you know the answers must really be.

Q: Mhmm.

B: To allow yourself to reach that zero rest point where every option is equally valid. And then when you re-emerge, you are quite a different person, having realigned yourself to a completely new reality. One which you now have given yourself the opportunities, through the experiencing of that depression, to try. Because when you have reached that point, you finally realize the validity of: “Well, why not?”

Q: That’s a beautiful expression. I enjoyed that very much.

B: Yes. You have created a beautiful creative way to experience many ideas, which you initially judged to be negative. But again look at the results and where it has taken you.

Q: Right. But actually I really enjoyed that.

B: Thank you.

Q: What I was expressing didn’t particularly have something to do with that, although I loved what you said. What I was saying was that economists often get the idea that that particular scene of depression is going to affect everyone, but we can see that there are people who are not affected by that negative…

B: Yes. Each reality will always maintain its own reality.

Q: Right, yes. Does that mark then, the end and the beginning of a cycle, as you see it?

B: Within those individuals who choose to experience the reality of that cycle.

Q: Right.

B: Again: there will be many different cycles overlapping, even within your overall mass consciousness. And individuals may or may not feel the effects of a cycle as strongly as other individuals…

Q: Uh huh.
B: . . . because that is not their reality.

Q: Right. I have another question. Can you describe what it’s like when . . . you talked about being everywhere instantly, yet being completely fulfilled?

B: All right. Now, again realize that for the purpose of the feeling of your own creativity we may simply use the analogy to describe the effect of yourself at the zero rest point, of yourself as the creator. In the sense that as you create space and time, and therefore the idea of movement within space and time, then you have created the idea of what we may term to be infinite momentum. And as you are everywhere at once, being, having, infinite momentum, then you are also at the same time standing perfectly still – since you are already everywhere that you need to be.

Understand that to a degree, from time to time, there will be back and forth some physical effects emotionally within you that represent either of these two polar views of yourself. Within both you may simply always be assured that in the creation of these polar shiftings back and forth between the idea of very rapid momentum and pure peaceful stillness within yourself, that they are expressions both in their own way of a vast creativity with which you are channeling to create your reality. And as such, within every idea expressed as a polarity, you will always find yourself exactly at the center of that creation. Therefore always reminding you within your physicalness that you are always projecting from the center of yourself. And that in reality you never really go anywhere.

Q: Mhmm.
B: You follow me?
Q: Yes, I do. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Preference and Judgment

Q: I have an incredible backache.
B: A what?
Q: A backache... a disc is out.
B: A disc is out?
Q: It’s slightly out.
B: All right.
Q: Now, if this is a result of karma, how do I get rid of it?
B: First of all, recognize that you do not get rid of anything, you integrate. Now, allow me to ask you a question... may I?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you. How, if you were to treat this as a neutral situation, neutral, can you, by using your imagination, perceive in any way, shape or form how the situation could positively serve you? What comes into mind? All the different things you can think of through which this can be viewed as a positive opportunity?
Q: Ahhh... to take things slowly.
B: One, what else?
Q: To breathe... to breathe into the place where it hurts.
B: Two, what else?
Q: To allow whatever is causing the pain to come out.
B: By doing what?
Q: Just being open to it.
B: All right. Being vulnerable is being open to All That Is, it is not weakness, it is strength. Being open to All That Is is being connected to All That Is – that is infinite strength. Vulnerability is infinite strength. Now, may I ask you another question?
Q: Go ahead.
B: Oh, thank you. Thank you for allowing me to have such a good time. (AUD: laughter) In your imagination, if you felt that you were in fact right now completely and fully aligned, and allowing any and all levels of energy to move through you – any and all levels of energy – how would you feel about that? Truly, how would you feel about feeling your own infinite power?
Q: At best I can imagine it.
B: Yes?
Q: I think it would be wonderful.
B: Why?
Q: Because then I would be totally in touch with my own energy, with everything, with all the energy.
B: All right... may I ask you another question?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much. In your estimation, in your terms of counting time, when do you think that might occur, roughly.
Q: (Pauses)
B: Ten years from now, before that, yes or no?
Q: (Pauses)
B: Ten years of your time... before that?
Q: I would hope that before...
B: Ah, ah, ah, ah, hope implies despair. Now, I am asking you to sense within yourself when you will know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that you will have experienced enough time to experience that level of integration? Would ten years in your estimation be more than enough time? Six years?
Q: Right now.
B: Oh, you are ready right now? Are you sure?
Q: Yes.
B: All right! Then stand up... now, what is it, do you feel is the most exciting thing you could be doing in your life?
Q: Anything.
B: Anything at all. Do you have a preference?
Q: (Long pause)
B: Yes, no, maybe.
Q: As long as there’s variety.
B: Oh, there will always be that.
Q: Then there’s no preference.
B: No preference! Why not?
Q: What for?
B: All right. Then you’re saying that at any given moment, anything that you are doing is just fine with you, anything at all?
Q: (Pauses)
B: Including the situation with your back?
Q: Aahh...
B: Ah ha! (AUD: laughter)
Q: Not with the back.
B: Ah!
Q: When it comes to the physical...
B: Oh, here we go! (AUD: laughter) Every other level is fine as long as it has nothing to do with this level! Am I putting words in your mouth, or are you actually saying something else?
Q: Aahh...
B: Do not let me put words in your mouth. What do you mean to say?
Q: That this backache hurts... and I would feel much better if the pain wasn’t there.
B: I see.
Q: It would enable...
B: Where would you rather the pain was?
Q: Somewhere.
B: Somewhere?
Q: Out there.
B: Out there? There is no out there. You are a complete and total universe. There is nothing outside.
Q: Maybe we can transform this...
B: Ah! TRANSFORM THE PAIN! That is different. Now, pain is usually created because an individual in your society – and some other societies – are not willing to receive a message from another portion of themselves, and so they create a scenario that forces them to look at something, because they are not willing to allow the message to come more easily – because they will not pay attention to it when it does come more easily.
In your imagination, what do you imagine that having the pain tells you? What type of message do you think that you are sending yourself, so that you would have to create something like that in order for you to pay attention?
Q: (Pauses)
B: Is there a message there that you are willing to allow to come to you in some easier way? Will you accept it if it comes in an easier way?
Q: I would like to accept it.
B: All right. What do you imagine that the message might be? Just take a wild guess. Say the first thing that comes to you, do not think about it. It does not have to make sense.
Q: Get it. To “get it.”
B: Yes, yes, yes.
Q: To be more acceptive of what’s going on... to be more aware.
B: What is going on? What is it that you think you need to be more aware of?
Q: I don’t know! But if I had been more aware then this pain would not be here.
B: Not so, necessarily. Perhaps the pain is there only because you think you need to be more aware of something that isn’t there to be aware of. How does that idea strike you?
Q: I would like to sit down.
B: All right, would you like to lie down? How are you doing?
Q: It hurts but... is there a purpose for standing up?
B: I don’t know. You tell me. (AUD: laughter) I only made a suggestion.
Q: Oh!
B: You did not have to do it. (AUD: laughter)
Q: I’ll sit back down.
B: Oh, all right! In this way, what is it that you feel could be served by allowing yourself to create a situation wherein it stops you from doing certain things? And what are the certain things that you find that you cannot do with this situation?
Q: I can’t stand, I can’t run, I can’t be active.
B: You cannot be active?
Q: Well, running, physical movement.
B: Running. May I ask you a question?
Q: Yes, please do.
B: Since you do not have a preference of any particular thing to do, where would you be running to? And why, therefore, do you need to run, when exactly being where you are, you have said, is just fine with you?
Q: Aah... there are times during the day when I like to take a jog.
B: Oh.
Q: It helps to stretch out, it helps to move my energy around, it changes the gestalt. And I use it as a form of meditation also.
B: All right.
Q: And right now, because of this, I can’t do it.
B: What has it allowed you to do however?
Q: Aah... well, I swam today.
B: Ah! All right. How does that feel?
Q: Not as good as running.
B: Why not?
Q: Because... it is not the same thing.
B: Why not?
Q: (Pauses)
B: What is the difference between those two ideas for you?
Q: Running has a certain physical motion.
B: Yes. OH! Are you telling me that you actually have a preference?!
Q: (Softly) Yes.
B: Ah! So it does make a difference to you, what you do.
Q: Yes... it does.
B: All right. Then why not allow yourself to know that you do, in fact, have preferences. And the idea of being so very spiritual does not mean that you cannot prefer something. It does not mean that you have to be blasé about everything.

Being spiritual is not necessarily just sitting around going: “Oh well, if that happens that’s all right. Well, if that happens, that’s all right too.” (AUD: laughter) It is the equalizing of everything, in that knowing it is all right. But you, as a being, are a different being, are a differentiated being, by definition, than anyone else. Therefore, by definition, you have your preferences.

It is all right to have preferences. They are not judgments. Preferences are simply recognizing what is true for you and acting on it. A judgment is the invalidation of what you don’t prefer. But you can choose to prefer something without invalidating the equality of what you don’t choose.

It is all right for you to have preferences. It is all right for you to be more excited about one thing that something else. You do not have to feel that that is a judgment. Excitement is simply the recognition of your preference, of the path you chose to be, at any given moment. It is all right to prefer something, instead of something else. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.

B: Now, perhaps, you will now have a reason to allow yourself to move. Because you will now allow certain ideas to be attracted into your life that are reflective of the preferences you truly do have that you have buried within you. Burying those preferences has simply immobilized you, because you are not acting upon anything specific that represents the path you chose to be. You are allowing the reality around you, the physical reality, to blend to the point of non-cognition, of non-differentiation. You are immobilizing your activity.

You are an active being, as a physical being. Let yourself know that you have preferences, and that you can act upon them. And acting upon them is not a judgment of what you do not act upon. It is simply the recognition of what is true for you.

Now, you also can avail yourself of the assistance of individuals around you, in the giving to you and the sharing of their energy, to allow you to heal yourself, in this way. For there are many individuals who have allowed themselves to be of service in ways that they are excited about and prefer, and some of that is, in your terms, the manipulation of the physical body. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: So, allow these individuals to assist you to assist yourself. And allow yourself to realign, so that the surge of energy that will travel up and down your spine between the polar opposites of your brain and the base of your spine will then have a reason for being there. Until you allow it to have a reason for being there, you will allow there to be a disconnection, because it has no purpose. Create a purpose for it, create a preference and know that you are excited about acting upon it, and then you will re-connect and plug yourself back into the universe. Including the physical one. All right?
Q: It seems that, by doing that you create desire, back inside of your...
B: What is wrong with desire?
Q: Well, you become attached to it.
B: Why?
Q: If one is desireous and they want something...
B: Desire is not coveting, do not confuse the two. Desiring something is not coveting. Desire is e-motion: energy motion. Now, you do not have to put expectation on a desire, you do not have to “rigidize” desire, you do not have to limit it. Simply recognize that desire is your conscious recognition, again, much like the idea of excitement. It is much the same energy. It is what you recognize yourself to be.

Are you attempting to become ego-less? For as long as you are physical, you will always have an ego. Because an ego’s job, fundamentally, is to keep you focused into the physical reality you chose to be born into. That is not to say that you have to allow negative ego to control your actions, but ego itself is simply your ability to exist as a physical being. It is what keeps you focused in physical reality. There is nothing negative about basic, fundamental ego, it is simply a conduit. It keeps you where you have chosen to be focused into – the general physical reality. As long as you are physical, as long as you are a personality construct, you will always have ego. Desire does not have to be expressed in a negative way. Simply do not limit it by imposing upon it a particular way in which the desire has to manifest. Do not make demands of your desire. Desire is emotion, it can be love, it can be the cognition of your own excitement and vibratory preference. That is all.

In this way, you do not have to become attached to things. They do not have to become attached to you. You simply recognize that with your desire you are allowing yourself to become the dream that you have. You are living your dream. Desire is dreaming. It is the giving in to your ecstasy, which is your birthright, which is what you are made of. Desire does not have to be the idea of envy, of jealousy. None of that – that is judgment. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Very much. Thank you.
B: Thank you. Pleasant dreams.
Preference and Moving Beyond Polarity

Q: The point came up in a previous question about the dual nature of personality. If I have two sides to my personality, one of them I like and one of them I don’t like...

B: One is positive; one is negative.

Q: Okay. But let’s say the negative side wants to eat too many twinkies, and he has all kinds of urges...

B: All right.

Q: If I don’t satisfy those urges, I feel discomfort. If, however, I do satisfy those urges, I feel remorse. How do you resolve this dualness of human personality?

B: By simply recognizing, first and foremost, that all polarity exists as one thing outside of the physical reality in your whole nature; and that you do not have to continue seeing yourself as a dichotomy. You do not have to continue to see yourself as a struggle against, or between, this and that.

But simply recognize that you have, at any given moment, free will or preference. If you recognize that the idea of the ingestion of those substances does not vibrate with the being that you prefer to be, then, if you act like that being, you will find you do not have the urge; because you are not of the vibration that would contain the idea to have the urge to eat this. Define yourself.

Q: Could that be called will power or...

B: Not will power; recognition, ceasing of judgment of yourself; ceasing of the belief; the changing of the belief that changing is difficult.

The changing of the belief that having the concept of what you would prefer to be is not the same thing as being it – when it is. The changing of the belief that having the concept still implies you have to do something to become the concept you have imagined, when imagining it is becoming the concept; believing that is what will make the change.

Q: So what is my so-called bad side showing me?

B: That you have the opportunity to prefer something else; and to recognize that as soon as you conceive of what that something else is, you’re it.

Q: So the concept I have of my so-called good side, which I prefer to be, is not really what I want to be; otherwise I would be it?

B: You are simply assuming that the concept itself, when you have it, is not being it. But it is. You are assuming that the concept of the good side – to have the concept is not being it.

But having the concept is being at the vibratory level of that good side. Otherwise you wouldn’t be able to conceive of it. Again, you have to be attuned to the program to hear it coming through the radio. So if you find that you have the ability to even conceive of what the so-called good side, or positive side, is all about, you are at that moment tuned to that frequency, or that notion could never have occurred to you.

Q: But why does this tremendous interference keep coming in...
B: Because you assume that when you conceive of it, it is not real. You assume that you have to do something special in order to make it real.

Q: To stay on the station you mean?

B: Yes. You are the one that is flipping the dial. When you have flipped the dial to the point where you can perceive what this so-called positive side is like, leave the dial there.

Q: What if I’m sitting there, and suddenly a twinkie switches on.

B: You are missing the point. The station that you will be tuned to does not advertise twinkies. So it will never occur to you. The urge won’t be there. Understand you are contradicting yourself.

Q: Yes. All right.

B: You are thinking that one being contains both of these urges. No. When you are the vibration of the positive side, you only contain what is relevant to that you. If you are finding yourselves experiencing the urges of the twinkie, you are no longer the other you; you are the you that can experience the urge of the twinkie.

Q: Yes. How do you hold that? I find it difficult to hold that.

B: That is your belief. To say…this is the concept, understand this: your statement, “I find it difficult to hold that,” is a belief. So it is its own reality. So that is what you get: a reality in which you are a being that finds it difficult to hold a concept.

Q: So you merely assume the viewpoint and…

B: Yes. Act like it. Assume that if you can conceive of it, at the moment of conception that is now, you are “born.” You give birth to that being. And that is the only being that exists.

Now understand: you may use the idea again that we have shared with some of you – the library analogy. As an integrated being, you have the ability to be cognizantly aware of – while still being the concept that you are – of all the other probable realities that exist, you can have the definition, “I know myself to be... while at the same time being aware of all of the other probable realities I know I am not.” You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, the idea of the analogy is if you are a library. You go into a library. You can read every book on the shelf: the one about twinkies, the one positive, the one negative. Only the one you make the conscious choice to check out of the library becomes your reality. Otherwise it is not a matter of having to fight against the urge.

You simply have the type of reality that says you can think about the idea that such a probable reality exists; but that’s not the idea you are. You know the library is there, but you didn’t check out that book.

Q: So the fixity of the human condition, as I see it to be fixed, I see that most people are…

B: What you consider to be the fixedness is something that you believe to be real. That is the only reason you experience the human condition as fixed – because of the definition that it is. You follow me?
Q: But what is... at what point do you go off the rails though?
B: Never.
Q: But.
B: Never.
Q: Let’s...
B: Never, never, never! Never.
Q: Okay.
B: You are never off your path, because you are never on a path. A path is what you are! You can’t be off yourself. You are not on a path; a path is what you are. You can’t be off yourself. Everything you do – everything, everything, is an opportunity to decide what you prefer. Everything. You can learn from everything.

Every situation is fundamentally neutral. Your attitude towards the neutral situation will determine the effect that you create in your life. The idea that you can have an urge to eat a twinkie is a neutral situation. It does not come with any power other that what you put into it. It is simply a string of words, if you wish to look at it that way. You empower it; you power it up.
Q: “Oh, yes. The concept of that – that concept “twinkie,” that creates urges that I cannot fight.”
B: You have just written the script and decided to act it out – by imposing definitions on to a fundamentally neutral series of props.
Q: What is the... how does birth and death fit into this concept though? Let’s say my next-door neighbor doesn’t have this urge, and he never has the urge, but I do have the urge.
B: So? Knowing that your next-door neighbor never has the urge is an indication for you of a reality that you can also choose for yourself. That may be why that neighbor is there, reflecting that reality to you. Perhaps you are reflecting the same thing back: that he can choose to have an urge if he wants to.
Q: ... make good neighbors here. But I guess my question really is: has it anything to do with a particular lifetime?
B: Only in the most general of senses. Certainly not with the degree of specificity of whether you eat a twinkie or not.
Q: No, well that’s a ridiculous example. But I just see people who...
B: It is not a ridiculous example. But in this way, simply the overall idea of any predestination is only expressed in physical life in the most general of terms. In other words, let us say, the idea of what you are discussing falls under the general category that you are predestined to explore – of self-empowerment, and the creation of what you prefer.
Q: I see.
B: So you are using twinkies as your prop. Somebody else will use alcohol; somebody else will use drugs; somebody else will use...
Q: Ice cream!
B: ... ice cream.

Q: Do you have dual personas yourselves? Dual personalities? Do you...
B: Because we have a degree of physical manifestation, then by definition we do express that portion of ourselves in some polarity. But in this way, it is a type of polarity that recognizes the validity of each other’s side, and so functions as a balanced unit.

Q: So as you go up the scale, you check – lose polarity?
B: In a sense, yes; polarity is only a third-density, fourth-density perspective of a wholeness that exists.

Q: I see. Okay. So you’re saying that individuals on the third or fourth density that have that experience of polarity, they’re experiencing positive and negative as if they were two sides of a coin?
B: Yes.

Q: But as we move on to the...
B: You only experience the coin, the idea of the oneness of the coin. And do not so much see it as two sides. But recognize that you need the whole coin in order to buy your twinkie.

Q: Both the positive and negative are in harmony?
B: Yes.

Q: Blended into one concept. Male, female: one thing. A soul is not both male and female; it is neither. It is one thing. It can express itself in that polarity in physical reality; but it is not that it becomes a blended thing, separated.

The male/female polarities simply only exist from a physiological reference point of view, and do not exist within the combined soul. The soul, to itself, is one thing – neither male nor female. One thing. You follow me?

Q: So you’re saying that neither negative nor positive...
B: The concept of negative and positive polarity is one of the defining terms of physical reality and only comes into existence as physical reality does – or as different levels that contain that idea – come into existence.

The idea of the unbroken oneness is not so much literally that it contains an actual side-by-side cohesive interaction with the polarities you experience; it is simply one thing that can create itself to become different things. For there are many different universes that express the unbroken wholeness of the soul when it chooses to differentiate itself in many other ways, other than the idea of simply positive and negative polarity.

Q: Like what?
B: This will really have no frame of reference for you. It almost does not have a frame of reference for us. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
Preordained or Chosen
Q: What portion of our lives or our reality do we create prior to our birth, and what portion do we create?
B: Only the general ideas, the general ideas of exploration; the overall subjects, in general, are chosen before the physical life. All of the details as to how you will explore those generalities are chosen in physical life.
Q: Well, what about the idea of how we die, do we choose that as we go along?
B: In a sense, yes. The timing is chosen previously, but all of the details are up to you here, now.
Q: So the timing is that thirty-one years will be physical?
B: Yes.
Q: And then the idea of how we manifest our death, the situation is left up to us; whether it’s going to be by accident or an illness, whatever we need to experience... but that time is already, more or less, preordained.
B: Basically, but also it is not so much a matter of time, it is timing. So if you find that at thirty-one you have not completed your timing, it will not be so rigidly structured that you must die at thirty-one. If you find that at thirty-five it will complete the timing, you will live until thirty-five.
Q: And the timing had to do with?
B: Allowing yourself to FULLY become and having explored the experience you choose to be, whatever aspect of it you choose to explore.
Q: All right, thank you.
B: So does that answer your question?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Preparing for Ascension

Q: We’ve been told by a number of entities, at this point, that serve this planet, that we can prepare for ascension, is this true or not?

Bashar: Ascension is simply the recognition that you are accelerating your vibration. It does not necessarily mean you are going to leave the planet, although, in one context it obviously does. Because, as you become more fourth density, you literally leave behind the third density earth; which doesn’t cease to exist, it still exists in its own realm and everyone who wishes to remain in third density, for one reason or another, will do so. It’s just that those in fourth density, on the fourth density earth, will no longer interact or experience those in third density and vice versa. The ascension is a refinement of your energy, and to those in third density you will appear to have, in a sense, vanished or disappeared; but it is not the colloquial way that most individuals think of when they talk about everyone just vanishing from the face of the earth, as if there was only one earth to vanish from. Does that make sense?

It is similar also to the recognition that which many of the religious organizations on your planet talk about, the so-called, ‘second coming of Christ.’ Very often they do not understand that what that more literally means is simply the awaking of the Christ Consciousness within each and every individual; same idea, relatively speaking. Does that make sense?

Q: Thank you very much.

B: At this timing then, allow us, once again, to remind you that every thing is vibration, everything is resonance, everything is CONSCIOUSNESS, reflecting itself to itself. There are a VARIETY of ways in which this is experienced and EXPRESSED in all manner of dimensional universal realities, we have touched on a very thin slice here today; a thin slice you call home. It is your home and it is just as beautiful as any other reality. When you are in alignment with it you will see that it is so and you will have your heaven on earth. We thank you for your willingness to accelerate in that direction for that gives us the opportunity to play with you more often and this make us also very happy, not of course, that we are not happy to begin with.... laughter

We thank you for this golden opportunity and bid you all a fond, beautiful, delightful day.
Let us begin this transmission with a further description and explanation of something that we have discussed recently, in that our craft, that is mine personally, and three other craft from my civilization being positioned physically around your planet at this time, for the purpose of helping to assist, and adjusting the energy of your world as it changes within the collective consciousness. And in positioning ourselves at certain points around your planet, above your planet, helping to adjust that energy by acting like a focusing lens, to help smooth and balance the energies of the changes going on within the consciousness of your people at this time. But we are not the only ones doing this. The idea, first and foremost, in describing the positions of the crafts that belong to my society, in that they are triangular craft and they are positioned in a tetrahedral formation, can be more precisely described as follows.

We have already said that my craft specifically is positioned approximately, give or take, approximately 3,000 of your miles above your city of Cairo. Now, the idea is that sometimes individuals may have assumed that when we talked about the idea of my craft and three other craft forming a tetrahedral structure, they may have assumed that we were referring to the positions of our craft as if they were the apexes, the points, of the tetrahedron, but they are not. They are the centers of the sides, the four sides of the tetrahedral structure; in that each side is a triangle. But if you will extend each side of our physical craft outwards in energy, as if it were a larger triangle so that it reaches out in energy until it touches the projected energy sides of the other three craft, then you could see that your world is enclosed in an energy tetrahedron generated by certain frequencies of our ships.

So, it is like your spherical world is inside a clear energy tetrahedron, generated by our four craft. I am in, as we have said, the position above your city of Cairo, approximately what you would understand as your 30 degrees longitude and 30 degrees latitude. The other craft are in positions of, longitudinally 90 degrees west, which positions it just off the shores of the area of your planet you call Peru, and also 150 degrees east, which positions it in the ocean, above the ocean, underneath what you call your Asian area, and above what you call your Australian / New Zealand area, again positioned over the ocean. The fourth craft being positioned off the coast, by a few hundred miles, of what you call your Antarctica, again over the ocean. I am the only craft that is directly above land at this time. These are the positions that will allow us to form, relatively speaking, a regular tetrahedron structure.

Now, we are not the only ones. Beyond us there are other ships from other civilizations, forming other geometric energy forms, geometric energy shells around your planet, and this is what we are referring to in this opening transmission, the geometric energy shells generated around the Earth for the purpose of balancing, energizing, amplifying, assisting the changes going on in your world now, acting as a filtration system, an amplification system, a step-down and step-up system. The shell beyond us is formed by six craft from other civilizations forming a cube, and beyond that you have the octahedral with eight craft forming that. And beyond that you have other ideas of regular geometric solids such as the two dodecahedral solids, thus, twelve craft generating twelve energy fields, forming two types of regular twelve sided solids, and twenty craft generating the icosahedral shell around your planet. And then, beyond that, beyond, beyond, there are more, generating more different kinds of shells; twenty shells in all. The final shell extends just beyond the orbit of your moon. Thus, we encompass and enclose your entire Earth/Moon system, to aid and assist in the balancing and regulating of energy. But only as we take your cues, in that sense, from your collective consciousness in helping regulate the changes going on now, and the changes coming up.

Do not ask me who the other craft belong to. I cannot tell you at this time. But suffice to say, it is allowed that I can tell you there are twenty shells of craft forming these twenty different kinds of energy shells. We are the innermost one, forming the tetrahedron. Below us, in that sense, there are other ships, but they do not form shells. They work with independent vortexes, vortices, on your planet, adjusting and regulating, but again, in accordance with the timing of your collective and individual consciousness. The tetrahedron we now form, the energy triangles that fan out from our ships, all four of the ships of my civilization, form a tetrahedron, that on each side would be approximately 36,000 miles, each triangle 36,000 miles on a side in order that your world is enclosed in a tetrahedron. The closest tangent to your planet being the four ships themselves, the closest point being about 3,000 miles up. This forms a tetrahedral structure that has triangles of 36,000 miles on a side.

When it comes time for our ships to touch down, to physically touch the surface of your world, as we close in, as the tetrahedron gets smaller and smaller and then just encloses your planet by touching it, that will form a tetrahedron with triangles of approximately 19,000 miles on a side; in fact, in actual fact, 19,500. There is the 19.5 again that many of you are familiar with. And this will represent, when we have touched down on the surface of your planet, in what you call the near future, on what you call the idea or time of contact.

All the shells will collapse, will close down as best they can, interpenetrating one another. Each shell having a touchdown point representative of the number of side in the shell. Therefore, our civilization will initially have four touchdown points. The next civilization will have six touchdown points. The next civilization will have eight touchdown points. The next civilization, two of them, will have twelve touchdown points each. The next beyond that, will have twenty touchdown points each and beyond, forming the different civilizational contacts that will appear, but not at the same time. Each will be representative of a higher energy hierarchy and each will manifest in due time, as each shell helps accelerate your planet up different and different vibrational levels of fourth density. You will then be able to interact with and view physically the different civilizations that are representative of the different inner shells, one at a time, one after the other, as you become acclimated to the different energy resonances that are represented by the different shells as they collapse and touch your planet tangentially.

We will talk more about this methodology of contact later, but this is one of the ways that we have used to help accelerate and balance the energy toward contact and the methodology and the unfoldment of contact itself, with regard to the energy shell relationship and the energy of your world.

Circa 1995

Q: Good day, how are you this evening?
B: Perfect, and you?
Q: Fine, nice to be in your presence again.
B: And yours as well.
Q: How is your society doing...
B: Perfect, thank you.
Q: It transitions into non-physicality?
B: It is transitioning ecstatically.
Q: Are there individuals that have already made the transition?
B: Yes.
Q: Do they represent, in a sense, your future selves?
B: Yes.
Q: And do you keep in communication with them?
B: Yes.
Q: Are you collectively, as a whole, in communication with the species that we have been discussing known as the Tau Cetians?
B: Yes.
Q: Is there a chance tonight that we could have them communicate to us?
B: It is not time.
Q: Not time? Could I ask a few more questions about their society?
B: You can ask.
Q: Okay. Do they have any rituals collectively like we have on earth?
B: They have a few similar in certain ways, not to the degree or depth that your rituals exist. They are more artistic than necessary, in that sense, as you understand that term.
Q: More like concerts and things like that?
B: Only as an analogy, yes, although they do have music.
Q: When they exist and co-habit in our atmosphere do they have to have any type of supplementation.
B: Only a very slight amount, and it would not be what you would recognize as an apparatus, but only something that they would, perhaps, ingest to alter their frequency.
Q: How do they handle the nitrous oxides in our atmosphere? Do their bodies transmute those toxins?
B: It will not affect them in a negative way with the alteration that they undertake. They, perhaps at first, will not necessarily be able to abide for long periods of time in your atmosphere, but in time they may adjust if they wish to.

Q: So for now we won’t see them interacting in a smoggy, polluted atmosphere?
B: There may be those that will eventually volunteer for what you would call a few hours at a time, with much augmentation.

Q: How long have they been here interacting with us?
B: They are not interacting with you in that way at all yet. They are only sending signals and information from where they are in their system.

Q: Oh, I see. So what is their basic agenda with us?
B: No comment... Q: No comment.
B: that we have already given you that they will be one of the first civilizations that your planet will consciously form an alliance and an association with.

Q: And are they descendents of Lyra?
B: No.
Q: No?
B: They are their own unto themselves. A whole other lineage altogether, ancient and true.

Q: Do they have lakes and oceans like we do?
B: Yes.
Q: So is their planet a blue planet that they’re from, or are they from different parts of their system?
B: Their world, again, is somewhat similar to your own – blue, where there is water, in that sense, green, where there is vegetation, in that sense, do you understand?

Q: Yes. Do they have one sun?
B: Yes, primarily.
Q: Are they primarily from one planet?
B: Yes. Although they have, what you would call, colonies on other worlds in their system.

Q: And to change the subject to our moon.
B: Your moon. Yes.
Q: Yes, our moon.
B: Yes.

Q: Supposedly there are deposits of helium 3 and they are imbedded in the ground.
B: There are many things locked into the lunar soil, many different kinds of elements that can be extracted or even the idea of gases released, yes.
Q: Is it feasible for our world to send some vehicles that have containment apparatuses to unlock that and bring it back to down to earth?
B: It would not be, in your terms, economically feasible for you at this time.
Q: You don’t see that as happening in the future?
B: It will be unnecessary. You will ultimately learn to develop travel of such a nature that that will be unnecessary.

Preparing for Tau Ceti Interactions
Prime Radiant and Solar System Phenomena

Q: Last session you talked about the Bose-Einstein Condensate, from the perspective of the Prime Radiant – what’s happening? Is it a condensation of energies, of vortexes?

B: Yes, it is a specific manifestation of certain overlapping frequencies within the Prime Radiant that distills out into a particular harmonic pitch, that causes a link and a bridge to be formed that brings together two things that heretofore would seem to be separated by a great distance but are then made to be seen as one and the same place.

Q: And what type of activity releases that frequency?

B: Many different kinds of realizations and activities can create that recognition. They are too numerous to mention. But in general you will find that it is the concept of, to put it into your colloquial terminology, the annihilation of time and space. The concept, as we have said in a nutshell, “that there is no reality – but that’s what reality is – that there is no reality.”

Q: And traveling back six million years ago...

B: So to speak.

Q: ... when the Martian atmosphere became uninhabitable...

B: Yes.

Q: ... was that caused by a meteor?

B: Yes, in a sense.

Q: That passed too close into the atmosphere?

B: Yes. Caused by the destruction of that planetary system that you recognize as being between your Mars and your Jupiter and the debris thereof scouring the atmosphere of that planet, and in your terminology, ripping away the atmosphere due to gravitational unbalancing.

Q: Planet K as it has been called.

B: In a sense, if you wish. Maldek if you wish. Many other names, if you wish. What you now deem to be your asteroid belt.

Q: And that was caused by the moon of Tiamat?

B: This was involved, but in a different timing. We will not go deeper into that at this time. But debris from that cataclysm is what is responsible for scouring clean the Martian atmosphere; and the two Martian moons are, in that sense, also remnant debris from that explosive cataclysm.

Q: Why are some of our comets now emitting X Rays?

B: There are certain comets that always have had the capability of appearing to emit X Rays. They do not in themselves emit X Rays, but you will find there is a phenomenology that exists, an interaction that exists, within the compression of certain elements within the comet as they are released and compressed at high rates of velocity within themselves which will, to some degree, emit weak X Rays.
that will be amplified by the number of molecular bombardments after the release and emission of those gases from the cometary body, as they impact each other in their compression of same.

Q: So it is more of a refraction or reflection of known X Rays that are already being emitted in the atmosphere?

B: In some senses, yes, but there is some generation within the release of the gases themselves on a small scale that is built up to a large scale. But then it forms, yes, a reflective and refractive surface that is exactly at the right pitch to reflect and refract many different kinds of X Rays and different kinds of Rays coming from different directional sources, yes.

They are like, in that sense then, little crystalline mirrors that are tuned to the right pitch to allow there to be a “bouncing off aura”, of X Rays seemingly coming from them.

Q: And Europa, one of the moons of Jupiter...

B: Yes.

Q: ...there has been suspicion of microbial life in a sea of ice.

B: Yes.

Q: Is that a correct analysis?

B: Yes.

Q: Okay. And there has also been mentioned a third form of life that has been found, I think it is called algaea, and it has been found deep within the earth’s surface and in volcanic venting where there is no sun or...

B: There are many different formats that still exist on your planet for the basis of what you would consider to be life – more than that.

Q: From your perspective how many forms of life are there? I know that you have talked about silicon and carbon forms...

B: Yes. There are also what you would consider to be etheric forms that have quasi-planar physicality to them that can, in your terms, dip into your physiological reality, to some degree, in a plasma state. There is in that sense, therefore, plasmic light as well, that can be consider to be existing within your reality, to some degree.

We find that in essence there are twelve bases of life on your planet, each connecting to a different harmonic. This will do.

Q: And the last area I would like to probe into is...I know you’ve mentioned the white orbs of light that have been seen and recognized near the crop circles.

B: Yes.

Q: Are these sometimes electromagnet side effects from the pressing in of the etheric template?

B: They are electromagnetic side effects of directed consciousness. They are in a sense compactions of etheric energy manipulated through conscious intent, thus creating the electromagnetic side effects of light and a variety of other side effects that can be fine tuned and manipulated to allow there to be that alteration within the growing substances that carry the proper electro-conductivity current, such as the wheat.

Q: How are they related to the grapeshot?
B: They are related in the sense that sometimes a balancing polarization point is needed so that there can be the creation of the formation in ONE polarity. While the grapeshot functions as the balancing polarity, in much the same way as you have poles of a battery so that there is a grounded effect to the earth, so that it will not short out. For if this were not done in many cases the wheat would simply be charred.

Q: And what is the longest that they can be sustained in physicality?
B: It will depend upon many different kinds of conditions... one moment, we will check the records... you will find on average they will sustain approximately seven to fifteen minutes of your time. Though there are those that have from time to time gone longer, and most will be shorter. But the average will be what you call, seven, in that sense, to what you would consider fifteen minutes of your time.

Q: Thank you for your allowance.
B: At this time...
Prime Radiant

RJ: I recently discovered the idea know as tachyons.

B: Yes.

Q: Can you give us, from your perspective, the relationship of the breaking down of the different energies that are involved in this paradigm? The paradigm that I’ve been looking at has the tachyon at the 7th level and then it breaks it down into different segments from there, with the 8th being sort of an overall void; the idea of being out of the whole concept itself. Is there some kind of order of solidification that you can give us in the sense of energy, in the way...

B: Yes! This has again, directly to do with the relationship between the etheric level and what you call your physical / material level. This relationship, again, is a matter of degree, a matter of frequency, but it is all based on the concept of the Prime Radiant. You have heard us discuss the concept of the Prime Radiant?

Q: I’m not exactly sure what you mean by that.

B: All right. Prime Radiant is the understanding that everything, we’ll have to use the terminology that you understand in your language – particle, you understand, subatomic particle? Yes, you understand these terms?

Q: Yes.

B: It is not really a particle as you think of these things and your scientists know that. But to use the term just to illustrate the point, let us just speak of a Prime Particle, a subatomic particle out of which everything is made in physical/material reality. You follow me so far?

Q: Yes.

B: The idea of the Prime Radiant is that everything that you understand to be an infinite number of particles is actually the same one particle interacting with itself in the following way: just imagine now that you have one particle, just imagine it in your mind’s eye, just for the purpose of illustrating the point. Even though we understand this is not absolutely, literally representative of the reality, just now imagine one particle, one little tiny point, dot, if you wish. And, imagine that this particle can move at infinite speed. Now what this would mean is is that this particle, in being able to move at infinite speed, would be everywhere at once. It would not be perceived as moving, it would just be perceived as being EVERYWHERE.

But let us start with the idea that this particle really has no substance, in your terminology; it is not perceivable, per se, and can only be perceived by you in your physical reality when it reinforces itself by overlapping itself in the path that it takes, in moving in infinite speed and tracing a line of particular geometric pattern over and over and over and over again, with slight variation. Here and there it will cross itself, and as it crosses itself over and over again it will reinforce itself and thus appear to be more and more and more solid. The less it crosses itself the less solid it will appear. This gives rise to the idea of the very densest physical reality, where the particle crosses itself as many times as it possibly can, through the higher more rarified etheric realms where it does not cross it’s own path that many times, to the void in space where it contains, what you call, virtual particles which simply come into existence briefly and flicker out. But you know that the void is contained and is full of many, many different potential particles, potential realities, potential dimensionalities and so forth, and then on up the scale. The idea simply is that this particle, in moving at infinite speed and being everywhere at once, means that it is interacting with itself. What you perceive to be this particle here, and that particle there, held together by an apparent force, be it a strong force or the electric force or gravity or whatever you which to call it, it is not really being held together by a force, it is not really being attracted to any thing. Gravitation, in that sense, is not an attracted force, there really are no forces, per se, as your society thinks of them.

As such the idea is that when this particle is moving at infinite speed, being everywhere at once, it appears next to itself a number of times and you think, from your perspective, that this is one particle, that is another particle, but it is the same particle interacting with itself, in a sense. And the force that apparently draws them together is simply the geometry of the path that it is taking in that this particle here and this particle there are simply representative of where the lines of that path cross each other, very close to each other. And thus, there is no other place that those particles can be at that moment but next to each other. But it is because of the description of the geometry of the path that they are taking, not because there is actually a force interacting between them. You follow me so far?

Q: Yes.

B: Now, the concept again of this applying to tachyon energy or what your society has labeled tachyons, is that simply in the entire array of geometric patterns that this one particle is taking, you have overlaps and arrays of different kinds of radiating pattern side effects. If you were to imagine a very complicated geometric pattern, you would see that there are many places that the lines cross over and over and over and over and over again, and where they cross as if you have, lets say a spiral going this way and a spiral going that way. You would see certain points where lines cross, and it would appear to your eye that there was a line being described by where those points cross, but it would be in your terms an illusion. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: There would not really be a line there, but where the points cross, in the succession in which they cross, would give the semblance of the illusion of a path. One of those paths would be called the speed of light. One of those paths would be called the tachyon existence, the tachyon dimension, and all other dimensions and all other levels therein, all within the infinite speed of the Prime Radiant, the Prime Particle.

So it is simply a matter of degree and of tachyons representing the etheric manifestation, the almost mass-less manifestation on the other side of what you call the speed of light. Which is simply one of those lines describing the border of your particular physiological universe, the tachyon being the material of the etheric universe, so to speak. Not having been crystallized, not having been overlapping enough in the geometric pattern to be physicalized, per se, but forming, nonetheless, the underling template for physical reality where those lines all cross sufficiently. Thus going from the tachyon level to the physical level, what you call physical matter, from etheric matter and all the other higher forms of matter of the Prime Radiant, expressions of the Prime Radiant, of light, of energy and so on and so forth.

So all those ideas: light and energy, and matter and tachyons, and etheric reality are all different forms, different expressions of the one Prime Radiant just by virtue of the fact of how many times it interacts or reflects with itself. Does that make some sense to you?
Q: Yes, I understand the Prime Radiant now.
B: All right. Therefore, with regard to the way in which the tachyon concept is being utilized in your society at this time, in that we take your meaning of certain kinds of products and so on and so forth that are made to have associations with the concept of tachyon, understand that what is simply being done is that your consciousness is being directed to the underlying template which is representative of the tachyon level of the Prime Radiant. It isn’t that that material is actually infused, per se, with tachyons, but that there is a level within all material that is the tachyon level, and when you attune your vibrational thoughts to that level then you can extract a different kind of energy, a different kind of relationship, a different kind of focus from that layer, that tachyon layer, which exists within all material objects.
Because it is more like the template level of the material object that you are holding in your hand, and it is simply the idea of focusing on that level that makes it have the effect that it has, because you there are changing your frequency to match its own. Does this make some sense to you?
Q: Yes. And, are there different material substances that can, let us say…
B: Represent the level or, perhaps, allow the concept to be transmitted more easily to your level.
Q: Transfused.
B: Yes, there are. There are, perhaps, certain kinds of variations of metals, one of the ones that actually has one of the highest degrees of transferring tachyon energy is, surprising as this may seem, would be the substance called amber. For understand that trees are very, very good at transforming tachyon energy into physical matter, back and forth, they are transmuters of life and many different high levels of energy. So there, sap, which solidified into what you now recognize as amber, contains a matrix that is particularly receptive to the transformative use of etheric / tachyon energies into physical materiality reception. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: So amber is one of the strongest transducers, transmuters of tachyon energy into physical energy and vice versa.
Q: And the Japanese are using a technology in which they use silicon beads.
B: Yes, silicon is another. The idea of your quartz crystals is also a very good transmuter of tachyon energy. All right?
Q: OK.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Q: Could you elaborate a little further on trees as a method of generating energy, or transmuting stuff from the etheric to the physical?
B: Look at your planet this way, if you would – it is in a sense a type of capacitor and if you understand the idea that it is a storage battery of energy, a giant storage battery of energy and a transmuter of energy from one form to another, to another form, so on and so forth. Understand that the trees are like antennas jutting out from the surface and they get very, very fine. And these are like receptors for higher levels of energies which are then drawn into, so to speak, are representative of the finer energies, the finer more rarified or less materialized levels of energy that then, bit by bit, are transmuted through the structure into the form of physical reality; and then given off by the trees, transmuted by the trees, into what you call oxygen, which is the Prime transmuter of your physical reality, your physical dimension. So it is a direct transformation of etheric energy into oxygen, into crystallization in that way. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Now you may see that the concept of carbon dioxide is involved, but this is only as a catalyst. This allows it to function as a gateway. This is why there is this apparent opposite kind of life form in physical reality, where you take in the idea of the oxygen and give off the carbon dioxide, while it takes in the carbon dioxide, gives off the oxygen. This exchange allows you to understand its role as the transmuter, so that all that needs to be sustained in physical reality can partake of the crystallization, so to speak, the physicalization of the etheric energy in the form called oxygen – so that you may sustain yourself in your physical dimension. It transcends that dimension, has a physical component, but trees extend literally into other dimensions, and act as bridges to transmute that rarified level of energy into more dense physical materialized energy, and vice versa. They can also be very good for transmuting dense physical energy into more rarified energy, thus they are very good at accelerating or uplifting your own vibration. So spending time with them, allowing them to, shall we say, rub off on you, will allow you to feel more transmutive yourself, more light, more energized and more in communion with the entire matrix of the whole concept of inter-dimensional transmutation. Make sense?
Q: Yes.
B: It will also allow you more opportunities to sustain yourselves directly, more directly from the etheric energy levels yourselves, in much the same way that the trees do. Although, not the same way but closer than you do, for you have that capacity.
Q: OK.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes, thank you.
PRINCESS DI’s Accident?
I’m glad that we are keeping the thread of this week’s event going and I would like to ask on behalf of everybody, a balancing for young King William tomorrow and for Prince Harry and also for Elton John who has rewritten....
B. This is already being done. But being that you have asked, it is already being given for all people on your planet who need it, in the way that they need it most. Such balancing is given freely from the hearts from all who wish to give, and so it is.
Q. Thank you very much.
B. Thank you all, for it is your doing.
Q. One thing that pleased me very much this week, in the midst of everybody’s sorrow, is how many people are writing....just this huge momentum of sincerity....
B. Yes.
Q. And the need to connect.
B. Yes, for that is what will connect you all. When a vacuum is created, you all are made to fill it.
Q. Also, the debate over the First Amendment.
B. Understood, we will not get into the details of this except to say that it has to do with integrity and where, in that sense, the borders and barriers to that idea really do exist.
Q. Is it the timing to take that short trip with me to the Santa Fe Baldy mountain.
B. Possibly so, coming up...not yet, but soon.
Q. Oh, I didn’t think it was that soon?
B. Not yet, but soon.
Q: I wanted to ask you what your people, your civilization feels about the reaction to Princess Diana’s Death.
B. Which reaction are you speaking of? There are many, many, many reactions and responses.
Q. The outpouring of love and coming together, yes.
B. All right, well we have to some degree already addressed that, have we not?
Q. Right, but I mean, my question was are they...
B. What way do you specifically mean it?
Q. Are they surprised?
B. Surprised? No, not at all.
Q. Okay
B. We know that you are on a path of integration, if not so we would not be having these conversations. Therefore, while we may be surprised in a sense by the specific way your planet might choose to go about doing something on the larger scale, we are not surprised by the kinds of things in general that you do. Because we know that you are very clever, and we know that one way or another, through darkness or through light, you will arrive at the light in the center, one way or another. However it is that you need to do it, however it is you choose to do it, will be the way that works best for all of you, of that we have absolutely no doubt. Does that make sense and answer your question?

Q. Yes, that’s what I was wondering. Also, do you have people in your civilization who are personalities, or have had these strong personalities that lead you, like we do or are all of you so evolved that no one is more in tune....

B. Every single individual is, at this point in our evolution, absolutely equal in their impact and yet at the same time, every single individual knocks everyone of us out. Do you understand how both can be true simultaneously?

Q. Yes, but I....

B. Yes, but, that usually means no.

Q. Well, no, what I mean is do you have leaders like we ... these women were?

B: Yes, every single individual is a leader and a follower and a do-er and a be-er, every single individual. There can be patterns that will occur in the collective when, for one reason or another, the outward appearance of someone being more focused on than the others might occur for some reason. But in no way, shape or form at any time does that outward focus take the same meaning that it does on your planet, in the sense that no one else in any way shape or form and not for a second would believe that that outward focus or that apparent focus of that single individual means that they are somehow better than or more capable than anyone else, in being in that position. It’s simply seen as the synchronicity that serves us all, that someone is, perhaps, standing out from the crowd at any given moment but we never lose sight of the whole crowd holographically. Nor do we ever lose sight that every single individual contains exactly the same energy and the same impact and the same ability to be the focal point for everyone. Make sense?

Q. Yes.

B. Does that answer the question?

Q. Yes, also I wanted to ask you, regarding the monarchy, at what point will we see that make a shift ?

B. At the point were every single one of you acknowledges your king-hood and queen- hood within your own selves. Do you understand?

Q. Yes.

B. You are all royalty and you are all commoners and when everyone understands that energetically there will be no real reason, except for the kind of synchronous play acting that we have already described, there will be no real reason to actually physically differentiate that on your planet, because everyone will be a king and a queen in their own right. Everyone will be equal to everyone else. Does that make sense to you?

Q. Yes, yes it does.
B. But, in that equality, we are not talking about homogeneousness. Unity is the product of the strengthening of the infinite diversity of each individual. It is like unto the analogy we have used many times, what you call the puzzle picture game. You have puzzles on your planet that when you put all the pieces together form a large picture. The only reason you get the large picture is because each and every puzzle piece has a unique shape. If you try to conform the puzzle pieces you won’t get the same picture, you will not create the whole unity. The unity comes from each puzzle piece being granted validity as the unique shape in which it was created and allowed to be what it needs to be and fit where it needs to fit. That’s the only way you get the whole picture that then supports all of the validity of all the pieces. Make sense?
Q. Yes I like that.
B. That is what we are talking about. Does that make sense to you then?
Q. Yes
B. Does that help you then?
Q. It does. There have been some people whom have said that, perhaps, it was not an accident?
B. If you are talking the idea of conspiracy, this is false.
Q. Right, okay.
B. It is timing, and purely timing and it is not, in that sense, what falls into the typical idea on your planet of conspiratorial action, no. Does that help you?
Q. Okay, yes.
B. Thank you
Priorities

Q: Six years ago, a very good friend of mine was told that the laser would be a matter of years before it could be used for this pigmentation that her child...all the moles on her back had formed at birth, so that the back is completely black. Six years have gone by and the laser isn’t perfected up to that point so they can get rid of this pigmentation. How many more years do you think we’re going to have before we get this technology? Where are our scientists in being able to use the laser with cancer and moles and...

B: Again, this could change.

Q: Yes.

B: For what we perceive to be your priorities in your civilization are always changing. It is not that the technology does not exist.

Q: Then why don’t we have it yet?

B: Priorities. You simply have not applied the technology you have in that specific direction. You have applied it in other ways that you feel to be more necessary.

Q: So how much longer do you think it’s going be?

B: With that specific application it can be within what you call, two to three of your years. One moment...our perception is that there is information you and/or your friend can attract to yourselves that will allow you to recognize where and what state the technology already is in, for yourselves.

Q: Um, interesting, because I do have some connections in...it is not at the Mayo clinic is it?

B: You will find something there that will lead you; but we find that the primary connection will be elsewhere.

Q: You’re not able to tell me at this point?

B: The name that presents itself is, what you call, your laboratories...Sandia.

Q: Where is that?

Q2: New Mexico.

Q: Oh, thanks.

B: Thank you.
Prism Of Consciousness

B: Do remember this – and this also may assist you greatly when you allow it to sink into whatever portion of you it needs to sink into. And do not think you are not getting this; you are getting it on whatever level you need to. Relax within yourself.

But do remember this: any of the ideas of what many people in your civilization believe to be entrapment: “I’m stuck here; I’m stuck there,” is because you have been taught to believe that consciousness exists in the body.

It doesn’t. The body exists within your consciousness. There is a vast difference in the realization of those two definitions. Ponder that while you all enjoy a short break.

———–Break———–

All right. Ponder that for a moment, then, if you will: that consciousness does not exist in your body; but that your body exists within the consciousness that you are.

The idea, therefore, is very, very unlimiting – very expansive. For you can recognize that what you colloquially think of as your body is but one focal point within the combined idea of the consciousness that you are – out of which is created all the physical reality you experience.

In this way, you can allow yourself to know you have much more mobility, in that sense, because you can always allow yourself to diversify your focus, disperse your point of view, broaden and expand the way you look at yourself; the way you look through yourself, the way you look through the idea of yourself that is expressed in body terms.

The body is immersed in the collective consciousness that you are. The body functions much like an anchor point for the prism that allows the white light of your consciousness to channel through, to funnel through that prism, and become the specialized spectrum of light – the differentiated spectrum of light – that creates the differences you see in physical reality. The prism is formed, as many three-sided things are, from the three ideas you call belief, emotion and thought.

Belief, emotion and thought form the ego structure that allows you to maintain in physical reality, to function as a physicalized form of your consciousness – or a physicalized representation of your consciousness.

Your personality as a physical being – your persona – is not literally who or what you are directly, nor totally, in that sense. It is, in a sense, an artificial construct; it is a representative of a particular idea that your consciousness is being, as an expression of physical reality.

and display itself as the spectrum of differences that you perceive physical reality to be. It is simply one way of expressing yourself. And you do it because it is one way you can express yourself – because it is one of the ways that you can express yourself in creation, as an aspect of creation.

Remember this: each and every being in creation is simply all the different ways that Infinite Creation has of expressing itself as the creation that it is. But everything that takes place, takes place within the idea of the consciousness that you are.

Out of the consciousness that you are is created all experiences, so that any fragment that you create yourself to be may interact with, or interact as, to put it more literally. Any experience you are having is not happening to you, it is you happening as that experience. It is you interacting as the event of the experience. It is your consciousness intersecting the idea, recognizing itself, knowing itself as that particular event, or that particular experience.

You cause an intersection to take place between the self and the ability to reflect the self to the self. Self… awareness, in that way, is what creates all the experiences you have. It is, in and of itself, the ability – Self-awareness is, in and of itself, the ability to create experience in a seemingly – I’ll say seemingly – objectified manner. For there is no true objectivity; everything is a subjective experience. Objectivity is a tool; it is an attitude you can use to allow yourself to bring clear insight to many of the meanings of the experiences that you are, subjectively.

By the way, allow us to interject at this time that what many of you refer to – not that we care whether you use this or not – but what many of you refer to in any given situation as skepticism is usually thought in your society, to be a display of objectivity. Skepticism is not objectivism; skepticism is an already inherent belief and bias in a particular direction.

Contrary to what many of you think, skepticism is not what you typically call a true scientific trait. Objectivity is. Skepticism is a bias, and therefore it is an emotional trait, in that sense, and not truly what you would call scientific, even in your own terms.

However, recognize that all points of view are valid, since they allow the individual to determine the experience that they are being. And therefore allowing them to determine what experience they would prefer to be, if they find that they are creating themselves to be an experience they don’t prefer. Or what experience they would reinforce if they find they are being an experience they do prefer.

But remember it can – as it did for us in our civilization – make a profound difference, in your recognition of your ability to create the reality you desire, if you will remember that consciousness does not exist in the body; the body exists in the consciousness that you are. And everything is malleable, and the things that seem solid are the things you believe are solid.
And only the belief makes them solid. Only the belief. Everything is energy; everything is malleable; everything is you – expressing the unique facet that you are of Infinite Creation.

Q: Does that mean that if I believed that this concrete were liquid, that I could slip down through it as if it were a . . .

B: Yes. And you will find that there are individuals upon your planet who are beginning to exhibit such traits. For example, what you call levitation; what you call bilocation; what you call teleportation. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: All of these are examples that you truly are the reality you create. And that when you rearrange the definitions, then the reality will also rearrange itself — instantly. It is only because you have been taught, and only because it has been truly ingrained within your thought structure that physical reality — as you have been taught to believe reality is — is the only way reality can be, that you very often do bang into a wall when you walk towards it.

Because you have been taught to believe... because you have been taught to believe you need to believe that it is solid. It has served you to believe so in the past. But now that you are beginning to awaken to the fact that physical reality is only what you make it, now you can play around a little bit more freely with it — because you now know you are in control of it. You follow me?

Q: Yes. You made me think of an example I heard about at Stanford Research.

B: All right.

Q: They were playing with psychogenetic experiences of mind over matter. And they found that when they set up an experience that people were very familiar with — for instance, levitating a table in front of them — they had a great deal of difficulty. But something they knew only a little bit about, like moving a laser beam inside of a vacuum, they had a great deal more success.

B: Yes, because there is no expectation in the way. Quote/unquote: Everybody knows you can’t raise a table by levitation. But almost no one in your society knows what is possible or not possible with a laser beam. You follow me?

Q2: Yes. What would be a good way to re-sculpture one’s belief systems?

B: By getting in touch with what it is to begin with, and then redefining.

Q: Okay, so if you wanted to practice levitation, you would just . . .

B: One very appropriate way would be that if you do know — as we have discussed — an individual who already does it, go and be in that environment and mimic what they do. Because you can identify with them and create the same pattern that they create in their life, in your life. And then you will act the same way and have the same results. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. If such an individual isn’t immediately available, what would be the next best way to manliest . . .
B: You can attract one to yourself, if you feel you need it. And you can always use your imagination and attract to yourself whatever information you need to allow you to become such an individual.

We would recommend that a great deal of breathing in silent centering – breathing in deep and rhythmic patterns – will infuse your body with a type of crystalline energy that will allow you to arrive at the center point of balance, from which point anything is possible.

Q: I understand, but . . .

B: You will then, quote/unquote, lose your fix, on the reality you think of all the time and begin to accept more postulates from other realities. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I really do. Thank you very much.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Bashar: How do you say, good day to you this day of your time, how are you?

Q: Great!

B: Alright. First of all, once again we thank you very much for this interaction, for this bridge, for this interface. For your willingness to allow our world to experience an expansion of a perception of All That Is, through these interactions with each and every single one of you. We thank you. We would like to begin this exchange by saying, things change. We have talked about the fourth law – Change is the only constant. Everything changes, except the first three laws of course, but we won’t go into that right now. Things change. You have noticed more and more changes taking place within yourselves, within your community, in your reality, as we have discussed these past fifteen orbits. That there would be more acceleration of change in certain directions and many of these you have begun to see.

We would want to at this time express upon you that as you change so does your experience. As you change your relationship with All That Is so then does your experience of All That Is. Many people upon your planet have and still are allowing themselves to lock into the idea of fear with regard to changes, and expressing these ideas as catastrophe, upheaval, calamity. However, many people are now also realizing that as you change so does the way in which you experience transformation, and while you can still observe that many places upon your planet may be experiencing certain kinds of stresses, certain kinds of upheaval, certain kinds of difficulties – you are, perhaps you, just beginning to get an inkling that some of the great, sweeping, world-transforming changes that have been predicted for a long time – you are beginning to get an inkling that either some of these may no longer happen in the way they were originally predicted, or, may simply be more gradual than you first thought.

For as you smooth out your ability to change, as you get used to the idea that change is your friend, as you are more willing to use change in a positive, constructive way, as you are more willing to invite change without fear then the changes that are reflected in your outer reality can also be, likewise, smoother, more gradual, more handable. As an example of this, many of you will recall that one of your strong, famous, seers, visionaries, or what you may like to term, psychics – that individual you knew as Edgar Cayce – many of you have read what you term his prophecies, his predictions as he gave them from his sleep-like state, or his trance-like state and many discussions have been had and many remarks have been made upon his prophecies and predictions of, catastrophic change, global change, earthquakes, weather, pole-shifts forth. It is now interesting, very interesting to note that there is a new book that has now emerged about many of these prophecies from Edgar Cayce being discussed in a new light by individuals who have gone back through the archives of his predictions – examined them in more detail – and it is now beginning to be discovered, or perhaps more precisely, it is now beginning to be discussed that some of these prophecies and predictions actually said that many of these changes that were first thought to be taking place in abrupt and catastrophic ways could in fact actually be, gradual.

It is interesting to note that it took more than fifty of your years to somehow put this into print. That many of his predictions said that the changes could be gradual, instead of catastrophic and instantaneous. But this is of course nothing but a reflection of your willingness now to believe that it is possible to experience the transformation going on in a different way. And so of course now you get the reflection that says, “Oh well, yes, he said this”, even though you could have found that out fifty years ago. But it didn’t get printed that way. Only the ideas of the instantaneous catastrophes were printed. No discussion was had about the gradualness that was possible but now, now, now those re-examinations are beginning to understand that he did say, close to the end of his life that many such things were possible to be experienced in a gradual way, over long periods of time. Based on the changes taking place within the consciousness of the world.

This is, now that it is in print, a good sign that you yourselves have changed. That you yourselves are more ready and more willing to accept responsibility, relationship with All That Is, in such a manner as to know that reality happens through you not to you. And your eyes are opening wider and you are once again reclaiming your childhood, your children, inside your energy, playful, imaginative energy – to know that the world is what you make of it, reality is what you make of it, based on how you value yourself. And, based on your willingness to accept All That Is in all its forms and in so doing, to then have more of a co-creatorship with the form that it then will take from that point forward.

And so, in noting this, we extend to each of you our congratulations – and to all those in your world, our congratulations, for being willing to begin to accept more of yourself. For being willing to begin to love more of yourself. For being willing to be more of yourself. For this, as we have always said, makes all the difference in your world. And so we thank you.

We may, if you now so desire, begin with sharing. What is it your imagination would like to discuss this day?

Process and Change
Q: I’m happy that I don’t need to drink alcohol any more, nothing of this kind.
B: All right.
Q: And ... I still smoke.
B: Yes?
Q: What Bashar is it, that I can’t ... me personally, what is it I am trying to hide ... I’m trying to hang on to, that I can’t give up?
B: It is simply a matter of rearranging your definitions about this particular circumstance. First of all, of course, don’t judge it, you cannot change something that you judge, in that sense. Yes, you have to own it, yes, you have to acknowledge it, and you are honestly doing that. You recognize that it may be a preference, that this is something you would like to change, but on the other hand, if you still do it, then actually what you have to really realize is that you actually don’t want to change it. Which means that you don’t have a definition that would allow you to have a motivation to choose to change it. You, in some senses, don’t want to change it, because somehow you have a definition that says you are still getting something out of it you can get no other way. You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: So, you are motivated to continue to choose to do that thing, and the motivation would have to come from your definition of circumstances in your life, and that particular idea that allows you to believe that, for some reason, it is still the thing to choose. So, the fundamental question for anything that you think you want to change but are not changing is, how does it actually serve you, in your mind? What do you think you’re getting out of continuing to do it? Because obviously you do nothing without being motivated to do it, and the motivation would interpret itself as – you obviously believe somehow that it is getting you somewhere, giving you something that you can’t get in some other way.
Q: Hmm.
B: So, how do you think, in that sense, it is working for you to keep choosing to do that? What do you think you’re getting out of continuing to choose that particular behavior? No judgment on it.
Q: Yes, no judgment, and I have to concentrate on that, of course, yes.
B: Oh all right, if you wish. But that’s the question to ask yourself ... what am I getting out of it? Because then you will understand that you have a definition that says that continuing to choose that behavior is somehow more pleasurable and less painful than choosing the idea of stopping. You understand?
Q: That’s true!
B: Well? Then that’s it ... as soon as you can rearrange your definition and understand how not doing it is more pleasurable and less painful than doing it, you will be instantly motivated to not do it anymore.
Q: On the process though, of going...
B: Aha, aha, ah ... you can create a process if you want to, I will not take that away from you, and I will not judge it. Any process you decide is necessary is a beautiful creation in its own right. But I am simply reminding you that process, in and of itself ... not invalidating it, is simply the amount of time, for whatever reason that you create, that you think it needs to take before you’ll actually finally allow yourself to see the obvious ... that’s what process is. It’s the time you think you need before you will give yourself permission to be who you are, that’s all it is. So if you want to go through a process, by all means do so, but recognize that that’s what you’re doing ... is you’re simply taking time, because, for some reason, you are not yet ready to give yourself permission to be who you really want to be.
Q: Hmm.
B: That’s the only reason that process exists.
Q: That’s the only reason...
B: Process isn’t the thing that actually gets you to change. Process is the thing that keeps you from changing long enough, until you finally give yourself permission to change, and then you stop the process and change. Change does not require a process ... a process is something that gives you time to believe you are ready and comfortable to make a change. No process actually helps you make the change, per se, literally. You follow? Except in giving you time to believe you are ready to do so. But, mechanically speaking, process doesn’t help you make a change. You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: All right, so think about that, if you wish.
Q: Thank you very much.

“Profundity in Simplicity”
(Bashar is discussing a dream interpretation with a person who keeps assuming that the message must be complex, and therefore hard to understand.)
B: You see, you are making this too complicated for yourself.
Q: Okay.
B: What does it just say to you, simply? What is the simplest possible explanation you can imagine for this vision?
Q: Okay, the simplest thing I can imagine, I guess, is that I have control over the vibration of the Earth that I reside in?
B: Oh no, really? (Laughter)
Q: Okay, that’s it?
B: My goodness, what an insight! Can it be that simple?
Q: I don’t know... (laughing) ... can it?
B: Yes.
Q: Is that it, there’s no more to it than that?
B: Why do you think there needs to be more? You see, this is the question. You are looking for profundity in complexity, instead of in simplicity.
Q: Yes.
B: You understand? What you are actually saying is that ... that which is simple, is not profound.
Q: Okay, right ... right.
B: You have been trained to think that the only profundity is in complication, and that’s why you murk things up, because you are looking for profundity.
Q: Right.
B: But you have profundity in the simplicity, you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: What could be clearer? You are recognizing that vibration is all there is, that the pitch of the vibration determines the reality. That you have the ability to determine what the vibration is, and you will get the result based on the vibrational pitch that you determine is what you prefer. What could be easier and simpler as an instruction in a dream, than that?

Q: Well, the way you put that just seems so clear and easy.
B: But it is clear and easy.
Q: Yes.
B: You just don’t believe it.
Q: I guess that’s true.
B: So what do you get out of not believing it? What we have already said – you have been trained to think that the idea of profundity and importance has to come with complication.
Q: I don’t want to see myself as being simplistic, I guess.
B: Thank you.
Q: That’s the fear I have.
B: Thank you. You have been trained of course therefore, conversely, to think, in that complexity is important, simplicity is containing nothing.
Q: Right.
B: And therefore as you say, you are afraid to be taken as simplistic.
Q: Right.
B: But it’s not simplistic ... it’s simplicity.
Q: There’s beauty in simplicity.
B: Absolutely.
Q: I know that.

B: The universe is complex, but it does not need to be complicated. All the complexity, the richness, the diversity, stems from simplicity. In order for the universe to have the degree of complexity and richness that it has, it has to be based on simplicity. If it really were based on complexity or complication, it would be impossible to exist in the way that it does. The idea of all the richness is the result, is the product of a few, few, very simple principles. Were it not the case, it would be too unwieldy to support itself, and it would collapse under its own weight, so to speak. So, in simplicity there is profundity and importance. Doesn’t matter how complex the simplicity can present itself, look to the underlying simplicity to understand what something is constructed of, and you will know that you already know what you need to know, instead of making it complicated. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Okay, yes.
Projected Illusions

Q: The subject of awareness...
B: Yes.

Q: aware-ing be more properly describing that action; awareness not as a condition, but as an action?
B: In a sense.

Q: It is like sweeping across and putting a perception, or aware-ing, would be more descriptive of what is really going on there.
B: How about simply being?

Q: Okay. You mean in place of that or synonymous to that?
B: Yes.

Q: Okay. Secondly: this dimension of self...
B: Yes.

Q: ...I've looked at that area and when I got back with some feedback there were twelve...I guess it is agreed that there are twelve levels of self, but then I noticed that they're all objective, it's all out there. Do you concur with that?
B: It is all subjectively created to appear objective.

Q: Okay. It is a funny subject because no matter where I look, I'm not there. You understand what I'm saying?
B: You are always here. But the idea of creating or creating the illusion, the ability to create the illusion of a here and a there is one of the definitions of third density, the physical reality that you are in. The ability to create the illusion of an objectified universe is what gives you the opportunity to forget that you have created it, so you can play the game of being limited.

Q: Okay. All right, that doesn’t quite do it for me. Let me see if I can get this...
B: All right.

Q: ...it is real simple...
B: Okay.

Q: ...it's just I haven't got the simplicity of it yet.
B: Okay.

Q: Um, referring to myself, where I originate in my awareness of myself...
B: Where you originate?
Q: Well, this is the thing; it is not really awareness. I’m talking about an area without space and time.
B: Yes.
Q: So, um...
B: You are. That is it.
Q: Yeah, but what about these other selves: upper-self, lower-self...
B: They are projected illusions of seeming objectivity.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Projection And Openness In Communication

Q: Previously we explored the idea that our physical environment around us was a projection, whereby the light of our consciousness shined through the ideas and agreement patterns that we had...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and projected into existence the environment.
B: Yes.
Q: Much in the same way that our movie projectors project through film. Tonight you touched on the concept of energies that were transmitted through our physical bodies that could also alter the physical environment.
B: Yes.
Q: Is our consciousness and our body the projected viewpoint in which these energies are being translated through the body and thereby...
B: In a sense.
Q: ...environment?
B: Yes, now do remember and recognize that we are utilizing colloquial terms in your language. The idea, of course, is that you actually are the event you are experiencing. And even the idea of projecting the energy out is, in and of itself, an illusion.
Q: So you’re looking at a linear concept based on...
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. That linear... good. That ends that one.
Another question – a completely different subject. A friend of mine has fallen in love and has a great desire and excitement and love for a woman who is married and has two children. And he’s married and he’s with another’s wife, and they have two children. And he wishes to bring this about... he’s concerned with the fact that the – because of our cultural structural – the invitations will invite the other people to create misery, unhappiness, dissension, these sorts of things. And I would like if you would simply reflect...
B: Our suggestion would be the openness and honesty of communication between all individuals concerned. Sharing the feelings, sharing the attractions, and allowing all individuals to recognize that if they are connected to each other, then the connection of one of those individuals to another individual in another group that is connected to itself, is a reflection of the idea that perhaps all of those individuals are more closely connected than they think.
If it is an opportunity for everyone to be, as you say, out in the open with their feelings, and share and know and trust that they can get reflections from each other without feeling threatened, without feeling cheated upon or chastised in that way, then perhaps they can all learn much about their individual abilities for the expression of unconditional love to each other. And can explore the idea of the boundaries that your society has set, and perhaps allow them – in whatever way will maintain everyone’s integrity – to dissolve.

Q: That’s lovely.
B: For when certain ideas like that sometimes are explored, you may find that the initial inclination – or what you think is the initial inclination – may not be what follows through. It may simply be for the purpose of allowing certain forms of communication to open up. And once those communications have been opened up, the original intentions may no longer be necessary.

Q: Yes. And one of the individuals involved is holding to a consideration that her love for the individual is somehow a betrayal of her friend – who is the individual’s wife.
B: Once again: if there is the openness of communication and integrity within all individuals, then there can be a sharing and a deepening of understanding and a deepening of the love, that more often that not, anything that you call difficulty in relationships usually stems from what is not said rather than what is said.

Q: Yes, that’s very classic. Actually one of the individuals that this person subscribes to, claims – or puts out the concept that – undelivered communications was the prime source of their present time problems.
B: Yes.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
3
Projections of Consciousness

Q: Is it possible that we might have a communication from Arcturus tonight?
B: In dreamtime.
Q: Thank you.
B: Particularly within each and every one of you who creates the manifestation of the portion of yourself that you call the child.
Q: Can you tell me how, on your planet, you take care of the raising of the young?
B: In this way you will find that, first of all, we are in communication with the consciousness before it is born, during birth, and after birth; and in this way you will find that we are always in touch with the understanding of why that individual has chosen to manifest within our society to begin with. Therefore, any raising that is done is only an orientation process into the dimension that that consciousness has projected itself, approximately up to what you would call three years of age – then they are on their own for the most part.
Q: Do they reach full, what we would consider adult height?
B: No. But in this way, at what you call three, they have developed the idea of the ability of interaction necessary within our society to simply attract themselves to wherever they need to attract themselves, to learn what they need to learn.
Q: Umm. Thank you. Fascinating. In your society do you travel through physical space?
B: In a sense. We do have a type of physicalness that you would call fourth density.
Q: When you come to visit us do you travel through space to here, or do you just appear here?
B: Now, the idea of the communication you are perceiving this night of your time is not “traveling” in the usual sense in this way. I have not come to your sphere, except by the projection of my mentality, my consciousness in that way.
The idea of traveling in what you would call our spacecraft also is not exactly traveling as you understand it; and the idea is not necessary for us to travel in this way, for this type of communication to take place. The idea of consciousness takes place above, so to speak, time and space. Therefore, any connection of this sort needs only the belief and the trust and the faith within the mechanism of the dimension of the imagination, to occur.
Now, this is part and parcel of how spacecraft work as well, since they are also only projections of consciousness like anything else in the physical universe. But, in the way that many times we have the distinction of communicating with you this way, I am in my spacecraft in my own system, not in your system. Or I have the opportunity, in this way, of moving, as you would say, my spacecraft to your system and interacting with you that way. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. When... when you do come in your spacecraft, can you exist in our atmosphere?

B: Yes. For there will have been the slight vibrational shift necessary to exist in your frame of reference at all. You would find that with a similar slight shift in the other direction, you would be able to survive in our planetary atmosphere as well. It is not dissimilar.

Q: Physically?

B: Yes. Recognize that when you travel in our spacecraft, you automatically, almost unconsciously, would make a shift you do not think you are making. You are adapted during the journey. Because the idea is that, to exist in our civilization, to even be able to perceive any other civilization of any other planet, you have to change the vibrational frequency of your consciousness anyway.

Q: Wow.

B: Doing so can allow you to adapt to the existence of that civilization.

Q: If it is necessary to change my frequency to perceive you...

B: Yes.

Q: ... is it possible for you to come in your spaceship and only have certain individuals perceive you?

B: Yes. That happens quite often as a matter of fact. For you will find that because of the vagaries of consciousness, because you are shifting all the time, many times there are simply ships around you all the time you are not aware of. And sometimes certain individuals, because they simply, for a moment, for some season, tune into a certain vibration, will suddenly have it seem as if a craft has appeared when it has been there all along. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. I have one more question.

B: All right.

Q: Um, is matter, does matter contain consciousness?

B: Yes. Matter is consciousness. Energy is consciousness.

Q: All energy?

B: Everything is consciousness. All That Is, is consciousness.

Q: So, um, since everything is consciousness and it’s everywhere...

B: And every when.

Q: ... then you can, that’s how you can tune into a different frequency.

B: Yes. The universe is, as you call it, holographic. Do you understand the terminology?

Q: No... no.

B: Holographic, as you have created it to be understood in your civilization, simply is a reference to the idea that any one point in the universes contains the probable whole universe.
Q: How does that work?
B: Very well, thank you.
The idea can be expressed this way: there is, once again, in what you call your earth mythology, the idea expressed as Indra’s net, which is simply a net of pearls. Now, each pearl contains the information of the total net. That is the way the universe is built, so to speak. That is why we can travel as we do. Because the idea is simply that we do not think of spacecraft or any physical object as something that exists within space and time, but we consider space/time to be properties of the object itself. Thus, when we change the particular space/time co-ordinate property, the vibrational signature property, of an object and replace it with another vibration, then by definition the object must cease to exist at its former location and take up residence in the second one, no matter how far apart in space or time that is.
Q: Without traveling in between? Just automatically?
B: Correct. Yes.
Now understand, this is what you are doing anyway, even when you move through a room. For every moment is its own unique moment, and is not connected to the next moment until you form a continuum in your mentality. So you are constantly redefining the property of space and time for yourself so that you create the illusion of motion. Nothing really goes anywhere. It is all right here. You follow me?
Q: Yes. So that means I could stop creating that…
B: Continuum.
Q: Yes.
B: Yes. You can. Does that excite you?
Q: I guess.
B: Thank you! Then you may find yourself creating less time, which will seem like an acceleration to you. But that is what you are literally doing when you are accelerating. Living in the now creates less time, so things seem to be speed up.
Q: Thank you.
Pyramid And Cone Shapes

Q: You’ve talked about pyramids from your point of view, the three-sided tetrahedral pyramids. And the Pleiadians, like the Egyptian pyramids, are four-sided; and I imagine there is a five-sided, six-sided, seven...

B: In a sense, there can be. Although these other ideas will, more often than not, represent themselves in planes of existence that are not as directly connected to your own at this time.

Q: It’s fun to experiment with though.

B: Oh, you can experiment with it if you wish.

Q: Okay, the question I was asking is: the progression of that leads to a shape called the pyramidal cone, and does that have any significance to us at all? I haven’t seen that shape manifest itself on the Earth before.

B: You haven’t?

Q: No.

B: Are you sure?

Q: Hmm... let’s see...

B: A cone.

Q: Oh, a dunce cap.

B: What other type of hat?

Q: A wizard’s hat.

B: Thank you.

Q: Like a vortex.

B: Yes!

Q: (Laughing) And I called it a dunce cap! (AUD: laughter)

B: Well, the idea of putting the cap on what you imagine or judge to be a dunce is that the cap is supposed to make them smarter.

Q: Sure.

B: That is the connection that you have created in your subconscious memory, the cap of a wizard.

Q: I’ll keep that in mind.

B: All right. Wear it well! (More laughter)

Q: So were our pyramids on Earth, at one time, crystal capped?

B: Some, also gold, with crystal... some, what you would call the earlier ones. Not all of them – by any means, not all of them.

Q: Were they more powerful?
B: In a sense, let us say that when they were in that form they were able to focus the energy of the electromagnetic field of your planet a little more precisely, yes. For now, in your terms, they have been partly disassembled. Therefore, while they still can channel the energy, it will fluctuate in uneven, un-symmetrical ways. Does that answer your question?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Pyramids And Atlantis

B: We thank you for the expression of your individuality, and the expression of your collectivity. And in return for your gift this day of your time, we ask you now: how may we serve you?

Q: Hi, you all.
B: Greetings.
Q: Your friends in Sacramento asked me to ask you a question regarding the great pyramid in Giza, Egypt.
B: All right. Yes.
Q: Who built it? When, and for what purpose?
B: Thank you. Recognize, in your terminology, it was what you call your Egyptian civilization with offshoot remnants of Atlantean skill.

Very early, early on in your history, there had been some extraterrestrial co-mingling, but only because all of you are in that sense extra-terrestrially connected as well. Your civilization of Atlantis, though native to your world, stems from the first incursions upon your planet of whom and what you are.

None of you are native to Earth intrinsically. And therefore, the civilization and the technology in what you call Atlantis spread out over various sectors of your planet, infiltrating into what you call the Egyptian culture, and were responsible for the very earliest of pyramids, of which what you call the Giza pyramid is one. But even that is after the fact of many of the earlier pyramids, many of which are now lying on your ocean floor in your Atlantic ocean. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Mostly it was that the later pyramids were built by the Egyptian civilization after they had forgotten much of the technique and technology that was employed in Atlantean times of the sonic vibration, or sonic levitation of stone into place. The great pyramid you refer to was built in such a manner. But some of the later pyramids were built, as many of you have speculated, through what you would call brute force and leverage, after the original techniques were lost and forgotten.

Approximately – though this will vary in our perception – to some degree you may understand that your great pyramid began to exist in, approximately, what you would call ten thousand years ago, approximately. Does that answer your question?

Q: And for what purpose was the pyramid built?
B: It is an initiation, in the sense that it is a crystal; it is a magnet; it is an amplifier of the Earth’s magnetic field, a focuser of that field, and an alignment tool. For within the center of that pyramidal structure, in what you call the chamber of the king, there will be an alignment force and a focus that will allow individuals to accelerate their vibration to experience astral projection. And in this way learn to connect with your higher self. That is the initial purpose for acceleration of energies. You understand?
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Very much so, thank you.
B: The idea of why those pyramid forms became associated with the after-life, and were associated with entombments, was because of the early recognition that allowed an individual to perceive the eternalness of the soul. Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that answer your question and serve you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Pyramids and Atlantis
Pyramids and Expanding the Auric Field

Q: Good evening.
B: Good evening, or good day, from my point of view.
Q: All right. I have two questions.
B: All right.
Q: One question I came with, and one arose from your opening remarks.
B: All right.
Q: I’d like to ask about that first. When you gave us the analogy of the pictures on the wall…
B: Yes.
Q: that, in fact, what the Egyptians were telling us with their two dimensional paintings; and if so, how does that relate to the pyramids?
B: Very good. To some degree, yes, they were. The stylized art form was an understanding that the physical form is very much like a shadow, in that way. To the higher self it is very two-dimensional.
The pyramid was their tool for accessing that higher self, for aligning the vibrations that they were, so that they could, in fact, realize that the physical dimension you think of as very solid was, in fact, an illusion, simply a shadow. By being in many of the chambers within those pyramids, they allowed themselves to exit the body and get the perspective that gave them the understanding of the physical reality’s shadowiness. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: It was the fourth-dimensional tool that allowed them to understand the third dimension, in a sense, in a two-dimensional way. You follow me?
Q: No, I fell off.
B: The pyramid is a fourth-density tool. They projected themselves into the fourth-dimension, and therefore, their perspective of the third dimension lost its solidity.
Q: Okay.
B: Many times individuals, when you are walking down your street, and you all of a sudden – for your own reasons and your own timing – snap into that awareness and that alignment, have not many of you felt that the physical dimension around you all of a sudden was very flat? Almost, as you say, made out of cardboard. Like a set, not quite real, not quite solid; that you could look behind it? This is the analogy, to some degree, of their art, and the reason for the period.
It is a magnet. It is a lens for the electro and ethero-magnetic field of your world. When you allow that lens to focus that energy into your vibrational auric field, it will then instill, imprint upon, your auric field the idea of that pattern that will allow you to expand and blossom into the more expanded higher self. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Pyramids and Expanding the Auric Field
Q & A
From: “The Tides of March"
3-6-98
Canoga Park, CA
Q: How many times would you say that other civilizations’ entities actually touched the evolutionary process of mankind.
B: Two hundred and fifty seven.
Q: Two hundred and fifty seven, and how many different species of factions within ?
B: Seventeen.
Q: Seventeen. Is Mars hollow?
B: No.
Q: Are there bases on Mars?
B: Yes.
Q: Is that one reason that we are not supposed to be there?
B: It is not that you are not supposed to, it is that simply the vibrations you give off do not make it conducive for certain things to be, allowed beyond a certain point, by those that wish to, in a sense, safeguard themselves against what would also happen in terms of reactions of the humans on the Earth; and safeguard the Earth from those reactions, as well.
Q: Is it possible that human beings, as we know it, actually began on Mars and populated this planet and went back....
B: Not exactly so, but you are the same incarnate spirits, so to speak. As a consciousness, it has moved, yes. There are some elements of what used to be Martian life, when Mars was habitable, that do connect genetically to the human body, yes. But it is not as cut and dry as saying that humans began on Mars because the beings that need to exist in the Martian environment were not exactly human. But there is some similarity in your genetics and you do contain some of the genes that used to exist in the ancient Martians, yes.
Q: That’s why there are so many similarities between, like the Cydonia region.
B: Yes.
Q: Yes, we’re very connected I feel.
B: It is very strong but it is not exact.
Q: Is the dark side of the moon inhabited?
B: There is no dark side of the moon.
Q: Let’s say the side that we do not see, is it inhabited?
B: Not by indigenous beings, there are, again, artificial bases. There are artificial bases even on the side that does face your planet.

Q: Ah, and we just have not been privileged to see them?
B: Oh yes, many of you have, it is simply not discussed by those that have seen them.
Q: No NASA people come to your sessions, or maybe they do, actually?
B: Yes, some of them have.
Q: Yes, they do. I just want to ask you one more question.
B: Oh well, all right.
Q: Linda Wiegand visited your session awhile back.
B: Yes, we understand.
Q: She’s an amazing changed person. There is so much that this has contributed to her world.
B: Oh all right, then she has made the changes, and thank her for making them.
Q: Are her sons safe? They’ve been missing for about six weeks.
B: In the overall sense that you mean it, yes. Even though they are, in what you would call, emotional jeopardy.
Q: Are they in the states? Are they out of the country? Are they in a mind control camp?
B: No, they are, however, enduring duress.
Q: Physical pain or?
B: Some, now and then, but mostly the idea of psychological, emotional pain.
Q: And yet they are not being mind controlled or anything to forget who....
B: It is not, in your terms, too late.
Q: It is not too late?
B: No.
Q: That’s what we’re hoping. Thank you so much.
B: At this timing....
Quetzalcoatl Returns

Q: Can you comment on the type of craft that appeared in Mexico City and Oaxaca during the eclipse in 1991?

B: The silvery one?

Q: It was a disk type ship.

B: One moment.

Q: It was also . . .

B: One moment! (Long pause with a different voice appearing) We are not allowed to give you a physiological definition, but we are allowed to tell you this: even though you recognize right now you may make many interpretations of what we are about to say, we will have to let that stand for now. Just understand that you are going to make many different kinds of interpretations, and therefore, let what we are saying, not so much be specific as you may think you may understand it, but be a generalization that could be understood in a number of ways.

The being in that craft was, specifically, and again we can define it no stronger than this, in no more specific details of this, AT THIS TIME, was specifically the return of Quetzalcoatl. Do you understand this?

Q: Yes. And it appeared simultaneously in three different cities. Was that a holographic projection of the same craft?

B: In a sense, but not a holographic projection as you understand it, simply, truly the same craft bending dimensions so that it could in fact be, in what you would perceive to be, three places at once. In each place it was the real craft.

Q: And it was also reported simultaneously in Japan.

B: Yes, because there is an interesting connection there.

Q: You have often talked about how there are civilizations that, perhaps, don’t have our best interest in mind. And, at the same time, you’ve talked about how you don’t have to need the idea of protection, because of your frequency you will attract a reality that you have sent out.

B: Yes. So, these two comments are not incompatible.

Q: I was wondering how the civilizations that don’t have our best interest in mind have the ability to evolve an integrated enough technology to travel interstellarly?

B: Because there are many ways to do it. And the idea is that beings do not necessarily have to experience a certain kind of integral understanding of themselves in order to create a technology that could, in some ways, accomplish the feat for them. However, there are many things that are missing from their technology, from their ability to do and go in certain places, in certain ways, because they are not operating in an integral manner. But this does not mean that they cannot accomplish what you call a crude version of it, in much the same way that what your call your hydrogen bomb is certainly an expression of the fusion and the release of energy from atomic power, but certainly you know that there are more, shall we say, sophisticated ways to express it. You understand?

Q: Yes. And the Hopis have the Kachina doll.

B: Yes.

Q: . . . and they reference it to Arcturean blue beings.

B: Yes.

Q: Is this the civilization that . . . and direction that Sirius will be going in, as they evolve to their next step?

B: Sirius is connected to this, but it is also indicative of a physiological manifestation of blue skin beings that used to physiologically exist upon your planet, and they are connected as an aspect of Kachina beings, as well as Sirius and Arcturus energy.

Q: So the Kachina beings are not a direct reference to Arcturus themselves?

B: Arcturus is an aspect of the Kachina beings. You must understand that what you perceive as “The Kachina” is only a presentation of an aspect of the total Kachina consciousness, in the same way that your physiological body is only a presentment of an aspect of your total consciousness. Kachina beings are quasi-planar, multidimensional beings. In their nature they express themselves in your dimension as large collective consciousness presentations, as archetypal beings, because that’s the only way your reality can create a presentation, can reflect a presentation of the scope of the consciousness of those beings. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes. The last two things are: what frequency are you coming through tonight at and . . .

B: No comment. What’s next?

Q: frequency does one access to no longer need to eat and sustain oneself with outer substances?

B: Usually, again, this will vary from individual to individual, but you will find that somewhere around the idea two-hundred and forty-seven thousand cycles per second, as an average, will be the frequency where individuals upon your planet will not necessarily require physiological sustenance, though they can still choose that idea, they do not necessarily need to. But that is only an average.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: We thank you.
Ra and Sirius and Altair

Q: What interactions do you have with Ra?
B: Ra.
Q: Yes.
B: In this way you will find that on one level of our consciousness there is, let us say, coordinated communication taking place to allow us to be of assistance to your civilization in the way we need to be, and to allow them to be of assistance in the way they need to be.

It is not so much that there is what you would call specific interaction of “personalities” – especially since, in a sense, they are not really a personality – but recognize that as we blend in our cognition of the timing of our interaction with you, then on the level that is, in and of itself, the definition of the dimension of timing, there is interaction of all entities that are involved with you. And portions of yourselves as well, of course.

Q: Well that’s interesting to me because when I channel that energy its difficult to distinguish when I channel your energy, and when I channel Ra’s.
B: In this way you are simply forming a blending that also allows you to sustain a familiarity in a degree of comfort with what you are familiar with. But also do understand that you are blending all in such a way as to also perceive the idea of our own “higher energy self” – the Sirius connection, which is also sixth density.

In this way, it is simply that our personality framework allows us to exemplify much of the idea of our own knowledgeable connections to our higher densities.

Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: In other words, our manner of presentation of our personality allows there to be an obvious connection to our own higher selves as well. So therefore, that energy will be sensed as a part of the interaction.

There is more to this idea but at this time we find that you will acquire this information through your own and other sources, as a part of your process.

Q: Fine. I have another question.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: Do you have any interactions with the civilization around Altair?
B: Yes.
Q: Can you give me a kind of a flavor for their civilization?
B: Round.
Q: Round?
B: We are attempting to translate... one moment... (Pauses)
Star-point brightness... mathematical incorporations... equational... incorporative... additive... component-ized... aggregates... some linear projection with a high degree of accelerated spirals used to support the linear projection. Proceed.

Q: Well, my understanding was that in some forms they are quite good communicators between various systems.
B: Yes. The linear projections.
Q: Right... and the spirals.
B: Yes. Also the idea of the mathematical equations and the variances in the terms of recognizing different frequencies. They are, in a sense, masters of manipulating frequency and thus that is an assistance to the idea of communication. And also they are masters of directness in that communication. Now these are terms, in that way; and thus the terms as we have described them are the “translations” into your language because you do not have terms in your language for those attributes – in a sense. Does that assist you for now?
Q: Yes.
B: One moment...
Pleasant dreams of woven webs and interconnecting lines.
Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Bashar: Channeled by Darryl Anka
From: "Orion and the Black League"
3-25-85

Questioner: What about Ra, what’s, what is Ra?

Bashar: You may understand that terminology in such a way as to understand that it proceeds, I’ll say, from an entirely different dimension of reality as you understand it, in that way, projected into your own dimension of reality as, I’ll say, much in the same way that you experience the idea of the Association. Do you follow me?

Q: Mm-hmm.

B: It is a collected understanding of consciousness which proceeds from another vibratory level of existence.

Q: Bashar, I’m trying to understand that the best way to serve All That Is is to live your life without judgement. And the more you live your life without judgement...

B: The more opportunity you will create for yourself to unfold in positive ways that will allow you to manifest your service towards All That Is. Understand that by allowing yourself to experience the judgement of yourself, you are vibrating then within that negative energy vibration which creates the negative effect that you feel and manifest within your life.

Simply understand that by KNOWING that you ARE All That Is, in that way, you will always be reinforcing that overall ecstatic, I’ll say, evolution of the understanding of service, in that way, to All That Is. And that your manifestations, I’ll say, within your physical life, will always go towards the reinforcement of the positive, I’ll say, unfoldment of all activity within the support of the idea of All That Is.

Q: So, you were saying a couple of weeks ago that we were gonna be able to use computers to help us tap into our unconscious self?

B: That will be one idea.

Q: Do you know when? Or does it matter?

B: That is being explored right now. Again, realize that many of these ideas or manifestations will, in terms of your time, at this time, in the energy momentum behind the idea that you have in your mass consciousness, take place, I’ll say, unfold to, I’ll say, a specific degree within, I’ll say, the next thirty of your years. Question?

Q: Isn’t biofeedback a beginning of that technological...

B: Yes, very well.

B: What about hypnosis?

B: To a degree, but again, understand that your idea expressed as, what you term to be, hypnosis, in that way, is simply the realization that you’re always, I’ll say, in that sense, hypnotizing yourself to perceive whatever specific reality that you wish anyway. All hypnosis, as you understand that idea, is always self-hypnosis, by agreement.

Q: So, can you get closer to... can you ... not judging will help you to be more of a channel...?
B: Of All That Is, in that way, or yourself in the knowing state of All That Is, and the support of that idea in a positive way.

Q: What dimension do these people on Orion exist in right now?
B: In what you term to be much the same plane of your own existence physically. That is why you are vibrating equally with that idea.
Q: So they’re in the third plane.
B: Yes.
Q: Is their civilization much like ours, with a little bit of chaos and that type of thing going on, wars...
B: There are other civilizations of that nature, yes.
Q: But I mean on Orion.
B: In a sense.
Q: Uh-huh. Like, if you went to Orion, it’d be similar to ours?
B: Somewhat different, but you will find that, within that idea complex, there will be some similar ideas, yes.

Q: Hmm. Okay, the other question I had that ... is, if you serve self with the idea of a positive integration, in a sense, that would be the same thing as service to all. Right? Because they’re the same thing.

B: Understand that the idea being expressed to you as the service to self, in that way, is simply the idea of the reinforcement of judgement within the domination, within the aggrandizement in that way. Realize that to express the idea of service to All That Is is automatically expressing the idea of true service to self, by recognizing the self as All That Is, and already expanded in that positive way. Realize, therefore, that there is no need to, I’ll say, approach the idea in that way, by the recognition of the limited focus of service to what you perceive to be, exactly, the self.

Q: Okay, so in a sense, although they are the same thing and you could end up in the same way, because if you really served self you would serve all. The concept that was formulated, that is, that if you follow the idea, even if you’re integrating the negative into the positive, serving self would dichotomize out, as opposed to serving all would blend it then and cause a positive transformation.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Can I give you an example, Bashar, and ... of what, just to play it back at you, in my life, of the what I perceive as the positive
B: Play away.
Q: Okay. I was creating this thing of creating a community where, basically, people were ... everyone was doing ... it was like a dance, you know, everyone was doing exactly what they loved to do and did well. And it ... and everybody ... it all ... they all played the parts they exactly needed to play and everybody was doing wonderful. And we were beginning, it was like this doorway opened and we almost took this step to bring it into physical reality, in a very real sense. And then, just the night before it was supposed to physically start to happen, it just all fell through. And for about ... for several hours I was in this space of, kind of like, oh, fuck it, I’m just gonna go, you know, take my family, just fuck everybody else, we’re gonna go off and live in a trailer out in the middle of nowhere and just, screw it. Right? That kind of a flow. You know what I’m saying? Is that what you’re talking about, the negative stuff?

B: Now, in a sense, but again, understand that, to a degree, there simply may be for you at this time, simply the idea of the re-examination of the belief structure in that way. So that you may, I’ll say, build, in that way, another idea or another exploration of the positive self, and so manifest that idea more fully.

Q: Well, so in other words, we could all take off into a trailer and go out in the middle of nowhere, but not with the idea of, well, fuck you all.

B: Right, very good yes.

B: Again, as long as you allow yourself to understand that every manifestation within your life is not an interruption...

Q: Yes.

B: ...but part of the overall positive unfoldment in that way. And therefore, you will be removing the idea of judgement, and therefore not vibrating on the level which will manifest a connection to that negative energy.

Q: Yeah. Yeah.

B: Yes.

Q: Two things: If you’re Darryl’s future self, we who have decided to make it have already made it. The other thing that I wanted to ... uh ... forgot. Never mind

B: We will wait.

Q: Oh. Those who decide to make it will make it, and those who decide to don’t make it, won’t make it.

B: All right, now, realize again, everyone will, in your terms, ... make it ... somewhere.

Q: I know. Some will go ... some will evolve into an Orionish type civilization and some of us will evolve into a Essassani type civilization.

B: In a sense, but realize that you have your own parallel understanding of this idea. ’Tis not that you will be absorbed and lost.

Q: Right, right, right. And, in a sense, that is a possible occurrence even within or on this planet..
B: Yes.
Q: There could be total happiness and total unhappiness at the same time.
B: That is what is meant by the idea of the splitting and the creating of the parallel universes.
Q: Okay, I got it, I got it. Got it. We got it!
B: Thank you
Random, Paradoxical Contradictions

Q: You often say how everything is simply physics and that it is all just mechanical.
B: Well, in some sense, of course we are usually referring to physiological space/time reality when we are talking about that level of it.
Q: Right, and when we align our definitions and beliefs we get the results that follow, but simultaneously with that you often say to expect the unexpected and to make a friend of the unknown?
B: Yes, yes.
Q: Now how does one get motivated to act, when one aligns and clarifies their beliefs, and they see all the situations occurring according to the definitions and beliefs that they maintain, but yet, not being allowed to have any expectations in relation to the Third Absolute—what you sent out comes back. How do you maintain trust in your actions when the universe itself seems to contain random, paradoxical contradictions?
B: Because you understand what it is that does occur is the best possible reflection at that moment to illuminate more and more and more and more of the Self that up to that moment you were unaware of. And that is what you become excited about, is knowing that what is going on, being that it wasn’t necessarily a direct reflection of what you expect must occur, but is the reflection of the combination to all your definitions, is a reflection that will lead you, if you use it this way, to understand more of yourself and that is an exciting prospect.
Q: So, there is the ultimate trust, in a sense.
B: Oh, absolutely. Does that make sense?
Q: Right.
Rapid Processing and A Language Lesson

Q: My one question would be regarding – let’s see, how do I phrase this? Many years ago I had an automobile accident…

B: All right.

Q: …and sustained injury in my neck.

B: Yes.

Q: I’ve lived with pain, mostly on the right side, for the past 20 years or so, it seems.

B: All right.

Q: Okay. The other night I was fortunate to have a meditation, which helped me release this.

B: All right. How exciting!

Q: I know, and it was wonderful. And tonight as I got up off the chair in my mother’s house, my neck hurt for a moment.

B: That’s all right.

Q: Okay. Would you please help me define what caused the pain – whether it is stress, whether it is anger – so I no longer pick this up again.

B: The idea, first of all, to understand is that you have made a transition, that you have elevated yourself to a new level. The idea of having experienced what you may call the temporary, quote/unquote, lapse was not so much even a matter of stress, not so much even a matter of anger, but more a matter of testing yourself. Of making sure that you had cleared the idea, that you had, in a sense, integrated all that you needed to integrate from having created that experience in your life that forced you to face certain things. You have accelerated yourself – no pun intended – highly.

The idea is that many individuals will put themselves in certain limiting situations of that nature, to clear out and process very rapidly - not over the course of many lifetimes, but over the course of a portion of one lifetime - many of the things that might have taken many lifetimes to process.

When you force yourself into that kind of a mold, when you force yourself into that kind of a template, then many times you face certain things that you may have otherwise taken many lifetimes to face and process. You have processed many of them.

As you rose within the framework of your maternal energy, you gave yourself one last reminder that: a) it was your choice; that: b) you have created a transcendence; that: c) in a sense, it was a temporary test – just checking in, making sure that the alignment is still there.

Now, it will lead you, in our perception, to many other things, to many realizations that you can be of assistance to other individuals within the things that you have learned – within the information and the knowledge that you have gathered with your experiences. You can now begin to function on the other side of the doorway, in complete freedom, in that sense – in a complete sense of service.
There are many things that you learn that you will now be able to share with many other individuals, who will be experiencing similar manifestations to what you created for yourself, with that degree of limitation. Are you following me so far?

Q: On the intellectual level.
B: On the intellectual level. How do you feel right now?
Q: Wonderful!
B: Then you are following just fine on all levels.
Q: All right.
B: But you see you’re not really talking to me; you are talking to yourself. And that is always a wonderful thing to understand; always a wonderful thing to discover. Now: the idea also, many times, is that we will – as we have just done to some degree – share what is called rapid-fire communication. So that you will make an attempt to focus a little more strongly on what is being said. And so that the real message underneath the words actually gets delivered.
Because, in a sense, it disarms your analytical, intellectual conscious self by creating it to focus on the words, while at the same time we deliver the true message underneath. In that sense, therefore, you have allowed us to slip something in, which will now blossom and grow in a very natural way.
You can, to some degree, think in the direction of now considering yourself one of the natural herbs of your planet, one of the natural flowering blossoms of your planet. You are going to expand mightily in that way. Rise up toward your sun; rise up toward the light. Bathe in it; soak it up. Let it fill you; let yourself glow, become one homogenous energy – with no idea that you are made of a collection of parts, which can become disarrayed.
Begin to feel yourself as one homogenous light, and there will be nothing in you that can anymore, ever again, become misaligned. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: One moment . . . may I ask you a question?
Q: Of course.
B: Oh, thank you very much.
Q: You’re welcome.
B: Do you like the animal upon your planet that you call raven?
Q: I’ve had nothing to do with one. I have no idea.
B: Do you like them?
Q: Yes.
B: You don’t sound too sure.
Q: Well, never having met one, I don’t know.
B: All right. The next time you see one...
Q: Okay.
B: ...allow yourself to simply contemplate its form, contemplate its movement; contemplate its action.
There is, in a sense, a reminder there, a connection there, that may allow you to turn one last key – to know beyond a shadow of a doubt that a new idea of yourself is truly solidly locked in. All right?
Q: Yes.
B: One moment... You have inspired us also to share a few other things. Now, this may seem to be not connected, but there are levels of it that are.

From time to time we have discussed the idea that vocal language is vibration, that you give it its power.

And sometimes the vocal language that you use is representative of – and a reflection of – the vibration that you are. Many times you will understand that the way your language is translated from our concepts through the channel takes on unusual patterns, unusual frequencies, unusual usage.

An orchestration is taking place, and much of these vibratory patterns are actually what is responsible for the reactions and the openings that occur within you – the things that you allow to soak and seep within your consciousness. And all the different levels you have created it to be.

We have, to some degree, shared with you some of the ideas of our ancient language that we no longer use. We will share two more principles. Let them fall into place where they apply. Again, this may not seem to be immediately pertinent, but there are aspects that are.

We have discussed the phrase in our ancient language “illi akar,” which means basically experience. We have, shall we say, dissected the word, in the understanding that illi is our word for mirror, and this will translate into any language in the same way it is constructed in our language. You would spell it in your language, i-l-l-i... the reverse reflection of the first two letters. It is the reflection in the mirror. More literally, illi, in being referred to a mirror, depending upon the context, will also refer to anything that is exchanged, anything that is returned.

An echo can be called illi, depending upon the context. This whole notion of reflections, this whole notion of return, of the exchange of information, of putting out a radiation which then is echoed back by your reality, by your surroundings: that whole idea is illi.

Another understanding of plurality, singularity: in our language we have labeled our world Essassani. We call our civilization that; the people are Sassani. Now the idea of the usage of the term a and the usage of the term e will be the difference between the plural and the singular. In that sense, e sound will mean singular, a will be plural. An example: there is an animal in our civilization that exists in the ocean, and would be similar to the idea of one of your seals, per se.

Very different in many ways, it has a bluish-gray skin, very rough hide, in that sense; and a brownish fur collar. The idea is that in singular this is called nemba; but in plural it is called namba. The idea, therefore, of Es-sassani is – it is the singular place of all of us, the singular place of all Sassani.
Now this language lesson, to some degree, has to do with the whole idea of the communication of yourself, with yourself. Because each and every one of you in the past has created yourselves to be thought of as a collection of parts. In fragmenting yourselves, in fractionating yourselves in that way – it requires a very analytical and sophisticated communication system to keep track of all those parts.

Now that you are integrating yourself into one understanding, one consciousness, one homogenous whole, communication within you is instantaneous. For it reaches all of you, all at once. For you are all right here, right now. So there really is no separation between the idea of “I understand it in my heart; I understand it intellectually, in my head.” It is all one understanding. Create it to be one understanding. Let it soak in; let it sink in – in whatever way it needs to.

But at least allow yourselves to begin the understanding that you do know, you do communicate, you do understand, in whatever way you need to. Let it process; let it unfold, like the blossom, like the flower – as it does to the sun.

We thank you for allowing us what appears to be this little divergence. We bid you a pleasant and ecstatic dream life in dreamtime, which is the blending of the physical and the non-physical reality into one aware, awake state, of malleable creativity: dream time. We thank you.

Q: Thank you, and a big warm fuzzy hug.

B: Thank you very much. Many of you are quite a bit more fuzzy than we are, yes. Sharing!

Rapid Processing and a Language Lesson
Re-Creating Yourself

We would like to begin this transmission with the following notion:

First, we would like to begin with a subject matter that to some degree we have discussed before, but we would now like to take a different approach. And that is the idea, which of course you have heard from many different sources, that living in the present is what it’s all about. Being in the NOW. And we have discussed many different ways of learning how to do that, so that in doing that you can understand the power that is inherent in living in the present, the power that is inherent for you to allow your lives to be created in the manner that you desire.

We have, from time to time, talked about the notion that getting in touch with this concept of living in the NOW, from one point of view, is that you can allow yourselves to begin, in a sense, to detach from anything you have ever been from your so-called past.

Now, we do not mean that you go into denial, we do not mean that you bury the idea, we do not mean that you do not allow yourself to maintain awareness of other experiences that you can draw upon, to give you knowledge and information that you can use to determine who it is you want to be now... we’re not talking about losing your memory.

But the idea of detaching from your past, as a technique, as a state of being, can serve you to more clearly and effortlessly learn to define yourself in the present. Without allowing certain concepts or connections to the past clutter your ability to do so – in that many of you have been brought up thinking that certain past events control your ability to make decisions now. And this is not the case.

Nothing from the past influences you AT ALL. You decide who you are at any given moment, TOTALLY from the present.

In deciding who you are, you may choose for one reason or another, from one assumption or another, from one definition or another, from one belief or another, to make a connection to the past, to assume that there might be some kind of inertia or momentum or idea or experience, that holds you or keeps you from doing something that you want to do in the present.

That assumption, that connection, that feeling, is being created not from the past, but from the present. And is simply based upon your understanding of what it is possible to do, of what definitions you can create yourself to be.

And the limitations that you buy into are what allows you to keep assuming that your past is what controls your ability to be what you want to be in the present – and this is not the case.

Therefore, to expand upon this notion of detaching from the idea of the past in a negative way, so that it does not limit you in a non-creative way, we would now like to reinforce the concept that you are a personality construct.

Yes, you are a spirit. Yes, you are a soul... and that is, in a sense, an Eternal and Infinite thing. And the soul that you are, the consciousness that you are is always, in a sense, the same consciousness. The same identity knows Itself as Itself, forever and ever.
However, in projecting itself into physical materiality, it creates a personality mask or a construct. What you call your physical "persona", to represent itself by. To experience one unique point of view, from time to time throughout the idea of a physical life.

This personality construct therefore is, in a sense, artificial. And thus as you change your notion of yourself, as you grow, as you learn, as you create, as you experience, you will literally change that personality construct a number of times. Maybe even thousands, maybe even millions of times, through the course of any physiological lifetime on Earth.

As such, you must understand, there is a very important distinction you can make about what you're doing in these changes, because it really isn't that you are the same person making a change in the person to become different.

You are the same soul, the same consciousness... yes, making a change of PERSON to experience a different idea... a new idea, a new experience. But the person you are from moment to moment, no matter how you think you look in the mirror from moment to moment – even though you may think you look the same as you did a moment ago – every change you make, every experience you have, every thought that goes through you, literally LITERALLY... LITERALLY... LITERALLY... changes you as a person.

You are not the same person you were a moment ago. And in fact, let us now take it a step further: even saying you were not the same person you were a moment ago, is to some degree misleading, because the idea really is that as the Soul creates a new persona for the next moment of experience, that person, the new person reflective of the new moment, is a new person IN TOTALITY. And has no history... no history whatsoever! None! Zero! Nada! Zip!

NO HISTORY WHATSOEVER!

Every single moment you are totally and absolutely free to define the you that you are as a personality. It has no history. Therefore, no persona in any given moment, is, in any way, shape or form, TRULY limited by any other persona that was previously created by the consciousness.

It is not the same person changing a little bit; it is a different person that is created moment... to moment... to moment. TOTALLY... UTTERLY... ABSOLUTELY... YOU HAVE NO HISTORY.

When you understand this as a State Of Awareness, you can then draw upon a number of experiences that you might call your Past Self, but then you begin to realize that it is not so much your "past", as it is simply other persons, other people connected to the same soul, perhaps part of the same consciousness experience. But they are OTHER PEOPLE, and you don’t have to, in any way shape or form, feel limited by the experiences of those 'Other People’, because they are distinct and discretely unique individuals, apart from whomever you decide you are at this given moment.

And when you really understand this, it will free you up in amazing ways, to really know nothing holds you back, that what you decide you are at any given moment, will then be the case. And as you know this and as you behave as if you know this, you will see your physiological reality start to reflect to you the certainty of that freedom, to such an amazing degree of synchronicity and magical creativity and creation, that you will finally understand what it means to be made in the Image of Creation. That you literally are, every moment, a facet... a face, a point of view of Creation.
So remember, when you start thinking about the idea that your past is holding you back, remember, you... the You, you are right now... at every moment, HAS NO HISTORY.
And if you make that connection, then it’s a CHOICE you are making, as the person you are... FROM THE PRESENT.
Ask yourself why you would want to do that, if it seems to be something that’s limiting you. Because as soon as you understand that, then you’re not motivated to make that bridge, to make that link... to make that connection to another person who has nothing to do with you, even though you used to call that your Past Self.
You will no longer, in any way, shape or form, feel trapped by anything that that person experienced, because you are unique. You are new; you are whoever you say you are, right here and right now for the very first time in Creation.

Reading Cards and Stones

Q: Can you elaborate on the idea that we call the Tarot and how it works?
B: Yes. It gets directly in touch with the archetypal level of your collective consciousness, and allows you to interpret archetypal movement and motion of individual personalities. Do you understand this? It is a mirror of the archetypal level of your collective consciousness.

Q: Can you explain archetypal level?
B: The collective symbology – as you translate from spirit to physical reality there are the idea of certain symbols that represent different energies, different motions, different personality constructs. These are embodied in the symbols utilized in the deck of cards that you refer to. And at times when you are, shall we say, looking into those mirrors different symbols will stand out at different times and in different combinations and different ways. Indicating in those patterns as you perceive them with your intuitive sense, the symbols that are more representative of the archetypal flows of energy, and the way the personality that you are dealing with is interpreting the flow of spirit into physical reality. You are looking at their crystallized pattern of personality expressions.

Q: How accurate is it?
B: It depends, again, on the individual. It is a very well constructed trigger mechanism that can be exceedingly accurate depending on the sensitivity of the individual doing the reading. Because understand that is all you are really doing, is triggering that individual’s connection to the archetypal level of consciousness. So in that sense they are channeling the information from a portion of their Higher self. And thus, it is that Higher self vibration that is making the symbols on the cards stand out to be “reinforced” in what they are intuitively getting in touch with, anyway, on another level. It is like Higher self communication to Higher self, but interpreting it and having the conversation through the physiological personalities, so that there is validity and credence given down on the physical level as well.

Q: OK. Now when you shuffle the cards, and you take the cards after you shuffle them...
B: Yes.
Q: the top...
B: Yes.
Q: is giving them the order? I mean...
B: The Higher self.
Q: The Higher self.
B: And sub-conscious self.
Q: Is it the same with the Celtic stones, the reading of the stones?
B: Yes. All of that idea works exactly the same way. You are giving over, in trust, to all the different levels and layers of your consciousness that you do not normally allow yourself to be aware of in your awake conscious state; and you are allowing them to arrange things, in such a manner, while you are not looking at them, so your physical mind can’t interfere, cannot impose its framework upon them. Thus, they are given an opportunity to allow those things to be ordered and patterned in such a way that then they are speaking directly to you when interpreted by an individual sensitive to the vibrations of those subconscious and unconscious, or Higher self levels.

Q: So why couldn’t you just buy a deck of cards and do it yourself?
B: For yourself?
Q: Yes.
B: It can be all right, but it will depend on how honest you are with yourself and your communicated style with yourself. But by all means, certainly it can be something that would be very helpful in certain situations.

Q: Well, if you are not psychic and you . . .
B: You are ALL psychic, you are all psychic, it is just a matter of the degree to which you allow yourself to suspend your disbelief.

Q: Well, you know like, when you look at the cards and you say, “what does this make me think of?”
B: Yes.

Q: And then you have those little books that you have to refer to . . .
B: Sometimes you can start that way, but you will find that it will no longer be necessary as you get used to the idea, and of course, as you practice and practice, and get a feeling of the energy itself, that lets you know when you are on the right frequency, the right wavelength, you won’t need the cards either.

Q: Right.
B: Remember that they are just trigger mechanisms.
Q: Sure, fun.

Q: Yes. And if you approach it that way, fun, that is the likely way that you will open to allowing the interpretation to come through in the clearest possible manner. You follow along?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Rebirthing and Service

B: The idea of a rebirthing is, in a sense, a deep state of meditative integration that includes all cellular structure within the physiological level of your body, and an alignment to all the other levels and/or energy bodies that you consider yourself to be. So there is an integrative function and, in a sense, a utilization of the overall energy, and a flow of that energy to each and every level, to allow each and every portion of every level to utilize the energy of the total whole.

In this way, many of these connections can be made when what you call the brain wave cycle frequency is approximately at the level you call ten cycles per second. Although you will find that there are different frequencies on different levels; and upon what you call the highest level of that integrated awareness of that blending, the frequency in the non-physical sense can be many, many millions of cycles per second.

You will simply find that it is a deep communication with all portions of the self on the physical and non-physical levels, so that there is in one identifiable moment a congruency, an identification that takes place, wherein each and every portion knows itself to contain all the information of the whole idea. Then with that intuitive understanding each and every portion can allow itself to maintain a connection to some degree – whatever is comfortable for all portions – with every other portion. And allow each and every portion to function more as an example of its knowing connection to the whole.

Q: The whole as in the One?
B: Yes.

Q: And does this have to do with the RNA and the DNA?
B: Yes, that to some degree is affected, in that you will find that in the deep sense of communication and connection that occur in the idea you call a rebirthing, the basic energy template of what you call the RNA and DNA factor can release their essence into the whole embodiment, and allow there to be a recognition of all the original patterns and the reasons for why those patterns are inherent in the system. So again, it is a more complete identification with the structure you have created yourself to be, so that you can allow that structure to be reflected in the acts of knowledge that you perform. So that you are in synchronous harmony with the structure you have created yourself to be.

Q: Can it include an alignment with all your guides and all the self from the past and from the future, in the same moment?
B: It can include that.

Q: Most people remember a specific time in their lives...
B: Yes.

Q: ... and after that they go and heal themselves in the astral state.
B: Yes, that is what we are saying. There is an alignment with all the different bodily levels, so that each recognizes itself to contain the whole pattern and can form a balanced state within its own self-recognition of itself as the whole idealized pattern.
Q: Okay, and the new self is then the healed self?
B: It is then a reflection of the idealized balanced pattern, yes. And remember, certain individuals are more allowing of their energy and can, let us say, accept and “tolerate” higher degrees of acceleration in this process.
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Sharing!
Q2: You’ve talked about service – being of service.
B: Yes.
Q: Could you talk a little bit more about that – and do all of us have some type of service?
B: Absolutely, otherwise you wouldn’t be here.
Q: Is it possible to get more in touch with this?
B: Once again, you can trust, first and foremost, that if you follow what excites you, it is highly probable that you will simply and automatically attract situations that will allow you to function within the service you chose to provide. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, in addition to that understanding, simply allow yourself to be cognizant of the fact that being totally who you know you are is what allows you to be of service to someone else – because you are functioning as a complete unit.

Being of service to someone else is simply recognizing that, in being willing to share your unconditional love in that way, doing what excites you and supporting other individuals in their endeavors is supporting All That Is. Supporting All That Is allows you – because you are a part of All That Is – to be automatically supported within the whole idea.

So being of service in that way, doing what excites you, and sharing that with other individuals is what allows you to support them; which is what allows you to be automatically supported. Do you follow me?
Q: Well, yes. But if it isn’t still really clear about what that service is, is there another action, rather than just patience, that we can take to...
B: Knowingness. Knowingness can seem to create the idea of the infinite patience that you think is attributed to higher consciousnesses – but it is not patience, it is knowingness. It is the willingness to simply perceive that everything that is happening is exactly what is supposed to be happening.

Each and every one of you – you – are eternal! What is your rush? (AUD: laughter) Love yourselves unconditionally. You are made of unconditional love. All That Is has created each and every being within itself to be made of itself. And All That Is is unconditional love.

Once again, grant yourself the same point of view that All That Is bestows upon you. You exist; therefore, obviously you deserve to exist. Treat yourselves with some respect.
We thank you for allowing us to experience the ecstatic joy of interaction with your consciousness. You are a gift, like anything in creation, to be enjoyed, to be loved, to be learned from, as well as to share with and talk with. Exciting dream life and life dreams to you all, they are one and the same reality within you. Let it be reflected outside of you as well. Knowing that what seems to be outside you is from within.

Trust yourselves. You knew what you were doing when you chose this physical life, so trust that you still do – at least on whatever level you need to trust. And whether you are consciously aware of it or not – with all of its specific details – trust that you are aware of it enough, on the level you need to be aware of it upon, to get the job done, without strife, without struggle, but with the ease of creation itself, which is automatic and synchronistic.

Everything is the SAME ONE THING! Manifesting in simultaneous multidimensional aspects. Everything is the same one thing.

Our love to you; we bid you a fond and ecstatic dream!

AUD: Thank you.

Receiving with Grace

Q: I’ve been flown to Russia and all over the world as a healer. Many people have offered me money but I’ve never felt good about taking money, ever.

B: Why?

Q: I don’t know. What excites me the most is to be able to help people in the best way that I can.

B: All right, but what about you being helped?

Q: Well, that’s right. So I was curious, because I would love to do other forms of healing also.

B: All right. Start with healing yourself. Understand that there are many forms of abundance. Now, in a sense, what you call money on your planet can be one representative form of abundance. But it will not always require that money be in your life to allow you to do what you need to do. You can be supported in many different ways. If someone is simply willing to put you up in their place, to give you food, to share with you many of the things that it might otherwise require money to get, then certainly you can take that as a form of abundance in lieu of the concept of money. But at the same time, for many individuals, the gesture of sharing money is the only thing that really represents to them the idea of equal exchange. For you to refuse that exchange beyond a certain point is, in a sense, not allowing yourself to allow the situation to be balanced. Do you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: There is nothing wrong with the acceptance, there is nothing wrong with receiving, if you are given a gift. The idea that people be willing to do that out of love is an indication to you that the Universe is attempting to support you in return for the love that you are willing to give. Do you understand?

Q: Yes, that makes sense.

B: Again, it doesn’t always have to come in the form of money, but sometimes that is what will allow another individual to really feel they are returning a gift to you.

Q: Thank you. I see.

B: So you do not have to throw the gift back in their face. Accept it with gratitude and graciousness, and again, realize you don’t have to be worried that your ego will go negative on you and get out of control, or that you will have to become fixated in the idea of materialism. It is all right for you to be absolutely and effortlessly abundant, as long as you understand that your abundance, no matter what form it takes, will always only be exactly representative of the level of sharing that you are creating and the level of abundance and joy you are creating for others as well. Therefore, it’s simply a direct reflection of what you’re doing. And I will remind you once again, and all of you, that the true opposite of love is guilt…not hate.

Recognizing Connections

Q: Just coming here in itself does not necessarily give one that speeded up thing, right?
B: No. It is an indication that you do desire to recognize those connections, not because it is us, but simply because you have co-created this type of interaction to represent those connections; so it can make a difference, but it does not have to unless you decide that it is making a difference. Once you decide that it is making a difference the difference is made. Period. (AUD: laugh)
Q: So, not even going and making that decision is just as...
B: Yes. Because that is the idea we have always said. You do not need us. When you are willing to simply live the lives you desire to live, you are in the moment. That is it. It is that simple.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Redefining Beliefs About War And Technology

Q: If I personally get involved in the war in Afghanistan by going to Washington D.C., can you give me some advice on the situation in Afghanistan and how to resolve it?

B: How to resolve it?

Q: With the least amount of bloodshed – let me put it that way. How to end the war, or win the war with the least amount of bloodshed.

B: First of all, transform out of the idea that war exists in your reality at all.

Q: Yeah, and then after doing that I still see a news report that there is still a war in Afghanistan . . .

B: Then you have not done it. Now, understand this. You have agreed to perceive the idea of war in your society; but for you (you, yourself, okay?) you are not experiencing the idea of war in your life physically. Now, you have agreed, simply, to perceive that it exists for other individuals. Now, if you wish to assist – to be of help, of service in this way – then simply act like the being for whom war does not exist in your reality, regardless of whether you see it or not. Act like you know that war can transform into something else – into peace.

Q: And if I do that then instantaneously it will not be perceived by others?

B: It will, I’ll say, it can be instantaneous. It can be, but it will depend upon the degree to which you are willing to believe that.

Now, understand, again, you have made a co-agreement with many individuals, and it will not serve them, necessarily, in the way you want to serve them, if all of a sudden you, instantaneously, do not perceive war at all. All right. That is all right too, but then you will be on about your business, never perceiving that war exists, and then you will not be able to serve those that still perceive it does exist in that way you have chosen to help them. So you will hold onto the idea, for now, that everyone is not going to instantaneously perceive that war does not exist. But by acting that way for yourself, you will be granting them the opportunity to choose to instantaneously not perceive war. And it is that offering that does the most help – the offering, in and of itself, and the offering without expectation that they still know in your heart of hearts that, for you, war is not a reality.

Q: You’re saying then, without interaction with these other individuals . . .

B: Oh, it is interaction, and you can have interaction; but understand that when you form interaction, you will be forming interaction with the you that does not contain the idea of war. Then they will see in you that that is possible.

Q: Oh, I see. Okay. Be a role model for them.

B: Yes.

Q: I’ve got another question to ask you too . . . I’d like to know who is using psyonic tracers and trackers on this planet? Are there such things being used in third density?

B: Sort of.
Q: What about fourth and fifth density? Are there psyonic weapons and shields, trackers?

B: Not weapons. Not shields. In this way, recognize that that idea, to some extent, can exist in different civilizations as per the play, the scenario they are working out. Understand this: in your third density… all right, I’ll put it pragmatically – there is so little understanding of what psychic functioning is, that they think that they can invent something like psyonic shields. It is a direct misunderstanding of everything that is going on.

The idea of using psychic abilities for what you call negative purposes, completely and utterly cancels those abilities.

Q: What about a psyonic box being used to create realities, using technology though? What is the influence?

B: There is no such thing as influence unless there are individuals who choose to believe they can be influenced. Now, there are individuals who choose to believe that, and thus, if they attract to themselves a group of individuals who builds something that symbolically represents those individuals’ ability to influence someone else who is willing to be influenced, then that is a complete agreement and a total enactment of what they have both agreed to believe; and has no power outside of that reality to someone who does not contain that belief system.

Q: Could the masses or the mass consciousness have agreed to that on a subconscious level somewhere?

B: On a subconscious level, something like that has been agreed to. However, the rate at which that belief is changing is such that it will be a fleeting effect.

Q: I see. It’s phasing out, then?

B: Yes.

Q: Okay, thank you.

B: Thank you.
Redefining Depression/Aloneness

Q: I was discussing something during the break that is a shared common experience here....
B: Yes, more synchronicity, all right.
Q: This is only the second time I’ve been here, and both times I’ve sensed a feeling of...during both your sessions, that...to say depression would be a generalization because it is not really a depression...
B: It is a going inward.
Q: Yes and it’s very disquieting emotionally.
B: Why are you judging?
Q: I’m just not feeling it.
B: Why are you judging? Understand, you do not feel without having first judged. Your emotions are the product and the result of your beliefs. Now, the idea is that many times the energy of the interaction can allow an individual to recognize that they have been, perhaps, searching for answers outside themselves, and in this interaction they may give themselves the opportunity to recognize the answers are all within, so they will go within. It is what your society usually calls depression but it is only meditation. When it becomes negative, you are simply judging the meditation. It is going where you know the answers are, and in being in this interaction, because it is our premise that you know all you need to know and you have all the answers, you may simply be acting according to the energy that you feel to be the product of the interaction between us, and doing what comes naturally, going within. It may simply be that you are now touching portions of yourself that you have not touched in this life and some of them may, in that way, disquiet you because you are not used to meeting those portions of yourself and you are unsure as to what they mean and you may carry small beliefs within you that they can be something negative, but they do not have to be. It is only the disquiet of the exploration of what to you is still being allowed to be an unknown, but that is all it is. You follow me?
Q: Uh, yes.
B: Uh? Are you sure?
Q: No, I’m not sure.
B: All right. Continue if you wish to explore this idea.
Q: Well, it is just that...
B: All right, let me ask you a question, may I?
Q: Oh good.
B: In your wildest imagination, what do you imagine, if you went far enough inward, you might find? Do you wish me to put it another way? Use your imagination to imagine what could be the possible worst thing you could find if you explored the interior of your being. What would make you the most jittery? The most unquiet? Now, now, we are only playing a game.
Q: Oh good.
B: What would represent something you could not bare to think you contain? You would just die.
Q: That there would be.
B: Would you like some assistance?
Q: Yes.
B: All right, I’ll pose some suggestions. You say, yes or no. Let us say you found out you were a murderer, would that do it?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. What, in your estimation would be more negative than that, now that I’ve given you direction?
Q: That I didn’t exist, if there was nothing.
B: That you didn’t exist? If you didn’t exist how could you go and find out if you existed or not?
Q: Yeah, yeah. [laughs]
B: You may take it for granted that you exist, otherwise you would not be able to pose the search. Therefore that is out of the way, what else? Is that the worst thing? Is that it?
Q: It is a very alone feeling.
B: A very what?
Q: Alone.
B: Alone, alone, yes. You are completely your own universe, at the same time there is no such thing as only one side of a coin. You can not be your own universe, alone, without also being surrounded by an infinity of consciousness. You have to have both sides. So whenever you feel alone, simply recognize the other side of the issue and you will be surrounded by more beings that you can shake a stick at, (Audience laughs) or a scepter. What do you think about my suggestion? Can you invent one from your imagination that might suit you more likely?
Q: Not at this time.
B: Not at this time, all right, how about now? (Audience laughs)
Q: I can make a concerted effort, yes.
B: Oh, I am not asking you make any type of effort at all, I am asking you to play. Do you not want to play with me? (Audience laughs)
Q: I’ll play, I’ll play.
B: Oh, don’t let me force you.
Q: I’m afraid!
B: Afraid! That’s a good game; we can play that game. Understand something: the so-called worst thing that you could possibly discover would never, never, never be negative enough to make All That Is revoke your existence. All That Is knew what it was doing, you know, when it created all of us. Do you not think All That Is is not aware of all the potential ideas of negativity that exist within it? Do you think that it was not aware for a second? Do you think you can come up with something that All That Is could not have possibly conceived of, and that you could do something that would make All That Is say, “Oh, I didn’t plan for that, you’re out”? Do you think that when it come right down to it, you could possibly do anything that would make All That Is want to revoke your right of existence? Why would All That Is want to do that to Itself? Because you are All That Is. All That Is cannot extricate a portion of itself into some outside realm because All That Is is literally, by definition, All That Is and there isn’t anything else. So there is no where for All That Is to get rid of any portion of Itself to. So where do you think you could get stuck? You could always wind up being somewhere within All That Is. Now, what do you think about that suggestion?

Q: I think that it is a reaffirming concept.

B: All right. Then if you find joy within it, allow yourself to partake of your share of ecstasy, for recognize that when you find yourself to be alone, so to speak, since that is also only a concept, then that is a perfect opportunity to take advantage of recognizing your unique relationship with All That Is, now that you have a moment of privacy.

You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Then revel in it and be ecstatic explosion that will result from your communication with All That Is, with the rest of yourself, in that way, will immediately populate your universe with an infinite number of experiences and relationships. That is how it works – one always feeds the other. That is what creation is all about; it is self-supporting, self-creating. Being alone will automatically generate a plentitude; being in the plentitude will automatically generate solitude, back and forth, back and forth, back and forth. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: You are never one without the other, cannot be. Thank you very much.

Q: Thank you.

Redefining Dogma
Northridge, CA
8-2-88

All right, I’ll greet you all this day of your time as you create time to exist. How are you all this day of your time?

We once again thank you for the co-creation of this interaction which we will entitle "Redefining Dogma." Now the idea that we have perceived going on, in your society, at this time, is that there are the creations of many factions of belief systems with regard to your relationship to creation itself. In what you call your typical format expression of this relationship, you use the word religion to explain and express your relationship to creation. Now, in what you call your New Age awareness, what, if we may have a little bit of fun with the term may reterm, the neo-geo awareness upon your planet, you are now beginning to understand different ways, different methodologies of expressing your relationship to creation rather than what you may term the ritualistic or dogmatic expression termed religion.

Now, first allow us to underline, very importantly, we are now a year, shaped or formed invalidating any one chosen methodology of relating to creation. All tools are valid, as we have said many times, and will always say. If you find that your particular religious aspects are what work for you, in expressing your relation to creation, then by all means utilize them until you find, for yourself, in your own good time, that they no longer suffice.

But you may also find, that in your desire to redefine what you are coming out of, what you are used to hearing of, in terms of religious expression, in terms of redefining it, in what you may call a more metaphysical understanding, a New Age understanding, there may be some difficulty using the correct terminology. Or terminology, we shall say, that feels correct to you, that feels appropriate, that feels that it has the same impact to the terminology that you were brought up to understand. So we will endeavor to be of assistance, this day of your time, in creating an example and a suggestion for how some of the older terminologies can be transformed and redefined into newer terminologies that, as you say, fit the bill.

Now, we will utilize one particular example simply because it is probably the most familiar example to your particular culture, at this time in general. In no way, shape or form, by using the following example, do we mean to call out any one particular religious persuasion as being anymore correct than any other. We simply use it because it is a matter of common knowledge to you all.

Now, you will find that because there is a high degree of redefining going on in your society at this time because you are beginning to look at things in a different way, a new way. You will find that there is a great deal of polarization taking place between the individuals on your planet that are willing to redefine and the individuals on your planet that want to, in your terms, stick to the old terminology. So there is a great degree of focus going on that sometimes, we have observed, creates some friction between the different factions that you create yourselves to be. One group may insist that another group should be looking at the idea this way; another group may insist that the former group should be looking at it, that way; each group thinking that they are correct, they are more right than the other group. Now, the idea, more often than not, that we have observed being expressed in your society usually deals with what you call your Christianity, your Christ consciousness awareness.

You will generally find that the phrase that certain individuals will, more often than not, utilize to determine your particular alignment to creation will be the following phrase. Most of you have, in all likelihood, heard the phrase many times, it usually goes as follows: "Do you accept Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior?" Now, all well and good, but it leaves wide room for interpretation in many different ways. Before we supply what to us would be perceived as a redefinition of that statement, let us first refresh everyone’s memory as to some definitions about what the elements of that particular statement mean, at least, from our point of view. We have talked, off and on, about the idea of what you have termed Christ consciousness as being, from our point of view, the collective consciousness of your entire planet, what could be called the World Soul, the World Spirit. In other words, Christ consciousness or what some individuals may call the Buddha nature, or any other name, is the compilation of all the individual consciousnesses upon your world.

Every world, every dimension, every civilization has its own group consciousness which would be its own world spirit. In our ancient language, as we have said, we have called ours Shakana. You call yours Christ consciousness and a variety of other names. Now, that Christ consciousness, that World Spirit knows itself because it is conscious as a singular individual, as a singular entity, knows itself as a single entity, but also knows itself as the combination of all the entities that make it up.

But you see, to the Christ consciousness it always must be both; it must be both polarities. It is never an issue, "Is it this way or that way?" "Which is the real way that it is?" "Is the Christ Consciousness one entity or is it the combination of all of us?" It is both, it always must be both. For anything that you can perceive in the format of a polarity lets you know, right then and there, because you can perceive it as a polarity, that both sides must, somewhere at the center, blend and be both equally true and equally valid. So first and foremost we would, shall we say, replace the idea of the term Jesus Christ with the term World Spirit, for to us that is what it is. In interacting with your society, we do find that it is necessary, now I’m going to put this extremely colloquially; it doesn’t necessarily mean that the way I say this is the way you are used to thinking of these terms, but our civilization, because it comes from another realm, another dimension, actively seeks permission from your World Spirit to interact with its individualized components. So that we ensure that we are acting in the most integrated possible way to assist you in your true endeavors, your true desires, rather than, as you say, stepping on any toes or spilling any beans or unwrapping any presents before they need to be unwrapped. So we always, as you say, double check with the World Spirit to align with the pace, align with the pulse and the synchronicity that takes place within that World Soul before we interact with the components of that civilization.

Therefore, we may now continue with the idea of redefining the terms Lord and Savior.

Now, in your society because of the way you have interacted socially, politically for many thousands of years, the term being used to represent the Christ consciousness, Lord, in a sense, is accurate. However, again, it has many connotations which do not necessary act as a pure representation of what the idea of the World Spirit is. Remember that from our point of view, the idea of the Creator does not really rule, per se, in the way that you are used to thinking of that term, over its components. It doesn’t need to.

If a Creator created free will, it is a contradiction in terms to all of a sudden want to control the idea of the components that have free will. The idea of being a Lord, in a sense, as far as we are concerned, is simply a representation of the magnitude of its involvement with you and your involvement with it. In other words, it sets down the general theme, the general pattern, the general atmosphere in which you exist as a society.

But it does not rule, it does not judge, as a lord, as a king, as a ruler would, in what you call your physiological political system. It simply presides, shall we say, observes, shall we say, gives birth to the overall pattern, the overall atmosphere in which all the probable realities you can experience physically are manifest from. It determines the overall law of the vibrational reality in which you reside. But it is a benign, a rather passive determination, a rather passive structure. The structure is simply placed within that reality and all the individualized components make use of that structure in whatever way, shape or form they so desire with their own individual free will.

So since each and every individual within the World Spirit is a component, an extension of that World Spirit, it can be said that the World Spirit is an Oversoul to the entire world, in that sense. Therefore, you could say that the term Lord could be replaced with the idea of the word Oversoul, which simply means that you are deriving your pattern, you are deriving your cues for the smooth operation of your reality from the Oversoul of which you are a part, from which you are extended.

Savior, once again, has to do with the separation that you have created within yourself from your connection to the Infinite. It has a lot to do with the idea that you have created guilt, frustration, separation, judgement and invalidation upon yourself, so that you think you need saving from some abysmal pit into which you have been thrown. But the idea, now that you are recognizing it in your New Age awareness, is that you have always been in control. As we have said many times, it is simply that you have forgotten that you are an aspect of the Infinite, forgotten that you are always in control, forgotten that you are the individual creators of your own reality and the combined creators of your mass consciousness.

The idea that you need saving implies that you are not an aspect off the Infinite and do not contain internal self-empowerment, which you do. So you do not really need saving. But perhaps because of the state that you have created for yourselves, now and then you might need a little guidance. And so, instead of the idea of looking to what you may call the Christ consciousness as a savior, perhaps you can look at the Christ consciousness as a guide, as a mirror, as a reflection, as that which gives you the vibration to key off of, to find that you can be a aligned with that vibration and have everything in your life run smoothly by synchronizing with that particular frequency.

The idea that you call surrender up to the idea of God or the Christ consciousness in no way, shape or form means that you are giving up responsibility for your creations. It means that you’re actually taking full responsibility. It is simply that your society is so used to experiencing control by experiencing resistance that when you finally have true control with no resistance at all, you don’t think you are doing anything. You think you’ve given up. You think something else is running your life now because it is absolutely effortless.

When you surrender, what you’re doing is taking back full responsibility for your creations in life, for the creation of your total reality and full responsibility for being a co-creator; as you were made in the image of God, as you say, a co-creator with creation. When you do that and when you align and synchronize with the flow, with the guidance that is always radiated to you, then your life is effortless and it doesn’t feel, in that sense, like you are actually controlling anything, but you are.

So the idea, once again, of someone coming up to you now and saying, "Do you accept Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior?" can to some degree be redefined in the following way: "I accept the World Spirit as my Oversoul and my Guide." It is the same thing. The idea, however, of saying it that way removes the judgment, removes the invalidation, removes the disconnectedness and the separation that you have created from the idea of Creation itself, and puts it squarely back on an equal term within you. So that you can go through your life consciously knowing that the World Spirit, in a sense, watches over you.
