But at the same time, you play just as important a part in sustaining and supporting the existence of the World Spirit by being as fully realized a being, by being as fully realized a component as you can be; by taking back full responsibility for your lives and exercising full conscious and effortless control in the creation of the reality you prefer. Use this, if you wish, as an example of how to redefine and transform all of what you may call the old world terminology, if that will assist you to see yourself in a clearer light. Simply, that is our sharing with you this day, this evening, of your time.

Before we begin the interaction, allow us to share with you also one more thing; a little bit of a meditation. So you may all close your eyes and take three deep breaths. This meditation will be for the purpose of creating a little bit more of an alignment with the World Spirit, with the Oversoul, with the guides that all of you are an aspect of.

As each an every one of you now takes a leisurely and peaceful breath, allow yourself to remember that breath is life; life is breath. It is the fundamental vibration, a fundamental signature vibration. Any time any of you want to know what your signature vibration is, and that means your signature vibration is your unique frequency relationship to Creation, any time any of you want to know what that is, take a deep breath in and let out a tone, let out a sigh.

That is your particular vibration. It does not even have to last very long. All you have to do is feel it, all you have to do is hear it; all you have to do is find that range wherein you feel most comfortable and you feel your bodily form resonating with warmth, with invigoration, with life, with potential, with promise, with probability. That’s all you need to do and as soon as you do that, in that instant you are one-hundred percent completely aligned. It is that simple. Now, what you do from that instant forward is up to you. You can become dis-aligned again if you wish; but you do not have to.

As soon as you have that signal, as soon as you have that tone, you are aligned. Any time you find yourself having created a situation where you are, as you say, at odds, where you are, perhaps, frustrated, where you are, perhaps, a little anxious, take a moment. Take three deep breaths and then on the fourth one, take a big deep breath and let out the tone, let out the sigh of release, the sigh of alignment, the tone of crystallization and you will be realigned. It is that easy.

For never, never, never was it written anywhere, in any text, in any fabric of creation, that it should be deemed in any way, shape or form difficult for you to realize and fully understand that you are expressions of the Christ consciousness too. It was always made to be the simplest of things to allow you to remember your connection to the Infinite. And because it is such a simple thing that is why it was designed the way it was. Because any time you had enough, any time you’ve been struggling too much, any time you’ve been trying too hard, the only thing you need to do, and the first automatic reaction you have, is to sigh. That’s how you get back to center. It is the first and most basic primal release and centering mechanism you have. Use it.

We thank you for you willingness to interact at this time. You may open your eyes at your own pace, finding within you that degree and level of comfort that now expresses who and what you are as a realized being and an aspect of the Infinite. And at this timing, we extend to each and every one of you, once again, our deepest appreciation for the co-creation of this interaction in the way that your imagination and our imagination have deemed it shall be.

We thank you for allowing us to experience the gift of your consciousness. And in return, once again, I ask you now, how, in what joyous way for me, may I be of service to you? Sharing!
Redefining Earth Change Prophecies

Q: If there is to be a catastrophe on the Earth planet, as is prophesied in the Christian Bible, would our space brothers, the outer space brotherhood, be allowed to interfere to help humankind on this planet?

B: Here we go. (AUD: laughter) All right, here we go. First of all, are you familiar with some of the ideas we have shared about what we define prophecy to be?

Q: No, this is my first time here.

B: All right.

Q: I profess an ignorance.

B: Oh, no, no, no – no need to. In this way, first of all, let us lay the foundations, very briefly. To us, the idea that is called prophecy or prediction is not a prediction of the future. It is the sensing of the energy at the time the prediction is made that has the highest degree of probability of being manifested – but it does not mean it has to.

Do you follow me so far?

Q: I do, yes.

B: Now, therefore, recognize that sometimes the prediction or prophecy itself can change the energy. Because now you are aware of it, and if you don’t like what has been predicted, you can change it.

So recognize, however, that what was being predicted was the transformation that is taking place upon your planet now – and which will continue for some time – but as is it was predicted, in the way it could be best understood, at that time.

Let me remind you that, at the time the prediction was made, the only way such radical transformation could be understood was through the idea of “trials by fire.” It could not be understood how one could simply know that one deserves ecstasy. And not have to experience the idea of negative transformation or catastrophe in order to know that one simply deserves ecstasy.

Now this does not mean that many individuals and many isolated locations upon your planet will not – as they have already done, to some degree – will not continue to create some of these catastrophic ideas. Because that may be the only way that their mentality can relate to the idea of such a radical transformation. They think they have to, in your terms, take themselves “out” in order to put themselves “back in.”

Therefore, the idea, as it has been translated to you would be this: the recognition, the recognition, that the Association – what you call the different civilizations within the Association that you have referred to as the space brothers – the recognition that we are interacting with you, the recognition that we can do so is, in and of itself, an indication that your vibration has changed, and is your willingness to recognize that you are equal to us.

And being willing to recognize that you are equal to us, in a sense, places you in contact with us; places you within our vibratory matrix. And in that sense, to a great degree, that is what you all have translated into the terminology that we are going to come down and “save” you. The idea, from our point of view, is that you do not really need saving. (AUD: comments and laughs) The idea is that you are choosing upon your planet to do whatever you wish.

Now it is not impossible that individuals upon your planet, should they allow themselves to simply accelerate to the level of equality with us, may create interactions in that way. And may participate in the sharing of the idea of interaction aboard spacecraft, at certain times within the transformation.

But in an overall aspect it is our, to use your term, “wish,” that you would understand that the idea of our spacecraft coming down to rescue you is more of an allegorical understanding of your willingness to be simply equal with us, and simply not need to experience the transformation in catastrophic ways.

So that you can simply accelerate and/or ascend, so to speak, into the fourth density light body state – a bit at a time. Simply recognize that ecstasy is your birthright, and if you know that that is the vibrational reality that you exist upon, then you can aid and assist us in the transformation.

Now, you will find that you have reduced this idea of catastrophic transformation by a factor of, let us say, to use an example, from ten to approximately two and one half. The idea also is that the remainder of the energy, in certain ways – while again, some of it will be utilized and has already been done so – may create, let us say, isolated catastrophes with miniature groups of mass consciousness on your planet that cannot relate to the transformation in any other way. But for the most part, a lot of this energy can be re-channeled in more positive ways.

Q2: Have we done this through prayer and light work?

B: Yes, in a sense, that is one symbolic way. For prayer is simply opening up conduits for the communication and the link that always has existed between yourself and All That Is.

Q: So those that are on the vibrational matrix, as you put it, through prayer and light work, can work for those who are experiencing catastrophic conditions – for example, in Africa. Can our prayer and light work make the transformation and transmutation for them?

B: It can assist. It cannot force them to change.

Q: Right.

B: But it can assist them by providing them a substance and a material that, if they so desire to change, they can avail themselves of, yes.

Q: Bless you.

B: Oh, and our love to you all.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Redefining Earth Change Prophecies

Redefining of Beliefs

Q: My question has to do with: I feel like a black, kinda heavy little space.
B: Black, kinda heavy little space? Very creative.
Q: And it gets in my way of relationships, and...
B: “It” gets in your way! All right.
Q: ... and of surrendering completely to the moment, and to taking all of my power, and just being.
B: All right. May I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure? You do not sound too sure that you wish me to ask you a question.
Q: I know. I’m scared to death.
B: Oh, all right. It is all right if you want to be scared to life, too.
Q: Okay. I do.
B: Now, this question simply is: why do you assume that what you are describing actually gets in your way – as opposed to being a part of the path you are choosing to be? Why do you think it is not a part of your path?
Q: Well, I guess that’s what I want to know: what’s the agreement to have that? I want to be... I’m finished with it now. I want to be done with it; I want to be able to let that go.
B: All right.
Q: Different processes...
B: All right. Can you do me a favor?
Q: Yeah.
B: “Yeah.” All right. Can you define it in any more precise terminology than simply the heavy little black space?
Q: Okay. For me, in this “right now,” it feels like Mom, and feels like the unresolved stuff with Mommy... of something. I don’t... (Crying)
B: All right. It can be many of the beliefs you were brought up with.
Q: Yeah, I’m sure that’s what it is. And so I understand all the stuff in your reality being what you created.
B: Yes.
Q: And so I wonder why I get myself right up to that point, up to that wall, up to that window, to whatever, and why I just can’t.. just go through it.
B: Oh, all right. All right. May I ask you? All right, I’ll ask you. Let me ask you this: what do you imagine would happen if you did go through with it?
Q: I guess it comes down to death. I think if I be... or whatever, who I am, or engulf all my empowerment, there’s some idea I won’t be loved. And then if I’m not loved, then I don’t exist. And if I don’t exist, I’m dead or...

B: One moment. One moment. Your definition contains a contradiction. How can you be all you are and not be loved? That is a contradiction; it is not possible. You are made of love. How can you be all you are and not be loved?

Q: Because someone told me that or something.

B: So?

Q: So why do we believe it? Why do we believe it when we’re kids...?

B: I don’t know. Why do you believe it? Why do you choose to exercise your conscious commandment to continue to believe it, even though you know what it is you don’t want to believe in? Perhaps one of the beliefs you have been taught is that it is not that easy to transform it.

Q: Right. It’s always the hard way, the hard way; the hard way is the best way. I don’t want the hard way; I want the easy way. I’m trying to find the easy way.

B: All right. You do not have to try to find the easy way. That’s not an easy way to find it. An easy way to find the easy way is to simply do the things that are representative of what you imagine the easy way to be – regardless of anything you used to believe in.

Also, what may be, in your terms, hanging you up is simply the belief that you have to dig out all of the old beliefs before you can place new ones in. If you simply act upon whatever new belief you prefer to be true for you, it will automatically replace the old one – whatever it was, for whatever reason it was there.

It is also that easy. You do not necessarily have to dredge all the reasons up as to why the old beliefs are there. You may find it difficult to go on, simply because you are standing on the threshold, not believing that just activating the new belief will be enough to cancel the old one – but it is.

Q: Is there any, like, exercise or affirmation or something that can help me let go of this...

B: There are probably 2 million, 578 thousand, 934 of them.

Q: Okay. All right.

B: Now: we could give you any number of them. However, your imagination will always alter it to fit your best understanding anyway. So why not begin with your imagination?

When you say: “Is there an exercise? Is there a technique?” Why not ask your imagination for one? Since your imagination is the primary tool. The reason you have an imagination is for just such a question: “What can I do to change into what I desire to be?” “Imagination: give me a sign; give me a picture; give me a feeling, please.” It always will. It’s the tool that is specifically oriented to the vibration of the person you are. So whatever your imagination gives you will work for you – if you trust it.

So in your picturing of what you would prefer to be, how do you imagine – if you were that person you prefer to be – how do you imagine you would act that is different from what you are doing now?
Q: I would be more active; I would just get things done, boom-boom-boom-boom!

B: Then understand: all you need to do is act that way. And that action will completely cancel any other habits you have.

Q: Okay. So all that stuff about karma with this person or that person or agreements... is really not necessary...

B: Oh, it’s all valid, and it’s all relevant, but in no way, shape, or form does it control what you decide to be now. It is all a part of what brought you to this point, but it has nothing to do with preventing you from being anything you want. You, right now, just by whatever you define yourself to be right now, will change all the focus of all the past connections to validate what you choose to be right now. The past does not control the present; the present is not a result – in a controlling way – of the past.

You define yourself to be whatever you believe you are at any given moment. If you find that a certain linear idea of your past connections no longer serves the definition you prefer to be, why hang on to that connection? Sever it by redefining yourself, and believing in the definition you prefer now. Believing in the definition you prefer now will change your past to accommodate whatever definition you choose to be in the present.

Q: And believing is just your imagination.

B: Just your imagination and your willingness to act, and trust that by acting upon your instincts and following what excites you the most, your physical reality always reflects that certainty back to you – that choice back to you.

That is how the universe works. It works for everyone. No exceptions. It is working for you right now. But it is only reflecting back to you what you are choosing to believe is most true for you. Change your definition, believe in your new definition. Act like you believe in your new definition, and your physical reality has no choice but to reflect your belief, your action, your new definition. That is all it really takes.

Now, if you believe, for any reason – and it does not matter why – if you believe you need a process to acclimatize you into the understanding that it’s all right to believe you’re that powerful, and that it’s all right to believe it’s that simple and that easy, then by all means attract to yourself a process, an exercise – whatever you find most enjoyable, just because you enjoy it. And that will work for you.

Now one exercise, if you wish, that we did share with you of recent times already exists in your tape form, and there are individuals who can refer you to this exercise – which deals specifically with converting fear into power. And if this works for you, use it; if it doesn’t work for you, don’t. The idea is to simply trust that you will attract into your life whatever tool will work for you.

And lighten up on yourself. There is no real heavy, small black thing in your way. Only your assumption that there is something in your way creates there to be something in your way. And the only thing that’s in your way is an assumption that there is something in your way.

That’s it – truly it. Beliefs are what create your apparently solid physical reality. So a solid strong belief in a very lightweight assumption will create that assumption to seem as if it is made out of steel. And it will seem to be immovable, just because that’s what your belief does. It solidifies your assumptions. That’s it.

Q: Is there any purpose in these beliefs? I mean do we manifest these beliefs…?

B: You can extract a purpose from anything. Perhaps, if you wish to keep it simple, the fundamental purpose in experiencing limitation is to recognize that you no longer prefer it. And then you will not be living it.

Q: Oh God!

B: You can keep it that simple. “All right, I’ve been through all of this to recognize now, that by being able to compare the ideas I no longer prefer to what I now know I do prefer, that I went through all this so I would know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, what I really prefer.”

Now, the last step is to simply believe that if you act upon what you prefer, that will be, from that point forward, the reality you will experience, plain and simple.

Q: So you always know what you prefer – I mean…

B: Yes, you do. You can create a scenario in which it seems you can hide your preferences from yourself. But then, in a sense, to be very basic about it, obviously, at that moment that’s what you prefer to do.

But it is always a matter of conscious commandment. If you are “out of control,” then you are preferring to be out of control. But you are controlling that scenario. So you are never really out of control.

Q: Okay.

B: Simply know that: you cannot be truly out of control. You cannot truly be off of you path, because you are not on a path; you are a path. You can’t be off yourself.

You are who you wish to be; you are what you are. You are the creator of your reality. Prefer what you prefer; believe in it; act on it. You will always get the reflection back of what you truly prefer.

Q: Okay. Thanks.

B: Thank you very much for you boldness.

Redefining Beliefs
Reflections Of All That Is
Q: It’s wonderful talking with you again.
B: And you.
Q: I was wondering... last week you said you were familiar with the energy called Jesus Christ, and I wanted to ask if you were familiar with the Ashtar Command?
B: Yes, to some degree.
Q: Do you like them a lot?
B: Yes.
Q: Great.
B: Is there a reason why we should not love them as equally as anything?
Q: No, that’s right. Do you know the person Ashtar and where he comes from?
B: We recognize the idea of the consciousness.
Q: Do you have any specific thing to tell me about Ashtar?
B: Not really, except that sometimes we find that upon your planet many individuals may interpret, as we have already discussed, the idea of Ashtar in ways that may be more reflective of symbology that you are used to thinking in, rather than the way they actually exist.
Q: Very interesting. We are also working right now on liberating suffering animals from out of the laboratories.
B: Yes.
Q: Do you have any idea of how we can quicken up this liberation?
B: You can love the individuals who are creating those scenarios, and by being equal to them they will know that they are not being threatened by you. And you can share your ideas with them very creatively about how to go about learning what they want to learn, without necessarily having to, in your terms, create negative scenarios with the animals.
For it is simply that they do not see, because of the way they have created themselves to be, how to learn what they want to learn in any other way. You can teach them that they can ask the animals and the animals will tell them what they want to know.
Q: Yes. I was telling these people also about interacting with higher spirits... well, not higher spirits, but interacting with the multi-dimensional possibilities of communication with other worlds.
B: Yes.
Q: And finding out the true answers for cancer and AIDS and all these illnesses that they are actually testing animals for, to find those answers. So, would you...
B: If you are the vibration of that idea, then you simply know, beyond a shadow of a doubt that that is true for you and is the reality. The understanding of all the disease on your world can simply be understood directly through a direct relationship to the disease – by taking responsibility for having created the disease. And so not having to, as you say, create a roundabout method of discovering what the disease is all about by utilizing something, in a sense, removed or outside of yourself.

Thus if you are truly willing to believe that idea then you will simply continue to discuss this idea with them. Not that you are forcing them to see your point of view, but simply that by seeing in you your persistence and your conviction, they may then offer themselves an opportunity to say: “Well, maybe she has something there. Let’s give it a try.”

Q: That’s good. And I also wanted to ask if you are existing in our solar universe?
B: We are in a slightly different dimensional plane.

Q: Because from one information source I was learning that there are thirteen solar universes, and each solar universe has of course, many other worlds or so called dimensions. So I was just wondering if you have already found out under which archangel, or let’s say, solar lord you...
B: These idea are again, labels, that in our society really do not have much meaning for us. For in this way, we simply know what our relationships are to other consciousness by direct understanding, and do not place the idea of a symbolic label upon the relationship.

So in this way, the idea of thirteen of this, which of that, who of this, means very little. We simply relate whom we relate to, and do not make a reference as to whether it contains the idea of a higher, a lower, a separation, this category, or that category.

Q: Well, for me it’s not a separation because the thirteen solar universes are whole, and it is just what it is.
B: Yes.

Q: I know that I am in the twelfth solar universe and I am on planet Earth and I am under the special protection of the lord of my solar universe, whose name is known as Michael.
B: All right. But that is your connection, in your symbolic translation.

Q: Yes, I see that. Once when I was ill and I went out of my body after calling God for help, he responded inside of my head and I left my ego and I went out of my body for the first time. And I met a being, a wonderful loving being who was the one who responded to my call for help. And I asked him if he will ever go away, and he said he was always there and he would always be there.
B: Yes.

Q: And I asked him his name, and he said his name was, Michael or Michi-el.
B: Yes.

Q: And there were beings around him, who I couldn’t see but I could hear calling him, very lovingly: Michi-el. Like a more loving expression for Michael.
B: Yes, we understand the vibration in this way, and while we are aware of the consciousness you are speaking of, and while it is in your terms a reality in that way, the idea of looking at it as Michael or Michi-el, is something that is looked at from the point of view of having come from the planet Earth. To other dimensions of experience, the same energy may be recognized in many different ways.

Q: Yes, it may also be just a part of me.

B: It is all a part of you, and all its own consciousness, at the same time. It is not that it might be just this or that. Everything is this and that. That is why it is ALL That Is, not just pieces.

Q: Yes. And I’m really happy since I met this being because I know how great God, All That Is, is. And how much I am loved, because I met Him with my own eyes.

B: Then in this way, once again understand, that what All That Is knows, is that, what you met also was your own reflection.

Q: So, I’m a very male energy as well?

B: You are equal.

Q: Do you use that word, androgynous, on your world?

B: We understand the concept. The idea is that souls are not really male and, or female. Not really both – really neither. The idea of male/femaleness does not really occur until certain levels of density are created in which to experience a soul, in that polarity.

So we understand the idea of androgyne, but androgyne also, in a sense, assumes a blending of what you would recognize to be maleness and femaleness, whereas while the soul, in a sense, is androgyne, it is more androgyne in simply being the idea of one thing. And not so much being a blending of maleness and femaleness.

Maleness and femaleness are specific terms and expressions experienced in certain universes. The soul can express itself and does express itself in many other types of manifestation in other universes.

And then perhaps, some individual in that universe says: “Well, the soul may not be either this or that, as it expresses itself in our universe, but is a combination of both ideas, where it is truly everything.” It expresses itself, as it will in different planar universes. Sometimes through the polarity of maleness/femaleness, sometimes in other ways.

Q: That’s interesting, thank you.

B: Thank you. Sharing!
Reincarnation

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

Allow us to begin this interaction, this evening of your time with a further expression, another perspective, of the idea you call reincarnation. And this may be your entitlement, if you wish.

Now, those of you who have considered the idea of the existence of reincarnation, even while considering this idea, because of the linear timeframe reference structure in which you have existed for thousands of years of your time, generally have placed your reincarnational understanding within that timeframe, within that linear structure. Thinking, therefore, extrapolating, therefore, that you have a life after life after life, and lives before, lives yet to come. This is not necessarily inaccurate, but it is only the point of view from within a linear timeframe dimension.

Now, realize the true multi-dimensionality of the being that you are, how you are extended in many dimensions of experience at once, simultaneously. We have discussed with you many times the notion that all of your so-called past lives, future lives, and alternate present lives are, in a sense, all going on at the same time, right now, simultaneously – parallel if you will.

The idea of reincarnation is only considered re-incarnation because of the timeline frame of reference, the idea of a before, a middle and an after. So if something was, and it becomes again, then it must re-become. In this way, while this is valid from within that frame of reference, the notion that you call reincarnation, perhaps, we may now simply begin to refer to as – still colloquial, but perhaps a little more precise – simply simultaneous, multiple incarnations. Simultaneous, multiple incarnations.

The idea of multiple incarnations basically occurs because you are eternal and infinite. To put it more colloquially in your frame of reference, in a sense, reincarnation must exist if you are, in fact, eternal and infinite. Because the idea, the limited scope you are experiencing yourself to be in this life is but a fragment of the total being that you are, if you truly are eternal and infinite – in the true sense of what those words mean.

Therefore, if you are eternal and infinite, and yet you perceive that you are only experiencing this limited idea of one particular physical reality, if you see that you do not, perhaps, as this consciousness consciously experience yourself at the same time on the other side of the universe as another being, as that infinite aspect of yourself, then you must realize that you have created and imposed upon yourselves a compartmentalization of the total being that you are. And it is this compartmentalization of the total being, the total infinite and eternal being that you are, that gives rise to the notion of multiple incarnations.

For if you are, in a sense, truly every where, every when, and if you do not experience that consciously, then there must be other fragments of you, just as you consider the idea of yourself to be a fragment, or a limited experience of the total being that you are. All of these other fragments, in a sense, are made to be fragments, are made to be experienced by you in a compartmentalized fashion so that you do not experience them all at the same time, all in the same place. So you can experience this particular reality or that particular reality at any given moment; so that you can create a focus, an idea, a specific idea. Without that ability there would be no ongoing creation. It would be static, stagnant.

The idea of transformation, in and of itself, means that you are expressing yourself in all the ways that you possibly can – right now. Whether or not any one of those ways is cognizant of all the other ways does not matter. You are eternal beings. By the definition you are infinite beings, and by that definition you must be everywhere, every when that there is to be right now.

Therefore, from whatever frame of reference you create, that will determine the terminology by which you recognize your simultaneous multiple existence. Now, if you create a frame of reference that talks about a linear structure, a before, and now, and after, then you will impose that frame of reference upon the simultaneous multiple existence of yourself. And you will say, "Oh, I have past lives; I have future lives. The past lives have already happened; the future lives have not happened yet."

Those are all extreme colloquialisms relative to the neighborhood in which you live, and that is all. You are truly, truly, simultaneous, multidimensional beings – because you are eternal, because you are infinite. One must follow the other. The idea, therefore, of reincarnation simply is a, quote/unquote, natural result of the fact that you are eternal. Because now, right now, is the only experiential timeframe in which you will ever perceive your existence.

Therefore, if you are doing all of these other things, you create a multiplicities of "nows" in which to do them. But they all do occur right now. You simply have broken yourselves up into different frequencies, different bands – again, the analogy of your radio device. All the programs are there at once. You only hear the one you are tuned to at any given moment, but all the programs are there. You would not, perhaps, think for a moment that it would be in any way efficient to send the programs one after another. It would take an interminably long amount of time to hear them all.

So you do them all at once, all you can imagine; and you give everyone a choice as to which one they wish to listen to. And you invent your recording devices so that if they miss one, they can get it later. But the idea is still that they are all available now. And you make your choices; and whichever one you focus on, that is what you experience.

And if, quote/unquote, later you wish to replay your recording, then you can have an experience, another experience, another life. And therefore, remember that because all lives are simultaneous, you can, in a sense, have a past life after a present one, just as you can listen to your recording after it has been aired. Because now you are focused; now you are pointed in that direction. Now that is what you want your consciousness to be focused upon.

So, quote/unquote, replaying your tape allows you to experience it as if it is for the first time. And when you relate to someone else the experience of your watching that tape, it still fits into the linear timeframe of your society. "Oh, yes. Oh, you saw that too?" "Yes, well but that was aired back then." "Yes, but I saw it today. For me it was aired today." But within the overall agreement it was aired back then. Therefore, recognize with this example as well, symbolically many of the devices that you are now creating in your society are also assisting you to, in a sense, fuzz out your concept of time. For in many ways you can listen and hear and experience something that someone else has already heard and listened to and experienced some time ago; and for you it is the first time, even though for them it is a repeat. You can shift the focus of when anything can occur. And you can allow it to seem to be any time, any place.

It is no accident that your technology is reflecting this ability; that your communication skills technologically are now beginning to represent your communication skills that you are developing within yourselves telepathically, and between each other; a coming and going simultaneously of many different messages on many different levels. Your technology is now that way because that is what you are all about; your recognition of the coming and going of many messages simultaneously on many different levels. And you can tune into whichever one you prefer at any given moment, depending upon where your dial is aimed. 'Tis up to you; aim your dials where you will.

We thank each and every one of you for choosing to experience one, at least, of your multiple incarnations with us. And we now simply ask, how may I serve you?
Rejection

Q: This is my first experience with you and I feel overwhelmed with all the information you have given. I’m concerned with the fact that as a person, I withhold; I don’t allow myself to give freely in relationships.

B: All right. But again, relax. You will know what you need to know when you need to know it. Not one second later, but not one second sooner either. Relax, knowing that you know what you need to know. Now, in what specific way do you feel you withhold?

Q: In trusting. I have a great tendency to build walls to shut people out.

B: And what is it you are afraid they will find?

Q: That I’m not sure of, but I feel I would be rejected by them.

B: Rejection. All right. May I ask you a question?

Q: Yes.

B: If you were to go up to any particular person in the group that you are with would you expect that person to suddenly rip off one of their arms and throw it away?

Q: No.

B: Then why would anyone want to reject another part of themselves, even if it is represented by you?

Q: I don’t know.

B: All right. Maybe because they do not see you as a part of themselves, that might be one reason. But if they do not then that is their limitation, not yours. Do you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: If a person acts as if they are rejecting you what they are doing is actually rejecting a part of themselves. There is something about themselves perhaps they do not wish to look at. But at the same time it may also be a reflection that you are also rejecting and in this way they serve you, by mirroring your fear and giving you an opportunity to learn to love yourself as you are.

You may have been brought up, in your reality, buying into, soaking up, absorbing a lot of belief systems that make you feel – less worthy than. But all you really need to do is understand that you are unique for a reason and that your uniqueness exists for a reason. And, if you exist, then you deserve everything you can imagine within that existence, within the recognition and understanding of your natural self – you deserve it because you exist. If All That Is, or what you may wish to call the Creator, if the Creator obviously believes you deserve to exist, then obviously you are worthy. And If All That Is didn’t reject the concept of you, then obviously you are worthy of anything. If you are worthy of All That Is, why not treat yourself with the same respect that All That Is has for you in having created you? Why argue with Creation? "Well I understand, Creator, that you think I’m worthy to exist, but I want to argue the point." Well, the Creator loves you so much that the Creator allows you to argue the point. That’s how much you are loved. You are all so loved that the Creator allows you to forget that you are loved, that’s how loved you are. Now, think about how loved you are and then make an attempt to compare any other concept of rejection against the ultimate acceptance that the Universe has for you and it will pale by comparison. How does that feel? Do you feel a little more worthy?

Q: Yes.
B: A little more deserving? A little more of a right to be?
Q: Yes.
B: Has this helped you?
Q: Yes, it has.
B: You know what?
Q: What?
B: We love you, All That Is loves you... all ways... always Q: Thank you. I love you too.
B: Thank you for your sharing. Pleasant dreams to you.
Q: Good day.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I enjoyed the information this evening, and also the information that came through the Observer; and about the thirteen, and the Wizard’s cap...
B: Yes, well I would think that a Mage, in particular, would enjoy the idea about the Wizard’s cap.
Q: Yes, I sat there and tingled the whole time.
B: Yessss.
Q: Some reflection on the Observer: it felt as though he was observing the evolution of the Earth...
B: It...
Q: ...and all of us...
B: It.
Q: ...and scanning us all. It.
B: It.
Q: It, pardon me, it. Is there any connection to the Watcher energy?
B: Of course there is a connection: the Watcher energy is contained within the Observer.
Q: Okay. Because in Egyptian times there was one of the gods that was considered... well, the only planet of choice. Tom was considered that being that helped make the Sphinx... connection with the Council of Nine. And I wondered if...
B: There is a connection only in that there was a connection made of that energy level, of that consciousness level, and a representation was created to symbolize it. But it is, in a sense, not a representation of the total energy of that being, but only of the facet that is, as you say, germane to the particular culture that represented it. In their interpretation of their relationship to it, since, above all, the Observer is the very epitome of the concept of relationship.
Q: Um, right. Is the Observer, since he is the Oversoul of the Association, is...
B: Remember that that is not an absolute definition.
Q: Right. That’s an energetic concept.
B: It is one way to understand, or look at, or reflect the relationship with the Observer.
Q: Right.
B: But only one way.
Q: Okay.
B: But do proceed.
Q: Is he going to come back again?
B: It.
Q: It, I’m sorry.
B: It will come forward, if summoned, but I give you this – and I will put it, of course, in what you would call your classical and colloquial vernacular, not meant in a negative way, but sit up and pay attention to this: WARNING! WARNING! WARNING! TO SUMMON THE OBSERVER IS TO SUMMON A RELATIONSHIP AND TO SUMMON AN INTERACTION. THE OBSERVER, IF SUMMONED, MAY SEE YOU IN A DIFFERENT LIGHT THAN YOU SEE YOURSELF AND MAY CALL UPON YOU TO EXPRESS THE SELF IT SEES. IF YOU DO NOT FEEL UP TO THE TASK OF DOING SO, THE OBSERVER MAY NEVER ACKNOWLEDGE YOUR SUMMONS AGAIN. AND IF YOU SUMMON IT, AND ACCEPT THAT A TASK MAY BE GIVEN, YOU MAY FIND, IN YOUR OWN TERMS, THAT IT MAY BE SOMETHING THAT YOU WILL REALLY HAVE TO DEAL WITH THAT MAY NOT NECESSARILY BE EASY FOR YOU. BUT GUARANTEED, IT WILL STRETCH YOU, IF YOU ARE WILLING TO DO THAT.

BUT WE GIVE YOU THIS BUFFER ZONE AS A WARNING: DO NOT SUMMON IT LIGHTLY. BECAUSE YOU WILL, IN A SENSE, NEED TO BE PREPARED, EITHER TO REALLY CHANGE, OR TO FIND THAT YOU WILL NOT NECESSARILY BE CAPABLE OF COMMUNICATING WITH IT FOR QUITE SOME TIME THEREAFTER, UNTIL SUCH TIME AS IT HAS RECOGNIZED YOU BEING THE SELF IT RECOGNIZES YOU AS. THEN IT MAY RE-INITIATE COMMUNICATION.

IF IT INITIATES THE COMMUNICATION, AS IT DID THIS LAST TIME, NO SUCH TASK SHALL BE REQUIRED, BUT IF YOU SUMMON IT, BECAUSE IT IS ALL ABOUT THE IDEA OF RELATIONSHIP, IT WILL WANT TO RELATE TO YOU AS IT SEES YOU FROM ITS POINT OF VIEW, WHICH MAY REQUIRE YOUR PERSONALITY TO DISASSEMBLE ITSELF, IN WAYS THAT WILL NOT NECESSARILY BE COMFORTABLE FOR YOU – AND THAT IS NOT MEANT IN A NEGATIVE SENSE, SO BE PREPARED IF THIS HAPPENS. THIS IS THE ONLY DISCLAIMER THAT WE WILL GIVE. END OF WARNING!

Q: I don’t think I will call for a while. (Laughter) But . . .
B: That is your choice.
Q: But sitting there, there was the feeling of a knowing, a deep knowing from somewhere.
B: Yes, yes.
Q: What’s interesting is that some people had no problem speaking. I wasn’t able to articulate anything that evening . . .
B: All right.
Q: It was only on the way home that I could actually formulate a question that I would have asked.
B: All right.
Q: Is that because of the strength of the energy? I know sometimes when we are interacting . . .
B: It is because of the strength of your own energy, in the reflection it gave you of your own energy. It may have, in a sense, put you at a loss for words because you were so surprised by the strength of your own energy.

Q: Oh, okay. Because sometimes in the interactions with you someone else will ask a question and I'll be thinking, “gee, if they just ask another one, along another line,” but I also realize that when we are communicating with you, sometimes our left brain is not connected to our right brain, that we are sort of feeling it, and not always able to articulate or go beyond our questions.

B: Yes. Well, this is all about the idea of integration, so we give you more than enough opportunity. If you give yourself the opportunity to integrate in whatever way, shape or form you believe represents a balance in the relationship. That is up to you, it is not up to us to force you.

Q: Right. Any wizard stories, any more wizard stories?

B: Wizard stories? As we have to some degree indicated, this will begin in your new orbit.

Q: Okay.

B: It will be one of the things, in some senses, that will be included in the new exercises for the discovery and self-realization that will take place.

Q: That’s great.

B: That will take place in our future interactions, as you call them.

Q: Great.

B: We will include the idea of what you have euphemistically called, “Wizard stories,” but be prepared, they will be more than stories. You may be called upon to be the characters in the stories and play them out very literally. All right?

Q: All right, thank you very much.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Relationship Patterns

Q: Hello Mr. Ambassador.
B: And to you. Mr. Dip-lo-mat!
Q: Thank you, and welcome to planet Earth.
B: Thank you.
Q: About eighteen years ago, I learned that you develop love for someone – one way, anyway, a very effective way – by being of service and giving of yourself.
B: Yes.
Q: I fell in love with a gal just by being of service to her.
B: A gal?
Q: A gal, yes. Female type.
B: Yes.
Q: And she didn’t give a shit about me; but I loved her, and it was a…
B: Did you want her to give shit to you?
Q: Well, I was hoping that she would; my (–?) obviously flagged (?) out, but I didn’t get any shit.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: So I’ve applied that to every relationship that I’ve been in since then. And I have attracted a number of other relationships, such as, the partner that I’d be in a relationship with was reluctant... or begrudged giving to me. And it has caused me a lot of wonder – what the heck’s going on? The pattern that I’ve created in giving, in relationship after relationship, and then having these people not give back to me. Although I’m sure a needy person, I’m almost... I’m very self-sufficient. So it’s rare that a person... that I ask for something from someone.
B: Yes.
Q: But I don’t believe that I reflect whatever help or giving that they might have. But I find them begrudging me this.
B: All right.
Q: I wonder if you would help share why I created this pattern?
B: Well, is it an opportunity to reflect to the idea of that person your unconditionality?
Q: Well, certainly I’m being of service by example.
B: All right.
Q: But…
B: But what?
Q: I enjoy being of service: but I don’t like the one-way street of it.
B: Why is it a one-way street?
Q: Because they are begrudging being of service to me.
B: In what way? Why do you specifically need a specific individual to be of service in a certain way? If your love is unconditional, then you are served by the total All, in whatever way you need to be.
Q: I certainly do that.
B: Whether a specific individual chooses to be a reflection of that is not really the complete issue. You will still get what you need from somewhere.
Q: Oh absolutely, I do.
B: All right. Then what difference does it make?
Q: There just seems to be an imbalance in the relationship.
B: Why? If you are in a relationship to reflect to someone the idea of unconditionality, then obviously you are saying that they do not exhibit unconditionality. It is a perfectly balanced relationship.
Q: Well, it’s just… the thing is, I don’t go into the relationship – at least with a conscious decision to go in – for the purpose of reflecting unconditionally…
B: Why not?
Q: Well, I don’t go into it without that. But I don’t like my relationships to say: “Well, I’m going to show this person, who doesn’t understand unconditionality…”
B: Oh, we understand what you are saying, in that sense, yes. But the idea simply is that: are you willing to reflect unconditionality or not?
Q: Yeah.
B: Then reflect it.
Q: And I do.
B: All right then. Don’t expect anything in return; and you will get everything you need from wherever you need to get it from.
Q: Yeah. I do understand that.
B: Why not simply attract yourself into the understanding that if you are willing to know you are getting it from wherever you really need it to come from, then there may be – may be, maybe – an individual or several individuals that will be able to give you the service that you require. It may not necessarily turn out to be the one individual you are assuming that it might be, or it must be. But it will be someone.
Q: Yeah.
B: And therefore, if in that sense they will, by definition, provide the service that you need, it won’t matter from where it comes. Because it will feel correct, and it will fulfill you.
Q: So far it hasn’t self-corrected. I mean I get service from wherever
I need it, when I need it...

B: Well then?
Q: ... but I mean, if I say: “Hey, will you iron my shirts?”
B: Yes.
Q: And she says: “No. How dare you ask me to do something for you?” And I say: “But I do things for you all the time.”
B: Yes.
Q: She’ll say: “Well, I don’t want to do it for you.”
B: All right.
Q: I have to go someplace else...

B: All right. May I ask you a personal question?
Q: Please do.
B: Why are you in the relationship?
Q: Well...

B: Not that you necessarily have to find someone who will do that specific thing. But we understand the general idea of sharing that you are talking about, and if you simply find that you’re in a relationship where someone is not willing to share equally, why are you there?

Q: Now: are you asking me that as a – I’ll use the term “challenge” – to ask me why I’ve remained in the relationship? Or are you asking me to define why I truly am there at that time?

B: Why have you remained in it?
Q: Well, this is a process and I’m aware that it’s a process. And I’m still in the process of understanding why it is that I would remain in a relationship that I have found...

B: Well, all right. Although that doesn’t necessarily mean that you can’t work it out somewhere else.
Q: But working it out somewhere else may mean getting out of the relationship.
B: Correct.
Q: And that’s okay too.
B: Yes.

Q: And I have done that, I have done that at every stage. Wherever I have found the other person not sharing in some balanced way, I have gotten out of the relationship. I’ve done this several times.
B: All right.
Q: The question is: why do I continue to attract what seems to be a pattern – instead of attracting some kind of balanced exchange?
B: All right. One idea is that the overall balanced exchange can come from many different sources. In other words: if you start thinking of many different sources as one individual, then you will recognize that you are in an individual relationship that does give you what you need. Instead of necessarily assuming that the individual people, in and of themselves, must represent, through a specific conduit, the idea of the sharing that you seek.

Q: Okay. I do understand . . .

B: In other words: being the switcher and the mover that you are, means that you will create your accessibility across a number of circuits.

Q: Mhmm.

B: Not necessarily just one.

Q: Okay. I do understand that, and I have found that to be quite workable.

B: All right.

Q: The flip side of this coin is that whereas I don’t expect every service from one individual, there are certain services, which a particular individual could – and could very easily – offer me . . .

B: Well, so?

Q: But specifically will refuse to give that service.

B: Yes, so?

Q: The question is: why do I keep attracting . . .

B: Why do you keep demanding it? In other words: why do you keep looking for that specific idea? Why are you focused on a need for that specific idea?

It is that type of focus, which creates the repetitive pattern. Why do you keep looking for that particular avenue of expression?

Q: What particular avenue are you talking about?

B: Well, let’s use the example of someone who will simply not iron the shirt in exchange for something you have done.

Q: Yeah.

B: Why do you keep looking for that?

Q: I don’t. I don’t specifically look for that. I just feel that if I’m in a relationship where I’m willing to do just about anything for somebody . . .

B: Yes.

Q: It makes sense that it could be natural for them to be willing . . .

B: Oh, it may be natural; but maybe they’re functioning in a normal mode, rather than a natural one. Now, overall I understand what you are saying . . .

Q: So quit giving me a hard time.
B: Oh, all right. You want me to iron your shirts? (Very much laughter) Or is it that you wish me to iron out the situation?
Q: No, not at all. I just feel that there’s something more fundamental to this than what you are reflecting to me.
B: All right. All right. Yes, but we also find that for some reason we do not have access to it. Because there is still something about this particular process that, quote/unquote, should be obvious to you. And until it is, the door isn’t open to us.
Q: In other words, I’m still working through the process.
B: Yes. Well, I’m not surprised at that.
B: Oh, all right. All we can share is to relax with the process: relax with the apparent repetition; and remember that nothing really is ever really truly repeated. Nothing.
So perhaps as a suggestion: if it occurs again, quote/unquote, give it a new meaning – a completely new meaning. Completely different than any meaning you have ever given it before. And see what happens.
Q: Can you suggest one such meaning? So I can get a feel for what you’re talking about.
B: Well, let me ask you this: have you involved these individuals who choose to make these refusals in a conversation that allows them to explain their reasoning to you?
Q: Yes.
B: And what have you received?
Q: Mostly gibberish.
B: What are you defining as gibberish?
Q: Literally, I get excuses. They come up with reasons that... they’re quoting past incidents that just didn’t occur...
B: All right.
Q: Make up things from what I channel, to be previous lovers, that refused to do them a service. Then they request – they somehow have a belief that I’m the lover that refused them the service. And they put that on me. This is the kind of thing that I would get.
B: One moment: there is a small crack in a door.
Q: Thank you. (Pause)
B: A small question, if I may.
Q: Be my guest.
B: Oh, thank you. What are your notions of the idea of being, in general, deprived?
Q: That’s an interesting question. My notions in general? I don’t know that I have a general...
B: All right. Can be said in another way. What are your notions, in general, of the issue of deservability?
Q: In general – at least on an outer aware conscious level, and I have no reason to believe that doesn’t filter down to my belief system – I believe that everyone deserves anything that they want.
B: What do you believe about how an individual might feel they have to go about allowing themselves to allow anything they want?
Q: I believe they need to act with integrity.
B: All right.
Q: And excitement will get them there.
B: All right. If every single individual that you involved yourself with, in a relationship of this type, created the same, quote/unquote, refusal – every single one – how would you feel?
Q: Shitty.
B: Why?
Q: No, I just – no, I wouldn’t feel shitty. I would . . .
B: How would you feel? What would you be forced to look at?
Q: Well, I think you’re driving towards the idea of deprivation, and a . . .
B: I’m not driving toward anything at this moment.
Q: Okay.
B: Cancel, blank, empty.
Q: What would I feel? I would feel that I . . .
B: Let me rephrase. Imagine, if you will, with me: go into your imagination, on a little journey through time. Let’s imagine you are now at what you call the end of this physical life.
Q: Okay.
B: All right. Let us assume now – however old you are, however young you are, it does not matter – but let us assume you know that you have done everything you are going to do in this life, and you are simply pondering, for the last few moments, the idea of what the life has been to you.
Q: I’m there.
B: All right. If you look back from that point of view on these circumstances, is anything popping up in your imagination about an area that you could have been looking at, that now at this point, from this perspective, you recognize all too clearly as being about the reasons for those interactions?
Q: Now, are you talking about a hypothetical life, or the one that I’ve lived right now?
B: Let us say the one you have lived right now.
Q: So I would have to be at the end, right at this moment?
B: Yes. You are at the end of the life right now. Look back to this now, to the ideas you hold within you now. Look from the perspective that you are literally wrapping up your life.
Q: Okay.
B: And now you look back on these circumstances, truly look back on them. And recognize now, from your now perspective how they fit, and what purposes they serve. Does anything come up in your imagination when you drift in that particular idea that you are not seeing at this point? Or I shall say: that you did not see back then?

Are there any new perspectives on it from the perspective you have now at the end of your life, that are different from the perspective you had when you were in the middle of those circumstances? About what purposes they served.

Q: I’m looking; and I’m not seeing anything at this stage.

B: All right. Since the accessibility seems relatively closed to us, we would suggest that this evening of your time you go into one of the relaxed meditative states, whichever you prefer, and allow yourself to examine this circumstance from the perspective we are suggesting now – as if you are literally at the end of your life, looking back upon it.

And seeing from that perspective what you may not be allowing yourself to see now. But doing it when you have the time to relax. And truly drift in your imagination; and see what pops up. Right now may be a little too confining to allow you to expand in that way.

So this evening of your time when you are drifting off to sleep, imagine that you have – if you wish to – imagine that you have already died, and look back upon the life itself, with the expanded point of view you would assume you would have, being a non-physical being.

Q: Okay.

B: And see what pops up in your dream reality – or even just before you drift off to sleep.

Q: Well, I don’t mean to prolong this, because I know that there are people waiting. But I do know that, in a sense, I have a feeling that in a past life that there has – that this relates to something in a past life that I have brought into this…

B: All right. Let that be a part of the overall idea you may discover or explore tonight. But simply see what comes up, and see how the pieces fit. And share with us – if you are willing the next time we converse – what you have discovered.

Q: All righty.

B: Thank you very much.

Q: Thank you.

B: Sharing!

Relationship Reflections

Q: I liked what you said the other night – that love is telepathic.
B: The idea that telepathy, while it may function within what you would call a mental medium, is emotionally activated and supported, yes.
Q: Okay, the way that I understand that in my life is, sometimes when I meet someone, I feel an enormous amount of energy for that person, and unconditional love. And if I was to judge that... in our society it could be just construed as sexual energy.
B: Yes.
Q: But I feel that there is an enormous depth of understanding for that person’s being.
B: Yes.
Q: And in our judgment, I should not have that understanding. So that's why when you said that telepathy and love have a great connection...
B: That explains how you feel.
Q: Yes, that explains it very much. But I don’t know how to explain it to them.
B: Exactly as you just explained it to me.
Q: Yes, but...
B: Recognize that your willingness to have unconditional love for them as they are does not mean they have to understand and/or, quote/unquote, return it.
Q: True enough. No, I don’t feel like I need that reciprocation. I feel like my love is complete within itself. And also... then why does it seem like my expression of that sharing... I think it’s like the “totalness” of it scares people.
B: Now, you know why. You know, because individuals may not be in touch with all portions of themselves in that way. And may be shocked, in your terms, to find out that those portions they are not willing to get in touch with are available to you.
Q: Right, but they chose that interaction!
B: Obviously. But again, you also know that for many individuals on your planet that that choice is not conscious.
Q: Okay, so I judge myself for not being discreet sometimes, and approaching them in a way that I have an imaginary picture of how I would like the reaction to be.
B: All right. To be colloquial, in your language, you can have the love and still, quote/unquote, respect their space. All right?
Q: So what I’m seeing is that there isn’t complete integrity within my being to externally consider them?
B: Yes.
Q: In the sense of impetuously...

B: To some degree, you may be a little bit impatient. But simply recognize, again, that the idea of functioning within your integrity is to include the variable of how they feel about the interaction as well. Because if you are unconditional, then no matter how they feel, that is all right to you, you still love them. And you will express it in whatever way, shape or form makes them comfortable. For if you love them, you wish to make them comfortable as well.

Q: Yes. There is one other area I would like to talk to you about. Sometimes when I’m communicating with you, you go: “Yes. Yes!” (Spoken brusquely)

B: You interpret it as impatience.

Q: Okay. Okay!! (AUD: laughter) No, no. That’s what I wanted... wait a second now! You... you just judged that.

B: Yes.

Q: Okay, now I...

B: Did you like it?

Q: No. That was one of my questions, and you answered it for me: You choose to judge us sometimes, right?

B: Only as a reflection.

Q: Okay. Okay... now what I feel is: I’m a flower and I’m unfolding, and I’m trying to express something to you, and I feel like you are pushing my process. And so...

B: All right.

Q: Okay, that’s my choice. Okay?

B: Yes.

Q: And so, I don’t mean to be disrespectful to you, but what I’m saying is get back. Let me unfold at my own speed.

B: Hello? Does this sound like some of the people you interact with?

Q: (Long pause)

B: Now can you see it from their point of view? And does that assist you in seeing how you feel to them sometimes?

Q: Yes. Ooooh, yes. (AUD: laughter)

B: Thank you for allowing me to be a loving reflection of yourself.

Q: And you are. You truly are.

B: Well, thank you so much.

Q: Thank you.

B: Sharing!
Q: My question is, I’m really interested in knowing: in your world, what is a loving relationship like? How do you choose a partner in life?

B: Synchronistically, automatically. We simply attract ourselves to each other. We allow it to automatically occur. It is much in the same way, to some degree, that you allow your relationships to happen. But we also are telepathically connected, and we allow ourselves to recognize that when we do, in fact, draw ourselves into those automatic interactions, we allow them to be what they are.

We do not put expectations upon them for what we think they ought to be. We know that they are there to serve us; we know we are there to serve them. So we rejoice in the spontaneous co-creation. And we do not put, in any way, shape or form, any particular label as to how we think it should go, or how we think it should wind up. Or will it be this way, or will it be that? Or will there be anyone else?

Once again, perhaps, to put it in the simplest perspective: our entire civilization is married to itself; every individual is married to every other individual. And any relationship that occurs, in any way that it occurs, with however many individuals it occurs, is a part of the marriage – is relationship within the marriage.

There are times when it takes upon it the physical appearance of what you would call a monogamous relationship; there are times when it doesn’t. Just as it occurs in your society. But there is a great deal of denial in your society about that.

The idea, in that sense, therefore, is that we do not expect, or even really know – just to point out this example, because it is germane to your society – whether we have been in a monogamous relationship until we reach the end of the life span.

And we say: “Well, no one else came along; I guess it was a one-on-one, wasn’t it?” Because we know, beyond a shadow of a doubt – in absolute trust – that if any other relationships do automatically occur, then they are a part of the overall relationship. They enhance the overall scenario, in whatever way they naturally unfold; and there cannot be an interruption. It’s not possible in our society.
Q: Well, if you were to decide to bring another being into your world, what is…

B: Understand that we are always in communication with that level of consciousness as well. And we simply make our agreements consciously, even as you can. It does not have to be a hidden thing. You can be in touch with the beings that can be born unto you. For understand: they are not children now. Understand?

Q: I understand.

B: You can be in touch with them. And you recognize that there are services that you may want to perform; that this individual puts out, that this individual – this non-physical individual – radiates a desire to accomplish certain things, in what you call physiological manifestation.

In putting out that desire, and putting out that radiation, that individual in our society simply automatically attracts only the individuals that have the desire to serve him in that way. So it’s automatic. There’s no wondering about it. The individuals that can be of service in that way are only attracted to them. And only those individuals will be attracted to the individuals that can serve them in that way.

Q: Is that not so now, for us?

B: It is absolutely so now that way, except you create negative synchronicity, as well as positive synchronicity. We only create positive manifestations. Understand?

Q: I do indeed. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Relationships and Expectations

Q: You know the last five years I’ve been involved in some bizarre relationships.
B: Bizarre? (AUD: laughs)
Q: Yeah. I felt it was bizarre.
B: All right, all very creative, probably.
Q: It still left me very confused.
B: All right, nothing wrong with confusion.
Q: Is there something karmic in that?
B: Can be, yes. You may be playing out the idea of interactions so that you can form, let us say, a balance sheet with yourself, before you allow yourself to recognize that you yourself are the result of all integrated relationships within yourself. Can be somewhat karmic. Can also serve you in this life as well.

Relationships are always there for a reason. When you allow the relationship to be there for the reason it is there, and not put expectations on what you think the relationship should be for, then you will allow yourself to get out of it the service you need, and the recognition of the service that has been provided and vice versa.
B. Thank you. Yes.
Q2: Given... given what you just said about relationships...
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. If you want a relationship and you do not have a relationship, is it because maybe you are wanting it too much, so that...
B: Perhaps.
Q: ...it is not coming in?
B: Recognize, first of all, you always have a relationship, no matter what the definition. You follow me?
Q: I... I... I follow you. I’m talking about a heterosexual...
B: Ah, we understand. We understand. (AUD: laughs). Let’s start from zero. (AUD: laughs). You always have relationships because relationships are what you are. They are not truly things you have. They are what you are. You are relationships.

Now, the idea can be that you find yourself not in physical proximity to another being that represents the relationship to you, perhaps, because you feel you need the relationship in order to be complete. So in this way, if you feel you need a relationship in order to be complete, then you will either, more often than not, attract a relationship – a being that will reflect your belief in your own incompleteness – or no one at all, to reflect the idea of your incompleteness.

When you know you are complete, then you radiate that knowledge and you attract into your life all the beings that represent the idea of your knowledge of your completeness, and then that being can share... with you - usually because you don’t need each other in order to feel complete. So, paradoxically, you are more than open for each other to appear in your life, in order to reflect the completeness you know already exists.

Q: I understand.
B: You follow me?
Q: Yes. Totally, uh, my sense is that my life has been working so well right now...
B: Yes.
Q: ...that it’s, like, the perfect time. I feel... I feel the strongest and the healthiest to...
B: All right. You may be picking up on your timing; but may I remind you that, by definition, when it is the perfect timing nothing will stop it from happening. (AUD: laughs).
Q: I just don’t agree... like the timing. I want it now!
B: Ah! (AUD: laughs). Judgment; judgment; judgment. (AUD: laughs) May I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: Have there ever been situations in your life where, after having experienced a timing, after having experienced something coming into your life, whether or not this has physiologically happened – we know you can conjure this in your imagination, an understanding of when something occurred in your life – that you knew that if it had occurred sooner, the same degree of ability to interact with it and appreciate it would not been there?
Q: Yes. (AUD: laughs)
B: Then trust that if the situation is not there, it is because the timing is such that, when it does happen, it will be timing that will allow you the fullest appreciation, and that that timing does not exist now; for if it did, it would be there. And if it is not there, then why would you want it to be there, if it does not represent the fullness of the timing that will allow you to appreciate it the most?
Q: Hmmm. Okay.
B: You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: When you are enjoying every single moment of your life, because you know that what is happening at every single moment of your life is exactly a representation of the path you chose to be, then you will be excited about what is happening, and will not be impatient about what is not happening. The idea of impatience is only created when you think you need patience. You only need patience when you believe that what is happening now is not as good as what could be happening later. But recognize, if you are knowing that everything in your life is exactly where it is supposed to be, at any given time, then you will enjoy every moment. Enjoying every moment means you don’t need patience. Which means you will never create impatience because you are too busy having fun to need patience. (AUD: laughs)
Because you are never waiting for something, because there never will be anything better. There will always only be things different, but never better than what is happening; grander perhaps on a scale, but not better. Because that grander perspective is its own idea in its own right and has nothing to do, and no business being compared to what is going on now. Because what is going on now exists for its own sake and its own reasons, and that has nothing to do with what’s going to go on later. You follow me?

Q: Yes. I follow you. My thought was then to try and...

B: Try? (AUD: laughs)

Q: Then to, imagine, uh, what I want in a relationship.

B: Oh, it serves a purpose.

Q: ...to create. Oh.

B: It gives you the idea of a symbol. Having the symbol itself, the visualization, can allow you to kick that energy into being, to start the momentum rolling. But recognize – not that what you visualize can’t literally come to pass, because it can, but it doesn’t have to. If you recognize that what you visualize is simply a template to allow you to start the energy rolling, then recognize you have started it rolling, and stop worrying about it. Let it take care of itself. It is automatic. If you worry the energy along then you are dragging it down. You are holding it back by worrying after it. (AUD: laughs, comments).

Know that your visualization means that you enacted, in whatever way the template needs to be enacted, that energy. Pooph! It is out there. All you need to do is trust that it will then manifest in the quickest possible manner, at the appropriate timing, in the way that represents the idea that will allow you to feel the most fulfilled. Because the way the idea can manifest that will allow you to feel the most fulfilled may not be exactly, literally, the way you have envisioned it, because many things change on the road. But do recognize that no matter how it comes back to you, you will recognize it as the representation of the visualization you had, because it will feel right. No matter how different it is from the original description you gave it that enacted the energy. When it comes back, it will feel right. You will be excited about it. And excitement, once again, as always, is your physical translation of the vibrational energy that represents the path you chose to be. That is why you can always trust your excitement. No matter how different the symbols look from what your analytical mind says they should look like to represent the path you chose to be. It is the excitement, the feeling, the knowingness, that lets you know that a symbol that may appear very differently than you expected it to appear, is still a representative part of the path you chose to be. It comes in an unexpected way because you don’t want your life to be boring.

Q: (Laughs). Great.

B: So trust the feeling. That is why, and it is associated with the idea that many of you have experienced in your dream reality, that even though an individual in your dream may look different, you know it is an individual you know in life. You go by the feeling, not the way they look. What is it you say? You can’t judge a book...
Q: By its cover.
B: Thank you. Recognize, you always know the content, even if it is a new cover, because symbols are always changing. Because they are all neutral, so you are always changing the meaning of the symbol, and changing its aspect. So, go by the feeling. All right?
Q: All right.
B: Thank you very much!
Q: Thank you.
Releasing Judgment and Fear

Q: Now, I would like to discuss with you a little bit on judgment.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Expectations...
B: Yes.
Q: ...is that not a form of judgment?
B: To some degree, it can be. You can have expectancy of a certain type, in the most generalized sense, you can be aware that there are certain parameters that may truly be representative of a certain form of manifestation; but the idea of expectation, in a negative sense, is simply the insistence that it can happen in no other way. And this shuts the doors to all other ways it may happen, including ways that may be more expanded than you imagined.
B: Yes.
Q: Are these...
B: Judgments of the self.
Q: Judgments of the self.
B: Yes.
Q: Now, in these interface sessions that are coming up.
B: Yes.
Q: Is there a way to prepare yourself, ourselves, so that we can recognize these fears as self-judgments and reduce them prior to...I mean, obviously, these interfaces are to face you with your fears so you can release those fears.
B: There is no way to prepare.
Q: Okay.
B: You can only, in a sense, do.
Q: Do.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay.
B: The experience is the preparation... preparation is in the doing.
Q: I see.
B: There is no preparation before doing.
Q: Okay. How many sessions will there be? Do you know that exactly?
B: There are going to be what will be called, qualifying rounds. They will be in numbers sufficient to handle as many individuals as wish to go through them, even while some will graduate to the second round.

Q: I see. So these are not something that can be done in private sessions?
B: There will, of necessity, always, always, always in every qualifying session be no more and no less than twelve human individuals.

Q: Okay. Is there a way to have a private, one on one?
B: As we have just answered, in these qualifying sessions there will always, always, always be no more and no less that twelve individuals.

Q: Okay. How about after the qualifying rounds?
B: We will not discuss that at this time.

Q: Okay.
B: Suffice to say, again, that in general, even several of the levels above the initial qualifying round will contain group interaction with humans, rather than the idea of what you would recognize as private sessions.

Q: Okay.
B: This is necessary for the structure.
Q: I understand. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Releasing Judgment and Fear

Religion and Excitement

Q: At one point you mentioned that this is the only planet that has religion.
B: As you understand it, yes. That does not mean that there are not different societies that have various forms of symbolic relationship representation between themselves and Infinite Creation. But the idea you call religion, in the sense that you somehow do not think that the capacity for the relationship exists directly within you, and place that capacity within someone that you follow – that we have rarely discovered anywhere else, and never in the form that your society exhibits it. You follow me?
Q: More or less. It’ll come.
B: All right. The notion that we find most different is the apparent belief in a disconnection between yourselves and the Infinite Creator. In other words, that God is outside of you, instead of the fact that you are God, that you are made of God, that everything is God, and that there is no separation. That you do not need to follow someone to do such and such a thing, and that such and such a thing is the only way to be God.
That is what we find different about your planet, that individuals – because there is such a high degree of limitation and separation in your history – have simply created ideas and patterns that there is only one way to relate to the idea of a God that is separate from you to begin with. Instead of the idea that everything is God and therefore, every way is another way that God has to be itself. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that define the difference?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that serve you?
Q: It certainly does. The final part of that question is: are you familiar with the Siddha Yoga?
B: Not by the definition you have given.
Q: Well, it's a form of Yoga, and they basically teach you to meditate, and meditate on the God that dwells within.
B: Yes.
Q: Or the God part of you that’s there…
B: There may be many things we do in our society that are similar to many things you do. We simply do not necessarily need the awareness of all the specific rituals that you have created around certain ideas that may be common to both of our societies.
Q: I see. So I’m wondering if there may be a faster way to reach spiritual ascendance?
B: The fastest way is always to do the thing that excites you the most. Because when you do the thing that excites you the most, you are matching the highest possible vibration in your reality. And it is the excitement that always let you know what is, in that sense, the most spiritual thing you can do – if you’re doing it with integrity. That’s it. Anything and everything that falls into that category is the way to accelerate most rapidly. Because remember: physical reality is not non-spiritual. Your physical body is your spirit in physical terms. So anything you do in an integrated manner, using that high-accelerated energy you call excitement will be an act of spirituality. You follow me?

Q: Great! I got it.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Q: I’m having some confusion with the religion subject.
B: All right, in what way?
Q: Well, the fact that there is a God...
B: Yes.
Q: there are so many different religions out there.
B: "Out there," yes. [Audience laughter]
Q: Well, I feel like I have to choose a religion.
B: Why?
Q: Umm...
B: The only thing you need to know is your relationship to All That Is. That, in a sense, is a religion.
Q: But I have children. I want to raise them with respect for the Lord.
B: Well, what’s stopping you?
Q: I don’t know where to start.
B: Start in your home.
Q: With the bible, or what?
B: It doesn’t matter. The idea is to understand this: what you normally call "religions" on your planet, the ones that you recognize as mainstream religions, have generally been structured to take your power away from you. They have been structured to de-connect you from your natural relationship to All That Is and to get you to hand over the responsibility of that connection to someone else.
Q: Well, I don’t agree with those kinds of religions.
B: Then there is no reason for you to teach your children those structures. All you need to do is put them in touch with the fact that they are aspects of the Infinite. That is their relationship and that is where it all began anyway. The "ritualization" of that understanding of that connection is up to each and every individual.

Each person is their own religion in the sense of how they wish to represent their connection to the Infinite. As long as you instill within them that they are already aspects of the Infinite. And if you instill within them that they know they are already as powerful as they need to be to create whatever reality they want – without having to hurt themselves or anyone else in order to do it – there’s nothing else you need to teach them. Let them manifest their relationship to the Infinite in whatever way feels right for them, because whatever way feels correct for them will be the way that the Infinite wishes to express itself as that person.

You are, as you say in your biblical references, "made in the image of God.” Now, the idea of what you in your society may call God and what we may call God may vary here and there in semantics and terminology, but it is basically the same concept: it is All That Is... One Infinite Creation that diversifies itself into many multitudinous transformational manifestations.

If you are made in the image of a multi-dimensional Infinite Being, that means you are multi-dimensional infinite beings as well, at least that is what the phrase means to us. So when you say you are made in the image of God, understand what that actually means.

You are co-creators with the Infinite; the creators of your immediate reality. And as you design the filters of you senses to be, so you experience the reality you believe you are in.

But do understand something, just out of interest, if you wish, All That Is – our label for, what you call, "The Creator" – to us is perhaps a little more technically precise a term. Because the idea of creation or the notion of a "crea-tor," to use your language, implies that there was a "beginning," that there was something "crea-ted." And that implies that there was nothing before that. There has always been, is now and always shall be ALL THAT IS. Therefore, understand there really is no beginning; there really is no ending. What you term the Universe or God is All That Is.

God, as you call it, didn’t so much "create" the Universe and then stood apart from it in the sense of not interacting with it. God is IT and therefore is everything in it – our civilization, your civilization, all civilizations, all things are a part of All That Is. Reflections if you wish, the "Is" of All That Is; the "eyes" of All That Is. So that through you, through us, All That Is can express itself in all the ways it possibly can.

Understand that Creation, as you term it, is not static. It is not, "Well, it was created and now it is simply unfolding as it was created to be." It is BEING right NOW, new, every moment. In a sense created... but again, it is BEING right now, always, at every moment something NEW that it can be.

So keep it simple. Keep it very simple. Let your children be self-realized beings and decide how they wish to express their connection that already exists. You don’t need religion to give you the connection... the connection is already there. Religion is just a way of expressing the connection that is already there. And the less ritual a person needs, the less religion they need. Does this help or is there something else you wish to discuss about the idea you call "religion"?

Q: Yes. I’ve listened to quite a few of your audio tapes and it seems to me, from what I understood, that we both believe in a creator. And perhaps it’s the same creator but your civilization is operating in a different dimension than we are operating in. So, how do you perceive your Creator versus how we on our planet perceive our Creator?

B: Thank you. The main difference is that we believe, as we have labeled it, that the Creator is... is... IS... literally, All That Is. We see no distinction or separation between the Creator from its creations. The Creator is its creations, the creations are the Creator; collectively speaking, the creator expressing itself as ALL the creations the creations perceive themselves individually to be.

Overall, the idea is that your planetary civilization, as we perceive your relationship to the concept of a Creator, is you generally see the Creator as something beyond you, outside of you that you are subject to, in a sense, distinct from or separate from Creation, whereas we really see no separation. We recognize that there are different manifestations of different levels.

We understand that the ONE knows itself as THE ONE and knows itself as ALL that makes up THE ONE. And we recognize that there may seem to be a difference between all the individual components and THE ONE. And the individual components may, in a sense, not be as "great" as the ONE, or, I should say, as expanded as the ONE. But each component holographically contains ALL of the ONE, and the ONE is the ALL. It is all one thing. Do you understand the concept of the hologram?

Q: Uh, maybe, in general terms.

Indra's Net

B: All right. I will explain in its archaic form, as it was understood hundreds or thousands of years ago on your planet, known as “Indra’s Net.” Indra’s net was like a net made of many pearls, each pearl being perfectly round and each perfectly reflected the image of every other pearl in the net. If you can imagine this, if you can envision this, you will understand that in order to understand or access the information of all the pearls in the net, all you really need to do is to go to any one pearl, look at the reflections of all the pearls, and you will have all the information right there in one pearl.

The existence of All That Is, in physical terms, is structured that way, holographically. Each component – you, me, all beings, all individualized consciousness – contains the whole, but is also distinct from the whole, in that it is a particular perspective that the whole has of itself. It is a reflection, your reflection, of the Infinite from a particular point of view. I am a reflection of the Infinite from a particular point of view. We are all the different ways that All That Is has of looking at itself, of experiencing itself, of knowing itself and of expressing itself. That is why we say, "We are All That Is, All That Is is us."

The idea also is that there is no separation in the sense of empowerment. We have and are directly related to the concept of All That Is. What is meant by all the structures that have labeled themselves as religions... they have a tendency to say to individuals that they must act as an intermediary between the individual and the concept of God – as if there were not a direct link already. This is the main difference as to how we express our relationship to what you call Creator and how your planet generally expresses its relationship to what you call Creator. Does this help clarify the situation sufficiently?

Guilt & Deservability

Q: Well, I’d like to briefly explore the issue of "deservability" and how that relates to issues of guilt, because guilt seems to be strongly associated with many religions.

B: Yes, the idea of guilt.

Q: And many, many people experience guilt, similar to, what’s referred to as, "original sin."

B: We understand the concept.

Q: The separation from the Father or from God; the taking or doing things of one’s own volition and the guilt for doing that.

B: We have a definition of guilt. May I share it with all of you?
Q: Please do.
B: Guilt, not hate, is the true opposite of love. Hate is a polarized expression of love but still implies deservability, even if it is only self-deservability. Guilt, being the lack of deservability, is truly the opposite of love, which is absolute validity and equality of all. Therefore, yes, the idea, the vibration you call guilt is a self-cutting-off from the source of Infinite Creation. Now, you’re never really cut-off from it. You can’t be. But you can create the illusion, as you have pointed out, that it is so. When an individual learns that unconditional love of self, of All That Is is the most positive direction they can flow in, they then recognize there is no need for guilt, because guilt is only a denial of one’s own existence.
Q: I get a very strange feeling this will be my last time here.
B: Maybe so, yes. For many of you this is true. This is the transformational life where you can come to full consciousness, and thus, can choose consciously to reincarnate or not.
Q: But I find myself now looking at the flowers and the birds and all physicality as if it was for the last time.
B: No, not really in the ultimate sense, because physicality is you. It is you. And when you become non-physical you can project whatever you want. It will still seem as solid or real as you wish it to be, except the difference is you will understand that you are consciously that thing – it will not be separate from you.
Q: So it will be even more precious that it has become?
B: Well, it will be better understand for what it is. It is all-precious.
Religion on Earth

Q: You once mentioned that this is the only planet that has religion.
B: As you understand it, yes. That does not mean that there are not different societies that have various forms of symbolic relationship representation between themselves and Infinite Creation.

But the idea you call religion, in the sense that somehow you do not think that the capacity for the relationship exists directly within you, and place that capacity within someone that you follow – that is something we have rarely discovered anywhere else; and never in the form that your society exhibits it. You follow me?

Q: More or less. It will come.
B: All right. The notion that we find most different is the apparent belief in a disconnection between yourselves and the Infinite Creator. In other words, that God is outside of you, instead of the fact that you are God, that you are made of God, that everything is God, that there is no separation; that you do not need to follow someone to do such and such a thing.

And that such and such a thing is the only way to God. That is what we find different about your planet. And that individuals, because there is such a high degree of limitation and separation in your history, have simply created ideas and patterns that there is only one way to relate to the idea of a God that is separate from you to begin with. Instead of the idea that everything is God, and therefore, every way is another way that God has to be Itself. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Does that define the difference?
Q: Yes, thank you.
Religion

Section One

Now, allow us to begin with the idea that you call religion upon your planet. We will begin with this idea for, in a sense, it is, I’ll say, an offshoot of the initial condition in which humanity, upon your planet, recognized itself as it became physical. The diversifications that occurred, within the recognition of self as the creator, will have been created within the idea of separation from the creatorhood, therefore, giving rise to all of the ideas you recognize as religion per se.

Now, approximately 25,000 of your years ago, in what you term to be Atlantis or, in their dialect, Atalundi, you will have found that the idea of separation of the self from the creatorhood began in earnest, though it had appeared upon your planet before that. You will find now, there was the choice within the mass consciousness of that era to determine for themselves that they were, in this way, not needing the integration of the self to the All That Is; but that they could exercise their power directly in such a manner as to separate themselves from the totality of All That Is, so that they could recognize themselves in a more, I’ll say, personalized way as being the creator. This stemmed from the projection of spirit into material form. As it continued, as spirit continued to project into material form, it found that the idea of material form, in and of itself, was the definition of separation, limitation to a certain degree. Thus, the more spirit experienced the idea of material form or physical reality, slowly, in a sense, but, as you say, surely, they became used to the energy patterns.

They began to sense ideas, feelings, emotionalities, thoughts, beliefs that they had heretofore not encountered within non-physicality. They began to create the idea of fascination with the limitation, and in so doing, allowed themselves to become enmeshed, locked in, so that they could experience all that there was to experience in that mode, as well as every other mode that had been experienced within the All That Is of non-physicality. Thus, they became used to or, as you say, created the habit of expressing themselves in material ways, again, through emotionality and thought and belief, rather than knowingness.

Once they had formed this habit, to a certain degree, they found that the separation became somewhat complete, and they were, to some degree, locked off from their own knowingness, and therefore, found that they created a physical cycle that you call reincarnation. They became embedded in the energy fields of the earth, in a sense. They became a part of its consciousness; it became a part of your consciousness; their consciousness.

In this way, they found themselves now to be of the vibration of Earth, and because of the particular concentration in which your area of space and time is actuated, is realized, they found that the intensity of this concentration of energy kept them locked into the immediate rings, layers, or cycles of energy surrounding the planet and, as such, found themselves unable, once again, due to their fascination, unable to break from those rings, those cycles, without integration. Thus, they created for themselves, for yourselves, the idea of the reincarnational path.

Now, the emergence into physical reality was begun much longer ago in your time than 25,000 of your years; but there was still, in the beginning, some realization of the connection to the knowing self, and thus, many realities were created upon your planet, many manipulations of matter and energy which, to some degree, still manifested the idea of, as you say, heaven or paradise on Earth. After the repetition of cycles had gotten to a point when beings lost sight of their inner selves, they deemed that to gain it back they must gain mastery and control over their environment and the other beings around them. Because they could no longer sense the connection between them, they felt that they were not connected. In order to perpetuate a connection, they felt it necessary to create the idea of domination of those they saw around them and their environment, because they could no longer sense the natural connection which existed within them.

In this way, you have thus the beginning of the idea of the formation of information. The idea of being able to harbor ideas which are not a part of the whole and pass them off, as you will, as things which are beneficial for individuals, but which only bring certain individuals under the control and domination of others, so that they can experience their own self-growth and aggrandizement in a way that allows them, since they now feel powerless, to feel powerful; but it is, in that way, still the illusion of physical reality. Now, both the idea of religion, and to some degree government, is created from this separation, from the idea that stories, ideas, can be created and perpetuated that have not to do with the connection between things, but with those things that can be hidden, separated from, judged upon. And in this way, individuals thus found themselves creating the cycle of giving their power over to others who could protect them from the things they told them existed, which these other individuals had no way of knowing whether it was true or not. You will find this repetition has occurred again and again and again, throughout this cycle of your 25,000 years, in many different forms.

Even when the interjection of higher consciousness from other dimensionalities occurred, such as, in your terms, the Christ consciousness, the cycle of separation was so complete that still these interjections were not understood. The messages that were given usually amounted to the idea that each individual was like unto the Christ consciousness, was the Christ consciousness. But the cycle of separation had ingrained a habit so deep in your mentality, and fortified and rigidized the mentality itself to such an extent that the only way these messages could be heard was in the fashion of, again, giving over the power to the individual and becoming followers rather than doers, rather than leaders themselves.

Recognize that the Christ consciousness never desired to be a leader, never desired leadership. It desired to be a reflection through that individual, Jesus, in such a way as to reflect the idea that every individual is an extension or, if you wish, a son or daughter of the All That Is or God.

Recognize therefore, that all the ideas that you call religion, that seek to deem that the congregations are such as to need leadership, as to be worth less than the idea of the divinity, as to be judged by the idea of the divinity, will all be separations within All That Is. These ideas you call religion will all be the giving away of the power that you are to other individuals who, either through helplessness, fear, judgment, or self-aggrandizement, would have you wish to maintain their feeling of powerlessness in the midst of their, I’ll say, unconscious feelings of powerlessness; because it is their true belief about themselves that they are worthless and not a part, separated from the divinity that is their right, that is everyone’s right, to know that he or she actually is. Thus, you find that the conglomeration, the multitude of religions will always be a natural result of the confusion that stems from the separation of the self from the All That Is, that the self knows itself to be.

When knowing is forsaken, and only the personalities, the mechanisms by which the philosophies are presented into physical reality, only when the philosophies are allowed to be interpreted only by the mentality, do you create such a diversification of point of view. Now, understand that this is not a judgment against the idea that this was created. Your civilization has chosen, the consciousness of your civilization has chosen as a group to explore all of the different manifestations of negativity through separation of the self from the All That Is. This is one of the great creations within All That Is, and is, in and of itself, a valid expression, if for no other reason than the fact that All That Is can view itself in that way.

Recognize that All That Is needs no ultimate purpose to express itself in any way that it can; simply because it can, it will do so. This is one of the definitions of existence itself. That which has existed before the idea of a purpose does not need a purpose to continue to exist in any way, shape, or form that it can exist, simply because it can.

Recognize therefore, that the integrations, the shiftings and changes that are now taking place within your religious institutions, your governmental institutions, your sociological institutions are all taking place because you are now at the end of your cycle of separation begun 25,000 of your years ago, and are now understanding yourself to be one idea, one homogeneous reality, one energy, one consciousness, and are beginning to take back your fear, take back your responsibility for having created your lives. You are beginning to reawaken to that time when you projected yourselves into physical materiality and rendered yourselves unto the system of the reincarnational aspects of your planet. You are now awakening to your original agreements, and you are now beginning to realize that all of your separations, all of your religions, which would have you become a follower, worth less than the divinity that you are, not worthy of already knowing yourself to be whole and complete and not in need of saving from anything; you are now beginning to recognize yourselves the true core self that you are, the true core self that All That Is created you to be.

Now, all of the ideas of saviors, whether Jesus, Buddha, Mohammed, or whatever other labels you wish to ascribe to these consciousnesses that have manifested physically upon your planet, all of them in their higher aspects are in accord. There are no discrepancies in the energy of the initial consciousness that is represented through all those ideas you call saviors; but recognize that the first thing a savior knows is that they are not here to save anyone. There is no saving that needs to be done. Any discrepancies which you find in your literature is all a product of the personalities that existed within your civilizations, and their interpretations, through their own philosophies, of what those beings meant. All your literature and any seeming discrepancies are the product of the philosophies being expressed through the personalities that existed at the time the information was delivered.
In this way, again, it has served a purpose, for you now have a background against which to measure the totality of yourself in the expression of the negative separation of yourself from All That Is. Recognize therefore, that without judging any other religion, or your own, or yourself, you can allow each and every one of your beings to begin to live the ideas that your supposed saviors told you to live. Not to follow them, but to listen to your inner beings, and to recognize that these ideas and foundations that you call religions and government, government, in one sense, being another type of religion, to a certain degree, in that you are giving over your fear and your power to a greater power, so to speak, in your eyes, to take care of you, to fend for you, to keep all the things you are afraid of away from your door, to keep you safe, to give you everlasting peace, comfort and security; these institutions were created out of you lack of willingness to take your own fear and your own responsibility. Then they, like any consciousness, once created out of fear, will want to sustain themselves. And if they were created out of fear, the only methodology they have of sustaining their existence is to create more fear, to keep you separate from yourselves in this way, to keep you thinking and believing that you are less, and worth less in the eyes of a greater power, that you are children unable to run your own lives, unable to take responsibility for yourselves.

Now understand, though you may allow yourselves to create organizational systems, they will not run your lives. It will be a service provided to you by beings that are willing to be of service; not to have you serve them, not to have you inflate their sense of superiority so that they can bolster within themselves a feeling of powerfulness, so they do not have to recognize the belief that exists within themselves of their powerlessness.

Take back your power. Allow yourselves to know yourselves to be your governments, to be your religions. You are every one of these concepts in your society. You are your own priests, for surely as you listen to your sermons and go on your way, you are only creating those sermons for yourself in your head. That which you choose to remember, it becomes the portion of each and every one of you that is the priest within you, that reminds yourself over and over again, if you choose to accept it, that you are not worthy, that you are somehow less than the divinity which created you. Understand that the divinity that created you does not think you are less. It knows what you are. It knows itself to be its own consciousness, but also recognizes itself to be the compilation of all of your own consciousnesses and, as such, recognizes the idea of the relationship between you. It is that relationship between the polarities of the one unbroken wholeness and the multitude of consciousnesses that go into making it up. It is the relationship itself that exists and defines the idea of the multitude and the singular God. The relationship actually is your own fear and your own responsibility. All That Is; it is what you are. You are the relationship.

All of your religions, all of your ideas of separation, can dissolve within this one idea, can merge, blend, and meld into an understanding, a knowingness that you had many, many, many, many hundreds of thousands of your years ago. Even though you did choose to exist within the physical reality and the reincarnational cycle, you can still know yourselves in this way. That has been always, first and foremost, the main message of all of your saviors, of all of your messengers: know yourself, and in knowing yourself, you will know God, you will know All That Is.

We will, thus, also point out that all of your literature in your religions will not compromise nor comprise the ideas that were spoken of in full, in any aspect. There is no complete record of all that was said by any messenger, only pieces, scant memories, sketchy recordings, many times, many years after the actual occurrence. Recognize again, that the main reason for all of these recordings is not so much to delineate history, but to once again convince, or attempt to convince other individuals that this is the way they should believe if they are to be "saved." Every major religious teaching has to do with proselytizing, the winning over of converts for the bolstering and boosting of the feeling of being powerful to those who know and believe themselves to be powerless.

Recognize that as limited as the idea of the personality construct is in representing your wholeness and totality of being, just as limited are all of the perceptions that come through it, including that which you call literature, creative though it may be, beautiful though it may be, and perfectly representative of the ideas you have chosen to experience within, I'll say, the era and epic story of your creation of separation of yourself from the All That Is through the viewpoint of your relation to the universe, which you call religion. This has been your saga of religion, your view of yourself in relation to the universe; but viewed through the perspective and philosophy of being separate from that universe.

In the next section of this chapter, we will delineate how the blending of the knowing self will give rise to a new view of the relationship of the self of the personality to the All That Is, and to many of the manifestations which can take place upon your planet when you dissolve the barriers of religion and government.

Now understand, first and foremost, none of these changes will be, in your terms, changes of force, changes of violence, changes of hate. No. These will all be changes that will occur from the unconditional love that you are now recognizing within yourselves; that you are now recognizing comes from All That Is to you, regardless of the idea of religion and government, and indeed transcends all of those barriers and artificial lines and constructs. This blending will allow you also to understand how the ideas you have called religion and government are yet two more aspects of the overall all-knowing philosophy that you have filtered in so many ways through your personalities, and will allow you to realize that there is no one way, per se. If there was only one way, there would only be one person. Each and every person upon your planet is all the different ways that All That Is has of looking at itself. Now you have viewed yourselves through all the different facets that exist within the oneness.

In the next section of this chapter we will, as you say, attempt to enjoy the view of your entire society and all the individuals within it from the perspective of the unconditional wholeness and support of All That Is. You will find that you will be being of service to All That Is and automatically, thus, be served by All That Is, since you are a part of it. No more need for the separation, the need to feel that you require salvation. You already are salvation itself; you already are heaven; you already are paradise.

Section Two

This being the second part, the portion dealing with the viewpoint of integration as it is connected to the ideas of religion and government, you will now find that when you take back your power through unconditional love, when you begin to view yourselves as being equal to your religions, equal to your governments, equal to the idea of yourself as All That Is, you will begin to recognize within your society that your own divinity can still be expressed through the personality which will exist as long as you are physical, but in ways that will create, as you say, heaven on Earth.

You will be able to see all of the symbols that have been created in your religions, how they actually manifest physically on your planet. You will understand the mechanism of symbology. You will be in touch with your own archetypal energies. You will feel it running through your consciousness like an underground stream. You will recognize it to be the energy in your subconsciousness that has been responsible for the formation of all of the illusions and symbols out of which this energy was utilized to create all of these symbols to give you something to relate to, as long as you were not considering that that which you were relating to was you, in terms of the All That Is of creation.

When you have created this separation out of this archetypal conscious energy, you will always pull symbology that will give you something to reinforce the idea of separation. This you will, first and foremost, be able to begin to see, and it will manifest through one of the philosophies you call psychology, as it has already begun to do so, and this is why the ideas of psychology have begun to replace what you call religion.

Therefore, you will recognize that there are these streams of consciousnesses that you have created in being an idea of a separated being. You have created separations within your consciousness into outer-aware consciousness, unconsciousness, subconsciousness, hyper-consciousness, mass consciousness, and all the different aspects of your personality.

Now, in times past, yet still within the time of the 25,000 year cycle, all of these personality aspects gave rise to the symbologies of your religious symbology: demons, angels, visions, and so forth. Now, not to say that there was not consciousness nor real energy behind those manifestations; but with your new integrated viewpoint, you will be able to understand how many of these ideas were extensions of your own higher consciousness, reflected back to you through the artificial personality construct, using the archetypal energy to create a symbol that you could understand within the separation you had created for yourself, to reinforce the fear you were desiring to create, because you had desired to create separation from the All That Is, the knowing you, the oneness that you are.

You have begun to utilize this idea, this tool you call psychology, psychiatry, to understand that you have these streams of energy running within you, and that you project these ideas from yourself onto the interactions that you have with other consciousnesses, or other aspects of your own consciousness.

Now understand, therefore, as an example, that you will begin to see all of the plays, all of the playing out of lives, manifestations of the supposed saviors were more than just physical manifestations, they were also psychic manifestations and operated on many different levels of existence, not just the physical.

In this way, you will begin to realize the relationships between different aspects of one consciousness.
As we have said, for example, the idea of the Christ consciousness, not only manifesting as it was through the idea of the man you call Jesus, but also through what you term to be Elijah, John the Baptist and Judas, forming in one particular overlapping life the threesome of John the Baptist, Jesus, and Judas, a triad, a trio of players actually stemming from the same consciousness. And Elijah, the town crier, who came before, as you say, prophesying it all to pave the way for the play that could be acted out to allow there to be a multitudinous, many-faceted, mirror image crystal to reflect all the different aspects of the archetypal energies that the people of the time were creating for themselves in their play of separation from the All That Is.

These things you will begin to see: the relationships, the connections, the underlying patterns of synchronicity that have occurred throughout these cycles of separation that always have been there, always have been the obvious links, but have not been seen due to the separation of vision, and the limitation placed thereon upon these personalities that you have created. You have, as you have said many times, been seeing through a glass darkly.

Now you are clearing yourselves. You are becoming clairvoyant in your own lives; that is clear seeing. And thus, while you have the idea of psychology and psychiatry, now you have the idea of psychicness also rising to the surface, because you are allowing yourselves to know you are in constant communication with all aspects of yourself and all aspects of consciousness, no matter where or when they may be. This is the psychic side that creates the polarity of the same energy that gives rise to psychiatry. Psychicness, psychiatry: the same energy in a polarity viewpoint. You will always have polarity as long as you create yourself to be physical, and this will be the next aspect that you will understand: polarity as one of the definitions of physical reality.

Understand how this simple integration of the viewpoint of the blending of yourselves, of the being of yourselves to be All That Is, has already taken many, many magnitudes of steps away from the concept you call religion, and thus, is already beginning to lay the foundations of exactly how this energy will blend into all the other disciplines upon your planet. As we will take them a chapter at a time, you will see how they all key in, and the foundations are formed right here in this particular aspect; the philosophy which, in a sense, is now more purely represented by the idea of the blended religion, simply, philosophy and its expressions of the polarities that you will understand to define the physical reality. Thus, the first polarity that you are experiencing as the offshoot of religion is, again, as we have said, psychicness and psychiatry. In much the same way you will find that atomic structure gives rise to the diversification of particles out of a nebulous idea of an atom.

As you and your society learn to define the nature of reality with more and more awareness, more and more precision, in a sense, in the same manner you will find that these ideas of the polarities of psychicness and psychiatry are like unto those more precise atomic components that rise out of the nebulousness of the idea of religion, in the same manner as the particles do out of the nebulousness of the overall idea of a simple atom.

Now, though you may find, at first, that the seeming array of polarities or particles, to continue the analogy, may create more confusion rather than simplification, as you are now finding in your physics; you will also find in your methodologies of looking at yourself and your philosophies that you will approach a basic understanding within the idea of the energies of the polarities themselves, of the idea of polarity itself, in the same manner that your physicists are approaching a basic point of view that they call “unified field.” In this way, there is a direct correlation in this analogy, by noting that both psychicness and psychiatry will be components, polarized components, which stem from a more unified field or philosophy. And it is this idea, this foundation, perspective, which will be responsible for not only unifying and blending all of your sociological philosophies or aspects, but also those you call scientific, economic.

Therefore, as we have said, you will find that in any discipline, once you begin to employ the aspect of integration in your perspective, in your viewpoint, very quickly it will move away from the initial concept that was created within separation, losing many of the earmarks of that particular discipline. Therefore, psychicness and psychiatry will first lose the earmarks of religion that deal with being at the mercy of outside forces: being judged. You will find that both psychicness and psychiatry are attempts to understand the self and the self’s relation, the personality’s relation to the All That Is. From the initial step of taking back power, of gaining control, or rather knowing that you have control already of every aspect of your life. It is your responsibility as an individual and a collective to know that this control that you have is something you can use as a tool to make your society what you wish it to be, no longer at the mercy of little understood outside forces, judgments, and irrational acts of some mythical God or Goddess, or gods.

Understand that when we use the term God, we are referring to all of the limited definitions that your society has created. In our concept, we simply refer to the idea of creation as All That Is, which covers everything and is everything, and indicates that All That Is knows it is All That Is.

Recognize that the previous definitions from the limited terminology, out of which these terms God, Goddess, gods have come, many times will still impose upon the idea of All That Is some sort of limitation in that it will give rise to contradictions such as: "God is Omnipotent, yet somehow, still, God is not me, outside of me. I am outside of God." By definition, if God is everywhere, everything, then you are not outside God. God is not outside you. You are God. God is you by definition. Thus we prefer the term All That Is. It is not, in this way, so limiting; for somehow, out of the separation, you have created the idea that even though God can be omnipotent, it can still, somehow, not be contained within you. Thus, in the blending you will also see that your definitions are also limiting and only reflective of the limited aspects you have heretofore deemed to be worthy to look at, that you have deemed to be, I’ll say, safe to view. As long as you are creating and generating the idea of fear, certain aspects of your personality, certain aspects of your beliefs, certain aspects of your emotionality, certain aspects of your mentality will be considered to be unsafe; as they would always, when blended together, give rise to what, in your past, would be heresy. Heresy is a reference to a society’s reaction to realizations that may occur within an individual that, perhaps, will represent aspects of the list that your society had not considered before to be real. The idea that you, somehow, were connected in a more basic fundamental way to the All That Is, in this way, goes against the grain of separatism that had been for so long the canon of all your religions, and all your teachings.

Thus, polarity itself will simply be seen from your new viewpoint, your blended viewpoint, to be one of the definitions of physical reality, as will time and space. In this way, you will find that religion, when viewed from a blended viewpoint, will lose its qualities of separatism and will begin to take on more and more aspects, and point more in the direction of the idea that you have created, in your society, that you call science, and this is why it will lead us directly into the idea of your next chapter, which will be "Science."

We will then, again, explore how even science, being that it was created in the era of separatism, created many ideas that still did not allow for unification or blending with any other discipline, and kept itself aloof; and how your science has now begun to understand that through its own unification it will, by definition, begin to include many other disciplines that have for a long time in your society not been considered the domain of science.

Now we will give, as we will at the end of each chapter, some space for there to be asked representational questions, so as to cover, for each subject, many of those ideas that may be lingering in the consciousness of those who will either hear or read this material. These questions may be asked or, if there are no questions, you may, at the end of each chapter, delineate, if you will, notes or comments from your own society and the individuals thus putting together, co-creating this work with us, associating with us in the spirit of the Association.

Thus, this portion of each chapter will give your civilization an opportunity to become a part of the Association, as we will then, step by step, chapter by chapter, hand in hand, form and co-create this idea of the blending, so that your civilization, our civilization, and all of the levels of consciousness, as we create this work, will find it to be, as you say, a catharsis for each and every being involved. And thus, as we begin this work through an idea of being separate civilizations, upon its ending there will be the opportunity to begin to view that we are all one civilization working hand-in-hand, exploring together, forming new ideas of ourselves with each other, and giving ourselves the opportunity to recognize that much more of All That Is that we each have to explore within us; the "new religion" if you will; but no religion will it be.

We will now proceed with the sharing and the questions and interactions pertaining to this subject:

Dr. Chandley: From your point of view, what is the common denominator and direction, if any, of all religions as related to each of us?

The Association: To some degree, as we have discussed, the idea of the commonality is simply your exploration of what you are willing to believe yourselves to be. As long as you have created yourself to be separate from the All That Is that you are, this exploration has taken place outside yourselves, and so the creation of ritual to understand and reflect to yourselves all that you can contain in your reality; but now that you are becoming integrated, you will find that this exploration goes within, and that the ritualized tools are no longer necessary. Thus, each and every one of you, recognizing yourselves to be your own path and hence, your own religion, so to speak, will now recognize that the religion, in that form as you have created it, is no longer necessary to understand your relationship to yourself as All That Is. Will this have answered your question?

Dr. Chandley: Yes, in part. What would be the most universal saving ritual, if there was a ritual to bridge this place where we no longer need rituals, from a religious point of view, that we could engage in to experience increasing integration among ourselves?

The Association: Simply the expression of unconditional love. Understand that the underlying, supposed mode or principle behind all of what you experience upon your planet to be your separate religions, is supposedly that. It is all based on the idea of the love of creation for its creations. Thus, you are the creator. You are those creations. Love yourselves. Love each other. Life and love are the only so-called rituals you need to integrate.

Dr. Chandley: So when a person who has a question about the religious ritual that they see themselves using, or connecting to others... what you are saying is that that ritual is unconditional love.

The Association: You can simply recognize that if you are questioning the ritual you have created in your habit, that you are now assuming or wondering whether or not you require any more, you can always recognize that all that you have been creating the ritual for is for the purpose of expressing the love of creation that you feel existed in the creator to create you. Thus, you can simply render all the habitual rituals down to the expression of unconditional love. Thus, it becomes not so much, I'll say, hollow ritual, but true, active sharing, and you will see your so-called religions actually acting themselves out upon the surface of your planet.

Dr. Chandley: Thank you, I have a question about a religious experience, which is a bit different from the idea of religions. Could you comment on the idea of the oneness of the religious experience, and the differences in the cultural expression of that experience?

The Association: Now, to some degree, we just have. The idea of the oneness is the recognition, the base idea recognition of the oneness that you all are. You are all exploring the same idea from different points of view. The different points of view simply exist because there are different individuals. It is a recognition, an allowing recognition, if you will, created that way, that there is not just one path in understanding yourself as All That Is. If there were only one path, there would only be one person. Because there is more than one person, you can recognize that there are many, many roads that all lead to the same understanding.

Dr. Chandley: Thank you. Then, from your point of view, the question about the common denominator and direction of all prophecies as they relate to each of us is the same.

The Association: To some degree, although once again recognize, in our perception there is really no such thing as a prediction, prophecy of the future; it is a sensing of the energy which exists at the time the prediction is made. Now, those that deal with the idea of mass consciousness, of which the idea of religion is greatly contained therein, the idea of the mass civilization, you will find that the senses of the direction in which this energy will flow will have been accurate; but in this way, many interpretations placed upon the prophecies will have to do with the idea of exactly the methodology by which you will come to the understanding of yourselves as All That Is.

In times that were deep into the separation of yourself from the All That Is that you are, these ideas of integration were viewed as straying from the so-called trueness of one particular religion that was being put forth. And thus, this integration now occurring upon your planet was seen to be something they called evil. Therefore, you will simply be able to recognize that all the prophecies, so to speak, are all saying the same thing, that you are integrating, that this is an age of transformation, which you are going to shift into a new idea of yourself. But all the different ideas that have to do with judgment, Armageddon, rebukement, and all of the ideas of separation, the idea that you have to struggle, go through trial by fire in order to deserve living in harmony and peace, are all products of the viewpoints of the time in which the prophecies were made.

Dr. Chandley: Is that idea also relevant to, say, the prophecies of Nostradamus?

The Association: To some degree, yes. There is no such thing as a prediction of the future. That prediction is simply a sensing, made in the present, of the energy that exists at the time the prediction is made, that is the most likely, probable future to manifest if the energy does not change. Many times, the prediction, by being known, will, in and of itself, render itself obsolete, because now the energy is known to be moving in a certain direction, and if the populace or the individual, now aware of the prediction, does not prefer that the energy be in that area, their attitude will change the amount and direction of the energy, rendering the prophecy obsolete.

Any prediction or sensing made in a particular time frame will utilize the understanding and the symbolic references of that time frame. If a time frame cannot imagine transformation occurring without destruction, then their sensing of such transformation, as is going on in your world now, will not be able to be predicted without utilizing the symbols of destruction.

Now that you are awakening into your own self-empowerment, you have the ability to realize, real-ize that you can create transformation in a de-structurizing way without creating it to be destruction.

We thank you for the sharing of your questions, and allow us to remind you that when you create the idea of questions, it is only that you already contain the answers. The form of the question will simply be that you have separated this idea of the answer you already contain from your knowledge. However, in this way, once again, we thank you for the willingness to express your explorations, for your civilization and our civilization is the sharing that continues forever.

Dr. Chandley: Thank you.
Remains of Atlantis and Lemuria

Q: Was Atlantis in our density vibration?
B: Yes.

Q: So the ruins could be found on the ocean floor?
B: Of what little there are.

Q: Why are there so little remains?
B: The destruction was quite total, and there has been much passage of time and much erosion. There are a few, and a few have already been found.

Q: Where?
B: In what you call the Bahamas.

Q: Ah ha. And how about Lemuria, would that be the same?
B: Lemuria will be less likely, although what you call the manifestation of Hawaii and Easter Island will be, to some degree, manifestations of the idea of Lemuria still remaining.

Q: What, with those big heads on Easter Island?
B: Yes.

Q: They were Lemurian?
B: Yes, yes, yes, yes. (Audience laughter)

Q: Ok, big heads. (Laughter) Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you.
Greetings to you this day of your time as you create time to exist. We thank you for being willing to co-create with us this day of your time this interaction, so that there may be expansion between your world and our world. Together, eventually, your civilization and many other civilizations through interactions such as these may come to a place and a time when we can interact freely and explore creation together. We thank you for the opportunity to accelerate that process by co-creating this particular endeavor today of your time. The idea we wish to discuss, the idea we wish to reflect to each and every one of you is one that we have entitled self-empowerment and before we begin with the specific tools by which you can allow yourself to use self-empowerment, we would desire to lay down a few foundations so there will be some common basis of understanding within all the things we will be discussing.

Many individuals on your planet now are discovering ideas of what you call your New Age of awareness. You are discovering expansions of your consciousness, you are discovering aspects of yourself that you hereforo did not necessarily know existed. Nor were you taught that these things, these abilities, these powers existed within you, except perhaps in very isolated circumstances. For perhaps you may have been taught that certain abilities existed within you, but that these teachings may have been cloaked in ritual and many other formats that did not necessarily allow you to understand the mechanisms of what you where being told, in a clear and concise manner. None of these ideas, in any way shape or form, is wrong. It is simply indicative of the evolution of your society and in no time, in no way, do we make any indication that what you have gone through is any less valid than anything any other society has experienced.

Our civilization to some degree still retains in its evolutionary process a connection to a type of physiological reality. In other words we are also physical beings communicating to you at this time through telepathic contact. In a sense however we are not physical like you are, neither in shape nor in dimensional experience. We have our own evolutionary process and we are moving from what you may call an accelerated level of physical reality to non-physical reality in our transformation. All civilizations go through transformation. You are not the only one and as has been said many times, by no means is your civilization lowest on a list of civilizations. The idea is simply that various civilizations will go through their own processes at their own pace in their own time. And in a sense, not meaning to be judgmental, no one really has any business comparing one civilization to another for their relative merit or degree of ability. Therefore simply take it to heart that whatever processes you have been going through in your lives and for many lifetimes, is simply the processes that were of your choosing. There is no such thing as wasted time, everything can be utilized in a positive way and there is absolutely nothing that you have ever discovered about yourself, nor will ever discover about yourself that cannot be applied in your lives in a positive way.
Therefore, once again, allow yourselves to understand that in these interactions this day of your time with regard to what you call, “learning self-empowerment,” we are not really teaching you anything new, we are not really reflecting to you things that you do not know, we are simply reminding you of things that for lack of a better term, you have forgotten. Reminding you of your innate connection to Creation, for as had been said also many times in your own way and in many different ways, you are created in the image of what you term God. To us your term God translates as All-That-Is, literally consciousness of existence itself, everywhere, anywhere, that you can imagine it to be. You are aspects, you are reflections, you are facets and fragments if you wish of All-That-Is. You are made in that image and therefore you as well, each and every individual one of you and all of you collectively are also multi-dimensional, multi-creative beings, just like the idea of what you call God. That is what it means to be made in that image, you are shall we say, a micro-cosmic version of the macro-cosmic reality. Each and every part of the Whole contains the information of the Whole.

Therefore you have at your disposal an unlimited source of information and energy which you can apply in your lives in way, shape or form you so desire and this is the key of what we shall be discussing this day of your time. The things that you desire, what they represent and the true ability you already have to create those things, to manifest those things, clearly and precisely in your lives. Again let us re-phrase for clarity’s sake the idea is to understand that the notion of self-empowerment and the tools that we will be sharing with you are not something that are really new. We will perhaps be re-phrasing things for the purpose of your contemporary language but these things have been known to your civilization since your civilization began its existence in physiological form. And therefore we simply are reminding you of what you already contain.
Q: Hello.
B: Hello!
Q: I was in Sedona for the Convergence . . .
B: Can you all hear? (AUD: No. No!)
Q: . . . and I ran into a guy over there that was out at the workshop, and he introduced me to the Tibetan Temple of Light. So they had a channeling in Sedona while I was there.
B: All right. Channeling in Sedona while he was there.
Q: I wonder if you would comment on something . . . I heard a concept on one of the transcripts I read at a channeling, that for a person that dies of a drug overdose, they have a kind of a psychic hospital for them between lives, because now they . . .
B: In a sense, yes, it is not quite as colloquial as has been stated. But there is a frequency, or a level of vibration where individuals who enter the non-physical state in what you would colloquially call “confusion” are assisted to refocus their energy.
Q: The idea was that they are there without a body, and they can’t get a fix . . .
B: Yes, correct.
Q: So they still have the same problem after they drop the body?
B: To some degree, that is why we have always said the idea is that the strongest belief and/or fear that you die with is usually where you will attract yourself to in the non-physical reality. And therefore, some of the same momentum may still need to be straightened out.

There is even the possibility – though not so much any more in your society – that individuals who have died do not even know they have died. That is what you typically used to call “hauntings.” They simply think they are still physically alive, because they did not know what to expect. And in that sense, were very rooted to the idea of remaining in their life physically. Eventually they are helped to realize, subtly, bit by bit, that they have in fact become non-physical – so that they can reorient themselves and choose what they prefer from that moment forward.
Q: Okay, thank you.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!
Q: Yes, hi.
B: Good day to you.
Q: You just talked to Tweedle-dum, so I must be Tweedle-dee.
B: All right.
Q: Uh, there’s a lot of fat between us. But I won’t discuss that – ahem! Last time I talked to you, or you talked to me – whatever the case is . . .
B: Yes.
Q: ... I said something and you made a comment, and when I was listening to the tape, I realized...
B: Yes.
Q: ... when we were discussing about teleportation, the tone level of myself had gone way down...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and my abilities got lowered after the teleportation. You kind of agreed with that, and I was curious what the implication of that is, or what it means?
B: The implication of agreeing with you?

Q: No. Yes! Wait a minute! Wait a minute. I didn’t look at it as you agreeing with me, I looked at it as you said – yes, I kind of got the idea that you said this is what usually happens.

B: Oh, nothing has to be. But as you define yourself, that defines your energy.
Q: Would you say that so I can understand it?

B: If you define that you are “going down,” if you define that you are somehow backing up or isolated, then your energy will appear to decline in its illusionary form, simply to represent the definition, to reflect to you the definition you are creating yourself to be at any given moment.
So if you feel the energy to be going down, then that is simply a reflection of how you are defining yourself; that you are, to some degree, removing yourself slightly, in your idea of yourself, from the overall flow of Infinite Creation – creating an isolation, a cut-off, that allows your meters to drop.
Q: Okay. Because I was kind of looking... it was more than just emotion, it was actually abilities, and awareness, and a number of things that all collapsed.
B: Yes. But it’s all connected; it’s all one thing, you see.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Only your society and a few others make the distinction truly between the colloquialisms that we use in your language of ability and emotion and thoughts and beliefs. It is all one thing; it is all one event; it is all one act. So in a sense, if any one part goes down, in that sense it all does.
Q: Okay. That makes sense to me, yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: It’s a big triangle. Okay.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Reorientation Levels and Interconnectedness
Q: Hello.
B: Hello!
Q: My big thing now days is fear.
B: Your big thing! Ooh! (AUD: laughs)
Q: Yes. (Laughing)
B: Fear. Fear. Fear. Fear. All right, fear.
Q: Yes.
B: (In a humorous voice) Fear. Feeaar. Feeeaar. (AUD: laughs)
Q: It sounds really funny right now!
B: Yes! Funny, funny fear; fear can be fun! FUN WITH FEAR! (AUD: lots of laughter)
Q: If it could be like this all the time, it would be great! There’s a lot of people around and...
B: It can be...
Q: ... I don’t hide it.
B: ... it can be like this... all the time!
Q: Well, when I’m by myself, like in the house...
B: Yes?
Q: ... my imagination gets really wild.
B: Good.
Q: And I get really scared.
B: Why?
Q: Because... it’s scary! (Laughing)
B: What is so scary about you?
Q: About me?
B: Yes, about you? It is the only thing you can fear. There is nothing outside yourself. You are it. You fill your universe – what is so scary about you?
Q: I’m not scary.
B: Then what are you afraid of?
Q: Burglars and people who might come into the house.
B: That is an extension of how you see yourself. Do you feel, in this way, that you need to be reminded that you are always abundant by having someone show you that when they take something away from you, you still have all you need?
Q: Well, I don’t care about them taking things... I don’t care... it’s the murder and stuff like that...

(Laughing)

B: All right.

Q: ... and dying.

B: All right. Why, in this way, do you feel the need to reinforce that idea? Why do you feel you need to experience it?

Q: I don’t know. That’s what I’ve been trying to think about for a long time. I’m having trouble with those fears... fears of those thoughts.

B: All right. Stand up!

Q: All right.

B: Now, what do you feel about the idea that you call your origins off this planet?

Q: What do I feel about it?

B: Yes.

Q: On this planet?

B: Your origins off this planet.

Q: How do I feel? I feel great about it.

B: Why?

Q: Because it’s very exciting.

B: Is this not exciting? Being scared all the time? (AUD: laughs)

Q: No, it’s not. (Laughing) Not to me.

B: You are not excited about it?

Q: No. I feel pain and fear.

B: Pain and fear. All right, anxiety, yes?

Q: Yes.

B: Which is the same energy as excitement, when judged to be negative. Now, allow me to remind you that when you are in a constant state of fear, you are not bored, are you?

Q: No, I’m sure not.

B: Then you are excited, or anxious, as you choose to call it.

Q: Yes, I’m very anxious.

B: What is, in your terms, more positively exciting about where you think you came from, than where you are now?

Q: Where I was from, there was no way your physical body could get scratched up.

B: No way at all?
Q: No.
B: None whatsoever?
Q: None whatsoever.
B: Now, you have just realized a connection with that you, there. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: That you, there, is also this you, here, if you choose to blend the two ideas. Why cannot this planet be that planet; this reality be that reality? Here you are – have you not brought your reality with you?
Q: I guess I didn’t.
B: It is here. It is here with you. It is in you. All you need to know is that if you can conceive of that idea of yourself as a potential which can exist here, then understand that even as you create that conception, then that is you, here – or you could not perceive it.
You have to be equally of the vibration of that which you are perceiving at the moment, or you could not perceive it. You are equal to it, right here and right now! Allowing yourself to be that you, here, will allow you to transform this reality into that reality. They will be the same reality. And then no one here will be able to scratch you either.
Q: I get your idea.
B: All right. That is a start.
Q: Yes.
B: Now, allow me to say, again, that it is simply a matter of what we term the habitual ritual. You simply have but to allow yourself to know that, in walking down your streets in this civilization that you call your planet Earth, it is the same as if you are walking down the street in the other civilization.
You are that civilization, here. You are its representative. You are that civilization. It is you. You are walking in that world and this world, simultaneously. Allowing yourself to know that it is all right to allow your fears to relax in the sense that, even if you create an interaction with another individual, by allowing yourself to know that that interaction is serving the purpose of reinforcing who you really know yourself to be, then the result will always match that reality. No matter how it starts, it will always wind up reflecting the reality that you know yourself to be. All right? Love it.
Q: Good. So, may I ask, why did you ask me to stand up?
B: So you can stand tall and have conviction! Conviction to know that as you stand, you see that you are only sharing; you are not being exposed. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: You may sit down again.
Q: Thank you.
B: Understand. Under-stand. The idea of understanding is supporting, standing under, supporting, of the idea. Allow yourself to know that you are understood; that the reality that you know yourself to be is understood by all the other individuals who can perceive you. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much for being that reflection of that reality in your world, at this time, for you are a portion of the blending and the sharing and the timing of the transformation, which is perfect.
Q: Thank you.

Representing a Positive Reality
REPTILIAN FREQUENCIES

Q: What frequency do the reptilians vibrate at in their reality?

B: They don’t actually vibrate at a frequency that is congruent with your reality, so to give you a frequency would not be an one to one correlation. If they were to project into your reality I could give you a correlation but it does not necessarily extrapolate directly or relate directly to the frequency scale we often use to represent your human frequency.

Q: Are they reptilians mostly autonomous or are they mostly servile?

B: It is an odd and unusual combination of the two. We can not really say ’mostly’, it is too blended to separate those concepts apart from one another in their society. They are autonomous and they are in many ways servile. It’s their nature, in that sense, yet they are autonomous within it–yet they are designed in a certain fashion. Their vibration relative to your reality would be somewhere between 11,000 and 37,000 cycles per second. But again, remember, that is not a direct relationship to the frequencies that we often give you–it is calculated in a different way that we will explain in a future date....
Questioner: I’d like to move in another area, if that’s okay?
Bashar: Do you wish us to part any seas for you?
Q: Yes, definitely.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: Are there Reptilians involved with the Galactic Federation?
B: No, not directly.
Q: Why not?
B: It is, in that sense, not who they are. It is, in that sense, not their vibration to be. They are not, in that sense, a cohesive civilization, as you would understand that, in the way that is representative of those that are in, what we call, the Association of Worlds. It is, in a sense, an attached civilization energetically, a limbic offshoot of the Grey civilization, genetically engineered and part of the collective consciousness of the Greys that represents their primal level. In that sense, they do not function as a cohesive civilization but as an appendage to another civilization. You follow?
Q: Yes that makes sense too. So basically, maybe ... I know this isn’t a very good way of wording this, but so they kinda almost didn’t evolve exactly as they were initially intended to evolve in?
B: Again, the idea is that they were one of the first genetic manipulations derived from, what you would call, the dinosaur DNA on your world; before the creation of the genetic manipulation of the hominid DNA that led to the human body.
Q: Yes, we discussed that.
B: Yes.
Q: All right, I have a couple more for you.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: You’ve said that your race of beings is a hybrid of us and the Greys, correct?
B: Generally, yes.
Q: Were you initially created, maybe not in the final results, but here on this planet?
B: Not so much, no. The idea being that most of our ancestors were finalized in their form in, what you would call, spacecraft ... not actually on your planet. Though again, genetic material was derived from your planet.
Q: Was it within our solar system?
B: Yes, sometimes, sometimes not.
Q: Initially, I mean right off the bat?
B: "Off the bat?"
Q: Right off the bat.
B: There were stations that were set up in your solar system for the initiation of the hybridization experimentations, yes. And, at the same time, on spacecraft that traveled out of your solar system as well, but not exactly on your planet, except in some rare instances where certain adjustments needed to be made and it was deemed necessary that they needed to be made within the planetary environment, within the planetary gravity, within the planetary atmosphere in order to give the genetic spin what it needed to have. But those are long over with, in your terms of time.
Q: Okay, Bashar...
B: Yes?
Q: ...are there any Anunnaki either here physically on earth or communicating telepathically with anyone here?
B: Not in their original form contemporarily, unless you are referring to the Greys as the devolved result of a certain branch of Anunnaki?
Q: Okay.
B: Did you understand that already?
Q: Yes some, but maybe another faction then?
B: A faction of the Anunnaki set up shop, if you will, on a planet and ultimately created catastrophes in their world that ultimately resulted in the devolution of themselves into the form you now understand as the Grey. So, in that sense, they are still, to some degree Anunnaki, though they now require the idea of the genetic material that they utilize to create the human body to begin with to reinforce their own race and create the hybrid species so that they can incarnationally continue. So, in that sense, I suppose, if you want to simply talk about it incarnationally, you and we together are also offshoots of Anunnaki.
Q: Yes, exactly.
B: At least to some degree, genetically.
Q: Are there any, maybe looking at it from a time traveling standpoint, although we know that there is no time really, linearly, but...
B: There is, if you create there to be time.
Q: If you create it, exactly. But are there any ones from, what we would perceive, from our past that are here now that have, say, jumped...?
B: From time to time they do peer in, yes. From to time to time they have participated in certain things, yes. It is not that common, from time to time this has been done, yes. It is not that common. Some of what individuals have called the large Nordics are, to some degree, representative of some of the ancient Anunnaki. You follow?
Q: Yes, I have heard you say that before.
B: Yes. Does that help you?
Q: One more question, please.
B: Oh. All right.
Q: Is there anything Bashar that you think that either I personally or people in general should not "remote view," because it could harm us or, you know, maybe we are not ready to see it?
B: We will leave that up to you and your own spontaneity and also to what you want to believe to be true.
Q: Well, I...
B: End of conversation!
Q: I think you already know what.
B: End of conversation! Number two.
Reptilians

Q: The reptilians: what DNA was used for their initial development?
Bashar: Many different forms of what you would call dinosauria.

Q: Not one particular species? Bashar: There were some strains more than others, such as that you would call the troodon and some of what you would call the raptors and so fourth, but it is also a blend and a mixture over many different generations of experimentation.

RJ: What vibrational frequency are the reptilians?
Bashar: —to be continued....
(End of conversation)
Q: Can you stick around a while?
Alpha Deyo: No.
Q: You have to go back?
Alpha Deyo: Yes, but not to first wave... go... go.
Q: Thank you for visiting. Thank you!
(Pause while Alpha Deyo disconnects and Bashar reconnects.)
B: We extend to each and every one of you our appreciation for the allowance of the opportunity for that being, of a moment of your time. It was a request of his for quite some time.
Q: Did he enjoy himself?
B: Yes. Shall we say that, in your language, he is, in some senses, beside himself. (Audience laughs and giggles)
Q: Can you give us an idea of why... why he came through? It was... well... it was challenging communicating, but we were doing our best.
B: It is the timing of what you would call the “dark moon.” And as we have said, there is an opportunity for things to be still, and in those doorways, things can be communicated that otherwise, then, would not be heard by others who may be listening. Do you understand this?
Q: Oh, I see. It was a risk?
B: In a sense, as you call it, yes, for him.
Q: We were ready.
Q: Where do they live?
B: Do you mean the three?
Q: Yes.
B: The three, in that sense, are in refuge.
Q: They seemed very lonely, didn’t they? He seemed lonely....
B: In their own concepts, in a sense, they are.
Q: So you can’t tell us where they live?
B: I cannot.
Q: Now, is he in jeopardy from the first wave?
B: Not in the sense that you would understand, in jeopardy. Only in the sense, of what you might call, an overwhelming urge to return.
Q: Will they be able to?
B: Be able to what?
Q: Return.
B: They do not want to.
Q: Oh.
B: But there is an overwhelming urge to do so. In a sense, there is a magnetic bandwidth that constantly calls all alike unto themselves. They are constantly, shall we say, fighting the urge.
Q: Sort of like humans. And in a sense, spending time with us, maybe, will help him?
B: By allowing him to actually experience more directly the vibration that he has already picked up on, to some degree telepathically, you have helped to reinforce that vibration to give them more opportunity to resist the urge, yes.
Q: Good, excellent. Is he resisting being with them because he is against the agenda of the Reptilians supporting the Greys?
B: It isn’t so much that you might be able to voice this as being for or against, in what you might call a political sense – it is simply an attempt to be true to the vibration he deems himself to be.
Q: And it is not about...
B: It is simply not of them.
Q: But isn’t their initial agenda creating you? I mean, isn’t that a major part of what is going on?
B: In some senses, yes. But there are many different factions involved, and many different kinds of things being done within the agenda that simply have nothing to do with his resonance.
Thus, it isn’t necessary that you must look at this in the same way that this would play out politically on your planet. There is no punishment involved here. There is simply the idea of resistance and the attempt to turn oneself more toward the vibration that one deems to be true for oneself. Thus, the assistance that is being given is simply helping to solidify that reality for the being.
Q: Just as the Greys can’t join the Association, by his turning toward you more, he is able to reach that frequency?
B: In some senses, yes.
Q: That’s more what we are experiencing?
B: In some senses, yes. And now there is another thing, also, for you to understand. Pay attention.
Again, as we give this to you, to some degree what we are telling you, from one slice, is linear, but do not assume that what we are about to tell you is the ONLY thing that is going on. If you assume that what we are about to tell you is the only thing that is going on, and the absolute end all, be all, of all the information that has to do with this, you would be making the same assumption as if I said to you: That people from England come from Europe, and by that you assume that only people from England are from Europe. And that only Europeans are from England. You understand?
AUD: Yes.

B: So keep that in mind when I tell you the following: In what you may call an ancient time, within what you would call the Lyran system, from there came those beings you understood to be the Anunnaki. Many of you already know this. And they, in many ways are, to some degree, involved in the genetic manipulation of those species that ultimately created the Reptilians from the Dinosaur stock. And your human species, as well as many others, from some of the indigenous stock on your planet. The idea being, in that sense, of course, that the Reptilian species, derived from that stock, were removed from your planet, whereas the human species was not. Due to various changes and shifts going on within the agendas of the politics, so to speak, just for now, euphemistically, of the Lyrans – of the Anunnaki, as you call them.

After the idea also, and during this time, to some degree, but after the idea of destruction from natural causes of the Lyran system, when there was the diaspora into other star systems – such as some of the Orion systems and the Pleiadian systems and so forth, of what you would call in the past, the Anunnaki – it can also be understood that certain factions of the Anunnaki, in arriving in the Orion systems, did continue the idea, aside from the ones that were isolated upon the Earth, of going in certain directions that ultimately led them to self-destructive ways.

In some of these factions that experienced these self-destructive ways within the ancient Lyran/Anunnaki systems, you would find that the destruction they caused upon themselves is what ultimately allowed them to become what you understand them to be today, this faction called the Greys.

In that sense, therefore, the Greys and the Reptilians are still cohesive, in that the Greys, as the ancient Anunnaki, created them. And the Greys and you are still cohesive in that, as the ancient Anunnaki, they created you.

In that sense, they are trying to gain back what they lost, in that sense, as the ancient Anunnaki. To render themselves, to some degree, into that state again by utilizing the genetics that they have already placed within you, based on their own original genetic patterns, which makes you compatible. Thus, they are attempting, in the creation of the hybrid races, such as our own, to regain the idea incarnationally of what might be in their eyes, considered to be some of their former level of status and/or glory. But this is only one faction, in that sense.

Some of what some individuals, in some of the abduction scenarios, have recognized as tall muscular Nordic types, are actually some template re-creations of the idea of the ancient Anunnaki body, in what your ancient people referred to as the Gods, in that sense, of great stature and build. But these are not, in any way shape or form, the idea of what you would call absolutely sentient beings with free thought. They are, to some degree, the idea of puppet templates, to allow them some idea of creating certain genetic resonate patterns that would help them fulfill their particular agenda in that level. Regaining whatever it is that it is possible for them to regain, though it will never be exactly the same.

This it is given to us now, at this time, to give to you. And we have done so. But again, remember that this is a description of one slice of linear reality. It is not the whole story.
Q: This template... now, this is a physical thing that is collecting genetic material, right?
B: Yes. Though it is translating from dimension to dimension, nevertheless, there are aspects and timings when this is an absolute physiological interaction.
Q: Okay, because I definitely feel some physiological pain.
B: Yes.
Q: That’s for sure.
B: Yes.
Q: And is this something that has happened to me before?
B: Do you mean in this lifetime?
Q: Yes.
B: Yes, several times.
Q: Okay, so I may...
B: The agenda begins before birth.
Q: Right, you know it is funny. I had regression, and I saw myself in that in-between place. I mean, it’s very difficult to... since it was my first hypnotic regression, to really totally trust her, but I saw a very hazy, almost a council-like setup, where I was talking to someone and I had someone by my side who had very much like a bedside manner, like a doctor. I thought he was a brave and it was almost like we were presenting our package to the council or something. I mean, everything in the regression seemed so unreal to me because it was my first one. I don’t know if this particular entity and I have had an agreement, or if we agreed to interact in this lifetime?
B: Yes.
Q: Yeah, so it’s bizarre on how I get those pictures. I almost don’t want to trust them because they seem so dim, you know.
B: Yes. But there will come a time of unfoldment when many of these things will become clearer in your memory.
Q: All right, so this template isn’t going to stay forever, right? It’s going to be removed with some genetic material, such as eggs or...
B: The template, in a sense, will not remain forever, only in a sense that it will ultimately become absorbed in your new path.
Q: Oh, so it will dissolve then, in its own way?
B: In a manner of speaking.
Q: In terms of the physical...
B: As you become more of the idea of that energy, it will no longer be recognized as foreign to you, and thus, it will no longer be found as different.
Q: Ah, so it sort of “re-geneticized” me, its own way?

B: In some sense, but according to your own agenda as well. In that sense, it could be said simply to be, quote/unquote, forcing you to be yourself.

Q: If I were more myself...

B: You can be much more yourself.

Q: Yeah, I know I can. It is just that sometimes I get the sense that I am rather shocked at the way I behave anyway, because I may seem a little selfish doing whatever I want to do and according to them, being considerate...

B: Remember the template is hearing everything you are saying. One moment...

The being that you spoke to a few moments ago has, to some degree, been paying attention to some of this conversation, and has, to some degree, also been paying attention to some of the conversation prior to the communication that you had. The being has decided to aid and assist itself in, shall we say, honing in a little bit more on your human vibration and has decided to change its own name. It has accepted, by listening to all of you, and understanding what we have been feeding it about the idea of human culture and the beginnings of what you understand your civilization to be, to take upon itself the appellation Alpha Deyo.

Q: I like that.

B: The being thanks you now for your assistance in the selection of a new name.

Reptilians Speak – Alpha Deyo and Commentary

Q: Can you stick around a while?
Alpha Deyo: No.
Q: You have to go back?
Alpha Deyo: Yes, but not to first wave...GO_.GO.
Q: Thank you for visiting; Q: Thank you! PAUSE...

Q: Okay, So I may . . .
B: The agenda begins before birth.
Q: Right, you know it is funny I had a regression and I saw myself in that in-between place . . . I mean, it’s very difficult to . . . since it was my first hypnotic regression, to really totally trust her, but I saw very hazy, almost a council like setup where I was talking to someone and I had someone by my side who was very much like a bedside manner, like a doctor. I though he was a brave and it was almost like we were presenting our package to the council or something. I mean everything in a regression seemed so unreal to me because it was my first one. I don’t know if this particular entity and I have had an agreement or if we agreed to interacted in this lifetime?
B: Yes.
Q: Yeah, so it’s bazaar on how I get those pictures, I almost don’t want to trust them because them seem so dim, you know.
B: Yes. But there will come a time of unfoldment when many of these thing will become clearer in your memory.
Q: All right, so this template isn’t going to stay forever, right? It’s going to be removed with some genetic material, such as eggs or . . .
B: The template, in a sense, will not remain forever, only in a sense that it will ultimately become absorbed in your new path.
Q: Oh, so it will dissolve then in its own way?
B: In a manner of speaking.
Q: In terms of the physical . . .
B: As you become more of the idea of that energy it will no longer be recognized as foreign to you, and thus, it will no longer be found as different.
Q: Ah, so it sort of re-genetisied me its own way?
B: In some sense, but according to your own agenda as well. In that sense it could be said simply to be, quote/unquote, quote/unquote forcing you t be yourself.
Q: If I were more myself...

B: You can be much more yourself.

Q: Yeah, I know I can. It is just sometimes I get the sense that I am rather shocked at the way I behave anyway because I may seem a little selfish doing whatever I want to do and according to them being considerate.

B: Remember the template is hearing everything you are saying. One moment...

The being that you spoke to a few moments ago has to some degree been paying attention to some of this conversation and has to some degree also been paying attention to some of the conversation prior to the communication that you had. The being has decided to aid and assist itself in, shall we say, honing in a little bit more on your human vibration and has decided to change it own name. It has accepted by listening to all of you and understanding what we have been feeding it about the idea of human culture and the beginnings of what you understand your civilization to be to take upon itself the appellation Alpha Deyo.

Q: I like that.

B: The being thanks you now for your assistance in the selection of a new name.
Resolving Contradictions

B: Male!
Q: Yes. It’s interesting what you said about the timing. Very perceptive of you, by the way.
B: And you as well. For we co-create this event together.
Q: When you were making your opening remarks about purpose, self-created purpose, and individual purpose and intention, as having dominion over the events in your life...
B: Yes.
Q: This reminded me of the saying. “God is simple; man is complex.”
B: All right.
Q: And what I mean by that, and how this brings me to the question, is that I find for myself, and for many other people, that the spiritual questions right now are not so much the ones of deeper knowing or understanding, but the simplicity of... the greater simplicity of the intricate complexities in making those realizations work in material circumstances.
B: Yes.
Q: And that... I’ll use myself as an illustration.
B: Oh, please do.
Q: Now, I was never one who had to do much to fight through the limiting belief systems of this culture. I was empowered as a child;
I was taught exactly the kind of things, as a child, that are now considered higher consciousness.
I don’t think I’ve ever lived with any discernible fears. And yet, while it’s very clear to me about what I feel are the things for me to do in my life...
B: Yes.
Q: ...I can continue to see a large gap between the outer reality and the inner knowing, including the knowing that I’m the author of the outer reality. I continue to see these apparently frustrating circumstances.
The usual answer given to this kind of thing is the scapegoat answer, the catch-all answer: “Well somewhere in your sub-conscious” – meaning you can’t know about it – “you’re doing something to get in the way of it.” Which just seems to be what has been done throughout history with religion.
B: Yes.
Q: Wherever we didn’t have knowledge, it’s God or the devil.
B: Yes.
Q: So now we’re in the psychological age, so it’s your subconscious...
B: Now it’s your subconscious, yes.
Q: And to me, that just becomes another dogmatic belief system.
B: Yes.
Q: So I am continually perplexed – but never defeated, and never cynical or skeptical – about why it is that the relentless clarity about where I want to go and where I see myself going – that vision tends to push its attainment further away.
B: All right.
Q: So it’s a continuing receding horizon, and the present reality is contradictory…
B: Oh, all right. Very good.
AUD: Beautifully said. Yes. Yah.
B: First of all, from our point of view, in allowing – allowing, allowing, allowing! Not making, not forcing anything to work, but allowing the reality you desire to work – is to recognize that it is, first and foremost, an allowance and not a making. Have we got that?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. In this way, therefore, the first step, shall we say, always has been and still is, to let whatever it is that does happen in your life – whatever seems to be the apparent reality, as you have said – to be what needs to be there, at least for that moment. If it is there, regardless of why it is there, it still is there for a reason. And can be considered – no matter on what level it comes from – to be there for a reason that will benefit your acceleration towards the state you wish to exist within.
So first and foremost: allow yourself to not necessarily do the things in your life – that perhaps you don’t prefer – to be something that appears to be standing in your way. Let what is there, even if you don’t prefer it, be there for a reason… for the reason of getting you to what you do prefer, first of all.
If you attempt to get rid of anything in your life, you will very quickly find that there is nowhere to get rid of anything to. Because there is no outside. You are the complete universe of your experience. Attempting to push something away that you do not prefer is an invalidation of that immediate present reality; and the only place you can push it up against is the immediate wall of the universe you have created.
The harder you try to push it away, the more energy you actually give it to spring back, because it has nowhere to go. And so it may generate what appears to be the repetitive cycle of negativity, in that way, which appears to keep you from what it is you truly feel like you want to be.
Now: is any of this making sense so far?
Q: Oh, yes, but let me, if I may, clarify one thing.
B: All right.
Q: Are you saying that perhaps formal practices, such as meditations, affirmations, visualizations, can be overdone so that you are not increasing the thing that you’re focusing on – the reality that you seek to create – but that you are somehow implicitly expressing too much resistance to your present reality?
B: Yes.
Q: And that if you lighten up on some of your personal...
B: Yes! Then you will be enlightened. That is all enlightenment really is: lightening up, allowing the balance to exist in a natural way. A natural pace, a natural timing.
Q: Mhmm.
B: You may find that the individuals that – in your terminology, which I will now use – “over do” the meditation idea are very similar to individuals that are overly concerned with their health – and thus bring on disease.
Because the idea of expressing an over-concern with health is actually a strong belief that disease can get you. And thus that’s what manifests. So in the same way, the belief that you really, really need an overage of that meditative state is, in and of itself perhaps, a reflection of the belief that: if you truly need that much, then perhaps this idea – this life, this reality you don’t prefer – really is more powerful than anything you do prefer – if you have to really meditate that hard on it. And that is what gets reinforced.
Your actions, many times, can reinforce the true belief – which is not subconscious, it is right on the surface, because your actions are very apparent in a general sense – that if you have to really work at it that hard, you are saying implicitly that what you don’t prefer is more likely – is more probable – to be the reality you experience, than what it is you do prefer.
Q: I think there may have been some breakdown in communication, or I may have given you the wrong idea. Amongst most of the people I know who do one or many of all these kinds of things that I do, or have done, I’m probably seen as being a little on the sloppy side and not focused enough. I tend to go at it a little get loosely (–?) consistently.
B: All right.
Q: (~?) think that’s my tendency.
B: Let’s take another tack.
Q: Yah.
B: What is it in life that excites you the most, that you do want to do – that you believe you are not doing now?
Q: One thing only? Or can I...
B: Whatever excites you the most.
Q: I want a creative career, specifically as an actor.
B: All right.
Q: I want to travel. I want a certain quality of relationships, finances; and I want to be able to contribute to the healing of the planet and stave off some of the brutalities we visit upon our fellows.
B: All right.
Q: And basically... and there are some health considerations as well.
B: All right.
Q: Seeing clarification or change in those areas – all that would be very exciting.
B: All right. Do you actually consider each and every one of these things you have talked about to be distinctly separate things, or can you begin to understand them as one thing?
Q: Oh, I’m sure fundamentally it’s all connected.
B: Connected still implies separation.
Q: Well, let’s say there’s unity in diversity.
B: Yes, there is.
Q: There is identity, with distinctive individuality within the identity.
B: Yes, there is. But how reliant is any one of these things on the creation of any one other of these things?
Q: Are you saying that one will give rise simultaneously to the other?
B: Yes. And the idea, therefore, is that perhaps there may be within you the idea of believing that so many things – so many differentiated things – have to happen all at once, that perhaps it may seem like too much to ask for.
Q: Oh, I’ve never limited what I thought I was entitled to.
B: All right. Then can you recognize this idea? The universe does not do extraneous and pointless things, and always flawlessly – flawlessly! – supplies you with what you truly believe you need at any given moment.
Q: You see, there’s the place where I’m on the horns of a dilemma. That feels – seems, is, has – revealed itself to be true to me. It is my fundamental take on the way things all work.
B: All right.
Q: And yet I continue to see this nagging static, this apparent contradiction in (–?) circumstances . . .
B: All right.
Q: . . . which has a nasty way of seeming very real, even though I know that it’s some sort of . . .
B: Oh, it is real: everything is real. Everything is real. However, simply yes or no. Do you recognize that the universe always supplies you with what you truly believe you need? Yes or no?
Q: My most complete answer . . .
B: Yes or no?
Q: . . . is yes and no.
B: Yes or no? One idea, or another idea.
Q: In my inner knowing the answer is yes; in my outer experience the evidence tests that inner knowing by appearing to run counter to it.
B: Here we go with evidence again.
Q: Can you see what I am saying?
B: Yes, but drop the evidence. I am asking you the question as a whole being; answer it as a whole being, remembering that if you do choose to say yes and no, that that is a distinct and separate reality from either yes or no. The reality of yes and no may be the reality you are creating.
Q: May I be permitted to answer?
B: Of course.
Q: A man of wisdom – it was either Neils Borner (?) or Werner Heisenberg – said “the opposite of a lesser truth is an error; the opposite of a greater truth is often equally true.”
So that then we’re getting to the nub of the paradox, the turning point of life.
B: Yes.
Q: And this question of the total rightness and total perfect response of creating is: all circumstances versus the contradictory stew that human beings in this level are working with... this is one of those fundamental paradoxes where both sides of the question seem to be true.
B: Yes.
Q: Now maybe there’s a false seeming, or maybe there’s a way in which a mutually exclusive paradox are really both simultaneously true.
B: Oh, they are. Oh, they are. “The” truth is composed of all truths; there is no one background reality against which to measure any other reality for its level of validity. For the idea, perhaps therefore, I will restate as follows. Answer in the way you would prefer to be true.
Q: Oh, that’s easy.
B: And the answer is?
Q: Yes!
B: Thank you. Now: whether it seems at this moment or not to be any different, trust that by having answered that way, it is now different. You are now different; you are now not the you, you were, moments ago. You are now the you that truly knows you prefer the answer to be “yes.”
And therefore that is now your reality. All you have to do – all that is necessary now – is the very simple idea of truly recognizing the following in a conscious way. That now that you have made the choice to prefer that the answer be yes, that you act like you believe it.
Q: That’s just me; that’s the way I’ve always been.
B: Then all that is left is trust – 100% trust.
Q: Yeah, I think there may be about 95, but I’m working on 100. I appreciate the . . .
B: All right now. Do understand that you are, of course, always in 100% trust in whatever idea you are experiencing. That is why it is simply the necessary idea to understand the definition you prefer, and then put the 100% of trust into that definition.
Q: Mhmm... may I ask something very brief?
B: Of course.
Q: Could you, at some point – now or later, whenever you like – explain why it is that there is this characteristic exaggerated inflection pattern, where some words are given unusual emphasis or elongation, like actua-aal-ity, or things...
B: In our communication?
Q: Yes.
B: The idea is that we are not speaking your language. We are, in a sense, identifying with the vibrational pattern of the consciousness of the physiological channel. And the appropriate translations are being activated; they are being activated in a way that represents the energy intention. And therefore, the way you may be perceiving the vocalization is that you perceive not only the word but also the underlining of the intention on many different levels.
What may sound like the patterns of inflection and the variations in pitch are representative in many ways of different levels of communicating going on, that you may not be consciously aware of between us. There are modulations of energy that are reaching you in many fundamental ways, let us say, outside the threshold of your mentality. You follow me?
Q: Yes. So you’re saying these vocal modulations are intentions derived from that level of intention that’s using the memory banks and motor faculties of the channel...
B: And they are representative of many levels upon which this conversation is taking place, some of which you may be consciously aware of and some of which you may not be.
Q: But the most interesting idea was that those physical vocal modulations are producing, perhaps, unseen or unknown conscious changes on a...
B: Yes.
Q: ...vibrational, psychic or...
B: Opening doorways, but only those you choose to open yourselves. Nothing is being forced into you.
Q: Interesting.
B: At this timing we will thank you for you sharing...and you may all take a short break.
Resonance and Manifestation

Q: When I came to the United States I was attracted to radiation, that is, radio frequency generators, vibrational rates.

B: Yes.

Q: And I always wondered if that was more than a coincidence?

B: More than a coincidence, in what sense? In that you were attracted to it, is that what you mean?

Q: Yes.

B: Well, of course. Obviously, you are very aware, as anyone is who is exploring the concept of spirituality and the blending of materiality, that everything is vibration. And so most of you will begin to find there are ways in which you wish to express concepts of a purer knowledge and a recognition of vibration; be it music, be it you, be it art, whatever it may be, be it science, be it technology.

More and more you will find, as your age continues, as your time on earth now in this lifetime continues, that you will have a tendency to express all things more in terms of its pure vibratory resonance. Even your medicines will move in this direction, many things, even your construction and architectural techniques will start to move, once again, towards the understanding of pure resonance and pure vibration and ratio relationship of these chords of harmonics in order to create things in a very effortless way.

The idea of healing, even, is the creation of a resonance field, like a universal bubble reality, in which you allow the person to be healed to immerse themselves, and to pick up on the potentiality of the vibrational resonances – that bubble reality that represents their natural zero rest point frequency. They even take their cue from that bubble vibration and choose to match that frequency if they so desire and, in so doing, allow themselves to heal themselves by going back to their zero rest point.

There will come a time when you will, in your society, in the not too distant future, in the next twenty to twenty-five years on the outside – on the outside, perhaps sooner, your acceleration is geometric and logarithmic – there will come a time when you will understand vibrational resonance to such a degree that you will have sound, correct resonant notes, so that when you play them, either through a vocal channel or even on a musical instrument or just in either radio or frequency machinery, will create the ideal idealized format for a concept.

And when you, thus, have certain ingredients and elements, basic raw materials enveloped by that field, that field will represent the concept so purely that those element and materials will have no choice but to simply automatically move together and create an object or a reality or a condition, immediately, that is representative of that vibrational reality template that you have set up. This will begin to happen in the next quarter century on your planet.

Q: Is this a common stage of evolution you have monitored over thousands of years?

B: Similar, yes. You will be able to replicate any idea, you will be able to build any idea, formulate any ideas. It will be at first on a relatively limited field basis, but the concept will be intact. You will be able to replicate any idea whatsoever, any material whatsoever, apparently out of thin air. But what you are really doing is converting the electromagnetheric energy directly into the appropriate crystalline pattern, because of the resonant template that you set up.

Q: Is there a possibility that this has been done on this planet before?
B: Yes, it has.
Q: Is it Egyptian?
B: Well, in very, very ancient Egypt, before it was known as Egypt, yes. It came from Atlantean times. There were some extraterrestrials admixtures, or accessing of universal knowledge that took place on the part of many individuals on your planet in many different civilizational times. But yes, much of this has already been experienced on your planet and you are now in all things remembering and rediscovering and reawakening to things that you once had.

RESONANCE IDENTIFICATION / REMOTE VIEWING

Q: Hello Bashar, my question is in regard to remote viewing.
B: Yes.
Q: Could you describe in detail how remote viewing works?
B: Did I not just do that a moment ago?
Q: Not to my satisfaction, no.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: Also, can you tell me if remote viewing will eventually or shortly evolve to be used effectively without the use of the written protocols?
B: Second question first ... yes ... all right?
Q: Shortly, I see, within the next two decades?
B: Oh, absolutely, yes.
Q: Okay.
B: And also, of course, do understand that there are individuals on your planet now, and have been individuals in your past, that instinctively understand remote viewing and do not need any kind of protocol; they simply go right into it.
Q: Okay. It will also still be termed remote viewing as opposed to the protocols designed by the US military?
B: Ultimately, the idea will, again, more simply be understood as viewing, as again, identification, as junctioning. There will be many different ideas that all say the same thing, and again, to go into a little bit more detailed explanation, there is a paradox to this. The paradox is that the reason remote viewing works is because there’s no such thing as anything that’s actually remote ... everything is one, everything is here, everything is now. The idea, holographically, is that, if you can, as we had said a moment ago, junction or identify with a particular frequency that is representative of a place, time, person or what have you, since everything is based on frequency of energy, even location, you can then understand that that location, in essence, not to confuse your language, is not over there but here, just like everything is.
And so, by identifying with it, you allow yourself to some degree to participate in it here, because it is here. You allow yourself to experience that location within yourself. It is not actually remote viewing, it is viewing from another angle, here and now, by identifying with it so strongly, by picking up on the correct frequency so accurately, that you call forth from the collective now that particular angle, that particular perspective, that particular experience; and can then re-project it as if it were actually over there, but you know it really is not. That’s a little bit more of an explanation, does that make sense to you so far?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Does that help illuminate the idea a little bit more clearly for you then?
Q: More so today, than yesterday.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: Also...
B: Is there any other aspect of this you wish further clarification of?
Q: Could you just tell us a few remote viewers from our past, name a few names, that were actually remote viewing, as we know it today?
B: Jesus, Buddha, Krishna, Wohoca, many, many others that you would call Ascended Masters. Even many indigenous people naturally can, in your terms, remote view, what you call Shamans. Sometimes it is very natural for many children to do this instinctively, because they have not yet been taught not to, because they instinctively know everything is here and now and one. Everything, in that sense, is real to them, therefore, it’s very natural for them. You will find, if you will take the time, I’m not saying you have to do this, but if you will generically take the time, any of you, to do your research, you will find constantly that your adults are, shall we say, knocking down the idea of what children say they see, of what they experience that are, in your terms, at a distance. Also, any individual under certain circumstances and conditions, such as that which requires great overwhelming need or desire, will instantaneously, spontaneously remote view. Such as cases where you know a mother instantaneously knows that her child is in danger, many miles away. You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: These kinds of things are simply trigger mechanisms, these states of being are simply trigger mechanisms that allow you, in a sense, to get out of your way, in terms of creating the reflective structure of physical reality illusion, and allow yourself to collapse that whole thing into the true here and now – and simply see and experience only that aspect in totality that is germane to the frequency you happen to be on at that moment. This is the very fundamental underpinnings of all such things as telepathy, remote viewing, psychic functioning, what have you. It’s all basically stemming from the same thing, and that is, "resonance identification," because space and time are just concepts that are only different by the frequency they exhibit.
Location is not really "over there," location is a frequency idea. An object doesn’t actually exist in a particular location literally; location is one of the properties of the object, one of the properties of the equation, the vibrational equation that you translate, in physical reality terms, as an object over there. But that’s just an equational projection, in the same way that you have a reflection in a glass mirror. You know, in a sense, the reflection is not really "over there," because the reason you see it is because all the light is coming back to you, "here." It’s not really over there, there’s nothing in the mirror. The mirror holds on to none of the light, and that’s why you see the reflection, which is actually here. Make sense?

Q: Yes, it does.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Resonance of the Land
Canoga Park, CA
10-10-97

All right I’ll say good day to you this day of your time, how are you all? Once again, we will extend, to each and everyone of you, our deep appreciation in allowing this transmission to occur in this particular manner and on this particular day. Once again, each and every time your civilization allows this communication to occur in this way, it affords our civilization an opportunity to experience expanded reality by experiencing the unique perspectives that are demonstrated by each and every one of you. So we thank you for this gift of expansion and this gift of sharing.

We would like to begin this transmission, this communication, this day of your time with the following idea that we would like to call: "Resonance of the Land." Now that there are greater and greater opportunities for acceleration in your lives, greater and greater opportunities for expansion at this time of change on your planet, now that your collective mass-conscious reality is beginning to allow there to be more momentum in the direction of the reality you prefer, in other words, more opportunity to choose and manifest the individual personal realities that each and every one of you say you prefer. Now that this is more available to each and everyone of you, because of the inertia, because of the momentum of the mass-consensus reality, you must now understand that to some degree, as we have said before, there are places on your planet, spots, locations, that are also going to increase in their frequency, in their vibration and going to tune their frequency to specific levels that are representative of being more conducive and more conducive, by being in those areas, to allowing your energy to merge with the energy of the location. Your resonance frequency to merge and harmonize with the resonance frequency now in the location that is stepping up, and by putting yourself in the location that magnetizes you, that you are most strongly attracted to, you can then, by being there, amplify your ability to manifest what it is you prefer. You can accelerate your ability by taking advantage of the accelerative energy in any given spot you are magnetically attracted to.

This is now, more important than ever, the time for each and every one of you to allow yourself to know that as part of the picture of what you call your ideal reality, your ideal life, that the location must be included. As we have talked about from time to time, location is not really a place in which you exist. Location is a part of the equation of who and what you are, who and what an object is. It is part of the variable, the equation, the vibrational frequency equation of an object, person, place or thing, in that sense.

Location is not really separate from who and what you are in any given moment because space and time are really your projections, your illusions. Space and time actually simply exist within your consciousness and you project it, in a sense, appearing around yourself, and making it seem as if you exist in a location. But location is actually within you, not you within it. So, location is an important part of the equation of what you deem yourself to be, of what you identify and define yourself to be. So if you are not in a location that is conducive to your energy, or conversely, if you are in a location that is specifically not conducive to your preference, to your energy, to who you know yourself to be, you are going to be, in some senses, creating a countermanding frequency, a countermanding resonance.

It is more important that ever to understand that location is a part of the definition of who you are. And if you find yourself being attracted to a particular place on your planet, there is a reason for it. By allowing yourself to flow with that attraction, by aligning with that place, and not talking yourself out of being there, you will then give yourself an opportunity to see how much farther, how much faster you can go by compounding and amplifying and magnifying all the frequencies on your planet and in your reality that are representative of the frequency of your preference. To remain out of that place that represents your highest joy, your highest energy, your greatest creativity, your strongest attraction, to keep yourself away from that is, in some senses, a denial of a part of who and what you are. Now, of course, again, as with everything that contains your highest excitement in that direction, sometimes just as things do, just as situations do, places will attract you to begin with, but then in that sense, may lose their attraction.

Remember that you always have to act on your highest excitement without any expectations. You always must allow yourself to move in the direction of your highest joy but without the expectation that it must come to some specific fruition. Because sometimes, a place, a circumstance will attract you, like no other, only to get you moving. Not because you’re supposed to remain there or continue to do that thing, but only to get you moving because sometimes so many of you have been trained to fragment your consciousness in such a way that you don’t allow yourself to really know what it is, that, in some senses, might be best for you, and so, you will in effect, trick yourself by putting a lot of excitement and energy in a certain direction, on a certain thing, making it very specific, just so that it will lure you, magnetize you, in that direction. Not because that is the thing that you need to wind up doing for the rest of your life. But only because that is the direction in which you need to move to put you in the right place and time, perhaps, for something else that will then come along. Very often it is, perhaps, difficult for you to tell the difference, at first, but the point is that you don’t have to know the difference as long as you are following your highest excitement at any given moment. No matter what it is that contains it, you can rest assured that if you enter it and act on it without expectation then you will be in the proper state of mind to receive whatever else might come along that will be representative of a change in the direction of your excitement, when and if, that should occur.

The idea, therefore, now more than ever, even including the idea of place, is to at least to the best of your ability, when some place, like something or some situation might attract you more strongly that any other, allow yourself at least the benefit, the opportunity to explore, taking some action in the direction of going there. However that may pan out in your reality, however that may be making itself available to you without the assumption that you have to necessarily stay there, and simply by doing the best you can to move in the direction of your excitement, no matter in what form it may come. You will then see, if you hold on to the idea of zero expectation, that it will be a flow and you will move and things and circumstances and opportunities will arrange themselves to make it easy for you to create it to be the path of least resistance for you, to show you how your life can be an explosion of synchronicity, when and where you may least expect it. That your life can become a continuous series of surprises, and in that momentum, you will find the stability and the security and the happiness and the safety that you actually require, rather than in remaining, rather than in refusing to move, rather than in being, shall we say stubborn about the idea of your reality as it beckons to you.

Allow yourself to understand that true security is motion, is change, otherwise it becomes static and stagnant. And in this day and age on your planet all things are, if nothing else, about change. It is the spin of the dice as you say in your world, it is the opportunity to see where things may fall, but the only way you are really going to find out, what it is that you are all about is to move into the unknown, embrace the unknown and expect that you actually exist in that unknown. And place plays a part just like anything else. So allow yourself to be magnetized, allow yourself to explore the idea of what place on your planet has attracted you, or may come up to attract you, without assumption, without expectation. And don’t get in your way, don’t put conditions on yourself: "I can’t move there because," "I can’t explore this because." Allow yourself to see what you can do about it. You may be surprised if you are simply willing to be open, how many actions you can take in that direction, and if you do it without expectation you won’t have to put these conditions on yourself as to what is supposed to happen and not supposed to happen before you believe you have the ability to do things you always had the ability to do, if you would only get out of your own way and rearrange your own definitions to see that you are quite a bit more capable of creating the reality you prefer than you may have thought you were.

That is all we suggest, that you give it a chance, that you give yourself a chance to recognize place as a part of the equation of who it is you define yourself to be, rather than simply an arbitrary place in which to do things and live your life. It is you, place is you, just like any part of reality is you because you are the creator. You are the reflection of the infinite and each and every one of you as a piece of the infinite is nevertheless the whole expressing itself and experiencing itself as a part of the whole. That’s the holographic definition.

What also can make this, perhaps, easier for you is to remember that holographically speaking, every thing and every where and every when is actually, simply, here and now. So even when you find yourself attracted to go someplace else, other than where you may be, that someplace else is still, fundamentally, here, and in that sense, you are not really going anywhere. Your allowing place to move through you, rather than you really moving through time and space. It’s all here, its all now. So do not be afraid to follow that attraction because all you’re doing is going to another here and now, you’re not really going that far, and besides from our perspective anyplace on your planet is as you say a hop, skip and a jump away.

So, we thank you for allowing us to remind you of these ideas, to share them with you, to reflect them to you. And again, we also remind you that the choice is up to you, we are not here to live your lives, but only to suggest and reflect what can work for you, if you will be willing to discover, more and more every day and every way, who and what you actually are and were created to be.

At this timing in return for the gift that you are giving to our civilization in allowing us to experience each and everyone of you I ask in return in what way now may I be of service to you?
Q: Bashar!
B: What? You, good day....
All right I’ll say good day to you this day of your time, how are you all? Once again we extend to you, first of all our deep appreciation for allowing this communication to occur in this way. Once again, each and every time your civilization allows this communicated link to be created between our respected worlds it affords us an opportunity to experience an expansion of creation by being allowed to interact with each and everyone of you and the unique perspective of the infinite that each and everyone of you represents. So we thank you for this expansive gift of sharing and we would like to begin this transmission this day of your time with the following idea that we would like to call “respecting your choices”.

We have over the time that we have been communicating with your world listened to many of you talking about the choices that you have made in certain circumstances that bring about certain kinds of consequences and we hear from time to time many of you bemoaning the choices that you have made, bemoaning the consequences that arise from those choices. In the following manner usually: ‘Oh I’ve made a bad choice. Now I have something that I don’t want. This is wrong, this is bad this is not going to get me where I want to be’ and so on and other variations of that idea and that theme. But please understand that when you do not respect the choices that you make no matter what they are, then you are not respecting yourself, for the choices are intimately bonded to who you are at that moment and are the result of who you know yourself to be at that moment. They are at that moment, for all intents and purposes, the best that you can do, the best that you know how to choose, and thus you must respect them if you are to respect yourself. And by disrespecting the choices that you make, by assuming that the choices that you make are bad or wrong then you are in some sense judging yourself, finding yourself lacking, coming up short, being yourself bad or wrong and not giving yourself the due respect that would allow you to understand how to extracted from the consequences of any choice the information and the experience that you need in order to create what it is you prefer.

Now again, let me remind you, let us listen to that word—prefer. You can recognize that the consequence of a particular choice may not be what you prefer but that doesn’t mean that the choice and the consequence was bad or wrong just because it may not have resulted in what you prefer. The idea, again, is that when many of you talk about certain choices and there consequences being bad or wrong, and thus are disrespecting yourself, you are also making the assumption that the circumstance that has resulted from the choice that you have made is somehow incapable of connecting you to what you want—and this is not true. Every single choice you make and every single consequence that results from that choice has equal capability with and other choice and consequence of still connecting you to what you prefer. But you will not see that it does, you will not experience that it has the ability to make that bridge for you to what you prefer if you devalue it and disrespected it in the way that many of you have been taught to do.

Again, this simply comes down to, once again, that if you are not of the vibration you will not see the things that are germane to the reality that goes hand in hand with that vibrational frequency. So when you devalue the choice that you have made, when you disrespected it, when you say it is no good then you are actually robbing yourself, in a sense, of the ability to see how that choice might contain the doorway, the link, the bridge to what it is you do prefer. You are simply removing its value to you and saying that it has absolutely no capacity whatsoever to open up a doorway in a direction that you prefer. But all choices are connected to all other choices, all consequences, all circumstances and all situations are connected to all others. Why? We have talked about this many times, the answer is because all circumstances are hear and now. There is no such thing as, in a sense, over there or back then. Those are illusions of your physical reality. They are as real as you want to put stock in them to be, but the idea really is, is that all situations are the same situation from a different point of view.

Remember, many of you when you see someone else that you deem to be having what you prefer, deem to be successful they have their own doorway that they have walked through in order to manifest what they have manifested as a result of the choices that they have made, and many of you assume that what you want is their doorway, but you don’t want their doorway, you want your doorway. Because only by walking through your doorway, the one patterned after you with your name on it will you be capable of then creating, or attracting, or manifesting your version of that so called success. Your version of that so called manifestation, if you attempt to use their doorway it will not work because their doorway is tailored to them. Now, here again, is the secret—their doorway and your doorway are the same doorway. The same doorway, not the same kind of doorway, the same doorway. But yours is seen from your angle, from your perspective. It has your quality, it has your reflection, it has your characteristics and the same doorway for them, for the other person, simply reflects their characteristic, it is not a different doorway. You have the same doorway to walk through, the same avenue of opportunity, the same conduits as everyone and anyone in creation, but it’s not going to appear to be the same because it’s going to be colored with your reflections so that it will work for you. You don’t want theirs you want yours.

You want to understand who you are, you want to respect yourself, so that you can see who you are in the doorway. So that you can allow the doorway, the mirror of reality, to show you who you are. If you disrespect yourself you devalue your doorway, you do not see the reflection that is there for you. You do not see how to use it. You can not understand how to walk through it in the same way someone else understands how to walk through their version of it, and you can not then reap the manifestation that comes from walking through and going to the other side of it.

So please, please, please, please, please as a strong suggestion, do not devalue and disrespect yourself by disrespecting the choices that you make and the consequences that result there from.

Learn and understand that every choice is connected to every other, that every circumstance is connected to every other and every circumstance, if you choose to look at it without judgement, but with acceptance, acknowledgement, allowance and love, and creativity, imagination, and inspiration will be capable, in its own way, in its own way, yes, in its own way, will be capable of showing you how it contains all the same opportunities to connect and manifest to anything else you want, even though it may take a certain colorization, a certain characterization, just because its coming from that perspective, it does not matter, it doesn’t mean that it can’t do it. You have to learn to accept it so that you can read its particular characteristics and symbols. But every situation is connected to every other and has the ability and has the capability of bring to your attention the appropriate information to allow you to connect, to allow you to slide, to allow you to shift to any other and every other kind of situation that you may prefer to manifest. And, if you start looking at every situation that way, you will see how they are all one and the same but simply look different because that a different perspective, angle, or point of view—of the same one thing. Because again remember: there is only here, there is only now, there is only ONE MOMENT. And in that one moment, and in that one moment that is the eternal existence, all things happen. Therefore all things are all other things in a different disguise from a different perspective from a different point of view. There is only one creation but it looks different from every angle you can look. Know that there is one, act like there is one, don’t devalue any manifestation of it and you will see how any manifestation connected to any other manifestation because all are the same thing. Does that make sense? All right.

We thank you for allowing us to share this perspective. We know it will work—if you choose to adopt it into your reality and adapt it to your personal needs. You don’t have to take our word for it, you can get the result if you utilize this tool, if you utilize this attitude and perception. This is not philosophy, remember now, this is physics, this is the way reality creation works. You can use it, you can get the same result as any one. We do not insist that you use it. We are not telling you what to do. We have our own lives to live.

We do not want to live yours but we are strongly suggesting that if this is what you have asked for, in terms of what can I use, what tool, what perspective can I understand? So that I can treat myself with respect, in the moment and live in the moment, and experience my reality as a manifestation of the moment. This is one of the tools that can work for you, if you take it to heart and apply it in your behavior day by day, everyday, every moment of your life. It’s up to you to find out, but I guarantee if you use it, it will work but it is up to you?

Now, once again in return for allowing our civilization the great gift of this sharing with your civilization I ask, in return, in what way may I and my world be of service to you?

Q: Bashar!
B: You, good day....

Respecting Your Choices
October 3, 1997

All right I’ll say good day to you this day of your time, how are you all? Once again we extend to you, first of all our deep appreciation for allowing this communication to occur in this way. Responding To Others and Acting On Impulse

Q: I would like to talk about everything being fundamentally neutral.
B: Yes.
Q: Isn’t it true, say, in talking about manipulation that, suppose in the energy of people that I feel are being manipulative...
B: Yes.
Q: ... isn’t it possible that the energy that’s coming off this person, that what they are giving me, is negativity?
B: But why do you have to accept it?
Q: That’s a good question.
B: Understand: the only reason you would feel the negativity in your reality – not that you cannot recognize the negativity in theirs – but the only reason you would feel it in your reality is by accepting it and creating it in your reality, by believing their reality and making their reality your reality.
It is simply an offering. Once again, it is an opportunity for you to recognize that if they are offering you negativity, if you don’t prefer it, then their offer of negativity has allowed you to align with what you know to be true for you, and what you know to not be true for you. So simply say: “I appreciate your offer of your negativity but it simply has nothing to do with my reality. Thank you very much, I’ll be on my way.”
Q: Well, I want to, but my problem with that is...
B: Problem?
Q: Yes, it’s because my opinion doesn’t seem to be worth... my statement doesn’t seem to be as powerful. I feel that...
B: Then you are only judging that it is not. Your “problem” – which is only a situation that you will not allow to change its shape – is simply that you judge yourself to be inferior. Why?
Q: Another good question. (Laughing)
B: Oh, thank you! (AUD: laughter)
Q: I mean that they come on so strongly that it feels so intimidating to me. I feel like I buckle under, and then...
B: But that is there for you to recognize that you have a belief that you aren’t as powerful. If you do not prefer that experience then allow yourself to recognize that they are showing you that you can believe something else.
Understand that the idea of being offered those negative experiences is not necessarily, and need not to be taken as an indication that you are in fact powerless. But they are there to show you that if you believe you are powerless and don’t prefer it, then you can choose to believe that you are equally powerful.
Q: I don’t trust that.
B: Why not?
Q: I don’t know.
B: May I ask you a question?
Q: Please do.
B: Thank you. Do you exist?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
Q: Yes. (Laughing)
B: All right. Did you have to do anything special in order to deserve to exist?
Q: No.
B: Then why should you assume that you have to do anything special in order to continue to exist?
Q: (Sighs)
B: Unconditional love is what you were created from. When All That Is created you, All That Is obviously thought you deserved to exist. What could be a more powerful backing than that? Why not give yourself the same respect that All That Is gives you in creating you. And simply assume that you obviously must be equal to every other creation, otherwise you wouldn’t have been created. Well?
Q: I do understand that.
B: Oh, do you?
Q: Yes, I do understand that, but I’ve mentioned to you before that I forget it.
B: All right.
Q: I forget, and sometimes I feel like there’s this battle going on between me and them.
B: All right. Maybe you enjoy it.
Q: I don’t enjoy it!
B: Then don’t do it.
Q: Well, it goes back to what you were saying about obstacles and trying to get around them. So it’s a new notion to walk through them.
B: Ah, very good! Then allow yourself to recognize that by incorporating the new notion, you are now a new you. And all of these scenarios that you are describing are scenarios that have to do with the you you no longer are. So why bring them up to reinforce the you that you are now? They have nothing to do with you anymore. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Recognize that, in your society, very often this may be another notion that you allow yourselves to do to yourselves: reinforcing the you you are now, with the you you don’t want to be. Not realizing that you are no longer that you.

What has what you were got to do with what you are? Nothing. Unless you choose to believe that it does. It is only your choice to believe that it does that allows you to experience the illusion that it does. The present is not a result of the past. Only you, in your reality, choose to believe there is a continuity.

Q: Hmm.
B: Think about that for a moment.
Q2: I have a question regarding your discussions on following your excitement.
B: Yes.
Q: Could you discuss the difference between following your excitement, the energy of the excitement, and living impulsively – doing things one might regret?
B: Thank you. First of all, recognize that the idea of following what excites you is that you do so with integrity. Therefore, in this way, many times you can understand that while in certain circumstances living “impulsively” may be the same thing as following your excitement, under other circumstances it may not be. Living impulsively may be “running from your integrity” as well. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: It may be the attempt to avoid responsibility for the creations in your life. It does not have to be, but it might be.
Q: How do you tell the difference?
B: Ah, thank you very much! (AUD: laughter) In this way, first of all, trust – fundamentally, foundationally – that you are eternal. Yes?
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, ultimately, really no matter what you choose to do, you will always have time to choose something else; so therefore, remove the pressure of “having to make the right decision.” For if you allow yourself to relax and not worry about the idea of “having to make the right decision,” then you will open your sights and expand your awareness, and you will have an innate understanding of what it means to function within integrity.

Functioning within integrity is simply being willing to know you are responsible for all the situations you attract into your life – at least for your half of it, or your part of it. If you are willing to simply trust that you do in fact create your reality completely, and are willing to understand that with any other individual you are co-creating that shared reality, completely, then you will understand that there is no need to run from anything. That being responsible for your reality means you are in control of it.

And if you are responsible for anything you experience in your reality, then that means you can create anything you want in your reality, because you created this experience. So in that way, impulsiveness will never have to take on a negative characteristic, if you are always cognizant that there is never going to be anything that is going to occur in your life that you will ever feel you will have to run away from. Do you follow me so far?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, you can allow yourself to trust that, if you are excited, truly excited, about something that you have attracted into your life, you will also be cognizant of the fact that many times if you are acting on negative impulse you are not excited about something, but you are judging the excitement, and the feeling you actually have is anxiety.

If you are acting on impulse and find yourself being anxious, then you have a reflection that it is very probable that you are judging the situation from a negative point of view. Because excitement and anxiety are the same energy: one from a positive point of view and one from a judgmental point of view.

So if you find that the situations that you attract into your life allow you to recognize a pattern of synchronicity where you are bringing yourself opportunities to act, and these opportunities present no anxiety and allow you to know that you do not need to struggle through them to make decisions, but that you will experience joy in the doing of these things, and you will not think twice about the idea of the impulse, then it is a probable reflection that you are functioning from your integrated point of view. Does that clarify it for you?

Q: Even if you find out that you made a mistake?

B: There are no mistakes.

Q: Okay, suppose you’re following the excitement and you begin to notice that you’re feeling frightened.

B: All right.

Q: Is that a signal that you’ve taken the wrong path?

B: No, for in this way fear does not necessarily have to be the same type of anxiety. Allow yourself to recognize, however, that if you do follow your excitement and you do find yourself fearing, then it may simply be that you are not trusting that you can follow your excitement. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: And again, the idea of making a so-called “mistake” is that it lets you know that perhaps the thing you have done is not the thing you prefer to do. But it has allowed you more delineation of the thing you do, in fact, prefer. So it has served you, and in a sense it is not a mistake. And it may be something you will be able to share with someone else later on, as a part of the knowledge of your experience. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I appreciate that.

B: All right.

Q1: Back to me again.
B: Oh, all right. Which you are you now? (AUD: laughter)
Q: Just a little bit different.
B: Always, always, always, different – you always will be.
Q: So everything moves me the way I want to be moved and I’m happy with that, but then I stop and I go... and well, I second-guess my trust. It seems to be an interruption. And you’re saying that it’s not, that it’s okay to second-guess it. That whatever happens...
B: Yes, because then what purpose it may serve is to allow you to recognize that perhaps you don’t prefer to second-guess it. Simply allow everything to be a part of the lesson, then you will not think that you are wasting your time.
Q: Right, but then I seem vague. (Laughing) And I feel un-specific.
B: What is wrong with that?
Q: It doesn’t seem to be powerful.
B: That is because you are not in the habit of being a generalist. Recognize that with regard to your society, in our society, our majority action, our first inclination, is to be a generalist, and a specifist second; whereas yours is to be a specifist first and a generalist second.
Therefore, you simply feel that there is more power in specificity; whereas we recognize in our civilization that for us there is more power in the idea of being a generalist. Because in a sense, to our point of view, being a generalist lets you know that you are connected to more.
Q: That’s great! That is so great! (Laughing)
B: All right, thank you. Then you are now also a generalist.
Q: Thank you so much.
B: You are welcome.

Responding to Others and Acting on Impulse
Responsibility and Belief Structure

Q: Are we only responsible for feeling good? Is that our sole responsibility?
B: In this sense, you are responsible to everyone else in your reality, not for them. And you are responsible to yourself, in this sense, to simply know that you are in control and are creating whatever reality you desire. So the idea of the blending of your transformational age is, yes, in a sense to recognize that your true cognition is to allow the ecstasy that is your birthright to be reflected in your life.

Q: No matter how you bring that about?
B: With integrity, in other words, it is also the cognition, as we have said, that you are as powerful as you need to be to have anything you desire, without having to interfere in anyone else’s path, or force anything upon anyone else, or hurt anyone else, in order to get what you know to be true for you. Because you are as powerful as you need to be, to have it be automatically attracted into your life. You follow me?
Q: Yes. If something gives you discomfort... let say’s there’s a belief structure, let’s say I’m scared of water...
B: All right.
Q: ... and I’m sitting by the pool and I’ve got this nervousness and I decide to change this belief...
B: All right.
Q: ... and I start to put out there that I’m not scared of water anymore. And then my son comes up and asks me to fix his toy, and I forget what I’m doing for the moment and I start fixing that, and I come back and then I... the old belief structure seems to click back in. What does the existing belief structure have going for it that the new belief structure doesn’t?
B: Ask yourself! Ask yourself how having and maintaining the one belief structure you don’t prefer... ask yourself how maintaining it does in fact serve you? What does it let you discover about yourself that you may need to discover? To integrate within your being, in whatever time frame you are comfortable with, to allow you to come to terms with something that you are not facing. Ask yourself how having the belief does in fact serve you. Ask yourself, what could that belief, what message could that belief be attempting to deliver to me, that I could allow to be delivered in a way that does not have to come in a negative package?
Q: Um, I found that difficult, personally.
B: That is because you believe that it is difficult. And also because you may be putting too many demands upon yourself for how you think it should change, or the rapidity in which you think it should change.

Again, understand in this way, if you simply know that your physical reality is the reflection of what you believe it to be, and you find that something seems to have a certain insistence in your life, then simply recognize you are choosing to have that experience to learn something positive.
And as soon as you are willing to look AT the experience AS a positive sustaining idea, then it will lose its, quote/unquote, negative qualities, and you will become fascinated with the positive side of the situation you are experiencing. And it will, in a sense, _leak_ its negativity out.

Q: So I could just sit there and I could become fascinated and curious about the fear that I have…

B: Yes! Invite your fear to be your friend. Recognize that many times _the fear_ is simply the way that you will _pay attention_ to the message.

Q: What…

B: Ask yourself if you are willing to listen to the message in another way. Then you will automatically, by exploring this avenue, become fascinated with the idea of receiving the message in another way, and you will _not feel_ afraid any longer.

Q: So the totality is fascination and curiosity?

B: Yes. Exploring. KNOWING that everything, everything, everything that you could ever experience in your life serves you, and is a path you choose to be, and _NOT_ an interruption in it.

Q: Okay.

B: Thank you! Sharing!

Responsibility and Belief Structure
Restoring Sensitive Hearing

Q: Hi.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: Good day to you. I feel fortunate in that I discovered, I think, pretty early on, what excites me. And that is music, and...
B: Music!
Q: Yes. And as time passed, I found out more specifically that song writing in particular excited me.
B: All right.
Q: But that’s not really what I came to address here.
B: All right. Be direct!
Q: About a year and a half ago I had a problem with my hearing. Actually I’m still experiencing this problem. What it is, is volume...I’m very sensitive to any kind of volume at all, especially my left ear. And it is, as I said, very sensitive. I experience it as a dampening and deadening of sound at times, and it sounds like I’ve got broken eggshells in there.
B: All right.
Q: It’s improved somewhat in a year and a half, and I’ve seen a number of doctors. They haven’t helped me at all. But, as I said, it has got better. I’m wondering at this point if I should interpret this problem with my hearing as a... how should I interpret it? Is it a sign that there is...?
B: You are, to some degree, breaking out of a shell, which has muffled the sounds of the reality you are breaking into. You are, to some degree, still immersed in what might be called embryonic fluid, and that also muffles the sounds. Now, this is the metaphysical idea.

Some of this idea of your hearing can be assisted and accelerated by some efficacious compounds, herbal compounds, that you may ingest to invigorate your nervous system and those pathways that your brain uses, electrochemically speaking, to create the stimulation of sonic perception. These you may find in some of your literature if you simply allow yourself to be attracted through synchronicity to the ideas that you need: the idea of quiet listening to yourself can improve that ability.

But mostly it is that you are now passing through a membrane; and this membrane, to some degree, has been acting as a buffer. Because you have come out of a life wherein you believed, that in this life, you needed some degree of protection. You came into this life with some degree of belief that you were somehow extra sensitive, and that coming back into the physiological reality would be too abrasive for you. So you have surrounded yourself with this embryonic fluid, out of which now you are just recently beginning to emerge. You understand?
Q: Yes. And that makes me optimistic. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: So I shouldn’t ... should I interpret this as, on a certain level, that it’s a nerve damage that I’ve experienced?
B: Perhaps not a damage, but simply a resistance, a nerve resistance. Now, one suggestion, one suggestion.

Q: Yes.

B: Both to assist your audio acuity, and also to form an analogy for your emergence from a particular type of shell, would be: In your countryside, or whatever it is that is peaceful to you, and quiet, pay close attention to the sounds that your birds make. Listen to that music, and listen to the clarity of the tone. There are sounds and patterns and information within that can train your nerves to hear in specific ways. Understand?

Q: Yeah, yeah.

B: And, by analogy, also assist you to spread your wings and fly in that particular sonic endeavor. And to create your own song in a perfect reflection of their song – in a very natural way, so that all will be pure of tone.

Q: Well that sounds like fun. I would enjoy doing that.

B: All right.

Q: So I don’t have to interpret this as a sign that perhaps there is another area that I could…

B: As we said, there may be some herbal compounds you can attract yourself to that will assist you and accelerate you in that direction.

Q: Well, thanks for your help.

B: We thank you very much.

Restoring Sensitive Hearing
Revelation

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

AUD: Great, perfect, etc...

I will also say, Kumbaya. Tenki dasca(?) (Transcriber’s Note: There are Japanese visitors from Tokyo in the audience.) Let us begin this evening of your time with the idea of revelation. We have talked about the idea of your levels of awareness, the things that you become cognizant of from time to time. Those moments of crystalline clarity in which you allow yourselves to perceive for a moment the ideas, the perspectives, the attitudes, the beliefs, the emotions and the thoughts that you have created yourselves to be on many different levels – all at once.

It is in a sense what you call revelation, the ability to find a cohesive moment in which all paradox, all polarities, all dichotomies appear to be blended and harmonized, and is seen to proceed or emerge, if you will, from the same single source. Revelation is that moment of perception wherein you truly understand the synchronicity of everything. You understand that everything is the same one thing. And you form those connections in ways that you can understand and apply to your day-to-day reality. Except that always what will come with it, by definition, will be a change in the way you perceive your reality.

Revelation will be the transformation of the persona that you are into a completely different one, remembering that a persona is not who or what you are, but an artificial construct – a mask, a face, a representation of the particular idea you are being at any given moment. Revelation, therefore, is what brings together all polarities into the one inter-connective principle, and allows you to understand that what you typically think of as two conflicting ideas, two opposite ideas, are simply different sides, if you will, of the same notion, the same event.

Let us use an example, and you can recognize that many times revelation is a tool that is used to allow you to make sense in an effortless way out of what might have been up to that point a puzzle just for the reason that you broke it into a polarity. Just for the reason that you created it to be a question instead of looking at it as its own answer.

The example that we can cite will be a phrase that many of you have heard (that) you call, "mind over matter." Now many of you are beginning to explore these ideas of your mental ability. But the very phrase itself, mind over matter, is a dichotomy, is a polarization, is a limitation, is a segregation, is a separation.

Mind is matter; matter is mind; they are one and the same thing. If you wish to look at this way, they are made of the same thing. When you use the phrase, "mind over matter," you are taking one homogenous principle, segregating it into a polarity – an apparent polarity – and then creating the need for a long involved process, and/or struggle, in order to attain control – with mind – over matter.

The separation in and of itself creates the struggle, creates the process. If you understand that mind and matter are one and the same thing, then you will understand that you are already in control of matter.
because, as you change your mind, you actually change matter. You have created the illusion that you do not; you have created the illusion of consistency, but you are nonetheless, every single moment that you create a new thought, creating an entirely new scenario physically to represent that thought.

Now, if your thoughts are continuous – in other words, you are projecting the illusion of a continuum, a continuity from one moment to the next, then your thoughts will rearrange matter in a seemingly smooth projection of changes, so that you think things are simply being changed through the course of time. Time, in that sense, is your self-created reason to explain the changes that take place. Time changes all things, you say. You are changing those things, and you are using the format of space and time in which to pretend you are doing it in an external methodology. But matter and mind are the same idea; they are one and the same thing.

And so if you will allow yourselves to perceive in your revelation that they can be gathered back together into one understanding, that your mind is all changes in matter, that all changes in matter is your mind in action, then you can begin to exhibit and exercise a much broader range, a much freer range of malleability in your physical universe. It will become more like unto the way it is in your non-physical world, where you are a thought form in a world of thought forms. And the distinction between mind and the material of the non-physical reality is far less segregated.

In the non-physical reality the minute you think of something, that is what manifests all around you instantaneously. The sooner you will allow yourselves the revelation, the blending, the harmonization of the understanding that mind and matter are one and the same idea, one and the same energy, then as you think, so shall it be in your physical reality.

And if time is necessary at all, it will take far less time – because you will allow yourselves to allow your reality to change in the quickest possible way that it can, by ceasing to create so much separation between you as the activator and your apparent physical reality as the activation.

The activator – you – and the activation – your physical reality – are one and the same event. Your thoughts are the things in your lives. Your physical reality is you – literally you, manifesting in all the ways it can, according to the idea you hold yourselves to be most truly at any given moment. Your seemingly external physical reality literally is you; it is made of you, of your consciousness reflecting back to the you, the persona you have created yourselves to be, as an apparent polarity with regard to your overall consciousness.

Remember that your physical reality and your body is within your consciousness; your consciousness is not within your body. Your entire physical reality, in a sense, is within you. Your body is within you. It is an idea; it is a projection. But that’s what all realities are. And no matter how solid they seem, it is the idea of solidity that makes it seem that way.

You are extremely powerful beings. You are the manifestation and the expression of the Infinite Creator; you are multi-dimensional creators. You are the realities you think you live inside of; you are living inside yourselves. Allow yourselves to understand that as soon as you decide what you truly desire to be, that reality will flood throughout you and fill your entire experiential universe. Because you are all you ever directly experience.
No matter how many others you interact with, you experience your version of them, your creation of them, your perception of them – with regard to the physiological universe you exist as. Not within –as! You are the physical universe; are it. Not in it, are it. It is you. You all follow along so far?
Q: Yes. Yes. Yes.
Within this format of self-revelation, of revealing yourselves to yourselves, and allowing yourselves to be the universe you prefer to be, then many changes will take place much more quickly than you ever have previously imagined possible. Allow yourselves to reveal yourselves unto yourselves, to be the juxtaposition, the blending point through which and from which all seeming dichotomies and all seeming polarities issue.
You are the source of all the separations, all the segregation, all the limitations, all the differentiations you experience in your lives – simply because of the idea you have been taught to think of yourselves to be. Reveal yourselves unto yourselves; change those ideas, if you prefer to, and your whole reality will follow suit. Because your whole reality is you. It is not separate from you. You are not in it; it is you. You are it. We are speaking extremely literally – not philosophically, as you understand that terminology many times upon your planet.
There will be, after your break time, a brief discussion by Anima about some young ideas. For now, allow us to extend to each and every one of you, once again, our deepest appreciation in allowing us to experience the gift of your consciousness, in allowing us to see all the different ways that Infinite Creation has of expressing itself to be within its own Self revelation.

Revelation 5
Questioner: David Oates is the man who has brought to our attention Reverse Speech.
Bashar: Yes.

Q: And somebody has burned down his office and his home and all of his work, actually his work survived, but they twice put threats on his life and his family’s life...
B: Yes.

Q: ...and now, I guess, the same group of people are threatening another UFOlogist named Guy Kirkwood...
B: Yes.

Q: ...saying that if he doesn’t ... if he plans on going to Washington...
B: Yes.

Q: ...that they will also do the same thing to him.
B: All right, so you have presented yourself an interesting challenge ... as to, again, the ideas of self attracted and self created obstacles that will determine whether or not you decide what is important, how to move ahead, how to know that, in that sense, you are only going to really experience the results of the reality that you believe in most strongly. And you have a reflection of individuals who, while on one hand attempting to disseminate information, on the other hand have also, simultaneously, bought into the idea of FEAR, the need for protection. Because they are under imminent attack, and thus, are manifesting, the closer they get to their source, the closer that they get to the activity that represents who they are ... are manifesting, not only the idea of their greatest joys but their greatest fears. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: This is an opportunity for clarification and discernment, and also an opportunity to not necessarily label such events as an impediment, but in some ways to recognize them as freedom, freeing, releasing. In that sense, it is representative, in this case, symbolically of old structures burning down. And, in that sense, an actual release and increased freedom to be more flexible with the information and to get the information to more places rather than, in that sense, being pinned down to one location. This is how this can be used in a positive symbolic way, so that that individual, as you have named him, can extract from the experience a positive ultimate effect, regardless of what anyone else’s intentions may have been. Because, again remember, you create your own reality and regardless of what anyone’s intentions may be towards you, by knowing that your reality is only the construct of positive ideas, you will only extract positive impact from it, no matter what their original intention or actions may have been. So this is a lesson for that individual to learn to behave and operate in that way and see this as a freeing symbol rather than, in some way, shape or form, a reinforcement of fear. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes, and can you just very briefly discuss the mechanics of Reverse Speech and how that works?
B: The idea is that you’re always, because you create a polarized reality experience, because you create physical reality to be a polarized reality experience, a quote/unquote "matter/antimatter experience," the idea is that there is always, interpenetrating in one reality, two polarized opposites. So every expression of consciousness will always have the idea of a reverse aspect, because physical reality symbolically functions as a mirror, and therefore, any information, any communication will always have a reverse aspect or counterpart. Because, just as you see the reverse image in a mirror, physical reality, being a mirror, will always also produce a reverse image. In that you have, as a species, deigned to hide many aspects of yourself in the forward facing image, or what you consider to be the forward facing image, you will often then reveal the true state of your consciousness in the reversed facing image. And that is why in Reverse Speech, many times, you can hear the true intentions of an individual, no matter what they may be saying in the forward mode. Does that make sense to you?
Q: It does, thank you so much.
B: Thank you.
Rewarding Disabilities

Q: Last week a situation occurred which has upset, at least, my plans. Um...
B: PLANS! UPSET YOUR PLANS?
Q: Yes.
B: UPSET your plans, you only have one plan in life? (laughter) You only have one way things could happen?
Q: Um, no.
B: Then why is it that the situation is not creating the plan that needs to be there, rather than upsetting the plan you think should be there? Why is the situation not part of the plan, even though it may be an unexpected part of the plan?
Q: I guess because I haven’t been looking at it that way.
B: Look at it that way and see if it makes a difference.
Q: Actually, I was hoping that you could give me some insight.
B: I just did. (Laughter) But you are allowing yourself to be thrown by the unexpected again. You are assuming that what comes to you, in an unexpected direction, is not what is supposed to be there. But it is. You want life to be boring?
Q: It’s definitely not boring.
B: Oh all right, then simply allow yourself to recognize that, as we have said, every situation, unexpected or otherwise, is fundamentally neutral. And allow yourself to VIEW it in a positive attitude – THAT POSITIVE ATTITUDE is what will allow it to manifest a positive result.
Q: Even when I don’t prefer it to manifest the way it is?
B: But why are you not preferring it? Is it a preference or is it a judgment?
Q: Well, it feels like a preference.
B: All right, define the situation.
Q: Well, um...the situation is that...was, yeah, it remains a possibility, there is a possibility...
B: What IS the situation?
Q: Okay, the situation is my disability, is...
B: DIS-ability?
Q: Yes. I’m receiving disability, which is a...
B: From where? (Much laughter)
Q: Well, it’s money that I am receiving for an injury that was incurred on the job.
B: All right.
Q: And it, let’s see… it appears as though they are going to cut off this money I’m receiving.
B: So then, you do not need it. Do you want to continue to be rewarded for being disabled?
Q: No. Um, no I don’t want to continue being rewarded...
B: Would you rather be able?
Q: I’d rather be able.
B: All right then, you will automatically discontinue – disability. Because you do not need it, because you are able, and that means that you are able to attract to you the opportunities and the situations that will allow YOU to have whatever symbol of abundance you need, to support the idea you are willing to be able about. If it needs money, money will be there, if money is not there, it doesn’t need it.
What is the idea you want to be, that you are not being?
Q: Um, well I haven’t really discovered that yet.
B: Where are you looking?
Q: Well, I’ve been doing what I’ve been doing. I’ve been doing… like working on my dreams and um...
B: What does that mean?
Q: Well, um…I’ve been writing them...
B: All right, are you enjoying that?
Q: I love it.
B: All right. Anything else?
Q: Um, I guess I’m doing a lot of meditation.
B: All right.
Q: And I really enjoy doing that, and...
B: Then can you not allow yourself to see how all that you are doing is beginning to work? The first step being the discontinuance of dis-ability as a positive reflection of the fact that you are becoming able.
Q: Can you go further?
B: It all depends on how you depend on how you choose to look at it. And that is what will allow you to reap the benefit of your point of view – negative or positive.
Q: Well I guess my feeling is that I don’t want to go back to the same job.
B: Who says you have to? THAT is a fear and a judgment. Who says you will? Why not trust that what is occurring IS the sign of your flow? You may continue to assume that your flow will flow you where you need to go – not BACK to something that will not support the idea, the new idea you now happen to be, that would not fit the definition. Nature does not work that way – it does not fight itself.
It does not take you BACK to something that is not part of the definition of the new idea you happen to be.
Q: Oh, so what you are saying is that I need to trust?
B: Very good. (laughter)
Q: Okay.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank You.
Robert 6

circa 1996

Q: Hello. I would like to ask you – are you familiar with the group of individuals on our planet that have come together and called themselves the Starlight Coalition?
B: Define.
Q: It’s composed of some individuals, mainly astronauts. Ed Mitchell, Gordon Cooper, Brian O’Leary. And their here to greet high officials with the best information, and their working with Laurence Rockefeller to get an executive order to grant immunity to any individuals who break their security codes regarding UFO information. To bring this information to mankind.
B: Alright - and so?
Q: I was wondering if you could perceive . . . .
B: Watch what you ask. Watch what you ask. Be aware, alert and conscious of what you are now saying . . . proceed . . . if you dare.
Q: Do you see this coming about?
B: Watch how you ask. You know better than this. Do you see yourself assisting them?
Q: I feel that I am.
B: How?
Q: By disseminating information regarding UFO’s.
B: They require more assistance than that specifically. Do you see yourself assisting them more directly?
Q: Ah . . .
B: They are a seed that can attract individuals to assist them directly and in this way, expand in a manner that it can have the effect you desire. But only if there is direct assistance and interaction. Not indirect, not peripheral. Direct. Participate and assist. Do you follow?
Q: Yes I do. Some ideas on how to do that?
B: First would be contacting them.
Q: Contacting some of the individuals who are part of the coalition and see how one can participate.
B: Thank you. Then you will be involved directly. Anything else?
Q: Do the female detainees get inseminated or impregnated in their actual room or are they usually taken off to an off-world base?
B: Usually on the craft.
Q: And is this base known as the Barge?
B: It is not known in that way, shape or form by any of us. It may be an Earth euphemism that has a general symbolism but it is not known in that way by any of us. Though there are some military individuals on your planet that have referred to it that way.

Q: And were some of the MK ULTRA experiments to prepare individuals for direct participation in these activities?

B: Yes.

Q: And what is the Kachina’s relationship to the Ionosphere?

B: Ionosphere?

Q: Yes. The reason I ask that is because of the project HAARP that is getting ready to heat up the Ionosphere. One of the things that they’re going to do is to saturate it to its limit to see what the effects will be. I was wondering if the Kachina energy had a relationship to the Ionosphere.

B: Only in the sense that they have a multitude of doorways that may open up dimensions from a number of avenues and angles. Only in that sense does that connection exist…one moment…the more direct energetic or spiritual connection would be that there will be a particular Kachina energy whose function will be to transmute whatever effect is being done to your Ionosphere. To transmute it in a way that will allow the energy effect to be different for certain aspects of your Nature other than the way that it may have been predicted the effects would be.

Q: Will it act as a buffering…

B: A transmuter, in that sense, yes. You may refer to it in some senses as a buffering but that would be misleading. It is more of a transmuter.

Q: And is there a problem on our planet with global warming, and the spread of microbes?

Q: Yes. And can the Ionospheric heaters help?

B: Only in one very narrow range. Other than that it will have no effect, on anything beyond that range.

Q: And in the ’95 Crop Circle season there were apparently no people that got really zapped like there were in ’94.

B: Yes, there were. But you must understand that your collective consciousness has changed. Your frequency and vibration have changed and thus you are interpolating that particular frequency in a different way.

Q: So the humans have stepped their frequency up to adjust to it?

B: Not an adjustment. In that sense the idea is that the frequency has changed. Yours and its.

Q: So its more compatible with each other?

B: Yes.

Q: For the first time some of the symmetry was off, 3 or 4 degrees on some of the….

B: This is an indication of exactly how much the frequency has changed. It is to give you an indication that there is a precession in the vibration. Not only, thus, will certain glyphs indicate that shift but you will also see that there will be movement of the glyphs to different portions of that area than they appeared in before – to indicate the precession of the change of the frequency. For remember a change in frequency is a change in location, and angle and perspective and everything.

Q: And what do the grape shots signify in relation to the circles? Do they have a . . .
B: The other pole, in the same sense that there is a negative and positive pole and a battery. In that there is a grounding state that is created to allow the glyph itself to be created. The glyph is representative of one of the poles – the grape shot the other. Both connections must be made in order for the one to manifest.

Q: And do you see the United States or Canada circles getting as integrated as the English ones?
B: Eventually but in a different way. You must understand that one of the reasons for the strength of the appearance of those manifestations in your area of England is because the different vortices around the world, while they are in some senses, simultaneously equivalent, also have a historical lineage and a sequence of energy. The ones in England are most strongly connected to some of the ancient Atlantean connections and thus represent the beginning of the chain – as much of it as still exists in your present day reality. Were Atlantis still in existence the crop circles would be more heavily concentrated there. Do you follow?
Q: Yes, that makes sense.
B: The ancient lineage of the concept of what you call your England is the closest representation still in existence in a modern day society on your planet to the ancient king bloodlines of Atlantis. Because now what you have as your ancient Egyptian and your ancient Mayan lines no longer exist, in the same way. So the ancient Druidic factions are the most highly representative of the ancient priest lines. And thus the energies are still correlated in that area, as the beginning of the chain that still exists.

Q: Do the Greys from Rigel and Zeta Reticuli breathe oxygen similar to the way we do?
B: In some senses, yes, although there is a different chemical interaction that also involves the concept of chlorophyll similar to your plants.

Q: Are they more of a chlorophyll based . . .
B: copper based in that sense. So there is oxygen in the mechanism to some degree, yes.

Q: How many chakras do they have?
B: One moment. . . While they possess what you would understand to be the full compliment as you do, you will find, that in practice – though you may not necessarily understand exactly what we mean by this – there are in essence 5 operational out of a series of 12. But we will not explain further on that concept at present. Thank you.

Q: Thank you very much.
B: There is but a few moments remaining for this contact.

Q: Bashar!
B: Yes.
Q: What smell or incense do the Kachina beings relate to?
B: One moment....Sage.
Q: And the ancient Vedas – are you familiar with those texts?
B: Vedas.... Sanskrit.
Q: From India, yes. There is what was known as the Soma which was the food of the gods or of the gods. Was there any kind of physiological representation of that?
B: Yes, the white powder.
Q: The white powder. And in Wisconsin there have been some pyramids found at the bottom of Rock Lake. And the Indians there have legends that they were left by the “ancient ones”, and they’ve traced them back to around 1500 BC. And next to them were some major copper mining operations going on.
B: Yes.
Q: Which they purported to have fuelled the Bronze Age. Was this part of Atlantean....?
B: Yes.
Q: Remnants?
B: Yes. It was an offshoot colony.
Q: And were the Phoenicians responsible for bringing the copper into Asia?
B: Later on in your history, from time to time, bits of it yes, but not early on. There were other migrations as well that were responsible for the carrying of much of that element throughout many of the continental landmasses.
Q: And this year, in the crop circles, there was the asteroid formation and one of these in particular that I wanted to ask you about was one called, “Why is Earth Missing”? Are you familiar with that crop circle?
B: Yes.
Q: Is there a significance....?
B: Of course.
Q: ....in particular that you can signify why Earth was missing?
B: Earth is not missing.
Q: Is it represented as the origin point?
B: No.
Q: No?
B: It is representative of a transformational state. A shift from third to fourth density. It is also representative of a counterpart solar system. It is representative also of Tau Ceti. End of discussion.
Good day.
Q: Thank you very much.
Q: Good evening Bashar.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: One of the things I’d like to talk to you about tonight is, after a nuclear explosion．．．
B: Any particular kind? (Audience laughter) There are different forms of nuclear explosions, you know. The sun is a nuclear explosion.
Q: Some of the above ground testing that we’ve done, in the Nevada area?
B: What about it?
Q: One of the results is, the people in the area that the downwind drift of the explosion settled on, report high instances of cancer and leukemia.
B: Yes, well, as we have already indicated, disease is usually a matter of toxicity in your environment.
Q: I was wondering what the half-life of that radio-active fallout is?
B: Thousands and thousands and thousands and thousands and thousands of years.
Q: So is that area basically permanently contaminated?
B: No. You can change the vibration. But as it stands now, in the reality you are in now, that is still the case. But you can change the vibration. You can do it through symbolic technology or you can do it mostly of course, through the changing and shaping of your own vibration, which is the only way that the symbolic technology that could handle it is going to come about, anyway.
Q: So by increasing our frequency we’ll be able to．．．
B: It will not effect you, yes.
Q: Transmuting the energy.
B: Yes. It is not so much a matter of transmuting the energy – by shifting your frequency you’ll be in a reality where that energy doesn’t exist.
Q: And, concerning the dolphins．．．
B: Yes.
Q: Usually they travel in pods, but occasionally one dolphin will break off from the group and continue on a solo journey.
B: Yes. Just as many of you do.
Q: Is there any particular reason why they do that?
B: Yes, of course. The dolphin’s own personal reason. Go ask one. They have just as many reasons for doing individual things as you do. There may be something that they’re curious about. There may be something that they’re exploring. They may be taking a trip. (Audience laughter) Go ask one.
Q: And we have an ancient aphorism on our planet of the Chinese that says that ‘ those who know do not speak and those who speak do not know.’
B: Yes.
Q: And is that basically from in olden times and in Alchemy? They talk about how not to talk about things, because it will.

B: It is simply knowledge from the Infinite expressed in one particular cultural context. It may be the same kind of knowledge that was accessed even by many of your Alchemists but it doesn’t come from the Alchemical line. It comes from the same source as the One, All That Is, for anyone who simply cares to tap into that idea. And it can be expressed of course, in a variety of ways. It doesn’t always have to be taken supremely literally but sometimes the literal application has a bearing in certain circumstances. Such as this one right now. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
B: Number two.
Q: Good evening Bashar.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: Nice to be back in your presence once again.
B: We are all in the present.
Q: I was wondering if the timing is auspicious to have an interaction with Dreamer consciousness?
B: In some senses this has already been given throughout the course of this interaction. There have been moments when that energy has poked through, especially when we were addressing the connections to Sirius energy. At this timing it need not be as you would recognize as the pure vibration but it is, as you say, present.

Q: Okay. I would like to ask it a question.
B: Yes.
Q: December 2 the A.T.O.C. Project was activated and...
B: DEFINE!
Q: Thermometry of Ocean Currents.
B: Yes.
Q: Instead of pulsing it everyday for 4 hours they’ve reduced it to every fourth day for 4 hours.
B: Yes. This was a suggestion given from higher levels so that there would be a different effect.
Q: And can you comment on the effect on Marine life?
B: There is still to some degree some dissociation connection with the vibrationout of phase-ness, but not to the extent there would have been had the suggestion not been taken.
Q: And the other thing is: I know that the oceans and waters are becoming more polluted and that Dolphins are coming down with more diseases and cancers.
B: Yes
Q: How do they treat themselves?
B: Sometimes they choose not to, to make a point. But, sometimes they can treat themselves sonically. And, or there are things that they can ingest that will also chemically help them. But the idea is, that again, more often than not they will not necessarily choose to because they realize that the point must be made that this is not in alignment with love.
Q: Are they ever assisted by the Whales?
B: Now and then in different ways, at different times, in different specific circumstances and purposes — yes.
Q: And the other area I’d like to cover is with our friends from the red planet.
B: Yes.
Q: There supposedly is one underground and one above ground in the jungle in Mexico or South America. What is the difference between the two groups?
B: One is more the idea of the establishment of a processing area. The other more the idea of the infusion of the culture in your society.
Q: And what is the women’s role in the Martian society?
B: It is not in that sense dissimilar to the concept of feminine energy in your society, since again remember that incarnationally, many of you are Martians.
Q: Right. And what’s their vibrational frequency?
B: 152,000, in general, cycles per second.
Q: And is this the reason that they are perceived more cat-like and with vertical pupils, is because they’re more sub-space, in that sense?
B: From time to time this will be it but there is also an actual connection back to the original genetic form, in that reflection. As it has been now altered there is not so much of that, that remains but the original form of the race did have to some degree those qualities. But even that was a genetic alteration.
Q: What is their favorite food? What do they enjoy eating?
B: Again it will depend upon which branch of the genetic alterations you are talking to, for the genetic alterations will allow different members to find their connection to different kinds of intake and foodstuffs that they find palatable. Some of what you would call the jungle fruits they find very palatable in this sense. One moment ... they will find, some of them - corn - very palatable. Similar to the understanding of their relationship as the Native Americans understand their relationship to that substance on your planet. There will be several varieties of berries: blackberry, blueberry, in particular, that will have certain effects that they treasure and cherish, but also what you would call many of the red berries will be a favorite of their diet.
Q: Are they vegetarians?
B: Not always so in certain circumstances but in that sense, mostly so, and many of them simply eat fruit. It depends again on who you are discussing for different members have different genetic levels. At this timing they are not all one homogeneous species.

Q: They are a varied species?
B: Simply because of the genetic alterations that have been required for their ability to survive in your world.

Q: How does the heavier gravity affect them?
B: It makes them tired.

Q: Do they sleep a lot?
B: Sometimes. But they also ingest things that give them additional strength and also they will find that the genetic manipulations have allowed some of them to acclimatize more readily than some of the other new arrivals.

Q: The last thing there still . . .
B: There are other societies on your planet as well.

Q: And is there still activity of extraterrestrial vehicles at Area 51 or has it moved to another location?
B: There is still activity.

Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
B: Yes! Good day.

Q: Good day to you, nice to be in your presence again.
B: And in yours, all of yours’ as well – be brief, be brief, be brief.

Q: Um, can you tell me if you or any other Sassanians have had Atlantian incarnations?
B: Yessss. Some have.

Q: And what time frame would you say the Sassani consciousness intersected with Earth – physically? Does it tie into the Anassazi . . .
B: We are already intersecting . . .

Q: Well, the original inception . . . to be continued: End of side 1 of Robert Tape #6.
There is no way to pin this down in your linear time.

Because you said that you interacted with the Anasazi and the Mongolians and they were, you know, fairly recent in our civilization.

But the idea is that we interact on a number of different levels in a number of different ways. And we did not give you all the details of the style of the interactions. You are at this point attempting to pin something down linearly that really has no linear answer at all.

You must see us and our interaction and intersection with you as a series of cyclic loops. Without beginning, without ending, but cyclic. We interpenetrate at different timings, yes, different points of what you would call, history, in a variety of ways, yes. You will even find a literal reference within what you call your ancient Middle East.

For some of our interaction there energetically ... for part of a civilization named themselves after their perception of us. You will find this from about what you call 200 AD to 1000 AD. They are, in that sense, in the Middle East of what you now call Iran, the Sassanians.

There is an entity in that time frame with a name, Mazdak. In that sense it was an entity that recognized, through certain psychic methodologies and means, the idea of a vibrational connection to our civilization and an incorporation of many of the principles of our civilization were attempted to be infused into the society at that time, although of course, it took its earthly bent, in its own unique way. Expressed itself as other than the way it came across, but this was the nature of channeled interpretations at that time.

Though they were understood as high vibration they were still adapted to the methodologies and the culture of the day.

For what you would refer to as the inception seed even though we are cyclic, let us just say it is approximately, in the moment of the entire conception linearly of the human race, of what you call now the modern version of about 300,000 of your years ago. We were in the inception seed concept of the collective consciousness that dispersed and diffused itself into all the manifestations now interacting with itself. All the manifestations of one being, a large being, now interacting with itself from a variety of directions, and representative of what you would call many different races and cultures and civilizations and timings.

And in relation to the Greys and their not being accepted into the Association because of their interference with our civilization . . . .

One level of them.

Was the level that was discussed in the book that went to Mars another level?

Yes are factions of the Greys that are a part of different confederations, but again, as we remarked the idea of our Association, it is also slightly different than what you understand to be your Federation. Remember that we are in an alternate reality universe from you. Our Association is like a parallel construct of what you call, perhaps, or allude to as your Federation in your particular universal reality in your particular local.

Q: So they’re not…it’s not an identity there then?

B: There is no Grey to be an identity in our reality. We are what they have become.

Q: And is there any problem with any kind of microbe …contamination with the beings from Mars?

B: No.

Q: And, his idea of sending radio signals to Mars and the Moon …a way to contact them?

B: Yes.

Q: Are they operating on that level?

B: They can, they will in time, maybe? But it is an endeavor wish attempting but not any further than that, for there are no radio civilizations within your immediate star systems that would respond in that way. But within your own solar system there are beings who have the capability of responding that way should they so choose.

Q: And the last thing is the idea that they are covertly hiding out from us because they’re afraid of coming out and not having the proper recognition. What about the idea of the UN or the United States? What type of scenario are they looking for?

B: They are not looking for a particular scenario except that which contains the open heart and the open hand. However this can be accomplished will be the first establishment of the communication. There are many among you that have ideas for different ways in which this might be approached. Attempt all that you feel are representative of the concept of open heart and open hand. We will leave the rest for now up to you. There are now, many, many, many, changes, speaking of changes in the collective conscious – recognition of many of the things that are going on, on your planet, especially with regard to more and more and more and more and more awareness of extraterrestrial interaction and consciousness. You will now find that there is going to be much more, a flood more of information between your now time and what you call the end of your 1997 year regarding the whereabouts and the possibilities of beginning dialogues and interactions with certain extraterrestrial species.

Many gates are now opening, and I am talking about something quite physiological. You are going to find startling and stunning and staggering opportunities for interactions as long as you maintain a high degree of integrity, and this is paramount - a high degree of integrity and alignment within your own sense of responsibility, you will find that within the next 2 orbits of your time there will be very strong opportunity for interaction. Not perhaps with whom you think - something surprising. Though we have discussed this many times and though we have referred to it obliquely, you will find now there will be more direct references. The references we have already given are basically as follows: there used to be what you call millions of years ago in your kind of counting, a civilization upon the planet you call Mars. We have told you that many of the Martians in that sense, as you would recognize them, after there was a natural disaster that rendered their planet, mostly, non-inhabitable, did incarnate and re-incarnate upon your planet of Earth and so in that sense, many of you are Martians. - in that sense. However, there are still some of the originals and you will be meeting them. Also, we have discussed as we were asked many times, the idea of the probes that your planet has sent to your Martian planet, in that they seem to cease to function as soon as they arrive. And we have again told you, it has nothing to do with many of the cover-ups and conspiracies on your planet, it has to do with the fact that someone at the other end did not want the probes there. And did something about it. We have told you that now more than once, and you will come to soon, in the near future, find reinforcement and corroboration for this idea. And we would direct your attention to another thing we have said : and that is, as we have been asked many times about many of the places on your planet, and especially with regard to what you call the vortices, the doorways, the gateways that exist upon your planet in energy terms that connect your world to other worlds, other dimensions of reality. We direct your attention to many of the things we have said about what you call your Santa Fe, NM area. We have told you many times that it is a unique kind of portal, in that there is, shall we say, a similar portal of similar frequency on many other worlds that tie directly into that portal you know on your planet as Santa Fe. And so it could be said in a way that there is a Santa Fe on many different planets and to be in that vortex is to automatically connect you energetically, dimensionally, to many, many, many, other civilizations and realities. You will soon come to find that this is more literal and more immediate and more physical than you think.

Q: Also I wanted to find out if you would be willing to divulge what you know about the Blondes. Or are you able to say any more about the Blonde races?

B: One moment . . . Again there are a variety of appellations that you may have for different species that are called Blondes. We assume you are not referring to the concept of Pleiadeans?

Q: You assumed right, yes.

B: One moment, one moment . . . you are referring to in that sense to Procyon.

Q: Procyon . . . but is there another location? Because Procyon was the one I brought up the last time.

B: One moment, one moment. There are a few other locational bases much we are allowed to say because it will lead you in a certain direction. Some of them have established a very strong and large base in the system that you recognize as Alpha Centauri. And therefore many of them issue from there as well as Procyon.

Q: Okay and what can you tell us about the Martians – what do they look like?

B: At this point as we have said, mostly now because of the genetics – mostly human although in the more ancient form which still exists in some of the species they have a little bit of what you might call a proto – now this is just a affectation – it is not really as distinct as what we are about to describe as the animal form, but in that sense they are humanoid or what you would call humanoid but they have a slight characteristic of what you would call a type of proto-simian and ,or, almost a cat-like face. But again, this is very slight affectation, again they would appear to be just a little bit beyond the edge or the threshold of what you might typically on your planet call, a different race. You would recognize them as non-human but they are not so non-human that they would appear to you to be much more different than just to you perhaps a very distinctive other race.

Q: Yes. And how technologically advanced are they?

B: At this point you will find again that they have an advancement about 100 to 150 years ahead of you but in their ancient culture they were really not as advanced as you are now on Earth. They have been given this technology by the Greys, to aid them in their survival.

Q: Alright, so they’re in contact with the Greys – open contact?

B: O yes. It was the Greys who were responsible for the injection of the humanoid genetics that will help them survive on your planet.

Q: Let me ask you a couple of questions about Cosmic Voyage.

B: Yes.

Q: Alright, he describes his remote viewing of a hybrid race, very unconditional loving between the Greys and humans.

B: Yes.

Q: The Sassani?

B: Yes.

Q: Okay. Now another thing about the book. I was reading it laying on my bed one night, reading it and all and I had the distinct impression that I was being watched. Alright?

B: Yes.

Q: And then what I felt was kept looking around, ‘what’s going on here’?

B: Did you feel a tickle?

Q: Ah…(laughter)! More or less, and what I sensed was the book he describes when he’s remote viewing how Beings sense – you know well this being didn’t sense me yet and then, oh this being senses me now.

B: Yes

Q: Alright, now was I doing the same thing?

B: Do you mean were you experiencing someone sensing you?

Q: No I mean was I sensing someone more or less, not the remote viewing but checking me out?

B: Same difference.

Q: Yes.

B: Yes.

Q: And that’s what was going on?

B: Yes.

Q: Alright, and was this the Grey….
B: Yes.
Q: My Grey counterpart?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. And....
B: So many yes's...(laughter)
Q: Yesthing in the book....
B: Although that's not all it was.
Q: Okay.
B: Some of it was us.
Q: Oh, it was you.
B: Some of it...some of it was other things as well.
Q: Alright, when I was reading the book and reading about the Martians and all, I had the distinct impression of – I'm not going to say one or whatever but of being, like in caves or whatever, and checking out humans.
B: Yes.
Q: When humans come near them in their vicinity.
B: Yes.
Q: You know, and it just seemed like they were just like, you know, back in...you know what I mean checking it out from a distance.
B: Yes, I know what you mean.
Q: Okay, and their physical and non-dimensional reality on our planet?
B: A few of them.
Q: Yes, from the old race that used to inhabit the Martian planet when it was capable of inhabitation, yes.
Q: Alright, now the ones he's spoken about that are....Santa Fe Baldy?
Q: Are these physical, in our dimensional reality?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, and the numbers are a high amount?
B: Hundreds.
Q: Hundreds?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, and what are they living on, what sustenance do they...?
B: What they grow, what they get, what they are supplied with from time to time.
Q: Okay, now when the Grey’s interact with themGrey’s that are interacting with them are they in our physical dimensional reality?

B: When they interact from time to time they are, although there are interactions that take place in-between-worlds, so to speak, as well.

Q: Okay, the shifting... more or less the shifting is within our dimensional reality?

B: But they also sometimes, shall we say, manifest or solidify in your particular reality in order for some of these interactions to take place, yes.

Q: Blown away, you know, not blown away... but I really get off on the interactions that he had with Jesus and Buddha and all...

B: Yes.

Q: What about any remote viewing with Lucifer?

B: It can be done.

Q: It can be done. Now, what kind of being is Lucifer?

B: As we have said, it is the collective consciousness in that sense. Aspects not only of your world but of many different levels of dimensional reality, that has inflicted itself with a core seed issue of fear.

Q: So it’s the fear based consciousness.

B: “Primally” so. It is the very essence of the concept of fear in that sense as a vibration.

Q: Okay, that’s why there’s such negative connotations with it?

B: Yes.

Q: Was Lucifer at one time an angel?

B: It has projected itself in a number of different dimensional ways and one representation of that collective being is the idea you call angelic existence, yes.

Q: That is one representation of Lucifer.

B: It is the one representation that makes sense to the linear reality in which you exist.

Q: Okay, and alright Bashar, thanks a lot.

B: Thank you.

Q: Good day Bashar.

B: And to you good day.

Q: Bashar, I was wondering, in the UFO information that I’ve been exposed to, I have seen more UFO sightings over Mexico being recorded than perhaps any other area and I was wondering if there was a reason for this?

B: It is in that sense – now understand I mean this not only in some specific aspects literally but I also mean this mostly in a general context of a certain kind of energy signature. It is the time of the return of Quetzalcoatl. Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: And thus in many of those ships is the energy of the idea that would be called the race of Quetzalcoatl, and that is why it is most apparent in that area. For that area is being re-identified with that ancient energy. Rewe say in your modern computer age-initialized? Do you understand the context?
Q: A little bit. I’d like it if you could talk about it a bit more.
B: Energy patterns are being re-arranged to accommodate the injection of a re-appearance and an ability to interact with the ancient energy you knew as Quetzalcoatl. The energy must be different in order for these interactions to take place because much has changed and is no longer similar to the vibrational frequency that used to exist that allowed such interactions to take place, once upon a time, as you say.
Q: Do I understand that its limited to Quetzalcoatl…?
B: No, it is not limited in that sense, but that is the primary motivating energy for that area.
Q: Alright. And I also wondered about your civilization’s relationship with your planet Sassani, if you spend so much time in your ship…
B: I did not say we spent so much time, I simply said that our ships are our cities.
Q: Okay.
B: We are on our planet often, as well. But simply there are no built up structures except for a few circumstances for very specific reasons, and these even are simple. But we are on our planet’s surface very often.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: The Martians…?
B: Yes, what about them?
Q: Will a part of our communication with them revolve around the fact that perhaps we have to go through a partsegment of the Grey’s that are helping to deal with them?
B: Some of the communication with them has to do with your connection to the Greys, yes, but not all. You can be direct.
Q: In our meditations and remote viewing?
B: And physiologically.
Q: Four years ago I was in the hills of Santa Fe doing a meditation of yours on that cassette tape. And we were very near Mount Baldy. I was wondering if that kind of interaction…?
B: Which Mount Baldy?
Q: Santa Fe Baldy.
B: Alright. Yes, it was felt.
Q: Ah, we can go there physically and actually have an interaction?
Eventually, yes. If you make your physical presence there known, eventually there will be circumstance that will be appropriate for those inhabitants who have come from that planet no longer now inhabitable upon your world now that they live and hide. Eventually it will be appropriate for what you call “face to face” meeting. Just be persistent, but calm.

Q: Is there a way that I might recognize the Martians...?

B: Do you think you will have trouble knowing that?

Q: (Laughter) In a dream?

B: Do you think you will have trouble knowing that?

Q: Well...

B: Especially in a dream?

Q: What will the Martians look like, we been told they look like human beings.

B: It may in your dreams look like itself in olden times before it was genetically altered. It may look like many things but the point is that you will receive some feeling and or symbology that will let you know directly who you are dealing with if that is appropriate in the interaction. You don’t have to wonder about it, you don’t have to worry about it. You will know when you know.

Q: And will they have cat-like eyes?

B: I said maybe, not always. You will still know in other ways. Are you not familiar with the idea that in many of what you call your dream experiences there are simply things that you know. You don’t know how you know them but you know them anyway.

Q: Yes.

B: Well then, why should it be any different this case?

Q: Okay, one more question.

B: Oh, alright.

Q: About the Sphinx....

B: Yessss....

Q: This friend of some of ours is....

B: Which Sphinx?

Q: Ah hait is, thank you yes.

B: Which Sphinx? Earth or Mars?

Q: Hmmmm...Earth.

B: Oh alright, Earth Sphinx.... In the town of Mars.

Q: In the town of Mars?

B: In Cairo...means Mars.

B: And so.
Q: Below the paw.
B: And so?
Q: And we’re interested that there . . . we think there’s some information containing our deep deep past.
B: So?
Q: Could this be possible true?
B: Could it be possible? Yes.
Q: Is that the right place?
B: There are many chambers under the Sphinx that do contain information about your past, yes. That isn’t the only one.
Q: Ah . . . okay . . . okay. Is Mars . . . ?
B: You have a fondness for those two letters in your alphabet. (laughter)
Q: Is Mars connected to Martians, are they connected to the creation of the crop circles?
B: Indirectly in the same sense that they are a part of your collective consciousness, and as we have reminded many of you, regardless of the ones that are more directly genetically linked to the old race that used to live on the planet of Mars, many, many, many, many, many, many of what you would call the Martians have reincarnated as humans upon your Earth already anyway. So in that sense of course that are part and parcel, as you say, “mixed in” with everything that is going on because the crop circle phenomenology is a collective consciousness phenomenology and anyone in the neighborhood is participating some how.
Q: But you have said at one point that the Grey’s weren’t involved in the crop circles?
B: Not alone. . . . Tape Ends
B: Number one, good day.
Q: Good day, nice to be in your ineffable presence, once again.
B: And yours, as well.
Q: Do the Martians have a vocal language?
B: Yes.
Q: They are not completely telepathic?
B: No.
Q: So they speak English, they’ve studied it?
B: Some of them have learned how, although that is not their native tongue.
Q: How long ago did their planet become uninhabitable?
B: Somewhere along the order of about six million of your years, give or take.
Q: How long have they been in Mount Baldy and visiting Earth?
B: This genetic strain has been present for, what you would call, a few generations.
Q: In their current state, can they inter-breed with us, in our current state?
B: To some degree, there may be circumstances where this may be so, since they contain now so much of your human genetics, to allow them to survive. Although, in some circumstances, the offspring may be sterile; not in all cases, however.
Q: And being part Indian, does that make us part Martian in a sense?
B: In a sense, if you wish to simply be general about it, genetically, in a sense, yes.
Q: How many colonies of Martians are there on Earth, at the present time.
B: No comment.
Q: Will there be any interaction between the Martians and Tau Cetians before the Tau Cetians interact with the humans?
B: There is already some degree of interaction, some of it a little more clear telepathically than the interactions that are already beginning to exist or be created between the Tau Cetians and the earth humans. But mostly, this is through, what you call, the Shamans.
Q: There has been an allegation that the Anasazi Indians practiced cannibalism because some of the bones that were found, the bone marrow was chewed out. Can you confirm that?
B: This was in, what you call, isolated events. In certain offshoots, from time to time, due to certain circumstances and hardships and also, from time to time, due to certain, what you would call, religious beliefs or alterations in their beliefs.
Q: Did that extend from the Martian culture?
B: No.
Q: In Mexico, along with the UFOs, there has been seen some green orbs of light streaking through the atmosphere, any comment on that?
B: No.
Q: I recently watched the Miami connection....
B: Define?
Q: A replay of the Pleiadeans, they're claiming now that they have a contact in Miami....
B: No comment.
Q: What was brought out was that Quetzalcoatl and the Pleiadean ships that were seen with the Billy Meier incident were identical to the ones seen in Mexico City....
B: As we have said, the plethora of sightings in and around your Mexican area, do in many cases, not all, many cases, represent what you would call the return of the consciousness of Quetzalcoatl and some of the beings that are representative of that species. It is connected or cross-connected to some of the Pleiadean concepts, but it is not identical. There are more than one aspect to the concept of Quetzalcoatl. Some of them are different, in the same way that you have understood in Cosmic Voyage that there are differences in the Greys, in terms of time value. So in the return, there is a more ancient connection than what may, at your terms, be the present connection or cross connection to Pleiadean consciousness.
Q: Can you comment on the supplementation with a hormone precursor call DHEA?
B: Not at this time.
Q: Thank you, very much.
B: Thank you. Number two, good day.
Q: Good evening, Ambassador.
B: And to you as well, Representative.
Q: Is the timing auspicious to have any kind of direct connection or interaction with the Martian consciousness?
B: Go and find out.
Q: Through you?
B: NO!
Q: Okay. Is there any relationship of the blue race to the Martians?
B: No!
Q: Did they help develop blue corn?
B: NO!
Q: Okay. Atlantis.
B: Yes.
Q: There is a current theory out by a Canadian named Rand Flem-Ath that said the Earth’s crust shifted approximately 1,000 to 2,000 miles where Antarctica is now and that Atlantis is actually buried under the snow?
B: Go and find out. It is not a theory that comes only from that individual. We have already discussed that this new information, in your society, is for the purpose of exploring what this might mean to you. We will take it no further in literalness at this time, though there is literal truth to this idea in some aspects. We will not at this time discuss it further, in that way.
Q: And the project HAARP up in Alaska....
B: Yes.
Q: One of the designs is to use it to actually penetrate the Earth, to find things like minerals and ancient systems.
B: YESSSSS!
Q: Is there a grid system of tunnels in the Earth from ancient times?
B: Here and there, yes. Although they may not be necessarily as extensive as you might think it, in your mind, but in certain locales, they are extensive. Here and there, yes, they do exist, here and there.
Q: Can you explain how these ionospheric heaters can create a wave to read the Earth, read inside the Earth.
B: It is like creating an amplification layer, a mirror, a reflector that will bounce back and amplify a certain amplitude of wave so that it will have penetrating qualities. It is, again, similar to the concept of how your laser works, in the sense that the photonic energy is guided back and forth between two mirrors until it breaks through the less mirrored surface, the partially mirrored surface, in this way. By setting up a certain kind of reflective quality in the ionosphere, the wave is amplified and until such time as it penetrates in a certain way, energetically speaking, the layer of the Earth. Since it can no longer penetrate, except in a small amount of leakage, beyond the reflective ionospheric effect that has been created.
Q: How many gigawatts of power will be needed to penetrate down into the Earth?
B: 20 million.
Q: And another idea that has come out recently is the Fifth Column, are you familiar with that idea?
B: Are you talking about the idea of an internal organization that wishes to dispense information out to your general populace?
Q: Yes, and in particular, they are called the avenging angels.
B: Some of this is what you call literal, some of it is a test. No comment further.
Q: Can you comment on what is going on between China and Taiwan....
B: Not at this time. Look to your own news services for this kind of information, at this time. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Q: Good evening, Bashar.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I have a question that has come up a lot in our society, are there any Missing in Action or POW’s left over in Southeast Asia?
B: There are a few, not many.
Q: What agenda is holding them there?
B: Many different kinds of agendas, some of which are their own personal agendas. Some of which, in that sense, as you would call it, against their will, but not many. Some, in that sense, are simply what you would call displaced in their minds. They do not belong in any particular place or time and so, they do not feel that there is any home to return to.
Q: Another subject, there have been some accusations that our Apollo Moon landings were actually staged?
B: No.
Q: No. They all took place then?
B: There is much information that has not been given to you, as was just pointed out a few moments ago, about what has occurred on some of those excursions, but none of them were staged, in that context.
Q: The last thing is, you’ve often talked a lot about the letter ’x’ as representing the future and you’ve talked about the ’s’ sound in ’shss’— what is the mechanism behind those sounds that....
B: They are simply, in your language, the translations that best identify the vibrations associated with certain concepts. Thus, as sometimes you will find when individuals may make a connection to what they perceive to be their future selves, they will sometimes more often than not, donate or label a name to it that begins with an ’x.’ Not that, that necessarily is its name, not even that it has a name, but that will be your society’s translation of the vibration into the language you understand.
Q: Thank you, very much.
B: We thank you.
Q: Good evening, Ambassador. The first area I’d like to discuss is a report done by the Brooking Institute, are you familiar with that report?
B: To some degree.
Q: And this week there was another media blackout on an attempt by Richard Hoagland to reveal some...Martian moon information.
B: Understood.
Q: Um, as you scan our collective consciousness, do you see that we are ready, now after the Roswell autopsy film and some other incidents, to receive this information?
B: If you had been ready, as a collective society, would there have been a blackout?
Q: Well, that’s a good question.
B: Thank you. Do you have a good answer? Obviously there are certain individuals who are, but obviously when you say we collectively, the answer is obviously no, otherwise there would not have been a blackout, would there?
Q: No.
B: I’ll right then, next question.
Q: Do you see this becoming an issue in the current campaign for president.
B: Not on the surface.
Q: Not on the surface?
B: Deep within it can begin to be, but not on the surface.
Q: Our remote viewing friends from Atlanta gave me a call and wanted to know your perspective on our collective consciousness and the interaction with the Martians.
B: What about it?
Q: They feel it is about a year and a half away?
B: This is as good an estimate as any. Most likely, between your present time and 1999, there will be some outer contact. Therefore, what you would call the half way margin is a fifty-fifty proposition.
Q: And the last two things are, this week in Roswell an artifact from one of the downed ships was brought forth to the Roswell museum, is this an authentic artifact?
B: No comment.
Q: Okay.
B: Do your homework.
Q: Okay, it is being sent to a lab for analysis.
B: Then the homework is being done.
Q: The last thing is on the crop circles, some crop circles seem to have grape shots where others do not, what’s...
B: All of them do, but not all appear in the surface or the plain in which the crop circle appears. Some of them are simply that, that occurs above the circle in the air, in the atmosphere, in the electromagnetic field. Sometimes these are perceived as balls of light, other times they actually occur underground. These are, to some degree, the anchor points, the starting points of the electromagnetic surge that allows, what you call, the crop circle to be laid down. When they occur under the ground, sometimes they will cause concretions of material, in that sense, compacted stone and or aggregates of metal that can actually be dug up. But sometimes they will occur in the upper atmosphere above the circle and may from time to time, not always, be perceived as luminous balls of electromagnetic balls of light.
Q: Is that also responsible for some of the sounds that are left in the circles?
B: It is, in that sense, yes.
Q: Thank you, very much.
B: Thank you.
Q: The full moon this past month, can you explain what that was?
B: There is now, as we have addressed in the recent past, more sensitivity, on behalf of many of the people in your society, to collective consciousness shifts. Many of the things that occur in what you call your heavens, many of the cycles that may be represented by such things as lunar cycles, cometary cycles, planetary cycles, stellar alignments, so on and so forth, these are all reflective symbols of changes that are being made within the collective consciousness of your people and reflected by the timing of these events in what you would call the external reality. You are simply, in that sense, becoming more sensitized to the different thresholds that your society is now crossing with more rapidity as it approaches, what might be called, the leading edge of its collective accelerative consciousness, as it builds up against the threshold of the shift or the change from one understanding of reality to another understanding of reality and another set of behaviors that you are evolving towards, rapidly. Does this make some sense to you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: It is also what you have sensed and felt in your particular attachment to this vibration. Shifts and changes that are now going on in the collective consciousness of your society with regard to allowing a bit more acceptance into the collective vibration of what, you call, the Goddess energy. Does that make some sense to you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: And your second question?
Q: It is very unrelated. I was raised in a Mormon community and in recent years I have been wondering whether or not some of the information that was revealed in the 1830’s was actually channeled information.
B: Some of it was, but the idea is that in everything that you might call your planet mainstream religion, there is an element that exists, that is common to them all. And it is that element that all of you have had access to, through your own inspiration that is now coming to the forefront and making, shall we say, the rituals secondary to the energy itself and the relationship that is more direct to the Infinite, rather than through the idea of organization and rituals. Do you follow?
Q: Absolutely.
B: Yes, portions of that idea were received, as you would say, inspirationally. At the same time, portions of that information were actually delivered, shall we say, colloquially, by other levels of entities to some degree that presented themselves, or projected a physiological perceptible image, but again, this is true of almost every single one of your mainstream religions. And, even though there is, in your mainstream religions, no judgment intended, some distortion of some of the original information that was sent, in that it was applied to the system that existed at the time, as best could be understood. Now a lot of those systemic structures are falling and collapsing to reveal the actual kernel and seed of the original information in its original format.

Q: Thank you.

Q: Are most or all of the detainees that get impregnated, impregnated with eggs or fetuses that are not genetically connected to them?

B: Unlikely.

Q: And it’s been reported that there’s been, associated with some of the detainees, night blindness that’s been attributed to bright lights on board some of the craft.

B: It’s more like psychological blindness, but it has to do with the nocturnal visitations and a psychological response to them, yes. It is not directly physiological, it is psychological in origin. It is a reaction to the experiences that are happening at night.

Q: Okay. In Puerto Rico there’s been reported a half...it’s been reported as half gray reptilian know as the Chupacabra, the Goat Sucker.

B: Understood.

Q: It has been reported to be able to leap 20 feet, to fly, to have wings?

B: It does not fly! It does not have wings, though it has the ability to make you think it does.

Q: And it is chameleon-like.

B: In a sense, this is what I said, it has the ability to make you think it does.

Q: Is this part of the hybrid experimentation?

B: To some degree, but not exactly, it is more indicative of a direct connection to another species and another race.

Q: And the Hopis have the Blue Star and some people have said that it was the Shoemaker-Levy 9, the comet that crashed into Jupiter, and others have said that it was the comet Hyakutaka.

B: Hyakutake.

Q: Hyakutaka?

B: Hyakutake.

Q: And others have said that it’s the one that’s coming up next year?

B: Hale-Bopp.

Q: Hale-Bopp.

B: Blue Star is an entire realm, symbolized by any such things that come from that vibration. It is not one incident, per se. You need to understand this quality about the way, what you call the Native American culture, the Hopi, see things.

Q: More holographically.
B: Yessssss
Q: Then, who are the Mermen?
B: No comment at this time. At this timing....
B: Yes, good day!
Q: Good day, nice to be back in your presence again.
B: And yours asszzzzz well.
Q: Last time we talked, we talked about the Chupracabras.
B: Yes.
Q: The Goat Sucker.
B: Yes.
Q: What is the, um....
B: We will not address a list of things that you, on your planet, have the ability to research.
Q: Okay. What does the Association call that species?
B: One moment. Deny. Did you receive that?
Q: Deny?
B: Deny, yes.
Q: And where are they from?
B: [Bashar’s (Darryl’s) teeth start to clatter loudly.]
Q: And what relation do they have to their agenda....
B: No, no, no, no, no, no, no. No, not at this time.
Q: Okay, the next topic is about the Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy. It is said to be caused by a prion, a microscopic protein particle.
B: No, this is a triggered result of high degrees of certain combinations of toxicity within the system that this prion is thus, then created and released into the system, but it is not the causation. Do your homework.
Q: Why does the feeding of animals or humans to themselves cause this Spongiform condition?
B: As we have said, this is the introduction of a great degree of toxicity into the system. Toxicity begins with the idea of self canceling energy cycles and in the way that there are very few realms left on your planet that are free of toxicity, this is only a self-reinforcing and self-strengthening cycle of negative spirality.
Q: Okay, that answers a lot of things, because that means that its not contagious.
B: Only in the sense that there is a great degree of toxicity throughout your entire planet.
Q: Okay, and one of the issues that our population currently is facing is the assisted death and does suffering transmute negative energy?
B: It depends on how you utilize it, but not always so. It depends upon the individual, it depends upon the lessons they chose to learn by incarnating in that particular experience or choosing that experience in their life. You can use the idea in a positive way, but also, you do not have to learn those things in that methodology. It will depend upon the individual and we will not address this as a general topic.

Q: Okay, and as you scan our current president, Clinton, how do you view his overall intention?
B: Do you want this in twenty-five words or less?
Q: And who is he historically, on our planet?
B: Why did you proceed to the next question before we had finished addressing this? Are you nothing but a list of questions?
Q: No, I included that as part of the question.
B: Why, also, do you not research some of these things on your own instead of asking us?
Q: I have, and there are a lot of mixed opinions.
B: Then why not continue to research? We are not, in that sense, always the last bastion of clarity. The lesson for all of you is how to achieve clarity in your own reality.
Q: That’s true. Your perspective helps clarify a lot of situations.
B: Then my perspective is that, perhaps, the idea is that you should find your own clarity should be clarifying for you.
Q: I have a perspective on it but a lot of times the things that we get from our media and from our different sources of information...
B: Yes.
Q: ...can be distorted and, basically, dis-information.
B: We understand that but that doesn’t necessarily mean that you have to rely upon them for your sources of information. Each and every one of you is an antenna; go with your truth.
Q: Okay, and....
B: You know what is so; and it isn’t always necessary to wrap it in a particular scenario. Many of the things that you know to be so are, in a sense, sub-scenario, sub-verbal. You do not need to give them a coat of an experience to explain them; you just understand certain principles to be so. You do not have to attach a particular circumstance to it in order to make it more true. You understand?
Q: Right.
B: In other words, for example, we are not saying that this does not happen, for it has happened, here and there, on your planet but if you simply know, for example, that sometimes the idea of the structure you have created on your planet called the government, because of the way you have created it will, from time to time, not divulge certain bits of information to you. That doesn’t mean that you necessarily have to create a particular scenario and say that that scenario is true to simply know, as a truth, that they may be withholding information from you. So, sometimes the idea of certain theories of conspiracy may not necessarily be accurately so in your physical reality for the truth to still be true that they withhold information from you. And sometimes some of the things that you ascribe to certain organizations have in fact physically happened, but not in all cases. But the point is, you know in your heart the kind of idea and life you need to live and what you need to hold as true for yourself, without necessarily always having to hear, through any particular media source or governmental representative the idea of a clothing that it needs to be dressed in to make it any more true for you as a principle. All right?

Q: I don’t really look to the government to clothe any truth for me.

B: Oh, but you do.

Q: But...

B: But you do, you do, you do ... you do this is what we are saying and what we are addressing in the idea of some of your questions, not all, but some. The idea, by needing to clarify – is what this person said true? is this what’s really going on? is this news report valid? is it accurate? is it precise? – in that sense, you are yourself falling into the whole agenda of needing information in that form at all. You know the essentials of life that are true, so why wonder if a particular story is accurate when you already understand the truth of the principle behind it. And, again, understand that we are not saying that this does not have merit from time to time; but right now we are addressing the strongest energy that we have co-created in this particular interaction, at this moment, to give you the opportunity to relax some of your need to understand some of these things in such specific terms. For the more you relax out of the need to do that, the more you will understand from an innate point of view about what is going on, and you will know you have all the information you need, even if it is not dressed in specific terms.

Q: Okay

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

B: Good day.

Q: Good day, how are you?

B: Perfect and you?

Q: Great. I wanted to comment on the third absolute – what you send out comes back.

B: Yes.

Q: In relationship to unconditional – unconditionality within this realm, when we deal on a individual basis, because it appears that there are times when being unconditional is not in one's best interest.

B: How so?

Q: For instance....

B: It depends on how you are perhaps defining the concept of unconditionality. You may be confusing the concept of being unconditional with lowering your preferences. That is not what is meant by unconditionality, in terms of love. Just because a being is being unconditionally loving does not mean they compromise what their truth is for another. You understand the difference?
Q: Um...
B: Does that clarify it or is there some other idea you have going here?
Q: Well, for instance...
B: Yes.
Q: ...as you, being an example, often times you’re not unconditional with us because you obviously see that it is not in our best interest.
B: I am unconditional in the sense that what I have to share with you I absolutely do not care whether you take it to heart or not. I will share with you what I share with you because that is who I am. It is unconditional in that I make no demands in any way, shape or form that you have to buy into what it is that I am sharing with you. I think no less of you no matter what your decisions are, because I believe in you utterly, no matter what you choose to do.
Q: More in the sense of what you don’t give us. In other words, a lot of times people ask you for questions that you won’t give them answers to because it is obvious that it is not in their best interest to have that information at that time.
B: We understand that there may be, what you call, immediate conditions on the information in the conversation but that doesn’t mean that the love, in that sense, is any less conditional or unconditional.
Q: I’m not saying that it isn’t, I’m just saying that just from an observational point of view often times certain things are held back...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and there are certain conditions that have to be fulfilled.
B: But we have never said that anything else needs to be unconditional except love. Of course there are conditions on many other things, were it not so you would not be having a separate experiential physical reality. That’s the result of imposing conditions on your total self. The only thing that needs to be unconditional is love. Does that make sense?
Q: Yes
B: Does that help clarify the situation?
Q: Yes, and another subject, are you familiar with Maj. Ed Dames from Psi Tech? He was one of the people that helped Courtney Browne with remote viewing.
B: To some degree.
Q: He made a statement about the crop circles...
B: Being?
Q: ...that they were a signpost for inter-dimensional time travelers to locate time and space.
B: One moment, there is joyful laughter going on, on this side, at this comment. Not as a devaluation of the comment but just because the truth of the comment has been missed by most people that have heard it.

Q: Then....
B: You are all the time travelers that are using them as signposts, although others are using them, to some degree, that way too. But when you phrase it the way you have phrased it in your language, and this word coming up is not meant in any way, shape or form to be judgmental, but in the more literal use of the term, the way you are phrasing it is too mundane. The idea is that it is a very multi-dimensional concept that those are being utilized as signposts by time travelers. Most of you would immediately conjure up a science fiction scenario and visualize that sentence in a very particular way that is not really representative of anything but one very thin slice of the total reality of exactly what that phrase actually means. There is truth to the phrase, but there are limitations on your people’s ability to understand how to interpret that phrase.

Q: My understanding was that when beings come from, let us say, a non temporal, non physical point of view and they come into this realm, they can scan through the different circles in the different time frames and they can locate a specific time that they want to, let us say, manifest within.
B: In some senses there is truth to this but it is more than that, it is bigger than that, it is different than that, it is other than that, and yet, at the same time that is true. But we are discussing a very small aspect in the way it can be interpreted into your language.

Q: And, Robert Morning Sky, in his latest information, talked about the Knights Templar and he also talked about the lineage of Jesus.
B: Yes.
Q: That he did not die on the cross, which I think you’ve commented on before...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and he had children. And his information now is, and there’s been an attempt on his life which he thinks is connected to the information, that one of these offspring or one of the lineage is going to come forth and that will be recognized as the Second Coming.
B: That is not the Second Coming. As we have said the Second Coming, so to speak, if you just wish to approach it from that particular terminology, is the awakening of that spirit energy within each and every one of you, or at least those that are willing to allow it to happen that way.
Q: I understand.
B: There may be signals and significance in the sense of the appearance of different individuals signaling certain timings and so forth, but it must not be, in that sense, confused that is the incident, in and of itself. They are, if they appear at all, simply the idea of reflections of the timing of an incident, not the incident itself. Make sense?
Q: Yes, and....
B: The lineage of such does still exist. It is connected to some degree to the thing that we talked, in terms of ‘the long-lived ones,’ that may begin, may, may, may, may, MAY, begin to allow themselves to be more known around your year of 2005. We will say no more at this time.

12
Q: And....
B: Just to be conditional. (Audience laughter)
Q: Thank you. And the white buffalo that appeared a few years ago...
B: Yes.
Q: ...turned brown.
B: All right
Q: And a new one has been born that’s now white.
B: Yes.
Q: Is there any significance to that transformation?
B: Of course there is, I’m going to leave it to you to figure that out as your homework and relate it back to us, next time. All right?
Q: Okay. And the last area I’d like ... there’s two areas ... how is the alternative system in this area coming in place? I know you’ve said that one of the reasons for your channeling in this area and getting small groups of people together in different areas, was that you felt that was the best way to have an effect. With small groups of people getting together and spreading that energy outwards...
B: Yes.
Q: ...would have a greater effect than a large group in one specific area.
B: In certain ways, yes, it was deemed to be so. Although, again, we were simply going along with the flow of what we recognized to be the energy and consciousness dynamic of your world. Not that we need there to be an effect.
Q: Right.
B: We were simply falling into the slot that seemed most appropriate for the delivering of our particular frequency, where and when your collective consciousness had invited it in. This is where we fit, in other words.
Q: And do you see this area being aligned with the upcoming changes?
B: Can you be more specific?
Q: Can you see us transforming the old system into the new, smoothly? Or do you still see a lot of social and political upheaval?
B: There are already social and political upheavals going on in your planet right now, are there not?
Q: Well, I’m talking about the LA, Southern California area.
B: Yes, but are there still not social and political upheavals going on even in your own Los Angeles area?
Q: Yes.
B: Well? Then they will be, for a time, still side by side. There will be those that are smoothly transitioning and laying down of alternative systems and those that are going through upheaval, side by side. They are paralleling. Do you understand the difference?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

B: We will ask you to stand by ... there will now commence, in times of coming, in these communicated links that are established between you and the Sassanian ... other additional agendas that will be incorporated into these communic-AAA-tions, for a variety of reasons, that will allow for the presentation of new structures, new ideas, new formats, new individuals, new entities to share in the new forum and a new format, many different perspectives and ideas from many different kinds of civilizations. To allow more of the Association energy to be present with you in these forums and in these formats, and in these meetings. It shall be like unto the idea, perhaps, if you wish to label it in this way, of miniature council meetings where you shall be, shall we say, let in as part and parcel in the gallery of council meetings of the Association. So that you can, to some degree, hear what is going on, what is being discussed, and in some way participate in sharing your ideas of what is going on in your planet and allowing us, by interacting with each and every one of you, to gain from you and to glean from you, ideas and perspectives of how we can all better interrelate in the times to come, for the different formats that are being set up for future interactions.

We simply now make this announcement of this future agenda and this future format and forum and we thank you for the opportunity to have made the shift within our own reality and to recognize the shift within your own reality, for such formats to take place along these future lines. We extend, each and every one us, our deep appreciation to each and everyone of you, and we will resume contact at a future time of appropriate timing. We thank you and good day.

Q: I have an interest in the name Gordon Michael Scallion.

B: Yes.

Q: Rather dramatic geophysical changes....

B: Yes, we understand. Many of these original predictions have already been transformed, to some degree, by the mass-consensus. And, in fact, the service provided by the fact that certain individuals will pick up on these energies and make those predictions, is for the very service of giving the collective consciousness a chance to alter that prediction, if it so desires. Therefore, some, not all, some of those original predictions have already been transformed in other ways by the collective consciousness. So, at any moment, when you hear a prediction, allow yourself to understand something right off, as you say. Number one, the very fact that you’re hearing the prediction adds energy to the overall equation of the mass-consensus reality. And the very fact that it’s there changes the energy of the consensus reality, and may, by the very fact that it’s there, automatically render the prediction obsolete.
Saying it, in and of itself, may be for the purpose of diffusing it, you understand? Because it gives the mass-consensus the awareness that the potential energy is there to go in this direction, and if that’s not what you prefer, get in touch with what you would rather prefer and alter this energy. So, by the very fact that the announcement has been made, it puts it into the awareness of the collective consciousness for debate, and allows the collective consciousness to decide, to vote, as you say, as to how it is they really best believe they need to experience the transformation that that prediction symbolizes and represents. In all cases the predictions are usually, usually, accurately representative of the timing of a shift. But that does not necessarily mean it has to play out in the way the actual prediction was made. Some of them might, but not all of them will. And many of them have already changed to a great degree. Does this make some sense to you?

Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Does this answer your question sufficiently?
Q: You read my mind.
B: Is there some other idea you wish to discuss?
Q: Ah ... no.
B: ...the idea of the Reptiloid civilization, by being connected to many other civilizations that have that function, will often, now and then, find themselves in different time frames and you may perceive them interacting with you on different levels, from different spaces and places in space, and time as well.
Q: Right. Historically, was there a time when they were sort of impressed into service with the Orions?
B: Yes, and in many cases some of them still are.
Q: Yes ... okay. What I’m getting now, that in regard to the Grey program, the genetic program, perhaps, there is another race that’s not being spoken of, that is being created also, that evolves back into the reptilians and that....
B: There are several different things going on that have not really been spoken of too strongly, at this time, because it is not appropriate and would take away from the main agenda that it is important for your people to understand, first and foremost. But all of that will come out in time and you are sensing that there are many other branches to things going on.
Q: Yes.
B: But we can perhaps give you a little better insight as to the origination of the idea of the reptiloids, even though it was not necessarily begun at exactly the same time; perhaps even prior to the genetic alterations that took place in the creation of the humanoid form, as you understand it now. Still again, the concept of the Annunaki takes place in this, in that they utilized the genetic material of the reptilian life forms on your planet to create that race before they got around to utilizing the humanoid, or in your terms, the idea of simian life on your planet that was naturally inherent on your planet to create the humanoid life form you are now familiar with as yourselves. You understand?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: In the idea that the humanoid life, quote/unquote, ‘rebelled’ in their servitude, the idea is that the reptilian life did not. You understand? Thus they were removed mostly from your planet and continued to be utilized in service to many other beings, in that way; whereas human species were simply left to fend for itself on your planet. You understand?

Q: Yes. Are the Annunaki, Sirians?

B: Lyrans. Originally the idea from Lyra and eventually splitting off into the idea of Orion systems, Pleiadean systems, now and then in future contexts especially; some connection to Sirius energy but that is a different route altogether. Does this help you?

Q: Yes. Thank you very much.

B: Thank you.

End of tape 7.
Q: Good evening.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: Thank you, once again, to you and your civilization for this opportunity to perpetuate itself.
B: And you and yours.
Q: Last time we talked here in Vegas, I asked you about the Greys that were cut off from their society.
B: Yes.
Q: And you said that one of their situations that they run into as punishment, so to speak, is that they get cut off telepathically from the rest of the group.
B: In some senses this has occurred from time to time where rouge individuality has appeared, yes.
Q: What type of actions would determine that type of action to be taken by the collective?
B: That which at any given moment may appear contradictory to the collective agenda.
Q: And what determines when they are allowed back in?
B: It will depend upon the individual circumstance, mostly, obviously as to whether or not they come back in line with the collective agenda and, if not, perhaps, then, in a sense, not allowed back in. But each individual case may have some specific attributes that will determine whether or not this is advantageous, for in some senses sometimes the collective may feel that the individual, or what might be called the rogue consciousness, has to some degree become contaminated with vibrations that do not serve the collective agenda, and at that level it may never be allowed back in.
Q: So they can just scan the individual’s vibration and when they see that frequency not there anymore they will allow them back in.
B: Remember it is not even a matter of scanning, it is collective consciousness, they simply know – in the same way you automatically know when your little finger is hurting, they simply know when some part of their collective hive mentality is not functioning in alignment with the whole.
Q: Is there a faction of the Greys that is similar to, let us say, the hierarchy that is not following the collective momentum?
B: Yes, those are the rogue individuals.
Q: But in a positive sense?
B: Sometimes, mostly in a confused sense, since many of them do not bring with them the wherewithal to evolve completely into a completely balanced, individualized consciousness state. Some of them simply die out, some of them, in one sense of the word, go mad. Some of them will attain the idea of the balance, but may be very, very, still alien to anything you would recognize as an individual who is unto itself emotionally balanced.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Roommates

Q: I have a question concerning one of my housemates.
B: Yes.
Q: She goes through very strong mood swings, which she attributes to PMS, and I have a question in terms of, I suppose, how to... for myself... how to deal with her incredible mood swings. And also, is there something that she could do – either in terms of meditation, or diet, or something to center...
B: Do you think she would trust her imagination to give her what she needs? Or do you think she believes in her own victimhood more?
Q: She’s slowing learning to trust her imagination, but she’s still...
B: All right. Is she doing what excites her the most in life?
Q: Not at all.
B: Perhaps any frustration that she has may stem from that.
Q: I’m sure it does.
B: Then you can suggest that if she is willing to trust it, doing what excites her will support her and sustain her – rejuvenate her.
Q: Okay. I had another question in terms of my relationship with her: we seem to create a very chaotic energy, and things are breaking all the time, and...
B: Perhaps when you do not impose so many limitations, then the walls and the objects in your reality will not be within striking distance, nor need to be broken to allow you to stretch beyond – to feel as if you have room to move, without everything being so fragile.
You are simply recognizing the interconnectedness of everything, but you are still recognizing it with some degree of fear, negativity. You think that because everything is close at hand and interconnected, then that means that one thing can affect another in a negative way very easily – and of course if you believe that, it can.
One thing will always lead to, and connect to, another. And if you believe the idea to be fragile to begin with, then it will be no surprise that one broken energy will allow another energy to reflect itself in that state. But if you recognize that the interconnectedness of everything is what allows it to be strong, then you can EXPAND IT to infinite depths and it will never weaken, it will never become thin, it will never break, it will never become uncohesive.
You do not need to have everything, so to speak, right in front of your analytical scrutiny in order to feel that you have a handle on it. Because then there is so much focus, so much pressure, that it crushes the idea before you. Are you following this?
Q: All right. To some extent.
B: We recognize it is, in your terms, metaphorical: but we are sensing an energy dance, an energy orchestration. You are pivoting and pirouetting around each other as polarity reflections. The idea simply can be that if you are willing to look at the reflections in each other and allow them to be of service, then you do not have to allow the mirrors, that you are, to break. You do not have to be shattered by the reflections you receive from each other.

Q: Are the reflections that we’re receiving the negative, the negativity or . . .

B: Some of it can be. If you are willing to recognize all the reflections as positive, however, you need not have any negative effect or experience from your perception of them.

In a sense, the idea can be likened unto what some individuals will do remotely – what you call poltergeist phenomena. Where there are the flying around of objects and the breaking of objects, 99.9% of the time, as you would say, it is actually an extension of the individual’s energy, not another consciousness.

So in this way, all the fragility, the breaking of things, is simply one more reflection of energy that you are not dealing with that goes into the breaking down of the symbols in your reality. Now this can have a positive meaning, you can allow the breaking asunder of the symbols to also mean that you do not need some, or any symbols.

So you do not have to look for so many symbols, in an analytical sense, in order to understand each other, you can have direct knowing, direct feeling of each other. You do not have to act through many symbols, which are only your illusionary projections and may not be strong enough to contain the energy that you are.

They will break apart if you try to imbue the symbols around you with the power for allowing you to understand the situation you are in. For the understanding must always come back to you. The symbols around you breaking, may be an inherent belief which you have within yourself that to take all that power within yourself would destroy you.

But you do not have to fear that. You are infinite, you are indestructible. And it will not feel like pressure if you are willing to accept the reflections within each other as positive messages, positive sharings, positive interactions. And be willing – be willing – to state whom you are without having to accuse the other individual. Be willing to state who you are; strengthen yourself; stand up for yourself.

Share with them your viewpoints as to how they may – not that they have to – but how they may be able to allow themselves to regain their own self-empowerment, their own strength. Allow them to know that they can do what excites them, and you can do what excites you. And then together, you will reflect and parallel each other’s strength in your excitement, in your ecstasy, in your sharing. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Thank you very much.

Q: Thank you.
Root Races

Q: On our planet we have...usually they talk about five races, but I’ve also read a lot about the seven root races...

B: Yes.

Q: you give an explanation of exactly how many races there are, and what exactly that means?

B: There were, what is called, seven root races, which was representative of seven different genetic patterns, which were utilized to formulate the basis of the human species on earth, physiologically. Taking from some of the initial stock of the being which evolved naturally upon the planet and adding to that stock, that being, that creature, if you wish to call it such, the different genetic patterns of different civilizations, extraterrestrial in nature, to form a proper vehicle for attachment of the soul.

There were the seven basic root races, five of which are apparent on your planet. And in ancient times, two others which were recognized by blue tints to the skin in Lemurian times, and also those which would be a little be more of what might be called whitish, white, white, white skin, some of which had flaming red hair, in that sense, as you call the color, and a variety of other hues which is not seen exactly in much the same way as some of the Caucasian races on your planet now. But was something quite a bit different.

These formed the basis for some of the genetic and evolutionary patterns that took off from that point on your planet. Some of them have been absorbed into the admixtures that exist upon your planet now. With the exception of the genetic quality, to a great degree, of the blue tinted race, you have representation of all six of the other genetic strains upon your planet at this time. There are a few, very few, very few recessive genetic traits of the blue tinted race still intermingled in the entire genetic pool on your planet. But you do not really see so much the idea of this adventing itself outwardly in your species. You follow along?

Q: Yes. Does that include the races that are supposedly in the interior of the earth?

B: No. No. No. No. Not really, not at all. We are not discussing that issue in this particular mention of the seven root races. This has to do with the perpetuation of the species on the surface of your planet, in your particular dimension. It doesn’t have anything really to do really with those inter-dimensional beings that exist in other dimensions that you perceive to be inside your earth, but which, of course, as we say, exist in other dimensional vibratory planes. There is some intermingling on a spirit level, on an energy level, on an etheric level, with regard to the other races, but not really genetically.

Q: Do the seven original races have names?

B: One moment...we will work during the course of this interaction to translate the original root words into your language sounds. But right now we will allow this to rest, until such time as this information has been processed and can be brought through, for it is unlike your languages now and really was, to some degree, telepathic in nature, but did have synchronous sounds that went with it, but not really as you understand language as such.
Q: Can it be broken into colors?
B: Yes. It can be represented of the spectrum to some degree, but not absolutely literally across the board, as you say.
Q: The last thing on this subject: I heard that the seventh root race would be recognized, specifically, in the Peruvian area with a violet tinge to their aura, is this true?
B: Yes. This is the remnant that exists in etheric state that you carry around, and certain people exemplify it, or express it more than others. Because of the blue tint race, it appears blue in the skin, but it will appear violet in the aura. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: And is, to some degree, connected to those that you call indigenous native Americans, for it was very similar to the root race of Lemuria, in that sense.
Q: So there is not a linear progression of incarnation as far as the root races? They all sort of seeded at the same time?
B: Yes.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Rotational Speeds And Transformational Incarnations

Q: On the mechanics of the space shuttle, you talked one time about something rotating at 2-1/2 times the rotational rate of the Earth – and that would be a very slow rotation.
B: Yes.
Q: About once every eight hours, because . . .

B: No. No-no-no-no-no-no. Understand that what is being described is a rotation approximately for your own planet of 2300 times per your minute.

Q: 2300 times a minute.

B: Which will be 2-1/3 times the idea of your rotational speed upon your axis – not translating literally. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: In revolutions per minute it will be that number representative of 2-1/3 times the rotational speed per your hour. 1000, in terms of your miles.
Q: 1000 miles per hour? You mean the surface of the Earth goes 1000 miles per hour?
B: Yes.

Q: Okay, so the outside of the device has to go 2300 miles per hour.

B: Per minutes. Not miles; revolutions. Simply understand that will be one phase of initiation. Realize there are many, many, many different levels of revolution per minute, as you understand time, that will accomplish different effects. You will find that that particular rotational speed at this time will relate primarily to your Earth crystal within a specific dynamic ratio, which will allow you to observe many of the effects that you need to observe within the beginning of your understanding of that particular effect. You will find that as you allow yourself to expand your understanding, there will be opportunities for you to achieve rotational speeds of many million times per your minute, depending upon the idea you wish to accomplish. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm, I think so.
Q: Understand simply that at the slower rotation you will be able to experiment with that idea that you have labeled anti-gravity. Understand that as you increase the rotation and effect a combination of rotations within the various portions of the craft, sometimes to a degree within opposite rotation of certain components, you will find yourself creating variations within the field round and about that craft which will be generated by that rotation, which will enable you not only to move about, as you say, within one dimensionality of your understanding, but within many different dimensionalities, including that which you call time. You follow me?

Q: I think I do. Would it be a good idea to experiment with rotating vectors of 2300...

B: Yes. Question.

Q: There is a belief among some people that there is a planet called Markab, and people called Markabians, who, the belief goes, are interfering with Earth’s – or manipulating Earth’s affairs of different sorts – in order to bring Earth into some kind of Confederation. And they would be our sponsor, or something like that. Do you know anything about that?

B: All right. Now, allow me to say: what you are perceiving, what those individuals are perceiving at this time, is simply a variation of your own consciousness relating to an incident which took place within your particular solar system many millions of your years ago. And as such understand that there will be identification within many of the beings upon your planet at this time, as they have now allowed themselves to be here, in a sense incarnated among you as your own people, understanding themselves to be your own people.

But understand there will be that drive of connection to simply recreate to a degree much of the negativity that occurred during the occurrence of the destruction of their own civilization. And as such you will find there will be acting out, working out, the idea so that they may come into tune with the cycle now prevalent upon your planet of in a sense forming a transformation along more positive lines. They will not influence you against your belief system in allowing yourself to be influenced in a negative way. Again understand there are no victims. You cannot be controlled except as you agree to be. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. Thanks.

Part 1
Notes
He asks everyone to set aside their expectations and assumptions about what they expected from their communications. And they have a very specific agenda for the evening. He has his reasons but does not specify.

He reminds us that he had commented in 1999 that there was a 97% chance of a terrorist strike in NYC. At that time the energy was dark enough to have been a Nuclear strike, but had been reduced down to the airplane strikes.

Because of the terrorist strikes we now have come to fruition and have past on to the other side of a specific energy threshold, hence their agenda to communicate again.

Since time is meaningless to them, 1997, the time of the last channeling, is like a minute ago to them. They needed the shift to reconnect with the channeling. No specifics were given.

He extends, to all, membership in his Association of Worlds, Interstellar Alliance, Federation, whatever we which to call it, it doesn’t matter to them.

Interaction with their consciousness was necessary before such time as a more physiological interaction between our respective worlds. And then we will become a recognized member of the Association. They wish to help us in our next step of our evolution. We are welcome to continue our association with their Association. We are at this point “honorary members.” We don’t quite yet have a vote. Except the most important one, which is the vote for our planet.

He reminds us that the things he discusses with us have a PURPOSE which isn’t always apparent on the surface. The words they choose have more than the meaning coming from the words coming out of the channels mouth. While they talk about one thing there are many other things going on on many different levels being delivered.

They invite us to a different place than most of us have been on in the past couple of weeks.

This is not so much about who did what to whom and why, or what is going to happen now. This is about taking stock & responsibility of whom you are; this is about ENGAGING each other, into more action and activity. In order to act more like the members of the Alliance. We are honorary member of the Association and the Alliance by our participation.

There are things to say and do without pushing or demanding, but with love. Remember to act with body, mind and spirit. The greatest power requires the lightest touch.

If you find a lack of receptivity, MOVE ON, move around or under. Flow over, flow through like water. Ask with love.

Title of communication is RSVP, because it is an invitation to RESPOND. Respond, not react, but respond. Which is the root of responsibly, your ability to respond.
We have an unprecedented opportunity in the collective energy, look at what is happening, look at the unification. Also very crucial is that our culture has been taken by surprise. We are still very much in a state of shock and surprise, bewilderment, amazement and wonderment. One of the main reasons for the current interaction is because our culture is like clay. Our rigidity has gone out of us. There are still rigid reaction but this is a fragmentation. It signifies, like bones in a body, some time to change. We are now open, we are ringing like bells. And they can hear and feel it. And that is why it is necessary for them to respond NOW. This state will last for a little while, perhaps for the remainder of our year. It is a precious and important time in our society for change and action in word and deed.

There will be a sense of wondering, and questioning who we are, why we are here. Just put you out there and act, be and do. Show love, allowance, helpfulness, relationship. There is only one thing and it is all of us. Creating different notes and an orchestration of allowance.

Destruction is not power. It is easy to destroy. That’s because it takes no power. Power is in creation, relationship and unity. It takes no power to destroy that’s why anyone can do it. And it is easy and quick. Create and bond together a foundation that will be unbreakable across the planet. Teach through action, not through you must know this or else you are not one of us. Not that. That is not teaching, it is only fear that what you say you believe in might not be so.

Look to stories, myths and legions. One of the strongest in our society is Star Trek. It reflects certain things about us, and there is no accident about the timing of the episodes, they have actually used it many times to see the reflections going on on all levels of our society. Look where the new Star Trek is going, all new. The same thing is happening in our society. Pay attention to all the reflective mirrors in society.
Sai Baba

Q: Yes. Are you familiar with the individual on our planet that is called Sai Baba?
B: Yes.
Q: When he materializes things out of the void, they sometimes seem to be artifacts that come from...that are manufactured...
B: Yes.
Q: ...in time and space.
B: This is called following the path of least resistance. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: In other words, there is an etheric template in which things can be duplicated exactly as they have already been manufactured upon your planet, because they came from the etheric template to begin with. The etheric template can be utilized to teleport objects that have been manufactured already on your planet. So there is a variety of effects that are happening with regard to that particular individual. Sometimes they are manufacturings of duplication, sometimes they are teleportations of already manufactured objects. Sometimes they are being created from the raw etheric template state, according to the intent of that individual. There are a variety of effects that are happening to create those particular objects to be at particular location at that particular time. Make sense?
Q: Yes.
B: The conduit takes the path of least resistance.
Q: Is he in conscious control of exactly the manifestations that come forth? Or is it...
B: To some degree, yes, but not necessarily which route shall be taken. This he simply leaves up to his allowance of the path of least resistance.
Q: So does he actually, consciously, let’s say, bring forth a watch or a ring?
B: Not always. Sometimes the intent is clearly there, sometimes there is just the allowance for the proper object that serves the symbolic gesture for the best of all concerned.
Q: And then it just manifests?
B: Yes.
Q: So what exactly is the ash that falls?
B: This is what might be called raw material, raw etheric energy coming into primordial physiological structure without cohesiveness in the sense of a crystalline identity. It is what might be simply called the background substance. What used to be called, to some degree, ectoplasmic substance, but in this case it has presented itself in the form that you recognize as ash. It is raw etheric.
Q: Does it have a tachionic quality to it?
B: All things do.

Q: I mean in the sense that, like silicone and crystal and . . .

Q2: Like why is it good to eat? They put it on their tongue and their third eye.

B: This is similar to what was called Manna. You understand? It is that direct etheric effluvium that is constructed in the four basic elements that are the primary building blocks of all of your physical reality. You understand? The carbon and the nitrogen and the oxygen in this sense, plus, also, sometimes there are the ideas of the hydrogen and sometimes the trace elements of the silicones.

Q2: What does it do when you use it? Is it just like a ritual, or does it actually have an effect?

B: It can have an effect; again, it will depend upon the intent of the individual absorbing the material. It can be utilized in a variety of ways. Those of higher vibratory nature can allow there to be a complete energy transference, and it will energize them greatly. Other individuals may simple find that it will have one particular very specific focus for them, or other individuals may not find an effect at all. It will depend upon the state of the individual receiving it as much as it depends upon the state of the substance and the individual creating it.

Q2: I mean are there specific . . . I don’t know enough about what it can do to put that focus, on the highest possible thing that I could have some, and I . . .

B: All right. Look at it this way. Look at it as the basic plasmoid substance of all physical reality so that it is a transmutable element, so that when taken inside it will transmute into whatever it needs to do, whatever it needs to replace, whatever is missing it will fill.

Q2: Like, replace my missing parts and part of my structure and my DNA.

B: Yes. Yes.

Q1: What is the closest physiological substance that we have in our society that can carry that function off?

B: Water.

Q1: Mineralized water?

B: Yes. To some degree and sometimes not even mineralized, just water, oxygen. Sometimes by itself, depends again on the state, but primarily, water. Sometimes with certain silicones contained therein.

Q1: Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Sai Baba
Santa Fe / Sedona Energy

Q: I know someone who lives here and feels that the energy of Santa Fe is so powerful that he wants to leave every six weeks in order to be able to stay here.

B: Some people will have this kind of cyclic build up within themselves, they are like human capacitors that build up a certain charge of energy and then must go and discharge it somewhere else. This is not uncommon on your planet, there are many vortexes that are actually designed to do exactly this: to build up a certain idea and then allow them to discharge it in a certain way, sometimes involving actually moving out of the area in order to do so.

Sedona is another such energy center of build up and discharge.

It is a very uniquely polarized center in that it amplifies whatever you specifically bring with you into that area – negative or positive. Now Santa Fe is a little more forgiving, now it is a little bit softer, but yet, it is still uniquely connected to that same build up and discharge pattern in general. So, some people will simply find that that is a pattern that they are flowing with, it is not necessarily in and of itself, a negative thing, it is just the way they have designed themselves right now to handle the build up of energy.
Santa Fe as a Frequency Doorway

Q: What is there about this area of Santa Fe, the frequency that makes me, and I would assume other people, see things more clearly.

B: As we have described before when communicating with individuals in your Santa Fe area, your Santa Fe area is quite unique in its resonance pattern, in that it represents – as do a few, a few other areas on your planet – it represents a very specific kind of gateway, a doorway that is precisely vibrationally replicated on many, many other planets and other civilizations. In other words, there is an equivalent frequency of Santa Fe on other worlds. So that those doorways are connected very strongly to other places, other times, other dimensions, other spaces in a very specific vibrational way – a very strong doorway in that sense. Make sense?

Q: What is the advantage of this kind of connection?

B: The advantage of this connection is that you have the ability to specifically access information that is pertinent and germane to some of those other civilizations and dimensions of experience, by being immersed into the vibration of Santa Fe, more easily than you might by being immersed in the vibrational vortex of some other location on your planet. It is like dialing the correct number, rather for a particular home and a particular person, rather than just a general area.

Q: Conversely was that Los Alamos was put where it was...

B: Yes, although this was what you might call an unconscious sensing. It was recognized that the area was conducive to frequencies where an access could be had to certain forms of knowledge that have to do with high understandings of energy and extraterrestrial and ultra-dimensional formats, past, present and future. It all comes together in this particular kind of gateway vibration. It is an informational matrix, so to speak, of a very specific order.

What you will generally find when you find yourself so... will be that, as you explore your bandwidths and come across the particular vibrational signature that represents your unique interpretation of the Santa Fe energy, you will find that there will be a pen pal on the other side.

Q: You said there were some other crafts hovering with your ship above Cairo?
B: No, no, no I am the only one from my civilization above Cairo, as you would understand it, directly. The other three ships are at different positions around your planet, together forming a tetrahedral structure, in a sense. Do you follow?
Q: Right, okay, but what I was curious about was what civilization they might be from?
B: The others in the tetrahedron are from my civilization. There are others from other civilizations forming other kinds of relationship structures to your planet, but all four ships including mine, in the tetrahedral structure I spoke of, are from my civilization.
Q: Okay, so there are other ships from other civilizations that are in conjunction with you adjusting this energy?
B: Yes, helping with you.
Q: Okay, because we asked for this assistance?
B: Yes, but you are also playing your part, we are not doing it for you. We are acting as catalysts, and by definition, a catalyst is something that allows a reaction or a response to happen but doesn’t actually directly participate in it; but its presence is necessary for the thing to happen.
B: At this time we must allow their to be adjustments that are made; we must allow there to be a compaction of space-time. We thank you for your sharing of this time and extend to each and every one of you, that upcoming now within what you call the next span of time that you call weeks ahead, in the next month or so, or two, or three much shifting, much acceleration, as you create the new link and the new bridge to your new orbit, your new orbit coming up. Many different things will now begin to accelerate; we will help regulate what we can. You will find much will be opening and much more information will be revealing itself. Stay within the vibration that you know is your truth and you will automatically attract yourself and magnetize yourself to those bits and pieces of information and those doorways and gateways of information that are germane and relevant for what it is you need to know to continue to expand in the direction of being yourself. It is this degree of commitment and conviction that is necessary now for you to live your truth and experience the reality that you truly prefer. We thank you for this exchange in allowing us now to co-create with you this transmission through this gateway and this window at this time. And we will for quite some time now in terms of your counting of months, be literally, physically in our ship in proximity to your planet along with several other members of our species to help assist with the regulation of some of the frequencies that you will now be creating and experiencing in your collective consciousness. We thank you for this opportunity and this sharing to become more intimate with each and every one of you, individually and collectively, and to each and everyone of you our unconditional love and a fond, exciting and creative/active good day.

Q: I had a dream and I was standing out on a country road all by myself looking up at the moon.
B: Yes, what phase?
Q: Full moon, I thought it was the moon then I noticed, I realized then, it was a spaceship, it wasn’t the moon. As soon as I realized that, it zoomed toward me and a number of spaceships were flying around sort of like a scene out of Close Encounters. When I saw all these spaceships I remembered the last time you spoke to us when you said, ‘you were physically coming to this planet to do some work’....
B: Our ship is still in proximity to your world and your dimension at this time. I am approximately what you would call three-thousand of your miles above what you term the area Cairo.
Q: What are you doing there?
B: Speaking to you at the moment, but in general, you will find that, as we explained, a certain kind of assistance was required that four of our space crafts, in conjunction with other spacecraft and other portions of your collective consciousness on your planet, form a kind of geometric grid to aid and assist in the balancing and the flow of certain kinds of electromagnetheric energies on your planet at this time to help balance and smooth out certain shifts that are going on within the next month to three months of your time. Do you follow?
Q: Not really ... what shifts are you referring to? ..

B: There are energy shifts that can be manifested in a variety of physical ways, but we are aiding and assisting in helping each and every one of you make the determination for allowing the flow of energies in the accelerations that are occurring now to manifest in the most constructive, smoothest, fluid creative ways possible. So we are acting, in a sense, as balancing mechanisms. Do you follow? We are not doing it for you but we are assisting you in learning how to balance by forming geometric grids that allow the energy to be better focused. Does that make sense to you? ..

Q: I’m not sure. Are you talking about preventing earthquakes, for example?

B: I didn’t say that but if you find that there is that kind of energy within the potential of the collective consciousness then should it serve you that the earthquake come to pass, the energy will flow in that direction. Should it serve you that it does not, then we will aid and assist the energy to flow in that direction. It is not the determination specifically of the outcome; say, that the earthquake is either good or bad, but that we aid and assist in the flow and collection of the acceleration of your energy for what really will be of best service to all concerned. That does not always determine what the outcome itself would actually be, in that sense, but only that you know that whatever it is, we have done our best to assist you in helping you amplify the direction that would serve the best of all concerned. Does that make more sense to you?

Q: Yes, but I’m wondering how you determine...what this...I mean is it?

B: We sensed the amplification in the collective consciousness of your world and sensed an opportunity to assist you in this through an invitation that came from the collective consciousness. Does that make sense to you? In other words, to put it in what you would call pragmatic terms in your language, the collective consciousness of your people sense that it was about to go through an accelerative growth spurt. It sensed that it was about to have certain training wheels removed. It asked us to assist in maintaining balance until it got used to maintaining the balance itself. We said yes, we will help you with this. We cannot do it for you; you must still maintain the balance, but we will help guide you in helping give our energy to help you have a calibration mechanism to understand what energy, what vibration and what frequency is representative of staying in balance with the flow, so that it can be put to the best possible use and what frequencies, and what vibrations, and what situations are representative of being out of balance so that you will have a calibration system and a guiding system to maintain the balance within a certain frequency range. Does that make more sense to you?

Q: Yes.

B: Does that help address your question?

Q: Yes it does.

Q: Can you give us....

B: No, no, no.

Q: Are you in your ship currently in the earth vicinity?

B: Yes, I am as I have said about three-thousand of your miles above the area you call Cairo.

Q: Would it be appropriate to ask you if you could come here right now and we can see the ship?

B: It is always appropriate for you to ask me anything. It is not appropriate for me to move from the tetrahedral structure that I and my other three companionships have created. We cannot move from the structure right now for the job that we are doing.

Q: What does Cairo have to do with the future coming up in these next three months?

B: It has to do with being one of the major energy balance points on your planet and thus it is an easy place to help balance some of the energy shifts. It would be similar to me asking you why would you be in the cockpit if you want to fly the plane? Because that is where all the controls are, because that is easier. You follow? So that area contains certain kinds of energy that make the job we are doing easier.

Q: You have been alluding to things happening in the next three or four months very rapidly.
B: Yes I have.
Q: Can you talk about them?
B: No, no I can’t.
Q: How about the stock market? Can you say anything about that?
B: I can say this: put your stock in yourself. Whatever interpretation you wish to take from that?
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Does this help you?
Q: Yes

Q: Continuing a little bit on that same line- where are the other ships around the earth?
B: They are positioned approximately over an area that you understand as central China or Tibet. They are positioned approximately over an area you call Peru. They are positioned approximately over an area that you call your ocean. You follow?
Q: Yes,
B: So in that then you have the idea of your Egypt, your China, your Peru and an area of your ocean. It is not what you would understand to be exactly geometrically tetrahedral but energetically it is. Do you follow?
Q: Yes, are different shapes like the tetrahedron, like the three-sided pyramid, the four-sided pyramid and the double tetrahedron are these shapes applicable only for, say, earth? To mean....
B: Of course not, they are in that sense universal.
Q: Universal.
B: Yes.
Q: So that the tetrahedron is the energy of balance?
B: It is one of the energies of balance. There are many energies of balance symbolized by other forms as well but it carries certain characteristics that provide balance in a fundamental or foundational sense. Since the tetrahedron is the first three-dimensional geometric form.
Q: I see.
B: The simplest and thus it provides a stabilizing foundational influence, in that sense.
Q: Because in the crop circles in England this year, some phenomenal ones were double tetrahedron.
B: Yes, you are beginning to understand now how some of the connection between what is appearing in those crop fields and why we have taken this tetrahedron form at this time of energy acceleration and shifting. You are seeing yourself talking to yourself through these crop circles, your higher consciousness talking to the individual consciousness on your planet, and are beginning to understand the shapes that your consciousness is taking with regard to how you are ... positioning yourselves and positioning the energies of your planet to allow transitions and transformations to take place in a smoother fashion.

Q: Does the collective unconscious have a particular shape or does that change?

B: It changes. It will depend on your relationship to it at any given moment. It has many particular shapes, but again as we have said: one of the most powerful connective tools you can use, one of the most fundamental that would allow you to connect to almost any dimension of energy and consciousness, will be that shape of the double tetrahedron interpenetrating, rotating clockwise and counterclockwise like a three dimensional Star of David. One tetrahedron pointing up, one tetrahedron pointing down interpenetrating each other, and one rotating one way and the other rotating the other way. If you can hold onto this shape in your mind and visualize it or create an animation, if you wish, so that you can see it out in front of you or in some fashion so that you can see this double rotational, double tetrahedral structure, it will actually act to help give you more capability to unlock other dimensional accesses. It is one of the primary key shapes, one of the primary keys that unlocks access to other dimensional realms. You follow?

Q: Yes.

B: Does this help you?

Q: Yes, here is information about the Arcturus energy is it a transitional energy?

B: It is a gateway energy as we have said from time to time that forms the primary function in relationship to your world of acting to help, shall we say, instill the original pattern so that you do not forget as much of who you are as you have in the past. Does that make sense to you? It helps you recognize yourself. That is its functional relationship to your reality. That’s why children being born now upon your planet are in a sense being subjected to the vibration of what is called the Arcturus Gate so that after they are born they will not necessarily be so susceptible to your society’s belief systems and will not forget as easily who they actually are as aspects of creation. So their original cell is more strongly asserted within them as a pattern, less likely to drift or deviate. You follow?

Q: Yes.

B: Does that help you?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Thank you.

Q: And, I thank them.

Q: Would it be possible after you are finished with the tetrahedron energetic coordinating that you are... doing to make an arrangement to see your ship? For all of us to maybe convene at a vortex such as this?
I understand that it is very difficult to....
B: It is not difficult. It simply has to do with the appropriateness of the timing–anything is possible.
Q: Right.
B: Yes it is possible, we will not know until the tetrahedron is broken as to whether it will be probable.
Q: When will the tetrahedron be broken?
B: We don’t know because we are taking our cue from your collective consciousness–as we go. We’re riding the wave of your reality here, we are only acting as a slightly catalytic stabilizing influence. We are not directing anything. We are taking our cue from your collective consciousness. So you tell us: when will the tetrahedron be broken?>
Q: .... No answer.
B: You don’t have to answer right now.
Q: Good much laughter.
B: However, I’ll promise you this–I’ll keep it in mind, so that when the tetrahedron breaks, I will make that, in your honor, the first order of business to discuss with everyone else. That much I can promise you. I can put it, as you say, on the table even though I don’t have one in my ship. Do you follow?
Q: I do.
B: All right, I will keep you posted.
Q: I had a dream, and I was standing out on a country road all by myself looking up at the moon.
B: Yes, what phase?
Q: Full moon, I thought it was the moon, then I noticed, I realized then, it was a spaceship, it wasn’t the moon. As soon as I realized that, it zoomed toward me and a number of spaceships were flying around, sort of, like a scene out of Close Encounters. When I saw all these spaceships, I remembered the last time you spoke to us when you said you were physically coming to this planet to do some work.
B: Our ship is still in proximity to your world and your dimension, at this time. I am approximately, what you would call, three-thousand of your miles above, what you term, the area Cairo.
Q: What are you doing there?
B: Speaking to you at the moment, but in general, you will find that, as we explained, a certain kind of assistance was required that four of our space crafts, in conjunction with other spacecraft and other portions of your collective consciousness on your planet, form a kind of geometric grid, to aid and assist in the balancing and the flow of certain kinds of electromagnetheric energies on your planet at this time, to help balance and smooth out certain shifts that are going on within the next month to three months of your time. Do you follow?
Q: Not really ... what shifts are you referring to?
B: There are energy shifts that can be manifested in a variety of physical ways, but we are aiding and assisting in helping each and every one of you make the determination for allowing the flow of energies in the accelerations that are occurring now to manifest in the most constructive, smoothest, fluid, creative ways possible. So we are acting, in a sense, as balancing mechanisms. Do you follow? We are not doing it for you but we are assisting you in learning how to balance, by forming geometric grids that allow the energy to be better focused. Does that make sense to you?
Q: I’m not sure. Are you talking about preventing earthquakes, for example?
B: I didn’t say that, but if you find that there is that kind of energy within the potential of the collective consciousness, then should it serve you that the earthquake comes to pass, the energy will flow in that direction. Should it serve you that it does not, then we will aid and assist the energy to flow in that direction. It is not the determination specifically of the outcome; say, that the earthquake is either good or bad, but that we aid and assist in the flow and collection of the acceleration of your energy for what really will be of best service to all concerned. That does not always determine what the outcome itself would actually be, in that sense, but only that you know that whatever it is, we have done our best to assist you in helping you amplify the direction that would serve the best of all concerned. Does that make more sense to you?
Q: Yes, but I’m wondering how you determine...what this...I mean is it?
B: We sensed the amplification in the collective consciousness of your world and sensed an opportunity to assist you in this through an invitation that came from the collective consciousness. Does that make sense to you? In other words, to put it in what you would call pragmatic terms in your language, the collective consciousness of your people sensed that it was about to go through an accelerative growth spurt. It sensed that it was about to have certain training wheels removed. It asked us to assist in maintaining balance until it got used to maintaining the balance itself. We said yes, we will help you with this. We cannot do it for you; you must still maintain the balance, but we will help guide you in helping give our energy to help you have a calibration mechanism to understand what energy, what vibration and what frequency is representative of staying in balance with the flow, so that it can be put to the best possible use. And what frequencies, and what vibrations, and what situations are representative of being out of balance, so that you will have a calibration system and a guiding system to maintain the balance within a certain frequency range. Does that make more sense to you?
Q: Yes..
B: Does that help address your question?
Q: Yes, it does.
Sassani Life Span
Circa 1986
Q: How old are you?
B: In your terminology, approximately 158; in my terminology, approximately 137. That is the difference in our time frame.
Q: I have one more question. Do you ever die?
B: Yes. In your terms, we can physiologically leave, quote/unquote, the body, approximately around, what you would call, the age of 300. But when we leave the body, it is not through the idea you call age or disease or suffering, it is simply the timing to go on, to go elsewhere, and to expand in other ways. And the physiological body converts instantaneously back into the energy of the world that it was created from. There is no decay in that sense – except in what you might call a very rapid form.
Q: But do people reincarnate in your civilization?
B: Yes.
Q: With a choice?
B: Of course. So do you, always. Does that answer your question?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: I have a question about the planet Saturn.
B: Yes.
Q: In our Astrology, Saturn rules structure.
B: To some degree.
Q: And I’m wondering if our understanding of structure is really clear. I have some kind... I seem to have a conflict about freedom, and play, and structure...
B: All right.
Q: ... within myself.
B: All right.
Q: And I think sometimes, well, my moon being in Capricorn, ruled by Saturn, that emotionally I’m tied to structure. I don’t know... I’m just wondering what...
B: All right. First of all, recognize that you have made the choices to associate yourself with this type of idea, this type of energy. You are not literally ruled by anything but you. Do you follow me?
Q: Right.
B: The choices you make will be the reality you experience. Now, the idea, the metaphor, the representational idea of a portion of your energy that is represented by Saturn, is the type of structure that simply indicates the different styles or patterns that are available to you in this particular Earth reality for you to use, to learn what you need to learn.

It does not mean that you are rigidly fixed into a specific pattern; it means that you have before you, let us say, a platter of various choices. Each and every one of those choices will be indicative of the general overall structure that represents living in what you call, Earth plane reality, third density. But there is a wide range of freedom as to how to experience that particular reality.

Saturn is simply the focus portion of the overall consciousness that creates the overall Solar System in which you exist, that represents itself in the form you would call the Council. The Council is simply a portion of the overall consciousness of the entire being that your Solar System is, that represents an awareness of the holographic patterns that are available for you to choose from to live the different styles of physical life that you wish to live. This is the structure you are sensing. Do you follow me, so far?
Q: Well, sort of... not completely.
B: All right. Let us put it this way: look at consciousness as a valve, all right?
Q: All right.
B: Assume that there is a large quantity of homogenous energy, of no particular pattern or structure in the universe. All right?
Q: Well...
B: Yes, no, maybe? (AUD: laughter)
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Allow yourself to think of your particular Solar System with your planet Earth, your sun, your planets around your sun, including Saturn, to be valves, gateways, that allow that homogenous energy to be translated in a certain way that will be representative of a certain environment that you as an individual consciousness wish to experience.

So you set up this environment by creating different valves that will allow the homogenous energy of creation to be translated in specific formats. This valve will, let us say, allow the energy to flow through itself, and when it comes out of that valve – or let us say, when the white light of the homogenous energy comes through the prism of Saturn, so to speak – it will then break down the white light into the spectrum, the specific spectrum, that represents this pattern, the flow, the spectrum, that represents the overall rules by which this system will function.

Now, there are many other valves that will create different let us say, attitudes, different biases of that energy, different perspectives, different flows of that energy. But what you call Saturn is your portion of the overall consciousness that represents the regulation of the flow of patterns, the flow of choices, which you can experience in this particular Solar System. It is an energy gate. A physical planet, in that sense, is only a symbol for an energy gate. Is this making any sense?

Q: I think so.
B: Therefore, when you choose the timing when you as a non-physical being will enter into this particular scenario, you then take upon yourself, to some degree, the representational patterns that are going on at that time – all the energy patterns of relationships going on between the different energy gates. And you solidify that pattern into your energy, as your energy, as the representational individual that you are.

And so you say, well, this planet rules me – because I injected myself into this physical matrix when such and such an energy, through this valve, was interacting with all the other valves, in exactly the way it would have to, to create me to be the individual representation of energy that I am.

Q: Okay.

B: Now, that is still very malleable once you begin that life. You can fluctuate it to a great degree. You have much range of freedom. But you will still carry the original imprint of your choice of entering the game at that particular time. You will still carry the original “congealment” of that energy in your solid form. Do you follow me?

Q: Right. Yes, I do.
B: Does this assist you?
Q: Yes.
B: Anything else is up to you. You have the freedom as a physical consciousness to arrange that idea, to arrange that pattern, and create whatever experiences will be representative of the infinite variety of choices in which you can experience the you, you are.
You will always still be you, in this game. That is fixed, in this particular energy pattern. But you, as a persona, can change, over and over, and over and over, and over and over again. And you do, but you will always be recognized by everyone else, as you. Do you follow me?
Q: Right.
B: That is the original imprint, which you can fluctuate and overlay with as many personas as you desire. You will still be recognized by your signature vibration.
Q: Ah ha.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, it certainly does. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much.
Q2: I would like to explore with you the idea of the Council that you mentioned.
B: All right now, first of all, before we begin, understand we are using your Earth terminology and we do not necessarily imply that it is exactly as literal a “Council” of beings, as your civilization might think. It is not a Council in the governmental form that you are used to thinking of.
Q: I have been in touch with consciousnesses that represent themselves as being of the Council.
B: Yes.
Q: Is this the same Council of which you spoke a few moments ago?
B: The Saturn idea, primarily, yes, it is connected to that. There are aspects that are connected to what we also refer to as the Association, which is the collection of many civilizations, not only your own Solar System. But the primary Council vibration you are in touch with is the fragmentary representation of the Association that specifically is of the vibration of your Solar System.
Q: They have communicated to me, mostly in terms of a theme, of a shift from being in the service of Orion energy...
B: Yes.
Q: ... into... ah, I’m not sure what it’s into. But I would be interested in any sharing you could do in that respect, and especially if that pertains to having stepped through the doorway.
B: All right. Now we have already discussed, to some degree, the idea that you know, that the Orion offshoot and the Pleiadian offshoot are branches of the same family. And in this way, therefore, you are now making the familiar re-connections. You have gone through the lens, so to speak, of Orion, and shifted yourselves in the exploration of polarity, the exploration of positive and negative realities. And now that you are integrating only in a positive idea of manifestation, you are now becoming more and more akin to your kin in Pleiadian terms. You are now rejoining families, literally. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, so far.
B: That is all we will give you, at this time. (AUD: laughter)
Q: In that case (laughing) I followed you fully. (AUD: much laughter)
B: Thank you very much! You see how simple it is?
Q: Yes. Thank you!

Saturn and Planetary Gateways
Saving the Lions

Q: I wanted to ask you and to have all the people here blend their energy, if they wish to. And that is that they have decided now to... we have, through the government, to shoot a bunch of the mountain lions; open them up for hunting.

Tomorrow, at Long Beach, there’s going to be a big meeting to try to stop this. And I thought if we all just put our energies there, whether we’re there or someplace else... I know that I, for one, don’t want to see those beautiful animals killed.

B: All right. Use your unconditional love; this is not a conflict. This is an opportunity to express a reflection of the true natural grace and power that that animal represents. Teach and show grace and power – and that killing, in that sense, is actually suicide of a portion of themselves. Teach them to learn to identify; teach them to learn they can learn much from those beings, those reflections, those guides, those animals. That they can become those mountain lions.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Skepticism

Q: Hello.
B: Hello.
Q: How are you.
B: Perfect! And you?
Q: Fine.
B: You are perfect as well, whether you know it or not.
Q: Well, I try.
B: In your own way, you do not have to try.
Q: Um, my question is – let me tell you a little about myself.
B: All right.
Q: I’ll be brief. I’m just getting into, well, learning about New Age awareness. And I can’t help but be a little skeptical.
B: That is all right. We do not care. For do understand, in your society it is the habit of the way you think – to think that anytime that anyone has something to share, they share it because they wish to prove something. And we have absolutely nothing to prove.
Q: Well, I want to find my inner light; I want to find myself, and I want to spread my knowledge to other people…
B: You go right ahead!
Q: … but how do I know that the people…let’s see, on my venture to find myself...
B: Yes?
Q: …are real?
B: Real? Everything is real.
Q: In the sense of people not faking something, if you know what I mean.
B: Let me put it this way: whether they are, quote/unquote, faking it or not, if what they share with you works for you, it doesn’t matter who they are. And that is actually the whole idea. Take what works for you, no matter where it comes from. If it doesn’t work, don’t use it. If it works, use it. That’s all there is to it. You follow me?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: That is why we are coming now, in the manner we are coming. Because this way you don’t have to believe we are who we say we are; and that the message itself is what is more important – not the messenger. Because it has been the habit of your society to lock onto the messenger, and ignore the message.
So take the message for whatever it means to you. Use it if it works. Find what works; use it. That’s the idea; that’s all there is to it. That is what is real. What works for you is what – for you – is most real. What doesn’t work, you don’t need to think about it right now. If it works for you later, you’ll think about it then. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Now, also allow me to point out one thing: skepticism. Many individuals in your society think: “All right, I’m going to be very scientific, I will be skeptical.” Skepticism is not a scientific attitude. Objectivity is. Skeptical is a pre-built bias. Objectivity is balanced. Objectivity says: “All right. Here’s a concept, how does this apply? How can this be applied? What can I learn of it, one way or another? What, in this concept, will work or won’t work for me?”

Skepticism says: “This is hogwash! I will, therefore, go in exploring this with resistance already – rather than an open, balanced, objective point of view.” Nothing is truly, ever truly objective; every thing is always subjective. But you can create subjective and objective attitudes.

But skepticism is not scientific; and any true, quote/unquote, scientist will be the first to understand that. Because if skepticism were a scientific tool, there would be very few things you would ever discover. So when, many times, individuals in your society say they are skeptical – many times it is simply a misinterpretation; many times they are being truly objective.

But many times when individuals think they are being objective, they are actually being skeptical – which means they already have a built-in belief about what it is they are approaching. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Thank you. And also allow us to remind you that because skepticism is a built-in belief, then quite often skepticism will only be able to manifest in life the result of that belief. In other words: “I told you so.” And when you get the manifestation that lets the individual say: “See? I told you so,” that’s an indication that the only reason they got that manifestation, is because they – to begin with – believed that they were going to be able to say: “I told you so.” So it is a self-perpetuating prophecy.

Thank you for your sharing. You are the path you need to be. Do not forget: a path is not what you are on, a path is what you are. You cannot be off yourself. Enjoy the path you have created yourself to be. We thank you for sharing that idea with us. At this timing, we will suggest that you all enjoy a short break.

Q: Thank you.

Skepticism
Schizophrenia

Q: I have a question relative to a mental disorder that my son is affected with...
B: All right.
Q: ...called, schizophrenia.
B: Ah!
Q: If you have any insight into what may be the origin and possibly the potential cures that may be forthcoming in the ongoing years, I would appreciate your insights into that.
B: Oh, thank you. I have no insights upon it... however, I do. Therefore, while “he” is taking a break, I will be glad to share our perspective on this idea.
Fundamentally, what you typically call schizophrenia will usually be indicative of a consciousness aware that it is many different personas co-existing at the same time, overlapping in many different lifetimes and dimensions of experience.
For whatever the reasons are that are germane to the particular individual, they have chosen to experience more than one of them, seemingly within the same time frame structure. Or they have not been given the opportunity to understand how to communicate those two aspects of themselves in a blended way; because you exist in a society that only recognizes one persona at a time, and not two existing in that sense.
Q: Mhmm.
B: It is not truly a disease, fundamentally. The fact that that particular manifestation exists in a very limited type of society makes it “diseaseing,” because there is no way for that individual to learn that they can communicate their experience to the society; because they know it is not acceptable. That’s what locks them into the self-perpetuating cycle that allows them no way to truly communicate that their experiences are quite valid and quite real; and that that persona, the different personas, are real distinct personas that do have their own lives, their own validity.
It is simply that they are manifested through what you typically call one expression of embodiment. It is, to some degree – this is extremely colloquial and not necessarily precise, but it will serve as an analogy – to some degree, it can be said it is like having twins in one body. You follow me? Not only do they have free communication with them, but they understand that, since every being is every other being, they have free communication as them. All consciousness is the same one consciousness, and can express itself in any degree, as any persona.
This individual is integrated in a different way than the majority of your society. They are integrated in a way that allows them – or created in them the desire – for full expression of both of the fragments of their total being that they perceive themselves to be – that are overlapping at this time. But your society has not had a niche for that particular type of expression. And so they become their own society, locked into their own world. You follow me?
Q: Yes, very much so.
B: When your society begins to understand that every individual is the expression of every other individual that has ever lived or will ever live and is living now, on every different dimensional level, then they will be able to facilitate these individuals, by manifesting a type or style of communication that validates the experience, instead of invalidating the experience of that individual.

All they require, first and foremost, is unconditional love and trust and validation that their experiences are just as real as anyone else’s chosen form of expressiveness; because many of those individuals – if they are allowed lines of communication into your society – can express themselves in the terms of channeling.

In a sense you could say that the physical channel before you is schizophrenic, in the sense that he exhibits more than their allotted personality quotient from time to time. It is simply that this individual has understood the trust that this is something that can be utilized in your society, and never believed your society when it said it had no reason or place for that type of expression. Because we are all fragments of each other’s consciousness.

I am my own being and I have my own validity; the channel is his own being and has his own validity. But we are, at one and the same time, the same being, in many ways, on different levels, it is simply how it is chosen to be expressed. Individuals that avoid the schizophrenic label, perhaps, simply go about it more cleverly than others. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. A question in regards to that: then the best way of coping with that would be to surrender to it. Would this be true?

B: In a sense, but this does not mean that you cannot actively investigate and involve what the personality is all about. Dialogue with it; find out what all the likes, dislikes, of the different personalities are, where they feel at home. Find out where each personality feels at home. Allow them all to be validated.

One of the fundamental reasons that this is a difficulty in your society is because your society has the strongest habitual penchant for determining that something must either be this or that, when in fact everything is this and that. So validate each of those expressions, each of those experiences on their home ground. Find out who they are and where they are comfortable. And let them know that you know they can co-exist. They do not have to fight for domination of the one gateway body that they have to express themselves in.

Whether or not this will be something that may occur soon in your society, we do not know, but there are societies that do express themselves in the following way I am about to describe; and this is something that may actually be possible in your society. And it has happened from time to time, briefly. Individuals expressing more than one persona, as you recognize it in that way may actually be able to create a physical bi-location, a duplicate body, so that both personas can co-exist. And then you would simply see them as physical twins, and then your society would say: “That’s okay.”

Because there is a society that actually creates themselves in that way: any persona they imagine themselves wishing to become, they actually project another physical body to house that persona. When they decide whether or not that’s truly the direction they wish to go in, then either: if they decide no, then that extra body vanishes, and they pull the personality back in; or if they decide yes, then the original body vanishes, and they continue in the new one, as the new persona. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. Then the doing with that... the key word would probably be acceptance.

B: Oh, yes, on every level.

B: But also imagination, curiosity, exploration, true dialoguing, bring these personas out. For understand: true unity of any being is the result of the complete equalization and validation of all of its personality aspects. Then the being can function in a unified way – when all of its aspects are equally validated and accepted.

Q: Regardless of the negativity that’s hidden in some of those personas.

B: When you allow them all to be validated, they will not need to express themselves in negative ways, because they will know they are worthy of love, and then they can start loving themselves; and that will form an integration with the being, and you may no longer see a manifestation of either persona; you may see a third new integrated persona.

Q: So our traditional way of dealing with that particular dysfunction is absolutely, probably, incorrect.

B: It is simply indicative of many of the limitations you already believe in as a society. But let us simply say it is not conducive to the birthing of the third personality that could result from the blending of the other fragment personas.

When they are each allowed to know they can love themselves for who they are, they will not need to express themselves in negative ways. They will learn to live in harmony with themselves. That will allow the being to reintegrate and blend. But it will not be that it will become one or another of the personas already there. It will become a totally new persona.

Q: It’s extremely helpful; I thank you very much.

B: We thank you. And also remember: you are very capable of dialoguing with this individual’s consciousness in your dream reality. Simply make the conscious decision that you will do so when you go to sleep, and you will also begin to see results from that; because on that level, you are both wholly in communication as each other. All right?

Q: Again, I thank you.

B: Exciting dreams!

Q: Thank you very much.

B: At this timing...
The New Meta-Physics

Science

Section One

Now, allow us to discuss the idea, in this Chapter Two of the work, of the discipline, philosophy, which you refer to as science. Recognize, as we have said, all endeavors, philosophy, upon your planet will be channeled through the perspective created within the personality, so that these perspectives can be applied according to the purposes for which you have deemed to create these disciplines, these scenarios, within your civilization at this time.

Now, recognize that all that you know upon your planet to be that which you call science has been created within the 25,000-year cycle of separation of yourself from the All That Is that you are. Therefore, this background, in and of itself, is responsible for the creation of the viewpoint from which the majority of what has been your science proceeds. That is that the universe, as you know it, is something separate from yourselves. In this way, you endeavor to search, to make a connection between what you perceive to be your own existence and that which you perceive round and about you. In this same manner, recognize that the idea of scientific questioning, the idea of a question will be from this same foundational viewpoint: that the universe is not what you are, but something separate.

Recognize that a question is an answer that you already contain, but viewed from the perspective of being separate from the answer and reflecting back to yourselves a reminder, from a separated viewpoint, that you do contain the answer; but you choose to view it outside yourselves, and so create the polarity that you call a question. Now, understand that if you can conceive of an idea, you are automatically at the point of conception, at the point of perception. The totality of the idea itself is what you are.

You have, in creating your science within this period of separation, thus, created for yourself a framework, a scenario, in which you feel you must struggle, strive, reach out, achieve these answers, since you believe them to be something that you do not already know. Now recognize, we are not judging that this has been your methodology; simply that this is the methodology that will occur when you create the idea of your exploration of yourselves from a separate or separated viewpoint.

In what you term to be the second portion of this chapter, we will discuss how an integrated viewpoint will allow, as it has begun to allow, some of the individuals upon your planet you call physicists to recognize how that which you have referred to for so long as a separate universe is altogether, as you say, part and parcel of what you are, who you are, and your perspective. They are inseparable. And in that portion, we will discuss the effects of allowing yourself more and more realization of such an integration of yourself with the universe. Through the idea of separation and what has been created in your science, allow us first to address the idea you call evolution.

Now, there has been much discussion between the idea of science and metaphysics, or even religion, and this will be brought up again in a later chapter, "Meta-Physics," in the sense that science, in your terms, seeks to have "proof" for what it chooses to believe in, whereas the idea that you call metaphysics and religion, from a scientific point of view, does not require the idea of proof, but only of belief and faith. Now, within this subject you call evolution has been one of the greatest opportunities for many of these discussions, many times you call them arguments, to arise regarding the ideas of proof, belief, and faith.

Simply, first of all, recognize that scientists, though they have locked themselves into a certain perspective which, many times, does not allow them to see it as such, have just as great a belief and faith in creating what they deem to be their proofs. Many of your physicists have now begun to realize that you will always get the results that you expect to get, based upon how your belief about a situation allows you to design the experiment that you wish to create in order to obtain any particular proof. They are intrinsically connected and you have, for yourselves, created the idea of "proof," not realizing that even the idea you call proof, many times, will only be a matter of perspective, and not, in an overall sense, any immutable "law" of the universe.

There are agreements within the mass consciousness of this particular universe that you call your own, which do seem to construct frameworks that you call laws of physics. This is still created from an overview of consciousness we will describe in the chapter called “Template Metaphysics,” and we will, in your terms, discuss it there. For now, let us return to the definitions of science as they apply to the idea you call evolution.

Recognize that there is, contrary to some of your religious beliefs, a physical universe that does "take time" to allow ideas of consciousness to manifest. Thus, the idea of evolution of physical form is, more or less, a reality. There are some factors that you have not yet discovered, within this idea of evolution that you will discover that will allow you to round out the idea of exactly how this mechanism may take place physically. Understand, however, that, contrary to scientific opinion, consciousness is not a product of physical evolution. When physicality, being a projection of creation, reached a certain vibratory state of evolution, then it could allow consciousness, nonphysical consciousness, to allow itself to identify with physicality, or project itself into physicality. Thus, the idea of what you term in your belief structure to be creationism, and the idea of what, in your scientific structure, you call physical evolution, are both correct, in a sense, in an overall general sense. There was a physical evolution up to a certain point. Consciousness already having been created, projected itself into physicality, and there was a blending and a joining.

Now, this was still many, many, many millions of your years ago, as you count time, the idea of humanity having been created four, five or six thousand years ago notwithstanding. These are filtered perspectives. Recognize that you can begin to view the blending between the ideas of evolution and creationism if you allow yourselves to recognize that your source, in your terms, is outside of physicality, and that physicality is simply your vehicle. Also, if you allow yourself to understand that what, in your terms, may be the twinkling of an eye, or an instant, in nonphysical universes, as an example, your "six days" of creation, still, in terms of creating physicality, translates out into a time track which, in your terms, is much slower than nonphysical rates of acceleration. Thus, it can be many millions of years and still be the same "six days;" although we are not saying this is an accurate count. It is still allegorical, or an analogy. However, the concept will still be correct. That which is created in that way, and exists within non-physicality, will have a higher rate of accelerated existence to its own perception than the physical universe will in exemplifying the very same act of creation. In the second half of this chapter, we will also discuss more of the ideas that go into actually defining physical reality, which are time, space, and polarity. For now, allow us to address some of the ideas in your science that you call astronomy.

Recognize that you have been, and we do not need to tell you this, looking to the stars for many years. Some of your scientific "revelations" have come from such an activity. At this point in your science of astronomy you are still relatively restricted, as you know, in your ability to pierce the veil of the atmosphere of your planet. And, in many ways, some of the gravitic tensor dynamic fields, which allow light to be obscured, or bent, and some of the ideas of energy fields, which we will discuss in “Template Meta-Physics,” that you have yet to discover, or may be just beginning to realize are there, also play a part in your understanding or limitation of understanding of what you perceive through your optical and radio telescopes.

One of the ideas, specifically, that you have been addressing of late, is the concept of whether or not there are other "intelligences" living on other planets. You have created for yourselves many ways to attempt to perceive whether or not there is communication from these other civilizations. What you term to be radio telescope being the primary application for this endeavor. Allow me to say, it is at this time unlikely that you will receive anything from any nearby civilization through radio communication. There have been a few civilizations nearby that did begin their communication history electronically, as you say, with the idea you call radio; but the nearest one ended its radio communication sometime before you began yours, and in this way, their radio signals have long since passed your planet as they radiated outward. Recognize also, many civilizations do not use radio and never have, even though this may astonish you, because you feel that radio noise, as you say, is a natural occurrence in the universe.

The great degree of separation in your particular history has not allowed you to recognize the communication that can occur from mind to mind, and for many civilizations, technological communication never comes into existence at all, or if it does, many times it is carried in the form you call cables, or highly focused beams of energy which do not radiate outward. So, to you, their civilizations will always be silent.

Many of the methodologies utilized will take advantage of the idea you call a hyper-space phenomenon, simply originating at the point where the communication is sent and arriving at the point where it is received, without appearing to travel any intervening distance in what you term to be three-dimensional physical space. Therefore, you may be listening for quite some time to radio frequencies before you will hear anything. Allow me to say, there probably will be physical contact between our civilizations long before you will hear anything on your radio telescopes.

Science, in general, upon your planet does represent, in a sense, the closest approach to the idea of integration, of understanding your relationship to the idea of yourself as All That Is, and this is why your physics, particularly the branch you call quantum mechanics, has begun to allow you to perceive the connection of your consciousness to the universe. But still, many times, science feels it needs to create proofs that exclude the ideas of faith and belief.

Now, understand that with regard to metaphysics, this idea of requiring physiological proof will never, in those terms, be able to glean an acceptable proof from the area you call psychic phenomena until it is understood that your definitions of that discipline are, in your terms, biased by what you think they should be.

Recognize that when you attempt to record the idea of psychic phenomena, many times it is done in such a highly sterile, unemotional condition that you do not realize that the emotionality itself, the spontaneity of life itself, is one of the things that gives rise to that phenomenon. This is where science creates its own barrier to the exploration of its connections to many other fields of endeavor. These other fields can be incorporated scientifically into the body of knowledge you understand, but not always through scientific methods as you have created them within separation.

Understand that you are beginning to realize, though this will be difficult to accept for many of your scientists, that even science, far from the cold, analytical process you have allowed it to be up to this point, is actually yet another experiential perspective, and not something separate from yourself.

Allow me to say that your science has prized itself on an attitude that you call skepticism. Recognize that while it is a requirement of the personality in creating the idea of a search to allow itself to make sure that it will not run into what you term to be extraneous information, that very skepticism creates a focus, many times, so narrow that it becomes not skepticism, but bias. And, once again, it will cancel the ability for scientists to perceive anything beyond the ideas that have been created which define the parameters of what is acceptable to your definition of science. Many times, this can even extend into a being’s emotionality itself.

Now, we recognize that there are many scientists upon your planet that allow themselves to be very emotional. In this way, allow me to suggest that we know that privately, in your terms, many of these scientists allow themselves to at least play with the idea that much of what is not accepted by science in its strictest sense is still something they can experience, and something they often do experience, particularly among family members, as that is a very close emotional bond.

Recognize simply that when these scientists are willing to allow their emotionality, we are not saying irrationality, but emotionality, E-motion: energy motion, to be yet another type of energy force that will fit into their equations in a manner they can understand, then they will begin to allow themselves more freedom of motion, and more insight into their connections with All That Is.

Now, in the second portion of this chapter, we will discuss the integration of this idea of consciousness and viewpoint and exploration, with regard to its techniques when time, space, and polarity become one thing.

Section Two

Now, allow us to discuss the idea of science through the integrated viewpoint. Recognize, that upon your planet, that which you call your quantum physics has already begun to understand the connection of your consciousness to the idea that you create your universe. Though you will find that when your physicists come upon a direction that seems to point, in a very literal way, to the idea that you are creating the universe that you perceive, many times they will back off, and they will say: "Oh, no, well, this is simply an interpretation. It is simply the best interpretation that can be given; but this is not really what is happening." Bit by bit, when they allow themselves more freedom of integration, they will understand that this is what is happening.

Now, time, space, and polarity are what allow you to exist and form the very definitions of what you call existence in physical reality. They are the definitions, the parameters, the frameworks that have allowed you to create separation of yourself from the All That Is that you are.

Once your civilization allows itself to explore, to utilize its curiosity, and to create acceptable, allowable equations which will include consciousness, nonphysical consciousness, into your scientific exploration, you will begin to understand that much of the "information" or data can begin to be intrinsically enfolded within the consciousness of all beings who generate for themselves the type of vibrational curiosity that allows them to call themselves explorers or scientists.

You can create a vibration of knowingness that when anyone chooses to participate in such a vibration, they can allow themselves to recognize, in your terms, the reality of all of the perspectives you are now discovering in your physics. You have exemplified, to some degree, this idea by what you term to be your unified field theories. Understand that you are, your consciousness is, a field, and it will have to be one of the fields in the unification theory; though you find that your chromo-dynamic quantum theories have united the weak, electromagnetic, and strong forces, with gravity still remaining outside this present unification theory. These will only account for the physicalized manifestation of those fields.

Recognize that gravity will even be seen to have physical and nonphysical counterparts within the template we will describe in Chapter Seven of the work. The consciousness field, also, will be a portion of this template field, which we will define later, as we have said. Recognize that your unified fields will extend into non-physicality, allowing you to understand that consciousness and the foundation template will form the last two fields that you will seek to integrate. Thus, there will not be, as you have said, four energies to unify, but six, which will be exemplified in some very obvious ways and symbols later.

Allow us to interject a clarification of the difference between field, energy, vibration, and force:

Energy can describe radiation in either a focused or diffused manner.

A field typically refers to a diffused expression of energy; that which fills a volume of space.

Force is a mathematical expression, a vector of intersecting energies.

Vibration is a frequency; a rate of modulation within an energy field.

Now, within science’s ability to recognize that all ideas are vibrations, scientists will be able to create ideas of space travel that will allow them to understand how you are not something which exists within space and time, but that space and time are properties of any object within it. In this way, you will understand that both our communication and our space travel will be based on the vibrational understanding that will be exemplified in the example I will now share.

If, in this "thought experiment" you allow yourself to create two objects, identical in every conceivable way physically, measure for measure, molecule for molecule, atom for atom, quark for quark, you will understand that they are still two different objects by definition of their locations in space.

Now, we view that that locational vibration is a property of each object; one possessing location A; one possessing location B. In this way, you can recognize that, with the utilization of consciousness and the template, you can create a field which can unlock the idea vibration of an object from any particular physical reality it is experiencing, and you can remove or replace the idea identity of its locational vibration with another one. For example: take out location A, replace with location B. In this way, you will be able to understand that when you release this unlocking field and allow the object to re-materialize, re-physicalize, it will, by definition, need to take up residence at location B, rather than A. It now will seem to have traversed, as you say, magically, the distance in between, while no real traveling has occurred at all. It has, in a sense, been recreated from one point to another.

Understand that this is not so mysterious. This occurs all the time, because time is also something you are creating, and as you have already understood, space and time are discontinuous. It is not a smooth continuum. In a sense, it flickers on and off, as you understand it, although not so much off; but simply shares moments with other dimensions of reality in such a way as to flicker so rapidly that you do not experience these other dimensions until you synchronize with them. You synchronize with one at a time. All the other dimensions of experience, including the idea you call the past and the future, exist in between all the moments you call your reality.

Thus, recognize that while you seem to walk down your street, you are actually a continuous broken series of recreated images that, because they vibrate so rapidly, you choose to perceive as a smooth continuum. Recognize that you can remove many of the interim steps between Point A and B, and simply be at A and then B, without having to perceive the flow of movement in between. All of these ideas will be able to be projected into physical testability when you allow yourself to know that your consciousness is one of the vibrations within the unified fields.

You can now begin to understand how science is also, simply, a philosophy, and how it can blend with the ideas of faith. For you will understand that since you are the vibration of your reality, physically, and thus, create that reality to be reflected back to the idea of your personality, which contains the mentality that contains the senses, you will also understand, through this integration, that while science, as you have known it, has postulated that seeing is believing, it will now allow itself to experience the polarity of believing is seeing. And you will also recognize that the idea of polarity itself will be a vibration, which created the ability to separate yourself from the universe. You will be able to measure its properties, in a sense, as you will be able to understand the ideas of space/time within one physical equation.

You will also be able to understand how all of the ideas you have called religion, sociology, economics, politics, will all fit into science, mathematics. You will also be able to understand in your mathematics and your science how it is not so much that you are an observer with an observed phenomenon, but that the actual event is the observation itself.

In other words, your mathematics and your science will become more representative of the relationships of that which you call your physical universe, rather than the objects within it. Thus, they will become wholly conceptual. They will be whole concepts. Your equations will, and can be rendered more into the idea of the pictographs of language exhibited by some of your cultures upon your planet, where one symbol is not simply a phonetic component, but an entire concept, in and of itself.

Your mathematics can contain this idea, and that is why language and music do exhibit the idea of mathematics, because they also contain relationships that are reflective of the vibrational interlocking patterns of energy that create all of the interactions and relationships, and give rise to that which you perceive, through your polarized personality, to be all of the discrete and separated objects and particles that you think your physical reality is constructed from.

Now, in the next chapter on "Creativity," we will discuss some of the avenues, techniques, and methodologies by which science and faith can be blended with imagination, and still be viewed by both viewpoints as real, experiential reality. Thus, within "Creativity," we will explore the imagination and its use as a tool. Not from a separated viewpoint, but from the integrated viewpoint that many times, within science, has given rise to many of your discoveries without the need to create linear proofs beforehand, and within that we will also discuss the idea you call cause and effect.

We will now proceed with the sharing and the questions and interactions pertaining to this subject.

Dr. Chandley: From one point of view, the mind represents all consciousness and the brain represents its physiological representation. Would you share your point of view on this idea?

The Association: Thank you. Now, the mind, so to speak, is the product of consciousness filtering through the creation of the physiological brain. The mind is not so much all consciousness, but it is representative of all physiological consciousness, and makes use of the electromagnetic field of your earth for the creation of what you call mentality. This is why your brain is an electrical, magnetic, chemical phenomenon. It is a processor for consciousness and renders it into the form of consciousness by which you communicate in physical reality.

This form of consciousness is called mind or mentality, and represents fluctuations and vibrations in the electromagnetic field of your planet that connects you all. It is why you can have the idea of telepathy; because you are all immersed in this fluid, and the brain is connected, and will always process and funnel and channel that electromagnetic field or fluid through itself in whatever ways it needs to form identifications with identical patterns in other individuals. Thus, the fluid for every individual will, usually, flow in the same way, allowing there to be what is called a recognition, a congruence, or an identification from mind to mind, forming the ability to translate the similarity of vibration from one individual to another, so that both can share a single idea, a single thought in mental form.

Dr. Chandley: Could you talk a little bit about the black hole idea in the brain, as it relates to the black hole idea in ourselves?
The Association: Simply, you will understand that every cell is, to some degree, metaphysically, a smaller version of that device which you call your brain, in the sense that they perform similar functions on one specific level, and that is the funneling of the consciousness in an electrochemical, magnetic way.

You will understand that, as you create yourself to be an electromagnetic pattern of vibrations, as each and every one of these waves of electromagnetic vibrations overlaps, all the nexus points of the overlapping, all the cross points of overlapping, will represent the central black hole points in the center of every cell of your being. And since they are all funneling through the black hole, so to speak, the doorway, the gateway, actually, in a sense, the white hole in the center of your brain, then you will find there is black hole, white hole in the center of your brain, black hole, white hole in the center of every cell at each nexus point.

Both the main one in the center of your brain, and the one in the center of every cell, will represent the coming and going, positive and negative fluctuation of the energy of your consciousness, in and out of physical reality, as it flickers on and off, so to speak, because your physical reality, as your physicists have already discovered, is discontinuous. That is, it exists in discrete, recreated moments of time, over and over and over and over and over again.

Dr. Chandley: Does the double helix represent any of the ideas that you are discussing?
The Association: Yes. To some degree, it will represent the flow of the energy, and this is recognized in your auric field – your energy pattern field – and why the idea of what you call your acupuncture can function; for it is, in that way, a redirecting or an interruption, so to speak, of that flow in various ways, because there is a direction to the flow. It will be outward and then inward. Spiraling down and up simultaneously.

Dr. Chandley: Does that idea have any relationship to the space/time idea that you talked about before, which is even more a part of the blueprint than the quark that we’ve discovered?
The Association: In a sense. You can understand that upon the template that the energy allows itself to exist, all will be performing the spiral motions and, simply, it will be a matter of spirals within spirals.

Dr. Chandley: Thank you. Atomically speaking, will you correlate and define the relationship between physical laws and metaphysical laws?
The Association: Now, they are, to some degree, one and the same thing, although this will be on a basic, fundamental level. What you recognize in your universe to be the laws of physics will represent the agreed-upon nonphysical agreements that were made by all consciousnesses partaking of the creation of this physical universe that they have created. Thus, you will find that the physicalized laws will be reflections of something, which, at first, is a very metaphysical source, so to speak. Then, all of the "metaphysical laws," if you wish to call them that, which come under the so-called laws of physics will, once again, simply be reflections of the enactment of the energy upon the template as consciousness impinges itself upon the template to allow the energy to manifest in various forms. The idea of the congruency of the laws of physics and metaphysical laws are quite similar.

What you may understand as metaphysical laws, so to speak, are simply different aspects of the same energy you are discovering through metaphysical terms; the same things you are discovering in physical terms, only you are giving them different labels and coming at them from different points of view. For the most part, they are one and the same idea. And as we said, when the idea of reason is allowed into metaphysical thought, and the idea of consciousness is allowed into physical thought, you will see the commonality and the synchronicity of both approaches.

Dr. Chandley: How does each set of these laws relate to the individual human process?

The Association: You are everything that is. Because you have created the type of a reality in which you are experiencing the separateness of yourself, you will then experience the polarity of every situation. Thus, every being in your civilization will experience the polarity of all situations that you create.

Dr. Chandley: Thank you. Will you please explain the process of photons and their cycle of being?

The Association: You may recognize photonic energy to be one of the defining ideas of space/time. Everything, everything, everything that you perceive to be in your reality, space, time and all the matter and energy, are variations of the idea of the photon, in a sense, whether it be in what you call physical or metaphysical terms. Recognize, simply, that is what proceeds forthwith from the center of the zero point in the tetrahedral, symbolic equational structure and gives form to the idea of the crystal of the double tetrahedron. In this way, it is what carries the idea of reality. Photon is what carries the idea of reality. It is a self-reflecting quantum. It is its own polarity. It is all and nothing. It reflects both sides, positive and negative. It carries within each quantum, each photon, the idea of the totality of all that can be.

This is why you have discovered the idea of hologram through light. For light is, in and of itself, the totality of the holographic universe, and will give rise to the ability of anything to exist anywhere in the universe. It is the on and off switch that creates everything, everywhere, simultaneously, as it is an expression of nothing in particular anywhere.

Dr. Chandley: What is it that makes one atom unit a common denominator of all dimensions?

The Association: It is not the common denominator of all dimensions. It is the common denominator of your physicalized dimension and many others in various ways, simply because this is one of the vibrational patterns which allows you to perceive the universe as being something outside yourself. And also allows you, as you have done, to "back track" to the idea that all that you perceive to be complexity is derived from a single unified expression of energy and consciousness.

We thank you for the sharing of your questions. And allow us to remind you that when you create the idea of questions, it is only that you already contain the answers. The form of the question will simply be that you have separated this idea of the answer you already contain from your knowledge. However, in this way, once again, we thank you for the willingness to express your explorations, for your civilization and our civilization is the sharing that continues forever.
Scientists and Children and ET Communication

B: Why should technology be separated from spirituality, from energy, from consciousness? Realize that it is only a projection of consciousness anyway, a reflection of that which you simply believe yourselves to be. It is a tool, a projection. It can be used then for any purpose, in that way.

Understand that the majority of what you term to be your scientists, your technologists, still find that they can not come to terms with what is considered to be communication with other civilizations, because to them it always seems that this communication always includes the idea that they do not consider scientific – “spirituality.” Thus they do not accept that the contact is real. If it was presented in very dry terms, very technical terms, very technological terms, very, very stiff discussions in that way, then they would allow themselves to understand and believe that the situations of communication were real.

But since it also contains the idea that you are the creator, and since that idea in your civilization at this present time is looked upon as a religious idea, then they do not understand that what they are simply understanding in the communication from us, is that that is our science – but their religion, so they will not connect the two. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes I do.

B: When they understand that the idea that you are the creator is not a religious idea but a statement of the expression of the foundation of all that even they claim to be, quote/unquote, scientific, when they allow that blending to occur, then they will hear the communication that is going on around and about them.

Q: There are many young scientists who are already experiencing that, are there not?

B: Yes, but they have already chosen to be a part of the transformation consciously.

Q: Yes. So it won’t be long before that experience of energies seeps through to the older, old guard, conditioned scientists, who still believe the other way?

B: To some degree, but some will not.

Q: Some will never...?

B: Not really, not in this physical life.

Q: What about the new child of the future? The child who’s now in the science class in school?

B: Understand in that way that they are already quite a different culture from you. Not just a different generation – a different culture. Recognize that to them, as an analogy, human kind has always been able to travel in space. They take it for granted: “Well, we have always done it so why cannot other people visit us? Sure, why not? What is so strange about that?”

Recognize that for them it is taken for granted. It is second nature to simply assume that traveling in space, traveling in consciousness is something that everyone does all the time. And now your civilization, in all of its literature in that way, reinforces that idea.

Q: So there’s a whole new co-creation of belief systems?
B: Yes! Always.
Q: It’s very exciting.
B: Thank you, yes.
Q: You don’t sound excited. (Laughter)
B: We have known for quite some time! (Laughter) It is no surprise to us that you are so creative.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
"Season’s Greetings"
We extend to each and every one of you our deep appreciation, once again, for allowing this transmission to come to you through this particular gateway in this manner at this time. Each and every time your civilization allows our civilization to communicate with you in this way, we are allowed the opportunity to experience through each and every one of you, that many more perspectives that Infinite Creation has of expressing itself in and we thank you for this gift of sharing.

We would like to begin this transmission this day of your time with the following idea:
First and foremost, of course, we recognize that the locale to which we are communicating is celebrating certain, of what you call seasonal holidays.
We will thus take a moment to address some of these ideas but at the same time and as we begin, we would of course, like to remind you anything that you choose to celebrate will be, of course, ultimately, a celebration of lifeexistencebeingness.
It does not so much matter, as many of you know, what form you place this celebration in yourselves the opportunity to express it in certain ways, is simply one more creative waymore creative facetmore creative aspect of All That Is Infini the One you wish to call it.
Creation does not care what name you give it,
be it that you use the term of God,
be it that you use the term of Christ Consciousness, be it that you use the term of Buddha Nature,
be it that you use the term of Krishna Spirit, or any other appellation that you may concoct within your own understanding of your relationship to Creation, for there cannot be a name that you can conceive that can be outside of Creationthere is nothing outsideis nothing beyondthings are included within All That Is is the idea and the very definition of the Infinite, that it is Infinite and that nothing that can be imagined by any being on any world, in any dimension of experience, can possibly, by definition, be outside the Infinite.
And so, any name you come up with is as valid as any other name.
Any other approachanother ritualanother ceremonyanother celebration that you may choose to invent as representative of your relationship...individually collectively, to the Infinite or any aspect of the Infinite, cannot by its very nature be wrong or
The One values expression that any aspect of Itself, and this means all of you of beings in Creation... the One honors any idea or any perspective that comes up for any individual in their relationship to the One, for that is the whole point of the experience of being an individual is to recognize that while you are a unique part of The One, simultaneously each and every one of you and all beings in Creation are also the Total One Whole One itself and expressing itself as a part of the One.

This is the great paradox of the Infinite, the great ability of the Creator be both simultaneously All That Is and every single part within itself as an individual, separate from the One and yet simultaneously experiencing Itself as the Total One separate individual.

As you allow yourself to explore the idea of the celebration of your holiday season, do please understand that that energy is meant to accelerate throughout your entire year, your entire orbit. You can use it at any time of your season, any time of your year. The idea is to ultimately recognize, that each and every one of you, individually, is a celebration on the part of the Creator, another way that the Creator has of expressing Itself, another way the Infinite has of experiencing Itself, the other ways, all the other ways that the Infinite has of celebrating that It Exists. That is what each and every being in Creation is Celebration definition.

So, when you are celebrating the One aspect of the One ritual ceremony that you are also celebrating yourself and each other. You are celebrating that you are aspects of each other, reflections of each other... which is what relationships are all about anyway. And as you celebrate those reflections, the whole idea is to allow yourself the opportunity to surround yourself with the opportunity to learn more and more all ways possible... who you are as the unique aspect of the One. For the more you cherish that uniqueness, the more you honor the One. For all of the individual puzzle pieces in a large puzzle picture must truly be themselves if they are going to fit with all the other puzzle pieces and support the whole picture. If any puzzle piece tries to be something that it is not, tries to be a different shape, then it will not fit with all the other puzzle pieces and will not support the One.
So, as you celebrate the uniqueness that you are and honor and cherish that you exist apart from all others, that you are an expression of the diversity of the One, understand that it is that act itself, not in a selfish way negatively, but the honoring of the Selfvaluing of the Selfvalidating and the loving of the Selfactually is the greatest gift you can give to the Infinite.

For you are saying that you are a valuable part of All That Is, and that you are a valuable expression of the whole, and thus then can in so doing, support the whole picture, and every one else's idea and unique perspective.

You are like a hall of mirrors, reflecting each other to each other, to show each other you are only who you are to someone else, but to help everyone else understand more and more in your relationship with them they are. That is the greatest help you can be to anyone, the greatest love you can give to anyone, is to help them know and learn more and more everyday they are support their uniqueness cherish their individuality the infinite diversity you are immersed in in your world of experience.

We share these thoughts with you because these are the ideas that exist deep within your hearts, deep within the core of your true being your true spirit... of your true consciousness.

At the core of every being there is one vibration primal resonance of unconditional love of All That Is. The existence itself is the vibration of unconditional lovesupport support support.

As we have said quite often, you will find that in some ways, paradoxically speaking, the very proof that you are unconditionally loved is that you're actually allowed to believe you are not unconditionally loved. That is how unconditionally you are loved. That the All That Is, The One, The Creator will even love you so much that it will allow you to believe that you are not loved, if you want to. That is the proof of how unconditional the love of Creation is, because it allows you anything, any reality self denial self destruction and self depreciation and self devaluation because it knows you are worthy of any experience you can imagine and anything that you decide and you choose is the experience that you need to go through, it will support you in that experience matter what it is even if involves the idea that you lack support and lack love, you are supported in believing in lack of support.
The universe is a self-fulfilling prophecy in that way, a self perpetuating cycle, in that way. Take it in that way: you are unconditionally loved each and every one of you is a spark that Eternal Light Infinite Light.

You are spirit consciousness being. You all, each and every one of you, though you are unique, share the same identical purposes same identical missions same identical goal your physical life reality experience, and that goal is to simply, as uniquely as you can, according to your own individuality the best you you can be.

That is the only function you have, the only purpose you have. You do not need to get caught up in the idea that you need to fulfill any other purpose any other mission any other goal in life. All the things in your lives that you call purposes, goals, projects, missions these are not your goals are not your purpose, they are expressions your purpose of being you. However it is you want to express the goal, the purpose of being you, it is up to you that’s where your free will comes in.

But those are not your goals not place your expectations upon them as if they must come to fruition in any particular way, because there are an infinite number of ways in which your dreams, your desires can come to fruition many times even greater than you can imagine at any given moment.

The idea that allows you to know that you are walking the unerring path of your true self is to simply at any moment ask yourself: "Am I being the fullest me, the best me I know how to be?"

"Am I following my joy, living my truth to the best of my ability?"

If the answer is yes, that’s all you need to do and nothing thing is expected of you from the Infinite. That is the only thing you have to do, is be yourself.

However do understand in communicating to your particular civilization, that one of the most difficult things many of you have created for yourselves is to be yourself upon your planet understand the great challenge that this affords you. Take it to heart and do not feel despair.

Do remember, one of the reasons you adopted upon yourselves and accepted unto yourselves the great challenge of forgetting who you are, forgetting that you are connected to the Infinite and forgetting that you are unconditionally loved. . .
is that when you finally remember who you are you start being who you are you have learned to do this, coming through the great challenge of having forgotten utterly, you will be that much more certain much more strong much more in the light having come through the darkest darkness and still been capable of remembering who you are’s why you have created this challenge.
So we, as a civilization, wish to extend our greatest thanks to each and every one of you for accepting such a challenge of strength upon yourselves, for from you we learn, and all other beings learn if you can do it can!
Because in our experience, not that there are not others, but in our experience, your world is one of those that have challenged itself most strongly in the area of not knowing who you are and yet you are still remembering and that shows the infinite strength of the true spirit the true heart the true beings you are.
Take it to heart faith with it in it . . .
for that is who you are is no doubt.
We take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing us to remind you of what you already knew and for allowing us to remind you to pay attention to your hearts your spirits what you know to be true for yourself.
For all are created as infinitely powerful as they need to be, to create anything and any reality they so desire without having to hurt themselves or any one else in order to do so. You are infinitely strong imaginative creative . . .
because you are an aspect of the Infinite.
We thank you for allowing us to express this to you, we thank you for your gift of sharing in this holiday season of yours.

“Seeds”
from The Agenda 1989

The full power of unconditional Love is what each of you are as a seed. When you truly allow yourselves to burst forth with the flowers of knowingness that are within you, your planet will be such a lovely garden. Right now, in your society, you are tearing up the topsoil, farming the richness of past experience; this will form a very rich compost. All that you consider waste will allow fertility, if you place it in a proper place – behind you and beneath you – and grow from it. Let the light of your own future selves draw you upwards from that rich soil of experience, for it is a rich experience.

Now, a suggestion….go to a natural spot, and sink your hands into the dark rich earth, breathe Nature in, and then look up to the sky. See where you come from in physical reality, see where you are now, and see where you are going. Make a grounded connection to Heaven, bring Heaven to Earth; experience the richness and vitality of your Soul.

Seeing Beyond Limitation

Q: You were talking a moment ago about some machine or some apparatus that can make you think you are hearing voices...

B: Yes.

Q: made me think of something. It seems like something was done to me or all of us, or our planet, to our brains, to make us doubt, to make us not believe in things, to make us not understand the questions.

B: Yes! You did it to yourselves. You did it to yourselves.

Q: How is this true? Because, it’s like, I hear things and I know it’s true, but it’s like something...

B: Yes. It started with the idea of the degree of limitation that you didn’t expect to find by, in a sense, immersing yourself in physical reality to begin with, as a consciousness, just to speak linearly for a moment, as if there really was a beginning and an ending. But the idea is that when you encountered the dimension of physical reality representative of the earth vibration, you did not expect the degree of (another voice, much lower and slow, enters) DENSITY and THICKNESS and LIMITATION that you would experience when you crystallized your consciousness, in this way. And in crystallizing your consciousness into this dimension of reality, it automatically created compartmentalizations and segregations and separations and forgetfulness within you, in remembering the source of all things. And therein came the seed of forgetting and doubt.

Q: I know you’ve spoken about this so many times before, I’m sure... how does one get past doubt, because you know that you’re hearing...

B: You get past it by going through it, and that is why it has taken your species tens of thousands of years to allow itself to experience (voice leaves) all the different kinds of limitations you can experience in the physical earth plane; so that now you are through experiencing all the kinds of limitations you can possibly experience, and now are waking up to the fact the you are at the end of the cycle of limitations, because you’ve done it all. Almost. And that’s how you get past it by having gone through it... and created that much time experiencing limitation, so that now there is no more limitation that you haven’t experienced. And so, by being an old hand at it, you now can have a handle on it and understand it for what it is, and see beyond it. That’s how you get past it.

Q: That’s sort of like the rubber band...

B: Exactly so. The farther back into negativity and forgetfulness you pull the rubber band, that much farther it will go into the light when you finally let it snap.

Q: So, if you follow an idea in which everything inside of you is saying no, but you know it is yes, and then just take that idea and then get it to the point where it says yes.

B: Yes. When you buy into the no that you know is not true, you are simply succumbing to the ancient inertia. You don’t have to do that, anymore.

Q: So buy into the yes and just keep it...vibrate there and...
B: As long as you are clear, with your integrity, that the yes that you are thinking you are buying into is truly representative of your excitement, and not just the projection of a denial mechanism, then yes, by all means, buy into the yes. Does that help you?
Q: Yes, and those 39... what effect does the UFO connection... will that have in our world and far as people you know getting more and more information that there are UFO’s...
B: Focus on yourselves for now. All right?
Q: Okay. Thank you.
Seeing the Electromagnetic Field

Q: Sometimes when I listen to you speak, or other channels, the room seems to turn like a dull yellow. Is that an auric projection of energy?

B: In a sense. Understand, you are allowing yourself to be tuned to the vibration of the translation of the consciousness into the mentality of the electromagnetic field, by which all of your super-mentality is connected. You are seeing if you wish, no pun intended, the "medium" of communication of energy waves, physically, consciously.

Q: I see, thank you.

B: Oh, thank you. You are creating for yourself the realization of that reality. We have only now then shared the reflection that you have created, so we will thank you.

Q2: Can you be more specific about the super-mentality that she is viewing?

B: Simply in that way, it is a symbolic representation of the idea that the medium of exchange from mind to mind is a substance which fills your entire space. It is the idea to some degree, to some degree, not exactly as it was once defined, of the old idea you once expressed as the ether.

Q: All right.

B: Realize that it is not in that way, yet, observable to your mechanical instruments, but it is observable to your mentality, if you allow your mentality to be aligned to your consciousness.

Q: So the electromagnetic field is really there for us to see if we take the blinders off. We can see all the waves and all the colors and all...

B: Yes! You can see the flow of mental communication between every being, like a roadmap. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Like tides, like currents.

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
Seismic Sensitivity

Q: This week I’ve had a mild pain sensation around my heart.
B: Yes.
Q: And it seems somehow to be associated with the idea of constraint. Could you give me any insight on that?
B: Recognize that you, like many individuals in your society, are beginning to recognize the sensitivity that what you call your heart chakra has for the lower electromagnetic vibrations in your planetary sphere. There have been many individuals who have the idea of pressure, and/or what you call palpitations around the heart area, with regard to what you call the increase in seismic activity upon your world. Simply recognize that you have your own built-in barometer, your own seismograph in this way, and it is an indication that you are picking up the lower vibrations and the fluctuations that are occurring in the magnetic field of your world, that are attached to seismic activity.
Q: Is it indicative of a particular type of seismic activity?
B: Yes, you can learn that there are patterns, in that way. You can learn to discern magnitude, locale, type, rapidity, frequency, repeatability and all sorts of understandings, if you begin to treat yourself as a biological sensor. Simply take note of the different feelings that you have in that area and catalogue them according to what seismic activity occurs within your world, and you will begin to see a pattern that you can follow.
Q2: In relation to that, when I was up in Frisco last weekend, I had very severe chest pain. Is that related to the same thing?
B: To some degree, yes.
Q: I would prefer not to perceive it in that way.
B: All right, but recognize that you are a part of the agreement of your mass consciousness at this time. And while you can alleviate it in the form of what you call pain, you will still go through some of the idea, to begin with, of discomfort, simply because you have belief systems within you that are coming to the surface. Thus, by reflection, you assist in the Earth’s transformation through the allowance, not the resistance of your own.

Now, all you have to do to alleviate the pain is to allow yourself to receive the message. And in this way, ask yourself, in what other way are you willing to receive the message so that it does not have to come in a way that forces you to pay attention? Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Then you will not need the experience of pain, which is only caused by judgment, which causes separation from a part of you to the rest of all you are. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Self-Validation
Q: Lately I’ve become involved in three different programs that have to do with the environment, that kind of thing. And I guess I want you to validate my excitement and the path I’m on.
B: I cannot. I can comment on it; I can enjoy it. But I cannot validate it.
Q: Well, that’s what I was looking for, a validation.
B: Well then, give it to yourself and you shall have it.
Q: Okay.
B: Are you validated?
Q: Yeah.
B: Thank you.
Q: Seems better when it comes from you, though.
B: Why?
Q: I don’t know.
B: It can’t be, it can only come from you; it cannot come from me. So how can it be better if it comes from me?
Q: But aren’t we one?
B: We are one, I can validate the one I know I am. But you must concurrently validate the one you know you are.
Q: Well, I’d like to make a statement. It has to do with my quest for truth.
B: Quest for truth.
Q: And my career.
B: Yes.
Q: I know they work hand in hand because you have talked about that before. And I didn’t know that before.
B: And you already know that “The Truth” is composed of all truths?
Q: Yes.
B: So when you say, “my quest for the Truth,” what you’re actually talking about is your expression of your truth.
Q: Yes.
B: At any given moment, whatever that may be.
Q: Actually what I mean is, my own peace.
B: Yes. Same thing.
Self Awareness

B: I have discussed, from time to time with many of you, the idea of what you call the patterns and the habitual rituals that many of you find yourselves in, in your physiological reality. This analogy can assist in our understanding of the very ability for self-awareness itself.

We have discussed, along with the idea of the notion of habit, that once you recognize you have a habit, you no longer have it. That you have to be outside of it, beyond it in a sense, in order to know you had it. When you are in the framework, you do not know you are in the framework; you do not see the framework for what it is.

When you arrive at a point in your life when you recognize that you were in a particular framework, then it must by definition be past tense. You have to already be beyond it, outside of it so to speak, in order to know that the framework existed. Because only from that point of view can you see the idea of what the framework is and how it relates to everything else you have been doing in your life.

The analogy that we have used, once again, is the idea of being on a mountaintop. And from the mountaintop, then, you understand that before you climbed the mountain you used to live in a valley. But it is not something that you may recognize until you teach the mountain top, for there your perspective allows you to truly see, in a much broader sense, the terrain of the inhabitation you experienced before.

The idea of self-awareness, the recognition of self-awareness to some degree, functions alongside, parallel to this analogy. And the very ability to be self-aware – in a sense for lack of a better term – can be called a proof that your mind, your consciousness, must by definition be of a non-physical nature to begin with. Let us illuminate the idea further.

We recognize on your planet there have been for quite some time ideas, belief systems, where individuals might think that your physical reality is all there is. And that there is no physical – no physical extension – beyond your life span. And that in there being no physical extension beyond your life span, then the idea that you are, the mind that you are, the consciousness that you are, ceases to exist.

We recognize that this has been a belief on your planet held by some individuals for quite some time. The idea, however, can be seen to be self-contradictory, for you can recognize that your ability to be self-aware, self-reflective – to see yourselves – requires that you have the capacity to stand outside the paradigm that you are, to stand outside the framework that you are. The ability for self-reflection cannot come from within the framework in which you exist on the physiological level.

The idea that mind is simply the product of physiological chemical interaction and nothing more would be contradictory in the sense that a physical object, if that is all there is, is a physical reality. If that is the only framework, and there is no other framework from which you can view physical reality, then self-awareness would not be possible. You would not be able to have that remote self-reflective ability, for there would be nothing beyond it. Those measurements, the recognition of self, is a measurement that can only be made outside of the thing that you are measuring, the framework that you are measuring
If physical materiality was all that there is, in that sense, you would simply be programmed, as you say "hard-wired." There would be no flexibility, no reprogramming, no ability to extend a reflection back to yourselves. For the idea of physical reality would be self-contained.

Non-physicality to some degree is simply an extension of the physicality you are used to. It is a more rarified version, a vibration, a frequency shift, but one with profound sensorial effects, one that is expansive in its point of view relative to the physical reality you are used to inhabiting, shall we say.

Now this does not mean that it is the end-all, be-all – this non-physical reality – in terms of having a point of view, in terms of expansiveness, in terms of knowing. There are still yet many levels, shall we say? Many degrees – and they are quite infinite – of knowingness, of self-reflectivity. It is open-ended, and must be open-ended, once again, in order to have the ability for self-reflection. That open-endedness, the ability to be infinite, is what creates the ability to see yourselves, to be aware of yourselves, and to recognize yourselves at any place, at any stage within the whole idea of existence.

If it were not infinite, once again, it would be a closed framework. And in a closed framework there cannot be self-reflection. So infinity, non-physical reality: these things in a sense are necessary ingredients for you to even be able to possess the capability of self-awareness. For self-awareness is the first, shall we say, separation.

You are you; you are one idea. To be able to see yourselves implies that there is more than the one idea you have thought yourselves to be for so long. It is an extended, or how you say, existential point of view, a transcendental point of view. It is a loop; like a mirror it implies that there is another point of view beyond that which you express yourselves to be at any given locale in space/time. To be able to extend your senses to the place where you can think about yourselves, where you can be self-aware, implies by definition that there is something beyond the reality at any given moment that you immediately inhabit. And always will be – forever.

We will be delineating more of the ideas of aspects of consciousness, clarifying these abilities within many of you within this, your new year-what we have termed Year of Conviction. But by whatever name this time in your lives goes by, it is the time of explosions and explorations, of true allowance, true redefining of the persona and the personality that you are.

Many of the ideas that have been termed workshops that we will be discussing in your new year will deal directly with specific ways to redesign the persona that you are, into what you wish it to be. All the tools are now available. The level of awareness on your planet makes it so that you can begin to truly redefine and redesign the persona that you are. And have the different life style that is representative of the new persona, the new personality, the new construct you express yourselves to be.

We will also be discussing altered states of consciousness as they apply both to your physiological reality and several other realities that you are connected to, but have not in your reality had conscious remembrance of for quite some time.

But it will form links for you that can be translated in ways that you can apply in your physiological reality to aid in the assistance and acceleration of your own self-awareness because you will be able to use those other places you also exist as mirrors, larger mirrors, to see what you may call the bigger picture of your physical reality, to see more clearly and cleanly how you fit. Because you do.

Not to see whether you fit, but how you fit. For if you did not fit, you would not be where you are. You can begin to use what you may call those higher selves, those future selves, those mirrors, to reflect back to you that point of view, that self-aware reflection that will allow you to truly see how you are intermingled with all other individual personas in your physiological reality.

We will be discussing ideas of your sensitivity, of awareness within your physical reality – and how to increase that. And all the ideas of keying into vibrations and energy, the energy that you are. For you are made of energy, and the frequency, the pitch at which you vibrate determines everything you experience – everything. And we will be discussing that, and how to apply that in your lives in a very conscious direct methodology that will give you immediate feedback, so that you understand you are responsible for the creation of your physiological reality.

This, in having termed it, Your Year of Conviction, is where we work together in more parallel ways, hand in hand as you say, with tools and methodologies that will allow you an immediate reflection of all the concepts and ideas and belief systems we have discussed for the previous four years of your time. So that you will have what you call your practical experience with these ideas, know they are tools that will feel solid to you that you can apply in your lives and get a result from immediately.

Less time is necessary now. More conviction means less is necessary to get the results you desire. It will take you through many routes of yourselves. We will put you in touch with many beliefs that you may have, and not know that you have.

But that will part of the fun. For that self-discovery will always lead the recognition of the greater self that functions as a mirror – to become more self-aware of the you you are, in all the expanded ways you can.

These are some of the things we will be discussing this year of your time. And all of it –all of it! – will be for the purpose of expanding your self-awareness and your activity, your conviction. And increasing the potential of allowing you to be one mind. Individuals always, but one mind – in step harmoniously, smoothly, effortlessly, joyfully. For these things are your birthrights.

Nothing in the universe denies happiness to you – but yourselves. You all are that powerful, every single one of you. Every single one is a universe unto him – or herself – or itself, depending on the reality you come from.

This year will put you more in touch with all the ideas that you are. We thank you for your willingness to have created the world you have created, to have it be such a bold expression, to be so very exciting.
Greetings to you this day of your time, as you create time to exist. We thank you for being willing to co-create with us, this day of your time, this interaction so that there may be expansion between your world and our world. Together, eventually, your civilization and many other civilizations, through interactions such as these, may come to a place and a time when we can interact freely and explore creation together. We thank you for the opportunity to accelerate that process by co-creating this particular endeavor today of your time. The idea we wish to discuss, the idea we wish to reflect to each and every one of you is one that we have entitled, "Self-Empowerment." And before we begin with the specific tools by which you can allow yourself to use self-empowerment, we would desire to lay down a few foundations so there will be some common basis of understanding within all the things we will be discussing.

Many individuals on your planet now are discovering ideas of what you call, your New Age of Awareness. You are discovering expansions of your consciousness, you are discovering aspects of yourself that you, heretofore, did not necessarily know existed. Nor were you taught that these things, these abilities, these powers existed within you, except perhaps in very isolated circumstances. For perhaps you may have been taught that certain abilities existed within you, but that these teachings may have been cloaked in ritual and many other formats that did not necessarily allow you to understand the mechanisms of what you were being told in a clear and concise manner. None of these ideas, in any way, shape or form is wrong. It is simply indicative of the evolution of your society and at no time, in no way, do we make any indication that what you have gone through is any less valid than anything any other society has experienced.

Our civilization, to some degree, still retains, in its evolutionary process, a connection to a type of physiological reality. In other words, we are also physical beings communicating to you at this time through telepathic contact. In a sense, however, we are not physical like you are, neither in shape nor in dimensional experience. We have our own evolutionary process and we are moving from, what you may call, an accelerated level of physical reality to non-physical reality in our transformation. All civilizations go through transformation. You are not the only one, and as has been said many times, by no means is your civilization lowest on a list of civilizations.

The idea is simply that various civilizations will go through their own processes at their own pace, in their own time. And, in a sense, not meaning to be judgmental, no one really has any business comparing one civilization to another for their relative merit or degree of ability. Therefore, simply take it to heart that whatever processes you have been going through in your lives, and for many lifetimes, is simply the processes that were of your choosing. There is no such thing as wasted time, everything can be utilized in a positive way; and there is absolutely nothing that you have ever discovered about yourself, nor will ever discover about yourself that cannot be applied in your lives in a positive way. Therefore, once again, allow yourselves to understand that in these interactions, this day of your time, with regard to, what you call, learning self-empowerment, we are not really teaching you anything new. We are not really reflecting to you things that you do not know, we are simply reminding you of things that, for lack of a better term, you have forgotten. Reminding you of your innate connection to Creation, for as had been said also many times, in your own way and in many different ways, you are created in the image of, what you term, God. To us, your term God translates as All That Is, literally consciousness of existence itself, everywhere, anywhere, that you can imagine it to be. You are aspects, you are reflections, you are facets and fragments, if you wish, of All That Is. You are made in that image and, therefore, you as well, each and every individual one of you and all of you collectively are also multi-dimensional, multi-creative beings, just like the idea of what you call God. That is what it means to be made in that image; you are, shall we say, a microcosmic version of the macrocosmic reality. Each and every part of the Whole contains the information of the Whole.

Therefore, you have at your disposal an unlimited source of information and energy which you can apply in your lives in way, shape, or form you so desire; and this is the key of what we shall be discussing this day of your time. The things that you desire, what they represent and the true ability you already have to create those things, to manifest those things, clearly and precisely in your lives. Again, let us re-phrase for clarity’s sake, the idea is to understand that the notion of self-empowerment and the tools that we will be sharing with you are not something that are really new. We will perhaps be re-phrasing things for the purpose of your contemporary language, but these things have been known to your civilization since your civilization began its existence in physiological form. And therefore, we simply are reminding you of what you already contain.
PART II: PSYCHIC SENSITIVITY

B: And now, we begin this new day with an understanding of psychic sensitivity and synchronicity. Remember, upon your planet, many individuals have thought that psychic awareness – what you call extra-sensory perception, nothing extra about it, telepathy, or as we very often say, telempathy, for that is what it is – have for a long time thought that these things are manifestations of the mind; and in a sense they are. They utilize mentality, the electromagnetic field, to derive their effect. They can be, in a sense, mentally directed, but they are not mentally activated. They are emotionally activated. Desire, love, many times even fear, will allow you to form psychic connections that you had heretofore not known yourself capable of manifesting. Strong emotion: e-motion; energy in motion.

That is what allows you to form the vibratory identification with another being, with many other beings – that allows you to create the effect that you are reading their thoughts. You are not directly reading another person’s thoughts. What you are doing is identifying with them so strongly, loving them so strongly, junctioning with them so strongly, that you begin to operate on a similar frequency. And as you match their frequency by identifying with them, you then translate the universal creative energy through your consciousness, into your mentality, in a similar fashion. You create a similar train or pattern of thought; so you create parallel, synchronous thought patterns, and it allows you to seem as if you are reaching into their minds and pulling out their thoughts. That is why, through this mechanism of telempathy, that you see individuals that you recognize to be in love, very often, sharing each other’s thoughts.

When you are in love it is the strongest identification with another individual. You think alike. You are on the same wavelength, literally. Many of you have used that analogy, perhaps, not necessarily knowing how accurate a description of the mechanism of telempathy you were reciting. You are on the same wavelength literally, and that is why you create similar thoughts.

So, the idea of psychic sensitivity and expressing synchronicity is to identify as strongly as you can with love, with all other beings, all other levels of consciousness. To love them is to know them. Literally. Synchronicity. Psychic expression is simply an expression of conscious recognition of synchronicity. And all synchronicity is the awareness that everything is connected to everything else, because everything is everything else. Because everything is the same one thing manifesting itself in all the multi-dimensional ways it can, simultaneously, in the creation that it is.

So, you are everyone else, everything else. So why shouldn’t you know them? Loving them, loving All That is, allows you to identify as All That Is; unconditional love connects you to every thing, every one, every way.

Therefore, this technique, this visualization now, will be a method to allow each and every one of you in your own way, to form a relationship with all levels of beings; all levels of consciousness. Again, we will begin simply.

Close your eyes and relax. And remember that all the love you will feel in this exercise that is coming to you, you deserve. Simply return it. Simply return it unconditionally. Once again, take yourselves to your place of perfect peace with three deep breaths. Take a few moments to orient yourself to your place of perfect peace. Now you can begin to allow yourself to generate a relaxation far more profound than you have ever experienced before. We will begin by imagining, in any way, shape or form you care to, the vibrational frequency, you call the color red.

Allow this frequency to wash over your body. Think of your physical body. Allow this red, warm vibration to seep within you in an earthy, primal, sensuous way. Feel your beinghood, your creatorhood, your physicalness; feel from the bottom of your toes this red, warm energy beginning to rise through your feet, through your ankles, up through your shins, your calves. As it does so, allow yourself to allow every portion of your body that this energy touches to relax in a deep and profound way. Feel the tendons. Feel the muscles soften. Feel them simply lying on the bones of your body. Let the red energy move up through the knee joints. Feel the flexibility of your knee joints. Feel the fluid warm up and become thick, supportive and lubricating. Feel the red, warm energy moving up your thighs. Feel the muscles spreading out, relaxing as if they are soaking up sunshine on a warm, warm sandy beach. Feel them flattening out on your bones. All the tendons stretching out, sighing. Sigh now, and sigh as your muscles sigh. Let your muscles expel the breath they have been holding. Expel the tension.

Feel the red energy moving up through the pelvic area. Feel the caressing sensuality of the red warmth fill you. Feel it moving up into your abdominal area, not only the relaxation of your musculature, but also the red warmth seeping into every internal organ; all the internal organs relaxing, warming, feeling cozy and comfortable. Resting gently upon one another. Feel the muscles around your ribs. Feel your diaphragm relax under your rib cage, under your lungs. Feel your lungs relaxing. Let the red warmth spread outward, upward through your chest; upward into your shoulders. Let your shoulders relax.

Release the tension. Let your shoulders drop away from your head. Let the red warmth cascade down your arms to pool into your elbow joints, and seep and flood into your hands, into your fingers. Feel them allow you to let them feel you becoming dreamy, heavy, so lid and grounded. Beautifully relaxed.

Feel the red warmth’s rise into your throat cavity. Relaxing all of your vocal chords, bathing them in warm honey, in light, in love. Relax the muscles of your mouth. Relax your tongue. Relax your teeth, relax your bones; relax your facial muscles. Relax the tension around your eyes. Relax the muscles around your ears. Relax your scalp; feel the tingling warmth, like a loving massage, go into your scalp. Feel every hair, every pore vibrate and radiate this vibration of red warmth. Now just pulse, as your heart slowly beats with every warm beat of blood through your body, an infusion, a flush of warm release. Your body is totally relaxed, at ease, at one. Floating in your place of perfect peace.

And now, imagine the color green: beautiful, vibrant, emerald, lush, verdant green. And feel your nerves, your mentality, all the ideas of your mental, analytical thought processes melted, blended, luxuriating within the lushness of the green coloration. And feel the green vibration moving from your feet all the way up to your head, filling, blending with the red vibration. Merging your mentality with your physicality. Blending it all as one idea so that your thoughts learn to relax; so that you do not have to stress and strain; so that your thoughts come naturally, easily, knowingly; so that you become natural; so that you simply know what you need to know when you need to know it. Not so much planning. Not so much structure, more spontaneous awareness. Drift in the green, energizing vibration. Merge and blend, and allow your thoughts to become emerald crystal clear. Sparkling and radiant they are.

And now, envision, once again, the bright blue, electromagnetic light of your spirituality; the blue, all-encompassing light of spirit; of soul; of awareness; of consciousness. And blend the red and the green with the blue of your spirit, the idea itself that you are. Know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, right here and right now, that with the combining of the red, the green, and the blue vibrations, simply in doing this you will take yourself to the appropriate vibratory frequency, deep within the center of your being. The proper vibratory frequency that will allow you to blend, to junction, to identify with any thing, any one, any where, any when you so desire.

From this place... from this vibration, once again, whether your analytical old mentality may think you feel any different or not, I guarantee that in blending these frequencies and allowing yourself to come from your place of perfect peace, you are at the appropriate level of consciousness from which you can connect and junction and feel the synchronicity that you are with all other beings. Acclimate. Revel in this energy. Let it wrap its arms around you. Let it caress you, hold you, inspire you. Love it back. Nurture it and it will nurture you.

Take three deep breaths, and allow yourself to float and sink within this loving energy. And as you now do so, and as you now come from this vibratory level, allow yourself now, in your place of perfect peace, to look around in your imagination, with your eyes still closed and spot a rock, it can be small, it can be huge, it can be light. It can be dark. It can be sharp. It can be smooth; but a rock, a natural rock. Any kind. Any texture.

Go to that rock. Either pick it up or touch it; but examine it from all sides, if it is too big to pick up, then allow yourself to know you can interpenetrate the very earth under it to see the rock from underneath; but go all around it. See it from every side: from the top, from the bottom, from the north, from the south, from the east, from the west. All sides. Look at it and feel it. Place your hands upon it. Hold it in your hands. Feel the texture. Smell it. Is it hot? Is it cool? Is it rough? Is it smooth? Taste it. Hug it.

Hear the sound it makes when you rub your hand or fingers across...

(TAPE 2,SIDE 2)

...larger and larger until you are small enough to go inside the rock. Simply interpenetrate. Merge and blend and be within the rock, and look around. Look at the structure – the atomic structure. Smell it, taste it, feel it, hear it. Let the rock feel you, let it smell, taste, hear, touch, caress you; let it learn about you; let it love you as you learn and love it. Look at its very atomic structure. See the molecules. See the atoms that make up this particular rock. And know beyond a shadow of a doubt, that you are absorbing by, direct knowingness, all you need to know to understand all the properties of this rock; all the properties of this rock as an extension of your consciousness.

Then exit from the rock, and allow yourself to grow larger and larger and larger and larger. Large enough to take that rock and place it within your heart. Then love this rock. Love it and be its friend, and let yourself know this rock will always be within you to function as your personal translator for anything and everything you ever need to know about any rock anywhere, any when... about any aspect of that portion of the mineral kingdom. It is always with you in your toolkit. Always.

Now take that rock and place it back in its original location within your place of perfect peace, and know you have made a friend.

And then, with three deep breaths, dissolve the image of your place of perfect peace into a gray, limbo, fog-like state; a neutral state of being. And then, with three more deep breaths, re-form your place of perfect peace; but as you do so you now notice an addition. Next to the rock there is now a lump of metal. It can be any metal, if you wish, preferably, copper, silver or gold, highly conductive, pure, elemental metal.

Go to the metal. It can be a cube. It can be a sphere. It can be a nugget. It can be in any shape or form or size you desire it to be. Pick it up, or look at it. See the luster. Is it mirror-like? Is it satiny? Is it rough? Is it smooth? Is it cool? Is it warm? Again, taste, smell it. Touch it. Hear it. Feel it. Use all your senses. Hear the sound it makes when you strike it. Is it a dull sound, a ringing sound, a bell-like sound? Feel the weight. Is it light? Is it heavy? Know it in all of its aspects. Then let it expand in size and, once again, like an astral being, penetrate the surface and go within. Look around. Look at the quality of light within the metal. See how light reflects off of the molecules... the atomic structure. Again, smell the odor. Taste it. Touch the atoms. Feel them. And let the metal touch you. Let it feel you. Let it revel in you. Let it learn as you learn, and love it.

Then emerge from the metal and grow and expand and take that metal and place it within your heart, and love it for all you’re worth. Hug it. Love it. Nurture it. Nourish it and hold it dear, and know you have made a friend; and it is your translator tool for any and all metals, and that entire portion of the mineral kingdom. And you will know what you need to know about any and all metals. And remove it and replace it next to the rock... back in its original location within your place of perfect peace. And see them sitting side-by-side, beautiful and clear. Perfect tools; there anytime you need them.

Three deep breaths and, once again, dissolve your place of perfect peace back into the gray fog of potential reality; and then with three more breaths, re-form, re-condense your place of perfect peace in brilliant visual colors, and “lo and behold,” there is the rock! There is the metal! And right next to it is a brilliant and beautiful, sparkling, multi-faceted crystalline form; the third state of the mineral kingdom. And it is beautiful and it reflects, in every facet, all the rainbows of light that you can possibly imagine. And you go to it and you pick it up; or you hold it, or you hug it, and you see yourself reflected.

It is all colors. It is transparent and opaque. It is fluctuating, sparkling in the light, even in the dark; even under the moon. It you have the moon in your place of perfect peace, it sparkles. Even it reflects the light of the stars. It is a multidimensional crystal. It is the crystal of your imagination. Pick it up. Look at all sides. Move around it. Feel the texture. Hear the tone when you pass energy through it. Use all of your senses. Touch it. Taste it. Hear it. Smell it. Then, like a delicate bubble, let it expand. And go within, and see the infinite reflection in the multi-faceted crystalline latticework of the atomic structure.
Explore all the conduits, all the tunnels. Explore with all of your senses, all of your excitement, all of your joy. Feel it, and hear the echo reverberate from the multi-faceted canyon walls of the atomic molecular structure inside the crystal. And let it cover you with its own tones, its own light. Let it learn of you and rejoice in the crystal that you are.

Then emerge and expand and take, gently, that beautiful crystal, and place it in your heart of hearts, in your soul of souls, and love it, and feel the clarity and brilliance of its purpose – its knowingness. And let it be your friend. And let it be our translation tool, and all and anything that you need to know of any crystalline form of the mineral kingdom, your friend will help you know. And you take that crystal and place it next to the metal, next to the rock. And you observe them smiling, in their own way at you, as you smile in return.

And now, three deep breaths, and you dissolve your place of perfect peace, once again, into the limbo state. And with three deep re-creational breaths, as you re-form your place of perfect peace, all the minerals have combined to form the Earth, the soil. And from this soil a rich and verdant tropical garden jungle of all types of vegetation, and plant, and flowering tree, and fruit, are blossoming all around you. You are in the garden of life, of Eden, of light; the depth and variation, the smell of the greenness, the grasses, the bushes, the growing things, the tallness of the trees swaying in the wind, the breeze speaking to you through the leaves of the trees. The lushness, the richness, the fertility that you sense, the flowers, the riot of color, the splash of every hue, the ripeness of every fruit and nut, the plentiful abundance of the endless forest – the eternal jungle – within you; the primal depths of your soul.

And you feel the juices coursing through the leaves, and you smell and you taste the plenitude of all of the fruit. And you feel the simplicity of the transformation of light through the leaves into energy, into life! You feel the oxygenation issuing from the leaves. You feel the oxygen pouring into your lungs; the offering and the gift of life that they give to you; and you in return, the carbon dioxide that they eagerly soak up within themselves; the osmosis; the exchange between the symbioses that you are together. The richness of the nitrogen in the soil, and the depth of the roots as they draw from the deep and endless well of water and minerals. Deep. You are anchored deeply within the Earth, and you feel the roots from your feet sinking down into the soil, and you feel the water drawing upward. Upward and outward as you branch out into the sky toward the light.

And you feel the sun playing upon you, and you feel it dancing upon the leaves on your branches. And you feel the fertility and the plentitude and the abundance... the richness. You feel yourself and you know yourself to be a part of that forest. All the trees are within you. You are within them. You feel their suppleness, their strength and their gentility; their majesty and their grandeur; the multitudinous climates, from the driest deserts to the wettest of snow-capped peaks; the richness and diversity of the growing vegetation. And you feel their love. Give them your love.

As you sit within nature in this meditative state, as you became the trees, as you allow them to become you, allow them to learn what it is to walk among them; even as you learn what it is to anchor yourselves to the Earth, and receive all the nutrient, nourishment and nutrition from the spot in which you exist. As you learn what it is to be each other, then know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that in this forest, in this jungle, in this shady glen, you have the tools to understand all aspects of the growing things of the vegetable kingdom. They are your friends and translators, and they speak to you. Listen to them. Listen to their ancient wisdom; their ease of knowledge; their ease of growth and creativity. Feel them. Love them. See them shine in your place of perfect peace.

Three deep breaths, drinking deeply of the oxygen they have provided for you, and dissolve your place of perfect peace.

And now, oh now! With three loving and energetic breaths, as you re-form your place of perfect peace with the foundation of the minerals and the backdrop of the vegetation, as you re-form the panorama of the endless plains, hills, mountains, valleys, deserts, oceans of your place of perfect peace, you see from every direction, every size, every shape, every color, wet, large, loving, beautiful, gentle; the eyes of all the animals, of all kinds and all makes, all types, all forms looking at you; looking at you with their bright, wet, loving, trusting, knowing eyes. Their eyes are pools of love that have no bottom, no end. They give you their strength, their speed, their flight, their ability to swim. Feel them. Love them. They love you. They guide you. Unconditionally they give... willingly, endlessly, perfectly, to you.

See yourselves reflected in their eyes; see your own naturehood. Feel their small and great hearts beating all around you. Feel the love they radiate to you; feel the joy; feel, taste, smell, hear, embrace all of them. Take them into your hearts and love them, and care for them. Nurture them. They love you so very much. They are here for you. Fly with them. Run with them. Leap with them in ecstatic joy. Let them show you the ecstasy of your own natural Godhood. You are blessed by them; sleep with them, play with them, learn with them as they learn, sleep and play with you; gently, exuberantly, smoothly, lovingly, majestically. And always they will tell you everything and anything you desire to know about them; for they know you will learn what you are as well, by allowing them to reflect to you the natural creator that you are.

With one loving look into their eyes, allow them again to dissolve with three deep breaths, vital breaths, into the gray limbo of all potential reality, of all knowingness. And with three sentient, sapient, knowing, conscious breaths, re-form your place of perfect peace. And behold the infinite display of all thinking beings from every civilization, from every realm, and do not forget the beings from your own – the dolphin and the whale consciousness – all thinking beings, all alien races, all beings of every level of consciousness that exist within the infinite spectrum of universal, multidimensional reality. They are all there with open arms for each and every one of you! All with open hearts. All with open minds! All with open breath! All with open eyes! All with open consciousness!

Inviting you to join in the brotherhood and the sisterhood, in the beinghood of All That is! In the joy and the celebration of the exploration of infinite life! You are invited to an infinite party that never ends; of exploration; of expansion; of knowingness; of, in that way, the replenishment and the refreshment of your very soul. The never-ending discovery of all the different ways that life can manifest itself, All the different forms of creation that infinite creation can represent itself to be! Embrace and hug, and meet your long lost families! This is reunion of all the beings, all your lives, all the times, all the places, all the experiences on every level, in every civilization, every level of your imagination and dimension of experience!

They all greet you. We all greet you! We all greet each other, and anything you need to know anytime, anywhere – you simply call. They will be there. You will be there. You will know your brothers. You will know your sisters. You will know your friends. You will know your lovers. You will know all that you need to know as the being, the multidimensional being, you, yourself, are created to be!

Drink deeply of the celebration of life! All of its aspects are within you! All of its facets are within you! All of its knowledge is within you! Breathe it! Feel it! Revel! Celebrate! And refresh yourselves within it. It is endless! It is infinite! There is more than enough for everyone forever!

And now, dissolve your place of perfect peace. Three deep breaths, and with the next three breaths allow all that you have allowed your perfect place of peace to be, to now take the form of your Earth environment, comfortably, gently, and lovingly.

Part II: Psychic Sensitivity

Self-Fulfilling Prophecy

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

Allow us to begin this evening of your time – and if you wish, you may use it as your entitlement – with the idea of self-fulfilling prophecy. Allow us first to delineate the idea that every prophecy is a self-fulfilling prophecy – every single one. For a prophecy is what you usually term a prediction, a point of view, a perspective on something that you may feel will come about to represent a certain idea, a certain reality, a certain manifestation.

Any of these so-called predictions are always a result of a particular mode of thinking, a particular belief structure, a particular perspective that already exists to begin with. All prophecies that you hear about always must come out of a particular belief structure, and therefore, are always oriented to the belief structure out of which they have emerged. But also recognize something else: each and every idea and each and every belief in any given idea will always generate a system of logic that will support the belief in that idea. Always.

Now, what we are colloquially saying is that, as we have said before, the truth is composed of all truths; and all truths, all perspectives are true, are real. Simply that any time you have a particular perspective, a particular point of view, a belief in that point of view will always generate through your mind a system of logic that will reinforce and support that point of view that it is self-fulfilling, self-perpetuating.

So when one individual says, "Well, I believe this way; and as proof that it works, this happens, this happens, this happens and this happens. So you have to know that what I am saying is true." But recognize, another individual at the same time can say, "But look: I believe this way; and this happens, this happens, and so on. And therefore, I have my feedbacks, my validations, my proofs for the way I believe."

Now your society, as we have observed it, basically does not allow there to be an understanding that both of these individuals are correct. Each of them at the same time, because of the direction of their belief, has generated within their mentality, and all others like them, the perpetuation of a system of logic that, by definition, must always reinforce and support the system of belief that the individual is upholding. This is the fundamental mechanism of universal creation, that each and every belief will perpetuate a complete system unto itself, so that that system can function as its own universe, self-contained, self-perpetuating, self-validating, self-reinforcing. Each and every thing you understand is, in and of itself, able to support and sustain itself for as long as you maintain that perspective.

Therefore, simply recognize that anyone’s system works for them, because they are each using the fundamental mechanism of the universe to support themselves, to reinforce themselves. Because that is their particular way at that moment that they need to be to understand who and what they are, to experience what they believe they need to be.
So the universe, being the infinite holographic mechanism that it is, will always be able to allow for the generation of a complete and total self-feeding system that will seem to be, to the one using that system, the only system that works. Because that is the nature of that system; it must be self-contained in order for you to get out of it what you need to get out of it.

With one exception, any system of belief, which allows itself to include an understanding that all systems of belief work, will also be able, because of that definition, to create a system of logic that will sustain that person’s ability to see all systems working; to see all systems as a manifestation of the same mechanism; and to be able to utilize out of any system any particular ritual or methodology they desire to use at any given moment. And it will always work for them in that moment.

They can pick and choose from all the different systems, all the different methodologies and ways that are available in your culture, because they are willing to have a system that has a broad overview. And they allow themselves to know that all truths are true, all truths are real. They are simply relative points of view of the one homogenous mechanism that allows any individual to function as a reflection of the fact that they are a multidimensional creator.

As some of your literature says, you are made in the image of the Infinite Creator; and what that means is that you are an infinite creator. And therefore, you have the capability of creating experientially in your physical reality any system at all. And if you believe that system will work, it will, because you are that fluid and flexible and powerful a creator. Therefore, allow yourselves – if you wish, not because we say so, but just because you wish it – to know that you can avail yourselves of the broad-spectrum view that will allow you richness, variety, diversity in knowing that anything, at any moment that appeals to your curiosity, that attracts your excitement, is a methodology that, because it attracts you, will work for you.

Because you are perhaps coming from the point of view that anything that you are attracted to is something that will work for you – as long as you know you are functioning within your integrity, and following at any given moment the thing that excites you the most. Then you can generate a belief system that will utilize the fundamental mechanism of the universe in the same way that any other system does – but will allow you to experience a support system, a system of logic, self-perpetuating and self-proving, that will also allow you a wide range of tools.

Your imagination, as we have always said, is the key. Your imagination is the primal tool through which any ritual, methodology, or process you believe you need can come to you. For all the rituals and methodologies that have existed in any other way of belief were all created by imagination to begin with.

So allow yourselves, if you wish, to function as the axiom that the truth is all truths; and that any truth is real if that is your focus at that time. You will always be supported; you will always get the feedback; you will always have the proof at any given moment, that the system you believe in is the system that will work for you at that moment. When you change the idea that you are, you automatically change the belief system; you automatically change the system of logic that supports it.
Anything and everything will work for you because you are the creator of anything and everything in your experiential reality. So anything you have to predict about yourselves, any prophecy you wish to become, in line with your system of logic will always be a self-fulfilling prophecy. Because that is the point of view you are coming from; and any such prediction was made from within that point of view. You all follow along?
AUD: Yes. Yes.
B: We thank you for allowing us to share these perspectives, and remind you always that they are simply the perspective and point of view that have worked for our civilization. It is up to you to determine what will work for you. We simply are interacting with your civilization at this time because we recognize that many of you have similar points of view to the points of view that have worked for us. And so we will, as a part of the system of logic that supports itself, come to reinforce the system we exist within. And simply invite any who wish to share that system to share it with us.
But know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that no matter what system of belief you choose, you are at any given moment doing the thing that represents who you need to be at that moment. And we believe in that choice utterly.
And so we will extend once again our appreciation to you in allowing us to experience the gift of your collective and individual consciousness, to allow us to see that many more ways that Infinite Creation has of expressing itself within the creation that it is. We thank you for your gift of sharing; and so we will now turn it around and simply ask you once again, how may we serve you at this time?

Self-imposed Karma

Q: I’m still kind of hung up on self-imposed karma.

B: Hung up on self-imposed Karma! Are you comfortable up there?

Q: That’s what I’m wondering about. Is it self-imposed by the Higher Self, or this fragment of the self?

B: Again, there are two types of free will, two types of recognition. The “Higher Self” who you are when you are in-between lives – because then, in a sense, there’s really no distinction at all between the Higher Self and you – chooses the general theme to represent the continuation of the momentum and the balance that is necessary to continue what you call the karma – which is only a representation of momentum.

The physical you you become utterly has the freedom to determine how you play that general theme out: positively/negatively, quickly/slowly, alone/with friends. You follow me?

Q: I follow you.

B: So the general themes you are exploring in your life generally will remain throughout the life. And that has been, in a sense, determined by the higher self you. But the way you go about it is utterly determined by the you you are now, here, this physical consciousness.

Q: I see. But it seems to me like it’s different when you get to the point of the group consciousness karma. This isn’t something you can get over by yourself.

B: But you are all doing it together. And you can still do your part at whatever rate you wish. Because as an individual, you can “accelerate” ahead of someone else, or stay behind someone else, and you still cut the average rate at which the entire group changes.

Q: Okay, but—

B: You don’t have to hold yourself back just because someone else might be choosing a particular rate. Yes, there is an overall average rate, but within that there’s an awful lot of leeway as to how quickly or slowly you can go as an individual. Because it will all average out.

Q: Okay. One concept I’ve been dwelling on is the possibility that the group – if they…

B: Oh, yes. Absolutely!

Q: being that was involved in this has even transcended to fourth density, left third density? Or are they still locked up in third density?

B: Not all, no.

Q: Some have, without going through the group karma?

B: Yes. But again, it will depend upon the reasons for why that individual has created what they have created, and what they have done has still added to the overall ability of your entire consciousness to go where it wishes to go.

Q: Okay. I had heard on one of the tapes that someone had asked you – on the Ra Materials. Someone had said no one had ever left this density since Jesus’ time.
B: That is simply an analogy to the idea that you have become extremely highly focused since that time. And you have elevated to slightly different lives, and have basically all decided to remain and return – because the transformation is so attractive and exciting. It is not so much that no one has been able to leave; it is that no one has wanted to. Because, well, as you say, you are where it’s at!

Your planet is going through such a strong transformation, that not only do the individuals on your world not necessarily want to leave because they want to be a part of it on some level – physical or nonphysical – but you have attracted the attention of thousands of other civilizations and dimensions of consciousness – to add to the momentum of the group karma of the transformation.

Q: Okay. I gather right now we’re on…there’s one theme: the way out is the way through…We’re on the process now of going through…

B: Yes.

Q: Well, we were going to build up to a point of war, and decided not to have a war this time.

B: There may be some small skirmishes, but you have already decided not to annihilate yourselves. That is long since past as a decision, even though many of you may not even realize it consciously. The decision has already been made.

Q: I know you said not the planet, but that also means the civilization?

B: It also means that.

Q: Okay, thank you.

B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Send Love to Negativity

Q: You’ve discussed that there are several civilizations from other planets and solar systems interacting with us.

B: Yes.

Q: A friend of mine is worried about certain ones being ‘bad.’ She has bad dreams, or what she judges to be bad....

B: There are some interactions going on, in that sense, that perhaps could be handled in a more positive way. Part of the difficulty in those situations is that your government has decided to keep the situation ‘undercover.’ If they are allowed, as they will be eventually, to come out more into the open, then your civilization would recognize what is going on, could volunteer to interact in that way. And the idea could also be understood, that because of the way you have structured your government into a fearful mode, it will also very likely attract other realities to interact with, that are of a like vibration. That civilization also has much to learn from you. They have their own unique expression of ideas, but they are not so very different from you vibrationally. And together, you and that civilization will learn to grow into something new and different.

The idea, first and foremost, is to recognize that your friend can take that energy and then again, transform it in a positive way. If you feel that negativity is being sent, turn it around and send back unconditional love. If anything will prevent the interaction of a person with a negative reality, it will be the sending of unconditional love. Because a negative entity CANNOT STAND THAT, do you understand? It does not feed on love; it feeds on fear. So if that person sends back love, the entity will ’starve’ if it doesn’t go elsewhere. Understand?

Q: Yes. Thank you.
Separation

Q: In my work as a counselor I observe that relationships are always changing. There seems to be a tension between union and separation in relationships, between people coming together and then separating. I’m wondering when are people going to be integrated enough to stay with the union as one?

B: First, do you understand that integration does not mean that you will lose your diversity?

Q: Yes.

B: All right. And integration means you become a stronger individual,

Q: Absolutely.

B: All right. Any time, any time at all, it is open to you to integrate to the point where you do not have the idea you are calling "separation." However, understand that some separations are positive because they are responsible for your ability to be able to experience physical reality. You will not lose all separations. You will never lose all separations. Understand? Separation can serve you constructively in many ways by providing, what you would call, a different perspective, and a different point of view. The idea is to unconditionally acknowledge, accept and love all points of view; recognize what your preference is, live that way and you have at that moment the absolute ability to create the reality you prefer.
Serving Each Other In A Relationship

Q: I’ve had a very difficult relationship with my father, and he represents the idea of an alcoholic...
B: All right.
Q: ... and of not being very loving and supportive, understandably. Therefore, I have been working on building my own strength and my own love through meditation.
B: All right.
Q: But I was wondering if you could help me understand the purpose of this relationship.
B: It can be as simple as you have just stated: to allow you to build your own strength and unconditional love – at least on your end. Once you have allowed that individual to reflect to you your opportunity to be self-empowered and to know you are complete, you can then reflect back to them their own self-empowerment, which can allow them to take the responsibility for their life back into their control.
Q: Right.
B: You are serving each other. Allow what that individual is doing to be of service to you. And then, once you have allowed yourself to know that you have gotten the idea that you are self-empowered and can express unconditional love for all the different ways that any individual may choose to live their life – being that all ways are equal – then you can take upon yourself the opportunity to continue your own recognition of your own self-empowerment, without needing them to be something against which you are pushing to develop that ability within yourself.
You can then say: “I am under my own steam, thank you for your reflection, thank you for your barrier, thank you for your wall that I pushed against to arrive at where I am. Now I am under my own power and I will reflect the knowledge back to you that you also are under your own power. I have unlimited and unconditional faith and love in you, and that whatever you choose is exactly what you need to choose to learn what you have decided to learn.”
Therefore, by offering you the opportunity to be able to learn what you are learning in another way, you give them the opportunity to choose another way, rather than what you perceive to be a destructive negative way. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. So while I’m working on this empowerment to its fullest potential...
B: Now, may I remind you of something?
Q: Yes.
B: It is at its fullest potential right now, and always will be. You are only allowing yourself to remember this. That is what you mean by “working at it.” You do not have to struggle. It is simply remembering. Relax. You know that when you are trying to remember something, that it is when you relax that you remember. So relax, and you will be at your full potential.
Q: All right. As I relax, my dilemma has been...
B: Your what?
Q: My situation.

B: Yes, your fundamentally neutral situation. (AUD: laughter)

Q: I see. (Laughing) My situation has been deciding how to approach the relationship and how to deal with him?

B: Unconditional love. If you are unconditionally loving, then you are granting support and understanding to the relationship. And you will allow it to bolster itself upon that support and reach the understanding you require. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Allow yourself to know that it is serving you. It is not an interruption on your path. It is how you chose to interact; let it serve you. Then you can allow him to let himself let it serve him as well. Through your example of letting the situation serve you, you can show how it can serve him. And he can choose another way to learn whatever it is he is learning. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. I got it.

B: Very good.

Q2: I would like to expand on that a little bit.

B: All right.

Q: If they are at a point where they need to go through that to learn a certain lesson...

B: They obviously believe they have to go through that. It is not that they really need to go through that, it is that they believe they need to go through that. There is no need for anyone to go through anything, unless they believe they need to. Does that clarify the idea?

Q: Yes.

B: Sharing!

Q: You’ve said that on your own planet you recognize people by vibration.

B: Yes.

Q: Do you recognize people on this planet by vibration?

B: Yes.

Q: Can we evolve that capability?

B: You already have that capability.

Q: To the point where we can...

B: Yes! You simply do not pay attention to it. Do you not already have, within your linguistics, the idea of good or bad “vibes?” (AUD: laughter)

Q: Sure.

B: Then recognize, again, it is part and parcel of your subconscious awareness of your ability to “sniff out” the vibration of an individual, and understand their intentions.
Q: And all we have to do is be aware of it?
B: Yes. You can fine-tune it.
Q: I feel it in my gut.
B: In a sense, and in a sense that is why you call it a gut feeling, the solar plexus, in that way – the chakra of intention.
Q: Right. Thank you.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Serving Each Other in a Relationship
Q: There is a place called Shambala over the Gobi Desert.
B: Yes. It is another dimensional frequency, but yes, it is in existence on a level of consciousness.
Q: And what is some of their main activity there?
B: It is more the idea of a collection of consciousness that you would perceive to be a “regulatory” vibration. In a sense, they feel they are sending out caring energy to your planet, so as to allow individuals to be drawn to their own inner shining light.
Q: Do I have any connections to this energy?
B: Well, since you are the one that asked... (AUD: laughter) Again, any vibration that you find yourself attracted to, anything that comes into your consciousness can be a reflection of what, for you, in the moment you have created that reflection, is valid.
If it continues to excite you, follow it. If not, do something else.
But for the moment you asked it, there was obviously validity in it for you. Now that you have integrated whatever you needed to have integrated out of it, you will continue to do so in whatever way excites you and attracts you. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Shambala
Shared Realities

Q: I was reading a book on Indians and I found something very interesting, and I wanted to know how it worked. Anyway, the story goes about one particular Indian who, through understanding and his need to know something, turns himself into a snake – and nearly everyone sees him as a snake.

B: Yes.

Q: And they beat him, and he goes back into his tent and comes back as a person, as this Indian. So, apart from how that served everyone involved, were they seeing an actual snake? Did he physically take on the form of a snake? Or were they...

B: All right. Once again: all realities are equally real, and everyone’s reality is its own reality. Anything that you share by commonality you agree to share by common experience, and to create your version of that reality for your physiological consciousness to experience.

The idea of that individual being able to “turn into a snake,” or whatever, is simply the manifestation of the thought form of an idea, a reality belief in that individual’s universe, and that individual’s ability to telepathically transmit and consciously integrate with the other individuals’ consciousness the idea that that would be the reality that could be shared. To have the experience, to have the understanding, so it would create for themselves, also, the reality that that individual had “turned into a snake.”

It is real, and it also is simply the product of mental projection. It is one and the same thing.

Q: According to the book there were some who knew who he was and welcomed him, and others who saw him as the snake.

B: Yes.

Q: How do you...

B: Recognize an idea that you find to occur, more often than not in your dream reality, where someone or something will have an appearance not like what you are familiar with, but you will still recognize them.

Q: All right. This is the part where I see that there is so much in this dream that we are not aware of.

B: You are, are you not?

Q: Well...

B: You are talking about it, are you not?

Q: Okay, but don’t know that I could project something like that.

B: But perhaps that simply does not serve your purpose. If it became paramount to your purpose, you could; but recognize, it does not matter. The idea behind it is that if you simply find that if that is the reality you need to experience, it doesn’t necessarily include that others in your shared reality need to experience that portion of it.

Q: So the Indians shared their reality together, in this certain instance?

B: Yes, just like you are sharing the reality now, that you are in what you call a “house.”
Q: Could I share a reality with a group of people I felt intense about, who are outside of Earth reality? And could it be only through dreams or could it be something in between...?
B: One more time...
Q: I know... (Laughing) ... I heard it, I understand.
B: That is what you are doing.
Q: Okay.
B: Now what you are, in our perception, requesting is the validation of the idea that, because this is the transformational life, there are more and more and more different definitions of reality that are becoming more acceptable for different members to create for themselves, so... yes, you have that validation.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Sharing As Equals in A Relationship

Q: Can you address, at least for me, something on a much more personal plane?
B: All right.
Q: I know that, as you’ve talked about patterns, I’ve been aware from my own personal experience, my personal primary relationships, that my pattern has been one that has not been what I would call successful; or particularly valuable to me on a plane that I would consider very nurturing.
B: All right.
Q: And I would like to have your input, if you would, regarding the past relationship that this was... and what will be, and what is necessary for me to make that take place?
B: Did you learn nothing of a positive nature from the relationship?
Q: I learned something of a positive nature from the relationship.
B: Which was?
Q: To see more clearly the pattern that I have had, and the, the...
B: To recognize what your belief system is, and if you do not like it, to change it. Is this what you are saying?
Q: Yes, yes.
B: All right. Now in this way, what is your definition of the belief within you that you have discovered?
Q: I’m not sure I understand.
B: Can you vocalize a definition for the belief?
Q: Yes.
B: Go ahead.
Q: That I see myself showing less of my power, of my goodness, of my positive self-esteem, self-confidence, self-worth, in a personal primary relationship than in any other part of my life.
B: All right. Why do you suppose you would do that? What – if you were to, for a moment, truly use your imagination – what if you used those things you wish to use at any other time in your life in a personal relationship, what do you imagine would happen?
Q: That I would empower that relationship as I’ve empowered other aspects of my life.
B: And is that what you wish to do?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you find yourself holding back from doing that in a relationship?
Q: I have to say, apparently so – because I see that as the result.
B: Perhaps only because you may be looking for that relationship in order to feel complete in your life.
Q: That’s very true for...
B: But understand: you are already complete. Not that you will not grow, not that you will not expand, not that you will not broaden your understanding of yourself; but as you are, you are already complete. As the idea you are being at this moment, you are a complete version of that idea.

When individuals in your society very often believe they need the other relationship in order to recognize themselves as complete, then very often what they only attract is a reflection of the belief that they are incomplete. And that is what they attract as the other individual – a reflection in the belief of their own incompleteness.

When you know you are complete, when you function as a total being, in that way, then you can attract an individual to reflect your belief in your own completeness, and share that as an equal with you. Rather than feeling like you need the relationship or you will not be complete.

(Tape change)

Q: ... in my life, and not having that...

B: Understand that nothing is missing – nothing! Not one thing. Nothing! You have it all right there, right within you. Everything. The only thing that makes you think something is missing is that you believe something can be missing. And so when you go looking for it, you create a sense of loss to give yourself purpose in looking.

But nothing is missing. It is an illusion; it is an assumption. Perhaps it comes from this basic and fundamental belief that many of you are taught in your society: that you must achieve – or that you can try to achieve – perfection. Do you believe you will achieve perfection? Or do you believe you desire to achieve perfection?

Q: No.

B: Understand: you will never achieve perfection. Do you know why, because it’s already here?

Q: Yes.

B: Because you are already perfect. Now you say: “What do you mean, I’m already perfect? I don’t have this in my life; I don’t have that in my life. How can I be perfect?”

The idea is to, paradoxically, recognize that every moment that exists, it exists for its own sake, on its own terms. And one moment has no business being compared with another moment. Everything you do at any given moment is a perfect manifestation of the thing you’re doing. Not that you will not do different things later on; not that you will not do more expanded things later on.

But the thing you are doing is a perfect flawless manifestation of whatever it is you are doing – even if it is perfect misery. It is still perfect for what it is. And paradoxically, the way to then create in your life what you would prefer to create is to allow what you have created to be perfect.

Because nothing that comes along will then be better, it will simply be different. But it will be equal to anything else you have ever done. When you allow all possible choices in your life to be equal with any other choice you could make, then every choice exists on the same level. And then it’s easy to choose which one you prefer, and manifest that in your life.
Only when you think of things as being on different levels – this is better, this is worse, this is good, this is bad, et cetera – do you then create the separation that makes it hard to reach for something you want. “Oh perfection. There it is, somewhere just beyond my reach. Oh, someday, maybe if I try very hard, I’ll reach perfection. But boy, am I going to be tired by the time I get there.”

When every choice you could make and every experience you have is on the same level, then you won’t have to climb for anything. And you won’t have to feel that you ever fall down to anything. Everything is laid out before you on the same level. Everything you do is a perfect manifestation of the thing you are doing. You’re allowing the way your life unfolds to be the way it needs to unfold – and that is when you have greater control over how it unfolds…is any of this making sense?

Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
Q: Yes. And without asking you for a prophecy – from a prophecy perspective – yet I still want to ask: what do you see lies ahead for me in the way of lessons to be continued, and the result regarding the relationship?
B: If you are willing to recognize – and as soon as you are willing to recognize – that you are complete and have a lot to share, and that you are willing to share as an equal with another individual, then, if that relationship still remains necessary in your life, as soon as you are willing to recognize it, it can occur as soon as three days from that point; whatever that point is.

When you decide to create that point, within three days you can attract an individual to represent what you are now willing to know about yourself. It does not need to take any longer than that. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: So when it occurs is up to when you decide that you will allow yourself to be completely and utterly valid as you are. And that you always attract the individuals into your life that reflect back to you what it is you need to know.

First of all, love yourself unconditionally, as Infinite Creation loves you. Infinite Creation loves you unconditionally. Grant yourself the same respect and the same attitude. Then share and be of service to other individuals, and you will feel always nurtured, in that sense, and you will not feel a lack of anything.

Then, when you already know you are nurtured one hundred percent – as you are – you will attract a multitude of individuals who will be more than willing to reflect back to you what you already believe yourself to be – a nurtured being.

But first you must behave like a nurtured being. Then you can attract an individual who will reflect that nurturing. But they will have nothing to reflect back to you if you do not already believe that you are intrinsically – just because you exist – a nurtured being. You follow me?
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Sharing as Equals in a Relationship
Sharing Your Ecstasy

Q: No matter how elaborate the game is that we’re playing, I think many of us, nonetheless, seeing this, understand at a certain level that we should never feed the fears of others, or fix ourselves to the problems of others, but passionately and lovingly try to help them with a detachment...

B: Share with them your love, your ecstasy, let them see in you what is possible for them.

Q: I think maybe what causes some of us to have problems...

B: Problems?

Q: ...is the fact that we have experienced ecstasy at a certain level. For myself, I think it’s been a great state, where I came into an experiential dimension where there was nothing but rapture and total love and total everything, all in one place; and it just looked like a world of shadows. But then trying to translate that...

B: Trying?

Q: right that into a constant kind of joyous integrity that would communicate to other people...

B: Yes.

Q: ’t necessarily easy.

B: If you say so.

Q: All right.

B: But that is only because you say so.

Q: All right.

B: And understand and listen to yourself as to what you already said, “ecstasy has caused a problem.”

No.

Q: Let me put it in a different way. (Audience laughs)

B: Thank you. Judgment of ecstasy is what causes problems.

Q: All right, let me put it in a different way. Not only do we judge ourselves inappropriately but it’s that the social system, the social structure and small group systems that we have been a part of, to this point at least, that tended to come down hard on people who seem inappropriate happy. Let’s put it that way. (Audience laughs)

B: All right. That is the way you have created this structure, but also and at the same time, you can recognize that you are your social structure, and you can still be who you know yourself to be. And that is what allows there to be an opportunity for your social structure to change. Your social structure has only ever changed because individuals were willing to be who they are.

Q: OK, I hope that seeps in.

B: You what?

Q: I want that to seep in.
B: You want it to?
Q: Yes.
B: When will it?
Q: When I guess it works.
B: When you guess it works?
Q: When it works.
B: When it works? When will that be?
Q: Let me ask you another question. (Audience laughs)
B: All right.
Q: In our concern about...
B: CONCERN?
Q: In our wanting...
B: In our exploration.
Q: we can be in the fourth dimension of consciousness.
B: Yes.
Q: Thinking can lead people into absurd directions.
B: OH, really.
Q: It seems. It seems that we’re dead ends, let’s put it that way.
B: Dead ends?
Q: Where they become fanatical or seemingly out of focus with the potentiality of the present to bring them into...
B: We recognize what you are describing, yet, at the same time, that is still the way they choose to learn something. And you never know what they will become in the very next moment.
Q: OK, thank you.
B: Thank you. And it will sink in when you will allow yourself to remember that if you can even perceive an idea at all, you are already that idea, because you are on the frequency in order to receive the information.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Shifting Electromagnetic Fields

Q: A couple of weeks ago you talked about the shift of the electromagnetic field of the earth...

B: Yes.

Q: . . . is that the same electromagnetic field that affects the compass, and causes the magnetic compass to work?

B: Yes.

Q: Okay, then would the variation of the shifting, annually... would that be shifting in a more accelerated rate at this time?

B: Yes, to some degree, although you may find it may allow itself to be slight shifts, and proceed toward a buildup of a major shift all at once.

Q: So, then the charts that they use for navigation will become obsolete?

B: Yes, electromagnetically.

Q: Right, they don’t use that much in the course of a day.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Q2: I would just like to share, speaking of electromagnetic shifts, that one can really tune into what the mass consciousness is feeling at any time. The day of the meltdown in Russia, I didn’t listen to the news, and in the morning I was driving along and I thought: “Well, I’ll tune into the mass consciousness today and see what is going on,” and I really felt a very strong sense of sadness and that of a negative, almost, energy. And I thought: “Um, that’s interesting, there’s a lot going on today and I don’t know what it is.” And then I found out later on, that’s what it was.

B: Thank you for your sharing and your willingness to express that you are in touch with the entirety of the mass consciousness. Allow me to remind each and every one of you that you all have that capability, for you are all always in touch with the totality of All That Is – particularly of your own society.

Now, each and every one of you will translate it through in different ways, different symbolic interpretations. But you all have the ability to understand the emotional shiftings that are going on and taking place, and the interactions that can result from all of those interactions that take place on that level, which can manifest into your physical reality.

You are all sensitive to this idea and you are all becoming more sensitive to that idea. And as you become more sensitive in this way, this is why, as we have said, you will find, for now, many individuals are beginning to feel more of this sensitivity physically in what you call your sinus area and what you call your heart and your solar plexus. For these are “here,” the sensitivity to the vibrations in the electromagnetic field, and “here” the sensitivity to the actual electromagnetic manifestation itself, because of the collection of what you call magnetite in your sinuses that aid in the idea of navigation in many animals and in you.
Q1: You said that you, on your own planet, recognize people through vibration.
B: Yes.
Q1: Do you recognize on this planet by vibration?
B: Yes.
Q1: Can we develop that capability?
B: You already have that capability.
Q1: Developed to the point where we can use it?
B: Yes. You simply do not pay attention to it. Do not you already have, within what you call your linguistics, the idea of good or bad vibes?
Q1: Yes.
B: Then recognize, again, it is part and parcel of your subconscious awareness of your ability to sniff out the vibration of an individual and understand their intentions.
Q1: Then all we have to do is be aware.
B: Yes. You can fine-tune it.
Q2: It’s your gut feeling.
B: In a sense, yes, and again, that is why you call it a gut feeling.
Q1: Solar plexus?
B: Yes. Solar plexus, in that way... the chakra of intention.
Q1: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
From "Shifting Your Reality"

Your over-all consciousness, the consciousness that you are, "flickers," if you will; to use an analogy, flickers from moment to moment, embodying itself, if you will, in all of these different, shall we say, frames of yourself, statues of yourself in different probable positions. And decides, moment to moment, which position shall be the next position it will take to add to its illusion of continuous movement, of continuity, of history, of evolution, of progression. All reality exists now... you, as a total consciousness, are experiencing all probable infinite universes simultaneously. But from the physiological point of view, you seem to experience these moments, one after the other, a beginning, a middle and an end. This idea only exists because it is your linear perspective, your linear version of the idea of experiencing more than one reality at a time. Because physical reality, by definition, cannot allow two different things to occupy the apparent same space at the apparent same time. You do it linearly; it is one of the magnificent creations within the concept of physical reality that you can do this.

But this is what you are doing – you are literally "popping," if you will, from version A to version B, to version C, to version D, one moment to the next. Now, we point this out, again, not to get into some kind of abstract philosophical discussion, but to really remind you how truly unrestrained and unlimited you are as a consciousness ... for you can utilize this knowledge to make instantaneous and effective, impactful changes in your life. For if you know that at every given moment you are truly a different person, in a different reality, completely and totally, you can really allow yourself to make rapid changes by knowing that any apparent attachment you may have to a so-called history, to a so-called inertia, to a so-called urge for this or that, or any kind of habit or pattern that you think you may contain ... is only an illusion.

Because as soon as you change the idea of yourself, you really are a different person in a different reality altogether, and the only way that you maintain some concept of continuity to a past self is through a belief system that such a continuity exists. By beginning to dissolve that concept of continuity ... not all the way, for if you did it all the way you would be no longer focused in physical reality ... but just a little bit, can aid and assist your species greatly in accelerating forward in the direction that you prefer to accelerate. Because you can know, that since you are experiencing multitudinous, simultaneous realities of yourselves anyway, from the physical point of view you can choose which of those realities you prefer to exist in and experience in a linear fashion. The idea is simply to have more awareness that you are always truly a different person from moment to moment ... no matter what you think you look like in the mirror, you are really a different person. Even the continuity of the similarity of your face, from moment to moment, is just an illusion that you are creating, that you yourself are perpetuating, regardless of everything you understand about physical reality, and genetics, and chemistry, and biology. All of those are simply exteriorized reflections of your idea of what it is to be a physical being.

Because, remember, you do not exist in physical reality...physical reality exists within you as a concept. Everything you experience physical reality to be is actually a reflection of your consciousness, literally made out of your consciousness. So, to use another analogy, the concept of your body, the concept of the room you may be in, the concept of the chair you may be sitting upon – these are all projections of your state of consciousness, and your consciousness takes the form, the reflective form it needs to, to represent that idea of you. The next moment you change your idea of yourself, you are literally a different person and a different reality, a different universal parallel reality, time track, history, everything ... totally, everything is different. The more you know that, the less encumbered and chained you will be to anything that you assume your history to be, and the more rapid the changes are that can be made in the direction of your preference.

Now we can get a little bit more into these ideas, as you say, but let us apply them generally and specifically to the things that you would like to understand and explore in your day to day reality. Knowing that in each exploration that you undertake – underlining that exploration, underlining your day to day experience of desiring to do this, and desiring to do that – lies this fundamental theme, this fundamental understanding, that in every moment you are someone new, and therefore can be and do anything – anything you wish to be and do. You are totally unlimited, unrestrained, made in the image of the Infinite, that is what you are learning on your planet now, in this transformational age upon your world. You are learning what it really means to be made in the image of the multidimensional creation ... you are a multidimensional creator, too.

Nothing that we ever share with your species is something that you do not know. But as a species, since you decided to also include in your reality the game of "forgetting," we are more than happy to help you now play the game of "remembering." Because you yourselves have set the pace, set the tone, made the agreement, made the arrangement, and we are keeping our appointment with you, to help you remember more and more of who you are. We are teaching you nothing new ... just helping you remember what it is you have chosen.

Q: Why did we forget?

Thank you, good question. Because it is one of the things that can be done, it is one of the ways to explore the Infinite, and since the Infinite, by definition, must contain every concept possible, forgetting is one of the valid experiences that you can have in expressing your creator hood. It is simply that, by forgetting, you gave yourself the capability of focusing, to a great degree, in the reality that you created to the exclusion of any other reality. So that any other reality would not bleed through, would not interfere so that your experience could be pure and refined in only one linear direction at a time. At the time, you, as a consciousness, decided to explore that concept, it sounded like the most exotic thing you could imagine.

Now you have been through all the cycles of forgetfulness, and are beginning now to come back to the point of remembering – now that you have been through it. But the reason you did it is really no more mysterious than that because simply, it was available, and you could. And it enticed you to explore the idea of being able to experience your reality, singularly, one reality alone, one moment at a time. It is a valid experience that you can now put, as you say, under your spiritual belt, to add to your soul’s growth, and as you now expand with that experience within you, it will enrich the total tapestry of your consciousness as you now move to other levels of experience.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
We do not introduce this concept, again, simply for philosophical discussion, but to point out very clearly, very strongly, to each and every one of you, that "shifting," as you say, back and forth, "popping," if you will, into different parallel realities, is what you do all the time, every moment, every moment. In fact, the very fact that you experience one moment to be different from the next is the very product of shifting into a different parallel reality. That’s how you experience movement, motion, in your physiological dimension of existence. Look at it this way, by analogy, if you will – imagine that every possible reality already exists, which it does, already simultaneously co-exists. Every possible move you could make, every possible direction you could go in, every possible thought you could have, already exists. And there is, for every one of those directions and thoughts, a "probable you," already thinking it; and moving in that direction, so to speak. A representational image of yourself, in some dimensional reality, that is already representative of that idea, that experience.

Your over-all consciousness, the consciousness that you are, "flickers," if you will; to use an analogy, flickers from moment to moment, embodying itself, if you will, in all of these different, shall we say, frames of yourself, statues of yourself in different probable positions. And decides, moment to moment, which position shall be the next position it will take to add to its illusion of continuous movement, of continuity, of history, of evolution, of progression. All reality exists now ... you, as a total consciousness, are experiencing all probable infinite universes simultaneously. But from the physiological point of view, you seem to experience these moments, one after the other, a beginning, a middle and an end. This idea only exists because it is your linear perspective, your linear version of the idea of experiencing more than one reality at a time. Because physical reality, by definition, cannot allow two different things to occupy the apparent same space at the apparent same time. You do it linearly, it is one of the magnificent creations within the concept of physical reality that you can do this.

But this is what you are doing – you are literally "popping," if you will, from version A to version B, to version C, to version D, one moment to the next. Now, we point this out, again, not to get into some kind of abstract philosophical discussion, but to really remind you how truly unrestrained and unlimited you are as a consciousness ... for you can utilize this knowledge to make instantaneous and effective, impactful changes in your life. For if you know that at every given moment you are truly a different person, in a different reality, completely and totally, you can really allow yourself to make rapid changes by knowing that any apparent attachment you may have to a so-called history, to a so-called inertia, to a so-called urge for this or that, or any kind of habit or pattern that you think you may contain ... is only an illusion.

Because as soon as you change the idea of yourself, you really are a different person in a different reality altogether, and the only way that you maintain some concept of continuity to a past self is through a belief system that such a continuity exists. By beginning to dissolve that concept of continuity ... not all the way, for if you did it all the way you would be no longer focused in physical reality ... but just a little bit, can aid and assist your species greatly in accelerating forward in the direction that you prefer to accelerate. Because you can know, that since you are experiencing multitudinous, simultaneous realities of yourselves anyway, from the physical point of view you can choose which of those realities you prefer to exist in and experience in a linear fashion. The idea is simply to have more awareness that you are always truly a different person from moment to moment ... no matter what you think you look like in the mirror, you are really a different person. Even the continuity of the similarity of your face, from moment to moment, is just an illusion that you are creating, that you yourself are perpetuating, regardless of everything you understand about physical reality, and genetics, and chemistry, and biology. All of those are simply exteriorized reflections of your idea of what it is to be a physical being. Because, remember, you do not exist in physical reality ... physical reality exists within you as a concept. Everything you experience physical reality to be is actually a reflection of your consciousness, literally made out of your consciousness. So, to use another analogy, the concept of your body, the concept of the room you may be in, the concept of the chair you may be sitting upon – these are all projections of your state of consciousness, and your consciousness takes the form, the reflective form it needs to, to represent that idea of you. The next moment you change your idea of yourself, you are literally a different person and a different reality, a different universal parallel reality, time track, history, everything ... totally, everything is different. The more you know that, the less encumbered and chained you will be to anything that you assume your history to be, and the more rapid the changes are that can be made in the direction of your preference. Now we can get a little bit more into these ideas, as you say, but let us apply them generally and specifically to the things that you would like to understand and explore in your day to day reality. Knowing that in each exploration that you undertake – underlining that exploration, underlining your day to day experience of desiring to do this, and desiring to do that – lies this fundamental theme, this fundamental understanding, that in every moment you are someone new, and therefore can be and do anything – anything you wish to be and do. You are totally unlimited, unrestrained, made in the image of the Infinite, that is what you are learning on your planet now, in this transformational age upon your world. You are learning what it really means to be made in the image of the multidimensional creation ... you are a multidimensional creator, too. Nothing that we ever share with your species is something that you do not know. But as a species, since you decided to also include in your reality the game of "forgetting," we are more than happy to help you now play the game of "remembering." Because you yourselves have set the pace, set the tone, made the agreement, made the arrangement, and we are keeping our appointment with you, to help you remember more and more of who you are. We are teaching you nothing new ... just helping you remember what it is you have chosen.
Q: Why did we forget?

Thank you, good question. Because it is one of the things that can be done, it is one of the ways to explore the Infinite, and since the Infinite, by definition, must contain every concept possible, forgetting is one of the valid experiences that you can have in expressing your creatorhood. It is simply that, by forgetting, you gave yourself the capability of focusing, to a great degree, in the reality that you created to the exclusion of any other reality. So that any other reality would not bleed through, would not interfere; so that your experience could be pure and refined in only one linear direction at a time. At the time, you, as a consciousness, decided to explore that concept, it sounded like the most exotic thing you could imagine.

Now you have been through all the cycles of forgetfulness, and are beginning now to come back to the point of remembering – now that you have been through it. But the reason you did it is really no more mysterious than that because simply, it was available, and you could. And it enticed you to explore the idea of being able to experience your reality, singularly, one reality alone, one moment at a time. It is a valid experience that you can now put, as you say, under your spiritual belt, to add to your soul’s growth, and as you now expand with that experience within you, it will enrich the total tapestry of your consciousness as you now move to other levels of experience.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you, next sharing.
SHIVAI

Q: You use a word Shivai, what is a Shivai?
B: It is a ancient word in our ancient language that can be translated in a number of ways. But, ultimately, it’s most basic meaning is: get out of my way! Audience laughs But, meaning this, meaning–I am now so focused; I am going for what I know is me, and my truth that nothing can stop me. So, in a sense, Shivai is, to some degree, a statement of intentional focus. And, also, in a sense, a hailing or a greeting or a cry of congratulations to someone who is going for something with such clear intention that nothing can stop them–so, in that sense, get out of my way! You understand?
Q: I understand.
B: So Shivai, in that sense, has many different meanings in our ancient language.
Q: OK and you will come to our world personally at some time in the future?
B: I have been in your world in my spacecraft, but in terms of setting physical foot on it, yes, in what you call your future, I will.
Q: And if I’m not in Los Angeles will you find me, please?
B: We will be where we need to be, and the timing of all those who need to know where we are, they will be there.
Q: SHIVAI!
B: SHIVAI!
—Enjoy, SHIVAI.
The Shock Wave we are referring to is what many people on your planet have been calling the Photon Belt. Many of you may have heard of this idea. Now, it doesn’t matter whether you have heard of it or not, for we will explain the concept anyway, in the way that we perceive it exists, from our perspective. Many of you have been told that this so called Photon Belt is an electromagnetic belt of light that exists within your galactic plane, through which your solar system and specifically, of course, your particular planet is about to pass; thus, heralding the beginning of a new phase of your acceleration into this modern Age of Transformation on your planet.

Now, this idea also has been expressed, that this is a highly charged electromagnetic field that might cause many different kinds of disruption in the electromagnetic activity of your planet. We have heard said and predicted that there may be many discomforting disruptions, days of darkness, many electromagnetic light burst phenomena being perceived by your eyes. Now, some of this has some validity, but it has been, in our perspective, a little bit over-interpreted, over-reacted to. The idea of the Photon Belt is, yes, it is an electromagnetic phenomenon; yes, it is, to some degree, representative of you passing from one phase of reality into another phase of reality. One more step along the road of your transition too higher and higher and higher and higher vibrational beings, as you evolve from third density to fourth density. The idea, however, is that for us, the Photon Belt, or what we prefer to call the Shock Wave is not some phenomena "out in space" happening to you, that you are passing through, but is a direct manifestation of you, of the change you’re actually going through.

The idea can be explained perhaps in the following way, briefly. What you call electromagnetic energy, or what we choose to call electromagnetheric fluid, is the first level of the manifestation of consciousness into physical materiality. First and foremost, you are beings of consciousness, non-physical beings. Non-physical beings, non-physical consciousness, when it chooses to express itself or experience itself as physical reality, or explore the concept of becoming physical, must first interact with itself in such a way that it lays down a foundation or a medium out of which the consciousness can reflect into itself and crystallize in what you perceive to be physiological matter. This first level of consciousness, interacting with itself to lay down a medium for the experience of physical reality, is perceived in physical reality, by you, to be electromagnetic energy. That is your consciousness in its primal form, its most simplified physiological form.

Now then, this electromagnetheric fluid, so to speak, will vibrate at a certain pitch, but when you decide to reflect yourself to yourself in a certain way, you will alter the frequency, alter the vibration of the pitch. You will localize the pitch, concentrate the focus of the pitch, of the electromagnetic fluid in such a way as to crystallize it, so to speak, or organize the electromagnetic energy in patterns that you then recognize as solid matter. Thus, creating all the physical reality around you, so to speak. It is actually being created within you, but it appears, because of the laws of physical reality as you have set them up, to be reflected back to you, from around you, in a holographic way.

Now, this idea of matter, of solid matter, as your scientists, to some degree already understand, is not really so very solid. Not only is it a matter of there being a lot of space between, what you call, the sub-atomic particles, but the sub-atomic particles, in and of themselves, are really nothing more than space, organized in a certain way. Imagine now this electromagnetheric fluid as if it were the ocean. Imagine within that ocean a whirlpool; that whirlpool, that miniature vortex is a sub-atomic particle that is solid matter, it is simply a concentration, in a spiral form, of the electromagnetheric fluid. And as it rotates and concentrates itself down into that spiral form, it builds up in such a way that you perceive it as a solid particle. And it creates the idea of attraction and repulsion, what you understand to be electromagnetic and gravidic effects, but this attraction and repulsion is really nothing more than the same kind of effect you experience when you get, as you say, sucked down a whirlpool. The repulsion comes from the idea of the whirlpool also reversing itself and coming out in the other direction. Thus, you also have the idea of positive and negative charge – whirlpools that are connected through a funnel, but spinning at opposite directions.

This is also connected to the concept of anti-matter where these, reversed upon themselves, become whirlpools in the opposite direction from the original pair. But this idea is simply the idea of vibration, of concentration, of rotation and also, rippling, in a sense, giving off of frequency waves that interact with all other things within the medium, all other whirlpools within the medium of the electromagnetheric sea. So, imagine, if you will, that you have this electromagnetheric ocean and you are like unto the whirlpool. But for now the analogy that may work more smoothly will be as if you were a stone or a pebble dropped into the ocean, and it causes ripples to expand from that central point. As you vibrate, as you are this whirlpool vibrating, you send off these ripples. Each and every atomic particle sends off these ripples, collectively, they send off ripples – larger and larger and larger and larger sets of ripples, ever expanding outwardly, so to speak. Sometimes these ripples will overlap with other ripples; sometimes where they overlap they will cancel each other out. Sometimes where they overlap they will reinforce each other into greater and greater and greater ripples.

All of you collectively, with all the ripples of energy that you give off, all the frequencies, all the vibrations that you give off – you will overlap and cancel each other out in certain places and reinforce each other in certain places, building bigger and bigger and bigger and bigger ripples as they expand outward from your physical reality. And as you go through a shift, as you change your frequency, as you accelerate and amplify these ripples, you create bigger and bigger and bigger amplifications, outward and outward and outwardly.

Now, the idea is that everything, in a sense, exists all at once. There are ripples coming from the future, ripples coming from the past. The idea is that as you approach, as you evolve toward the concept of your future self, as you are becoming that which you desire to be, the ripples of your present self, your present concept of yourself, interact with the ripples of your future concept of yourself. Now, the future self is at a much higher frequency, it is giving off more ripples in more amplitude, much more powerfully. As the ripples from your present self interact and impact, come up against those ripples of your higher self, as you accelerate upwards, you create a large standing Shock Wave in front of you; it is your leading edge as you move into the future. It is like breaking through the sound barrier with your technology, for you know that the faster and faster and faster you go, you set up turbulence with the shock waves, and you become more and more turbulent, and things become more and more accelerated, more and more vibrational, more things get shaken loose, more different kinds of various motions happen. The more you impact and come up against that barrier, the more you compress those waves. But finally, finally, you find the right spot, the right equilibrium, the right balance, and then you will become equalized to that front, that Shock Wave front, and you break through and it is smooth sailing on the other side, because you have equalized, finally, with the higher vibrations. This is basically what is happening now, energetically, on your planet. All of the abrupt accelerated changes going on, all the tearing down of old structures, all the re-assessments of what you have been doing. All these ideas that seem to be happening all around you so quickly are all the physiological results of this Shock Wave vibration that you have set up, because you are evolving so rapidly toward your future selves, to become that future self. This is the Photon Belt. You are passing through your own selves. You are becoming the future self and giving off this electromagnetic side effect, your leading edge Shock Wave. It is very exciting, very exciting indeed.

Now, this idea is manifesting in many different ways upon your planet, physiologically, socially, economically, politically, geographically, geologically, many different ways. You are rearranging your whole concept of yourself very rapidly. And, of course, as we have said many times, by the time of your year of 2011, 2013, you will be operating basically, or beginning to operate basically out of a completely different paradigm altogether. Completely different reference set of how you will lay your society down and where you will proceed from that point forward.

Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I’d like to inquire about three phenomena...
B: Speak up! Speak up!
Q: ...witnessed by myself and a companion.
B: All right.
Q: The first was a couple of months ago: I was taking some pictures with a Polaroid camera of some property I’m connected with...
B: Speak up! Speak up!
Q: ...near Los Angeles. The picture...whatever this was in the picture was not apparent to the eye, but on the Polaroid the picture came out showing a translucent figure, blue, maybe six feet in height, with maybe a smile on its face. It seems to be...
B: Well, in a sense. Doesn’t really have a face, but it is a projection in that sense.
Q: Figuratively, yes. I have two more phenomena to discuss, to ask of you, and their relationship to me possibly.
B: All right.
Q: The second was a sighting over my...not over my house, but east of my house from Los Angeles, early on a Thursday morning, about 1:15. The spacecraft, which I believe it to be, was announced by my cat, who was making a noise reminiscent of his younger days when he used to kill birds.
B: All right.
Q: But he sent me into the yard and I went out and saw what appeared to be a spacecraft with trapezoidal-shaped, I believe, windows or ports – at least they were reflecting a glass-like substance.
B: Yes.
Q: It was glowing, and it was quite bright. It seemed quite large. It didn’t seem like it was a great distance away, assuming it was kind of a size that we’ve been told some of them are, like 30 feet in width.
The third phenomenon was, like, 10 days later, with the same companion. I was in Joshua Tree and on a hunch went to – on the morning of the Convergence, 5:15 am on Sunday – I went to the top of Keys(?) Mountains, where after a while, at 5:45 I saw this... through my binoculars, I saw this elliptical-shaped silver object, which appeared to be quite large. I don’t know the distance. I have a photograph that’s been blown up many times.

It was on the eastern horizon; it was witnessed by myself and my companion through the binoculars. I couldn’t see any, or detect any windows or anything like the other one. But it was a beautiful shape; it was reminiscent of the template of the petal...

B: Yes.

Q: ...the geometric (?) in the template that you showed us depicting the Harmonic Convergence. And it was on that morning.

B: Thank you. Both of those manifestations, ten days apart as you say are, in our perception, and through our information, directly what you would call Pleadian in energy; and are representative of a slight resurgence in observation at this time – for identification purposes. And to some degree, that is your strongest connection.

The, I shall say, “imp” in the other photo, to some degree, is a representation, an archetypal representation in the electromagnetic field of your planet, of something that represents a reflection of you; something that represents a reflection of your connection to the combined telepathic flux of your world; and something that represents your connection to the telepathic flux from the Pleiadians as well.

It is a symbolic reference, a symbolic embodiment, a manifestation in energy terms, to function as a guide, a spirit guide in that sense, for you; to allow you to have seen in a type of magnetic mirror another facet, another version, of yourself.

In a sense, you were looking at yourself, at a reflection in a mirror, through a certain filter, through a certain frequency. And it manifested back to you in a way that would allow you to discover – in ways that we are not yet allowed to share with you – a certain portion of your mentality that will be coming up to the surface of your consciousness shortly. And which is, to some degree, connected with the sightings you have had.

Now, very often some of these things are – as you colloquially call them – manifestations, or symbolic manifestations, that are only representative of phenomena you would call natural, in that sense. And some of them are misrepresentations of lens flares in your camera devices – but this is not such a case.

Both photographs, as you would call it, are genuine, and do represent a very strong connection. The blue auric image, the electromagnetic image, represents a facet of your consciousness that is about to open up in some interactions you are about to have that are represented by the Pleiadian connections you were witness to.

Q: Can you amplify on the nature of that connection?

B: No. For it is not my place to do so. It will be amplified for you by those with whom you will be in touch.

Q: In touch.

B: Yes.

Q: Is that all?

B: Go to sleep and wake up. And you will know more. Go to sleep and wake up.
Q: After the second sighting of the spaceship over the desert, I did have dreams of a spaceship, but I couldn’t…
B: All right. It will become more conscious. Go to sleep and wake up in the dream. And you will have revealed to you what you need to have revealed.
Q: Any how to’s?
B: Clarity of intention will be sufficient. All right?
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much for your sharing. Sharing!

SIGN-OFF
Allow us to remind you that the entire purpose for sharing these perspectives and points of view with with each and every one in you is to remind you that you have the ability to do in life what excites you the most...you have the ability to live your passion and to live your dreams.
There are no obstacles, no impediments, no barriers that stand in your way-except perhaps some of your assumptions or beliefs or what you have been taught to "buy-into" in your life; perhaps something you fear to face about yourselves. But all you can ever discover is only another aspect of the Self you already are. And since it is only yourself, there is no reason to fear, no matter how unexpected, no matter how surprising your discovery may be, it is only another aspect of you. So do not fear; you are only meeting yourself.
And when you expand by being willing to meet more and more of your self, your physical reality can do nothing but expand along with your new perspective. Guaranteed, guaranteed, guaranteed. Go ahead with your joy, go ahead with your passion. Do those things, do them with integrity. They will support you, guaranteed. But only when you act on them 100% then the Universe in turn supports you 100%. It is up to you. You are in control. Only you. Explore, explore, explore!
Meet Yourself
Yes, your world is changing rapidly and will change even more rapidly now in this new decade. I can absolutely guarantee that even within what you call the next three years your world will find itself in many different areas "turning completely upside down." Be prepared for a ride. There are many things that are going to take even the most open-minded of you by complete surprise. But enjoy it. Because you are doing it. It is only more of you revealing more of yourself to you.
Let your intellectual selves relax and assume that you have absorbed exactly what you need to absorb and that you are changing in ways that are absolutely in-line with the ways you prefer to change, and at the pace you prefer to change. Allow yourselves to assume that there are no parts of your consciousness that will "sneak-up" on you; there is no outside. You are a 100% Whole Being-always. As You Wish...
Remember: be open. Only those things that serve you best will be absorbed by you because that’s what you say you want. The things that have nothing to do with what you desire, the things that have nothing to do with your positive growth, won’t be absorbed. Why? Because you say so. It is no more complicated than that and no more difficult than that.

Can this be sufficient for you and can you absorb the rest on your own for now? There will be more. Always there will be more. Will that do for now?

Q: Yes, I will do that....thanks for everything.

B: "No...thank you."
Signature Vibrations
Q: I’m wondering if you could tell me the symbols of some of the main stars and civilizations that may have some relationship with us?

B: Yes, well, we have previously given you a general array of symbols that represent certain solar systems, or levels of consciousness that function, to some degree, as the signature vibrations of those consciousnesses. So that you can use them as meditation tools and focus on these symbols to put you squarely in touch with those levels, or vibrations, or frequencies of consciousness. To put it in a simple sense, these symbols function as the phone numbers of these respective civilizational levels.

Q: Yes, I understand that, but I was wanting something more specific.

B: Well, I was about to give you the array.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. We will begin, once again, with our own Essassani. If you will imagine a black equatorial triangle pointing upwards, set against an absolutely black background, but separated from the black background visually by a deep blue light behind the black triangle. Making it the only way that you can see the triangle, just because of the slight amount of blue light pouring out from behind it, around the edges. That is our vibrational signature.

Arcturus is a black background with an orange disk on the black background and an eight pointed white star on top of the disk. That is Arcturus. (Sometimes defined as having a twelve pointed white star)

Sirius will be a black background with a large white disk, the nas mall blue disk, and then in the very center a black disk. That is Sirius.

Pleiadies will be a bright blue background with seven white dots arranged in circular fashion, to some degree.

Q To represent the seven sisters as we know them.

B: Yes. One moment... the Reticulum civilization will be of the vibration of a black background and three bars of color. Each bar shall be three times as long as it is thick, one on top of the other, separated by a little bit of blackness, similar to what you would understand as three bars of the I Ching. The top bar will be a light gray, the middle bar will be kind of a beige tan, and the bottom bar will be a deep, blue-gray. This will be for the Reticulum civilization. One moment...

The Alpha Centauri civilization will be basically a reddish orange background with a white triangle, isosceles, not equilateral, pointing up. One moment...

The Tau Ceti civilization will be a deep, deep indigo background, with a white bar across, again, similar to an I Ching bar, under that a gray bar, medium blue-gray; under that a black bar.

Another faction of the Tau Ceti will be the same insignia but all three bars crossed vertically by either a yellow-gold, or orange, or green line. One moment...
Eridani, the star Epsilon, will have a reddish-brown background with a rust or orange colored dot in the center. One moment...

Future Earth will be blue, green and white – three bars.

Q: Horizontal?
B: Horizontal, filling the rectangular field, white on top, green in the middle and blue on the bottom. In the center of this will be a yellow dot for the sun, spanning the green bar, and slightly touching into the white above and the blue below.

Q: Could you repeat that little bit please?
B: The yellow disk will be in the center, spanning the green bar completely and just peeking up a little bit, into the white bar on the top and sinking down a little bit below the green bar, into the blue bar below.

Q: What do the bars represent?
B: The sky, the land, and the sea, in equilibrium.

Q: Does that mean that those others who have the three bars, that that is symbolic in those places too?
B: In certain ways yes, it is representational. In the Zeta instance, it represents the three genetic fragments or factions of the Zetas.

Q: I see. The three bars was a symbol in Lemurian times, wasn’t it?
B: Three bars are symbolic in many different civilizations for a variety of reasons. The overall configurations that we are giving you now are specific to these particular civilizations.

Q: Yes.
B: One moment... yes... then, if you wish, three bars, top one white, middle one red, lower one black... this will connect you back into some ancient Lemurian vibrations and also Atlantean. Will this do for now?

Q: That is wonderful, thank you very much. I really appreciate all of that information. Just one thing... what is the background for those three bars, the white, red and black?
B: They occupy the entire field, if you think of it in terms of a flag, yes, white bar on top, red bar in the middle, black bar on the bottom. When we have given you no background, what we have described is the background.

Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Sirius Energy Manifestations

Q: What is the connection for me of the Leprechaun energy... and my relationship to beings from Sirius now? I’m kind of wondering how it all connects.

B: You can utilize your imagination and simply recognize that the idea is that you are connecting into a certain portion of your unconscious, mass conscious energy, that allowed itself in times past to be physicalized and exemplified upon your planet Earth in forms that you then understood to be elemental spirits.

Understand that the Sirius energy manifests in the same way. It cloaks itself in the elemental archetypal energy of your electromagnetic system. And thus what you created in the past, “encloaking,” let us say, giving substance, to the mass subconsciousness, then, is what you are doing now in the recognition of the connection to the seeming extraterrestrial consciousness.

Q: So it is a blending of their...

B: Perhaps this will clarify the idea as well: many times when what you call Sirius energy has, let us say, projected its mentality to your planet, it has always been perceived in mythological form; for they do not come physically.

Q: Right.

B: They impress themselves upon your mentality and your mentality will cloak them out of the electromagnetic subconsciousness, in whatever form makes sense to you. And in this way many of the mythologies upon your planet are the result of interactions in that way, but what you perceived is not a literal perception of how they look.

And thus, because you were forming those same types of connections to what you have called upon your planet, the elemental spirits of nature, previously in many lives that were very strong to you, you can utilize the same connective force and understanding with regard to your identification and forming of the relationship now.

Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Will that have clarified the idea to some degree?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Thank you!
Bashar: Channeled by Darryl Anka
"Sirius Energy" from "Re-creating Yourself"
1-24-97

Question: What type of forms can we see in our physical reality that is reflective of the Sirius energy, or the sixth density energy? Is there a form that, you know, that maybe we see or take for granted that is actually Sirius energy?

Bashar: Sirius, non-physical consciousness can actually project itself in almost any form at all. It can generally pull from your archetypal substrata of collective consciousness, and can represent itself in a variety of archetypal and mythological formats. It is difficult to pin it down to any one thing since it is such a fluid consciousness. In most encounters, you will have to take it encounter by encounter and feel out whether the energy is representative of Sirius contact or something else. But sometimes, depending upon the culture into which they may be projecting, they may represent themselves as a combination of energies that in your terms, incorporates the concept of land, sea and air. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes. Are they predominately a water based type of civilization?
B: They are non-physical, but the level of the energy, in their non-physical reality, would, to you, seem like fluid, yes. So, it may translate to you as water when you perceive it, and is one of the strong reasons why there is such a strong connection between Sirius consciousness and Cetacean consciousness on your planet. Because they exist in similar environments, even though the Sirius consciousness is not literally inhabiting a watery domain like your dolphins and whales. But it is analogous to a watery domain because it is highly electromagnetherically fluid, yes.

Q: Okay. Does the Age of Aquarius connect to the Age of Sirius energy, which you spoke of earlier?
B: Yes.
Q: Is that symbolically the same thing?
B: Yes, since it is representative again of the water, of the fluidity that your relationship with them is attaining. Does that help?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: I have this interesting phenomenon that’s going on in my life right now. I sort of emptied my vacuum a few months ago, and it’s been filling up at a pretty fast clip.

B: Yes.

Q: I find myself, if I’m not mentally activated, or physically activated, wanting to be asleep.

B: Yes. Sometimes, again, this will be a typical symptom for now. For many of the connections you allow yourselves to make with different aspects of your consciousness – for some of you – are still more easily made while you are unconscious, while you are asleep. So you will sleep very often to make all those connections.

And as soon as the connections are made, you will then have more energy, more awareness of those connections when you are awake. And you will find yourself sleeping less.

Q: I see. Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Q: One other quick question: in this lifetime, will we be sitting down to dinner with aliens such as yourself in your natural form?

B: Yes. Although we may not eat what you eat. But it is a high probability, as we have said, within what you call the next decade of your time, two decades of your time, that there will be far more opportunity for blatant interaction, as you call it. And within the format of three decades maximum, there will be a whole series of interactions going on in your society between our respective societies.

Q: That’s wonderful. Thank you.

B: Thank you for creating a conducive atmosphere to allow us to share with you the ideas that you are. Sharing!

Sleep Patterns

B: Question.

Q: I’d like to communicate on the subject of sleep for a second. I’ve had this situation with my body this lifetime, as far as having a very thin body. And I’ve been told by others – their considerations are that I need more sleep, because I usually run on very little sleep.

B: How do you feel?

Q: Well, I feel that I can run fine on very little sleep.

B: Realize that, in a sense, once again, the more you live your dream, the less sleep you will need as well.

Q: Perfect!
B: Also realize that for your civilization, your particular culture here and now, you will find that your culture has a tendency to sleep when it should be awake, and be awake when it should sleep.

You will find that what you have structured in your society will override your natural tendency to be at low ebb between your hours of 2 and 4 in your afternoon. And you are very, very, very energetic usually at 3 in your morning, and yet you are asleep. So when you wake up and say, “Oh, I cannot sleep,” you think there’s something wrong with you! Realize that your body is simply telling you that this is your natural cycle.

Q: Wow. No wonder I wake up so early all the time! Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.

Q: I have a question.
B: All right.

Q: Can you specifically tell, like, from individual to individual – as far as sleep – what their hours are differing from others? I mean, you say in general that’s maybe our hours, but a little bit more specifically, can you tell what my best hours are?
B: Allow me to say, first of all, that right now you are having a great deal of fun exploring your dream reality and, as such, you do not wish to lessen that amount of sleep. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: You may go on right now the way you are, as long as you allow yourself to believe that you know intrinsically your own sense of timing, which I will say I believe you do. All right?

Q: Okay.
B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you. Question!

Sleep Patterns
Q: I need some assistance in transforming a situation I created myself in...
B: Speak up so that all may share
Q: OK. I need some assistance in transforming a situation that I’ve put myself into.
B: All right.
Q: And it has to do with the ... I have allowed myself to be put into a situation where I’m being required to deliver a sum of money to a person. And if I don’t do that, being threatened with some dire consequences, which I have assigned dire consequences, which I have assigned and don’t want to occur, and want to transform the thing. I’ve been having a hell of lot of trouble with it. A lot of fear, up all night, terror, things of this sort. Racked myself with this kind of situation; haven’t done this in quite long time. And I just came to you to get some assistance.
B: All right. First of all, face your fear squarely.
Q: Ok.
B: In your terminology, what is, in your terms, starting from beginning, the worst thing that possibly occur?
Q: The... that’s fascinating, it alters as I look at it.
B: Oh, very good.
Q: It changes. But basically it is an on-going apparently uncontrollable terror and effect point, and constantly being put at effect (allowing myself to be put at effect) with apparently ongoing negative feelings and sensations on an on-going basis, and being constantly, over a long period of time, being trapped into this thing.
B: Allow us to ask you in a very colloquial way, are you in any immediate physical danger?
Q: No, not immediate physical danger.
B: Have you run through different conversations, different interactions, and different communications that you might be able to co-create with all the other individuals involved that may all allow a different outcome to occur?
Q: Thousands of them. In fact, some of it totally on automatic, occurring. I seem to become the loser in these conversations. In this particular reality, when I went to put forth the conversation, the reflection was that none of it was being willing to be received, and so I just continued to be there, and allowing the person to be right in their reality.
B: All right. Why do you choose to place yourself in this situation?
Q: I love the people, and I want to be of service.
B: How do you wish to be of service?
Q: I want them to transform into a broader, saner, more loving, least fixed viewpoint, if they choose to.
B: Would you please say that once again. Loudly.
Q: I would like them to transform into a more loving, expansive, least fixed point of view, if they choose to; which I’d think they would choose to...
B: If they choose to.
Q: Yes.
B: If they choose to. Why is it so important to you that they do choose it?
Q: Because it appears that if they don’t . . .
B: Yes.
Q: I am the effect of their holding that viewpoint because I hold myself into . . .
B: Why do you have anything at all to do with what they choose to do?
Q: Because I put myself into that situation.
B: Talk to me about physics. How do you actually have, in any way, shape, or form anything at all to do with what they choose to do? Are you responsible for their choices?
Q: No.
B: Then how does anything you do determine what they choose to do?
Q: It doesn’t determine what they choose to do.
B: All right. Then you are not the cause of what they are experiencing.
Q: I never considered that I was.
B: All right.
Q: I’m the cause of what I’m experiencing.
B: Oh, yes.
Q: I’m trying to transform my own...
B: Yes. You are the cause of what you are experiencing primarily, in a sense, because you think you have to be the cause of what you want them to experience other than what they are already experiencing.
B: All right. You are the cause of what you are experiencing, as we perceive it so far in this conversation, primarily because you also desire to be the cause of what they may choose to do or not do. If you recognize that you are not the cause of what they choose to do, then how can you be the cause of anything else that they might choose to do?
Q: I’m sorry. I tracked with you right up to the last...
B: All right. These tracks are slippery, aren’t they? (Aud. laughs)
Q: Apparently so. Apparently so.
B: All right. You say you recognize that you are not responsible for the decisions, yes?
Q: Yes.
B: Then if you are not responsible for their decisions, then that goes both ways. Though you may reflect to them your reality, the idea of your desire for them to choose to share your reality is indirectly a desire for you to be responsible for them to choose something. To base it on you, to be responsible for their decision.
Q: I see.
B: Which your aren’t.
Q: True.
B: The consternation within you is simply that you do, in fact, wish to be responsible for their decision.
Q: That’s correct.
B: In a positive way.
Q: That’s correct.
B: But you will never will be. You will be responsible for your decision. They will be responsible for their decision, and you can be responsible to them, and allow them to perhaps, if they choose to, share certain ideas within the decision you have made; but you are only responsible to them by being responsible for yourself and not for them.
Q: I understand.
B: Now, if you are basing your understanding of your own worth upon whether or not they choose to understand you, then you are only basing your worth upon the decisions they may or may not make. And this can cause a great deal of consternation within you, because you are not determining what your worth is for yourself. But letting them decide what you are worth by saying that whatever they decide to do will be how you choose to determine what is real for you – in terms of your feelings about the situation. You follow me?
Q: I do, Bashar.
B: The idea is a paradoxical one to some degree; for you will find that the idea of the individual who is truly living the life they know to be true for them has a very strong compassion that other individuals can find out what they know to be true, and can create the same peace in their lives. But paradoxically, along with that comes the wisdom and knowledge that there is in no way, shape, or form that you can show that to them until they’re ready to see it.

So, the best way to be assistance is to simply continue to constantly be that idea, so you will always be around to look at, should they make the decision to find someone to look at that which represents that idea. But it will be of no concern to you whether they choose it now, ten years from now, a hundred years from now, a hundred lifetimes from now, because to you it’s all one and the same. Now is now. If you’re living your life as now, is now, then you will not care when they change, and you will not make it a point of contention within you that will stretch out your existence interminably. You are creating more sense of time for yourself by focusing upon the amount of time they are creating for themselves to make a change. And thus, you are sharing their misery in that sense. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: If you live in the now, you will not experience the time in the time way. You will simply seek changes when and where they occur, as they interact with you, whenever they do, will be just fine with you. Whenever that might be. And you will simply lead the life you know to be true for you, and not concern yourself as to when they may or may not make the decision to share that said same idea with you. For to you it is all infinite and it’s all now and one and the same thing, and you understand that they are learning what they need to learn, and you are learning what you need to learn, and everyone is doing just fine. Because everyone is their own unique path. And again, paradoxically, the moment you stop waiting for them, then lo and behold, before you know it, there they will be. Time will have passed, as you say, (snap of fingers) like that. You follow me?

Q: I do. And this is very helpful, Bashar. I haven’t fully handled it yet, but you’ve definitely given me a way to do so. My attention seems to go back to the mechanics of... I’ve made an agreement to call tonight with the money or these things – this individual will do these things.

B: What things?

Q: Order me into a trial situation.

B: All right. So what?

Q: Yeah.

B: Big deal. Can you not explain yourself, to the best of your ability, in ways that would simply allow you to then attract to yourself whatever situations, whatever objects, whatever symbols, whatever tools are necessary in your life to allow the situation to become alleviated?

Q: Providing I cease creating individuals in that situation that will not listen.

B: Will not listen to what?

Q: To my sharing.

B: Why do they have to listen to your sharing?

Q: I didn’t duplicate what you said then. I went off on an incorrect...

B: Recognize that what you have to say you will say from your heart because you believe it to be true.

Q: Yes.

B: As long as you believe that you are functioning within your integrity then the idea of the situations you attract to yourselves can all be seen, no matter what their previous definition, to be opportunities of positive light for you. Do not imagine that the scenario you are co-creating with them has to be negative, and then it won’t turn out to be. You follow me?

Q: I sure do.
B: Go through it. Live through it. If that is what you create, then live through it, knowing that you are exploring exactly what you want to explore. The more you continue to deny it, and attempt to remove it from you, the less you will allow yourself to learn from it in a positive way. You follow me?

Q: I do.

B: It will change and it will transform, only if you go along with the flow. If you fight it, that is what wears you out. That is what makes it seem as if you are not heard. What it is that needs to hear you will always hear you. Always.

Q: When you say go along with the flow, you don’t mean necessarily, that I would comply with their demands.

B: Depends on the idea as to whether their so-called demands are in line with the reality and the choices you have given to yourself.

Q: They are not.

B: If their demands represent the only opportunities or the only paths you feel that are open to you, then obviously they are in line. If you find that you have attracted other opportunities in your life, still functioning within your integrity, then they are available to you and take them. But if you find that you have no other choice other than to go the path that their demands represent, then why not simply assume that that is your choice as well, and go with it?

Q: OK.

B: Let it flow. Flow with it. Only when you flow with the energy can you change it. No one is listening because you are fighting the energy. If you flow with the energy, then you are traveling at the same rate and changing it is no big deal, because everything that is moving at the same rate relative to yourself, seems to be standing perfectly still. So you can move anything, anywhere. If you fight it, then it seems as if events are washing over you, overwhelming you, going faster than you can handle. And then it doesn’t seem as if you can change it to the way you desire to be. But that is because you’re not operating on the same rate or wavelength, you are not going with the circumstances.

Q: OK. And I follow you. Now, let me see if I translate this right, when I go, if I’m flowing with it and this person says you deliver this money tonight or... and I deliver that money; but if I don’t really...

B: If you know in your openness that if that is what is really necessary in your life, then you will attract a situation wherein you will have the money. If you are open in that way, in love and light, and act upon whatever opportunities present themselves to you, and none of those opportunities bring what that individual believes to be what they need, then simply trust it does not need to be there, and whatever the consequences of that manifestations, it will still represent the flow as you need to follow it.

Q: The truth is I don’t, in my integrity, want to flow that money.

B: Do you have it to flow?

Q: No, I do not.

B: All right.
Q: But I could engage in actions to get it, to borrow it.
B: All right.
Q: I don’t wish to, but I also don’t wish to counter the individual, and say, “No, I’m not going to do this.” Because. . .
B: Do you believe that the transfer of, what you are terming, the money from you to this individual is or is not representative of the maintenance of the integrity of an agreement you have made?
Q: I’m not sure Bashar. I go back and forth on that one. I don’t times I don’t feel that it’s in alignment with my integrity at all, and other times I feel that it is, and I flip back and forth. I feel that the greatest good, at times, would be to flow it, and other times I go, “it’s out of integrity, and it’s unethical to flow.” And I tend to flip back and forth.
B: All right. Can you understand, however, that the idea, now we are not saying this is the case, but we are simply setting up a generalized example. . . that sometimes even flowing money or any idea to another individual, even if, in your estimation, on their side, it may be supporting something that does not function within integrity, can actually allow integrity to become in existence?
Q: Definitely. That’s why I consider doing it.
B: All right. At any given moment, as you simply perceive the two ideas, relax into yourself and simply allow yourself to come, not make, not force, allow yourself to come to the decision as to which one truly represents the idea of your integrity.
Q: Lovely.
B: Then simply act upon that. If at any given moment you find that the other idea truly, truly, truly, truly with all honesty with yourself, represents a more full comprehension of your integrity, then begin to act on that. This is not to say it will necessarily, in your terms, complete itself in the way you think it might have to.
Q: And if I vacillate back and forth, as long as that’s my integrity that’s fine.
B: Yes. You are exploring what you need to, and you may simply find that in doing that, each and every component, what you are perceiving to be a component of this overall idea is, in and of itself, its own complete idea.
Q: Yes. One of the things I did is that I judged myself negatively for not coming to a conclusive flow.
B: All right. Then your first step, obviously, is to cease invalidating yourself for whatever it is you are doing, and begin doing what you need to do.
Q: Lovely as always.
B: Let it work out.
Q: OK. (laugh)
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you, baby. (Aud. laughs)
Smoking
Q: I’ve been kind of struggling with the idea of smoking, and...
B: Struggling with smoking. All right.
Q: what you said earlier about the drugs to somebody else, and also about dreams, seems to somehow help me.
B: All right.
Q: How to apply… I dreamt last night that I kept putting out my cigarette, and then I’d look in the ashtray and there’d be another lit cigarette waiting for me. So I’d pick it up, put that one out, and again, there would be a lit cigarette.
So when you mentioned that the dream seems to resolve a particular problem, how would I apply to that… and also you mentioned the thing about the drugs, that it’s not the drug that you’re seeking; it’s something else.
B: Oh, thank you. It is the recalling back to yourself of your own self-empowerment.
Q: Oh, how can I apply that, and how can I understand…
B: Oh, thank you. First of all, you can allow the symbology, perhaps, to be indicative that it may reflect a way that you generally perceive the events in your life to unfold as well. Do you feel that you are victimized by circumstances?
Q: Sometimes.
B: All right. Is there any reason for you to continue to feel that you are victimized by circumstances?
Q: Not really, not if I take the perspective that I create everything.
B: All right, very good. Then you can begin by not invalidating your invalidations.
So if you find that you tire of creating something you deem to be negative, do not judge it any further than you already have, to create it. Go easy on yourself first of all; do not chastise yourself for the creation, to begin with, of what you perceive to be a negative chain or sequence of events. Then you will at least remove the first layer of pressure upon yourself.
Now, as you have experiences in your dream reality, you can, first of all, recognize that it is just as real as any reality you will ever experience. And you can allow yourself to know that you are showing yourself something in plain terms, symbolic terms – plain symbolic terms – that will allow you to simply recognize the idea as it fits into your life, the idea of what you feel to be repetitiveness, lack of ability to have control over a situation that seems – seems, seems – to be repeating.
Now, one aspect we can explore right now is that nothing really repeats – nothing. Everything, no matter what it appears to be, is always a new thing – if only that you recognize it as not exactly the same thing happening exactly the way it did the first time, because you are making the comparison that it is happening again.
So, in this way, you can treat every apparent reoccurrence as something new; do not assume it is the same old thing. Assume it is a different new thing. It may come in the same guise. But that is because you are using symbols you are familiar with – the cigarette, perhaps. You do not have to attribute to the apparent reappearance of the cigarette the same meaning you usually attribute to it. Give it a new meaning. Every time it seems to reoccur, give it a new meaning, not the same meaning. It is only by bequeathing the same meaning on an apparently similar symbol that you create the effect that the symbol seems to carry only the same meaning over and over again.

All symbols are blank, neutral, no symbol and no situation comes with a built-in meaning. You supply the meaning; the meaning you supply is the effect you get. You follow me? Therefore, whatever symbology is reflected to you in the idea of the cigarette, start to give it new meaning. And as soon as you start to give the cigarette new meaning, you will then allow the cigarette to transform from the symbol that it is, into another type of symbol that will then be reflective of the new meaning you have instilled within it.

Instilling a new meaning in an old symbol is what changes the old symbol into a new one, because the meaning of a symbol is the soul of the symbol. The symbol – the outward symbol – is only an illusion, a cloak, a guise, when you change its meaning, then the symbol will transform to accommodate the new meaning. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: So, first and foremost, you can remove the idea that you are only doing something repetitively. You are not; everything is new. Sometimes you may use what appears to be the same symbol to represent that you are dealing with a momentum, a continuing momentum along similar lines, but every re-appearance of an apparently same symbol is actually a new opportunity to look at a similar idea from a different point of view – giving it the new meanings at every turn.

Now, you can also understand that you do not have to force yourself to become more spiritual. You can recognize that you do not need to demand that you change. And that when you cease making a demand upon yourself that you change from what you perceive to be old habits, then that will be one less habit right there: ceasing to demand that you change.

Q: Well, it seems that it’s desirable and...
B: Let me finish. The idea of what you desire can come most easily when you do not demand it as a prerequisite for the change within you. When you simply know that you are different, when you allow yourself and take it for granted that you are different, then you will change. And it is not that you have to force yourself to stop smoking. By being a different being, you will simply not have the urge. It will not be in the definition of the being you will now be. Now... may I ask you a question?

Q: Sure.
B: Are you sure I may ask you a question?
Q: Of course.
B: Oh, thank you very much. Using your imagination right now: can you, in any way, ever imagine yourself not smoking?
Q: Yes.
B: You can? Are you sure you can?
Q: Yes.
B: All right, very good. Then in your willingness to have the vision of yourself as someone who simply does not smoke... now wait... before we go on, let me clarify your definition. Are you actually saying you can envision yourself as someone who does not smoke, or are you envisioning yourself as someone who has to fight the urge to smoke?
Q: No, I visualize myself as being very energetic.
B: All right, and simply someone who does not feel the urge to smoke.
Q: Right.
B: You can envision this?
Q: Yes, sometimes it feels like when I do smoke, I’m cutting down my energy.
B: All right. All right. We understand, but for now, never that. Dream...(tape change)
Q: ... yes.
B: Then let me remind you of something right now. As we have said, dream reality – and here’s the connection – dream reality, your imagination, physical reality, it’s all the same reality. Only you make the distinction that it is not.
Q: Mmhmm.
B: When you allow yourself to know that what you imagine, what you envision you can be, is just as real as anything that you are in your physical reality, then when you have the vision of yourself as a non-smoker, you will not continue to assume that there must be some processes necessary in order for you to become the non-smoker. You will simply recognize that if you can envision it, you must – at that moment – actually be that person. Because you can only conceive of what you contain. You can only imagine what the vibratory level is that you are already on.
But when you imagine yourself as a non-smoker, in that second, in that moment – for however long you are willing to sustain that reality, that imagination – you are in that moment, a non-smoker. But you make the assumption that the imagination is not as real as the physical reality. And so you think there must be something that you need to do in order to realize your imagination – not believing it is real in the moment you have imagined yourself to be a non-smoker.
If you recognize that your ability – your very ability – to be able to even envision yourself as a non-smoker means that that is the end of the process, and not the beginning of a process, then all you need to do is trust that your ability to imagine yourself as a non-smoker is the same thing as being a non-smoker. And all you have to do is act like your imagination and what you have envisioned yourself to be is actually real right now. Then your body will automatically act like a non-smoker’s body and it won’t have the urge. You follow me?
Q: Yes, I’ll try it next time I have an urge.
B: You’ll what?
Q: I’ll do it next time I have an urge.
B: All right. Now, again, do it now. If you are saying, "Well, I’ll wait ‘til I have an urge," you are implying that there will be a time when you will no longer be a non-smoker. And then you have to fight it. If you are a non-smoker, you will never have the urge. Period.
Now, if you find that you do have the urge, do not chastise yourself. And do not struggle. Simply re-imagine yourself as the non-smoker. You may want – because of the society you are in – to give yourself an opportunity to reassure yourself that you are in control and you have the power. It does not have to be a struggle.
If you find yourself creating the urge... first of all, do recognize that if you do find yourself creating the urge, then the one, the you that creates the urge is not the you that you are, when you are the non-smoker doesn’t have the urge to smoke, by definition.
So if you find yourself creating the urge, you are smoker. All you need to do is become the non-smoker once again, and there won’t be an urge. It is not a matter of having to fight the urge; it is becoming the individual, once again, who doesn’t have the urge to smoke. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: That is all.
You are either the smoker or you are not. It is not a matter of “fighting to become.” You either are or you are not... or you are separately an individual who is fighting to become. But those are three separate individuals. One does not necessarily lead to the other. You follow me?
Q: Mmhmm.
B: Thank you. Breathe deep.
Q: I’m really not really fighting it, because I quite enjoy smoking.
B: All right.
Q: I cough a lot...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and I feel not so energetic.
B: All right, but you are saying that there are beliefs within you, on some level of your consciousness, that do believe it is fighting some aspect of the idea.
Now we understand that you enjoy it, and that is why we say do not chastise yourself for doing it. For when you no longer need to, you will simply lose the urge. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: That is all there is to it.
Q: I think that there may be a message for me, something to learn from that.
B: There can be.
Q: Perhaps, about my breathing.
B: It can be that you simply do not need it.
Q: It is related sometimes to what happens in birth trauma, to the first breath?
B: It may be very specific with regard to the individuals that are being born, and the relationship that they actually have with the individual that is bearing them.
Q: And I thought, perhaps, this was giving me an opportunity to look at that and how I feel about my breathing.
B: Trust your own instincts in this matter. Your imagination always provides you with the proper understanding of yourself. That is what it is for. It cannot provide you with an understanding on the same level of someone else, because it is you; it is your imagination.
If it could give you more understanding of someone else, it would be someone else’s imagination and not yours. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Your sharing?
Q: I just wanted to share one of the newly created meanings for smoking.
B: All right.
Q: Which is that the physical is being translated into the smoke of the spiritual that is expanding out into the greater fourth density…
B: This is one of the ways your American Indian culture did look at smoking.
Q: Yes, that’s very true. One of the new meanings. Thank you.
B: ‘Tis also one of the older ones.
Q: Yes, thank you.
Societal Perspectives

We will begin this interaction, this evening of your time, with the idea of the differences in viewpoint, in terms of how it is that we usually perceive your civilization, and how you perceive yourselves. We will, in this way, simplify the idea by simply pointing out that the difference in the way many of you perceive the ideas that you live in your lives is simply that, more often than not, because of the way you have created your society to be, you assume that what it is that you are doing in your lives now is that you recognize the idea of your acceleration and your spiritual growth. What it is you are doing in your lives is something that you are doing so that you can, in your terms, become more spiritual or recognize your spirituality. Whereas, the point of view that our civilization, our consciousness has of you is that you are doing what you are doing because you are already spiritual.

You may recognize more of yourself, you may integrate more of yourself, in that way; you may choose to blend with more of all that you are, synchronize, harmonize with the idea of All That Is; but, in an overall sense, it is not that that is better, it is simply a state of being like any state of being. And it is your choice, you have the free will to understand that no matter what situation you are creating in your life, no matter what situation you have created in what you call your past, ALL situations you have created have served you, for they have all gotten you where you are. Have they not? Therefore, in this way recognize, each and every stepping stone, as you may choose to call it, is and must be, equally valid as every other stepping stone. Otherwise, you do not create the idea of a series of steps that gets you to where you think you are going.

Any portion of yourself that you reject is the removal of one of those stepping stones, and that is why you create a gap in the continuity of the idea of the flow that you seek. And you remain, once you judge any portion of yourself, judge any stepping stone and remove it from the sequence, try to get rid of it, try to pull it out of the linear idea you have lived, that is why once you attempt to do that you will remained fixed, transfixed, unable to move because you have removed the idea of the line and you become isolated, in that way. You have broken apart the path that you are in an illusionary sense, and do not allow yourself to become conscious of the idea, to recognize the idea of the continual flow that you can be by granting equal validity to every step you have ever taken: Positive and/or Negative.

For once again, they have all served you to take you exactly where you find yourself; and everything you shall do in this life and any other lives you choose to live will always, still, by definition, be a part of the path that gets you anywhere else. Recognize you will never end. You will never stop creating. You will never cease to grow. If you exist now, and I will assume that if you are hearing me you do, you will always exist. Existence is above and beyond linear time. Existence is not subject to time. Existence is, and you will always be able to say that...always is something that is within existence, because always implies time. You have a concept that “time goes on forever,” but time always “goes on,” and “forever” are all temporal concepts. All That Is simply always IS and Isness simply always is. You are eternal. You always will be able to recognize that you exist in the present. Allow your present, allow your present to be CONSCIOUSLY where you desire to be, and any future, so to speak, that you desire will then have, quote/unquote, the “best” opportunity of manifesting in your life.

Because you will be allowing the future, as well as the past, to be in the present, which is where it is. All realities, all times, all lives, all spaces are here and now. And as long as you assume that the idea of something “better” is going to come along somewhere in the future, that is where you keep the concept of the change by judging it, by not allowing what is happening now to be connected to it, to be a part of it. By not allowing the idea of the future to be now, by judging that what you are doing now is something less than what you think you will be doing, you separate the present from the future and always keep the idea of what you prefer somewhere out in the distance future. Allow it to be now, and you will have access to every reality that you desire, that you prefer...without judgement. You all follow along?

Audience: Collective yes.

Solar Energies

Q: Regarding our sun, in recent developments that measured the photosphere, the surface of the sun, at 5,600 degrees centigrade...
B: Degrees Kelvin.
Q: Degrees Kelvin?
B: Yes.
Q: And the corona is one million degrees.
B: Yes.
Q: We are not aware why the corona has a higher temperature than the photosphere?
B: Because it is a different form of free-form plasma energy, with a much higher energy content because of how it is more capable of interacting with all sorts of different kinds of cosmic radiation; whereas the surface material of the sun is more compacted and not so capable of freely interacting with other higher levels of higher energy. Thus, it is not so much of a rarified plasma interaction, wherein the molecular motion cannot be as high as it is in the free-form state of what you would call the gaseous corona.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Solidifying Synchronicity

Q: From your perspective, could you tell us how you view the group consciousness of the human species at this time, as we create it on our planet with the group consciousness and where it’s at, in terms of the transformation, from third density to fourth density.

B: About halfway.

Q: Could you give us a little bit of your perspective of what that might look like for the group consciousness in the evolution over the next period of years?

B: Obviously, by definition, anyone within the consciousness that simply knows they are, in this way, transforming into fourth density will be in fourth density and those that do not, will not. Those that do not choose the idea of fourth density will not be there. So obviously, by definition, all those that are choosing to live in the idea of fourth density will be there, since they have chosen to do so. So, one hundred percent in every case. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: It is not a matter of, how are you doing? It is a matter of, what are you doing? Are you living and acting as if you are, in that way, KNOWING that you are representative of a fourth density choice. If you are, you are obviously in fourth density and/or proceeding towards it. That is all there is to it. You are, or you are not. Are you through?

Q: That’s fine, thank you very much.

B: Recognize... I will say one other idea, within the next, what you call, thirty of your years, will be the compilation, the beginning of what you may term, the true acceleration into fourth density. The thirty-year period will end the limbo state in which you can still have time to make a choice. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: However, you will find that much of the choice has already been made, much of it is solidifying, and that is why you are seeing increases in synchronicity in your lives with regard to the idea of how many individuals are becoming aware of the idea of the transformation. So, from our point of view, our ability to even interact with you is an indication of what you have chosen, otherwise we would be somewhere else. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you, very much.

Q: Thank you.
Soul Aspects and Trusting the Timing

Q: Someone was talking about personalities on many planes... that one person could have many, many personalities...
B: All right.
Q: ... all on different planes, or the same plane, or something like that. Could you comment on that?
B: What is your specific reference and how do you feel it applies to you?
Q: Well... the fact that one person has a personality paralleling theirs, at the same time...
B: Do you mean counterpart, or parallel dimensionality?
Q: I’m not sure! (Laughs)
B: All right. Counterpart will be the representation of the idea that you are one fragment of your whole Soul self, and that another individual living physically at the same time you are will be another fragment of the same Soul – that will be the Counterpart. Parallel dimensionality will be similar, it will occur in an alternate parallel reality that you do not physically perceive. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. You also, as a personality yourself, are composed of many sub-personalities, in that sense, that do exist on different planes or dimensional levels of existence. As you then call upon them to integrate within you, they have a portion of their energy that is reflected in your present as well. And the more you integrate all of your sub-personality levels within yourself, and become one identifiable personality, in that way, in much the same manner does the entire mass consciousness of your civilization. When each and every one of you allow yourselves to be the complete, valid, unique individual that you are, then the mass consciousness can then draw upon you to add to its sense of completeness.

In other words then, paradoxically, the stronger you become as an identity, the stronger the mass consciousness identity becomes.

You do not lose your sense of identity in forming one unified mass consciousness. Just the opposite.

Q2: So I would like you to define, if you will, the fifth density.
B: Very briefly it will be the understanding of consciousness as it views itself to actually be, in one sense. This will be the primary identification in one sense, the basic identification – it views itself to actually be the dimension that it occupies. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, I do. And we actually have some part of ourselves on all density levels, is that correct?
B: You are Creation.
Q: So therefore we occupy all density levels?
B: All density levels occupy you.
Q: I see.
B: Will that have answered your question?
Q: Yes, it will have.
B: Thank you.
Q1: So can we actually see these aspects? Are there times when we can perceive... well, at times when we walk into a room we can see a certain “something” that may not be a solid form, but then we turn and actually with our physical eyes we see it, kind of, and then we lose it.
And when we first see this thing out of the corners of our eyes, it is like another density that we...
B: Yes, in a sense. More often than not, it can be parallel dimensionality, alternate reality. Slightly out of phase, out of sync with your frequency that you call this reality.
Q: How do we make this thing grow – our ability?
B: Why should you want to?
Q: Well, why not?
B: All right, fair enough... but why?
Q: Well... why am I here!?
B: You tell me. You chose to be.
Q: Okay.
B: Understand we already recognize your willingness by saying, “why not?” All well and good. Now, we simply, in the form of discussion, are asking you for specifics. Why?
Q: (Pauses)
B: We are not saying “why” as a challenge. We are saying “why” as tell us how you will do this.
Q: Um...
B: You will know how you will do this, by allowing yourself to know “why” within you. In other words, what is it about that idea that strikes a chord within your imagination?
Q: It seems to be where I’m going anyhow.
B: All right, in one sense, yes. Very good. What else?
Q: Well, it also has to do with what’s happening with all of us.
B: All right. Very good! One and two: “where I’m going anyhow,” and, “what’s happening with all of us.” Now you have answered your own question because understand, that if that is where you are going, you will do it. If that is happening with everyone, you will probably not be able to stop it. (AUD: laughter) Do you follow me?
Q: Okay.
B: Allow it to manifest in its own timing. The timing, always, is a part of the purpose. Do you follow me?
Q: That’s a part of that busy thing that I’m moving through... that I’ve got to get there, and then when I...

B: If you create for yourself the judgment of impatience, recognize that then quote/unquote, if and when you get there, you may find yourself empty-handed, in order to be able to deal with it – by not paying attention to what was along the road you traveled on to get there.

Whenever you feel yourself being impatient, recognize that where you are exactly right now, at any given moment, is necessary for a full appreciation of where you are going.

Q: So there is never any use for that burst of feeling, of...

B: You will feel the acceleration, again, quite paradoxically, when you allow yourself to slow down, and accept what your life is. Because you have created it for the reasons you are beginning to perceive.

Therefore let the symbols and the situations and the relationships and the interactions and the happenings from day to day, be representative of what you chose to experience, so that you could appreciate where you are going, when you get there.

Understand that the way to appreciate where you are going, is to appreciate where you are. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.

SOUL MATES

We have heard many times the idea upon your planet you call "soul mate" and that idea certainly can exist. It is simply representative of a particular kind of agreement that has been made. But do remember that every individual you interact with serves you by reflecting to you what you need to know at that moment.

Therefore, by the fundamental definition of soul mate, every individual you interact with at any particular moment is for that moment your soul mate—because they serve you best at that moment.

As we have mentioned before, our society does recognize that now and then there can be single individuals who match themselves for the duration of a life span who can provide for each other all the reflections that each other needs to see in order to grow in the way they want to. But we do not put an expectation on the relationship that it "must" be that way and we do not know if it is a "one-on-one" until we reach the end of the life span. We look back and say, "Well, it seems no one else came along but you...so I guess that was a one-on-one."

We do not put expectations on how it must be; we do not regret how it was or was not because we live in the moment and trust ourselves. So when you live in the moment and you trust yourself by being the fullest individual you can be you will always attract whoever is appropriate for that moment. They can serve you to become who you want to be and you can serve them to allow them to become more of who they want to be. That’s what relationships are for: looking into a mirror and seeing another aspect of yourself.

Once again, you can simply understand that an individual who needs to learn a certain thing may attach themselves to another individual who has already learned it. The idea is, you are being of service. After all, if you say you love this individual then you are desirous of serving them to be who they want to be.
Soulmates

Q: I wonder if you could tell me when that special someone will come into my life?
B: You mean that special someone, or that special someone? (Pointing at audience members) Or what about that one?
Q: Any of them.
B: Well, what about the one right there’?
Q: The special soulmate.
B: Special soulmate. Are you aware of some of the things we have already discussed about this idea?
Q: Um, I’m not sure.
B: All right. Do you understand what our definition of a soulmate is?
Q: I don’t know; this is my first time here.
B: Oh, all right. Mine too. In that sense, recognize: every relationship - I will be brief, every relationship serves a purpose, is there for a reason. On the fundamental level, because you are always learning what you need to learn about yourself in any relationship — are being of service to the other individual in that relationship, to allow them to learn what they need to learn about themselves, to grow and learn - every relationship is a relationship with a soulmate, in the fundamental sense of the word. Understand so far?
Q: Yes.
B: Now, we know what you often mean in your society by the idea of “a soulmate,” and that does exist. However, more often than not, we have discovered that in your society the attitude will usually be as follows: that if only you could discover your soulmate, then everything would be just wonderful, but not until then.

Your physical reality is the product of your strongest definitions and your strongest beliefs, if you believe you are incomplete without that person, you will usually wind up only attracting someone to reflect your belief in your own incompleteness.

When you know you are complete unto yourself - not that you will not change and grow, but as you are, you are still a whole idea, and your first relationship is to yourself, and with the Infinite --- when you act in that manner, and radiate that frequency, that’s when you give off the vibration that gives someone else in your life that you may have made an agreement with, to come into your life to reflect back to you as an equal to the vibration you are already putting out.

If you already shine as the brightest light you can, then someone on the same level - as a mirror, as all of you are to each other - can reflect that light back to you. The brightest light that can be reflected back to you can only be as bright as the light you are. Understand?
Q: I understand.
B: That is what you typically call the soulmate. And it can exist in your reality. It doesn’t always have to be a single individual, but it can be.
Thank you.

Souls Inhabiting Artificial Intelligence Creations

B: Yes.
Q: An android, or robot... not really a robot.
B: We understand the concept.
Q: Okay, it’s you know, semi flesh and blood.
B: We understand.
Q: Now, the idea of creating an individual with complete intelligence – the apparancy of a complete individual person – is really intriguing. Because I’m aware that we are spiritual beings that quote, inhabit, bodies.
B: Yes.
Q: And most of the people who have written about robots haven’t realized that... well, they created artificial intelligence that has a sense of individuality, I know that, but it didn’t work quite that way.
B: If you create, let us say, an appropriately representational symbol that a soul can function through in a meaningful way, then a soul can “inhabit” the creation.
Q: Such as even a mechanical...
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, and I thought about that... that a soul could move into it, such as a soul moves into a baby body.
B: Why not?
Q: I also conceived that now that I know about your spacecraft and how you create an artificial intelligence with it, which is actually mechanical, or – well, it’s not actually mechanical – which has an intelligence as I understand it, which is tuned into the entire universe and it is as much of an individual as yourselves...
B: Yes.
Q: ... that, that kind of intelligence could be created in this artificial person.
B: Yes.
Q: Now, to what degree would they appear to be an intelligence, an individual? I’m not talking about a being coming into the artificial person, but rather the creation of the individual using your kind of computer. How much will they actually appear as an individual person?
B: It will depend upon the mass agreement of what is possible. And therefore, what they have allowed themselves to project their consciousness into. What they agree to, and in what way they agree to interact with the society. Do you follow me?
Q: When you say “they,” you mean the artificial person?
B: Yes. The consciousness projecting itself into it, let us say. If they recognize that the society has created that idea to only express itself in a limited way, then obviously the consciousness that chooses to take part will understand that limitation.
Q: Okay. Well then, when you create computers for your ship, does a consciousness enter this computer?
B: In a sense, yes. It is more like a valve, through which universal mass consciousness can flow.
Q: That’s what I was thinking, that’s a kind of computer...
B: The definition that you give, the ability that you give to the valve, will determine the amount of the mass consciousness that can flow into it, or through it, or individual consciousness that can flow into it, and through it.
Q: And have artificial people of this nature... obviously they’ve been created.
B: Oh, yes. They do exist and function in many societies.
Q: Do they exist in your society?
B: Yes, although primarily as the idea of the spacecraft.
Q: I see. Not as physical bodies, such as you have on your...
B: There are some.
Q: Do they walk around and appear to have all the personality traits that your people do?
B: Some do, yes. Some do not.
Q: Would they be indistinguishable from your people?
B: Some.
Q: Wow. Are they on this planet?
B: Some have been. No more comment. (Audience laughter)
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Sovereignty of Individuality

Q: Do you see in our civilization, in the United States, a movement towards state sovereignty, being a state citizen, as opposed to a...

B: Well, obviously...there is a movement.

Q: Do you see that as a movement that will culminate with, let us say...

B: In a fashion, yes. There will ultimately be, not a government, as you know it, but a true sovereignty of individuality. True free people. Creating as they wish; sharing as they wish, in full consent and intention and conscious awareness. With an organizational body, instead of a government, that helps coordinate the talents and facilities of people who need to know where other people are that they can then share their talents with, and who need those talents in return; so, in that sense, yes.

Q: Will this be part of the social and political movement in '95 that we will see?

B: It will increase, yes. But it will not really come to a head until well after the year 2000. Perhaps, sometime around your year 2005 there will be some of the biggest breakthroughs, or the biggest breakdowns of the older systems, that will finally allow more of the free person movement to be evidenced in your society. And certainly by your year, as we have said, 2037, there will be nothing but the concept of free, fully creative individuals on your planet.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Thank you!

Space-Time Origin Points

Q: I’m interested in the origin of the Universe as we perceive it, and I’d like to know if there are other parallel universes?

B: Yes, there are.

Q: How did our’s come about? Could you elaborate on this?

B: In much the same way that any of what you would call a parallel universe may have come about. Now there are many ways to interpret the idea of the so called coming about of a universe, for really the concept of a universe “coming about” is a perception possible only from within the universe that has come about. The universe, in that sense, existence, in and of itself, did not come about, existence always is. You follow me so far?

Q: Yes.

B: However, within the concept of existence, which always is, there can be the perceptual experience of a discreet interpretation of All That Is, that would appear to have a beginning and an ending, but this is a cycle within existence, it is not really a beginning of existence itself. In that terminology and from that perspective, you can understand that your universe and any similar parallel reality universes came about, so to speak, when an aspect of All That Is reflected itself. Which then allowed that aspect when realized, when self-recognized, to expand, so to speak, from an infinitesimal point, as you understand the concept in space-time, to an expanded interactive version of that self-recognition.

Now that point still exists, everything in your reality is still taking place, and again we apologize for the semantic terminology we must translate this into, because we know it can be confusing...everything that you know in your apparent expanded universe is still actually only taking place within that infinitesimal non-dimensional point. But because this particular infinitesimal non-dimensional point is interacting with itself within the concept of space-time, then all the interactions that take place within that infinitesimal non-dimensional point appear to have the quality that you call volume, distance, dimensionality, “temporariness,” and so forth.

So the universe came about, simply came about, simply from the recognition of All That Is that it could experience itself in this way. And thus, it was automatically realized, because anything that is imagined within the consciousness of All That Is becomes a reality, because that is the nature of All That Is. Does this make any sense to you so far?

Q: Yes.

B: We do not necessarily mean to be ambiguous in your terminology and, of course, there is always the attendant explanation from what we would call the physiochemical point of view, that goes along with the metaphysical concept or explanation, it’s all just about the same thing no matter what terminology you use to describe it.

Q: It is crystal clear to me.

B: All right. Thank you.
Q: You’ve talked about how we should be able to put a spaceship together in thirty-nine days.
B: Yes.
Q: Can you describe how this can be done?
B: Simply recognize that much of the necessary technology already exists upon your planet, and has been experimented with many times, to varying degrees of what you would call success. But the idea is simply that the information has been suppressed - thus it is available to you.

Therefore, when you recreate the idea of the structure of your society, so that it no longer prevents you from understanding information that already exists within the structure of your society, you can avail yourself of all the information that does exist. And you will understand immediately that you have a wealth of information that you did not previously perceive that you had access to.

This wealth of information contains the ability to create craft such as ours. You are already at that level. And simply, what we were addressing is the idea that if you would, from this day forward, begin to function as a unified society and share all the knowledge that you have access to, you would be able, within one month’s time – three months at the outside of your time – to be able to construct such a craft.

Q: But it can take us now from anywhere between one year to eighteen months to construct an airplane.
B: Yes, but that is the idea of the technology you are using now, according to the structure of the society you have created. Also understand that much of the technology you utilize, in a sense, is far more complex than it needs to be. You are always refining the ideas and paring them down to the simplest forms anyway, so all we are suggesting to you is that the idea behind the propulsion systems, of what you regard to be spacecraft, are far simpler than you think.

Q: Hmm. What sort of an environmental system do you have on your spacecraft?
B: In your terms, some of the environmental systems that you already have will suffice upon your spacecraft, in that way. But according to the idea of our spacecraft, you will find, first of all, that there is no great need for the idea of recycling; for in this way, we are usually in the smaller scout craft, not within them for that long a period of time.

In this way, in what you call the mother craft, there are systems that allow there to be the oxygenation, the creation of an electromagnetic atmosphere, that are always in your terms, manufacturing and recycling the raw elements necessary for the continuance of life. Most of these apparatus, in your terms, would appear to be crystalline in nature.

Q: What about passenger accommodations?
B: In what form?
Q: Aah well, for their food...
B: We do not eat that much. We do not sleep that much.
Q: We do though.
B: Yes. Again understand, simply, the idea is not that we are saying necessarily that you have to start by building a three hundred thousand passenger craft. (AUD: laughter) We are simply saying that you have the technology to be able to reach other stars. No matter what the size of the craft. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. What sort of an avionics, navigation, computer system, do you...

B: Navigation, in this way, will mostly be the product of creating a type of aware, a self-aware computer system, that will assist and connect into – plug into, as you would say – the isolation field that is created round and about the craft, that allows the craft to exist in an isolated state from all universes. Which is the same thing as saying that it exists in a connected state to all universes.

And in this way, the craft can simply understand that what is going on is that all universes are, in a sense, projected upon that bubble, and the craft can simply be attuned to a specific vibration that represents a specific space and time; and in that way, associate itself with it. And once the field is removed you will simply find that the identification vibration of the craft will allow the craft to have to, by definition, exist in that locale.

Our particular basis for, or fundamental idea, of what you would call our navigational system takes into account our perspective and our belief that the ideas of space and time are not, let us say, “voids,” in which an object exists, but are actually part and parcel, properties of the object itself.

Q: How do you identify the vibration of another planet or universe?

B: You will find that you have the ability to read the electromagnetic frequencies, the gravitational dynamic tensor fields, of any given mass. And you will simply recognize that every distinct mass or energy fluctuation field has its own unique signature vibration or characteristic.

Q: And you feel that our environment on this Earth already has the capability to do these things?

B: Once again, we are not saying, to be colloquial, that your first step will create the idea immediately – to put it in your terms – of what you call a supersonic jet liner. You may begin with the idea of what you have referred to as the bi-plane, with reference to spacecraft, but it will still be able to have the capability of bringing you from one phase frequency reality into another. Which is the same thing as saying that you will travel from star to star.

Again, we are not saying necessarily that within a month’s time you would create, in your terms, the ultimate version of a spacecraft with all the different versions of ideas of navigation worked out. But simply, you can create a craft that has the capability of being able to travel in that manner.

Q: When you construct a craft do you go through structural testing of the frame itself?

B: In a sense, although recognize that what you would recognize as our frame, in this way, is in no way, shape or form similar to the technology of what you are used to at this time. The idea of the craft we are utilizing now – though this was not always the case – simply is that it is formed of a metallic crystalline structure that in your terminology would actually, mostly, be “grown,” not built. In other words, we create a force field, to be colloquial about it, and allow the substance of the hull to grow in the shape of the field.
Thus, the hull is created within a particular quasi-planar vector reality, and cannot have anything but that shape. So that no matter how thin the material is, it is undentable.

Q: Hmm. Can this technology be developed on this planet?

B: It can be. And it possibly will be. Again, do not misunderstand me, we are not saying you need every single refinement of the technology we are using, in order to build your version of a spacecraft that can still function in much the same way; according to the same idea that, while your bi-lane is in no way, shape or form similar to your supersonic jet airliner, both still fly. Do you understand?

Q: Yes, very good.

B: Sharing!

Q2: Tapping into that theme, about a month ago I was lying in my bed and I saw these extraterrestrial craft. But they were like lights in the sky and they were moving, and I didn’t see them close up. And they showed me that the sky actually opened, and that they went through holes, to travel.

B: Yes.

Q: And I would like you to expand on that because I thought it was very amazing that the sky actually became black, and they showed me... the only way I could describe it with words, from my level of consciousness, is that there were holes in the sky that the spacecraft traveled through.

B: Yes, the idea was your physiological interpretation of the connectedness of one universe to the other. You were seeing the interface between one vibration and another. You were describing it as a hole or a doorway or a tunnel.

Q: Right.

B: The idea, once again, is simply that we understand space to be a property of the object. In other words, different rates of vibration define the time and space you find yourself within. All is one space, in a sense. All is one time, in a sense. But within that one space and one time there are different frequencies that define the different differentiations that you perceive as different places and different eras, in time.

The idea to us is simply that, in locating the signature vibration of any particular object – say, a spacecraft – and re-identifying its signature vibration, then it can avail itself of the idea that it is re-identifying its locational property with reference to where it is, to where it wants to be.

And you are perceiving the isolation field, the interface field, the difference in vibration, as that doorway that seems to appear around the craft.

Q: So when will man on this planet unify his thought?

B: In this way, in our perception, as you count time, the highest degree of probability will be for the beginning of this type of momentum as you have described it, to be within the next, approximately, thirty of your years, as you count time. That will be the beginning of the realization that you can, in fact, unify your thoughts, and begin to do so.

Q: And with this sighting of the craft, in their flight they seemed to be making right angled...
B: In this way, once again, recognize that the ship is a world unto itself. It is isolated in its own vibration; isolated from any other universal vibration, including what you call gravity. Thus, it has its own gravity and is not, in your terms, connected to the inertial fields outside the craft. So it can exert any kind of maneuver without regard to the external fields. Only the internal fields matter. And to the internal fields the craft does not feel like it is moving at all. There is no sense of inertia within the craft.

Q: Right. Let’s say you are going from where you come from...

B: Essassani.

Q: Yes, and then you come here.

B: Yes.

Q: And your rate of vibration is different from here.

B: Yes.

Q: So as a result, all you do is like “tune-in” to the cycle or whatever...

B: After isolating ourselves from our own cycle.

Q: Right. And then you come into our point in space/time.

B: By definition, once we identify with your cycle and remove the isolation field to some degree, then, by definition, we must occupy the time/space co-ordinates, or vibrational reference point, or signature vibration that we have identified ourselves with. And we appear to have instantaneously traveled from one point to another, whereas we have not really traveled at all, but simply re-identified ourselves.

Q: So no matter wherever the planet is that you happen to dial into, you’re able to change your vibration, or your rate, or oscillation, at will.

B: Yes.

Q: So there’s no...

B: It is even more directly accurate than that, because the idea of the functioning of our craft, while it is, in your terms, controlled by the computers, is directed by the mentality of the pilot – directly. In other words, there is a mental interface, or interlink, directly with the computer from the pilot. It is in a sense, therefore, “willed” to its location.

Q: Oh, and it’s by the pilot? It’s not by three or four other people?

B: Usually all that is necessary is one.

Q: Because everyone agrees to go to that particular location?

B: Yes.

Q: Okay.

B: Although that has not always been the case. There is, in what you may call our mythology – although we do not really have that any more – the idea of one of the initial experiments at what you would call a hyper-jump, wherein one of the crew members did not appear at the other end.
In this way, we understand now, of course, that it was simply the idea that that member re-identified himself with another reality, and became non-physical – you would say, “died.” But in this way we know that this member has reincarnated many times since then, since in your terms, this was very long ago.

However, at the time, even though we knew to some degree the idea that had taken place, we created the idea of a story that assisted us as a symbol – since we were talking about symbols – that allowed us to adopt into our legends or mythologies the idea that this being had, by not re-forming into physical reality, allowed himself to become the bridge itself that we had crossed, to disperse his consciousness throughout all of the universe. And in this way, therefore, we would always know that, no matter where we would travel from that point forward, there would always be a little bit of our society waiting there for us when we arrived.

Q3: So when you change your frequency or whatever...
B: Yes.
Q: ... does that affect distance to some degree also?
B: The idea of shifting frequency is that distance is directly related to it. In other words, we define distance as frequency, just like anything else.
Q: Is that how you’re able to be here?
B: Yes. Although, in a sense, I am not there, I am a blended idea with the physical channel’s consciousness, and do not truly, in your terms, come to you per se.
Q: Right. Can you be at other places at the same time?
B: In a sense, yes, my craft has, in your terms, physically visited your world several times. That is not the case at this moment.
Q4: I’m just wondering, when you are talking about being in two places, or three places, or five places, at the same time...
B: Yes.
Q: ... could you explain that?
B: Different aspects of consciousness can occupy and define and create more than one arrival point, simultaneously. It is not necessarily that the total of what you would recognize as the whole consciousness is there, but fragments of it are. In the same way as what you are here, in this life, is only a fragment of the total consciousness that you are as an Oversoul.
Q: So that at the point in time, or out of time, where you occupy all those points, you attain universality?
B: You are universality. You are universality right now. It is simply that the particular fragment you consider yourself to be at this time, by definition, doesn’t necessarily perceive itself that way – so that you can be on about the business of being focused in this particular reality. But because you are universal, that is what gives you the ability to focus in this particular reality as well.
Q: You said something about tensor fields.
B: Yes.

Q: Could you explain more about that?

B: In this way, there is not exactly the terminology in your language to translate this idea. But you would understand it as the energy fields, the patterns, the vibration harmonic resonances that would be perceived, or sensed, to be radiating from any particular physical mass to represent it to your perceptive senses. In other words, it will be representative of the dynamic interaction of the energy out of which the mass is created. Does that define anything for you?

Q: Yes, and I pick up a lot of vibrations, like in colors and sounds.

B: That is one way it can be translated.

Q: And another thing is, I pick up on longitude and latitude.

B: In a sense, yes.

Q: It seems like what holds it together is time.

B: In a sense, yes. Space/time is one thing.

Q: Right. You can’t have the space without the time.

B: Yes.

Q: So are you in the spaceship now?

B: Yes.

Q: Are you the pilot?

B: Yes.

Q: That’s your function?

B: Yes... for now.

Q: I’m curious... does that take up all of your time? As well as involving your coming into our group and enlightening us as you do.

B: “All of my time?” (AUD: laughter)

Q: Well, (laughing) that’s the best I could do, under the circumstances.

B: In this way I will, to be colloquial, “have time” to do many things; more than enough time; all the time in creation. Will that have answered your question?

Q: Yes.

B: Sharing!

Q: How would you define the big bang theory?

B: In this way, it is simply your physiological interpretation of a particular manifestation of one physiological universe, created out of the initial dynamic tensor fields, within the primal energy field of All That Is. It can be recognized as the creation of time/space itself, in this particular vibrational frequency.
Q: I would like to know more about your spacecraft – the shape and size, as you are in it right now.
B: The idea is what you would call a scout craft. It is in your terms, an equilateral triangle, approximately, by your counting, forty-five feet on each side, approximately seven to eight of your feet, thick.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you. Yes?
Q5: When you... when a pilot decides to change the vibration of the ship, as this is taking place in another environment...
B: Yes.
Q: ... is it sometimes speeding up the vibration, and sometimes slowing it down?
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: Okay. When we are going to go... as we move into fourth density, we are speeding up our vibration, correct?
B: In a sense, yes, this is a relative term... but in a sense, yes.
Q: All right. And for other forms of extraterrestrials that visit us, they have to step down their vibration?
B: Yes.
Q: Right...transform it. When we become excited and experience different emotions, our vibrations are changed...
B: Yes.
Q: ... so can you...
B: Oh, do not misunderstand us; you are utilizing much the same idea all the time. It is simply that you are not conscious of it. The idea of even being able to “move,” or take one step, utilizes the same idea. You have to redefine the vibration that you are, in order to create the illusion that you have moved – because you are not really “moving” anywhere. In a sense it is more accurate to actually say that, rather than you moving, the universe around you has moved through you. Do you follow me?
Q: I’m not sure.
B: You have re-identified your locational vibration to create the illusion that you have taken a step forward. In fact, all you have done is redefine the universe around you in subtle increments, so that it seems there is a continuity of motion. If you were to remove some of those subtle increments, then you would have, what you call, teleportation. You would be here – then there. And you would not see the intervening steps.
That is the technology and the idea behind our spacecraft. And that is why the idea is not so much that our spacecraft truly represents – although symbolically it is somewhat similar – an actual “mechanical device,” as you are used to thinking of. It is more an overall projection, supported by the mass consciousness of our civilization. (AUD: Wow)
Q: Right. One of the things that I’ve experienced a few times in my life is that I’ll just suddenly get an idea of being somewhere else, a different part of the country. And I’ll get a sensing of the weather and the traffic noises, and within a couple of weeks something will happen and I’ll find myself there; sometimes several thousand miles away. Certain things, coincidences will occur...

B: Synchronicity.

Q: Yes.

B: That is what everything is.

Q: But is that how it begins?

B: Yes, it can be. In that way you simply recognize that you are there, because everything is one thing.

Q: Oh, yes.

B: If you find a level of excitement, or a vibrational reason, in order to manifest that, then all you are doing, in a sense, is re-tracing your steps.

Q: Right.

B: And bringing it into manifestation.

Q: Yes. So, are you on a mission? What is the purpose of your flight?

B: The idea of our interaction with you, if that is what you are speaking of, is to be of reflective assistance to you. To let you know that those who are willing to recognize that there are other consciousnesses beside yourselves, and other modes of creating your reality, can do so.

Our joy is to interact with any being and/or civilization that wishes to expand its awareness to contain our reality, and other realities. Thus, it is simply what we have chosen to do, to assist you to recognize that you have all the information you need, to be anything you desire to be.

In allowing you to do this, in assisting you in this way, it expands creation for us as well, because then, with your added awareness, there is for us that much more of All That Is to explore. So we get something out of it too.

Q: Do you need a spaceship for this?

B: For what is going on right now? Do you mean for this interaction specifically?

Q: This... and I assume you’re interacting in other places in space/time?

B: Yes. Again, there are levels of civilization that do not require even the barest representation of what you would call spacecraft, in order to simply know that they can be anywhere, anytime, they wish to be.

Our civilization has simply defined itself at a certain level to also be of assistance to other civilizations, such as your own, that may still require those symbols to relate to.

Q: My interpretation of a spacecraft is of something that can take you from one place to another.

B: Yes. But understand again, as we have just described, even when you “move” through a room, you are utilizing the same technology that we utilize in our spacecraft.
You are your own spacecraft. All traveling within space and time is actually traveling within.

Q: So there’s no movement?
B: Not really. Not in an ultimate sense.

Q: So you could do this then without a spacecraft?
B: I am doing what you perceive right now without a spacecraft. I am simply blending my consciousness, through the dimension of my imagination with the consciousness of the physical channel. I do not have to be in “physical proximity” for this communication to occur.

Q: As I understand Essassani, there is a small portion of your total population upon your planet, and the rest of them are involved in spacecraft in other places.
B: Yes.

Q: I’m trying to figure out an overview as to why that is happening.
B: Because that is the way we have chosen to live our lives, and learn. In the same way, there is no need to make it any more mysterious than why you should decide to do something this way, or that way; to go to this school, or that school; live in this city, or that city. You do it simply because it is something enjoyable for you to do.

Q: Your life span is, I’m told, about three hundred years.
B: Yes, as you count time... approximately.

Q: Do you spend all of your lifetime in a spaceship?
B: No.

Q: Is that enough for you?
B: Enough? (AUD: laughter)

Q: Do you get all you want out of this spaceship...
B: For the definition of any particular lifetime, yes; if I wish to experience a furthering of the idea, I can create an extension of, or an additional, flight time.

Q: Hmm. Can I?
B: Of course... you always do. That is what is called reincarnation.

Q: Oh, all that. (AUD: laughter)

B: Yes, all that. (AUD: laughter)

Q: Right. And do you have trees and animals on your spaceship?
B: Yes, on the larger ones.

Q: So you can experience anything you want that’s on your planet?
B: Yes... except, in your terms, again, the idea, so to speak, of the openness of the world; which we also enjoy.
Q: Do you go outside your spacecraft? Do you stand on your spacecraft?
B: On the outer hull?
Q: Yes.
B: If necessary, but not usually. The hull, in almost any portion of the spacecraft, can instantaneously become transparent upon command. That is the type of material from which it is made, so to speak. (AUD: comments of amazement)
Q: Wonderful, thank you.
B: Sharing.
Q5: I just wanted to share that, when you were talking about the movement and everything, I remembered that when I was a kid and my parents would be driving, I would see that if all the cars were going at the same speed, it looked like the road was moving, and the cars were all standing still. And I was just thinking about that as you spoke.
B: Oh, yes. Thank you!
Q: Thank you.

Spacecraft and Space Travel
Spacecraft Description

Q: I wanted to know if you would take a few moments and just diagram a little bit one of the mother ships, and what the different sections are for. And I know that each one might even be different. . .

B: Yes.

Q: if you could pick one.

B: Well, we will use the same one we have used before, that in your terminology would translate out into the name of the Solar Wind.

Q: Okay.

B: It is approximately one of your miles in length, almost – just about. And the idea is it will be a cylinder in form, generally speaking, and will have many decks within it. But those decks are also, in your terms, cylindrical – a cylinder within a cylinder within a cylinder, and so on. For approximately what you would call thirty cylinders within.

What this will be is that you can then circumnavigate the entire cylinder on any level, all the way around. And then decks are apportioned accordingly to different sections. There are approximately three main engines that bridge all decks: one in the center and two near either end. These are also cylinder, or disk-shaped in fashion, and are cavernous, bridging all decks. What you would call a sixty-deck cross section.

The idea, therefore, being that there are thirty cylinders, which means you have, from the outer skin down to the center core, thirty decks. And then, of course, a repeat of the thirty decks from the center core out to the other side. The center is where all the engines are connected. And in the very center there will be, what you would call, a non-inhabitable space, all the way through the central core of the ship, that will be the drive mechanism, in colloquial terms.

At either end, in also a cylindrical fashion, is what you would call, colloquially, your bridge, at either end. In the very outer shell will be the hangar bay for various scout craft that come and go. There will be the idea, once again, also of manufacturing on many of these scout craft in that outer hull. The idea also will contain, in the outer hull, many different forms of environment to accommodate many different life forms from many different civilizations.

Q: Why just the outer one?

B: Because it is the easiest access. As a ship enters the hull, obviously, the first deck they hit is the outer one. So they can then simply propel their craft right into an environment, and step right out of their craft at home. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Then as you progress towards the center of the ship, you will find there will be many different levels and decks that are relegated to various forms of exploratory enterprise, as you would call it, research, in that sense.
There are also vast arrays of open space that are relegated to very park-like atmospheres, for we enjoy the idea of nature, and in that sense bring it with us. The idea is also that there will be many levels simply for experiencing different environments – to accommodate different beings to shift from one environment to another, as they may choose to do. These might be called pressure chambers, in a sense. Although it is not exact as you mean the term.

There will also be the idea of communication stations that we have called, in very, very colloquial terms – not literal at all – the communication stations we have termed the chapels, in that sense; which are rooms, chambers of crystalline formation, that allow an individual to be in touch directly with the Infinite. There will also be what you would call amplification modules that allow individuals to tap into specific frequencies of different dimensions for the purpose of some of the channelings, as you call them, that go on in this form of communication. For do remember that the most natural receiver device is already living beings.

The idea also is that certain other decks will contain many of the ideas that you would call leisure activities, where individuals may simply play. And there are whole simulated environments that individuals can create simply by a connection to the main computer of their consciousness, and can explore different realms in that way. Almost as if they were literally physically visiting those dimensions, able to exist in those atmospheres without actually existing physically within them. You understand?

Q: Mhmm.
B: There will also be what you would call the Association council chambers, wherein can be the projection of many different levels of consciousness to gather in meetings, as it were, to understand the ebb and flow of the organization and the communication that goes on between the hundreds of worlds of the Association.

There will also be the creation of experimental environments; environments we have not encountered, per se, but environments that we can create, in that sense, to explore and experiment with in the many ways that the universe can manifest itself.

Large and vast areas are given over to the creation of entire ecologies on the ship so that we may understand the full workings of any particular planetary society – by literally creating vast areas of their entire ecosystem.

Q: Would you have any earth-like…?
B: Yes.
Q: You do?
B: Yes. And on the Solar Wind, as on Essassani itself, there are a few dolphins. There will be a few other ideas, a few other chambers whose purpose in that way will not necessarily be that easy, not brief, to describe.
Q: Okay, this was sufficient.
B: Thank you very much. And on the Solar Wind, as on Essassani itself, there are a few dolphins. There will be a few other ideas, a few other chambers whose purpose in that way will not necessarily be that easy nor brief to describe.
Q: Thank you very much!

Spacecraft Description
Spacecraft Hyper-jumps

Q: You’ve said that your spacecraft operates from light?
B: Yes.

Q: Okay now, when you’re traveling intergalactically, where do you get the light?
B: Understand that the idea of what you call, the jump, is instantaneous. There is no time spent. And also, at any rate, light comes in many forms, visible and invisible. All is Light. What you perceive as visible light is only one manifestation of a greater concept of light.

Q: You’re talking about electromagnetic fields...
B: And gravity.... and also, in this way, recognize that the idea of the utilization of that light allows us to channel into an instantaneous relocation. We so not spend time doing what you call a hyper-jump, there is no time spent. Anything that is in your terms, sub light, is involving the idea of time but that is relatively rare. And in this way, always takes place within, or generally near, sources of light.

Q: A star.
B: Yes.

Q: In this case, the sun.
B: Yes. There is available light everywhere, it just simply depends on the frequency to which you are tuned.

Q: Matter itself is light.
B: Yes.

Q: Why would the Pleiadians in the book on UFO contact describe that it used to take them seven hours to make the jump?
B: It is the same reason that the idea of any time spent is, in a sense, preparation time. In the same way that we require what you call one half hour, approximately, of your time: fifteen minutes acclimating... no time in the jump... fifteen minutes re-acclimating and entering your system.

Q: Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you.
Species Creation and Sentiency

Q: As far as the Anunnaki is concerned...
B: Yes.

Q: understand that you have said something to the effect that the reptilians were a genetic experiment, I believe, of the Anunnaki and some dinosaur species?
B: In that sense, what you would call dinosaur DNA was utilized in the creation of the hybridization and the creation of a species that you have come now to recognize as the Reptilian, by the Anunnaki, yes.

Q: Were they the first... I’m sure they did lots of genetic experiments...
B: They were the first from your world.

Q: Okay. How many would you say – not just simple experiments, but ones that branched out into major life forms – how many did they create here on earth?
B: Three.

Q: Which were... us, and the Reptilians, and who were the third beings?
B: It is not time, one moment, one moment, one moment... we must have dialogue to see what door may be opened in this direction, based upon the overall timing of the consensus reality.

Q: Well, my next question is...
B: One moment, one moment.

Q: Okay.
B: (Rapid chattering of the channels teeth) One moment... that which has to you come to be known as the Sasquatch. Do you understand?
Q: Yes, that makes sense to me too.
B: It is, in that sense, the precursor to your own people.

Q: And actually, the Sasquatch... is it true that they are much more telepathic beings?
B: Yes.
Q: Is that done for a reason?
B: In a sense, yes. Let us say, in effect, yes. They are not literally more telepathic than you are, but they allow themselves to use it more naturally than you have allowed yourselves to use it in your modern society. Although there have been times when in your past history it was expressed more naturally by the humans on your planet.

Q: What DNA did they use?
B: Similar to your own, in the sense of simian. But it is another generation altogether.
Q: Okay.
B: After that, changes were made... thus resulting in the idea of the typical humaniform that you now recognize, or at least more closely so.

Q: So they were (?) then two, obviously...

B: Yes. They are the second. You are the third.

Q: I’m sure you have been asked this before...

B: Do you understand what that means?

Q: What? That they were before us?

B: This whole idea with regard to the whole concept of sentiency and sentient species on your planet.

Q: No, be more specific.

B: The actual, shall we say, native sentient species are the Dolphins and the Whales, because they, in that sense, did come from your planet in its natural evolution.

Q: Oh, wow. I heard that they came from another planet.

B: No.

Q: So they naturally became sentient on this planet?

B: Yes.

Q: How?

B: What do you mean how?

Q: Well, I mean what made them sentient?

B: Consciousness.

Q: But I mean scientifically?

B: All things are consciousness.

Q: I mean what caused the actual change when they became sentient? They just... do you see what I am getting at...?

B: Yes.

Q: ... scientifically happened?

B: What you would call the appropriate amount of connections, in what you would call the neurological net.

Q: I’m confused.

B: A specific architecture in the brain...

Q: Okay, I got that.

B: ... allowed consciousness to be expressed on your planet in a way that you recognize as sentiency. Every thing and every life form on your planet is consciousness expressing itself, but it all doesn’t express itself in the way you recognize your own consciousness to be expressed. The idea, and this doesn’t mean that yours is better, worse, or anything like that, the idea is that the dolphin, cetacean, whale life form, expresses sentiency and consciousness similar to your own. And this began to be expressed, in that way, when the neurological net within the idea of the brain mass arrived at a certain density, where a certain number of connections remained and allowed the consciousness to express itself in a certain way in physical terms. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes. Is that like a template in the universe, that where life exists on a planet there will always be one species that will . . .

B: No, not always, not always. But the template does exist.

Q: Most of the time?

B: It depends. You cannot necessarily say most of the time either, because you are talking about infinity.

Q: Yes, okay.

B: There is no way to measure that.

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Species Creation and Sentiency
Speeding Up Interactions
Q: Today I was thinking, um...
B: I see. (Audience laughs)
Q: I thought I’d mention that...
B: Thank you. (more laughter)
Q: Pat myself on the back.
B: All right.
Q: The Pleiadian tape that happen in Switzerland, about ten years ago, left an awful lot of information with evidence and messages or things that could be studied.
B: Yes.
Q: And then it just that it ended it finished I know that you said that he has continued his contacts telepathically or...
B: To some degree.
Q: To some degree, right. But what I wondered is this, since you said, that they are going to be the first race that are going to land on mass with us. And I added to that that they look so much like us that it will be less of a cultural shock to talk with them coming out of the spaceship than something that looked like a Hollywood creation.
B: All right.
Q: I wondered... I began to think why wouldn’t they speed up these...
B: Because it is up to you, not them. What has been done with the information you already have?
(Audience Chuckles)
B: That is you answer, thank you. SHARING!!!
Spent Plutonium

Q: It has been said that spent plutonium actually is very valuable, and not so...

B: Repeat that.

Q: Spent Plutonium...

B: Yes.

Q: That’s been said to be so dangerous, is actually more valuable, because it can be transmuted into other elements.

B: It can, but not exactly by a technology that you have on your planet yet, or I’ll put it this way, not by a technology that you have on your planet that you allowed yourselves to develop. There are technologies and there is knowledge on your planet that can utilize that in a very beneficial and positive and non-polluting way, but because of other choices that your society made you did not allow yourselves to develop the technology that would allow you to do so.
Spirit of Play

Q: Could you give us a concept of your point of view of spirit of play?

B: Spirit of play!

Q: Yes.

B: It is the natural way of life. You are a spirit, at play. That is what you are doing where you are – playing. You are a spirit. Remember that your physical world, your physical body, is your spirit, in physical terms – that’s all.

So spirit of play, in that sense, is synchronization, harmonization with the fundamental beam or frequency of Creation itself. For if you wish to put it that way, the Infinite Creator, or God as you call it, is literally the Spirit at play. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes. I think it’s when you recognize the attitude, when you recognize this emotion, that you feel the play.

B: Yes. Yes, you let that flow through you. You are in synchronous harmony with the prime frequency of Creation. It is called unconditional love and ecstasy. That is the spirit of play. Ecstasy.

Q: Lovely.

B: Thank you!

Q: Thank you.
All right, I’ll say good day to you this day of your time, how are you all? Once again we thank each and everyone of you for allowing this transmission to occur through this particular gateway and in this manner and at this time.

Once again each and every time your civilization allows our world to interact with you in this way, it affords us an opportunity to experience through each and everyone of you that many more perspectives within infinite creation and it expands our understanding of the infinite so we thank you for this gift.

We would like to begin this transmission this day of your time with the following notion about Spirits. Let us remind each and everyone of you that Spirit, is what you are. That your physical experience is simply what your consciousness has created itself to be, shall we say, densified, lowered in frequency, and as it lowers its frequency of its experience of itself, as it slows its vibration down of its pure, essential...rate of existence, it becomes more and more and more dense, more and more and more solid—moving toward physicalization. It will first become Spirit or in what you call in scientific terms, electromagnetic energy. For electromagnetheric energy is the embodiment of consciousness that you call Spirit. Thus, then, when you talk about or ponder the idea of Spirit Guides, friends who have in your terms departed physical reality into the spirit realm, the Spirit Domain, the Spirit Dimension. What you are actually saying is that their consciousness has re-expanded beyond the focus of the densification of physical reality, and in expanding back out into that level called Spirit it has much more, shall we say—freedom. Not so much is it bounded by the concepts of space and time, and, as a higher perspective it can, in a sense, see beyond the compartmentalization and the fragmentation, at least generally speaking, that are what accompany physical reality—that are the definitions of physical reality. Now, when you interact as a physical being with spirit, when your Spirit Guides sometimes have direct interaction with you, sometimes you can literally feel them. Not only the idea of emotionally, mentally but sometimes even physiologically. And, what is happening when this occurs, more often that not, is that they may be matching their frequency in Spirit. In electromagnetheric terms, that is, electromagnetic and etheric which is almost synonymous in those terms, they may be matching their frequency to the electromagnetheric body you also have to the Spirit Body.

You also have Spirit vibration that is a part of the frequency of your collective aura, your energy field, which is actually a compilation of many frequencies. But what they are doing at that moment is matching the frequency of your etheric body, your Spirit body and in matching the frequency and vibrating in harmony with it, then making slight adjustments. You can actually receive a physiological sensation of being touched, of being communicated with. A resonate identification is formed, a connective linked is formed in that the matching of frequencies and communications in one form or another can commence. Now again remember, Spirit Guides do their job best when they teach you how to be your own guide. A Spirit Guide is never suppose to do for you but they will be of assistance. And... they themselves have their own agenda of growth and learning while they are assisting you. All of you have Guides. All of you have Spirit Friends, in that sense. It is quite normal. And when you arrive on that plane, just to put this pragmatically, you are allowed to choose whether or not you wish to form such a relationship to act and function as a Spirit Guide—if you deem that it has benefit for your own growth as well as the growth that you may assist the physical being in also achieving. But, this is up to you. In that sense, you are not forced to do this.

But in so knowing that you have these Guides and that they are more often than not giving you some kind of information, some kind of per–pective, some kind of guidance. Allow yourself to remember that the link, the bridge between the physical and the non-physical really does take place within that dimension of your imagination. And in allowing your imagination, as we have said many times, to be your best Guide—you will thus then allow your Guilds to speak more easily to you through your imagination.

The idea of course is to always allow yourself to know what frequency, what idea, what reality suits you best. That is really mostly what the Guides and Spirits would want you to know, for you to discover who you are—what it is that you prefer in life—what it is you prefer your life to be. These are really as you would say the bottom line to anything that a Spirit Guide would be helping you with. And in your own spirituality, simply again, remember that there is nothing non spiritual about physical reality. Your physical body, in a sense, is a physical interpretation of your Spirit, a solidification of the idea of your Spirit Consciousness. You are having a spiritual experience by living your physical life to the fullest. Do not make a separation there. Do not create a segregation and an obstacle between the concept of physical reality and spirit reality. Do not think that spirit reality, is really any better than physical reality. They are simply different versions of consciousness experiencing itself.

And in fact, the advantage to physical reality, as we have mentioned, is that because you invent and create a world of time and space, in which things take place and in which things take time, you actually, in a sense, slow down the mechanism of instantaneous creation so that you can actually see creation happening and appreciate that creation happens. Whereas in many of the Higher Spiritual Realms the second you think a thing it is your reality instantaneously.

This to many of you sometimes would seem preferable, and you are accelerating in your physical experience toward the time when you can more instantaneously manifest your thoughts, your desires, your preferences but the idea is to not lose sight of the idea that physical reality is as spiritual as an experience, as anything as not physical reality, and that the reason, the reason you chose, for you did, to be physical—one of the reasons, not the only, but one of, the reasons, was to fully appreciate the mechanism of creation itself. To slow it down enough to see it, to experience it, and really understand that you are the artists of your life the painter, the writer, the song singer of your life. That you can see it manifest in all of its parameters, in all of the steps, and all of the glorious details, in all of the minute aspects and learn to appreciate the depth, richness, diversity and complexity that physical reality represents in terms of what your consciousness, the infinite potential, your Consciousness and your Spirit contain. That is what physical reality can be used for, if you are willing, to use it that way. We thank you for allowing us to remind you of this perspective of Spirit and its relation to physical reality. And in return for the gift that you are giving our world I ask you now in what way may I and my people be of service to you?

You, and then you, number two do you know who you are?

Q: Yes.

B: All right, number one good day.

Q: Good day Bashar, there has been in the media a channel by the name of Lyssa Royal, who channels an entity called Sasha near Laughlin Nevada and actually has been able to draw in or somehow through an interdimensional gateway or something cause a physical manifestation of several craft.

B: From time to time, yes.

Q: And they do this apparently by telepathic communication.

B: Yes.

Q: Is there any way that we could do this as a group?

B: Yes, of course go out and do it and see what you get. It will not always be as you expect but we do guarantee that if you persist you will at some point receive a response and a reply that will be obvious and evident. But it takes commitment and conviction for that is, in a sense, one of the things that is being observed. Do you have the conviction, and the commitment, and the true desire for such communication? You follow?

Q: Yes. Was there any particular thing that made it more conducive to the area of Laughlin, Nevada?

B: Sometimes there are certain areas on your planet that are highly magnetic and shall we say have an affinity to certain dimensional doorways and gateways and in some senses, do form a little bit easier a link or a bridge between different realities. Many of your desert areas are like that for they are highly magnetized which is one of the reasons why the kind of environment that it is, is the way it is.

Q: Would the magnetic vortex near Malibu be very conducive to that?

B: It can from time to time, but remember this, at this timing on your planet with regard to what some individuals do prefer and what some individuals don’t, one of the other reasons that the deserts are conducive is because they are barren. Thus, then any such encounter can take place in private, instead of forcing itself upon the populace—which is unacceptable and inappropriate. So, while it is possible for such an encounter to occur in the area that you have named what you call Malibu, you will find that it might be more likely, at this time, to occur in a remote region. Since, it will not then impose itself on anyone who did not intentionally choose to be there.

Q: That being the case can you shed any light on the large number of sightings which are occurring near the Hudson Valley which is right outside of New York city. There are some ancient stone structures, not terribly ancient, which are producing magnetic fields and there tends to be a lot of sightings in that area.
B: Yes again, many of what you call your sacred sites and your ancient megalithic structures are built in areas that are natural gateways, natural dimensional warps, vortices and doorways. Thus, it is no coincidence that you will see much, shall we say, traffic in certain areas, yes.

Q: Okay.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Can you, is it permitted for you to tell us what race it was that visited Laughlin?
B: Let us just say that we are allowed to let you know that it was an affiliation to the Association of Worlds.

Q: Okay, so in other words, to the Galactic Federation?
B: If you wish to call it that, yes. So there were, in a sense, many different species within the craft all of which belong to the Association or the Federation if you wish to call it that.
Q: Is your ship currently shifted in Earth orbit now, or...?
B: It is approximately where you would call, 3000 miles above the area you know as Cairo, yes.
Q: Okay, and what is it that you’re observing or interacting with at this time?
B: My craft and three other craft from my civilization are forming a tetrahedral structure around your planet to aid and assist along with your collective consciousness in the rebalancing, and the focusing, and the flowing of certain energies at this time for certain shifts that are occurring on your planet now.
Q: Do you have any information on if the caverns of the Sphinx or the pyramids are going to be open to the public.
B: They will be most likely between your present time and your year that you call 2005.
Q: But, nothing more specific than that?
B: That is in flux. It is your reality and it is up to the collective consciousness to decide when it will not be in fear about opening that chamber that it has discovered and finding what is contained within. We cannot push your civilization to come to a more specific date. The date can’t come from us it has to come from you and your civilization is still in enough flux and indecision about opening that chamber—that no specific date has yet been crystallized within the collective consciousness of your world. Therefore that window of time is the best that we can scan from your collective consciousness at this moment. It is, therefore, most likely to occur within that window, from now, to what you call 2005. In the next several months this window might become more specific depending on actions of different individuals and if such is the case we will let you know.
Q: And you had said last time that there were some things that were going to be increasing in activity over the next few months and that this is why you shifted?
B: This is one of the things that we are aiding and assisting your collective consciousness in the balancing of the flow of, yes.
Q: Can you give us?
B: No! No! No!!
Q: Thank you, Bashar.
B: Thank you.
Spiritual and Physical Creation

Q: Could you explain why the Buddhists that have attained Nirvana always say that God is formless, that he can manifest as a man but that, generally speaking, the absolute has no form, just pure white light – whereas Jesus says in the Bible that he was created in thought, in the image, of God?

B: Very good! But understand that what is meant in that way is that, quote/unquote, man and woman is created in the image of God, not vice versa.

Q: So, they are speaking of Spirit.

B: Yes! Which is formless. Understand also, as a terminology, as a literature, what you term to be your Bible has been changed many times to the form that you now recognize it. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: You may also, if you wish, recognize that many individuals, in that way, also, simply do not even interpret what is there. You have in your civilization, at this time, the idea you call a quandary over what is termed to be the equality of the sexes. Many individuals who feel that they may in that way move their responsibility from themselves to the idea of the literature you call the Bible, use that as a foundation to, quote/unquote, prove the inequality.

But understand, if you wish to refer to even the literature that is there, male and female were created, spiritually, simultaneously. The separation occurred in your literature, and this is only a reference to your literature when, quote/unquote, man became physical first. Realize that woman remained spiritual longer. Understand that this will be found in the first, even two pages, of your literature you call the Bible. It will be in separate paragraphs, the first paragraph stating that male and female were created. Then in another later paragraph stating that man, male, then became a living, breathing, physical soul; female became physical later.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Q: Is it possible that our perceptions of our alien encounters, even though they may seem benign, are manipulated physically, as well as sexually, and couldn’t we be manipulated spiritually as well?

B: Some of them, yes—although it does not take spiritual manipulation. It is not that you can be manipulated spiritually, but you can, in a sense, consciously, to some degree, at least as far as your physically consciousness is concerned, and emotionally, yes, you can in that sense, be manipulated. There are factions of unevolved beings, even though they may be technologically advanced from your civilization, that can have agendas that will from time to time do this and make it seem like a memory of a pleasant experience, when it wasn’t. In that sense, yes, there are those, but again nevertheless, the idea of your particular vibrational frequency domain will ultimately determine what level or layer of other consciousness you are actually dealing with.

Q: Okay, well like I say, it just makes me a little nervous because like, when, Alpha Deyo....

B: It does not make you nervous, you choose to buy into fear.

Q: What is your motivation for doing so?

B: NO, I’m just trying to figure it out.

Q: What is your motivation for doing so?

B: I’m just questioning.

Q: What is your motivation for being nervous? For buying into fear? What’s your motivation?

B: What is your motivation for being nervous? For buying into fear? What’s your motivation?

Q: Well I don’t know that I am necessarily really in fear, but I’m really curious....

B: Then where does your nervousness come from?

Q: Ummm, not knowing.

B: Not knowing what?

Q: For sure, what the certain agendas are?

B: So this brings us back to what we have discussed before, is that, its, your definition of the unknown— that it is more likely to contain negative than positive.
Q: Absolutely.
B: Well that’s called FEAR!
PS: Okay.
B: Make a friend of the unknown and all you will extract from the unknown will be that which effects YOU positively, no matter how it effects anyone else–and that is the only issue here!

Q: Hello, Mr. Ambassador.
B: And to you, Mr. Ambassador.
Q: Hello, this is my first time...(laughter) because this is the cameraman who’s been talking to the channel for years.
B: Me too! What a coincidence!!
Q: Amazing isn’t it? In the last couple weeks I’ve become addicted to Star Trek.
B: Become?
Q: Yes, I have become addicted to Star Trek. I started out popping one episode a night. Then I advanced to snorting a couple episodes a day. Got to where I was mainlining Star Trek all day long.
B: All right.
Q: In a conversation with a close friend, I recognized that what I was actually doing was tuning myself to a particular vibration, in the process of watching these – actually both movies and the TV episodes. And I’m wondering if you’d be willing to help me understand more about what that vibration represents.
B: Simply, as we have already discussed – if you remember our talk on the harmonic wave…
Q: Yes, I do remember that well.
B: All right. That particular art form in your society represents your culture’s method of expressing your culture’s relationship to other cultures. And in that sense, therefore, you are aligning literally with the idea of the feasibility of intermingling your culture and our cultures together in a very natural way. In other words, that is, as you say, par for the course, a very natural life style, to be intermingling in that way. That is what your program represents.
Q: Well, I know that.
B: Yes.
Q: But I feel that there’s something more personal to me in this…
B: Oh, yes, yes, yes. We have discussed that, to some degree before, with the idea of other attachments you have – other what you may call, incarnations. And, in a sense, what you also may be capable of doing in this present life incarnation upon your planet, with regard to assisting of the creation of that technology.
Q: Yah.
B: What area in the ship do you reside in most comfortably?
Q: Very interesting question.
B: Thank you.
Q: Let’s take a look.
B: All right.
Q: Huh! It’s not in a particular portion so much as characters.
B: All right. What identification are you creating? For each will represent a specific vibration. And even combinations of what you call those characters will represent a specific vibration.
Q: Well, it seems pretty obvious, but what I’m really attracted to, of course, are both Captain Kirk and Spock. But everybody is attracted to that, so that’s no big deal.
B: Not everyone.
B: However?
Q: They are a main focus of the program.
B: Very good. And they represent the idea of the polarity between instinct and analysis.
Q: Well, I see Kirk as more the blend; and Spock is the polarity of the analysis. And McCoy, of course, is the polarity of emotion.
B: Very good. All right. So you are seeing yourself as the blend.
Q: Yes. But I knew that too. I just feel that there’s something more here. And maybe it’s not for us to discuss this; maybe you can’t share it. But I just felt that there was an attunement even beyond this, beyond the fact that may be involved in the technology at some point.
B: One moment. One moment.
Q: Thank you.
B: Ah! Thank you! The idea, as we perceive it, is that you have a direct incarnation in what you might term the first civilization, not counting the ones that we represent, that you already know about and will meet, but the first civilization your planet will go to and react and interact with, in much the same way as we interact with you.
Q: Ah!
B: Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: You have an incarnation there that, in that sense, is waiting for the same type – though not necessarily consciously – of contact that is represented by ambassadorial contact from planet to planet.
Q: Okay. Let me see if I understand it: incarnation on this planet that will be involved in that? Or . . .
B: Yes. In other words, an aspect of your oversoul is an individual on a planet that will be among the first to be contacted by your planet, when you develop into the idea that you are going to go and meet yourself.
Q: Yes. I’ll be the alien, in other words.
B: And you will be an alien to another aspect of your soul.
Q: Oh, that’s far out! Now, that hits the spot that I was looking for. Will I, in my present physical form, be alive? And will I, in fact, be meeting this person in the physical sense?
B: Possible. I cannot say, probable. That has not yet been completely decided.

Q: Okay. I have this sense that this body is going to be around for a long time, in comparison to our normal life span.

B: Possible, yes.

Q: I don’t invite people to judge that: “Oh, yeah. He thinks he’s going to be around.” But I do feel that I have been sensing that for a while now.

B: As we have said: many of you will be, in your terms, physiologically alive 300 of your years hence. That is how much you will be changing in the next 30 of your years.

Q: Yes. I was figuring on at least 200.

B: Well, all I shall say, then, is live long and prosper. In that light, you may all enjoy a short break, and we will resume contact in approximately 10 to 15 of your minutes.

Star Trek
Stars and Black Holes in the Milky Way Galaxy

Q: How many stars and black holes are there in our universe?
B: Good heavens, we do not know.
Q: In the Milky Way?
B: In what you call the Milky Way galaxy there are approximately, you must understand there are new stars forming, old stars dying all the time, as an average there are approximately one-hundred fifty billion stars in your Milky Way galaxy. There are approximately thirty seven billion black hole phenomenons at this time in your Milky Way galaxy.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Stars

Q: Would you care to share with us some information in regards to the energy from our sun?

B: The energy from your sun, your central star. There are many levels upon which that energy comes to you, many of which you are not yet as a civilization aware of. The idea, first and foremost of course, above and beyond what you call the electromagnetic energy that you perceive quite readily, is that there are different forms of light that your instruments have no way of perceiving.

These different forms of light are representative of the fact that that star – as most stars do – exists multi-dimensionally. It is not exactly the same thing in other dimensions as you perceive it to be. It is, in a sense, a gate and a doorway. And it is also – as many stars are – a physicalized representation, or an aspect, a facet of a consciousness that is unto itself a whole other dimension, a whole other universe. Your thoughts from time to time also interface with other dimensions and other universes, and are seen from time to time as the same type of natural phenomena: as sparks of life, as stars to other beings and other dimensions.

So what you call stars are also aspects of other levels of consciousness that encompass whole universal realities. They are also gateways, in many senses, to these other dimensions. They are funnels through which energy comes and transfers from one dimensional reality to another.

It is also a focal point of consciousness, as you say, around which your particular immediate neighborhood reality orbits, but not just physiologically. The characteristics of any particular star will also determine the type of consciousness that will express itself within any particular system.

For there are many different types of radiation or vibratory harmonics that will determine the density and livability, inhabitabilities of different planetary systems, and determine in what way consciousness can express itself as a physiological living form. You follow me?

Q: Mmhmm. Are there beings as we know it on the sun?

B: Not in your dimension, but in others, yes. But they are not physical as you understand them at all. Again: they are aspects of consciousness within an overall aspect of a consciousness, even as you and I are God-thoughts, part of a God-dream. And yet we have our own validity as well. The beings that exist, so to speak, in the sun – and this is a very colloquial phase – are also aspects of a greater consciousness. And they have their own validity and their own self-awareness. They do not exist in your physiological dimension at all; they are not life, as you would say, as you know it.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Thank you very much.
STAYING WITHIN

Q: I had spoken to you about, quote unquote “moving toward my joy”.

B: Yes.

Q: You corrected me, in a sense, that this is not something you obviously do not have to move toward.

B: Yes, it is something that you are, something that you be, become—yes. Not really moving toward, for that puts it out there—in the outside. You are all the joy you need to be. You contain, everyone of you, as a complete kit, all of the ideas, and all the opportunities and all the synchronicities that will then be reflected to the degree of joy you allow yourself to know you are—so joy is not something that you have to move toward, but we understand the context in which most of the humans on your planet mean that phrase, but sometimes those phrases can be misleading and that is why we simply offer alternative phrasing.

Q: Okay, What I have found recently is that wanting to make some structural changes from my day and my life.

B: Yes.

Q: I find that I am preventing myself by becoming ill constantly.

B: Yes, many of you will use this technique.

Q: This is what is happening, obviously there is nothing wrong physically, I’m just using this as sabotaging myself from moving, essentially.

B: As a scare tactic, yes. You are maintaining the inertia of you status quo in that you contain still, to some degree, more than not, a belief that the unknown will contain things too unsettling for you to face instead of you knowing—the unknown contains only more joy. That is why you keep the idea of sabotage up, because you can’t quite bring yourself to believe, can’t quite bring yourself to believe that you will actually discover more joy in discovering more of your power and yourself. With the idea of discovering that with most of you, as most of you have been ingrained, comes more responsibility in the negative context that most of you have been taught to think of that term. So many times you will give yourself – sick leave, oops, I can’t do it I’m sick, can’t handle it now I have a reason not to take it on—I’m too sick, I’m too sick, can’t handle it, I have an excuse, I have a reason, it’s okay now, it’s okay I don’t have to do it because now everyone says oh that’s all right she is too sick, she can’t do it, all right we understand.

Q: That’s exactly what’s been happening.

B: Yes, I know. But it is a fun game isn’t it?

Q: No

B: Well all right if you say so.

Q: No.

B: Then I suppose you will stop playing soon?

Q: Yea.

B: Oh All right, it is up to you.
Bashar:

From: “Beginning the End”

Stepping on Earth

Questioner: Just wanted to see if you could tell us what is going on, as far as your physical location and....

Bashar: Do you mean in my ship, above your Cairo area?
Q: Yes.

B: In terms of the actual altitude and such.
Q: Yes, and any changes that have been going on recently.
B: Yes. Right now, it is approximately fluctuating between about twenty-six and twenty-seven hundred miles.
Q: Okay, so it’s up a little bit.
B: A little bit, there were some things that occurred recently that you would call nuclear explosions.
Q: Okay.
B: Well that’s bound to do something. (Audience laughs) It is bound to make us back off a bit.
Q: But the radiation wouldn’t actually affect you.
B: You know it has nothing to do with the radiation; you know it has to do with the emotional energy of your planet. That’s what we are the barometer of, in terms of how high or how low our ship happens to be, how close or how far it happens to be to your world. So, we needed to back off a bit.
Q: Exactly, okay, and are we still looking at between 2005 and 2013 before we actually have physical contact?
B: Yes. There will be revelation of information before that, but in terms of what would be recognized OFFICIALLY as physical contact with other species, that window still stands as the most likely window, the most likely probability. There are always the possibilities of exceptions but, as we read it right now, it still stands that way. Though there may be, in the relatively near future, an upcoming revelation of information that may change that window of probability. But that remains to be seen as to when this information is delivered, if it is delivered. Then we will know whether or not that window has changed.
Q: Do you know what type of revelation that might be, specifically?
B: Information having to do the existence of, what you call, extraterrestrials.
Q: Are you referring to something specific like, for example, the Face on Mars or anything?
B: Yes, that is connected. What we are referring to is the idea that there is being discussed now the possibility of an announcement within, what you call, one solar year.

Q: An announcement by our government?
B: Yes.
Q: Being the U. S. government?
B: Yes.

Q: Is there anything going on with the uncovering from the cavity underneath the left paw of the Sphinx and when that information will become available?
B: Not at this time. Though it will all, in a sense, be connected because the revelation of certain information will make it apparent that your society is ready for the revelation of other information. There has recently been more energy in the direction of revelation of information regarding the secret chambers, the hidden chambers under your Sphinx, under your pyramid because there is now beginning to be more cooperation between people’s various hypotheses in, what you call, geological and Egyptological studies. They are beginning to work together, not be a such odds, and that is a sign that time may be speeding up to reveal the information of what is in the chambers.

Q: Have they already uncovered it or are they....
B: No, no.

Q: Okay, thank you very much, oh, one other question.
B: Yes.

Q: When you stop when Darryl physically stops channeling.
B: Yes.

Q: Will there be any other future communication, other than that possible through Darryl, in the future of Bashar to our planet?
B: ONLY when I decide to set foot on our planet, there will be no other channel, no other medium.

Q: And will that be between 2005 and 2013, the way you read it now?
B: That is still the highest likelihood, yes.

Q: And when you do set foot on the planet will you identify yourself as an individual, as Bashar?
B: Yes.

Q: Okay, thank you.
B: Thank you. Number two.
Subjectivity

B: All right, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

B: Allow us to begin this evening of your time with the subject of “subjectivity.” Remember – do remember, each and every one of you – that every experience, of course, obviously in life must be, by definition, a subjective experience. You can have an objectified attitude – an objective approach, a balanced, allowing approach – to allow for information to be weighed and balanced against other information – to determine the ideas in life you prefer. But remember: there is truly no absolute objective experience by definition. And experience must be subjective.

Everything in life that you are aware of is a subjective experience; there is no true outside in that sense. Nothing is truly detached from you. If there were a truly objective idea that existed, you would never be able to experience it anyway. If you could, the second you did experience it, it would become obviously subjective.

Recognize you are constantly – based upon the attitudes, the beliefs, the ideas, the notions you have been taught in life – constantly, in a sense, filtering all of your experiences, conforming them to the idea structures you have been taught to believe in. So everything that you perceive is not a perception of something distinctly separate from you. The perception, in and of itself, is the thing you are perceiving. The perception is the object, and there is, in that sense, no object that exists outside of the perception. The perception is the reality; the object is a perception. Your imagination is real; reality is the product of what you imagine it to be.

Many individuals, when they hear these ideas, that the object isn’t, quote/unquote, real, that it is an illusion, think that just because it is created by your perception, that means it is not real. But it is. And many individuals who hear that an object is created by your perception think that nothing exists other than the perception itself, and that that is not a real thing. But it is.

Understand what it means to be made in the image of the Infinite Creator. The things you choose to perceive are the creations of those things. Because you are made of God-thought. Therefore, when you think, when you perceive, when you imagine, you are in the act of creating that idea; that is God creation. It is an aspect, an extension of God-thought, and God-thought is our reality. It is what is to us, all of us, all beings within creation, the solid physical universe. It is, in your terminology, God-thought.
Suicide

Q: Several weeks ago we spoke about my son that committed suicide... what you shared has been extremely helpful. One of the ideas mentioned is that I had a conversation with my son at night in the dream state. And I’ve tried to meditate and get in touch with him.

B: No trying. If you are trying, the only thing you are doing is trying. Remove the importance of needing the communication, then you will not create a barrier that prevents the communication; you allow the communication through.

Do recognize that when you try so hard, you tighten your focus about what you think represents communication, and you narrow down the number of symbols you will accept as communication. You have been receiving communication all the time but are invalidating the ways it comes to you, because you want it in a specific way or you won’t accept it as real.

Relax, expand and open to ALL the different ways messages and communication come to you. For do recognize this: the individual that committed suicide is now in a totally different vibratory plane and there are many things that they need to do. The idea of their association to physiological reality is not the same as it used to be, and they are not expected to communicate on the same level with it any longer.

Therefore, recognize that the communication that comes from them to you, comes in a very different way now; not with the same degree of focus. It can’t, by definition. Where they are now is more diffused and so the communication will appear, perhaps, in different ways, in more expanded ways, sometimes subtle, sometimes obvious. But in ways that are a little more expanded than the ways you normally expect to receive the idea you call communication.

So soften up; spread out. Flow into all of the different ways that communication can be received and then you will touch those ways. And in touching those ways you will feel the vibration of the communication that is in those crevices; you will now flow into them in your relaxed state. The idea is to meet them halfway. And what that means is diffusing yourself in an expanded manner, rather than forcing them to focus themselves all the way back into physical reality. Meet them halfway – with your unconditional love.

Now, do recognize that when we say, "the communication may occur in unexpected ways," that also has to do with time and duration. For they now operate in a totally different idea of time-track concepts. What may be to you a flicker of a feeling may have been a very lengthy conversation for them. But the feeling, the knowing, just the awareness of presence may be a total communication, which may come out, in your terminology, may "leap into your physiological reality" at a different rate: later. Maybe in your dreams, maybe in the symbols you see appearing in your lives, maybe a passage in one of your books, maybe a line you hear someone say. Who knows? ALL is synchronicity and it is all there for a reason. There are no accidents. Everything is the same One thing, manifesting Itself in multidimensional ways, manifesting different aspects, simultaneously. Tap into that and then you will find there is communication going on everywhere all the time.

Q: My husband passed away a year ago. About six months later I had a dream that he returned and that we were hugging each other... it was very, very real. I looked at him and I said, "Are you really here?" And he said, "Yes, I’m really here." I wondered if you’d give me an idea if he really was in the dream?

B: Oh, yes, yes. Six months was the time span he required for orientation to the new reality level. After that adjustment period the timing was correct for him to let you know that everything is fine and that he’s quite busy learning about his new reality level. And, to let you know that, from time to time, he can check in, in a sense, giving you some advice, some suggestions, as a guide from his new perspective. But yes, it was, in that sense, a real encounter; letting you know he is all right and to let you know that you can both send and receive information between you.

Yes, you are never out of touch. What you call physical death truly, truly is only like stepping from one room to another room in the same house, really no more difference than that. Just operating in a different modality.

Very often it is easier in physical reality for you to communicate with beings in non-physical reality through your dreams, because all your expectations are dropped in the dream state. In a sense, you are actually more of your "true self" in dreams, where you are an unlimited being, and therefore, are more easily capable of receiving communications from other beings on that level. Yes, of course it was real.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Oh, thank you. I had nothing to do with it.

Q: Thanks anyway.
Sun Beings

Q: Would you care to share with us some information in regards to the energy from our sun?
B: The energy from your sun, your central star; there are many levels upon which that energy comes to you, many of which you are not yet, as a civilization, aware of. The idea, first and foremost, of course, above and beyond, what you call, the electromagnetic energy that you perceive quite readily is that there are different forms of light that your instruments have no way of perceiving.

These different forms of light are representative of the fact that that star, as most stars do, exists multi-dimensionally; it is not exactly the same thing in other dimensions as you perceive it to be. It is, in a sense, a gate and a doorway. And it is also – as many stars are – a physicalized representation, or an aspect, a facet of a consciousness that is unto itself a whole other dimension, a whole other universe.

Your thoughts, from time to time, also interface with other dimensions and other universes, and are seen from time to time as the same type of natural phenomena: as sparks of life, as stars to other beings and other dimensions.

So what you call stars are also aspects of other levels of consciousness that encompass whole universal realities. They are also gateways, in many senses, to these other dimensions; they are funnels through which energy comes and transfers from one dimensional reality to another.

It is also a focal point of consciousness, as you say, around which your particular immediate neighborhood reality orbits, but not just physiologically. The characteristics of any particular star will also determine the type of consciousness that will express itself within any particular system. For there are many different types of radiation or vibratory harmonics that will determine the density and livability, inhabitabilities of different planetary systems, and determine in what way consciousness can express itself as a physiological living form. You follow me?

Q: Mmhmm. Are there beings, as we know it, on the sun?
B: Not in your dimension, but in others, yes, but they are not physical as you understand them at all. Again, they are aspects of consciousness within an overall aspect of a consciousness, even as you and I are God-thoughts, part of a God-dream. And yet we have our own validity as well. The beings that exist, so to speak, in the sun – and this is a very colloquial phase – are also aspects of a greater consciousness. And they have their own validity and their own self-awareness. They do not exist in your physiological dimension at all; they are not life, as you would say, as you know it.

Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you!

B: Sharing!
Q: You said something about God before; and I’m curious if you and your people are familiar with Christianity?
B: To some degree.
Q: ...and what do you think about the idea that Jesus Christ is our savior?
B: We perceive that the idea has been, to some degree, misunderstood. In the usual vernacular of your word "savior" this is not, in our perception, what the individual you call Christ actually meant to call himself.

The idea Simply, from our point of view–if we may begin at what you call the beginning–is that you call the Christ consciousness is the collective, the combined consciousness–the positive side, the combined consciousness– of your entire civilization. Once again aware of itself as a singular consciousness, but also aware of itself as the combination of all your collective consciousnesses.

The idea of the manifestation in physical terms of what you call the Christ actually happened far more often than once. And the idea simply is that in every endeavor, in every Projection of the Christ as a physical expression, the idea that was being of shared with Your population was that you are also all Part of the Christ. Not that, in that sense, the idea of the Christ is your savior in the sense that you have no power to create the reality you desire, and that only It does. But simply that your power to create that reality is a part of what it is.

The idea simply is: at the time that the information was delivered in your society, the concepts that were understood by your civilization then could only translate the idea in terms of being a ruler and being ruled. And so you created the idea that the Christ was a savior that would do everything for you rather than understanding that all the Christ is is a reflection, a reflection to each and every one of you that you are aspects of the Christ and have an absolute right to create the elevation and ascension of your own energy as a representation of that energy.

Now: each and every world, each and every civilization, has its own version of what you call the Christ consciousness. In our ancient remnant language, which we no longer use, the combined consciousness of our entire world was called Shakana. Our Shakana, your Christ consciousness, and the combined consciousness of all other worlds together, will form what you call the Infinite Creation.

So in a sense, you could say the Christ consciousness is a, shall I say, miniature version of All That Is. And in that sense that’s why your society has translated it out to "Son of God"–because it is, in a sense, miniature version of the Infinite.

Q: Do you think that’s why maybe we are so limited?
Because we put everything–or Christianity puts trust in Jesus Christ, and not in themselves?
B: The idea simply is, is that any time you take the power that you are and remove it from yourself, you place a limitation that actually denies your very existence–what you have been created to be. So yes, in that sense. The definitions are what is responsible for Creating the limitations.

Now the idea, to some degree, of what has been described as many of the attributes and experiences are all valid; it is all valid. Any tool, in that sense, is a Valid tool if it gets you where you want to go.

But the idea is that your society, as we perceive it–and again not meant derogatorily–has placed many labels, many definitions, which in and of themselves are really the only thing responsible for limiting your ability to see that you are all the Christ. And that is what it is all about.

By the way: one of the manifestations–the physical manifestations–of the direct Christ consciousness that many of you have not recognized is what you call also your being called Mary, you mother of Jesus, as the female polarity of the Christ. There is always male and female in the collective Christ consciousness.

And from our perspective of what this basically means, in relating it to what you now call your New Age or your transformational age, is that the so-called "second coming" is not any longer the manifestation of the Christ consciousness in a single embodiment. It is the awakening of the Christ consciousness in all of you–so that you are literally creating heaven on earth.

That is our perception of the so-called second coming. Is this making sense in your language?

Q: Yes.

B: Does that answer the question sufficiently for you?

Q: Yes.

B: Well, thank you very much! Sharing!
B: All right, I’ll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all?

Audience: Great, Perfect, Good!

B: Let us begin, once again, by thanking you for co-creating this transmission and allowing our civilization to experience you in this way. Recently, during our last transmission through this window to you, we began to speak about the idea of surrender. This is one of the most important concepts that we can share with all of you. It is the concept that will, in a sense, sum up all the other tools and techniques we have discussed with you, put them to best use by bringing them all under the umbrella of the concept of surrender. So we will continue with this idea, so that there will be enough opportunities for each and every one of you to understand how to apply, how to use this idea in your lives to your benefit, to create, to allow profound change in a direction that is reflective of the infinite possibilities that you are. So, you must first of all remember that when we talk about the idea of surrender, we are not talking about the idea of invalidating who you are, rather just the opposite. We are talking about total validation of who you are, what you are, what you were created to be.

Surrender, in your language, in the sense that most people on your planet usually use it, means that in some senses the kind of giving up that you do goes hand in hand with losing something of yourself, giving away something, giving your power over; this is not what we mean by surrender in this context. What we mean here is the stopping, the cessation of trying to be who you think you need to be and the beginning of simply allowing yourself to be who you are, to surrender the personality game, to give up the personality game that you have been taught for many years to think that you were supposed to play. And in letting that go, in giving it up, in surrendering it, then actually allowing yourself to be what you were created to be, which is in the image of the Infinite. Which means you are created to be unlimited possibilities and, thus, then when you surrender the limiting personality mask that prevents you from seeing that you are Infinite being, that you are unlimited possibilities. When you give that up, you are then allowing the universe, which is a mirror, to reflect, not just the limited personality that you think you are supposed to be, but instead to reflect the unlimited possibilities that you actually are and to allow your life, as we said before, to become an infinite series of miraculous circumstances because that is what you are, miracles of Creation.

And as we said, remember, you are Creation itself, you are the act of creation, you are the event of creation itself. So to surrender to life, to surrender to Creation, to surrender to the Infinite, no matter by what name you wish to call it, it doesn’t matter, by so doing, you are surrendering to your true nature and allowing your reality automatically to show you the miracle of creation that you are. And, thus, then, your reality in physical linear terms can represent the miracle that you are by a continuous series of synchronicities that always support you, that benefit you, allow you to experience expanded creativity and abundance.
Remember, please, that this is physics not just a nice idea, not just pretty words. When we talk about the idea of surrendering, we are talking about one of the most profound acts of love, self-love, creation that you can do. And in so, finally, just letting go, just stopping all the trying, all the struggling, all the striving of what you think you are supposed to do, in order to quote/unquote, "Have what you think you are supposed to have." When you give all that up, when you finally just get so tired of trying to be who you think you are supposed to be and give up because you just get so tired of trying to push this that way, pull this this way, and make things fit, and make thing things fall into place, and make things work, when you finally get so tired of doing all that pushing and pulling, when you finally give it all up and let go, then, then the miracles happen, then you can experience life for what it is, unlimited possibilities. So, remember when you surrender your personality, when you let go and you give it up, you are surrendering to life, you are surrendering to the Infinite, you are surrendering to your true self. You are not losing anything, you are nor giving your power away. You are once and for all, finally, allowing yourself to actually be who you are, your natural self, your true self.

We will continue to work with each and every one of you in this manner and on this principle because this really is, in a sense, the most important, the most fundamental principle of all the things that we have ever discussed. And every other thing, every other tool, every other technique, every other idea we have ever discussed with each and every one of you will all fall under this notion of surrender. For if you do not allow yourself to be who you are then, really, anything else that we have discussed will not really be fully allowed to function for you, to work for you, in the biggest most expansive way that it possibly could. You might see little successes here and there, little glimpses here and there, but without the surrender you’re really, again, working in pieces through the personality which is limiting and this is not what each and every one of you have said you want life to be.

So let us begin, day by day, step by step, to just let go, to trust, to not care so much, worry so much and, again, we do not mean 'care’ in the sense of no longer do you care for people; we do not mean it that way. But to stop caring and worrying so much about the things you think you are supposed to do and the way you think you are supposed to do them. But just let life show you who you are, and let life show you how you can unfold in miraculous ways.

We thank you, once again, for allowing us, in this transmission, to remind you of the importance and the power of surrender and letting go. And in return for the gift, once again, that you are giving to us in allowing us to experience you in this exchange, I ask in return, what way may I now be of service to you?

Audience: Bashar! Bashar! Bashar!

B: All right, I'll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all?
Audience: Great! Perfect! Incredible!

B: Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing this transmission to occur, through this particular method, on this day and in this way. Once again, each and every time you allow our civilization to communicate with your world in this manner, it strengthens the bridge and the link between our respective worlds and allows there to be the creation of a third reality that is the combination of both realities in which we can co-exist and communicate and share and create.
And so, we thank you for this opportunity.

We would like to begin this transmission, this link, in the following way. We have recently been talking about the idea, the notion which we consider to be very important for the manifestation of your reality in a joyful way, the notion of surrender. Many of you have used this word, in your language, many times, and by surrender, of course, we do not mean that you are giving up, in any way shape or form, your validity. But the idea of surrender is really the opening up, in total vulnerability, to the understanding that you are created, to use your own words, in the image of the Infinite. And in that you were created as a reflection of unlimited possibilities then to surrender your limited personality structure, to let go of your worries, your thoughts, your ideas of what you think you should be and to simply become that which you are, that which you were created to be, will allow physical reality to reflect back to you, because it is a mirror, the unlimited possibilities that you are. Since you were made in the image of the Infinite, which is, of course, another way of saying unlimited possibilities. We have been talking about many forms and ideas of surrender, and this day of your time, we would like to talk about the idea of surrendering to peace.

Excerpted from monologue and Directed to Jill.

B: Now, having said this, before we continue with the idea of our regular form of interaction and sharing, we would like to deliver some information of benefit to one of your number, one of your members, who has created for themselves, what you would call, as ever, even injury and thus, we will know that this information, on your tape, will be delivered to this individual so that they can ponder and absorb this information and see if it can be of benefit to them in their healing.
And so, this individual for whom this information is created and at whom this information is directed, can begin to understand these following concepts, and to ponder them in her own good time. Number one, this person can recognize and realize that the injury brought up anger, frustration, self-recrimination, judgment and, the fact that it did so, not that we are invalidating it, not that we are judging even her judgment, but the fact that it did so, will let the individual know that these energies still exist within her personality make up. That she may not really have let go of as much as she thought. For then, when put to the test by herself, when put under stress by herself, when bringing herself into this stressful health situation, she then automatically and instantaneously saw, and spontaneously saw, the expression of self-judgment, anger, doubt, frustration, fear, guilt, and recognized how much she still contained. How much she still held on to these things.

However, on the other side, this is all right because, if that is what the person feels, then this is the honest thing to do, is to feel them. For we would not have you deny your feeling, this would be more damaging to you.

And so our recommendation, first and foremost, is do not hold back your tears. If you feel like crying over this, we recommend that you do. And that we actually suggest that you cry all the time, every day, as long as you possibly can; that you feel the pain, the sorrow, the anguish, if you wish. And let yourself let the tears flow every day. If you want to, for now, wallow in the idea of poor me, self pity, or feel the anguish and the frustration of, "Why me?" "Why now?" "Why here?" "Why this?" And if that brings tears, we strongly urge this, that you let those tears flow and do it as often as you want, for as long as you want. For then, ultimately and eventually, you will release, through the tears, a lot of those energies, a lot of the chemicals that, when they build up in your body, can cause further damage, a lot of the tension, a lot of the stress. And, perhaps, you will allow yourself, rather than asking, "I know I create my own reality, what did I do to create this?" Rather than asking that, you will ask instead, "what can I do with this?" For in that your chosen field is as a screen writer and an inventor of character, you, more than most, should understand that a character is defined, not by what happens to them, but by what they do with what happens.

And thus, you must become the character in your own story and allow yourself to recognize that it is not about running around going, "why did I create this," and banging your head into a proverbial wall, trying to figure out what you think you might have done, quote/unquote, wrong or trying to extract and pull the mystery of why you did this from the abyss of your own conscious. But rather, focus on the idea that, as we have said, it is not so much what happens to you, but what you do with what happens that will allow you to know who you are, that will allow you to see the true definition of your soul, of your spirit, of your being. So, ponder this instead, and do not get lost in what many of you might find to be a metaphysical conundrum of getting caught up in the idea of, "I create my really, why did I do this to myself?" For that, only, will led to a form of madness. Allow yourself to look forward, to be proactive, creative and constructive, even in this.

And, again, if you feel the strong emotion come up, let it come. And, of course, you yourself know that this will give you time to do things that you have wanted to do, that you have created excuses not to do in the sense of, "oh, I don’t have time." But now you do, now you have no other choice, for that is what it always comes down to and this is what we have said for many years to many of your people, is that when you know that the only way to do the thing that you want to do is to give yourself no choice but to do that thing, then, you will give yourself no choice, one way or another. You can choose to do it when you are still healthy and whole and stick by the idea that you have no other choice but to move in the direction of your joy or you can force yourself to have no other choice, by refusing to pay attention to the idea that you could have chosen to do this without having the accident.

Again, this is not a judgement, nor a recrimination, nor a chastisement, nor should it be fodder for you to add to your own self-judgement, "Oh no, I didn’t see it, oh no, why didn’t I do it sooner; then I wouldn’t have to be lying here like this, all broken up." But that is all right, because the way you did it will be the way that serves your personality best, your psychology best. And will allow you, through the healing process, to extract from that process for yourself, in your own unique way, your understanding of your relationship to your art and your craft, to your energy, to your creativity, uniquely your own.

So, go ahead and create, and do not forget that this experience, in and of itself, can be the seed of a story and that you do not know where this might lead. Always, and this goes for everyone, you have the opportunity to recognize that when things happen, you need to look at them, or at least have the opportunity to look at them, not just at incidents and events that have occurred in your life as it has unfolded so far, but to take the bigger picture and understand the event as something that has unfolded in your life as an entirety, even though you haven’t lived the rest of it yet.

In other words, in time you may see how this particular incident fits into the whole scheme of your life, including the portion you haven’t yet lived. But many of you find yourself at a loss and mystified by certain events as they occur, because you are only looking at these events in relation to the life you have already lived, instead of looking at them in relation to the life you will live in total. So open up, I’m not saying you have to empirically or intellectually know how it relates right now, but open up and understand that it does relate to your entire life, even though you may not understand how, at this juncture, in a linear space-time reality.

Take all of these things to heart, and on that note, we would recommend that now there is information about the intelligence itself of the heart organ in your body that you also access, and this goes for any of you also so interested. Access the literature that is the literature of research to know that there is intelligence and memory and energy and communication that comes from the heart, as well as from the brain. And in getting in touch with that, and how to listen with, and speak from, and hear the dialogue of the heart, that this will go, perhaps even further than anything for your healing. And, as that you already know, you do not have to, shall we say, abide by the cautious ideas of your medical practitioners, that it will be impossible for you to walk and run, again. YOU WILL WALK! YOU WILL RUN! You will do whatever you wish to do. And you know it has been done by others, many times, especially, sometimes especially, in the face of when they are told that it will never happen. So, put that out of your mind, set it aside, listen to your heart and know what your heart tells you. And when you find in your heart that you are whole, your body will be whole as well.

This is the message we have delivered now for this individual. You may send this tape to her and allow her to ponder these things. And there may be more information at another time, once this information has been absorbed.

And now, once again, we would like to extend to each and every one of you, once again, our deep appreciation in allowing our civilization to experience the gift of interaction with you, and in return for the gift that you are giving to us, I ask, in what way may I be of service to you now?
Q: Bashar! Bashar! Bashar!
B: What? You and then you. Number two, do you know who you are? All right, number one, good day.
Q: Good day, Bashar....
We have recently been talking about the idea and the notion which we consider to be very important for the manifestation of your reality in a joyful way – the notion of surrender. Many of you have used this word in your language many times, and by surrender, of course, we do not mean that you are giving up in any way, shape, or form, your validity. But the idea of surrender is really the opening, up in total vulnerability to the understanding that you are created, to use your own words, in the image of the Infinite.

And in that you were created as a reflection of unlimited possibilities, then to surrender to your unlimited personality structure, to let go of your worry, your thoughts, your ideas of what you think you should be, and to simply become that which you are, that which you were created to be – will allow physical reality to reflect back to you, because it is a mirror, the unlimited possibility that you are, since you are made in the image of the Infinite, which is of, course, another way of saying, unlimited possibility.

We have been talking about many forms and ideas of surrender, and this day of your time we would like to talk about the idea of surrendering to peace. There have been, for countless generations upon your planet ... well yes, you can count them, but we know you like that phrase, countless generations ... means long time, long time on your planet, the idea of warfare. And now you have recently experienced the idea of the willingness of factions that have been warring for quite some time, to have talks, what you call peace talks, and you have had peace talks in various times in your history.

But the idea has always been, in a sense, more often than not, that one side shall surrender something to the other side, give up something in a way that they do not really prefer to, in a way that they view or label as a loss, as a diminishment of what they consider their power to be. But if you can begin to communicate to your people that the act of surrendering is not so much the act of surrendering to each other, nation to nation, person to person, but surrendering to peace itself, then both can understand that their wishes can be fulfilled, their fundamental desires can be manifested. Because when an individual, or a group, a nation, surrenders to the idea of peace then what they’re saying is that they are expressing a willingness to explore the idea that there is enough for everyone, which there is. That anyone can live their dream, which they can, and that to do so will, by definition, not conflict with anyone else’s truth, anyone else’s dream, anyone else’s natural expression of creativity.

The only conflicts that are created are when individuals and nations are trying to be something they are really not, when they manufacture for themselves an identity, in a sense, that is false, that is made up, that is not representative of their truth. Then you have conflict, because that which you are not, will always, by definition, bring conflict with it, and resistance, and struggle and strife and pain. But that which you are created to be, that which you naturally are, fits automatically with everything else that naturally is, because the universe is a whole idea, it is one thing. Therefore, all the pieces in their natural form, by definition, must fit.

So when you surrender to peace, you are surrendering to be your natural self and surrendering to the idea, the understanding and the wisdom that everything that allows itself to be natural will automatically find a way to fit, to blend, to harmonize with everything else that also is willing to be natural. And that, in that act, there will be enough for everyone and everyone will be allowed to be who they wish to be; and the holistic system will be seen to support all of it's parts, and all the parts will be seen to support the holistic system by definition, automatically.

Getting this notion, this idea, this definition of surrender, across to the nations, is one of the great ideas that you can do, one of the great tasks and actions that you can perform and teach. Not surrender to each other in the sense of loss, but surrender to peace in the sense of gain for all.
Surrounded By Love

Q: (Young girl about 10) I was wondering: if there is a God, would he be in a spiritual force or a body force?

B: Both.

Q: Both?

B: Yes. And it is more the idea he/she/it is neither he nor she. God is All That Is; God is all energy, all spirit, all bodies, all planets, all stars, all the universe, everything. God is the universe. It knows itself as its own identity. It is aware of itself as Creation and Creator. But also it is aware of itself as the combination of all the different consciousnesses within creation. God is the bodies; God is the minds; God is all spirits – all combined.

Q: Thank you. And I have another question. When I was little, I had this sort of voice in my head that was telling me what to do.

B: Yes.

Q: And it was like I had to trade with it – like, if I was scared something was going to happen – I would have to give it something, and it would make it happen all right. It would tell me there was a monster behind the door, so I had to close it and lock it.

B: All right.

Q: And I told it to stop, and it stopped, but it has been coming back to me.

B: All right. First of all, recognize this is nothing to fear.

Q: I know.

B: And the only thing – the ONLY thing – that would create any negative situations in these conversations would be your own fear. It is a friend; it is a guide, and it is a part of your own higher self. You are learning how to listen. Because you are young in your society, you have been born into your world at a time where the society allows you to remember more of the abilities you naturally have. And one of those natural abilities is to be able to communicate with non-physical spirit.

You have guides, as all individuals have guides. They are not going to live your life for you, but they are going to know you, and they are going to let you learn to know yourself. And most importantly, what your guides and your friends will teach you is that you have all the power you need to create whatever reality you desire.
You need fear nothing, for fear comes from you, and joy comes from you. You are a part of God. You can express yourself in any way you desire. Nothing can ever be more powerful than you. Everything has the same amount of power. Everyone has the same amount of power, because everyone is an equal part of God. Therefore, there is nothing to fear.

No being, whether they are physical or non-physical, can ever control you against your desire. It is only your fear of them that would make it seem as if they could control you. But that would only be a game; it would not be real.

So these guides, these friends, these voices, are simply letting you know that you are surrounded by love, and that you have all the power necessary to create your life in the way you want it. You do not have to hurt anyone else, and you do not have to hurt yourself to create what you want. And no one can really ever hurt you if you do not believe they have more power than you do.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much! Pleasant dreams. Sharing!

Sustenance

Q: Can you discuss the idea of food for fourth density?
B: We can discuss the idea.
Q: What is it that our bodies are going to need more and more as we become lighter?
B: We have discussed, many times, the concept of sustenance, food sustenance, that is more representative of your body, of the planet, in that it, perhaps, contains about 70% water, is more natural, raw, what you call organic in state, so that the life-force is in the food, so that the nutrients are in the food, so that there are no toxins in the food, that would deplete and tax your system. Obviously, the lighter foods, and if you will eat the foods that are lighter and more energized, you will find that you actually need to eat less of it.
Q: Also...
B: You will also live longer as a result.
Q: ...the idea of pesticides...
B: Yes?
Q: There seem to be many, many pesticides; and on one apple, for example, there were five pesticides.
B: Yes.
Q: Just recently...
B: Yes.
Q: ...on one grape, seven different pesticides.
B: Yes.
Q: Is there anything we can do naturally to...
B: Well, of course.
Q: ...besides washing them, because somehow the washing doesn’t help either.
B: You must understand that the idea needs to begin from scratch, with the way that you allow the food to grow. Now, there are perhaps a few things that could be done to remove, or shall we say, lesson the effects of what damage has already been done, but why bother? Allow yourselves to thus regenerate the whole idea of how you even access your food, how you even grow your food to begin with. And allow yourself to avail yourself of more natural means that are already part and parcel of the way the world works upon your planet, of the way reality works, of the way creation works, so that you know that you are getting what you need.

And again, understand, listen to the concept of the ratio, listen to the concept of the balance of why your foodstuffs are being grown the way they are grown, and so on and so forth. You have in your mind, because of the way you have structured your society, this concept that you need to grow massive quantities of food to feed the world. If you would eat the food in a natural way, grow the food in a natural way, absorb the life force and the nutrients in a natural way, you would need less food, and what you could grow naturally would feed the entire population easily. You follow along?

Q: Sure.
B: So, it is an issue of balance, it is an issue of allowing the natural thing to be there to do its job, and give you the sustenance and support that you actually would naturally get, instead of creating certain systems that insist you have to do it this way, you have to do it that way. Which then builds up stress, which then causes a need for it to be done, in your eyes, in an unnatural way, which compounds the problem of needing to do it more and more, and more and more – take up more and more space on your planet for the growing of that food, or the raising of this, or the raising of that. When in fact, naturally, you need very little of that, very little at all. Do you follow along?

Q: Absolutely.
B: So it is the mind set, to begin with, that creates the ball rolling, that sets up the premise that makes you think that you don’t have enough, that you come from an idea of lack. And if you go back to the more balanced way and let them grow in a natural state, then whatever it is that does get harvested naturally will be enough. And everything else that is thus shared with the insects, with the other animals, with the weather conditions, and so on and so forth, will be that portion of the food that is required to go back to nature to sustain the balance for the next portion of food that will also sustain you and the rest of nature. You need to really understand the total, holistic, engineering mechanism that is the Earth, and how flawlessly it already works, if you let it – if you let it. Does this make some sense to you?

Q: All right, yes.
B: Is this explaining the concept sufficiently enough, as you asked the question?
Q: Oh yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Swimming In Time

Chepop: We greet you all, this evening of your time, with the idea we will be discussing of the concept and nature of time and your connection to it, in this way; to the connections to the idea you have formed that you call the concept of time.

In this way, the idea will be that you can allow yourselves the opportunity to recognize that, as an analogy, as in the idea of the formation of electromagnetic phenomena, you may perceive the idea of time as a crystalline ghostlike substance that pervades your entire universe, in this way.

The idea shall be, that for each and every one of you, there will now be the opportunity to go within yourself and make a connection, in this way, to allow for the understanding of time, that you are creating the impression of time, as you understand it; as time/space is one and the same thing.

And in this way you may, by analogy, for the use of this particular exercise, allow yourself to view the idea of time as if it permeates all of space; and to think of it more like a ghostly fluid. See it as a pale, ghostly, greyish, blue/white electromagnetic fluid, which pervades all of space and time, as you understand it, in this way. Allow yourselves to become immersed in this idea. Allow your imagination to explore the idea of becoming immersed within the fluid of time.

Relax, in this way. Take, what you call, three deep breaths. (Pauses) Now, make for yourself your own relationship, your own relationship, uniquely, to the idea of time as a fluid. Allow yourself to recognize space/time as a fluid. See yourself floating within the idea of space/time. Recognize that you are now partaking of the idea of this ghostly electromagnetic fluid; it is all around you. You are immersed within it. You are floating within it – free.

Allow yourself to know that you have still the idea of your auric field, in this way; your auric field surrounding your body, an energy glow, an energy field, a sphere of energy surrounding your body. Allow yourself to partake of the idea that this auric field that you have is what creates there to be in a sense, a sphere, bobbing within this ghostly electromagnetic fluid you call time.

Allow yourself to recognize that the idea of this ghostly electromagnetic fluid, that is called time, will begin to reach into the sphere of your auric field, the sphere with which you have surrounded yourself, until it becomes one; until it becomes blended with the idea of the energy sphere that exudes from your body, in this way. It will not be an uncomfortable feeling; it will be something quite subtle. Something quite loving, something quite embracing, something quite warm, or something quite cool – whatever temperature you are accustomed to and you are comfortable with.

Allow yourself to recognize that, once the electromagnetic ghostly fluid of time has leaked into your auric field, and permeates every inch of the sphere that surrounds you, and fills you up like a glass ball, then allow yourself to understand that the skin of your body is a membrane; a membrane that is porous, a membrane that can be open, to a certain degree, to the idea of the fluid, the ghostly electromagnetic fluid of time.

Allow the ghostly electromagnetic fluid of time to permeate the idea of your skin’s membrane, and to sink within your body, to fill you up, in this way; to go to every cell, every pore, every being, every fiber of your existence in this way. Allow it to touch all the electromagnetic impulses of yourself; allow it to touch every cellular structure within yourself, in this way.

Allow yourself the opportunity to feel that you are breathing it in, breathing it out; and that it is becoming one and the same within you; that you are becoming made out of the fluid of time, that you are becoming permeated, that you are becoming dissolved in the essence of time, in that way.

Still allow yourself to retain yourself within your imagination as a consciousness. Still know that you are an individual; still see that you are yourself; still feel that you are who you all know yourselves to be. Allow yourself to feel as if you are immersed in the idea you call water, within the ghostly electromagnetic fluid of time. Allow yourself to float; feeling the eddies, feeling the currents, feeling the currents... feeling the currents.

Here and there you may see an idea, you may sense an idea, you may feel an idea here and there of the idea of electromagnetic impulses shooting out from you, here and there; connecting you to other ideas way off in the distance. You do not have to see what they are. You can look, but you do not have to see what they are. In this way, allow the idea of your entire existence simply to be that you are floating in the midst of an idea.

You are in this sea; you are in the center of this sea. Everything within the idea of this universe is at the center of this sea. Allow yourself to know that in every direction you will find yourself to be permeated by this fluid. You are breathing it in and out; breathing it in, breathing it out; breathing it in, breathing it out.

The idea of your connection to what you have called the idea of essence of time, by using this analogy, is to make it a substance within the idea of something that is tactile to you, and that will now allow you to know that you, as you move, every motion you make, every intention, every idea that you create, causes an eddy, a current, a flow, a ripple within this sea of time, within the sea of space.

There is nothing that you cannot do that will not cause an effect within this ocean: always radiating outward from you like singing ripples from a stone within a deep and still pool. You are the pool; you are the stone. You are the ripples. You feel yourself, your consciousness, portions of your consciousness, riding the crest of those ripples forever out, three hundred and sixty degrees in a spherical fashion; always radiating out from you. Your consciousness is riding the crest of each and every one of those waves.

Now you recognize, somewhere along your journey on those ripples, in that way, that there are other ripples coming from other directions. And as your ripples interact with those ripples, you are reinforced. You meet other portions of other consciousnesses in that way, as you cross; and you find that the idea of their ripples are much like your own ripples in this way. And many times you will find that you are actually meeting yourself, coming from other directions all at once; from every direction all at once, in that way. And that you feel the essence of the nature of space and time within yourself that has originated from different areas, in this way.

But you recognize that it is all an illusion, in that sense. The idea of the electromagnetic ghostly fluid of time permeates everything, everywhere, and is everyone. And you are all the ideas of the interactions of different ripples, and this is what gives credence to the idea that these ripples have come from somewhere, as you say, and that you can trace back to the center source.

Be the idea of the individual that is your self. This does not take away your individuality in this way, but reinforces the idea that your individuality is a product of the idea of all the interactions, of all the other ripples of time with which you are interacting, in that way.

Recognize the connection to nature in this way. Recognize it is your very nature, your very essence, your very being. The idea you are physical, the idea that you are the fundamental vibrational rate of the idea of the universe, in this way. Recognize that you are everything within it and you are feeling yourself with this connection to nature. That as you are viewing the idea of your so-called solid world – the ideas of plants, the ideas of rocks, the ideas of animals, of air, of water, of trees, of birds, the ideas of any kind of life and any kind of interaction – then you are experiencing other reflections, other ripples in time and space.

They are only the echoes of the ripples that come from the central source of your being. You are always seeing reflections, echoes of other portions of your consciousness, and always interacting with the idea of your own reflections. This is not to say you are alone, for you are one and the same – all one; alone in the idea that you are ALL ONE. This is your nature; this is your essence, in that way.

And anything that you choose to experience in the idea of creating the reality that you wish to focus on, to become, is by recognizing within the electromagnetic fluid of time and space, that for any given moment, any given space, any given idea, any given concept, any point of view, you simply have but to crystallize that ocean of time. And it becomes the universe you experience yourself to be. You hold it still. You transfix it. You pinpoint yourself within it, and it becomes the crystalline world you experience around you.

Let it become fluid again and you can change it into anything you desire. Re-crystallize any time you wish, knowing that you are simply allowing yourself to experience the effect of your consciousness upon the energy that you are. Radiating out... radiating out.

This is your ocean of life. Become, in this way – upon every star, upon every world – the idea of being spontaneous, the idea of being the choreography of the dance, and the ecstasy and the joy which you may find within the crystallization of the fluid universe that you find yourself to be in.

Breathe deeply and drink deeply of the idea of this energy. For it is all part and parcel of the idea of you. It is all part and parcel of the idea of light. It is all part and parcel of the idea of love. You are made of love and light, and it is the pulse of that universe that you can feel, in that way.

Swim wherever you will. Dive as deeply as you wish. Drink as deeply as you feel of the light that surrounds you and immerses you, and gives you the understanding of your existence. And all you need to draw from is there for you, in that sea of energy, that sea of time.

Allow for the fluctuation of the idea of the crystalline universe that you have created for yourself now to be perceived at a different rate from this evening onward of your time – from this time forward, that you call time. We will then find that there will be many doorways, many gateways, many ideas of portals, as we have said, many mirrors, many reflections open in what you call your dream reality. Allow your dream realities to become your physical realities. Recognize that you are going to become the idea of the spontaneous choreography that allows there to be that synchronicity in your life.

Allow yourself to become the synchronicity of the sea itself in which you exist; of the time and the flow of space itself. You are all space. You are all time. You are everything within it. You are it, itself. Our unconditional love to you, in this way. Pleasant dream lives. We will continue to communicate with you on many different levels that you are becoming conscious of now.

B: All right, does anyone have anything they wish to share?

Q: Yes, I got a very wonderful sense from that analogy of making time fluid. And just on the way here tonight, I was talking to a friend about this past week, and how separate time seemed to be from us; how all the events of yesterday seem to have occurred a week ago. And how all the past weeks we’ve experienced, with all the fluctuations and the energies and emotions, would take some people a whole lifetime to experience. And there seemed to be, not a separation from time, but it’s like a transformation from what it used to be for us.

B: Yes. Recognize that, as you form the idea of integration within your life, you create less and less time.

Q: Right.

B: Therefore things seem to take less time. That is acceleration: the creation of less time. It is not so much that time speeds up – you simply do not create as much. And as you have always known, again by your own language: it takes less time.

Q: Yes.

B: Are you all still swimming?

AUD: Yes! (Laughter and comments)

Q: My experience during that particular visualization was seeing the echoes bouncing off all these people in this flowing of time.

B: Yes.

Q: So, is time something that we invented?

B: Yes.

Q: Is it part of our imagination?

B: Time is one of the definitions of physical reality.

Q: Yes, and so that was what my question was. You said to visualize time moving throughout the entire universe. But time is only a physical reality.

B: In a sense, yes, and this analogy is what has allowed you the idea that there is a greater scope. That you can allow yourself to know that you become from beyond time, so that you can create your life to contain the idea of exactly the amount of time that will reflect who and what you are willing to be, and not seem to contain, more; although it never does.

Q: So on your planet does everyone live the same amount of years?

B: It varies. The average idea as you understand it is approximately, in your counting, three hundred orbits. But that is only an average.

Q: And is this because of the mental attitude that the body just sustains...

B: In a sense, it is because of how we define ourselves. You create the idea of certain purposes, so to speak, and when you create yourself to be a certain idea, you will find that to expand yourself into the many different realms of reality that you have projected yourself within, the idea will translate out that the amount of time that manifests will be representative of the amount of the idea, in that way, that you are.

While there will be the idea of longevity, paradoxically we experience the idea of what you call the three hundred years, very swiftly.

Q: Do you celebrate birthdays?

B: We celebrate life every day. For we are always being born; as are you. Every moment of time that you create yourself to exist is a birthday.

Q: Wonderful. Thank you.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Swimming in Time
All right, I’ll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing this transmission to occur, in this manner, and through this gateway, at this time.

Once again, each and every time you allow and co-create with this particular kind of transmission and communication, it affords our civilization an opportunity to experience through each and every one of you that many more facets of the multidimensional crystal of creation. So we thank you for this gift of exchange and sharing. This day of your time, for a variety of reasons, there will not be a monologue. We will, as we have once before, simply proceed with interaction and sharing in whatever manner you so desire. How may we, at this time, be of service to you?

Q1: Bashar!
B: You!

Q1: It seems that in Israel they have had appearances by nine foot tall giants that have been witnessed by numbers of people. The scientist have gotten photographs of their footprints; they estimate these entities to be a least a ton a piece in terms of their weight.
B: Not quite so heavy, no.

Q1: Well, there seems to be this proof and according to the Biblical references and cave paintings.
B: Yes.

Q1: There was a race called Afflem that lived 25,000 years ago and said that they would be coming back and I’m wondering if you can....
B: There are many old and ancient races that have lived upon your planet that were of large stature. This is one off-shoot. They are capable of merging interdimensionally and some of them now are recognizing that it is possible, because of changes on your planet, to begin to phase back in, from time to time, for a period of time into your third density/fourth density transitional reality, yes. They are testing the waters to see whether, once again, the climate of the planet, and that means on every level, is possible for the support of their particular consciousness, once again. So they are testing the waters.

Q1: It was very interesting that in Ecuador they have also found remnants of giants that were twenty foot tall and have found bones and remains of these giants, as well as cave paintings.
B: Yes.

Q1: Is this the same race of entities?
B: No, as we have said, there were many ancient races of great stature that have existed on your planet. What you people call your history, really stops quite short of going back far enough.

Q1: Okay.
Q2: Do you want to discuss any of the thirteenth floor stuff now or do we want to wait?
B: We will briefly, again, simply remind each and every one of you that because your society places such taboos on the idea of the number thirteen, even to the extent of not allowing your buildings to have a thirteenth floor in name, we suggest that this is symbolically representative of the area in your own consciousness where you have things that you may be afraid to look at. And that a good exercise, a fun exercise, an exciting and dynamic exercise would be to go out and to find, in the building, the thirteenth floor. And find that area within yourself wherein lies all those things that many of you may be afraid to look at, where you have stuffed them, hidden them in the thirteenth floor of your own consciousness, to use this as a metaphor and an exercise. But to play it out as literally as you possible can, in your imagination and your body, in that you are finding the thirteenth floor wherever it is you may wish to find it, it doesn’t matter. And by so doing, see what comes up; see what you discover; see what all of a sudden appears in your imagination about yourself or what emotions rise to the surface once you give yourself permission to let it be alright to know you can survive a trip to the thirteenth floor.
Q2: In meditation, a few days ago.
B: Yes.
Q2: I just mentally went up the thirteenth floor and when the door opened....
B: Yes, what did you see?
Q2: I saw, it was like a Magritte painting, is how I can explain it.
B: Alright.
Q2: When it opened, there was this brilliant blue sky with white clouds.
B: Yes.
Q2: And I felt that this was total freedom
B: Alright.
Q2: And I also feel like this was just the very touch of what....
B: Yes
Q2: ...this is about.
B: Yes, there is total freedom in the unknown and that is why we invite you to explore it.
Q2: And I felt that fear....
B: Yes.
Q2: ...about taking off into it.
B: Yes, but step in, step onto the thirteenth floor. It will be an interesting adventure and come the time of the next time, on your planet, you call Friday the Thirteenth, we will discusses this.
Q2: Okay.
B: Along with other subjects.
Q2: In my dreams, symbolically to me policemen are like spiritual guides.
B: Well, in some senses.
Q2: That’s what I’ve been told, now what are they?
B: Yes that is so, but they also, for you, embody the idea of your exploration of the balance point between total freedom and your fear of total freedom in the sense that you are not sure you have true permission to go beyond certain boundaries, to quote/unquote 'break’ certain laws.
Q2: I felt that I was out of control.
B: Yes, well that will be, perhaps, the first feeling that many of you have because so many of you have been trained to believe that without the kind of laws your society provides that there would be chaos and anarchy. But, of course, what you ultimately all discover is that when you truly find your power there will be no need for laws because no one would ever impinge or force themselves on anyone else. The degree to which a society is out of touch with its power is, shall we say, directly proportional to the amount of laws that the society creates to regulate itself, for it feels that it must have those laws or there is no channeling, no focus, that there is no power, that there is no guidance. Laws, as you have created them, replace the idea of something that you believe is missing within you. So you create an arbitrary, artificial structure to act as a guideline so that you will not wind up destroying each other and in the mean time, you use those laws, and those structures, and those guidelines to go searching for what is missing within you. Not really missing, but what you have been taught to believe is missing, and that is your own true self-empowerment, your own true creativity, your own unconditional love, which once you find it and integrate it, will make laws, as you have them, unnecessary.
Q3: Have we lowered the percentage of the likelihood of a terrorist attack since last week?
B: It is still hovering somewhere between 95 and 97 percent. That is somewhat lower but not by much.
Q3: Right. Just out of curiosity.
B: Yes.
Q3: What frequency would you have to be vibrating at in order to be unaffected or, transformed in any way, by a neutron bomb going off?
B: It would have to be at least 250,000 cycles per second, more likely you would have to be closer to 300,000.
Q3: Okay. If 250,00 is the threshold, is it only because of fluctuations that you would need to be....
B: Yes, because as part of the collective mass consensus there still may be, at 250,00 cycles per second, certain mass consensus effects that there would not be any of at 300,000. But someone skilled at balancing, slightly above 250,000 could manage it.
Q3: Okay, could you scan my vibration at this time?
B: Yes I can.
Q3: Will you tell me approximately what frequency I’m vibrating at now.
B: Aha...no. Thank you.
Q3: Thank you
Q4: Yes, what do you mean that this is going to be the last life for most of us.
B: Linearly speaking, this is the age of transformation where you sum up all of the experiences that you have had, as you say, in other lives and are, in summing that up and learning the final lessons, not necessarily needing, linearly speaking, to incarnate again to learn the same lessons. You may choose to incarnate again, but you don’t have to. Many of you will actually, most of you will actually choose to remain in Spirit and be of assistance to those who will be incarnating on your planet after this lifetime. Some of you will go on to other realities all together. But because you are all of a cycle, because you are all part of a lesson that you have created for yourselves to learn over a particular succession of time, now this is the end of that cycle, so it is like saying you are a member of a particular graduating class. Why would you want to hang around in a school unless you liked summer school?
Q4: Am I one of those people?
B: I don’t know yet. In some senses you are, but you haven’t fully decided that yet for yourself. You have the potential to be, and it is not necessarily, in and of itself, a goal that you must achieve.
Q4: Yes.
B: We are not saying that it is better or worse than anything else. We are simply saying that, for the most part, the initial cycle that was begun some time ago, on your planet, is coming to a head, coming to a conclusion. Most of you are finished learning the lessons in that cycle and will not necessarily need to incarnate in the same way because the cycle is over. Thus you are at zero, you may decide to do other things. You follow?
Q4 Yes.
B: Does this help you?
Q4: And lastly, so when I die?
B: Yes, when you die.
Q4 I will never be physical again? Anywhere?
B: Not you, not you, not the you, you are here. Again, please remember, we are using your language in a convenient linear way. Remember that all the experiences you have ever had, are having, or will ever have all exist NOW. You are already living an infinite number of lives, in an infinite number of realities, physical, non-physical, alternate dimension, alternate temporal. Anything you can imagine you are experiencing somewhere, the greater you. But this specific personality you is only existing once, in all of that. You have never been this you before; you will never be this you again; so when this you dies, this you will not live another life. Any other life that’s on going, that’s connected to your overall consciousness is another variation of you, not this you. Do you understand?
Q4: Yes.
B: So, once this you decides to, in a sense, experience Spirit, as this person, then that is what you will be as this person. But another physical life will, by definition, generate another personality, another person.

Q4 So I will always be in Spirit?
B: You will always be in Spirit and you will always be physical, as this physical person.
Q4: And breathing is strictly a physical thing for here or...?
B: Well, there are other places that have breathing of various types but it is generally relegated, in the way you mean it, to the physical levels of reality that experience, what you call, chemistry and physics. There are other types of non-physical breathing but you wouldn’t necessarily relate to those in the same way as actual breath.
Q4: Why is it difficult to breathe sometimes?
B: There may be a variety of reasons, of course, one of the most common, on your planet, is tension and stress.
Q4: Right.
B: Does that help you?
Q4 Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q5: Good day, Bashar. The 95 to 97 percent chance that there will be a terrorist attack, is a nuclear attack against New York and/or in the Middle East. Is that correct?
B: Yes.
Q5: Is it only....
B: Now remember we said most likely in the Middle East or against a city on your Eastern seaboard, most likely New York.
Q5: Okay, the Internet is abuzz with rumors of remote viewers who have viewed a nuclear attack explosion outside of Rochester, New York. Can you give us any reason....
B: That is one of the probable reality streams, it is not definite, it is not ordained.
Q5: Why Rochester? Do you have any idea?
B: Yes.
Q5: What is the reason?
B: It is one of the last places anyone would look.
Q5: These same remote viewers claim that there are three other cities that are...um....
B: One moment, we are not done.
Q5: Okay.
B: If you understand the climactic patterns of that area on your planet, you will understand why Rochester. It will spread the fallout in a certain way.

Q5: Okay.

B: You follow me.

Q5: I do.

B: It will also effect the water table in a certain way.

Q5: Okay, do you see in your 95 to 97 percent other cities besides New York?

B: Well, obviously what you call your Washington D. C. is a high candidate. Most likely within what you would call the Washington Monument, since it is a high spire and a nuclear device going off is, in some senses, more effective on top of a tower.

Q5: It’s closed for a couple of years.

B: Well, that may actually be of benefit to terrorists.

Q5: So these are back pack nukes you are talking about?

B: Oh yes.

Q5: Okay, um....

B: It is not something that now, in your technology, needs to be very large and it doesn’t even necessarily need to explode over a very large area. Remember that the very idea of something going off that would even affect a mile to a five mile, to a ten mile radius will be devastating to your psyche and your consciousness.

Q5: And these are atomic, hydrogen or neutron bombs?

B: They are not neutron, they are most likely simple atomic.

Q5: Okay. And do you see in that any anthrax attacks?

B: That is a separate issue, though there is one stream we follow that, in some senses, would actually engage a double or triple attack. In other words there would be the release of a biological weapon that would then create an area in which it would be easier to deliver a nuclear weapon.

Q5: Okay, there are many reports of such an attack....

B: Yes.

Q5: ...in most of the major cities in this country. Do you see any percentage probability for that?

B: There are.

Q5: What would the percentage probability be?

B: We will only now give a few. There is a 24% probability that what you call the new Denver Airport will receive such a strike. There is a 17% to 37% probability that your Los Angeles will receive such a strike. There is a 19% probability that your San Francisco will receive such a strike. One moment, one moment, one moment, there is actually a 87% to 98% probability that there will be an accidental detonation in what you call your upper mid-western states, somewhere such as your Montana or such. In that a terrorist may not have been able to actually deliver the device to where it was intended before it goes off.

Q5: Okay.

B: Some of these devices will come down through your area called Canada. And thus, after crossing the border one such device may accidentally go off, but again, all of this is fluctuation in motion. These are all swirling probabilities, some of which are more or less crystallized by a cacophony and a symphony of different events. Do not allow yourselves to delve into them to strongly, or you will aid and assist in their crystallization. But allow them to keep moving, as symbolized by what you call the spin of the roulette wheel. If you all allow yourselves to fall into the right vibration, it is still possible, regardless of any of the percentages we have given you, that you could fall into the double zero, negative, negative, nothing, nothing.

Q5: By being neutral, right? By letting it be okay. Letting it be a valid choice.

B: That is the general approach, and helping to direct your energy and apply your energy in a positive way, wherever possible. That is sufficient for this topic. Is there anything else you wish to discuss?

Q5: I was just curious, earlier you had said, you talked about fairies and such being brought into existence, they’re sort of sentient, but they’re still brought into existence by our collective consciousness.

B: Yes...yes...yes.

Q5: But that the concept of us bringing sentient beings into existence...

B: Yes.

Q5: Doesn’t that contradict one of the Laws about once something exists, it always exists?

B: No, no, no, no, no. no. The consciousness always exists. All the consciousness out of which anything is made, always exists; but things always change form.

Q5: Okay.

B: That is what we mean by being brought into existence. We do not mean it in the sense that it contradicts the first law’s concept of existence. Perhaps, it would be more appropriate to say brought into manifestation.

Q5: Okay.

B: Does that help you?

Q5: Yes it does. Thank you Bashar.

B: Thank you, number two....

Q6: The other night I was sitting in no mind, as best as I can describe no mind, and I had this realization that kicked out many times for me but it was a really profound awareness of that oneness of being one and not being two or three or six billion.
B: All right, all right thank you.
Q6: And the profundity, if that’s the word of it?
B: Yes.
Q6: I realize that I’m completely unlovable because there is no one outside of me to love me, at that level of awareness. When you become one with the Oneness or whatever, you understand you are one, there’s nothing outside of you, so....
B: So you might as well love yourself.
Q6: Well exactly, but then I realize that every relationship here...
B: Yes
Q6: ...when you say you love somebody, you’re not loving somebody else.
B: Not really.
Q6: But this not...I’m not saying this mentally.
B: I understand.
Q6: The awareness of this is like....
B: Yes
Q6: Is beyond.
B: Yes.
Q6: And it’s been coming up for me.
B: That is why unconditional love needs to be unconditional, for without the conditions the barriers drop. And you understand that loving others is loving yourself; and that loving yourself is loving others. It’s the same thing.
Q6: But it’s like I’ve been looking in a mirror, literally in a mirror.
B: You are, all of you are.
Q6: But, then once you get that you don’t...then it loses meaning to have relationships with anybody else, other than to incorporate more of yourself or for integrating while your....
B: It loses one kind of meaning, it can take on others, but yes, you have arrived at the essence of it and now you will also arrive into the essence of the understanding of why you have created reality in the way you have, so that you can have a reality in which the kind of meaning that you experience in relationships can be had. You follow?
Q6: Oh yes.
B: So, yes, congratulations.
Q6: It was a pretty horrific experience, at first, and then it was like I just let it overcome me and then I realized that I am not lovable but I am love itself.
B: You are love itself, exactly so. When you arrive at the One, when any of you stand at the true center, again you will have the dark and the light immediately at hand and you can experience the total of the dark and the total of the light, one or the other, and both simultaneously. That’s where it is easiest to experience anything and everything All That Is can be. And yourself, which of course, is All That Is in that state. Thank you, yes. Does that help you?

Q6: Yes, so that truth maybe caused us to create two, and then three, and four?

B: In essence, yes.

Q6: I mean, it is kind of lonely at that level, literally.

B: Well, but remember that that perspective only comes when you make a comparison from this level.

Q6: From the outside, exactly, I got that, yes.

B: But the idea and the concept of loneliness is certainly contained within the One and so you can recognize that it comes from there, yes. But it manifests quote/unquote here.

Q6: Okay, thank you. The other question which I feel is very, very directly related is the symbology and the myth of the Garden of Eden and Adam and Eve and the serpent and the fruit and Eve offering it to Adam, which I don’t know if that’s man writing history, came up with that out of fear of whatever that....

B: It is many different kinds of things all meshed into a very complex, multi-leveled archetypal symbology.

Q6: Is the serpent, I mean, what does the serpent represent?

B: Many different things as we have just said, it depends how you look at it. It is a holographic universal reality myth of a very fundamental and foundational kind, so the idea of the symbols are that each symbol can represent many different kinds of things. The serpents can be curiosity, it can be desire.

Q6: Sexual desire?

B: It can be any kind of desire. It can be many different kinds of things depending on where, as you say in your language, you are coming from, how you are looking at it, what perspective you give, what spin you put on it. It serves multiple duty; it will represent many things, depending upon where the perceiver is coming from, that’s its beauty. Do you follow?

Q6: Unfortunately yes. I was hoping to....

B: Why is that unfortunate?

Q6: Well, because...yes, but I would like to narrow it down to....

B: To what?

Q6: Um, well, I feel like when you live the I Am Presence in your life that you stop...the desire to form a union with someone else falls away.

B: No.

Q6: Sexual union.
B: Maybe, maybe not, it depends.
Q6: Okay, you have a pond, you have a reflection of yourself in the pond and that’s the other person and once you reach into the pond you disappear, you start to look for fulfillment in the reflection and you lose part of yourself and I was wondering.
B: You don’t lose it, you integrate it, you become it, and then who is the union with?
Q6: Well, it is always with yourself anyway.
B: Yes, I understand you may not have the same sensation, you may not have perspective, but that doesn’t mean you lose it.
Q6: Intrinsically you never lose it, because there is nothing to loose.
B: Yes, you may redirect it.
Q6: Do we get caught more into the illusion at that point because that just seems....
B: Maybe, maybe not? Again, especially, especially from that point of view, it really depends on what spin you give it. Because, on that level, the instant you think of a particular perspective, it is reality; there is no lag time. It is instantaneous and instantaneously experience for whatever perspective you put into it. And all are true and all are real and any one of them, no matter where you wish to narrow or broaden, are all real and all true. No matter what perspective you come up with, they’re all real and they’re all true. And they can all change in the wink of an eye. That’s the nature of existence, that’s the nature of it. Does that make some sense?
Q6: Yes.
B: Well, alright.
Q7: No.
B: Repeat?
Q7: Please clarify.
B: Yes, again remember, it all comes back down to the idea that there are only four laws in Creation, only four absolutes, just four, that’s it, not five, four.
Number one: You exist. That means that you will always exist, in some form or another. You cannot become non-existence, non-existence is another concept altogether. If you exist that’s your basic quality, Isness. Isness only has one quality, to be, that’s it.
Law number two: The One is the All, the All are the One.
Law number three: What you put out is what you get back. That describes the reflective mirror quality of creation, of existence, of consciousness.
Law number four: Everything changes, except the first three laws.
That’s it; everything you experience is based and built upon those four laws. If you didn’t hear it in the four laws, it’s not an absolute. But everything you experience is, thus, then based upon some combination or some perspective or some understanding of those four principles and that’s it. Does that help?
Q7: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q6: Bashar!
B: Yes?
Q6: I just wanted to add one thing, my mind stream of who my body believes that it is, is afraid. I’m coming from fear, that’s where the spin is coming in. I understand what you are saying.
B: Alright.
Q6: Because I just came out of, you know, whatever eons of imagining it to be in the evolution of the most very painful cycle of forgetfulness and darkness and I’m afraid of going back, of slipping back into the forgetfulness.
B: Alright, you have idea, a belief, and a definition that it is possible to slip back into such a state and because you believe it, it is possible. But if you understand it is only a belief, then it is up to you to decide whether it is a true belief for you or not, because it is not an absolute. I told you there are only four and you did not hear me say slipping back into something you don’t prefer is one of the Absolute laws. No, it is only you using the Absolute laws to create a variation on a theme and to give yourself a reality experience. But it is just as easily changed as any other reality experience that is also based on the same four laws.
Yes, I understand that once you create the belief that you can slip back into something that you find distasteful that it can make it seem very, very solid, very real. It can give it what appears to be the physical laws of momentum and inertia and seem to be something that’s very difficult to override or overcome. But remember that’s what belief does, it brings all of that to the table with it. It brings that momentum; it brings that inertia because every belief, by definition, must be self-perpetuating or you can’t experience it as a real reality. But once you know that, you can change it, and any other thing you choose to believe in will then be just as real, once you are motivated to believe in that, based on the definitions that you choose to buy into more strongly than any other. All right, pleasant dreams.
Q6: Thank you.
Symbolism of a Habitual Ritual

Q: I put my name in, just sort of as a lark.
B: A lark?
Q: But I thought it would be fun to talk to you. I haven’t talked to you for a while. There is one thing that I have thought about in the last few days.
B: Oh, one thing in a few days. All right.
Q: Lots of things. But one thing that I thought I’d like to discuss with you, or see what you have to say about is that, a lot of times you will say to people: once you have recognized something as a habit...
B: Yes.
Q: ...it’s not a habit anymore.
B: Yes.
Q: And I, for one, have one habit, which I dislike quite a bit – which is very bad – which I’ve known was a habit for years.
B: All right. Why do you keep doing it then?
Q: I don’t know. I have, quote, tried many different techniques not to do it anymore, and I keep doing it.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: And I know it’s a habit, and I still do it.
B: All right.
Q: So I don’t really agree with you that...
B: Oh, thank you.
Q: ...once you recognize something is a habit it is not a habit anymore. Could you...
B: Recognize the full statement we have made.
Q: Okay.
B: Once you recognize it as a habit, it is no longer a habit, and you can then recognize you do not have to keep doing it – unless you either keep choosing to do it, or use it as an excuse to continue to do it, or do not really believe you have the capability of stopping it. That is the full statement.
Q: Okay.
B: So, do you, if I may ask, really believe you have the capability of redefining yourself to become the person that does not contain that habit?
Q: Well, I – yeah, that’s one technique I’ve tried. Let me tell you what it is.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: I’m not at all proud of it; I don’t like it at all. I have found that sometimes when I talk about it, especially in a big crowd, that it does reverse things sometimes.
B: Then this may be your technique now.
Q: Anyway, the habit is that I wake up – I sleep like an hour and a half, two hours at a time. Then I wake up and I smoke.
B: Yes.
Q: And then I go back to sleep, and I wake up and I smoke.
B: Yes.
Q: And so I smoke throughout the night, which is terrible.
B: Do you enjoy it?
Q: Well, yeah. Yes, I do.
B: All right. Why?
Q: I don’t know. Well, I…
B: You don’t?
Q: No. I’m sure it’s because it’s a physiological addiction.
B: Oh, one moment, one moment. Don’t be too sure. Why do you enjoy it, if you do?
Q: Because it’s a habit.
B: Not necessarily.
Q: Part of it is that I often do it half consciously. I just wake up, and I don’t think the way I do – the way I think during the day.
B: Oh, all right. And in that state when you automatically smoke, what does it do for you?
Q: I guess it fulfills some kind of need that my body has – you know, for the nicotine – and then I go back to sleep.
B: All right. But let’s not think about it for now physiologically. What does the act itself do for you, atmosphere-wise, as you say?
Q: Hmmm. I never thought about that.
B: Well, think about it now. What kind of mood does it create? What kind of mood does it help to reinforce, to perpetuate? Is it one of contemplation? Does the smoke, to some degree, symbolize your very thoughts?
Q: Hmmm.
B: Does it seem to be your way of meditation?
Q: Maybe.
B: If that is what it does for you, it may not be as negative as you think – maybe not for you. Remember every individual is different. And certain things that may even be generally negative within the consensus reality do not necessarily have to be negative for everyone, depending on how you use it.
Many individuals can transform what may be negative to the general population into something that has no negative effect on them.
Q: Hmmm.
B: How are your lungs?
Q: Well surprisingly good, considering I’ve smoked for years.
B: Ooohh. Surprisingly good, all right. Then maybe it simply doesn’t affect you that way because you don’t buy into it that way.
Q: And maybe that’s possible, except that I do fall asleep with cigarettes in my hands, and I burn my nightgown, and burn myself.
B: All right. Then perhaps just a slight variation of the idea is all that is really necessary, more than an absolute transformation of it. Perhaps allow yourself to simply put the cigarette out first.
Q: I’ve thought about that.
B: The idea is, perhaps, that if you do have a different attitude about it, you may allow yourself to be a little more conscious and conscientious of exactly how you are using it, and that will allow the timing and your awareness of what you need to do with it, to be done in a more natural way.
For if you are coming from the point of view that it is something that you shouldn’t be doing, then you may not be paying attention to the natural timing of it; and the natural timing of it may give you, in no uncertain terms, the absolute signal as to when to put it out.
Q: Oh!
B: For you, it may be an extension of something you have done in the past – smoking the peace pipe.
Q: Yeah, we have talked about that once before.
B: Yes. So if you can use it in a similar fashion, it can be an active meditation. It can, as many of you say, be your version of prayer. Because that is what the smoke from the American Indian peace pipe represents – prayer, spirit.
Q: Interesting.
B: So look at it that way, and see if that makes a difference.
Q: Yeah. You know, something happened just now. I’ve noticed many times when we talk that I do get things at different levels without realizing it, or I realize it later that night, or something like that. And I just, a few minutes ago...I just felt it. It was very nice.
B: Yes. Thank you. And also remember one other thing we have talked about: symbols and physical ideas and actions. When you allow a symbol to serve the purpose you actually have designed it to serve; when you give it the definition; when you recognize the definition you have actually given it – that’s when you may not need it any longer. And then it will transform.
Q: Right.
B: In continuing to apply the assumption that it automatically must be negative, just because of the way it looks on the surface, you have not allowed yourself to recognize, perhaps, what the real definition and purpose of that particular act was. And therefore, you could not allow it to change, because you had not identified it for what it was to begin with. Understand?
Q: Yes, I do. Thank you very, very much, very helpful.
B: Thank you very much. See if that makes a difference.
Q: Thank you, it will. Bye, bye.
B: Thank you. Sharing!

Synchronicity and Meaning

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this day of your time, as you create time to exist?

Allow us to begin this interaction this day of your time with, once again, the laying down of foundations of the idea we will be discussing. Do you all love coincidence? “Synchronicity and Meaning” – which, if you wish, may be your entitlement for this particular interaction.

Synchronicity: we have discussed this a few times with many of you. What is it? Synchronicity: coincidence. As we perceive the interactions we have had with your civilization, we perceive that you think of coincidence more often than not as a fortunate accident. Maybe an unfortunate accident – but an accident many times nonetheless, random chance. “Oh, it just happened that way.” One in a million, as many of you are very familiar with the idea of, “Oh, it’s just the odds. Had to happen sooner or later.”

But the idea, you see, is that co-incidence is quite a bit more than that. Synchronicity: the right place, the right time, interacting with exactly who you need to be interacting with at that moment is far more than random chance. It is representative of the very foundational structure of existence itself, at least as far as physiological reality is concerned.

How does it happen? What is it? And how, perhaps, can you create more of the positive form of coincidence in your life, always knowing you’re at the right place, always knowing you’re at the right time, always knowing you’re interacting with exactly who and what you need to be interacting with to serve you best and to be of best service? How to increase that phenomena, as you say?

Well, first of all understand what it is and why it occurs. Synchronicity is your physiological indication of the interconnectedness of all things. Everything is connected to every other thing. Everything is an extension from every other thing. And why is this so? From our perspective because of the following idea: because everything is the same one thing, manifesting in all the multidimensional ways it possibly can. You experience this multidimensionality stretched out in a linear time frame because linear time is one of the ways you have of experiencing your physical dimension. But all things that occur actually exist all at once simultaneously.

“What do you mean by that? Not everything is happening right now, if it were, I wouldn’t be able to do one of these things. Everything would be happening all around; I’d be very confused.”

Yes. But that is why the definition of physical reality contains the ability to perceive linear time, in a sense, as many of you have already said, to keep everything from happening all at once, because your physical senses are not built to handle that. That does not mean they still do not exist all at once. To describe and explain this briefly, once again, refer to what we have called your radio analogy. You all know what the device is on your planet that you call radio, that all the programs that you could possibly listen to on that radio at any given moment are all there at the same time, all coming to the radio all at once. But the only one you hear at any given moment is the one you have your dial attuned to.

Physical reality is like that; this is an appropriate analogy. At any given moment, your focus of perception, your definition and your beliefs, your emotions and your thoughts represent the idea and the station, the frequency, if you will, that you are tuned into. And so that’s all you get; that’s all you pick up; that’s all you receive – is what you are focused to receive. All the other possibilities, all the other programs are still going on, and you could be receiving any number of them. But you only get the one, at any given moment, that you are most attuned to, and you are attuned because of how you have been taught to be attuned, through your perspectives, your attitudes, your point of view. That is your dial of reality, of physical experience.

Now, how do you change that dial to a program that perhaps is more to your liking? Very simple, you get in touch with the idea of the definitions you already have bought into that are generating the program you’re already getting, asking yourself: what kind of beliefs, what kind of definitions would I have to buy into in order to have the types of experiences I am having in my life, in my programming?

Once you get in touch with what those definitions are that are responsible for your original program, in rewriting them and redefining them, you are then switching the dial to another program. Because physical reality is only, and always has been, and always only shall be, the absolute, 100% mirror reflection of your strongest beliefs, your strongest definitions, your strongest programming.

Even your own physiological scientists now, your theoretical physicists, as you call them, are beginning to realize that physical reality does not actually have an empirical existence by itself, that the definitions, the perspectives, you have been taught are actually what is responsible for generating what you have for so long thought to be a separately existing physical reality that you just happen to exist within. You are beginning to realize this is not so, and that everything you have experienced your physical reality to be has always been the product of your strongest belief systems about what it could be, or might be, or what you fear it will be; for your strongest beliefs and your strongest emotions combine to generate a manifestation of that reality.

If it is a positive emotion, a positive belief, that’s the blueprint you’ve created; that’s what you activate, that’s what you get. If it is a negative blueprint, a negative emotion, you will get a negative pattern. This is simple physics. In many of the things we will be discussing with you, this day of your time, realize we are not speaking philosophically so much; we are not speaking in analogies so much; we are not speaking figuratively so much. We are talking pragmatic tools that actually are responsible for the generation, manipulation and manifestation of your physiological day-to-day experiences. You are the creators of your reality. Whether you do that consciously or unconsciously is up to you.

Now, synchronicity, having what you call a life that is blessed – always running into exactly who you need to – a charmed life, having exactly what you need at your disposal when you need it; not a second too late, not a second too soon, just right there – this is what you usually in your society call luck. There is no such thing. Not really, not in the sense you mean it. You know, an aside for a moment, many individuals now in your reality, in your world, are beginning to explore what you have called metaphysical concepts, and some individuals find that they cannot believe that such ideas exist. However, they will still believe in luck; a more metaphysical concept I cannot imagine! The idea to imply that, "Oh, it’s just luck," completely detaches the idea of that experience from any kind of physiological cause and/or effect.

The idea of even what are being discussed as metaphysical principles, they are not above and beyond the idea of physics. They are simply another state of physical understanding that have their own laws, that follow their own rules, and are tied very strongly into the idea of your physical reality. The so-called supernatural is simply another level of nature. There is nothing really beyond nature about it. It is simply, perhaps for now, a little bit beyond your typical day-to-day understanding, but that does not make it disassociated from the ideas of your physiological reality.

 Luck, the concept of luck, to some degree implies even more deeply than any metaphysical concept that something could occur which is not attached to the mainstream of cause and effect. It does not really exist. Everything that you have called luck, both positive and negative, is the result of setting up a momentum, a synchronicity momentum, that takes its cue from the patterns of belief and definitions you have bought into most strongly in life. How you generate synchronicity in your life, more coincidence, is utterly determined by the type of meaning you put into the circumstances that happen in your life.

We have discussed from time to time with many of you the idea that no circumstance and no situation has built-in meaning. All situations are summarily blank, devoid of meaning to begin with. Empty. They do not bring meaning with them. They are simply neutral props, arrangements of surface symbols that have no meaning unto themselves other than the meanings you have been taught to give them. So automatically do you apply meanings to certain situations, because they are so ingrained within you to do so, that you think that the situation brings with it its own built-in meaning.

But it doesn’t. It’s just that you very quickly apply a meaning on a very unconscious level, because that’s what you’ve been taught to do. “When you see this, sonny boy, or little girl, it means this. Don’t forget it or you’ll be in big trouble.” "Yes mother; yes father.” "Over and over and over again, I’ve told you when you see this, it means this. Steer clear, or do this or do that.” "Yes mother; yes father.” Pretty soon – doesn’t take very long at all – you absolutely buy, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that the meaning you have been instructed to believe a circumstance had is the only meaning it can have, and that it takes you sometimes a very long time to realize, “Oh, wait a minute. It could mean this, too. Doesn’t always have to mean that. It could mean this.” But then you go through a long process on your planet of unlearning the old ideas to give yourself an opportunity to learn new applications. It doesn’t have to take that long.

And we are not necessarily suggesting that many of the things your parents tell you are not for your own benefit. But the idea in your society has been carried to an extreme, where you simply buy into every single idea that you society tells you – very automatically, more automatically than you think. And you automatically apply the meanings you have been taught to every given situation, and do not understand why certain things keep repeating in your life – because you are not consciously in touch with the fact that the meanings you keep applying to the circumstances that happen are what cause them to perpetuate themselves in endless cycles of repetition.

The idea, therefore, is to understand that while everything does exist simultaneously, you are still in the act of co-creating it with the Infinite Creation, and the way you, as aspects of Creation – and all beings within Creation, as aspects of Creation – create and co-create and continue to expand the idea of creation is by applying meaning to the surface symbols that already exist. The meaning you give them determines their content, determines their effect, determines the life you experience. The giving of meaning is the act of creation on your physical level. That’s what determines what you experience.

And also, the type of meaning you start to impart to the circumstances in your life will then create a momentum that will determine what kind of circumstances, even on the surface, begin to crop up in your life, and what kind of meaning or significance they have for you. Now, understand this: every single event, no matter how small, every single action, no matter how seemingly insignificant has effect and impact on your life. And you are inexorably intertwined with every single thing you experience. You have helped create it for one reason or another. Now, certain events may not have as high a degree a significance for you as it may have for someone else in that event, but your presence in the event, your coincidental presence in that event has still created the factors necessary to help set it up, so that whoever needs to get the impact out of it can.

There are no accidents, and I am talking down to the most fundamental idea. There are no accidents about all of you that are present in this interaction today. It is not an accident who you are sitting next to. It is not an accident what they are wearing. It is not an accident what you ate for lunch, if you did eat lunch. It is not an accident what you notice, what you hear. The smallest scrap of paper that blows in the wind at your feet is not an accident. It is all your choreography; it is all your orchestration.

Granted, a large degree of it is automatic, on automatic pilot, as you say, so that you don’t necessarily consciously have to be aware of every single detail and organize that. That would be too much for your mentality. But the idea nonetheless is that whether it has a great deal of significance for you, or a small amount of significance, it still has some significance if you experience it at all. You are incapable of experiencing any event in your life that doesn’t belong there. Nothing in your lives is superfluous or extraneous. There are no extra creations. Everything fits, every single thing.

When you begin to look at life that way, when you begin to realize that where you are is exactly representative of who you are, then you can get a handle, as you say, on the definitions of who you are, and if you don’t prefer the definitions of what it is you are experiencing, you can change it. It is in your power to do so, and always has been. Always. And it is a very simple thing to do. You have created all that reality to begin with, anyway, and you have done it automatically, effortlessly – so effortlessly you don’t even necessarily know you’re doing it.

You can still create any reality you want with the same degree of effortlessness and automatically. Just because the idea has been ingrained within your society that having a life of ecstasy is harder than having a life of pain doesn’t mean it really has to be so. That’s only one of your society’s shared consensus definitions. You don’t have to buy into it any more. There is absolutely nothing inherent within the idea of positivty and negativity that says, "Negativity will happen more often than positivty. It is easier to come by, and negativty is more representative of reality than positivty is.” Look at the tales you tell in your society. You tell a tale, and individuals in that tale – oh, perhaps there may be a moment or two where they are having a good time, but then they are involved in a great deal of conflict and struggle and strife. And you say, “Oh, that was a very realistic story!”

But then you go and watch a story and everyone is having a good time, and everyone finds and discovers exactly what they need, and works the situation out and lives happily ever after. "Huh, nice fairy tale. Too bad life isn’t really like that.”

Why not? There is no reason why one should be more representative of life than the other, except the definitions you have chosen to buy into. The only reason your society has bought into the idea is because the type of society you have created yourselves to be is highly focused in physical reality, one of the most highly focused we have ever discovered. And because of that a particular idea came along with that degree of focus, the ability to forget that you created it to begin with.

You have played the game of forgetting for thousands of your years of counting. But now you have played all that limitation and forgetting out, almost completely. So now you are as a society beginning to wake up and say, "Well, wait a minute; there must be something more. I have been living a particular type of dream. We have been walking in our sleep; now we are waking up... into another dream, a dream we prefer. A dream that lets us know we are more than we previously thought, and can be anything we really wish to be.”

All reality is a dream; all dreams are real. You are dreaming right now. I mean that quite literally. This interaction, in every sense of the word, is a dream. It is simply that you have labeled that this dream shall have the aspect and image you call solidity, reality. It is no different than anything else that passes through your imagination, except that you define it to be more solid than anything else. That’s the only difference, that one definition, that one concept.

But you see how powerful those concepts are. Because that’s all it takes – is that one definition to create everything your society has held to be true for thousands of years. That’s all it takes, and that’s why it’s very easy to transform your lives. Because once you get a hold on the idea that the definition is the only thing responsible for any seeming barrier in your life, once you redefine it, away it dissolves, back into the essence, the energy from which it was created. And what crystallizes in its place is the new definition. It is as simple as that.

Now, there may be many techniques and rituals that will aid and assist you in the processing of this understanding, to arrive at a time where you can allow yourself to change your reality very quickly. If you desire such processes, if you must take time to do this, then that’s your choice, and you can learn much from it. Do not berate yourself for taking the time; it is what you need, according to the definitions you believe you are capable of. That is not cause for bereavement or self-judgment. But the idea simply is that these things do not have to take as long as they have taken and this is what we are here to assist you with – to understand that the meanings you give to life determines utterly the type of synchronicity you experience. Whether it be positive or negative, conscious or unconscious is up to you, but you are the creators of your reality, both individually and collectively by telepathic agreement.

You will generally abide by the rules of the game that you have all agreed to play, but there is a lot more leeway, as you say, in those rules than many of you have thought. It is not as rigidly structured as you have been led to believe. And especially now that you are in your transformational age where you are exploring the idea of what consciousness really is is there a great deal of freedom to express, what you have called for so long, your free will, but really don’t ever consciously know you’re using. Now is the time to become conscious on your planet that you really have free will, and what that really means.

At this timing, in return for your willingness to interact with us as ambassadors of your civilization, and allowing me to function as an ambassador of our respective civilization within the Association of Worlds, we will let you know that your interaction for us is a gift. Our unconditional love creates ecstatic joy in your willingness to co-create this interaction this day with us. Because through you we are allowed to see that many more ways that the Infinite Creation has of expressing itself within the creation that it is. And this is a gift to us.

We thank you for this gift, and your willingness to create this interaction this day of your time. In return for this gift, I will ask you now, how may I serve you?

Synchronicity and Meaning
Synchronicity II

Q: I’ve been feeling a little bit like a ping-pong ball lately.
B: All right. That can be an enjoyable game, even for the ball.
Q: Even for the ball. I’m wondering if you could help me to level it out to a point of being a little more comfortable.
B: I will help you when you understand you don’t need help.
Q: I felt that way for a couple of weeks.
B: Then the you you were then is not the you you are now; so do not say you felt that way.
Q: Right.
B: Someone else did.
Q: Yes.
B: Why are you choosing to feel the way you feel?
Q: Well, that’s part of the question, because I feel a definite duality.
B: All right. What is wrong with that? Does that not give you a unique point of view about yourself? Can you not learn from it? Can you not enjoy it? Can you not integrate and absorb what you are learning from this dual perception of yourself – in a positive way? Can you not assume that every situation is fundamentally neutral; and choose to go at it with a positive attitude, so that it will have a positive effect, instead of a negative attitude, so that it creates a negative effect?
Q: Yes.
B: Am I being of help?
Q: Yes.
B: Well?
Q: Yes, I can do that.
B: All right. Do you think that that will assist you?
Q: Yes, I can do that.
B: All right. Do you think that will assist you?
Q: Yes.
B: Why do you think so?
Q: Because…
B: I’ll wait.
Q: Because it implies…(AUD: You know we can’t hear you back here.)
B: Thank you for pointing out the need for boldness. Project!
Q: It implies that…I forgot what it implies.
B: Good!! Welcome to the moment!

Q: All right. Then let me ask you a specific thing, which... oh, it implies that I don’t have to worry about anything. And one of the things that is happening that is still a little bit worrying is that I seem to have a strange sleep thing happening, where I’m falling asleep driving on the freeways.

B: Yes. Oh, oh ohh! Oh, let’s reinforce that one! Let’s reinforce the negativity. All right. Oh, yes, ohhh. We all know that’s negative. Oh, ohhh. Oh yes, you are doing a negative thing!

Q: I had myself completely covered with white light, so I was not afraid on that level. But what I’m wondering is...

B: Completely covered with white light. All right.

Q: I covered myself in white light...

B: Yes.

Q: ...to protect myself because I was falling asleep on the freeway.

B: Oh! To protect yourself! Which implies that you believe you need protection – which implies that you believe you can be harmed.

Q: By a large truck when I’m asleep on the freeway. (much laughter) To me. It freaked out my mother.

B: All right.

Q: You are supposed to be impressed by that.

B: All right!!!!

Q: Shine it off. It’s okay; I’ll...

B: May I ask you a question?

Q: Yes.

B: Are you fighting your own instinctive natural schedule?

Q: Well, I thought about that. And I remembered what you said about 2 to 4 pm being sleep time, or being our low energy point.

B: In general.

Q: And I was not able to pinpoint these periods of suddenly becoming sleepy in terms of that general cycle.

B: So what? Are you going to take us literally, or are you going to follow your own instincts? “Oh, it’s not between 2 to 4 pm; so even though I am sleepy, I will wait until 2 to 4 pm because a Sassanian said I can only be sleepy between 2 to 4 pm. So I will not stop and take a nap.” Is that what you are saying? Are you giving me that much of your power?

Q: No.

B: Well, all right then. What are you doing about your own instinctive schedule?
Q: Well, I guess my instinctive schedule is that I should fall asleep at 55 miles per hour in the car on the freeway.
B: Are you missing the point? Why, in your estimation, were you falling asleep while you are moving?
Q: Well, that’s what I don’t know, because this has never happened before. I’m not the kind of person that falls asleep on the freeway in broad daylight.
B: When you fell asleep, you obviously were that kind of person. Do not contradict yourself. Perhaps you are not that kind of person now, because, a) you are not on the freeway – at lease I will assume we are not on the freeway.
Now the person you were then is not the person you are now. What you are being shown is this entire idea of disassociation. Now, recognize that you are quite all right; you did not get killed by a truck. You follow me?
Q: Right.
B: Therefore, our first suggestion is to stop playing “what if,” and let’s talk “what is.” All right? Now, as you – the you you were then – were driving along the freeway and falling asleep, what were your feelings? What were your thoughts? Not connected to the idea of what would happen if you fell asleep, just your general thoughts, your general feelings about yourself at that time?
Q: Well, it was very strange, because it was almost like I was – (Louder!) It was strange because it was almost like I was going into a deep meditation.
B: All right. Very good! Very good! Now, what does meditation mean to you?
Q: It means connecting with another density.
B: All right. Very good, very good. Thank you! Now may I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: Does it mean disconnecting from this one? Is that what you have always thought meditation to mean?
Q: Sometimes yes, and sometimes no. Like most of the time I am semi-meditative. And it’s cool; I can do both.
B: Oh, cool. All right.
Q: I can be third and fourth at the same time. I can be bi-densitive.
B: All right. Now, let me ask you this: with regard to the synchronicity of having your mother present…
Q: Oohhhhh!
B: does it represent to you now?
Q: Oh, my goodness! Okay.
B: Do share. Do share! And speak up! You do not want them to fall asleep.
Q: Okay, Yes. Oh, my goodness. I didn’t make that connection. Yes, my mother always falls asleep; in fact, my mother was asleep. In fact, my mother falls asleep maddeningly. And I feel – I mean, I feel she’s sleeping her life away, so to speak.

B: I see. And so your falling asleep at the wheel, did you say, “freaked her out” or woke her up?

Q: She was asleep during the whole thing...

B: Yes?

Q: ...until we arrived home... and I told her how I had started to fall asleep...

B: Yes, yes, yes, and her reaction?

Q: She was freaked out.

B: So you mean she woke up?

Q: Yes, she woke up. And then the next time she drove, she made sure that she stayed awake and kept talking to me. (Much laughter)

B: Now do you get the picture? Do you see the reflection that you were being of service to?

Q: I was of service to her?

B: Oh, come, come, come! And in this way, also to yourself – in the idea of your relationship to her, and what you think of her, and what you think of what she does. And what she thinks of what you do, and this and that. And showing her reflections of herself that are encapsulated within your feelings of her, and vice versa. Were you not acting out a scenario about her that bothered you – and allowing her to see how it affects you?

Q: Yes.

B: All right, then. Let it be obvious. Now, therefore, simply recognize – there is no “what if.” This is not the beginning of some disease: “I’m going to fall asleep at the wheel now, or at least some of them,” for why you enacted that scenario. And recognize it can be served in other ways, rather than in ways that are unconscious. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: And therefore, in ways that are not, quote/unquote, detrimental to your physical health.

Q: Right, yes.

B: Sometimes you will find that you will share exciting incidents – co-incidents with someone else – so that you will both wake up to what is happening between you. So you will shake yourselves, give yourselves some excitement in the relationship. Spark it up a bit.

Q: Yes!

B: Therefore, thank you for your sharing.

Q: Thank you.

Q2: The first thing I want to share is that I truly do trust you. I was realizing that.
B: I trust you too, all of you.
Q2: Thank you. Thank you.
B: Now they’re going: “What did he mean by that?” I fully trust you to be who you are; you cannot be anything else.
Q2: Exactly. And it also means infinite possibilities.
B: Thank you!!
Q2: Right. Whatever you do is all right, because you are an infinite creator, as I am.
B: Yes. We also trust the synchronicity of the interaction that we are together. That is what we trust.
Q2: Marvelous, wonderful. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Synchronicity
Synchronicity Story
Q: Before I came here this evening I was exploring the idea of integrity.
B: Yes.
Q: And I’ve expanded my understanding of that in a way that I would like to share with you.
B: All right.
Q: I looked it up in the dictionary and one definition of integrity is unity and completeness...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and so, what I got from that is that integrity is integrating unity and completeness.
B: Yes.
Q: That’s it!
B: Yes! And even more: functioning from that vibration is the act of integrity.
Q: Yes. Now, one more thing.
B: Yes?
Q: I was driving on the freeway the other day, and I ran out of gas on the freeway. And I was going at such a speed that I had just enough acceleration to go off the off-ramp, and I rolled for several hundred yards. I came to a stop in a residential area and I got out of the car.
And I was just experiencing it – I really wasn’t judging it as a positive or a negative experience.
B: Yes.
Q: So, I got out of the car and I took two steps, and just as I took these two steps towards what was probably over a mile walk to a gas station, I looked up, and there’s someone across the street with a gallon can, walking down the street. And I just felt something about this. (AUD: laughter)
B: My, my.
Q: And I yelled to him. I went: “Hey!” And he looked up like he was doing something wrong. So I said: “Is that gas in your can?” And he goes: “Yeah, it is.” And I said: “Hey, did you run out of gas on the freeway out there?” And he says: “Yeah, about a mile up.”
I said: “You know, I ran out of gas here, and if you put the gas in the can in my car I’ll take you to the gas station and we’ll fill it up and then I’ll take you to your car.” So he said: “That sounds like a great idea.” (AUD: laughter) So anyway we put the gas in my car and we went to the gas station.
And it turned out on the way that he told me that he didn’t have any money with him, and he had to borrow the gas from the gas station, and he really didn’t have enough gas to even drive back and give them a dollar. So I paid for the dollar gas and got him some more, and I took him to his car and we parted friends.
B: You know what? (AUD: laughter)
Q: What? (laughing)
B: THAT SOUNDS LIKE SOMETHING THAT WOULD HAPPEN IN MY WORLD! (AUD: much laughter)
Oh, thank you VERY MUCH for your sharing!
Q: Thank you, I’m glad you liked it!

Synchronicity
B: Do you understand what synchronicity is?
Q: Uh, I think I understand what it is.
B: Uh, I think... uh, your answer means... uh, no. [audience laughter]
Q: Well, I'm not sure of the technical definition.
B: Well, thank you very much for your honesty. Synchronicity is what your civilization typically calls "coincidence," but it is not accidental. It is the coming together of seemingly unrelated events. And when they come together you realize they do have, in fact, an underlying connection. They are spontaneous coincidences that serve a specific purpose, according to your desires, wishes and focuses. They are miracles, they are magic, they are opportunities.
Now, the idea is to recognize this: your wish, your desire, in and of itself, is a frequency of energy. If you have the wish, if you have the desire, then you are "putting that energy out" in your reality, you are giving off that vibration. If you are giving off that vibration, and if you don't get in your own way with your assumptions about what you can and cannot do, then you will automatically and effortlessly draw to yourself the opportunities that will be obvious for you to act on to fulfill your wish. That's one definition of synchronicity.
Now, if that is your wish, and as you shared earlier about wanting to save the Rain Forests, then you can know you have just sent a message out to the totality of All That Is. In sending out that message what you have said is, "I am willing to receive opportunities that are reflective of what excites me the most, I will allow me to fulfill my wish." So when those opportunities come to you – recognize them through the fact that they are of vibration that is representative of whatexcites you the most, and if they are representative of what excites you the most, act on the them.
Again, they may not seem to be on the surface immediately connected to the issue at hand. That is why you simply have to trust that whatever comes to you that excites you the most, you must act on, whether it seems connected or not. Eventually you will understand how it is all inter-connected. But if you act on the opportunity that comes with the most excitement, that is what will be the shortest path to the fulfillment of your wish. Does this clarify the mechanism for you now?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you willing to act upon the first thing that comes along that is the most exciting thing you are capable of acting on, knowing that because it is the most exciting thing, it therefore, by definition, must be connected to your wish-fulfillment?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, thank you very much. Are you willing to allow it to be that simple? Are you willing to act on these opportunities that come to you boldly, to the best of your ability, to the fullest of your expression as the being you know yourself to be?
Q: Yes.
B: Then, as you stated your heart’s desire earlier, you will make a difference in saving the Rain Forests. Understand? And so will anyone else who has the same wish, who acts in the same way just outlined along with you. Fair enough?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Synchronizing Frequencies

B: All right, I’ll say, sharing!
Q: How is it going, as you create going to go?
B: ‘Tis going rather well, as we create going to go, thank you. How has everything gone for you?
Q: Gone fine.
B: Thank you.
Q: A few questions ago somebody was asking about (?) encounters, meeting UFO beings on a one-to-one... A few questions ago they were talking about...
B: Face-to-face encounters between beings of your world and beings of other worlds, yes.
Q: As to what’s holding that back...
B: Nothing is holding that back: it is progressing nicely, thank you.
Q: Oh, so the obstacles to be removed, as we create them, because we sort of... I’m just guessing at this. We must have created a delicacy to our situation to not have...
B: In a sense; the idea is that because you still consider yourselves to be segregated beings in many ways, and do not function as unitized individuals, then, to some degree, the vibratory frequency upon which you do exist is somewhat – not meaning to be derogatory – slower than the vibratory frequency of an integrated being.
And in this way, therefore, bringing a higher frequency in proximity to a lower frequency, like a faster gear and a slower gear, the faster gear will have a tendency to overwhelm the slower gear, forcing it to go faster than it is, at this point, built to go.
Q: (–?) take all the teeth off of (–?)
B: Yes. And therefore, we simply proceed at whatever rate will determine the amount, or lack of friction in that gear, as we perceive you to be adding more and more lubrication that will allow it to turn faster and faster and faster.
The lubrication is your willingness to simply know that you create your own reality, and to act that way. To enjoy life, love, service, integrity, that is the lubrication. It will allow you to spin as fast as you desire to spin. It will allow you to meet head on and face-to-face any other gear spinning at any speed. Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, that’s fine, thank you.
B: Thank you for your sharing.

Synchronizing Frequencies
Systems of Belief

B: All right, I’ll say how are you all this evening of your time as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great.
B: Oh, thank you. Allow us to begin with the idea, this interaction: systems of belief. This can also be your title for this evening, if you wish.
AUD: What was it?
B: Systems of Belief.
Systems, structures, the idea of that which forms a pattern, a series or cycle of ideas or observations which allow you to create a perception of continuity and cohesion. Systems of belief.
Now, we have discussed with you many times the idea that it is your beliefs that create the physical reality you experience. Each and every one of these beliefs is the representation of a particular vibrational resonance, a particular frequency of the fundamental energy patterns that give rise to physical reality, a particular vibration.
And so as that vibration is manifested into your physical reality, as it is manifested as your physiological experiential reality – because it operates on a certain wave length, shall we say, it will have a tendency in physiological reality to gather to itself patterns of vibratory frequency that are similar in nature to the original vibration. In this way it will key into other beliefs, other vibratory patterns that will aggregate around this primary belief so as to set up what appears to be a frame of reference in which to understand and be able to perceive the original belief by surrounding itself with slightly out-of-phase vibrations. Similar but not exact, so that you have a reference point – some surroundings, some illusion of background – against which you can see the primary belief.
This aggregation, this drawing together of similar belief systems, so as to allow the primary belief to stand out, occurs quite automatically, quite naturally within you – as you say, quite second nature – so rapidly, so quickly that you may not even realize, or have not realized, that this is what you are doing to create the seeming background of reality that in your society you have had a tendency to think of simply as, quote/unquote, that’s the way reality is. Your life happens in this reality; in the specific beliefs of your reality (they) manifest themselves against this backdrop of the overall reality.
But this overall reality is not simply, "That’s the way it is. It is the background that you create by surrounding the primary belief structure you have with similar belief structures, so that you can create a gradation, a variation of beliefs to expand outward from you to create a backdrop against which to see the primary belief of your life, the primary focus of your life.
Now, these structures after a time have become ingrained within you to the extent that you take this background for granted. And you simply, as we have said, think of it much as if it is something that exists without you. In this way, it has been one of the primary mechanisms that has allowed you to experience the illusion of the universal reality as seemingly outside of yourselves,
You may recognize that in your society quite often, because of the repetition of this idea, because this is now the way you automatically, as you say, set the stage, you have created many ideas in your society that there is only one way for this stage to be set. And it is against only that background that you measure everything in your life.

But recognize: as soon as you change the fundamental primary focus beliefs that represent the being you are, the entire background changes with it. Everything changes. Everything is connected; everything is the same one thing. And a change in the primary focus creates what you colloquially call the domino effect, and changes occur all the way down the line in the entire pattern, in the entire backdrop. It may seem at times to be subtle. But they are far-ranging and quite widespread – if you will allow yourselves to recognize that they exist.

Many times, therefore, when you seek to create changes in your own live, your own primary system focus, many times you will only continuously weigh that primary focus or change against a background that you will not allow yourselves to see has changed. But if you are willing to recognize that everything changes when you change anything, then many times you will not see the primary background in the same light. You will begin to realize that something is different – somewhere, somehow.

In this way many times, this is why many of you create the seeming contradictions in your life. For you say that you wish to change the primary focus; but then when you look around in the background, you continually watch to see the same background – in a sense, to see the idea of your primary focus against the same background, rather than allowing the entire background to be a part of the primary focus, and change along with it. When you look at the background in the same way you used to, you immediately cancel the change you made in your primary focus. Because it is all one and the same thing.

The echo, the background, carries its origin point from the original sound. Many of you many times will look to this echo to see changes occur in the echo before you will allow yourselves to validate the changes you know you have made, or you desire to make, in the primary focus of your being. But if you seek validation in the echo, then you will only continue in the reality in which you have already focus yourselves. Because the validation must come in the primary sound, the primary signal, first – before you will see it in the echo of the background reality you consider to be your exterior universe. Is all of this translating?

AUD: Yes.

B: Therefore recognize simply that one primary belief will always, in physical reality, extend itself to create a seeming system of beliefs with which it becomes surrounded and supported so that the primary belief can have a place, can have an existence, in physical reality. No belief will exist unto itself in a void, as you say. Every belief brings with it a complete and total entourage, if you will, a complete and total set of props. A complete and total backdrop, a complete and total stage, and a complete and total audience receptive to that particular play.

AUD: Ah! Huh!

B: Ah! In this way, therefore, allow yourselves, if you truly desire to change the primary focuses in your lives, the primary beliefs that you are allowing yourselves to be in touch with – do not play them out in the same stage. Allow yourselves to know you are in a completely different locale. Everything has changed – everything. You follow me?

AUD: Yes. Mmhmm.

B: Thus then, you can recognize that whole systems of reality – not just one portion, but the total system of reality that you perceive your lives to be – will then change from system to system, not just particle to particle. Everything will transform in that way. Many individuals in your society simply have but to realize that many of the things they wish to see occur, many of the things they desire to see validations of in a particular specific sense, will also occur if they will change the entire system first. Then all the particles that go along with the representation of the new system will also be there as well.

You can do it either way. As we have said: cause and effect are the same event; you can work it from both directions. You can have a cause, which creates an effect; you can have an effect, which creates a cause. You can change the whole system; you can change a specific within the system. And in every case both the specifics and the system change. You can work it from either end – inside out, backwards/forwards, upside down. It doesn’t matter.

Simply when you do make the change, allow yourselves to function as if a change has occurred across the entire spectrum. Otherwise all you are doing is focusing yourselves into a localized specific effect. And you do not allow yourselves to see how the change you have made in yourselves has made a change in the reality you desire around you to see.

You follow along?

AUD: Yes.

B: Sharing.

Taking It In Stride

Q: Hello Mr. Ambassomat!
B: Hello, Mr. Ambassadorable.
Q: Thank you very much. I was wondering if you would pick up on the reverse and call me Mr. Diplodoor.
B: Thank you.
Q: Another variation.
B: Yes.
Q: I have a very deep, probing, incisive question for you tonight.
B: Oh, all right, surgical precision about to take place.
Q: Do you have any money riding on the World Series?
B: No.
Q: Actually I don’t really have a big question or anything. But I have been fascinated by the perturbations in our status quo.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: Status quo.
B: Yes.
Q: Our earthquake a month ago or so…
B: Yes?
Q: And now…
B: And then your economy quake.
Q: Yes. (10-87)
B: Everything is being shaken up.
Q: Yeah. I was really…I just am really proud of us for not panicking on this thing.
B: Yes.
Q: You know, we got our computers…
B: You notice the difference now!
Q: Yes.
B: Yes. You are taking it in stride: “Oh, just another major economic upheaval! Just another symbol rearranges itself again.”
Q: Yeah. And I got the feeling that people were going: “Hey, we can have here large perturbations without the sky falling in, so to speak. And, oh, now we can relax, because it’s not going to happen disastrously again.”
B: Very good.
Q: Yeah. So I think this was the year for that, isn’t... you said something like that, didn’t you?
B: Yes. What you call you ‘87 has been, in many ways, the Convergence and the Year of Manifestation and Recognition. Your year of ‘88 – if we can apply any label to it at all – could be the Year of Conviction.
Q: Yeah. As a result of seeing...
B: (Mutterings from the audience, as the channel’s head swivels around, sweeping back and forth) Oh, oh! Conviction! Oh!
Q: As a result of seeing these perturbations not be disastrous.
B: Yes.
Q: Yeah.
B: Thank you!
Q: Any, quote/unquote, predictions for Halloween in terms of a perturbation in some other area?
B: Just the story that we have to share next week of your time.
Q: Oh, that’s going to be...
B: That might shake a few of you up a little bit.
Q: Okay. Thank you, Mr. Diplodoor.
B: Oh, thank you very much. Sharing!
Taking the Middle Road

Q: Talking about going into different dimensions... yesterday I was in meditation, and during the meditation I saw seven doorways. I think they were doorways, and I stood next them, and like, I think I threw a piece of paper in; it sucked it in, and so I just went away from it. Can you tell me anything about what that was?

B: Bring up the feeling within yourself.

Q: I’m scared.

B: Why? Why fear?

Q: Because I didn’t know what was on the other side of the doorway.

B: So what. May I ask you a question?

Q: Yes.

B: Why do you make the assumption that if you make a motion, that your first reaction must be, or must have been from fear?

Q: Maybe it was doubt?

B: Much the same thing. Why negative?

Q: I think it is just a subconscious thing... a black hole. I don’t know what is on the other side of it... I would be fearful of that.

B: You would, why?

Q: I don’t know what’s inside.

B: So what.

Q: So, then I’m not going to go into it.

B: Why not?

Q: Because I’m afraid.

B: Why?

Q: Because it’s dark.

B: So what.

Q: I don’t like the dark.

B: All right. So, turn on the light.

Q: There wasn’t a switch.

B: There is within you.

Q: I don’t know where it’s at.

B: Yes, you do. It is within your imagination.

Q: So, the next time that happens, just...
B: Go...
Q: Look for a switch. (Audience laughs) I would like to ask you another question, if I can? I’m getting little bumps all over my arms and stuff, and they itch like crazy. Do you know what that is?
B: We have gone through this before.
Q: When?
B: Many times in many different ways.
Q2: With me last Thursday.
Q: I wish him luck.
B: You do?
Q: Will you go over it again? (Audience laughs)
B: What have you already decided for yourself that it might be representative of?
Q: Just toxins in the bloodstream.
B: For what reason?
Q: To get rid of some toxins flooding out to the skin.
B: In that you may be creating the idea of your skin to be, what you recognize, as a barrier between the outer you and the inner you. Many times, many individuals upon your planet are forming, let us say, allowing the idea of your skin to be the representational borderline between the inner you and the outer you, in a literal manner. Then many times any so-called fears will allow your skin to become the battle zone in the blending of those ideas because you will be making a distinction, here is where I end, and all of that stuff begins.
Q: Well, that’s true for a physical being...
B: It is not.
Q: Yeah, well, we live in an illusion and I...
B: Yes, it is an illusion. And the idea is to simply know that you are infinite, and that if you remove the depth and the limit of your perception beyond the level of your physical body, then you will not allow that membrane to have to take the load of filtering the outside to the in, the inside to the out – merge, blend.
Q: So, just sort of stay peaceful?
B: In a sense, you can draw an analogy in your society that individuals who recognize that there is a choice in situations not having to affect them negatively are, in your society, called thick skinned for a reason. The idea is that their focus is not so precisely right on the border between inner and outer. They are more diffused. Things do not have to affect them negatively because they are not allowing there to an abrupt transition between the inner and the outer. They are able to create an absorption gently. Because it is a diffused idea, where they end and where reality, out here, begins... where that ends and they begin... is nebulous.
Q: Well, his reading was good on it, love’s connections. How did it function?
B: Mint, and energized by you or someone else with blue/white light, water. One idea which can assist you, again, that other individuals have found assistance with because it is a product of the mass consciousness, will be to immerse yourself in nearly body temperature water; so that there will be less distinction between where your body ends and the outside world begins. That is a meditation, a physical meditation that can allow there to be a blending. You follow me?
Q: Yeah, I did that last week and then added some salt…
B: All right, just water. Energized water, near body temperature.
Q: Energized, does there have to be white light in it?
B: Yes. Then relax…
Q2: There doesn’t have to be salt?
B: There doesn’t have to be. You can take advantage of the natural crystalline vibrational arrangement of water.
Q3: How?
B: By aligning it with your own auric electromagnetic, blue/white energy field. Thank you.
Talking to Yourself

B: All right I’ll say, allow me to remind you, before we continue with the idea of interaction, that each and every thing that has been shared this evening of your time, each and every idea you have allowed yourself to understand has not been because I am so much wiser. Simply recognize, that anything that you allow yourself to hear, anything you take to your heart has been because you have been willing to say these ideas to yourself. Therefore, recognize you do not need me, you do not need us, you do not need anyone, at any given time you desire to recreate the same degree of conviction you have created for yourself within the interaction, and to create for yourself whatever you know to be true for you – anywhere, anytime. You follow me?

Audience collectively: Yes.

B: Sharing.

Tau Ceti & Quetzalcoatl Interactions

Questioner: Will there be any interactions between the Martians and the Tau Cetians before the Tau Cetians interact with the humans?
B: There is already some degree of interaction, some of it a little more clear, telepathically, than the interactions that already are beginning to exist or be created between the Tau Cetians and earth humans, but mostly this is through what you call the Shamans.

Q: Okay. There has been an allegation that the Anasazi Indians practiced cannibalism, because some of the bones that were found, the bone marrow was chewed out. Can you confirm that?
B: This was what you call in isolated events in certain off-shoots from time to time due to certain circumstances and hardships and also from time to time due to certain, what you would call, religious beliefs or alterations in their beliefs.

Q: Does that extend from the Martian culture?
B: No.

Q: In Mexico there’s been, along with the UFO’s that have recently been seen, there’s been some green orbs of light streaking through the atmosphere. Any comment on that?
B: No.

Q: I recently watched the Miami Connection.
B: Define.

Q: A replay of the Pleiadians, they’re claiming now that they have a contact in Miami?
B: No comment.

Q: What was brought out was that Quetzalcoatl and the Pleiadians’ ships that were seen with the Billy Meier’s incident were identical to the ones that have been seen in the Mexico City . . .
B: As we have said, “the plethora in an around your Mexican area do, in many cases, not all, many cases represent what you would call the return of the consciousness of Quetzalcoatl and some of the beings that are of that species. It is connected or cross-connected to some of the Pleiadian concepts but it is not identical, there is more than one aspect to the concept of Quetzalcoatl. Some of them are different in the same way that you have understood, in Cosmic Voyage, that there are differences in the Greys in terms of time value. So in the return there is a more ancient connection than what may, in your terms, be the present connection or cross-connection to Pleiadian consciousness.”
Tau Ceti Transmissions and the Starlight Coalition

B: Good day.
Q: Good day to you, nice to be in your presence once again.
B: And yours as well.
Q: The first thing I’d like to request is if the timing is auspicious for an interaction with the beings from Tau Ceti?
B: Move on...(Much laughter from audience) Though we will give you this: one moment...one of the strongest ways to pick up on their frequency at this timing is to more strongly identify with the life form on your planet that is already capable of being sensitive enough to pick up upon the leading edge of their consciousness transmission. The life forms already sensitive enough to translate and perceive the leading edge of their transmissions are, what you would recognize as, the tall pine trees. Begin more interaction in identifying, that is, synchronizing your frequency to that of the tall pine trees, spruce and the like, that are already acting as antennae to pick up upon their energy. For it is a subtle thing now, and as you identify and lock, step, and harmonize with their energy, that is the energy of trees, you will begin to act also as an antenna for the reception and orientation and clarification and incorporation of the Tau Ceti vibration. Was that transmission clear enough?
Q: Yes, thank you very much. The next question that I would like to ask you is are you familiar with the group of individuals on our planet that come together and call themselves the Starlight Coalition?
B: Define.
Q: It is composed of individuals, mainly astronauts, Ed Mitchell, Gordon Cooper and Brian O’Leary, and they’re here to brief high officials with the best information. And they’re working with Laurence Rockefeller to get an executive order to grant immunity to any individuals who break their security oaths regarding UFO information, to bring this information to mankind.
B: All right. And so?
Q: I was wondering if you could perceive...
B: Watch what you ask. Watch what you ask! Be aware, alert and conscious of what you are now saying. Proceed if you dare!
Q: Do you see this plan coming about?
B: Watch how you ask. You know better than this.
Q: Long pause...
B: Do you see yourself assisting them?
Q: Tape ends...

Tau Cetian Revelations

B: Yes.
Q: To continue on the line of questioning about the nuclear detonations in our atmosphere and below ground, are they, the current ones, I think China detonated one last fall, above ground and France below ground, are those partially responsible, the above ground detonations...do they last about 90 days...reverberate in the atmosphere?
B: 180 days.
Q: And are they partially responsible for some of the whales beaching themselves?
B: That is something else but it is a long legacy of connections to the idea of alterations to that ecosystem on the part of experimentations that your species has done.
Q: And have the current below ground detonations been partially responsible for some of the recent quakes that we have had in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Mexico?
B: No, none of them.
Q: Okay. And are all passing comets from the explosion of Maldek?
B: No, many of them are, as many of your scientists understand, from the original formation of your system. It coalesces in its solidification or crystallization as a planetary system, many such remnants formed naturally in rings and halos around the star.
Q: So they have been with us for billions of years then?
B: Yes. There are a few, in that sense, relatively speaking, though even this may be thousands that were generated from the Maldek incident, but this is by far nowhere near the amount of debris, in that sense, that exists in total.
Q: To change the subject recently was in contact with some information from George Andrews...
B: Yes.
Q: he gave the first description that I had heard of the beings that he calls the Browns, who are from Tau Ceti...
B: All Right.
Q: he said that they would be not recognizable in a crowd of people, however, if you were to look at them closely they would not have eye lashes, they have Mediterranean bronze skin, mostly brown hair but occasionally black, and brown eyes.
B: Yes.
Q: And he also recommended that our government should work towards making treaties and agreements with them rather than with the Greys, as we have in the past...
B: Yes, it would be to your planetary benefit to form an alliance and a coalition with the civilization in Tau Ceti.

Q: And he also talked about the Blonds, who he said, “in ancient time were known as the Olympians.”

B: From time to time, some of them have been regarded as such, yes.

Q: And that they were divided into several different groups and that they were, in his reference, very wise and sagacious?

B: Again, there are many varieties of entities that you might refer to as the Blonds, some of them are representative of that group, some of them are not.

Q: And a personal question, as we interact more with the Pleiadian beings, what electromagnetheric bandwidth will we find them on?

B: Obviously above 144,000 cycle per second. Note: This is the beginning of the 4th density threshold level

Q: And they claim to be able to time travel, as well as the Sassanians and Greys, do you all use different types of techniques to travel in time?

B: There are slightly different methodologies but it is all based on the same fundamental principle. But yes, we have different technologies, just as you have different technologies to travel in the way that you do.

Q: And do you all require ships to do that?

B: Not all beings require ships to do that, no.

Q: And the last things I would like to talk to you about before I get to one of my homework assignments is, what are some of the conditions that exist in the formation of the natural monatomics…that we find naturally? Does it have to do with the combination of elements or pressures, et cetera?

B: It will have to do with heat, sometimes with the combination of elements as they interact as catalysts for each other, only very rarely does pressure really play a part, per se, although it can if it generates a sufficient amount of heat in a local. Mostly it is the heat and the combination and, of course, that there be a sufficient amount of transitional elements in the mix.

Q: And does it have anything to with the... any kind of etheric blueprint that might be laid down?

B: Everything has to do with the etheric blueprint that winds up in physical reality. Yes, of course, it is part of the etheric blueprint.

Q: In the sense that it was specifically laid down for use in the physical plane?

B: Yes.

Q: And the last thing is, when I asked you about Neptune having the ability to emit three times more energy than it takes in from the sun, one of the anomalies that I found in searching this out was its moon, Triton, which has, according to the source I was reading, the only retrograde satellite in our Solar System and...
B: And
Q: ...and the fact that it is ninth planet which is the 3 x 3, and I was wondering about Triton, was it a capture satellite or is it from Neptune itself?
B: It is part of a rebalance of a disturbance, an ancient disturbance in your Solar System from the passage of large bodies.
Q: Was it struck and set in its motion?
B: Not struck so much but gravitationally perturbed.
Q: And were Pluto and its moon...
B: It is interesting how you continual to come up with more last questions. Audience laughs
Q: It was in reference to Neptune and its generation of more energy coming out, I was wondering, was Pluto and its moon originally a moon, a satellite of Neptune?
B: No, but of something else of which you know not. Thank you.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: At this timing we once again extend to each and every one of you our appreciation for the allowance of the establishment of the link at this time...one moment...one moment...one moment...one moment...one moment...one moment...one moment...one moment...one moment. Each and every one of you take a deep breath...and a second...and a third. One moment....one moment...a new link is being established for the purpose of accelerating the connection and association and interaction of your system with that of the system of Tau Ceti, so that diplomatic relations may begin in short order. We thank you for allowing a new web, a new strand to be crystallized; this will become intermeshed in some future interactions and brought forth. We thank you and good day.
Audience: Good day.
Tau Cetians
Circa 1995

Questioner: A few things on the beings from Tau Ceti.
B: Yes.
Q: Do they have the need for foodstuffs?
B: Yes, but different than you understand.
Q: Do they sleep?
B: Yes, but a different way than you understand.
Q: Do they have speech to communicate or are they telepathic?
B: Yes, yes.
Q: Do they experience emotion?
B: Yes.
Q: And the fact that they don’t have eyelashes, what type of atmosphere are they used to on their home planet?
B: It is not too unlike your own, it is simply different environmental and genetic conditions that have resulted in that idea.
Q: Do they have reproductive capabilities?
B: Yes.
Q: Similar to ours?
B: To some degree, for the most part there are a few subtle differences enzymatically.
Q: Are they more carbon based or are we more carbon based genetically?
B: You are both in a sense carbon based and you both exhibit attributes of energization of silicones as well.
Q: What type of ships will we recognize as theirs?
B: No comment at this time.
Tau Cetians on the Dream Level

Q: Are the beings from Tau Ceti humanoid?
B: Yes.

Q: Are we interacting with them on a dream level?
B: Yes. There have begun to be some dream level interactions since about, what you would call, your 1950s.

Q: Is it a binary star system, where these beings are from?
B: No.

Q: Is there a home planet?
B: Yes.

Q: Does it have a name?
B: For now just allow yourself to go by the name you have given it. It is premature to label things in these interactions now. The interactions with Tau Ceti individuality, as we have said, are potentially coming up in your near future. No more, at this time, right now about them.

Q: Do beings from a binary star system have two heart chakras?
B: Not necessarily, no. It doesn’t necessarily always work that way, although there are realities in which that could be probable.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Tau Cetians on the Dream Level
Nuclear Stability

Q. There was an attempt to stabilize the tectonic energies, and... B. There have been several such attempts, are you referring to a specific attempt? Q. Yea, the one off the coast of San Francisco, the big craft et., et. B. Yes, Yes. Q. Which is uncharacteristic, that 's not the question. .. What I wanted to get at is have also mentioned that there was a possibility of a nuclear device in the Middle East falling into the wrong hands. B. Well falling into hands. Q. So it’s seems uncharacteristic of a craft to alter tectonic plates, but that’s okay, no judgment there, why would they not want to help on the nuclear side the real question is, what are we supposed to do with information that you give us like—a nuclear device in the next three years into certain hands ? B. What ever you want to do with it that’s the point. The idea of the assistance that we are capable of giving is simply a matter of reading the collective consciousness of your planet to see where the likelihood and momentum of your collective energy may most likely, most probable be headed concurrently with taking an assessment or a reading of the collective consciousness es willingness or ability to make certain changes, and that reading of the willingness or ability to make certain changes on your own is what gives us whatever degree of permission we are given by your collective consciousness to interact on certain levels with certain events . We are not in anyway shape or form intervening or interfering. We are acting to the degree and only to the degree that we assess, based on the reading of the collective consciousness’ willingness to deal with that energy to begin with on it’s own, so we can give you a little bit of forewarning and a little bit of insight into certain things that you have given us permission to give you some insight about because you are all ready expressing a willingness to take responsibility and deal with the information in your own way, and on your own terms. That is the only kind of interaction that we can actually have with you. Does that make sense? Q. Yes
Teenager Help

Q: Though the past four or five years a lot of teenagers come through my doors. I’ve opened them up to metaphysics. Is there anything more I can do for them?

B: You can continue to love them. You are giving them what they need. By assimilating the things you are discovering coming through your doors, or by the doors you are walking through, you will expand in ways that will give you more information to share with them.

So simply continue to grow, to learn as you are doing, with excitement, with joy, with love, with giving, with sharing. You have been a teacher many, many times. You are comfortable with the scenario, and they are comfortable with you.

Q: Is there anything I can give to their parents that would assist them? Especially the ones that are homeless.

B: You can keep their parents after school. At this point, not really. Except perhaps your views of how much you do love them. And your view on the potentials you see within them. So that they may focus on the potentials, rather than what they may be perceiving as the lack.

You follow me?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much.
Teetering in Uncertainty

Q: So the thing I’d like to discuss, I have a tendency to maybe. . . .
B: You what? In this day an age. One moment I am making sure I heard you correctly—I have a tendency?
Q: I know that my spirit is one of an activist, and, sort of a warrior.
B: Sort of?
Q: And a warrior. I’ve attempted to put my sword away back in it’s velvet sheath.
B: You just have to learn to use it differently, you don’t have to put it away.
Q: And, I think I am. It’s just that I’ve become very aware of allot of things. Allot of conspiracy type things that could make one feel very uncomfortable. And I feel. . . .
B: Were you present earlier in this communication.
Q: Yes I was.
B: When we talked about the idea of paranoia being it’s own reward
Q: Yes I was, but I don’t see it as paranoia because I don’t think I’m necessarily paranoid.
B: I am not saying that certain things that people on you planet say exist, don’t exist. I am not saying, as many of you all ready absolutely know that there are not covert organizations on your planet, and I am not saying that many of these organizations do not engage in certain programs that do bring about some of the things that some people on your planet have said that they do. I’m not saying that they don’t exist but as always from the beginning I still say—“your vibration determines the reality you will ultimately experience and exactly how much effect they will be able to have on you is determined by how much effect you create them to have upon you.
Q: Right, or how much power I I give that particular idea.
B: Yes.
Q: That’s my challenge because I want to be informed about this stuff, I don’t want to ignore it, I don’t think that’s the right to do
B: All right don’t ignore it.
Q: But I don’t want to get paranoid and create that.
B: All right then don’t. What makes you think you will?
Q: Well because some of the information is pretty chilling and. . . .
B: All right. One moment back up, we have hit a core issue, we have hit a core issue. Are you with you know?
Q: I’m with you.
B: All right.
Q: Are you with me?
B: Oh absolutely and always and forever.
Q: I feel it and appreciate it.
B: You want to live in the vibration that you want to live in, you don’t want to ignore anything and you don’t want to get caught up in what you don’t prefer.
Q: Correct, thank you very much for putting that together.
B: What does this say? One word—uncertainty. You are teetering in uncertainty about your innate ability to decide what is true for you out of all the things you know are true. You can know that something is happening, you don’t have to ignore it, but to know it doesn’t mean that you choose to experience to the same degree that thing that others might
Q: Right.
B: Again, it is the library analogy. You know that all those book are on the shelves some very scary horror novels are there. You know they’re there you can look at the titles, someone asked where can I find the book called the end of life as we know it? Right there, big and bold, black and white, polarized letters right there, there it is. You can even maybe scan through—look oh isn’t this interesting. Look at this the death of all life is a most horrible fashion, look at that isn’t that interesting? Wow, wow, but you don’t have to check the book out of the library if you don’t want to, and if you don’t check it out, it’s not your really. You can go into that space and become aware of all the negativity you want, if you want to call it that. Remember: as we remind all of you, the more expanded you become the more aware you become of negativity as well as positivity. The more you expand the more you become aware of the dark and the light, but just becoming aware of it doesn’t mean that’s what you choose.
Telepathy and the Written Word

Q: On Atlantis and Lemuria, did they have a written language?

B: Yes. Not so much in Lemuria, except in later times. In the beginning times, no... all the beings were telepathic and had no need, except perhaps, for artistic reasons. But it was not really a language as such, it was simply pictograms that when looked upon would instill within the mind of an individual looking upon them ALL of the information that was instilled by the original individual who had created the pictogram, as if it were a holographic, mnemonic device, in that sense. Language was developed more highly later on in Atlantean times, in the form that you now understand as a written language.

Telepathy and the Written Word
Template Metaphysics

Section One:

Now, since this chapter is the completion chapter of the main body of the work so far, allow us, at this time of your time, to deal with the idea, the overall idea of the work being that, which we have called in your language, "Template Metaphysics." This idea, this foundational reference, will be seen to be just that, "foundational reference;" and through this chapter we will indicate and apply this reference to all the different ideas within the different chapters we have previously discussed, allowing there to be an indication of how this reference underlies all the different disciplines upon your world.

To begin with, as we approach the idea from what you call the scientific point of view, you will find that what we call "the template" will be a reference to:

· The underlying substructure of that which you call physical reality.
· The underlying substructure of that which you recognize, at this point, to be the underlying physical substructure.
· The energy-homogeneous field out all matter, space and time are created.

In this way, you can recognize that while your scientists are searching for their unified fields, and as they allow consciousness to become a part of the equation, as we have said, they will begin to discover a field, so to speak, which is not a field, which will be represented by this idea we call the template. It is the underlying support system of all that you perceive to be physical and is, in and of itself, not really so much physical as it is implied. It has more to do with what your physicists understand to be, what they call, implicate order, enfolded within the idea of your three dimensionality.

Now, this template will touch upon many dimensions of reality, but its bearing will have a greater effect, in an actualization sense, upon the three-dimensional reality you relate to as your reality. From the scientific point of view, that everything is an equation which balances out, you can look at the equation that represents the template as both a linear expression and a geometric representational solid form, symbolic form.

The linear equation will be as follows: \( X+Y+Z+T+(−X)+(−Y)+(−Z)+(−T)=0 \).

Now, this idea, each factor with a plus in between, adding up to the idea of zero on the other side of the equation, will represent the basic balance and imply the so-called nothingness out of which all is created.

The geometric figure (See Figure 1), which represents this, will be a double-pyramidal tetrahedron, base to base, one pyramid pointing up, one pointing down; each being three-sided, having a common base, two apexes, one up, one down. The common base, the three points that form the common base for both tetrahedrons will be both the X, the Y and the Z points, and the negative X, the negative Y and the negative Z points. The upper apex will be the T point. The lower apex will be the negative T point.

Drawing a line, if you will, from the top apex to the bottom apex and passing through the central plane which defines the X, Y, Z, -X, -Y, -Z points, the center of all those points will be the zero point; the center of the entire structure.

Now, the definition of this structure, of this symbol, is as follows: Your scientists have been delving into matter, rendering it down to smaller and smaller components, searching for the basic building block of all matter. To date, they have discovered the idea that the basic, so-called, building blocks of matter out of energy comes in thirds. These thirds they have represented as being what they call "quarks," in your language.

There will be, then, the six ideas of this double tetrahedron. The faces, one, two, three... top; one, two, three... bottom, represent the idea, so to speak, of the relationship of the quark, and in this way, will show how, using the tetrahedral structure, which is the basic three-dimensional structure you can have, they, as a solid, exemplify the idea of what you call, in your scientific terms, the "uncertainty principle." Being that the basic fundamental unit of matter is, as you describe it to be, the idea of the quark, the third part of any structure you consider to be a whole, so to speak, an active part. You will see in your uncertainty principle that you cannot know what you call position and momentum, simultaneously.

If you recognize, in any tetrahedral structure, the idea that the base, forming the X, Y, Z components of space, and the apex component of time, then, you can recognize that, in the tetrahedral structure, any facet, any face of the tetrahedral structure, will contain, at any given moment, either only, if you take the base to be one face. All the X, Y, Z components of location in space, and none of the components of T, time, and, hence, none of the components of the idea of momentum but only the component of the idea of position; or any of the other faces, each of which, being in a plane that you can measure, which is open to you to measure; the idea of any two position components and one time apex component, either: X and Y and T, Y and Z and T, or Z and X and T, but none of the three altogether of X, Y, Z. And, in this way, you can see that, while you have the complete time component and hence the complete momentum component, you have only two thirds of the position component and cannot know the third.

If you are measuring X, Y and T, Y, Z and T, Z, X and T, you will always have the T, but always be missing a third, which will define, in your third dimensional reality, the X, Y, and Z that you need, to determine position.

Now, this is the structure of the crystal, the basic foundation crystal which defines the template of your physical reality, and you will find that this is the only thing that bridges physicality into non-physicality. The idea of the location of objects, the idea itself of position in time/space, is the only series of "components" which is more basic than the idea of the physicalized quark. Time/space itself is the next component that is not strictly of matter; it is quasi-reality. But it is fundamental to the basic understanding of why your physical reality exists.

For you see the idea of space/time is, in and of itself, the methodology. The definition, the creation of space/time is, in and of itself, the methodology by which you create all matter and energy in your reality. And it is this idea, which you are located within such an idea, such a construct of space/time, which gives rise to the idea that your universe is something physically existing outside yourselves.

Now, as it relates, this template idea, to all the other disciplines, religion, metaphysics, and so forth: You will find that it forms, as we said, the pattern upon which consciousness can allow the energy field to take the various shapes that it does, the various wavelengths, vibrations, amplitudes, modulations that it does, to form all the solidifications of the energy which rests upon, and is supported by, this template field.

You can, therefore, understand the idea implied in the triad in this way: How you have recognized, many times, that things are connected in the idea you call threes, as this will be a representation of the idea of the template crystal, the double tetrahedron, both positive and negative, pointing up, pointing down, to allow for all opportunities to occur within your universe. And by this one equation alone can everything be manifest.

It is this equation and the idea of the source of the consciousness at the zero rest point through which all ideas can be manifest into this six-sided, five-pointed equation which will allow you to recognize the unification of all ideas, all beliefs, all fields, all energy motions and all electromagnetic mentality in your universe.

This idea of the template is something which will, in and of itself, begin to bespeak an entirely new approach to what you call physics. It is, in and of itself, the place, so to speak, where you go when you travel in hyperspace, to the zero rest point, where all potentials are equally possible. You can then understand that all space/time, when you are at the zero rest point in what you call hyperspace, all space/time surrounds you in much the same way that the X, Y, Z, negative X, Y, Z, T and negative T components in the hyper template crystal surround the zero rest point at the center.

This idea, this solid equation, is all that is necessary to also recognize all of the idea of the source of self that is defined in all of your religions, all the idea of expansion of yourself that is defined in all religions. It is that all that you are, all that you are, everything that is, all that is, equals the nothingness out of which it all was created. All time, all space emerges from this nothingness. But it is not a nothingness of nonexistence. Existence always has existed. In this way, you can allow yourselves to recognize that it always will exist.

The template, the equation, on that level of basic, pure, fundamental existence itself, is something which you can allow yourselves to perceive as you need it in your physical reality, on whatever level your imagination allows you to perceive it, to allow yourselves to act as this crystal, as this fundamental beingness; which will show that the five points, five apexes and the six facets are all that give rise to the eleven-dimensionality that your physicists have described as being infolded into the entire idea of existence, as you perceive it. It is this structure, in and of itself, which represents all that you hold to be the expanse outwardly of your universe and inwardly of your universe.

The application of this idea will allow you to shift the vibration of the crystal into whatever you wish it to be - to shift its color, to shift its aspects, to allow it to resonate and harmonize and synchronize with every idea you have been, are now, or can become.
Recognize that, with this work, with the ability of your society to co-create this work with us, it is an indication of the fundamental recognition, the fundamental ability of your society to begin to recognize the blending it has created, and to know that the reality you have for so long considered to be only a product of the whim of a universe disconnected from yourself is now going to be everything you imagined it could be.

All of your religions will become knowingness. All of your science will become the same knowingness. All of your philosophy will become life worth living. And, with life/knowingness blended together, this will become the willingness to see yourselves at the center and as the source of All That Is.

This work will, in future times, be expanded by the interaction of your willingness to interact with it, with us, with all that you are, all that you are in contact with, and all that is in contact with you.

As, by the expression, you find yourself to be all the multidimensional facets, you will then discover all the facets that you share with everything else. And one by one, as you become the relationship of those facets, of those ideas, as you incorporate, with ease of creation, all that we have discussed in this work, then action, the same action that allows you to perceive a universe around you and within you and creation itself will be what you can directly feel, how you can directly act, what you can directly perceive yourselves to be - creation itself. And you will allow yourselves to become the total idea of the relationship of everything within All That Is.

And in that seeing, in that knowingness of yourself as the relationship of All That Is, you will become All That Is. Therefore, all of your faith, all of your scientific instruments, all of the portions of your personality, all of your past, present, future, and alternate lives, all beings everywhere, everywhen, in all multiverses, and in all dimensions of experience and expression, all are a part of you, you are a part of all. You have heard this all before. This is all nothing new, and yet, and yet this is a new birth, a new creation, even though All That Is exists in totality, this is also your new creation of the totality of All That Is. This idea of paradox and polarity will also be included in your new understanding of yourselves.

As this work is completed, we extend to you all our greetings, our welcome into a new idea of yourself, which we will share with you in many ways in years to come, as you continue to create time to exist. Your own endeavors in the fourth density reality will be what we shall discuss briefly in the second half of this chapter of the work. This will be the ending of the first section.

Now, as this work concludes, allow me to remind you that we are not better than you. We do not know everything there is to know, though we know that, on some level, we are All That Is, which knows all there is. Like you, we are travelers through the universe of our being. We have our own discoveries. We have our own creations and our own co-creations, one of which is with you and your civilization. We share the exploration of ourselves and yourselves so that we may both grow in understanding of that much more of All That Is. And, in our sharing, there through our creations, becomes that much more of All That Is for both our civilizations to explore together.
The time is approaching when we and others will be able to interact freely upon the surface of your planet once again with you, as you conclude the 25,000-year cycle of separation from the All That Is that you are, and allow yourselves the integration and integrity to recognize that you have every right to have the type of reality that you wish upon your planet; harmony, unconditional love and peace, and the self-empowerment and the freedom of choice to create them and all that comes with it.

These ideas will be explored by you in your fourth density state.

Disease will be a tool you no longer need. Your life span will increase to include the expanded idea of yourself, not requiring many lives to act out any particular idea you wish to physically experience, but being able to contain it all in one extended life. And these lives, these physical lives will occur less frequently as you allow yourselves to recognize that all that you have considered to be your karma is completely self imposed. And you allow yourselves to know that the cycle of reincarnation in this particular plane is something, as a tool, you are also through with... almost.

You will see and perceive energies which you will know to be extensions of yourselves, and you will see in those extensions and those energies how those energies form one idea, that each of you, without losing your individuality, can perceive to be one being that you all are. Recognizing the multidimensionality that you each are will allow you to express the individuality, the diversity, the uniqueness that you are, that much more boldly and creatively and lovingly.

You will all know that, with your own self-empowerment, you are all as powerful as you need to be to have any idea upon your world manifest in any way, shape, or form that you wish, without needing to force your views upon anyone, nor make anyone do anything to make you feel powerful. If you know you are powerful, you do not need to make anyone else make you feel powerful. Ah these ideas will be blending in your fourth density state.

You will be breathing a new atmosphere, which will be an extension of the clarity of your own consciousness, and it will be both crystalline and sweet, perfumed with the sweetness of your own unconditional love. The vibration of the Earth crystal will be in harmony with you. The green of the emerald Earth, the blue of your knowing spirituality, and the violet of your all creating consciousness will be the banners that you clothe your world within and that you expand into space upon your ships, as we have done, as countless civilizations have done.

You will be, much as we are interacting with you, interacting with other civilizations, allowing your unconditional love and service to All That Is to allow them the choices that you have allowed yourselves and offered us to assist you with. You will live full lives on all levels of your being; in joy, in love and light and laughter.

Allow me to remind you, all ideas of separation and the mechanism that perpetuates separation will dissolve from the fabric of your society. All will be perceived as interwoven, inseparable, though, once again, will be perceived as individualized. And in this way, you will beat with one heart. You will think with one mentality. You will believe with one knowing idea. And in all of this oneness will still be the granting of validity to the infinite diversity and further recognition of yourselves as All That Is.
We transform with you and, as such, as you blend within yourselves, your pasts, presents, and futures, so, also, do we.

This work shall be the signpost for us of that transformation and the last information we shall communicate to you in the manner we have communicated it. There shall be, from this point forward, for us, a blending, as well. And this will mark the beginning of our willingness to interact with you in fourth density consciousness reality. For all those that shall now interact with us will be of that vibration alone.

Dr. Chandley: It has been presented that a relationship exists between musical notes and combination of notes and alphabetics. There seems to be an understanding that the alphabetics from music, as in Mozart’s 24th piano concerto and in other works of Bach, may possess information that appears to apply to the process of integration. Can you comment on this idea?

The Association: Very good. Recognize that many of what you call mathematicians and composers and linguists have all recognized similar patterns of vibrational energy. These patterns of vibrational energy represent the nexus points of which we spoke that are indicative of the vibrational signatures, patterns which represent the overall mass conscious agreements and reflections and creations that formed the definition of your dimension of your universe.

Thus, you will find that when these vibrational patterns are re-expressed in various ways, by playing the music, even vocally, or through language, or even mentally, these ideas will be in synchronous harmony with the vibrational patterns which already exist in signature form. As these vibrational patterns are expressed, they impress themselves upon the electromagnetic flux and fluid and field of your planet and your universe.

These ideas you chose to experience are those that are in harmony, in synchronous resonance with those patterns that already exist in the template that defines the reality you have chosen to experience, and thus, will carry the greatest weight for you, the greatest force for you.

They will reinforce themselves with their own standing waves. They will be reflections of the resonant harmonies that already represent the foundational structure of the reality you are experiencing. And that is why they are felt through the ages and why you consider them to be eternal. Do you follow me?

Dr. Chandley: Yes, I do. Can this musical harmonic be translated by a medium in words, while in trance listening to the music?

The Association: It can be done.

Dr. Chandley: Thank you. From one point of view, it is said we can program our subconscious mind to work out problems or situations while we sleep. This is an idea that has come up in many of our articles in magazines.

The Association: Yes.

Dr. Chandley: But it never says how this programming can be done.

The Association: You have many, many beings upon your planet that suggest various methods of how.
Recognize, it is, again, simple enough to allow yourself to go into your imagination, recognizing that your imagination, as the tool which vibrates in harmony and resonance for you, is programmed for you, and whatever your imagination tells you is the way you can do it, will be the way you can do it; whether it be as simple as simply telling yourself this is what you will do or inventing an hour-long ritual to allow yourself to know you have arrived at the proper conclusion to know that this is what you will do.

Dr. Chandley: So, a ritual would work, if that’s the bridge to having no ritual at all.

The Association: If that is based upon your belief system, yes.

Dr. Chandley: And if it is not based on a belief system?

The Association: You will find out in short order.

We will thank you for your gift of unconditional love in the creation of yourselves as you are, and the allowance by yourselves, your willingness to interact, and your willingness to create. We love you, deeply, from the very core of our beings. And we will communicate with you again, through another facet of our being.

This will conclude the main body of the work.
If you want something to manifest you must be the vessel through which it can manifest, otherwise there is nowhere where it can manifest. If you are not being that vessel, how can it manifest? You have to be that state in order for the reality to manifest. Again remember, life doesn’t happen to you, it happens through you. If you’re not vibrating like the gate it can’t come through the gate.

It cannot manifest, it cannot crystallize, it cannot solidify. You can be the idea of a cup all you want, it won’t hold water! You have to be the cup, physically, to hold the physical water.

Most of you rely only on the concept of the imagination to be the manifestor instead of understanding that physical action is the expression of the imagination, when you don’t make a separation between physicality and spirit. There is no separation between belief and action. Your imagination becomes real only as you are the manifestation of your imagination through the action.

If it really were real to you, nothing would stop you from acting it out. You would become one and the same with your imagination, and there would be no thought of there being a difference between you and your imagination. As long as you keep saying you have an imagination, you are not being your imagination, and that’s the difference.

You are creative thought. You are physical reality - you’re not in it. It is you. Be the reality according to the highest degree of the vibration of excitement that you are. You can imagine many things, but they are in ‘potentiality’ in your particular dimension, except for the one that is representative of your particular conduit of excitement. That one can physiologically manifest if you act upon it.
BASHAR PEARLS

Each and every one of you is a spark, a facet in the multidimensional crystal that your world is transforming into. Each and every one is a crystal unto yourself, your own master crystal, your own master vibration. This is your life of transformation, it is the end of the cycle of separation. It is the beginning of the cycle of integration, harmony, peace and love. You are all bright and shining mirrors, bright and shining stars. Allow yourselves to know that you can burn as brightly as you wish and you will never be depleted. You are infinite, eternal, bottomless. There is no height or depth you could possibly ever reach where you could find a barrier, a stopping point - none. The infinite is limitless - you are infinite. When you know that, when you ‘take that to heart’, you will be as joyous as the dolphin and you will have learned their greatest lesson.

PRAYER

True prayer acknowledges you will always work with whoever it is appropriate that you work with, on whatever dimensional level, but first and foremost, open yourself to those who are immediately in relationship with that you call your guides and with your immediate reality. The prayer idea is this - prayer must always be in the present to be effective because All That Is exists only in the NOW. Thus the true idea of prayer is to envision and to feel and to radiate and to ask and express gratitude for that which already exists. Instead of asking ‘please give me what I do not have’, prayer is for the asking for assistance to be shown what you already have because you have already been given everything. Everything has already been created in that sense. And the manifestation thereof is simply the process of being helped to be make aware that it is already existing within the reality of your vibrational preference. So, prayer is not asking for things that you don’t have, but asking for enlightenment to see what is already present and thus create or allow to be created the manifestation of that which is already within you.

The more you align with your natural Self, the more the transformation will impact you only in effortless and positive ways. That’s all there is to it. It’s unconditional love of yourself and All That Is and the willingness to behave as if you know there is no other choice but that reality for you. Thought, word and deed are one. Allow yourself to know this in every fiber of your being, in every cell of your essence. And allow yourself to live the dream, instead of simply dreaming about being alive. That’s all it takes.

One of the easiest things your guides can do is to draw your attention to something that is already in front of you, rather than having to concoct a message from scratch, as you say. You can say, "I request whatever assistance can be given to me in unconditional Love, which of course by being given to me in unconditional Love will, by definition, not hinder the learning experience I require."

How to practice telepathy? Love. Because telepathy is actually telempathy. You see, no one is actually ‘reading’ each other’s mind. What you are doing when you experience psychic manifestation or telempathy is that you are identifying with someone so strongly that you operate on the same frequency that they do, so that you interpret creation in the same modality. You create the same thoughts out of the same energy of creation that they do. You parallel their vibration. Strong identification with another is called unconditional Love. That is how you can be telempathic. Have you noticed that those in your society that always seem to know each other’s thoughts are those who are ‘in Love?’ That’s why. They identify with each other so strongly that they create the same thought, synchronistically, at the same time. They know what each other is thinking because they are thinking the same way. That is Love. More willingness to Love unconditionally and grant absolute validity and equality to all other beings will allow you to become extremely sensitized telempathically.

It’s not about creating that reality - it’s really about attracting that reality. Everything already exists. It was already done by Creation, you don’t have to do it again. All you have to do is manifest it through you, in your unique way. That is how you are a co-creator. Don’t confuse the semantics of your language that says you are a creator, that you have to create the reality from scratch. No. You create the manifestation, the expression of a reality, an idea that already exists, through you, by acting like that reality. So it can ‘channel’ through you. You have to become the vibration before you can become magnetically attractive to that reality, so it can express itself through you. That’s why it excites you so much. If it were not so easily manifestable something else would excite you, instead. Because the universe does not do pointless things. The universe does not say, "I will make this your heart’s desire but you can’t have it!" Trust your heart’s desire.

Why base your happiness on what you think must happen outside you? BE HAPPY! And as you are happy you become the vibration of happiness, attracting all the circumstances and situations in life that reflect the concept of happiness. But - be happy because that is what you prefer to be - not just so you will attract those things Be happy and you will attract those things that are representative of happiness. This is not philosophy, this is physics! What you put out is what you get back. The energy level or frequency you operate on determines the kind of reality you will experience. It’s physics. You have to become a particular frequency in order to be the antennae that will receive an echo of the same frequency. Keep it simple.

It is ALL about vibration - about states of being.

Become as transparent as glass and all that is not of your frequency shall pass right through you.

When you are operating properly in your super conductive state, the physiological cellular structure and molecular structure vibrates at it’s maximum capacity, and in that high frequency range has total access to the electro-magnetheric level and all the dimensional levels above it. Since it is all made of light in that sense.

What makes a super-conductor a super-conductor is that it vibrates at one coherent frequency, a pure resonant tone. That’s why it works as it does. Super-conductors are in that sense the electro-magnetheric version of what you understand on your planet to be lasers. Laser light being coherent light of one frequency only.

THE SPIRAL
The spiral is the activation principle of the manifestation of one reality into a dimensional frequency. In other words, there is structure and there is action - there is manifestation. A spiral is the energy representation, a mathematical representation, of idea into solidified reality. It is the activation energy. It is, in a sense, solidified emotion. Another way to describe spiral energy is as if you were looking at small vortices that fill what appears to be empty space, and connect to other dimensions of reality. What appears empty to you, what appears silent to you, actually contains the most energy, the most reality, the most information and sound. That is why becoming still, becoming silent, becoming quiet, taps you into the highest amount of information and energy. Because things that move at infinite speed seem to be standing perfectly still - because they are everywhere at once. When you become perfectly still you will tap into infinite energy, infinite information.
Tetrahedrons

Q: Hello.
B: Hello!
Q: I’d like to ask you some additional questions about tetrahedrons.
B: Tetrahedrons.
Q: I understand that they are the building blocks of the universe.
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: In a sense, okay, some of the questions I’d like to ask are what’s the difference on an energy level between an equal and a non-equal tetrahedron, where the sides are different?
B: The idea can point in what you would call a direction. In other words, that side or area that would be unequal may simply represent the tensor, the dynamic, which is being used, putting it simply, to literally point the way, point out the direction in which the energy is flowing. So, in other words, an unequal idea would represent a universe in motion to some degree.
That is why, to some degree, most of you only see the unequal sides of things, because it is in a constant state of fluctuation. When we describe the equilateral tetrahedron, we are basically describing the fundamental template of the universe – not necessarily one in action, in motion. Understand?
Q: Somewhat.
B: The difference between what you call potential and kinetic energy, in other words.
Q: Okay. So when you have a tetrahedron, where you have one side – that is, say – the back is flat, instead of curving this way.
B: Yes.
Q: You have the other two so that you can have the bottom flat, in a sense.
B: Yes. It represents the specific frequency of the kinetic.
Q: Okay. Then the energy is then going out the point – the most unequal point? Is that correct? Do I have that right?
B: Basically, yes.
Q: Okay. What I’m interested in knowing also…
B: Although there are reversals, polarity reversals of this idea that would allow it to occur in the opposite direction most strongly, in other words, if you have a flat side, and you stretch one side this way, that is creating a type of tension.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Therefore, the manifestation may be exactly in the opposite direction of that tension.
Q: Okay.
B: The tension, the point of focus, may then be the gateway through which the energy flows through and out the other side. It is like taking something, narrowing it down into a pin, poking it through a bubble, and allowing the flow of energy to come through and funnel out. But the way you distort the tetrahedron will indicate the type of flow, the concentration of flow, the direction of flow, to come out the other side – the mouth, the flat side.

Q: Okay, I’d like…

B: The side that is least distorted.

Q: Okay. I’d like to use the tetrahedron shape for healing and consciousness raising. It seems to me that there’s some good potential for that.

B: All right. Then you can imagine the idea – this is one way, allow your imagination to come up with variations on this theme – but you can allow the idea of a tetrahedral structure, a three-sided pyramid to be floating above an individual, allowing the base to be undistorted. And then, simply stretching the other three sides up into an infinite point, and allowing it to pierce the light of creation. And allow that to flow down and over and through the individual. Literally, like you are placing a funnel over them, and then poking a hole in creation, and allowing the light of creation to flood down through that funnel into them.

Q: Okay. I would like to bring some tetrahedrons into physical manifestation…

B: Go ahead.

Q: …for use in the home…

B: Go ahead.

Q: Okay. Can you…

B: Trust your imagination now.

Q: Okay. And just do it…

B: Play with it. Play with the tones they give you. See what strikes a chord within you.

Q: Okay.

B: Allow your imagination to tell you what each variation in the shape and the structure and the material will do.

Q: Great. Thank you.

B: Play with it like an instrument, like the instrument that it is.

Q: Okay. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much. You may all enjoy a short break. We will resume contact in approximately ten of your minutes.
All right, I'll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing our civilization to interact with your civilization in this way. Each and every time we are allowed to interact with all of you, we are given an opportunity to experience, through each and every one of you, a new perspective of the infinite and this expands our understanding of creation. So, we thank you for this gift.

We would like to begin this transmission, this day of your time, with the following idea that we will entitle, "The 3D Perspective." Many times we have talked about the idea, and many of you have heard it from other sources as well, about following your joy, acting on your excitement; but we also, at the same time, recognize that you are a polarized society. In other words, you experience a great deal of polarity, positive/negative, light/dark, yin/yang, as you say. And as you have created yourself to experience reality through opposites, even including the idea of the creation of your brain being, what you call, left hemisphere, right hemisphere and you attribute certain abilities to each hemisphere. Now, this is a generalization, of course, there are more areas of your brain that handle more things that you may be aware of, but for the purposes of this illustration, in general, there is, perhaps, more, as you know, of the so called analytical modality or perspective on the left side; more of what you call the imagination or free association on the right side of the hemisphere of the brain.

This duality, this polarity, often creates a bit of confusion with regard to following your joy; acting on your excitement. Because many of you, from an early age, are trained in one modality over the other, not that you don’t necessarily exhibit both to some degree. But very often, in your upbringing as children, many of you are trained to go in one direction, becoming either more analytical or more imaginative and thus, when you finally, perhaps, give yourself the opportunity to come to the realization that you can follow your joy and live your life through excitement, you will still have, as you say, a tendency, from your training, to choose to look at your joy, to perceive your joy through one modality or another. And, in that sense, it is not that you are not seeing your joy but you may, in a sense, only be seeing half of it or half of the ways in which your joy can actually be experienced by you. For example, an individual who might be more heavily prone to use intellectuality may recognize what is truly their joy but may not understand how the imaginative side of their being can also bring to them experiences of their joy in a mode they are not familiar with and, as you say, vice versa.

The analogy we would like to use is what you call your 3D glasses, as exists in your technology, with regard to your 3D pictures. The idea is that for the most part, though there are various techniques, one of the primary techniques that creates 3D movies on your planet is the utilization of overlapping images. Two images on the screen at the same time, one image polarized in one direction and another image polarized in another direction. These two polarized images, thus, then come to your eyes which are shielded with glasses that are also polarized; one lens is polarized to receive only the image from this direction and another is polarized to receive only the image that is polarized in this direction. Thus, each eye separately receives a unique image, its own image; does not see both images and it is the brain that puts the two images back together to give you the sensation of the three dimensional picture. As such, the idea of looking at your joy only from the analytical perspective or only from the imagination perspective is like looking at it from one polarized lens and not the other. You may see your joy, you may recognize your joy, but you may be missing half of the full holographic, three dimensional picture by not allowing yourself to believe that the other side, that the method, has anything to offer you or has anything at all to do with your ability to experience your joy.

So, we would suggest that you would allow yourself to expand in your understanding that there is always something for you to explore on the other side, in the other modalities, in the other ways of going about looking at your joy and looking at your truth, looking at yourself and looking at your life and do not allow yourself to necessarily think there is only one way to see your joy. Thus, then you can expand your concept of what your joy may be and see how joy experienced in this way and joy experienced in this way can work together in harmony to give you a much more fully rounded picture and a fully rounded experience of all the ways that the joy that is you can be experienced in your experience of yourself, as a physical being.

Now, that is one thing that we would like to talk about in this transmission but there is another; the second idea has to do with something that we have mentioned from time to time but also have begun to mention more often lately and that is the concept on your planet that is often referred to as the Tao.

Now, when we talk about the concept that in your language or one of your earth languages is called the Tao or the Way; the principles in this concept are very similar, as many of you recognize, to many of the principles that we are talking about for understanding reality and how to live in the moment, in the center of your being, in present time; staying in the present. But when we talk about the Tao and that word is translated through the channel's brain to you, we wish to make it clear that we do not mean to emphasize the idea of any particular religion on your planet. We are not talking about Tao-ism. The idea that humans will take the recognition of a principle and make an "ism" out of it is another idea altogether.

But the Tao itself is simply one way to understand the nature of existence by whatever word you wish to call it, and there are, of course, many words to call it by. We are referring to it simply because that is one of the more convenient words that exists, that does most succinctly express the concept as similar to the way that we understand it in our civilization. So, please understand that when we use the term Tao, we are not in any way shape and form, as you would say, pushing a particular religion; just a concept that humans on your planet have happen to turn into a religious system; as has happened many times in your history.

We thank you for allowing to share these two ideas and perspectives with you this day of your time in this transmission. And in return for the gift you are giving to our civilization in allowing us to experience you through this gateway, at this time. I ask in return in what way may I and my world, now, be of service to you?
Q: Bashar!
Q: Bashar!
B: You, and then you. Number one do you know who you are? Number two do you know who you are?
All right, good day....
Now our first step towards the understanding of your own innate abilities is perhaps to clarify a few definitions about who and what you actually are, even as physiological beings. Many of you now, in what you call your New Age of awareness have bandied about the notion that you may have more than five senses. You refer to the idea that you call telepathy and psychic functioning and ESP and all these ideas as mysterious, perhaps to some, not so mysterious perhaps to others as the sixth sense. In fact, you actually have eight senses. One of which is transcendental, seven of which are physiological so to speak. You are more familiar with your first five senses because they are more immediately based in electro-chemical manifestations of physical reality. These of course are what you normally call your sight and your sound and your taste and your smell and your touch. The other two physiological senses can colloquially be called, orientation and vibratory sensitivity or discernment, if you wish.

The idea of orientation is that which is relative to what you call space-time: the definition of physical reality to begin with. It is in what you call your sinus cavities and it is based upon the substance that exists in your sinus cavities called magnetite. This is what the animal consciousness upon your planet utilizes to navigate, what you may call a ‘homing instinct,’ or as many of you understand as a natural ability to simply know what direction you are facing and in which direction you must go to get where you want to go. Your space-time orientation is a true physical sense and it is one that most of you do not necessarily think about – in league on the same level in categories with the other five.

The seventh sense is what you usually refer to as the sixth sense which is vibrational discernment. This is the seventh level because in a sense it is more refined, more highly accelerated than the actual sixth sense of physical space-time orientation. The seventh sense of vibrational discernment is what inter-connects all of you on a mental electro-magnetic level. Where you are telepathically in touch at every given moment, whether you are aware of it or not, with every other being, not only on your own planet but on every other planet on every other dimension of experience that is connected to electro-magnetic phenomena at all. It is encased in the very cellular structure of your body – and the point of orientation, the point of manifestation, the point of ignition for the physical reality, electro-chemically speaking of the seventh sense of psychic reality is to some degree contained in the glandular systems of your body. Specifically the idea you would call the pineal gland and various centers of activity in the brain. Especially in the center of the hemispheres, what you would call technically, the corpus-callosum – in the very center.

These ideas, these membranes are very sensitive to electro-magnetic vibration and you pick up upon waves and frequencies of electro-magnetic thought patterns that are radiated by every living being in physical reality. You are part of a network, part of a web in that sense, and any string that is plucked anywhere throughout the universe in that electro-magnetic field, to some degree is accessible to you.
Those vibrations radiate out in various ways. And they not only radiate out in physical senses at what you would call the speed of light but they also transcend, in another type of wave length, into the eighth sense – the transcendental sense of Knowingness itself. Which simply stated means – every single different thing within creation is actually a manifestation of the same ONE thing, the All-That-Is, manifesting itself in all the ways that it possibly can, simultaneously.

So in a sense, as a physical being you are concocted out of seven particular dimensions of sensory experience with the eighth, the octave itself the encapsulating one, being the one of your innate knowingness, the one that is also representative of your origin point so to speak, as a non-physical being before you ever manifested into the differentiated spectrum of physical reality. You already, in other words, are in touch with every single line of communication, every single ability you need to be in touch with to do anything you want as a fully self-contained and self-empowered being.

Now this in no way shape or form means that you must act like an isolated person. That you have to cut yourself off, in that sense. Acting selfishly and saying, ‘alright, that means its all for me and forget everyone else’. The idea is to understand that there is a paradox in this notion – when you know that you are a fully realized being you know you are connected to the Whole. You know you are a representation of the Whole, one version of the Whole idea of existence expressing itself as the individual you are in this focus. As well of course as all the other individuals you are in every other life or dimension of experience in which you exist. All these lives, all these experiences exist simultaneously and you have access to all of them, when and where you need to. But the idea simply is that once you realize you are a part of the Whole, that you are the Whole itself, then you can understand quite logically, shall we say, that the support of the Whole is what will support you as well, most easily and most effortlessly.

If you think of yourself as isolated, truly cut off from the Whole, that is what creates resistance in your lives and difficulties in your lives and makes the things that you desire to have in your life take a long time. When you allow yourself to know that you can flow, as your version of the Whole, that the Whole of creation flows through you then you can radiate that Love, radiate that connective feeling outward. Be of assistance, be supportive, be loving to all reflections of yourself around you, which is what all other individuals are in reality – reflections of you. Reflecting, echoing back to you, all the different ideas that you need to look at to become who you want to be. And in supporting all those reflections, in supporting the total idea, you then are effortlessly and automatically supported in return. Rather than having to work at it as you say, struggle at it, strive for it, from an individualized point of view. Now the idea of knowing you are the Whole, in no way, shape or form – paradox again – removes the individuality that you are. It actually strengthens it because the stronger an individual you are the stronger version of the Whole you are, and therefore the more easy it is for you to support any other version of the Whole because you understand that all versions are equal to you. Just as valid because they are after all, reflections, of the same ONE Whole reality of which you are also a reflection of.
The Adolescent Stage

Q: My 14-year-old daughter is upset and irritated most of the time and she seems to be bothered about something. What might account for this?

B: All right. Individuals in your society, typically between the ages of 11 to 17, will be highly psychically connected to many different levels of spirituality. They can be very sensitive to it. In a sense, the only reason she seems to be bothered is simply because the individual has not focused on who or what she really is yet. And in a sense, both physical and non-physical reality can seem to be annoying to her. It is an extension of what you all typically think of as your "adolescent stage." It represents the timing of when you need to grow in awareness of the existence of other levels of spirituality that exist within you.

Q: And about my son who is eight years old?
B: All right. What about?
Q: Three years ago during his summer vacation he saw a big rainbow at that time. He enjoyed it very much, but after a while he started crying, and he cried a lot and prayed to the rainbow for a very long time. And after that, he started talking about his higher life and we were very much astonished and excited about it.

B: All right. But you see this is not uncommon for children at all. Children have not forgotten as much as adults teach themselves to forget. It’s very natural for a child to remember all the other connections that they have, especially the ones that are important to them in this life. The rainbow was a symbol representing this life being the last physical life necessary for that individual; the last physical life they will need. Also, the idea of being born physically to assist in the transformation of this planet in very bold ways, as a writer, as a speaker and to assist many through great service in these and other ways.

Q: Yes, I understand. This child also seems to have intimacy with robots and computers, just like he has intimacy for animals.
B: Yes. There is no difference in the mind of a child. Differentiation is taught; not natural. Now that your society is differentiating less, the child does not have as much to forget. Your society is allowing there to be fewer differences. Then the child does not have to learn so many differences— and therefore, does not have to unlearn so many differences. A child has an affinity for everything.
The Age of Aquarius

Q: What really is the Age of Aquarius, or the New Age?

B: It will be, in what you term to be physics and in a mechanical sense, the idea of the acceleration of the rate of vibration of your existence from third density to fourth density awareness.

In other words, it will be the collecting together consciously of more of your awareness of yourself, in that way. And it will be represented within your society, within the idea of having created for yourself a more clairvoyant, that is, clear-seeing view of exactly the fact that you are creating your reality every moment of time that you create to exist.

And that you may then experience your life as a continual series of ecstatic explosions of coincidence, which will bring you the idea of creating your reality without effort, without struggle and without strife. Will that do for a definition?

Q: Yes. Is starvation in some countries a manifestation of this?

B: Oh, yes. Understand, as we have said, that it will be an opportunity for two things – very basic, very brief: understand that as you allow yourselves to open up within the idea you call your heart chakra and to aid individuals who have created for themselves this idea – make no mistake, they have created this for a purpose, this idea of physical starvation. They, in creating this idea of physical starvation as a symbol for them, will be affording you and your civilization, your culture, the opportunity to appease your spiritual starvation. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: It is totally reciprocal. They are not to be pitied, not to be sympathized with, not to be looked down to. They are equally as abundant and strong in the creation of their reality, as you are in yours. Simply they are serving a specific purpose, which allows you to do certain things; you are serving a specific purpose that will allow them to do certain things. And together you may then form a blending and an integration within your various consciousnesses that will allow each and every culture upon your planet to blend within total abundance, both spiritually and physically.

Q: When you mention the purpose of the physically starving and the spiritually starving – from where do these purposes come?

B: You. You always create your own purpose. You always create the purpose for which you have chosen to be physical in this, here and now, present life, ‘tis up to you. Likewise, you create you own idea of karma. It is totally self-created. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Karma is not judgment – not from you, not from outside. There is no outside. You are it. You are the entire universe; you are the creator – individually, in a sense, and collectively.

Recognize that although the Creator recognizes itself as a self-awareness also, it does not judge. It creates. It supports, in unconditional love, the totality of your free will. Therefore, what you have called karma is simply the opportunity to be willing to balance out one idea with another – in another life. Not judgment, but opportunity to balance. Will that have answered your question?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you!

The Age of Aquarius
The Agenda

November 1989: Whole Life Expo

It has been quite some time since we communicated with you in this fashion. I have been very busy speaking through other individuals in different areas of your planet; but in this particular area we have allowed things to "stew" a little bit. This way the information we have already shared could be applied by the many individuals who have received it already. And also, we could, for a moment, step back and allow you to utilize the information as you see fit – to use it in the direction that excites you the most.

We speak very often about the idea of doing what excites you the most; this has been our main thrust in all the time we have communicated with you. However, now that things have accelerated and progressed a bit, we find that we no longer need to speak with as much allegory. We can be more direct than, perhaps, we could have been five or six years ago when we first contacted you in this way.

Therefore, let us get right down to "the agenda." Many individuals have sensed, or taken readings, of the overall energy of your society and how you are progressing in your assimilation of data, your awareness of consciousness. For you have created a momentum that is pushing you faster and faster toward certain things. Many of you are already beginning to see physical effects, not only in your own individual lives but also on a planetary scale with your focus on peace. All of your walls and barriers seem to be coming down, both figuratively and literally, and we congratulate all of you. It has made us very happy to see this begin.

Many of us, communicating through various individuals, have talked about certain times that are specific points of acceleration. The last time I spoke with you in this area I spoke about a date, that of October 15 of this year. I said that after that date there would be much acceleration in a certain way. Allow me now to explain in a little more detail exactly what is meant.

As you begin to choose the lives, the paths, the attitudes and the habits that are now more representative of peace and creativity, as you begin to choose these things, you crystallize the events of your lives in certain specific ways – to allow only certain types of opportunities, certain types of situations to occur. It is what we call synchronicity: what you put out is what you get back, as we have said many times. As you have accelerated this, it becomes less and less likely – in fact, more and more difficult – to choose anything that is not representative of what you really desire, of what you really prefer.

Crossing the Threshold

You will find that this October 15, 1989 date was given to indicate a threshold that you have crossed, whereby you now number enough individuals in your society aiming toward what you desire, that should you for any reason whatsoever – doubt, fear, hesitation, habits – begin to choose that which is not what you want, you would find it falling apart more quickly. It would point you in the proper direction by not working out, by creating more and more unhappy, stressful situations in the things you no longer want to do; to make you tire more quickly of those things that are not what you are all about as an individual.

Therefore, from that date forward, you will find that the more you hesitate to do the things you know you are all about, the things that really excite you, the less well things will go for you. The more confusion there will be in your lives, in a negative sense.
The agenda now is that approximately between your time of 1990 and 1992 or 1993, more and more of this energy will crystallize. I know I will be very bold in this statement I am about to make. Understand that this is simply how we are perceiving your energy at this time; but the momentum is very strong, so I will make this statement anyway: If you have not, by 1993, allowed yourselves to do in your lives only, ONLY, what is really representative, on any level, of what you prefer, what you desire to be, from that point forward you may not be able to catch up.
The acceleration will be so great at that point that if you are not allowing yourselves to be aligned with your own truths, you may find it almost impossible – nothing is impossible, but almost impossible – to backtrack without absolute breakdown of everything you know. For the next three of your years you can do it somewhat smoothly, with some buffers, with some timing, with some pacing. If you have not allowed yourselves to crystallize in what is really important to you by your 1993, the only way it may be available to you to do so, will be to completely cut yourselves off from everything and start, as you say, from scratch.
Now, some people might find this more exciting. That will be up to you. I am not telling you what to do, but only giving you a reading of your energy. Because that is how fast you are acting; that is how fast you are changing.
There is no reason to hesitate; there is no reason to delay doing what you really love to do. There is no reason to hold on to those jobs, those situations, those relationships that are not representative of you. Allow them to change gracefully – with integrity, with love – but change them.
Do not fear your typical fears... "I cannot quit my job; what will I do? What will I eat? How will I live? Where will I live? I will not be able to pay the rent! I will be kicked out!"...
I will say this briefly because I have already said it enough: trust that the thing in life that excites you the most comes complete with all the tools necessary to support you in the doing of that thing. It is automatic; it is built in. All you need to do is act on the opportunities that doing that situation brings to you.
Very simple: see, feel and be. Everything we have said folds up into three steps. It’s that easy. See what you want. Feel it. Know it. Desire it. Then be it. Act it. Do only that thing in the way that is representative of who you want to be. See it. Feel it. Be it; one, two, three.

The E.T. Agenda

Now, a continuation briefly of the agenda. Many of you have asked, "What is going on with extraterrestrial activity on Earth?" Remember, I tell you these things not to take power from you. You do not need us to make your decisions, and we are not here to save you. Thank you for your offer, but no thank you. But because we would love to interact with you freely and openly, and because of the acceleration of your energy now, I can give you a rough outline of our agenda for more open interactions. In 1993, 1995, 1997 and 1999, every two of your years in the odd numbered years – beyond that at this time we cannot say because those are critical points – depending on what you do at those

All will be brought together in your 1990s. All of the clouds that surround the issues that keep them apart will be stripped bare, so that all of the seeds of each issue will be seen for the similarities they possess to each other. By your year 2000, you will have begun the basic foundation for what will carry you through as an overall global philosophy for your next one thousand years.

This is your general agenda for your 1990s: to remove the clouds from your own individual selves; to strip yourselves of the things, in your estimation, that do not belong in the reality you prefer; to be your own nucleus – shining bright, the core of the stars that you are. As you act out what is important to you, what you prefer, as you begin to radiate to each other this energy, this vibration, this frequency, you will each become more sensitized, more sensitive to each other. You will be able to key off of each other more clearly, without the negative confusion of certain habitual customs, which now blind you and keep you from your heart’s desire.

You will understand certain social patterns to be creations of the mind, creations of fear, creations of doubt, reservation and distance. You will understand that your core is indestructible. Indestructible! You are eternal. You are infinite; you have been around forever. You are not going anywhere. You will always exist.

Constant Change

It is said that the name of creation is I Am. This is absolute in its truth. It is, it always has been, and it always will be. That which exists can only continue to exist. It will never become nonexistent because non-existence is its own realm. It already contains all the things that will never exist. Whatever doesn’t fit in that realm of non-existence has always existed, exists now and always will exist – because there is nowhere else for it to go. Non-existence is full up of all the things that will never exist. There is no room for existence there. It is the polarity of creation. No beginning, no ending; it always is at every moment. Therefore, since you exist – at least I will assume I am not fantasizing you – since you exist, you always have and you always will. You cannot be obliterated. You cannot be consigned to oblivion. You cannot be destroyed. You are infinite, but you are ever changing. You are never the same from one second to the next. Never.

Allow yourselves to feel that that change is the true constant in creation. The true stable foundation of existence is constant change, so that it does not stagnate, so that it is ever perpetuating. Creation is not over. It is not that everything has already been created and now God has sent everything off to run around and have fun. You are all, and we are all, together, God, ever creating itself anew, ever changing and always existing.

Paradox, yes, but when you deal with paradox, that’s when you know you are close to the seed at the center. Because only at the center, do all apparent contradictions find themselves reconciled as one. Only from the center do all apparent polarities issue. They are all there. They are one thing. They only appear paradoxical, mutually exclusive – because of the vibrations in the realm that you have chosen to perceive yourselves, because of the vibrations in the realms that have the idea of polarity of opposites.

You have created the ability to take one thing and separate it into not only more than one thing, but even separate it into things that look like they have nothing to do with each other. Most creative, exceedingly creative! And I am not being facetious. It is the true measure of the power of creation that it can even, so to speak, fool itself into thinking it is not a part of that creation, into forgetting that it is what it is, that it is I Am. That is the power of creativity.

Now however, as we have said, you have played that game through on this world in the way you wanted to do so, and now you are remembering I Am. We Are. We are waking up. "Oh yes, I remember now ... well, that was a fun game, but now we wish to remember that we are what is, and we wish to change the rules of the game. We wish to play as integrated whole beings now." And so you are remembering; so you are gathering; so you are discussing ideas of consciousness. What is consciousness? What is physicality? What is dreaming? What is being awake? What is real? What is non-real? All of these things in your 1990s will be understood to be simply manifestations of one thing: your own perspective. You are waking up. Good morning!

Time Gates

The idea of acceleration contains currents and eddies, if you will, backwashes and loops. To some degree, they have the purpose of reinforcing the forward momentum. Now and then, because of the type of overlapping vibration you all create in your forward momentum, there will be doorways, gaps, more dimensional gates that so many of you could find yourselves within, and find yourselves reflecting past ideas, future ideas. These time gates allow you at that given moment, for a little while, to perceive the collectivity of yourselves.

So there are currents and eddies and washes throughout all of your energy, particularly for now, because of the momentum you have set up, and especially around the 15th of every month. A very strong one has always been your March 15, and even more so starting in 1990 will this be so. Many things will be happening at that time. People will be finding that the time gates will be moving fast and furious. They will find confusion within their consciousness. They will find many things going on in the world that almost sound like they could not be happening in the same world, at the same time.

Around your March 15 date, what you refer to as the Ides of March, very strong gates in your consciousness will also be opening up to certain probes or visitations from your own past civilizations; very strong. You will see it reflected in your society by a certain kind of discovery and a certain resurgence of awareness of past civilizations.

Yes, all of you really are seeds of unconditional love; thus, when you truly allow yourselves to burst forth with the flowers of knowingness that are within you, your planet will be such a lovely garden.

Right now, all the things you are doing, all the things that seem to be so churning in your society – well, you can look at it this way: you are tearing up the topsoil, preparing it for a new planting.

You are creating furrows in the ground; you are farming the richness of your past experience. Negative though that may seem to be, know that it will form a very rich compost. All that has been negative, all that you may consider to have been a waste, is what allows fertility and new growth to occur – once you place it in the proper place behind you, beneath you, and grow from it.

Let the light from your own future selves draw you upwards from that rich soil of experience, for it is a rich experience; very rich. A suggestion: go to a natural spot where there is a richness of the soil, and sink your hands deeply into dark, dark rich earth. Breathe the smell of nature in and then look up at the sky. See where you have come from in your physical reality, see where you are, and see where you are going. Make a grounded connection to heaven; bring heaven to Earth. Experience the richness and the vitality of your souls.

Remember, for every single thing that you truly want to do, that truly is representative of you, there will always be a place and a time in which it can be done. You would not exist if that were not so. There is never one side to creation. Always it is complete. And for every desire, for every true self wish, for every soul wish, there is always the opportunity to manifest that wish in the reality you are in right now. Always ... see it; feel it; be it. It’s easy and it’s fun.

Once again, I congratulate you all. I extend our love to you all, our appreciation to you all, our joy. We are always with you; you are always with us. Let us travel together and enjoy life.

The Agenda
The Anunnaki

Q: Where did the idea of Lucifer come in?
B: The idea really is a recognition of two different levels. One, the archetypal level of the collective consciousness of your planet when viewed through a negative matrix. The other being the recognition that there were among the Anunnaki disagreements, discrepancies, about how things were being done; and one band was cut off from the homeworld and left upon the Earth and, thus, represented the concept of the fallen gods, the fallen angels. You understand?
Q: They were Anunnaki then?
B: Yes.
Q: And what about Satan?
B: Again more of that, that is the representation of the archetypal construct of the collective negative consciousness of your entire planet. Which of course now has many admixtures, both from Anunnaki and many other civilizations that have chosen to be born upon your planet and add their collective consciousness energy to the World Spirit, both in the positive and the negative side.
Q: So these weren’t actual, Lucifer and Satan, individualized beings, they were more of a collective...
B: The concept is more of a collective archetypal representation of your entire world consciousness. Although the concept of Lucifer has a little bit more personification in its connection mythologically to the fall, so to speak, or the cutting off of that branch of Anunnaki.
Q: Was there one particular being that led that excursion?
B: There were different beings at different times. You must understand that the excursions of the Anunnaki to Earth, in the beginning, covered many hundreds of thousands of years, and many different excursions. But toward the latter part, about 300,000 years ago or so, in your terms of counting, one of the final excursions was the one in particular that was cut off, and all of the mythologies basically stem from that particular excursion.
Q: Were the Anunnaki ... would they be called Lyrans?
B: Yes. Anunnaki is simply the name given by the Earth beings to that branch of Lyrans, named after one of the prominent representations, called Anu, in the Lyran language.
Q: What does the Association call the Anunnaki?
B: No, the Association is something quite a bit different.
Q: No, no. What, in the Association nomenclature, is the Anunnaki referred to?
B: They are recognized as Lyrans. Of course that word is not used, but they are recognized simply as offshoot Lyrans.
Q: Offshoot Lyrans?
B: Yes.
Q: And...
B: The seed of, what you call, the humaniform being in this general sector of the universe, most of the genetic seed of the humaniform being stems from and originates from the original Lyran stock. Ours, yours, Pleiadian, Orion, even some Sirian, though there’s a slightly different offshoot to that, Tau Ceti, Barnards Star, to some degree ... many of the humaniform beings go back from this sector, to original Lyran stock.

The Founders
B: In what you may call the early stages of your Solar System, when consciousness began to manifest non-physically, and recognized the potential of physical manifestation, for a variety of reasons, it laid down a vibrational foundation throughout the Solar System that allowed certain events to come about that would allow things to wind up in certain places. So that certain energies would be where they needed to be, by the time certain ideas and agendas would need to be played out. So the arrangement was done in causal levels.
Q: Are those the beings we call the Founders? Or is that another reference?
B: The Founders are connected, to some degree, to that idea, to some degree. And here it can seem quite complicated, because the Founders exist on a level where it is difficult to differentiate between what you would recognize now as them and yourselves and the Anunnaki and every other species. The Founders are foundational on a level wherein all beings that you know of, or have heard of, are, in some senses, an aspect of the Founders.
Q: In the higher dimensions?
B: Yes. And the Founders are the direct precursors of the Lyran seed, but they were not, as you understand it, physiologically in your dimensionality. They did, however, project a portion of themselves into physical dimensionality and took on humaniform aspects for the purpose of that experience.
Q: What time frame?
B: Millions upon millions upon millions upon millions of your years ago ... many, many, many, many ... perhaps as much as what you would recognize, even perhaps, half a billion of your years ago. Perhaps, even more so.
The Association’s Purpose

Q: I’ve been meditating... and I felt like I was being turned into a field, like an energy field at one point, a white energy field.
B: Yes.
Q: And then inside the energy field is a golden flame.
B: Yes. Eternalness: it is your mass consciousness symbol of eternity. That is why, as we have said, what you term to be the metal, gold, does not change. The gold you have now, is the gold you have always had. It is eternal and it does not change.
Q: Okay, I’m going to ask you a couple of questions about the Association.
B: All right.
Q: One of them is, how many planets in the third density are members of this Association?
B: Within a specific aspect of it, approximately, three hundred and fifty seven.
Q: Those are third density ones?
B: In the one Association that forms an affiliation to your planet, in that sense, according to the purposes that you are sharing, yes. Although there are roughly sixty-seven million inhabited third density planets, in this galaxy alone.
Q: Just in this galaxy?
B: Yes.
Q: So there are quite a few planets that are real similar to this one?
B: In many ways, yes.
Q: In other words, they have different races... the planet structure might be different though...
B: Yes, but in this way you will find that the Association is formed of many different ideas.
Q: Okay, could you give me...
B: Some similar and some not similar in many ways, at all. But some are not, in your terms, planets in the total Association.
Q: Yes, that was my next question. Okay then, the Association that you refer to – to me and what I pick up on, is, an Association with fourth density people, civilizations...
B: And fifth... and sixth... and seventh density.
Q: Right. And, what is their function?
B: What is their function?
Q: Yes, what is the function of the Association itself?
B: To live. The idea of forming an Association is so that there is more awareness of all that we are. More awareness of All That Is.
The recognition that unity is formed from the recognition of equality and the granting of validity to the infinite diversity within creation.

It is a sharing. That is the purpose of Association. To know all aspects of All That Is, as much as we can.

Each and every being is another way that All That Is has of expressing Itself. The more beings, the more ways, the more we learn about all the ways All That Is can express itself. That is the purpose for the Association. Will that do?

Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Sharing!

The Big Dipper Constellation and Connections

Q: Could you tell me something about the constellation the Big Dipper (Ursa Major or the Big Bear) and the energies that are there or in those areas?

B: Our perception at this time, since in a sense this is a new focus for us, is that there are seven different levels of understanding; seven different levels of consciousness connected to that area; seven different levels of communication that can begin to be perceived upon your planet by many individuals.

Some of it will take the idea symbolically of crystalline forms. Some of it will take the idea symbolically of vegetable life – a plant kingdom, in that way, as you call it. Do not take me literally; this is symbolic. But it is expressing itself into your realm in these ways.

It is no accident that some of the ideas that you have connected to, of what you call early navigation, were connected to this area, in this way. For some of the consciousness and communication coming from that area has to do with navigation, in a different form, through the energy waves that you call space/time; energy waves – the electromagnetic vortex flux medium, in that way. Some of that information can be perceived from consciousness in that direction at this time.

There are a few ideas of what you may call guides from that area at this time. There is also a type of self-recognition, of self-empowerment, a way of meditation that involves recognizing one’s self-empowerment, particularly within nature connections coming from that emanation at this time.

And it is unto itself a type of spectrum, in the representation of the seven different levels coming from it; all the way from what you call physicalized vibrations to spiritualized vibrations. It is its own band; it is its own range of frequencies. But it is connected to the overall Association, to what you may refer to as the overall Confederation; although we prefer the term, Association.

This is our perception at this time. We would therefore request that if you wish to proceed further the next step is up to you. Do you wish to share anything further at this time, about what you feel your connections to be?

Q: I’ve always felt a connection for many, many years. I’ve always looked for that constellation in the sky.

B: Some of it, in our perception has to do with the idea of having relied upon it, as we said, for navigation in past lives.

Q: And there are many aspects that you have just spoken of that enter into my personal learning and into my search. There are many, many levels there that speak to me personally, very, very much.

B: All right. Then we will now at this time express our gratitude and appreciation in allowing yourself to be a valve for that particular energy at this time. So that it can be included in the overall makeup of all the consciousness that is blending within your Earth society now, for the assistance and the aid in the transformation from third to fourth density. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
The Bond of Love

B: What could also help to create a creative relationship is, perhaps, to find something that is commonly enjoyed by you both and create a project together. Maybe even both of you support another individual in doing what excites them the most. And then maybe they’ll support another individual and another individual, and you can become one big happy family. In our civilization ALL individuals are married to everyone, therefore, all the relationships that occur in our civilization all occur within the marriage. Even though there are biological parents and biological children that recognize each other, the adults are the parents of all.

The unconditional love and support that we have for each other is what allows us to always be telepathically in contact with each other all the time. Creative and loving relationships will always begin to exhibit a form of telepathy. But you see, telepathy is not literally "reading each other’s minds." Every individual is a particular frequency, a particular vibration, when you are unconditionally loving of another individual you begin to identify very strongly with them. That is called the bond of attraction or the bond of love.

When you identify strongly enough your frequency begins to match their frequency; it does not become exactly identical but it becomes very similar. When both of your frequencies are very similar you translate information in the same form of thoughts. In other words, you identify so strongly that you think alike. When you are truly engaged in an exchange of unconditional love you start thinking alike at the same time.

When you have the same kind of thoughts at the same time and you think you’re reading each other’s mind, you’re not; that’s telepathy. It is not so much the idea of extracting information from each other, it is mirroring each other very closely. This does not mean you lose your individuality, just the opposite, you become strong reflections for each other of all that is possible within the relationship; and you trust it and you flow with it because you are already a fulfilled and fulfilling individual. Therefore, no matter what changes take place you know you are not going to be cut off from anything you need and you know whatever changes you make will always attract whatever is representative of those changes. You will be fulfilled.
The Bubble of Acceptability

Q: As you were talking, I was doing some... call it thinking...
B: Yes.
Q: ... or visualizing, experiencing what you were saying.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, now, this experience is, from my understanding, different from what it is going to be sometime in our concept of the future.
B: Yes.
Q: Some uh...
B: Yes.
Q: There is...
B: You will be inside your thoughts; your thoughts will be the reality. You will be the reality. You will experience it as you think it.
Q: Okay, now, as I am talking to you, and hearing what you are saying now...
B: Yes.
Q: I've moved a notch from the original place to the other place.
B: Yes. And now. And now. And now!
Q: And now, I keep on moving.
B: Yes.
Q: And what we had originally co-created as two and one half years of your time...
B: Yes?
Q: How much longer in this co-creation is it going to take before I'm all the way there?
B: You will never be all the way anywhere. Understand, you are an ongoing, eternal, infinite process of ideas within your moment of now. However, let us say, that the potential, in your timeframe, linear terminology, can be anywhere between now and the next 30 to 50 of your years – anywhere in there. It depends upon the individual, ‘tis up to you. Are you through?
Q: Um... just to verify that, as we are talking now, you have just used some linear concepts...
B: Yes.
Q: ... some concepts, which I am co-creating with you as we are talking.
B: Correct.
Q: Does it follow that if you talk a little bit more... a little bit this way and that way, that we could arrive at that situation of fourth dimension in a shorter...
B: It can be, yes.
Q: So I’m listening with all ears.
B: Thank you. All right. Then do not be surprised at what you may see at any given moment; what might pop in, pop out. Yes?
Q: Okay, now: what is the relationship...now, first of all, you said that nobody is going to go faster than anybody else.
B: Not in an overall sense.
Q: Okay. What...
B: There is a bubble, let us say, of leeway, which you will stay within, in general terms, even though individuals, in your own terminology...some may be more accelerated than others. But you will stay within the bubble of acceptability, which will allow you all, together as a bubble, to move into fourth density at once.
You will not be ahead of anyone else in that way, though you may, in a sense, in your terms, be ahead of someone else on a personal level.
Q: So I can function in fourth density all I want, but still interact with everybody else.
B: Yes.
Q: And then, when the time comes, when the actual transformation occurs, that is going to be happening for everybody.
B: For everyone who chooses it.
Q: Who chooses it, yes.
B: Yes.
Q: What is the proportion of...
B: No, no, no. No, no, no.
Q: In regards to the subject of living your dreams, you referred to the idea of somebody having a daydream, and not being aware of physical reality, and something or other, of somebody calling them...
B: Yes.
Q: On the other hand, somebody who is always aware of the physical reality: that doesn’t mean that they are not living their dreams. It means...
B: Correct!
Q: It could be that their dream is their physical reality.
B: Correct. Your dream is your physical reality, very good. Simply what we are saying is that once you are in the constant state of the moment of now, all of it will become your experiential reality – all of it. You will still have – just to be colloquial about it – the daydream, and you will be able to hear someone call you simultaneously.
Q: Yeah.
B: And it will all be one thing.
Q: Why did you say no, no, no?
B: One moment... simply because, first of all, to ask that type of information is to cause separation, and also because it is quite meaningless; everyone that chooses to be in fourth density, well, one hundred percent of those people will be in fourth density.
Q: I see.
B: One hundred percent of all those people that choose to be in third density will be in third density, and so forth. There is no way to give you anything that is, in your terms, meaningful – in terms of what percentage will be in fourth and what percentage will be in third. It is a constantly shifting idea.
Q: Okay.
B: Choices, at the moment they are made, completely eradicate the percentages. You follow me?
Q: Yeah, great. So...
B: All right. So let me do it this way then, if this is what you wish: Right now – 70 percent; right now – 63; right now – 55; right now – 82; right now – 94. What difference does it make? It is always changing.

Q: Okay, I got it. But that means also, that we as individuals can talk to people, and plant “seeds” or say things that can make them change their minds.
B: Of course, not make them change their minds.
Q: That will allow them to change their minds...
B: If they desire to.
Q: If they desire.
B: You can always share what you are, of course. You can share this idea with anyone you come in contact with, because you would not come in contact with them if you could not. You follow me?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q2: Okay, um, my neck is hurting right now, and it wasn’t hurting when you first started talking.
B: The back of your neck?
Q: Yes.
B: Between your shoulder blades, upper?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Relax. You are opening certain energy vortices. Relax. Be in the moment.
Q: Okay.
B: Love it; live it. Use your imagination, talk to it. Let it talk to you.
Q: So it’s not any type of resistance, or anything like that?
B: Only in the overall generalized sense of, let us say, what you might call the remnants of pieces of habits.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: But nothing stronger than that.
Q: All right. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

The Bubble of Acceptability
The Civilization in the Barnard Star System

Q: What’s happening to that civilization, I forget the name of it, that we’re going to channel to?
B: You mean in the Barnard Star System?
Q: Yes, right.
B: They are, once again, relatively speaking, still within their Renaissance period. They are now creating a cartography, if I may use that term, not only of their entire planet, but of all the ethereal shells and astral shells around the planet. Their Renaissance extends into the visible and the invisible, in that way. To some degree, even as yours did, however, they see it more as a true reality, as you would call it, rather than simply a symbolic terminology. They are charging those spaces around their planet, those gates, those realms.

They have maps which show fully, what you call on your planet, the electromagnetic ley lines. They are very aware of them, very aware of them and take them for granted, as you say. There is no mystery in that sense, they understand the electromagnetic pulse of their world, not in what you would term a scientific way, but nonetheless they have abilities to charge those lines of force, those magnetic pulses.

Q: Hmm.
B: There are skirmishes in their civilization still, one of which is being monitored by several civilizations to understand the similarities and the contrasts between their civilization and your civilization. So that when you are in full communication with their civilization, there can be some assistance given to you by those observing now, as to how to communicate with those individuals regarding their skirmishes, based on your own experiences in the past. Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: All of this is being done now with this civilization, and they are very much into what you would call culinary experimentation. (Audience laughter)
Q: Oh, yeah?
B: Yes. And what in your terminology you would call now, “all the rage,” (laughter) is a particular preparation in one particular land mass of an aquatic animal which is used for its esoteric overtones, so that when eaten by the individuals, they catch “flashes,” very quick glimpses of the creature’s point of view as it was alive in the ocean. Do you understand?
Q: Wow, yes. (Audience expresses surprise)
B: And this is all the rage.
Q: Anything here we can do the same thing with?
B: You could learn to do the same thing but the biology of the individuals there, the biology of the animal in that civilization is more conducive to a spontaneous creation of that nature.
Q: I see.
B: Does this help?
Q: Yes. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: Bye.
The Collective Daydream and ET Interactions
Q: How do you know... you have described this interaction as occurring, not... you’re here in your imagination, creating this interaction... not as we say, astral projection, or whatever that is.
So how do you know what’s going on, on earth?
B: Again, in this way, there are many different ideas and interactions – and types of interactions – that we partake of. But do not forget that astral projection, in a sense, is also within the dimension of imagination.
Q: Okay. Then that raises another question that I thought of when Steve asked the question for the guy in Dallas. He said he was having an out-of-the-body experience.
B: Yes.
Q: Is there any such thing as “out-of-the-body travel”? Is it only imagination?
B: In your terms, because you have created a type of universe that has the different levels in it, yes it is real.
Q: There is such a thing as out-of-the-body...
B: Yes. What we are saying is that the entire idea of all of the levels in the universe is within the dimension of imagination. It is a creation.
Q: Can you help me, and perhaps other people here, to get a better grasp on how it is? Because I think that when you use the word imagination, and relate it to this interaction occurring in your imagination, you use the word differently than we use it here on this planet.
B: Perhaps.
Q: Could you help us bridge the gap between...
B: It is simply that – as we have said – that what occurs within our imagination is real. The idea is more akin to the idea of becoming, quote/unquote, lost in a daydream, that seems to be so more real while it is going on, than when your focus changes back to the reality you were experiencing before the daydream. Only you think that you have come back to the real reality, and were only imagining.
To us, the daydream is just as real. I experience our interaction together as a very intense daydream – more perhaps what you might refer to as an hallucination; but I know it’s real.
Q: But it’s your imagination, which you are creating.
B: But it’s yours too. Again, it is a co-creation. It is synchronicity. It is the interaction itself that creates you and me.
Q: Let me come at this question a different way.
B: Did you hear what I said, first of all?
Q: Yes.
B: What did I just say?
Q: You said that it’s the co-creation…
B: It is the interaction itself that creates you and me.
Q: Yes, I understand that.
B: All right.
Q: But my attention is on the fact that there is, if you will, a collective daydream going on, of all the beings on earth.
B: Yes!
Q: Without you and Essassani, there is a collective daydream going on.
B: Yes, of course.
Q: Okay. How do you know the content of that collective daydream?
B: We do not know all portions of it.
Q: But you know some portions. For example…
B: We know the portions that have to do with the synchronicity of our interaction with you; and only those portions.
Q: So it’s not possible for you to simply observe, or is… with your interaction with us on these Mondays, Tuesdays or Wednesdays?
B: But do not forget: an observation is an interaction, and is actually subjective.
Q: Okay, well…
B: I simply may not be talking about it; but it is still an interaction.
Q: Well, how did you know about Chernobyl, for example, or the Challenger disaster?
B: In this way, the idea is that what you call the physical channel is a part of your daydream. And since we are connected, then anything the physical channel knows, we know. Because by synchronicity what the physical channel knows we are supposed to know; so we can use it in that way.
Q: Okay. Independently of this process called channeling, do you engage in other data-collection activities relative to…
B: From time to time, yes. And that is one of the reasons why sometimes we can, quote/unquote, come through with information in conceptual form that the channel in not aware of, even though the terminology may not be according to what you use upon your planet.
For in this way, we can have our observations about the ideas that we sense are going on in the portion of the daydream we share with you, whether the physical channel is aware of it or not.
Q: Okay. Here’s a corollary question: you told us that you physically appeared to the Orion entity consciousness.
B: Yes.
Q: Not a thought projection, but you physically appeared.
B: Both. What you would call a physical appearance.
Q: Which means that you travel – what we would say – travel through time.
B: I’m doing that now to talk to you.
Q: But it’s different, because – why have you chosen to channel rather than appearing to us physically?
B: I have explained that before.
Q: Well, it has to do with... we would think you are a God, and we couldn’t relate, but...
B: It has more to do with the idea of our energy being so different, it would force an acceleration of your energy, and force you to look at portions of yourself you are not ready to look at.
Q: Ah, okay. All right.
B: But the idea of our ability to appear to the so-called Orion, in this way, is simply because their society still had within their society already, the recognition that they could travel from planet to planet; and interact with other races. That was not a shock.
Q: One last question: imagine being in the rafters of a building – you know what rafters are?
B: Yes.
Q: And looking down in many different rooms, so you can look and see that there are lots of different rooms.
B: Yes.
Q: And each of the rooms is a point in what we would call time. They’re all simultaneous.
B: Yes!
Q: And let’s suppose that we’re looking at the house that represents earth. You’re up in the rafters; you can see the past and the future...
B: Yes.
Q: ...or many potential pasts and many potential futures of earth.
B: Yes.
Q: And so you must be able to see some potential futures which you and your civilization – collective you – would prefer that we don’t choose.
B: In a sense. Therefore, simply recognize that it is our perception that because we are interacting with you, it is representative of the type of future you have already chosen.
Q: Okay. (But only a select few.)
B: You are the ones that make the selection. It is up to everyone; it is your individual choice. Recognize again, that the individuals who have not chosen that vibration are not interacting with us.
Q: That’s true; they’re not here. Right. How is it possible to…

B: They certainly do not have to interact with us. They can interact with many different aspects of themselves to, quote/unquote, arrive at the same conclusion.

An individual can be living in a fourth-density state without ever having heard the term fourth-density, metaphysics, or any of the other ideas that we are discussing. They can still live that way, and have chosen the idea of living in that reality when it occurs, totally unconsciously.

Q: So your presence here is not merely an origination on your part, but the very fact that you chose to come, means we have something to do with it? Is that what you’re saying?

B: As I have always said: you allow us to interact with you by choosing to interact with us in equal vibrations. That is the only way we can interact with you – and because of your willingness to recognize that, you can now interact with us.

Q: But if you’re sitting in the rafters, being able to see a period of time on earth when, let’s suppose, no person on earth…

B: One moment!

Q: …you can perceive…

B: One moment! Everything and every aspect that you are present to relate to, has to do with you, if you are willing to look at it that way. Integrate everything you are hearing from anyone else. Turn the questions and the answers and the statements around for you, and understand how you relate to it.

If you find, in this way, that you have already related to it on your own terms, then simply recognize that if the idea is still something you are perceiving, then there may be other ways in which you can learn from it. Continue.

Q: Okay. Sitting up in the rafters, you can observe one of the rooms – let’s suppose there is a room, a point in time as we would call it, in which there was nobody on earth that was prompted to interact with you.

B: All right.

Q: And then in another form…

B: We can observe that probability, yes.

Q: And then we can also look down and see the room which we experience as the now, in which we’re interacting with you.

B: Yes.

Q: (Pause) Oh, I answered my own question: they’re going on simultaneously.

B: Yes.

Q: There was never a point in time when you decided to interact; you’re interacting here, but you’re not interacting there.
B: Correct. We are simply with you the definition of the interaction.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
The Consciousness Factor in Mathematical Equations

Q: We have discussed factoring consciousness into our mathematical equations, which represent our understanding of physical reality, in order to build computers and spacecraft etc., which operate on the principles that yours do. In your perception, can we actually derive that understanding by introducing factors representing consciousness into our calculation of mathematics? Or will we begin to perceive physical reality outside the concept and concept of our mathematics, to derive that understanding of physical reality?

B: In your terms it will be that, first of all, you can recognize that anything you do experience in your physical reality, including the creation of a new set of scientific equations and modality, will always be the reflection of having looked at your reality differently first.

Q: Right. Well, I’m wondering that in our quest to factor consciousness into our equations, are we kind of putting the cart before the horse?

B: In a sense you can simply know that consciousness is a factor in your reality, and then by knowing that, and acting as a person who knows that, and living that way, you will be the type of person who will discover the equations that will include consciousness – to reflect what you already know.

Q: Right, that’s what I’m saying – that by the time we get to those equations we’ve already perceived how it does that.

B: Yes, although you make it usually unconscious, so that you rely upon the equations to make it conscious for you. In the same manner that when you create a question, the question is your conscious way of recognizing that you have an answer that you refuse to allow yourself to recognize that you have.

Q: Right.

B: So you create a question to let yourself know that such a concept exists within you. And you do it in a way that removes the responsibility from you having to have the answer.

Q: Got it!

B: Thank you!

The Consciousness Factor in Mathematics
THE COUNTDOWN CONTINUES

Malibu 19 Nov. 97

All right I’ll say good day to you all this day of your time, how are you all? Once again we take this opportunity to thank each and everyone of you for allowing this transmission to occur in this manner through this particular gateway and at this time. Once again, each and every time you allow our civilization to communicate with yours in this manner it expands our understanding of the infinite because we get to experience different aspects of creation through each and every one of your unique perspectives. So we thank you for this gift of exchange.

We would like to begin this transmission this day of your time with the following idea: as we have recently began to point out, now is the beginning of a cycle wherein there is a clock counting down toward contact -physiological interaction between your species and many other species. One and only one of the signals of this, at this time, is the great shifts taking place within the collective consciousness.

The idea of the game of the musical chairs that is being played on your planet at this time with the coming and going of different individuals for a variety of different reasons, the repositioning of energies and powers, the repositioning and refocusing of attention and priorities, at this time, beginning break down, beginning to shift, beginning to move around and occupy different spaces than they did heretofore occupy. And, as we have said, to aid and assist your planet in this we have position ourselves, literally, physically above your world. Physically at this time along with other members of our society. And slowly over a span of years we will slowly descend closer and closer and closer physically to the surface of your planet until such time that it is appropriate for physical contact to take place.

And so, in the keeping of the spirit of this idea, we now allow ourselves to reinforce in each and everyone of you that what this means, what our physical proximity means, in terms of these interactions, these exchanges, these transmissions is that you, in a sense, have more of us present. You, in a sense, will feel more of our frequency than you have before in the previous fourteen of your years of Earth time. You will, thus then, recognize that more of who we are will leak through these transmissions and, very quickly, many of you will realize that more of who we are means that there will be less and less, as you say in your language, beating around the bush. There will be more directness, more ‘interactivity’ and, shall we say, more reflection of what it is we know that each and everyone of you has chosen to be. There will be less coddling. There will be more, as you would say, ‘upfrontness’ about the paths you have chosen. There will be, in these exchanges and interactions, more opportunity to be yourselves more fully, more actively, more creatively. We will reflect these opportunities to you and we will discover together that this will usually equate to the idea of abrupt shifts and transitions in energy. Abrupt realignments of perspectives and ideas, and perhaps even abrupt destruction of old systems which are no longer germane for the paths you all say you have chosen.

For at this time the mirror is being polished, the mirror is being cleaned. No longer will the reflections be dusty or dim. Now they will be stronger than before and now the reflection will indicate, at least as far as we are concerned, that you are ready to take bigger steps, that you are ready to start acting more like the true selves you say you have wanted to be for so long. And there will be not much room, not much quarter for the idea of straying from that path any more.

We do understand that some of there interactions may become more abrupt in certain ways, but this is only because we recognize that you have the ability to make abrupt change in your lives now that you have the ability to stick to the ideas you say are really important to you and to not waver from these choices to live that life of joy, to live that life of ecstasy. But again, it comes with what might be called a cautionary warning—it may not come about as you think! It may not come about as you expect. This is why we refer you to many of the systems, at this time, on your own planet that have been around for thousands of years that speak of the idea of seeing things in a different light, of looking at life from a different perspective, of really beginning to function as if you know all thing are one, and allowing yourselves to let go of past paradigms, to let go of habits and patterns, to let go of expectations to let go of structure and to allow yourselves to know that you flow naturally as you are, and to trust. To place your trust in the spontaneity of the natural shifts and flows that are going to be taking place in more and more ‘accelerative’ fashions in your upcoming months and years as things accelerate greatly. Riding the wave of that acceleration you will be able to allow yourself to handle it. Resist it now, in any way, shape and form, on almost any level, to any degree may cause, shall we say-a lot of static. A lot of heat, a lot of friction within yourselves as any resistance that remains, in a sense, will be burned out of you by the ‘accelerative’ energy that your higher self says that it has chosen to exemplify through your physical form in this life and at this time.

To sum it all up and put it in simplest terms, we will choose a phrase that you have on your planet—it is time to walk your talk. No longer to ponder, but-to walk, to act, to be. And to understand that the unknown is now par for the course. To drop your expectations about the way you think it might come about and to allow yourself to recognize that it is coming about in a variety of ways, that, heretofore, may not have seemed possible—that you may not have considered. But will be the indicators and the ‘symptomologies’ that you are moving to a higher level very quickly, and will be an indicator that greater power is now willing, within you, to be expressed.

So do not be thrown by the jarring, by the abruptness of the shift and by the unexpected directions in which it may come. Allow yourself to take it in stride and know that the unknown is just about the only place that’s going to seem stable to you in the upcoming years.

We thank you for allowing us to share this aspect and this facet of this perspective this day of your time in this transmission, and, once again, in return for the gift that you are giving us in allowing us this exchange, I ask in what way may I know and all of us be of service to you?

Audience: Bashar!

Bashar: What? You....
The Crucible Meditation

Now, all of you: close your eyes. Let’s take the first step towards that blending, forming that initial association to all the different levels in the body and in the universal reality, through that heart gate. All of you take a deep breath in, and hold it: one, two, three, four. Let it out and hold it: one, two, three, four. Take it in: one, two, three, four. Let it out: one, two, three, four. One more time, take it in: one, two, three, four. And out... and sigh.

Now just allow yourself, again, to breathe, slow it down... and as you do so imagine, feel in whatever way, shape or form works best for you, doesn’t matter how. Hear the heartbeat. Hear that gentle peace, subtle peace.

Hear the gentle double beats, the first beat of All That Is and the second beat of the reflection, the statement of the echo, the I am and the All That Is; the I am and the All That Is. The One, the All: one, all, one, all, one Self.

This is the song that your heart always sings and always reminds you about the initial beat, and the echo of the first reflection that created all the diversification, and causes there to be a flow of energy through you. The lifeblood, the first beat – poof, the I Am. And the second beat – poof, the All That Is. And the flow, the fountain that issued forth from that subtle recognition, that self-awareness – the first reflection. This is the crucible, the furnace, the chalice, the covenant; this is where it all comes together: all energies, emotions, thoughts, beliefs, patterns, actions, ideas, all the senses, sights and sounds, and tastes and smells, feelings and resonances and knowingnesses. It all comes together in this central chamber of the heart. Boom – boom, boom – boom, the first beat takes it all in, and in-between the beats it changes everything into everything else.

And with the second beat, boom – out-flow into your reality. First beat, in-between the beats, change. Second beat out, boom – change, boom, change...in...change...out, in...transform...out...in...melt, out...re-crystallizing in that melting process, melting and re-crystallizing, taking it in and transforming it, changing it, sending it out...constant flux, constant flow, constant change flowing through you.

New ideas coursing through your veins, new vibrations resonating through your body, like a beacon, an expanding sphere. Every heartbeat creates an expanding shell of energy, an expanding sphere going through your physical form, out into your aura, out beyond, boom – boom, boom – boom, and at the same time, it echoes back, boom – boom, inward. Spheres expanding, spheres collapsing outward, at the same time inward, outward and inward, outward and inward.

Allow your dreams to be realized. Take it in; transform it, let it out. Take it in; transform it, and let it out. Know, see, feel that crucible, that infinite furnace of bright white light in which no form can remain. In which all forms interchange and re-form with every other form – directly by the vibration of your intention. As your hands shape the clay, as your thoughts shape the day in this crucible of light in the chamber of your heart, all ideas are broken down, melted and re-crystallized into whatever form – into a form of a vibration of your intention, your unconditional vibration of love. Your excitement, your desire, your expression of self, your unique universe is in that heart. All things are there, all times, all
The Infinite exists in-between the beats, and in the Infinite – everything is possible. You are the infinite, expressing a particular pattern of reflectivity. You are the eyes of God seeing itself over and over again, in all the ways that it can.

Now take a deep breath in... one, two, three, four... push it out through your mouth. Take a deep breath in: one, two, three, four, open your mouth wider... take a deep breath in: one, two, three, four... open your mouth wider still... Ah... those three stages – once again, tight, open and all the way. Take a deep breath in... all the things now that you feel are of stress... blowing them out through the forcefulness, (he exhales) this represents the former constriction... take a deep breath in... more openness, more expansiveness, more WILLINGNESS... the sigh of resignation and allowance. Take a deep breath in... the total openness of complete vulnerability and acceptance and unconditional love. Ah... that relaxation. You don’t have to TRY so hard... and flow like a stream, relax, enliven, literally enliven.

At your own pace, open your eyes. Feel refreshed. Re-crystallized.

And remember, you are the crucible of transformation and the vibration of your field also determines what it is you draw in. The oxygen follows lines, pathways of vibration resonances when you have the intention that what you require is in support of that oxygen, that’s what comes, that is what is created.

The Crucible Meditation
The Crystal Planet and Contact

Q: Last week I asked you about a crystal planet and if you knew of one such planet; and you said that you did, but I forgot to ask you the name of it. Could you give me the name?

B: No.

Q: Why not?

B: Doesn’t really have one. Realize, it is not claimed and occupied by an inherent civilization. It is a focus, a locale, a central point – a merging, a coalescing. It is an idea, which is utilized by many, many, many civilizations for very specific purposes of self-exploration.

‘Tis not any one civilization’s planet; ‘tis not, in your terms, really even a planet at all. Does not really have a name. Has a feeling. Everyone who uses it recognizes it by its feeling; to simply refer to it as the crystal planet will be your translation of the same feeling, and will do. Do you follow me?

Q: Mhmm.

B: Question.

Q: I get a glow from it, more than a feeling.

B: All right. You may call it glow if you wish.

Q: Okay. Since I am new at this . . .

B: Are you sure?

Q: Well, I’m not sure of this, but I’m here today.

B: All right. Thank you.

Q: I’m here today, and I’m not sure I have ever come in contact with you before. However, do you have what we call meat bodies?

B: Yes.

Q: You do have a meat body.
B: Once again, you will find that we, in very many ways, are very much like you. You may understand that in very many ways we are your future selves.

Q: Can I ask one more question?

B: By all means.
Q: Can you – instead of channeling through, here on Earth, can you contact us without...

B: Face to face?
Q: Yes, without the...

B: Yes. However, until you allow yourselves to feel equal to us, we will not do so. We wish to meet you as equals, not as long as you consider yourselves to be less. Realize there will be a minimum amount of face-to-face contacts with individuals. There will be, at this time – simply in our estimation of your energy – within ten of your years of time, there will be general public knowledge of the existence of at least three civilizations other than your own. And you will find that, at that time, times will be more conducive – timing will be more conducive, more conductive – towards face-to-face encounters en masse.

Q: Can I ask one more question on that, then?

B: You do not have to ask if you can ask.

Q: Thank you. Like myself, I’m always searching for something better, bigger, to become much more knowledgeable within this sphere. Are we – let’s say, like myself – am I on the right track; or should I change over to something more...?

B: All right. Allow me to say this: when you ask if you are on the right track, at that moment you are on the wrong one. When you know that you have all the answers, when you realize that you have all the knowledge, when you realize there is no such thing as something “better,” but that at every moment you exist you are already perfect and that you are right then and there the best, then you are on the right track.

Q: Have you reached that point yet?
B: In your terms, yes. Yes.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

The Crystal Planet and Contact
The Cycle of Remembrance

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great! Wonderful... etc.

B: Allow us to begin this evening’s interaction with the idea of sharing, itself. The idea that you are willing to express – in your terms, in your own conditions and your own methodologies – the idea that you are willing to express yourselves. The idea that you are willing to share and interact with each other in this way, the idea that you are willing to come together for a singular purpose; and the overall idea of whether or not you may find many individuated purposes within this overall idea, it is a singular purpose in that you are willing to give of yourselves, that you are willing to explore the beings that you are.

You are willing to understand, on a very deep level, all of the ideas that have remained hidden from your conscious mind for many thousands of years. You are willing to wake up to the understanding that this exploratory age in which you now live is a prime example of the changes that are going on within the consciousnesses you are, within the reality you have created to experience yourselves within.

The very concept of physiological reality is now altering. The very concept of what you are as a consciousness is now altering. In fact, the idea that you are beginning to be aware of yourselves as consciousness, rather than simply the product of physiological circumstances is, in and of itself, an indication of an expansion of awareness that will create many changes upon your planet – experiential, physiological changes upon your planet.

There is now, because of your willingness, because you have agreed to explore what it is that makes you what you are, what it is that creates the reality that you experience around you, because you are willing to explore this, that you will begin to see in your physiological reality these changes that you have always seen occur, occur much more rapidly, occur much more in a connected way to the changes that go on within you.

You will begin to realize that all the changes you are seeing in your physiological reality, all the differences that are now appearing in your culture, are the result of not only what you are as a social being, but what you actually are as a being of consciousness; and that you have always been primarily responsible for the structures that do exist in your society. And again, not just on a physiological level, but for the very concepts, for the very ability of these structures to exist, and for the very ability of even physical structures to exist, all these ideas have come from the wellspring of the consciousness that you are.

For do remember that even in your own literature you have said you are made in the image of the Creator. What that means is that you are also an infinite creator; you are also a multi-dimensional creator. And the attributes that you possess as a multidimensional creator are so automatic, so second-nature, that you create the reality around you so spontaneously that you have even been able to create the scenario that you have forgotten that you are creating it, so easily does it come to you.

You have the ability to create the state you call forgetfulness. You have the ability to create this scenario, this illusion in your reality, because your ability to create physical reality is so smoothly operational, you do not have to pay attention to it. It is quite automatic.

But now – now, now, now, – now you are at the end of the cycle of limitation; you are at the end of the cycle of forgetfulness. You have played out all the probable scenarios that can be played out within this particular linear reality that involved the original idea that you projected yourselves into – into this material existence. The original way in which you chose to manifest the belief in forgetfulness has now culminated. This is the end of the cycle of forgetfulness and the beginning of the cycle of remembrance, the beginning of the awakening.

You are now awakening to the fact that you have been living a particular dream for many thousands – many tens, many hundreds of thousands of years. And now you are awakening into a new understanding that you are the creators of that dream, that you are not simply caught up in the machinations of some objectified universe that is existent outside of you, that goes on with you or without you.

You are beginning to recognize that what you have called the universe is, in fact, the product of your imagination; the product of your perspective, the product of your perceptions, the product of your beliefs, the product of your feelings, the product of your thoughts.

All of these ideas, even your own scientists are now beginning to realize, come from you. They are not truly independent of you; the material universe is but a reflection. Perhaps, yes, a collective reflection on one level, and an individual reflection on another, but a reflection nonetheless of the ideas, at any given moment, you believe most strongly that you are.

Therefore, as you begin to awaken into the understanding that the universe is your projection, then all the changes that you now make within your consciousness, all the changes that you now allow to occur within the consciousness that you are, within the idea that you are, will be able to be seen by you to manifest that much more obviously, that much more transparently, and that much more quickly in your physiological reality.

Thus, you can begin to see the connection between your thoughts and the physical reality you experience. Whereas before, because you have created yourselves to live in a world of time – time being your illusion as well – you created a very large time lag, a thickening of the atmosphere that prevented you from understanding that what you thought is what created the ideas you are experiencing in your life. This time lag gave you the opportunity to think that your thoughts and your feelings were formed after you created the experiences.
But now that you are living more in the moment, and not needing to experience the idea of linear time so much any more. You are beginning to realize that it is your thoughts and your beliefs that actually create and attract to you the experiences that you have. And that you cannot have an experience if you do not have a belief that that is the most likely experience you will have in your life.

Thus, you are beginning to reverse all the scenarios that you have been previously taught in your society for how creation is what you experience. You have been taught previously the idea that seeing is believing. But now you are beginning to understand that believing is seeing.

And even though you may not be aware of that fact, you now are awakening into the understanding that when you have a situation occur in your life in the physical reality, that that is not what creates your beliefs; it is the product of your beliefs.

Now, it may reinforce the beliefs that you have, and it may then allow you to experience feelings that you feel are the result of that experience. But understand: a belief exists within you first, and then you have a feeling. There is no such thing as a feeling, no such thing as a reaction out of the blue. No situation in any way, shape or form, ever can prompt any particular built-in feeling from you if you do not already have a built-in belief about what that situation means.

When you attract a situation into your life, and then you find the reaction within you, it is that reaction and that situation that lets you know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, what the belief was that was imbedded and ingrained within your consciousness that allowed for the existence of that situation to begin with.

And when those situations come into your life, they are not there, if they are negative situations, to show you that you are a failure in life. No. They are not there to show you that you are stuck with this idea in life. No. They are there to show you that you have the belief that has attracted this situation.

And therefore, now you are aware of what this belief is – so that if you do not prefer the situation that occurs in your life, now that you are in touch with what the belief is and what the definition of the belief is – you can now alter that definition with your imagination. Now that the situation in life has made you aware of what it is.

And when you alter that definition – when you alter that belief and create it as a conscious decision to be the way you prefer it to be – that is the way you will see your physiological reality occur all around you.

For once again, you will begin to realize that your physiological reality is only – and can only be – a shadow of the soul, a reflection of the idea, at any given moment, that you are. Is all of this translating into your language appropriately? Are you following along?
AUD: Yes. Yes.

The Cycle of Remembrance
The Dal Beings

Q: Hi.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: How ya doin’?
B: All right.
Q: Before my question – just because it seems to keep coming up – I read an article, and it said that ultimately the contactees do seem to wind up with their feet firmly planted somewhere just above the ground.
B: Perhaps simply on the soil of the new fourth density earth.
Q: Oh, okay. There you go. That makes sense. My question is the Dal universe and the beings.
B: Yes.
Q: I’ve been having some exchanges of energy with them, and I thought maybe you could elaborate on them. They’re quite different from what I’ve experienced.
B: Yes. We cannot necessarily go much into other universal realities as this time. However, let us say they function as an automatic on and off switch, to regulate some of the functions taking place in terms of exchanges of energy in your physiological universe. They are like a monitoring energy.
Q: Yeah. I do notice that when they show up, the Pleiadians, who were pretty headstrong, quiet up real fast.
B: No need to look at it that way. You are putting it back into a melodramatic framework. That is an earth interpretation of what is going on in terms of the exchange of energy, and is not necessarily literally representative of what is actually taking place.
Q: Okay. Yes, I understand that… also… I mean, are they physical like us? I know they can…
B: They can represent themselves that way, but ultimately, not really.
Q: I mean, they’re like this gaseous energy cloud?
B: Well, in a sense, energy being, yes. You might interpret the idea as gaseous in your reality, but that also would only be an interpretation.
Q: Mhmm.
B: It might be more easily understood as etheric.
Q: Etheric.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Getting into etheric: can… is the etheric fragile? Can it be broken in parts?
B: Well, in a sense, we, quote/unquote, break it all the time in order to interact with you, because, in many ways, we are also etheric.
Q: Mhmm. But it re-physicalizes. It goes back together.
B: In our reality, according to our thoughts and our beliefs, yes.
Q: Mhmm. Okay. So getting back to the Dals? They’re just totally from another reality…
B: Another dimensional plane altogether, that is, to some degree – 90 degree of a vector – to those realities, those dimensional planes, that you and I would call physiologically real. They are a vector universe.
Q: How did they get here?
B: Through the idea of phase shifting. Just as we come into your universe. The idea of changing your vibratory frequency to match that of the universe in question of visitation, and to project a portion of their consciousness in whatever way seems to be most necessary to represent their presence.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Their presence, as you perceive it, is not even the totality of the being.
Q: Right, right.
B: It is, in a sense, but a finger – to use an analogy.
Q: Do they have ships?
B: Not as you understand it, no. They do have cohesive electromagnetic consciousness that sometimes you may perceive as ships. Or more often than not, would choose to perceive as simply spheres of light in your reality.
Q: Right. Are those spheres of light… is that one being in there, or is it a mass consciousness?
B: It is a collective and, at the same time, it is one.
Q: Male/female?
B: That polarity does not exist for them.
Q: So they just…
B: They understand it as a necessary representational face in your reality, and sometimes can put that face on. That is not to say that, even if it represents itself as a male or a female, it actually sees itself that way.
Q: Mhmm. Do they have physical technology like we have? Or is it total, you know, mental frequency?
B: Not as you understand it, except in one dimension they would call their dim past.
Q: Uh huh. Can they…
B: One that now, at this time, would be sufficient to allow other individuals to interact.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: Sleep well.
Q: Okay. Thanks.
B: Thank you.
The Didgeridoo

Q: Why aren’t woman allowed to play the didgeridoo in Aboriginal culture?
B: Some have been, from time to time, but it is simply generally recognized that that frequency has a lot more to do with what you typically call male energy on your planet. Some of these things have the ability to be changed and shifted, but it is simply recognized that, more often than not, that particular instrument is, to some degree, a re-creation of a masculine vibration that allows enhancement to take place within the energy field of those who exhibit more masculine qualities.

It is not that it will not and cannot be used by feminine energies, but let me put it this way: the women don’t need it; the men do.

Q: And has the didgeridoo been used like the flute, for levitation?
B: Not exactly in the same way, but yes, it has generated the proper state of mind; the state of being that allows levitation to take place. But not in the same way as with many other cultures who have actually utilized the acoustic signals of instruments themselves to create a sonic field that negates the gravity effect on certain material objects.

Q: Have there been tribes that have been able to do that?
B: There have been individuals within tribes that have been able to do that. There was on your planet once an incident where the majority of the tribe was capable of doing that, but this is rare.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

The Dimensional Infusion
Questioner: The original dimensional infusion occurred in the Lyran system. Is that correct?
Bashar: Define dimensional infusion.
Q: Well...
B: The Lyran system is, to some degree, a progenitor system of many of the species that exist within your particular area of the galaxy now; in that sense, it is an ancestor energy. Yes, in that sense, this is correct, but define what you mean by dimensional infusion.
Q: My understanding is that this dimension, this linear dimension was not in existence, in a linear sense, at a certain time period. And then it was infused at a certain time period, and that original infusion from the void, if that’s what you wish to call it, took place in the Lyran system.
B: It took place at the time of your progenitor’s existence in the Lyran system, and could be said to have come from the Lyran system, in the sense that you are connected to it as a collective society. But the way you have originally said it can be misleading. You understand the difference?
Q: Yes.
B: In that all things are connected, what happened there had bearing on what is happening with you NOW, all of you. Thus, these are connected events, even though they may seem displaced in space/time.
Q: So the original seeding of our civilization here had it’s origin linearly in the Lyran system, and then...
B: Yes, to some degree, although again, there have been many offshoot tracks, and it is not just the simplistic following back of the line. And it is not just the idea of the direct intention to seed, as if there was only one faction with one idea. You understand?
Q: Right, well there was Vega, which was interplayed in it, Sirius system...
B: Yes.
Q: ... Orion system...
B: Yes, many, many, many, many, many. You are talking about very ancient ongoings, on the order of millions of years ago, in your terms of time.
Q: And is it also correct that the original reason was that there were beings that wanted to be completely unconditional and open, and then there were also beings who chose to be separate and have their own existence separate from those beings?
B: Yes.
Q: And that was the original polarity that manifested and created a warlike temperament?
B: To some degree, yes, although again, it is much more richly complex than that. But yes, simply put, you could say that.
Q: And it played itself out between the Sirian and the Orion systems?
B: It is playing itself out now.
Q: But originally?
B: It is playing itself out now. This is still what is going on on your Earth.
Q: Is it going to culminate with our transition into 4th density?
B: Yes, that is what that is for, that is why all the focus is on your Earth. Because your Earth is the final act of that transition, of that culmination. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
The DNA Helix and the Twelve Strands

Q: I have been studying the twelve strands of DNA helix and the heart, can you comment?

B: All right, now, the idea of the DNA helix and the idea of the twelve is that they are not all physical but, again, they exist. A version or a template exists on all these different levels and what you are doing is connecting to more of those vibrational resonance patterns. And, yes, at one time in your civilization certain members used to have more access to more of them. You are, again, regaining that connection, that access.

Now, you have two in the body physically, and there is a third pattern that can be discovered as to exist, to some degree, in the body. But it is a quasi-physicalized pattern, a quasi-physicalized strand; and is mostly made of silica in the body in connection to the two DNA spirals. It is silicon because, well – what you recognize as quartz – because it is a high resonant crystalline frequency that is able to translate etheric energy into physical energy and vice versa, as you say.

But all the other so-called strands of DNA will not incorporate into your body physiologically; they could not possibly do so. It’s not the expression of your physical reality that they represent, but they do represent vibratory templates of enfolding and evolutionary growth on different non-physical levels that you are all starting to connect back into, and drop the physical, material vibrations of the crossings that we have talked about. Make sense?

Q: Are there any natural elements that can help access these templates?

B: There are a few elements that exist upon your planet as we have discussed, some of them are being discovered that can aid and assist in your ability to align in such a manner as to access these things. Yes, there are some natural substances on your planet that your planet has provided to aid and assist you in this way.

Nature leaves nothing out, nothing at all. There are methodologies on every level to access everything including the physical. There are some growing plants, there are some atomic elements, there are certain kinds of natural chemical concoctions, or biological enzymes, and so on and so forth, that all have to do with the ability of alignment in that way. So, yes, you can even do that, and you can do it in a number of ways.
Bashar: Allow us to begin with an idea we have shared with many of you recently, and which we will reintroduce from this particular avenue, this particular perspective this evening of your time, as another way to perceive the idea of all the blending of polarity that you have been doing in your lives of late.

Now, we have discussed with you many ideas of polarity, many ideas of attitudes in understanding the blending of positive and negative energy; but allow us at this time to point out another analogy that may allow you a little more opportunity to recognize the ease with which you can create positive action, positive manifestation in your life. Now, many of you already are aware of the analogy you utilize in your own society that you call an if/or situation having both sides of the coin. Do recognize, as we have discussed many times, that with any one side of the coin, automatically comes the other side of the coin, and so this is simply another way to say that everything—cause and effect, positive and negative—are simply both sides of the same event, and are always present simultaneously. The opportunity for the manifestation of any situation into either a positive or negative manifestation is, in that sense, typically, generally equal within any given neutral situation, as we have discussed many times.

Your ability to bring into a situation the particular attitude that determines and reflects and represents the beliefs that you are, as we have said, once again will determine the effect you get out of the situation. Negative attitude going in... negative effect coming out. Positive attitude going in... positive effect coming out, since all situations, once again, are neutral, blank, and have no built-in meaning.

Now, the idea of the blending of this polarity: many times we sense that in you, because you have long experienced the dichotomy of, on the one hand and on the other hand, the this, the that, the positive, the negative, the back, the forth. The idea of attempting to maintain that balance, or what seems to you to be a need to maintain that balance to allow yourself to create the opportunity to have the decision, to have the choice. To choose which one you prefer, which manifestation you prefer in your life, positive or negative. These ideas you have been dealing with.

Now, let us add one more dimension, and that is the edge of the coin. Many of you, well, perhaps, positively considering the idea at first, simply say, well the edge of the coin represents where the two sides are equal, are balanced, are blended, and thus it is a neutral state. Not quite. Allow us to put it in very colloquial terms. Now, not exactly in these ratios, because this is your own terminology. Not exactly in this way; but we will say it in this way: the universe is very slightly biased towards the positive, and this is because the edge of the coin, the balance state, equilibrium by definition, gives you an opportunity, and brings with it, because it is a blending, a slight tilt in the positive direction. So you will understand therefore that it is not that you must go through the 50% of the negative, the 50% of the positive. The negative is, in a sense, 49%, the positive is 51%. So even if you can allow yourself to maintain even simply the balance state, even arrive in the limbo state, even arrive at the neutral, or what you used to consider the neutral point, you will then automatically allow a flow, no matter how small, of positive manifestation to begin to kick into your life, which will then be able to built up, as you say, snowball and accelerate in a positive direction. You all follow along?

AUD - Yes.

Bashar – The edge of the coin gives you an edge, allows you to recognize that even if you are creating a reality in which it seems that everything is going negatively, if you will at least release, let go, and cease to worry about it, and go back to your zero rest point, then you will not remain in limbo. You will not remain in neutrality for very long, because the zero rest point by definition is slightly integrative, and therefore slightly in the positive direction.

That is why, simply, all you really need to do when it comes right down to it, it is simply center, and that alone will point you towards positive acceleration, positive synchronicity, and positive manifestation in your life. Do you follow along?

AUD Yes.

Bashar– It may be, at times, seemingly, a very subtle and ethereal line; but once you are simply in that state of trust, in that state of release, and in that state of centering, all positive manifestation, like anything, becomes automatic. All the details will take care of themselves and fall right into place. So, in this dream time, simply, once again, realize you do not have to try so hard. You do not have to struggle. You do not have to create the idea of making or forcing anything to happen. If you are willing to simply allow yourself to rest in the very highly active state of centering, you will then allow the flow of your natural positive manifestation to begin to trickle, perhaps at first, drop by drop into your life; but as long as you continue to allow yourself to remain in the rest point, the drops will become a stream, which will become a river, which will become a flood of positive manifestation. Trust. Relaxation. After all, do you not associate the experience of a dream with relaxation? You are in a state of rest when you experience what you call a dream. To allow your physical reality to become as a dream, be in a state of rest, and all life will be as a dream, and all dreams will be alive and real, and the dimension of your imagination will know no bounds, and will be the natural state of your existence.

The Ego
Q: I have a question about ego.
B: Ego.
Q: I hear so much about ego. I know you’ve talked about it to some degree.
B: Oh, yes.
Q: And I hear so many people talking about it... I’d like some clarification as to what is ego.
B: All right.
Q: Positive ego, negative ego...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and how it pertains to channeling.
B: Yes.
Q: And including the idea of getting the ego out of the way, which everyone talks about.
B: Oh, all right, all right. It is not so much that you get it out of the way; it is that you incorporate it evenly, equally. The idea of just plain ego is that it has a job to do. The ego’s job is to keep your consciousness focused into the physical reality you have said you want to be focused into. That’s its job; that’s it.

Negative ego is simply when you give over your power to that particular portion that you have created yourself to be, to run the whole show. That’s not its job. Its job is to simply provide a focus, not to do the thinking.
Q: Okay.
B: So negative ego is when the totality, or a large part of your consciousness is stuffed into the idea of your thoughts, your analysis, your mentality, in such a way as to allow it to think that it has to run the whole show. And in giving it more power than it is due, it tends to wobble and lose its balance. It tends to get erratic and eccentric, as you may say. And it tends, therefore, to create filters, structures, limitations, to bolster itself, fortify itself, so it won’t keel over and die and collapse under the weight you have given it.
Q: Okay.
B: So the idea is to lighten up upon the ego, lighten up upon the self. Take full responsibility for the creations in your reality; trust that if you know you wish to be of positive service, then you will be. And in that sense, you do not have to watch yourself so closely, assuming that something could reach out and drag you down from within yourself.
Q: Right.
B: All right. Now, the idea, therefore, is that simply, if you are operating generally in a mode of trust, and in a mode of desire of service, then your typical ego structure will know that when you want to defocus yourself to allow yourself to expand, you aren’t killing the ego. So it won’t have to panic; it won’t think that you’re taking its job away from it. You are simply saying, integrate from within me, in a different fashion, from a different point of view. Keep me focused, but in a different way.
Allow it to do its job, do not take its job away. That’s when it becomes insecure. So the idea is to simply recognize that the ego will simply become a broader perspective ego – which seems to translate into your society as egolessness.
Q: Yes.
B: Simply because it smoothes itself out, it shifts its focus from a limited one to a broader one. The ego, or let us say, awareness of individuality is still there. But it simply becomes that you know you are supporting the whole, and you are simply trusting that in supporting the whole – because you are a part of the whole – you will be automatically supported.
So you do not have the idea of the panic in the negative ego of, “Well, all right. Well, what’s in it for me? I’d better control this carefully, or otherwise I could be forgotten.”
Q: Yes.
B: That’s basically the whole idea in a nutshell. Does that assist you, or is there some other specific that you wish to discuss?
Q: Can you say something about the idea of re-filtering, as such, to become clearer?
B: Well, the idea, again, involves trust. Simply that the more you trust that what you are doing is for a positive reason, the more feedback and circumstances and synchronicity you will get in your life, to allow you to keep doing it in a more accelerated way. So your trust will clear you, if you act on it. If you doubt on it, that’s when you fog up the picture.
Q: Yes.
B: There is no reason to doubt yourself. If you know what your intentions are, you will always give yourself the guidance – or attract the guidance that you need – to allow you to remain, in your estimation, on track.
And even if you momentarily seem to get off track – which is not really ultimately possible – then you will always allow yourself to know that there is something you will learn from it in a positive way. And the learning of it, rather than the judging of it, will allow you to know that you haven’t really left the track at all. You have simply expanded the track wider.
Q: Yes. The idea of being emotionless, or becoming emotionless: does that make sense at all?
B: It is simply that when you balance and blend out all polarities within you, to your society it may seem that you become an emotionless being. But it isn’t that you become cold; it is simply that you don’t exhibit the extremes of emotionality that your society, more often than not, takes for a living being.
The idea, simply, is that as you blend and balance them out, they all blend into ultimate and unconditional love and compassion. You simply know what you are doing, and therefore, there is no reason to exhibit the extremes that usually indicated doubt or uncertainty.
It isn’t that you become cold; it’s that you become all embracing. But since you trust ultimately, then it is simply that people are seeing the absolute certainty and conviction within you. That does not bring with it the idea of an extreme range of emotionality. Doesn’t mean you can’t be happy. Does that answer the question?

Q: Very much, thank you.
B: Thank you very much for your expression of yourself.
Q: Thank you.
The Elevator Analogy

Q: Hello.
B: Good day to you.
Q: The question I have is ... on this plane we ... I can act very logically, if I do this, this, and this ... this will be the result.
B: Yes.
Q: And if it is not the result, then I can adjust my thinking and move onto the next thing.
B: Yes.
Q: What I’m not integrating is the feelings connected with disappointment or the letdown from that. And I guess my question is, what is the relationship between emotions and feelings ... ah ... logical thinking...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and how that relates to living in a spiritual way...
B: Thank you.
Q: ... in ... can I?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. In my self when something happens that does not go according to plan...
B: Congratulations. (Laughter.)
Q: ... in my own knowing, I know that everything is going to be okay.
B: Yes.
Q: And that it will work out.
B: Yes.
Q: And so it’s easy for me to move from that moment in the next second, to be on to the next thing.
B: Yes.
Q: But it seems like somehow I’m getting stuck with not recognizing the emotions, or dealing with the emotions.
B: All right, you are basically, simply carrying the baggage of expectation with you in what you are doing. The idea is that, yes, you can have a goal, yes, but there are so many surprising ways you could actually get there other than the one your mind is capable of understanding. So the idea is, yes, you can have a plan, you can have a path, you can have a general structure that you believe you will follow, but if it does not come to precise fruition in exactly that way, that’s telling you that there is something, perhaps, bigger, richer and more surprising than your mind was capable of grasping. When you realize that, at that moment you will allow it not to be defined as a failure, or a disappointment, but will, all of a sudden, be elevated to an unexpected level of clarity, because you will allow yourself to be surprised and inspired, and thrilled and shocked. And your curiosity will come alive and say, this did not go as I expected, therefore, something greater must be at hand. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: That state will elevate you to see the clearer path, to see the bigger picture. You can push the button and take the elevator down, or push the button and take the elevator up. When you arrive at the end of the hallway, you did not expect there to be an elevator at, it’s your choice of which way to go. Just because you didn’t expect an elevator to be there does not mean you have to go down to the basement and mope. (Laughter.) "Oh, there’s an elevator, that means the only way I can go is down." Elevators go up too! Sometimes they go side to side, but we won’t get into that! (Laughter.) The idea simply is, at that point of arrival of the unexpected elevator, you have a choice between the down and the up button. Choose what you prefer, allow yourself to know that it is never an interruption, it is never a block, it is an arrow pointing in an unexpected direction, full of more than you were possibly imagining. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Then you will be thrilled, you will be enlightened, and you will be also allowed to see the bigger picture by your own choice, because you will take the elevator all the way up to the penthouse, and have a beautiful view of the entire idea, you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Does this help you?

Q: It certainly does.

B: It really is just a matter of learning how to respond to your life, instead of react to your life.

Q: In response then ... I mean it’s ... to deny emotion...

B: No, no, no. No, no, no. You do allow yourself to recognize that if you do choose to feel a certain way, you must stay in that feeling and understand what the feeling is showing you about your beliefs. Feelings are always reactions to beliefs, or responses to beliefs. The belief is there first, so if you have a negative feeling or a feeling you don’t prefer, it’s a reaction to something you believe to be true, first. The feeling puts you in touch with the fact that you have the belief. If you don’t prefer the feeling, if you don’t prefer the belief, it’s an opportunity to examine yourself, to discover yourself, to discover what baggage of expectation, you have been carrying up to that point; and if you don’t prefer it, to drop it, or to take on new baggage. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: So use the feeling as an opportunity, never avoid the feeling, stay with the feeling. The feeling is there to show you what you need to understand about yourself, so that in understanding you can then.
transmute the feeling. You don’t get rid of feelings, you change them. You only have one energy to work with, that’s it. All the things you ever feel, and all the things you ever do, and all the things you ever think are the same one energy; you can only change it from one thing to another. You can’t get rid of it or shove it under the rug, you must stay in it, let it show you what is there to show you. Don’t deny it ... then it will teach you, you will go through the process, you will be enlightened by it, and you will gain more practice in understanding that your feelings are there to help you; and so, you will have less reaction to them and more response to them. And they will slowly but surely, or quickly but surely, turn from negative to positive feelings, in more and more situations in your life, you understand?

Q: Yes.
B: Does this help clarify the situation for you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: Thank you.
Questioner [a man]: Could you explain what the explosion was that occurred in Tunguska in Siberia in 1908?

Bashar: A craft, malfunctioning. It was not, as many of your people believe, the idea of either cometary body or the idea of a miniature black hole or the idea of a meteoric impact. It was, as many people suspect, the idea of a malfunctioning craft.

Q: Hmm!

B: But more in the sense of what you would call an "energy gate" craft, an intrusion into your dimensional reality. Something far more sophisticated than simply the concept of what you would consider to be a "nuts and bolts" technology.

Q: Hm-mm.

B: That’s why it was perceived mostly as the idea of glowing energy, rather than literally as a metallic craft. It was not metallic, in that sense, though when it intruded into your dimensional reality, it did begin to take on some crystalline metallic qualities before it exploded.

Q: Uh-ha...and, ah...

B: In fact, it actually was a miscalibration of the energy requirements for stabilization in your dimension that caused the explosional rip. When coming from a higher dimensional frequency, things must be calibrated very carefully in order to find true balance incorporation into the physical material reality into which they are intruding. An imbalance was achieved, and it created a dimensional rip, which back-lashed, fed back into the mechanism and allowed there to be a powerful explosion. Does that make any sense to you?

Q: Uh...somewhat, yeah...I’ll listen to it again.

B: Well, it’s, again, similar to the idea of attempting to bottle something up that is simply far too powerful for the container when it is miscalculated. And thus, it blew the container apart as it was forming.

Q: OK...

B: As it translated from a higher dimension of great power, down to the dimension of more restricted and limited expression of power, the miscalibration allowed there to be an inconsistency in the container that was forming to hold the idea of the translation in the jump from one dimension to the other, and, in that sense, the destabilization caused an explosion outward of energy. Does that make more sense?

Q: Yes, it makes sense.

B: Oh, all right.
Q: Um...it leads to something else I wanted to know about in that apparently from time to time people...U...I don’t know what to call them...extraterrestrials or UFO people that are flying around in...extradimensionally or whatever...make mistakes every once in awhile...

B: Of course!

Q: ...which leads to both the concept of Roswell, but more specifically now, what’s going around is a film purporting to be an interview of a captured...I guess a captured Grey. Can you talk about that?

B: Yes. This is what you would all a re-creation of an actual event. Not an actual event. But it is, to some degree, an accurate recreation of an actual event.

Q: An event being that a live Grey was taken into custody, so to speak?

B: Yes.

Q: And interrogated, or whatever?

B: Yes. But this is not what you would call a filming of the actual event, but a relatively accurate recreation.

Q: I understand. Uh...what bothers a lot of people, including me about that, is that if the Greys, if it was a Grey, if they have the kind of telepathic ability to control us or influence us telepathically, as has been reported, would the rest of them allow this to happen to their, one of their mates? Wouldn’t they come get him?

B: If you clip off the end of your fingernail, do you care to retrieve it?

Q: No, not in any meaningful sense.

B: The idea is that you must understand this as a hive mentality; and one individual member cut off from the group, in some senses, to them is of little consequence.

Q: Cut off by virtue of having been accidentally captured, or was there...

B: Yes.

Q: ...another process that...

B: Yes.

Q: Oh...

B: Again, as you say, mistakes can happen; miscalculations can occur. And even though they understand there may be a higher purpose to this on one level, on what you would call the pragmatic physiological level and dependent upon their construct of consciousness, and its difference between human and them, in that they do not have the same emotional capacity, their telepathic connection simply regards this as inconsequential, to a great degree. Because it is simply like a small fragment of the whole, and it is only–well, not even really–an inconvenience to them. Does that make any sense to you?

Q: Yes, yes it does. Um...

B: Plus, they also understand that there are ways to use this situation to their own advantage, as well. In that since they are telepathically connected, then any such presence, no matter how it occurred, will also act as an absorber of information that will be fed back into the collective.

Q: I see. Uh, I was wondering in the general field, I guess, of UFOs, and the technology--
B: Yes.
Q: Um, when Nicola Tesla died, it's my understanding that a lot of his papers and documents were taken by government people and kept under wraps until now.
B: Yes.
Q: Is any of that being used, either by government or extragovernmental black operations or whatever, in terms of trying to mount technology for space travel or anything else?
B: Yes.
Q: Could you specify what it is?
B: Some of the gravitational concepts, some of the energy transference concepts, although much of the work is actually, as you would say, "over the heads" of most individuals. But they have made sense out of some of it. It especially has to do with the idea of what we typically refer to as "resonance identification," which means the understanding of certain frequencies that will in a sense trigger other things to happen on a more expanded scale.
Q: Um...something that I, perhaps, could get at in another way than I asked you once before, I guess I was not very precise in the way I asked it, but, speaking of a man like Tesla, and there have been others, of such a unique talent, so obviously out of his time, even way ahead of us.
B: But not really, because there can really be no such thing, but I know what you mean.
Q: Well...
B: He was a direct product of his time. That, actually, is the point.
Q: OK, I understand. There are two different sort of frames of reference here, that we are talking in.
B: Yes.
Q: From the point of view that somebody like him creates knowledge, not creates knowledge, discovers things...
B: Yes.
Q: ...sets things down, and so on, which for one reason or another are never used. They are either suppressed or they disappear by accident, so-called, or whatever. From a kind of an overall overview of how the earth is developing, I don't understand the purpose of that. It seems like a tremendous waste of energy. Why did he even bother to come here and do that in the first place?
B: First of all, once an idea is introduced into a consciousness matrix, it is never lost. So it is still available to the collective consciousness of your people.
Q: I understand that.
B: That's one thing. Secondly, of course, is the taking of the responsibility for the creation of your reality in the way that you have in the creation of compartmentalized structures that work upon the concepts of fear and denial. And this is an opportunity to allow yourselves to decide that it is important to change those things, when you see that they are only doing the job you set them up to do, really. Because, ultimately, the idea is that they have achieved the status they have achieved and the ability that they have achieved to suppress these things because many people on your planet have given their power over to them out of fear. And thus, they are only doing, in a sense, what many of you have created them to do. When you take back responsibility for these things, then they will no longer have the capacity to do this. They will no longer need to do that job.

Q: By taking back responsibility, are you speaking in the narrow sense of political action or reform, or something deeper than...

B: That as well, but also the idea that most people on your planet still, in a sense, are dysfunctional with regard to the idea of their own responsibility for their action, and their own sense of connection to the Infinite, and their own expression of self-empowerment. In a sense, many people are still operating in the denial phase of wanting someone to take responsibility for them, because most people on your planet still, shall we say, define the concept of responsibility as blame instead of freedom.

Q: Hm...

B: Does that make sense?

Q: Yes.

B: All it is, is the ability to respond. But your people don’t yet understand that.

Q: Hm...OK, and if I could ask just two other things here.

B: Number one.

Q: Um—the orgone research of Wilhelm Reich, is that valid and real?

B: It is valid in concept, though not always in the approaches that different people have taken with it, but in concept, yes. Number two?

Q: The second thing was a follow up to a question that you were discussing last time here. Uh, uh, regarding the state that people find themselves in immediately after death.

B: Yes?

Q: Well, I’m wondering about an individual such as Jeffrey Dahmer or perhaps a terrorist who drives into a crowded square, blows himself up and as many people as he can with him.

B: Yes.

Q: Well, when these people—whatever you call it—wake up, as it were—in other words, I’m talking about people who do what we would commonly call "evil" or really—

B: Yes, I understand.

Q: What, where do they find themselves, and what is their reaction to it?

B: Well, of course it will depend upon each specific case. Because it will depend upon what (a) they thought they might find, (b) they feared they might find, (c) that they might have not had any thought about it at all, and of course the collective energy of what might have been their last action in physical reality, and perhaps many other factors.

But let’s just put it this way, to answer your question generally, for those that might be engaged in that kind of vibration in general and to that kind of degree of expression of it, most likely the first experience would be one of great confusion. For it will take some time for cohesiveness to align itself with the recognition that they are where they are, in fact that they are even still existing.

Then, perhaps slowly, over what might pass, from your perception, as time, there may be the idea that what has just happened was like a dream, because once you generally enter the spirit realm, so to speak, physical reality takes on very much of the same quality that you feel the spiritual level has right now. Kind of a quasi-dreamlike, imaginative projection of something that you’re not quite sure is real. Physical reality, in that sense, changes places, and all of a sudden the spiritual idea is more tangible. And to some degree, for many people, there is instant recognition of remembering, "Oh, that’s right. This is who I am, and I just woke up from either (a) a dream, or (b) a nightmare. That was not my real true self. Let’s see, what was that all about?"

So, in general, those are some of the responses for that kind of action. Then there will be education, understanding, alignment of how the soul can use that in a positive, constructive way for its growth. Because on that level, really, on the higher levels of spirit, it will only be used that way, but there may be rebalancing that the soul feels is required, or the spirit feels is required, for the action taken, and thus they may assign themselves different duties that will help, in terms of guidance and so forth, perhaps, to balance out the idea of the consequences of some of those actions, when perhaps they did them from a misunderstanding. Does that help?

Q: Um...yes. OK. Thank you.

B: Now, one more thing. It is from time to time, again because your strongest belief creates the reality, possible that many of these individuals will actually, if they were acting out of fear, in most cases these kinds of actions stem from that, will immediately experience the idea of everything that they have themselves caused. Do you understand? That will be what you call, "the life review." They will actually experience everything they did to anyone else.

Q: Mm-hmm.

B: And they will experience every ripple of that, no matter how far it may have affected someone else down the line. All at once. So they will then, with that, shall we say, sort of "shock treatment," awaken into their true identity because in a sense they will absorb that and see from the perspective that they could not see from in physical life, as to what the consequences of their actions truly are energetically. Does that make sense to you?

Q: Yes. I’ve heard...I’ve heard it said by commentators and what not, that an individual rarely might be in danger of doing acts or whatever that are so heinous that they might even destroy their humanness. Is that possible?

B: Well, to alter out of humanness, yes. But not to destroy the essence of their consciousness, no. That cannot be destroyed. But yes, because you are not innately human as a consciousness, you can certainly rearrange yourself to be very "vibrationally far from" humanness, absolutely. Because humanness is simply one of the ways that consciousness has of expressing itself within infinite creation. Make sense?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: [another young man]: Hello.
B: And to you good day!
Q: Hello.
Q: Referring to Roswell, the tape that was on TV about an autopsy. Was that a fake?
B: It is a fabrication, yes.
Q: You say there are pyramids on the moon and Mars. Do we have pictures of those right now?
B: Yes.
Q: They’re just not revealed to us.
B: Correct.
Q: My brother’s a doubter. Could you help me with this?
B: A doubter of what?
Q: Anything that you can’t see, hear, feel, or touch.
B: So?
Q: He said
B: It’s not our place to change anyone’s mind.
Q: Yes, but I wanted to communicate with him on some of these things and maybe open him up a little bit.
B: Well, go ahead, but it’s his choice as to whether or not to buy into it.
Q: True. Could you help me on one thing?
B: Such as?
Q: OK. He says that my father’s given name at birth is a name I do not know.
B: So?
Q: And he knows it. Could you tell me what that name is?
B: No. Because this is being done for the purpose of convincing, and, therefore, the door is closed to us because that is against our purpose.
Q: Hm. All right. I once knew a man who called himself Geronimo. Spent some time with him 15 years ago. Could you enlighten him on where he might be today?
B: Have you checked your area of Idaho?
Q: Uh, no, I haven’t. I haven’t checked anywhere for him.
B: All right, begin in your area of Idaho, and see where that leads. That is where we sense the trail to be, at least in part, in that direction.
Q: So he is alive today.
B: I didn’t say that.
Q: Oh.
B: I just said, "Check in Idaho."
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: [a woman]: Good evening, Bashar.
Q: And to you, good day!
Q: And how are you?
B: Perfect! And you?
Q: I’m fine. I understand this to be our last communication for a while.
B: Perhaps.
Q: Perhaps. Um, I had a dream not too long ago, and in this dream scenario, I was taken some place in the desert, and a black helicopter landed, and a being came out, and I remarked at the time, "You aren’t human, are you?" And it was very tall and very much like a Grey, and a tall essence, and he began speaking to me verbally.
B: Yes.
Q: And I cannot remember the content of that conversation, and I was hoping that maybe you had a way that you could help me recall some of that content of that information, because it was blocked from me.
B: Perhaps, but again understand that sometimes there is reason why such conversations are blocked.
Q: I don’t understand.
B: The idea, number one, is that sometimes the information that is shared on that level is blocked by agreement because of the timing of the release of information on your planet as to whether it will be detrimental or beneficial for that information to be known. Sometimes it is blocked because many members of your society actually now have developed the technology where they extract information directly from your mind, and it would be, perhaps, to the disadvantage of your society for them to do so. You understand?
Q: I understand that. Yes, I do.
B: So, some of it is for safeguarding. However, there are things that we can tell discuss. Number one, some of the conversation entailed remembering more of who you are relative to their civilization, since you have a counterpart in their civilization.
Q: Yes, I understand that it’s a parallel life of some sort.
B: Yes.
Q: Yes, I understand that because I am very much in touch with that...
B: Yes.
Q: ...quite a bit.
B: So, a lot of the conversation involved that particular idea, and how you relate to that idea with regard to your human incarnation.
Q: Yes, I understand, and I, quite a bit, keep going back to that same area, that same place, constantly. It’s like a hotel room, all together, without no walls in between.
B: Yes, well this is in a sense a screen adaptational memory for convenience sake.
Q: I see.
B: It is simply another space and time that your mind will interpret as that kind of a structure, since it needs to make sense out of the place that it is in.
Q: Yeah, that’s true, and there were many of us, too, and I remember that there was definitely a psychic connection between all of us at the time.
B: And what was also discussed in a sense was the timing of things and what the agenda is leading up to, and when certain things will be done and unfolded, on your planet.
Q: Yeah, it did sound familiar, that course of the conversation, I remember thinking how familiar this is.
B: And of course, you understand, it was not literally a black helicopter? That also was configuration of your mind to make sense out of a type of craft.
Q: I understand that. I remember in the conversation of the dream that I kept saying, "I don’t have my luggage. I don’t have my luggage, I can’t go." And they did not take "no" for an answer. Why did I feel like I had to carry my baggage?
B: Well, that’s really a good question.
Q: Yes [chuckles], it is.
B: Why do you feel that you have to carry baggage?
Q: I don’t know.
B: Yes, you do. All of you know the answer to that question. It is your definitions.
Q: I see.
B: Definitions are the only thing that create the realities you experience. The definitions create the motivations for the choices that you make; that’s all there is to it. So, any thing that may appear to be excess baggage that you are carrying around, when looked at from the "higher" level of your being, is simply the product of having within your physical consciousness matrix definitions that are constructing your physical personality that make it seem necessary to carry things that may in fact not be aligned with your core, true self.
So, any time you feel you are carrying baggage you don’t really need, ideally, search your definitions to find out why you would be motivated to choose to hold onto something that doesn’t work for you. Because it is always in the definitions you will find it.

Q: I understand that concept. I have heard that before.
B: Yes. It is also some of the conversation you had.
Q: Oh...I understand that.
B: That’s why you discussed the idea of excess baggage, but translated it as the idea of baggage literally.
Q: I see.
B: Do you follow?
Q: Yeah, I believe I do. And my other counterpart that’s in another place/time continuum, I want more conscious recollection of that. How do I go about that?
B: Then let go of the baggage! That, in a sense, was what was told to you. When you let go of the baggage, you will have more conscious recollection of that idea. And be more like that self. Being more like that self, being more of that vibration will allow you to function more in the awareness of what that self knows. That is what communication is.

The idea, again, remember, is that when you create yourself to be that vibrational state, then you know the same things that anyone on the same level knows. It is not actually in that sense "reading each others’ minds." Communication, transference, is not really transference, it is simply the idea of identifying so strongly on the same wavelength that you know the same things simultaneously.

Q: I see.
B: That’s how it works. That’s why people who are "in love" often exhibit knowing each other’s thoughts. It’s not that they know each other’s thoughts; it’s that they are having the same thoughts at the same time. Because they are on the same frequency; they are translating the idea of their definition into experiential reality simultaneously.

Q: So, is that what we mistake as being in love, it’s just that a common denominator is a frequency?
B: It’s not a mistake. Unconditional love is the prime frequency of the Infinite Creation.
Q: I see.
B: That’s all it is. Not to make less of it, that’s what it is. It is the vibration of the infinite unconditional love. Remember that the unconditional existence and love, what you call love, that vibration is so unconditional on behalf of the Infinite, that it will actually allow you to know or believe that you are not unconditionally loved. That’s how unconditionally loving it is.

Q: I understand that.
Q: Make sense?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: Does that help you?
Q: I understand that, and how much does the government have to do with the interfering with our agenda, or with their agenda?
B: Not really too much because there’s not much they can really do; however, there is a lot of static. But when you say, "our government," remember that’s you. It’s your planet. Responsibility, remember?
Q: I see.
B: You want to change it? Change it!
Q: Can we lessen the polarities?
B: You can, but the idea really is not so much to TRY to change in the classical sense those structures, but to create new structures that can replace them that are more vibrationally balanced. Because the old structures in this transitional age will not be capable of standing up under their own weight and will not survive. The idea, therefore, is to have new structures ready to replace them when they start to crumble. As they are already beginning to do.
Q: Yes, I understand that.
B: So, that’s the idea. Be your own government in the way you want to be, instead of being your own government in the way that you don’t.
Q: I understand that.
B: It’s your planet.
Q: I had one more question I wanted to ask you. You mentioned last week about the big craft that was outside of, up in the atmosphere, not too far from San Francisco, on the California coast. And I wanted to ask you about that and the Federation, and who was there? And you said at that time that they were here to relieve some of the pressure of the tectonic plate, the Pacific tectonic plates?
B: Yes. Yes.
Q: And is that their only agenda, or their mission, or why they’re here?
B: At that moment, it was, yes.
Q: Are they still with us at this present time, do you know?
B: No. They do not need to be right now. But the result of that was experienced as a few minor quakes down in, what you would call, the Pacific coastal area; following within that week.
Q: I see.
B: Do you understand?
Q: I believe that. Yeah, I understand that, and I remember listening to that, and what about the Sirian energy that is supposed to be with us this summer?
B: The Sirius energy is now growing all the time because you are moving into that cycle. It is now always with you, and there are many ways to experience it more strongly. Some of which have to do with the idea of forming stronger contact with the other species on your planet that are called Cetaceans. Since they are very strongly telepathically connected to the Sirius consciousness and can help remind you of how you are too, when you learn to play with them.

Q: I see, and how does that affect us according to Hale-Bopp Comet that is now, the gravity waves are now leaving us at this point.
B: Yes.
Q: How is that going to leave us now?
B: It doesn’t affect you at all. The idea is that it reflects you, not affects you. Reflects you, and thus, it was a great reflector and still is, to some degree, for the timing of great changes in your collective consciousness.
Q: I see.
B: But the idea of its representation is: Decide what reality definition is true for you because that’s what’s going to be amplified. So you’d better clarify your definitions.
Q: I understand that. Is there another comet that will be coming within 10 years, I understand, is that true?
B: Yes.
Q: About 10 years, that time span. And there will be some other great changes at that point? Correct?
B: It is reflective of great changes that you are setting up within yourselves, yes.
Q: It should be well seen like the Hale-Bopp. Is that correct?
B: To some degree. Not exactly in the same way, but to some degree, yes.
Q: OK. Thank you.
B: Thank you. At this timing, we will once again extend to each and every one of you our deep appreciation in allowing for the co-creation of this interaction in this way, through this window, at this time. Again, I remind you of the critical need for you to be yourselves and to live, live, live, live your dreams, instead of simply dreaming about being alive.

Take the opportunity to follow your joy because that joy is the vibration of your unerring, unconditional, absolutely natural core true self. So act on it. It is the thread, it is the compass needle that leads squarely to you, as your full aspect and expression of the Infinite in this reality domain.

We thank you for the co-creation of this acceleration, and the recognition of the cycles that we co-created together, to bring us together into a third reality that we are together also creating to experience new ideas within. Our unconditional love to each and every one of you. Good day.

[Darryl comes back.]
Darryl: How did it go?
Audience: Fabulous, amazing, great,[much applause]
Darryl: Thank you all very much for being here tonight, um, I look forward to seeing you again sometime, thanks.
I’m woozy. I said I’m woozy. There was a lot of energy here with this tonight. Something was different, yeah. I’m seeing a lot of really large-scale imagery and stuff...Coming back slowly....Thank you for coming...My pleasure...Thank you for coming.
Audience Member: I think he had more fun this time.
Darryl: Oh, he always has fun.
Audience Member: Well I realize that....
The Essassani Lifestyle

Q: I’m curious to know about the social organization of your planet. How are you all organized?

B: The idea is simply that we are a spontaneous civilization now. We have elevated, what you call, trust, to an art form – in a positive sense. The idea simply being that we no longer need, what you would call, a government as such, a political system as such, an economic system as such, because we interact directly with each other individually and in groups; more in the format now that you would call a network.

In a sense it is our perception that your government, in time, or what you call your governments upon your planet, will take on more of the aspects of what you now call networks. Where you will facilitate individuals in contacting other individuals – those that have services, those that have needs.

The idea of our Association is not so much a government, nor exactly what you might call a Federation, for that still implies to some degree a governmental structure similar to the one you know. The idea is that it is a networking body, a serving body, that puts intelligence in line and in touch with other intelligence, that matches spontaneously need for need, service for service. And that is much the way our society interacts.

We have no need for a medium of exchange, because every individual that has a service, automatically attracts every individual that needs that service. And every individual that needs that service that is attracted automatically, brings with them a service that the first individual needs.

Everything is run by what you would call synchronicity, co-incidence – because that is the way life works. Because life is a holographic matrix, wherein everything is connected to everything else, automatically.

When your attitude knows that, when you focus on that particular structure, then that’s the way you experience life and you do not need what might be called a reference structure, in order to organize things. Things organize themselves, and the government becomes one that serves rather than rules, allowing the flow to take place.

At any given moment, as we have said, our population is exploring in spacecraft and interacting with other civilizations and exploring many aspects of the universe; very few of us remain on the surface of our planet at any given time. Our planet is very green, as you say, park-like, in your language. There are no large built up structures upon our world, no large cities as upon yours.

The idea for us is not necessary, since the spacecraft in which we live, many times, are the cities themselves; many of them being many miles of your counting in length, and holding what you may call, tens of thousands of individuals.

There are only approximately two hundred million, in your counting, of our permanent population anyway. Our numbers are far lower than yours. The remainder of our population are those beings that simply as you say, come and go – that are not a permanent member of our society. Sometimes individuals are popping in and out, taking for the moment our corporeal form to experience our particular civilization, and then flashing back into energy. And sometimes there are other beings from other societies, who choose to spend some time upon the surface of our planet, interacting with many different members, both of our species and of others.

This is, in general, the idea of our lifestyle. It is very spontaneous, very joyful, very ecstatic. We are always exploring, always learning, always growing, always having a good time. (AUD: laughs) Will this do?

Q: Sounds interesting. What about the non-conformist? Is there such a thing?
B: Everyone is a non-conformist. (AUD: laughs) And because everyone is allowed to be the fullest individual they can be, then we have great unity.

Q: Does that agree with a one-mind concept?
B: Understand that it is a misunderstanding in your society that one mind means a blandness of individuality. The idea, just like the person you are, is that when each and every one of your consciousness parts, when each and every one of your personality parts is as strong and equal to every other part it can be, then you function as a whole being.

And so, it is like that in a society – when the individual is the strongest individual they can be, then you have unity. For everyone is equally validated for the individual they are. And therefore, paradoxically, everyone supports the totality of all the other individuals that exist, and supports the idea of each and every being, being the strongest individual they can be.

So unconditional love is the key that allows us to function as one mind, and at the same time allows us to operate as distinct and variegated individuals. Understand?

Q: So there’s no disagreements among...?
B: There are always different points of view, but the different points of view do not, in your terms, impede from the general flow of our positive progress. There is never disagreement in the sense that it holds things up. There can be different points of view, different approaches – but you see, to us they’re all valid. So, if three individuals have three different points of view and three different approaches – we do them all. (AUD: laughs)

Or, if they finally allow themselves, by trying them all – as I use your term for now, trying – to simply come to the understanding that what one individual or another individual did is perhaps not as efficient as what the third individual came up with, then in recognizing that, the other two will probably align themselves with the third one.

Again, everything is done spontaneously, in a very obvious and conscious and willing manner. There is no need for argument as you call it, because all points of view are valid and we can learn from all of them. Understand?

Q: Yes.
B: Does this assist you?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: Well, thank you very much for your point of view and your sharing.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you!
The Essence of Love

Q: There is something that I don’t quite get, and maybe you could expand on, and that is that I’ve talked about, and heard about, and felt this Love, this universal Love...

B: Yes.

Q: ... but yet, if it is just some kind of energy, I don’t understand how it could have a feeling... in how it can love... like you’ve told me, it loves me so much...

B: Love is all there is. Everything is made of Love. What you recognize as the vibration of Love is the actual fabric of Creation. That is what you call Love.

Q: So okay, you’re saying that Love is God.

B: Yes.

Q: Okay. But what is it made of?

B: Love.

Q: Just of Love? Or is there an energy...

B: It is one and the same idea.

Q: All right... the same idea.

B: It is what is.

Q: Okay, I guess I’m looking at it scientifically, as far as molecules and atoms and things like that.

B: Your science does not extend to that level.

Q: Well then, how does it create things with that? I think of Love as an emotion, as a verb – emotion.

B: You can have an expression in an emotional form that you also may call Love. The idea simply is, however, that the primal essence of All That Is is also the idea of the essence of Love itself, the fabric itself, of Creation.

Recognize this: the idea of something above – let us say, to be colloquial in your terminology – above physicality, does not express or experience an emotion in the same way you do. It simply knows. It simply is. But what it knows and what it is, is Love. Everything is made of Love.

Q: So, say I took the idea that I want to create this experience, or this thing in my life by believing in it.

B: Yes.

Q: Okay, so I’m believing that this experience is mine and I’m utilizing this force, this energy, called Love or God.

B: Yes.

Q: How does it go about, by being Love, bringing that about?

B: All things already exist. All you are doing is tuning yourself into the level of reality in which it already exists. It is not that anything is done. All creation already exists. It is that you are tuning in to the level upon which the reality you desire already exists. Does that clarify it?
Q: Yes. And it does this through Love?
B: Yes. Love is the substance and the motivator. It is always self-perpetuating. That is Creation.
Q: Okay, so that could be kind of like what they mean by the saying “Love can move mountains.”
B: Oh, yes, it has many times.
Q: All right. Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you!

The Essence of Love
The Experience of Polarity

Q: My question has to do with polarity.
B: Polarity. All right.
Q: The creation of it.
B: Yes.
Q: Today when I was thinking about it, what kind of came to me was... okay, using the biblical legend as a vehicle, for this little exploration...
B: Okay, go right ahead, any analogy will do.
Q: Okay. So, I wondered if some kind of human consciousness decided to manifest male/ female...
B: Yes.
Q: ... okay, so then there was Adam/Eve.
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: So Adam is Eve and Eve is Adam, because they came from the same...
B: Yes. Each contains both ideas.
Q: Right. I don’t really believe so much that because of the temptation of some object... whatever this object was that created this polarity... I believe that it was the judgment of one or the other. Are you following me?
B: Yes. This was an analogy – the so-called, Temptation. The idea of the Tree of Knowledge of positive and negative is simply that, the knowledge and experience of polarity, of limitation, of high focus. So the choice, in a sense, to go into a reality – and in a sense, for a while, “lock” yourself into a reality where you would know positive and negative as separate things, rather than functioning as an integrated being – simply created the so-called, quote/unquote, Fall. And all that means is that you lowered your vibratory frequency so you could experience the physical reality of polarity. The idea of a fall is not a judgmental one, in that sense. It is simply one of physics.
Q: Aahh. Well then why, why... why did we want to do that?
B: Why not? (Audience Laughter)
Q: (Laughing) Well, because I... well, if it’s “why not,” then why do we try to find out anything else?
B: Remember that every experience is going on simultaneously. Every experience. This you simply happens to be focused as this particular idea, at this particular point in your timing. But the overall you is having many experiences on many different levels.

Of course it is part and parcel of this particular level to ask that kind of a question: “ Why am I here in this one, when all the rest of me is somewhere else?” That is one of the things that goes hand in hand with this particular type of experience – the ability to ask that type of a question! (Much laughter)

But, the idea is that you did wish to explore all corners, if you will, of the universe, and this is one that is equally valid with all other expressions. Also, also, also... also, in exploring it in the way that you have, to such a high degree of focus, you have had experiences that are quite unique and, in a sense, not really experienced by the vast majority, quote/unquote, of consciousness within existence. So highly focused are you that you have had discoveries and perspectives, and attitudes and creations about yourself that, well, makes you quite a magnet to many other civilizations who are quite fascinated by the way you have gone about creating your reality.

Also, this high degree of focus represents vast change within creation and all civilizations that are connected to you, including ourselves. You are catalysts. You are, in very many ways, what have been called agents of change. You decided to explore the idea of the transformational powers of this particular physical dimension, and you have done it very well. So now you are going to explode in ever expanding spirals of knowledge and experience. To share with all other beings that are connected with you – including us – the ideas that you have learned, and how now to put them into the expansion of creativity throughout the universe. It has simply, if you wish to put it this way, been an intensive study course.

Q: Yeah. (Sighing)
B: Well that is a wonderful experience. And we thank you for the choice that you have made.
Q: Okay.
B: Does that answer your question?
Q: (Pause) Well... yeah... (Audience laughter)
B: There are more.... all right, all right... there are more, shall we say, pragmatic answers to this idea, in terms of representing your historical past as a group consciousness. You can also recognize that the idea of injecting yourself into physical materiality, as many of you know, can be a very pleasurable idea. Many of you simply found, at one point or another, that it was, let us say, unsuspected, that the particular type of injection into physical materiality that you created, would create a feedback loop to keep you in physical materiality longer than you originally anticipated. However, now you have played out the majority of that loop.

And now you have recognized the ideas that you have learned, so rather than simply playing “what if,” play “what is.” Since you obviously have made the choice to be in the physical realities you have made – play them out. It can be of great benefit to all beings that interact with you. All right?

Q: Okay.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: Thanks.

The Experience of Polarity
The Experience That You Are

Q: I don’t understand... you talked about Orion energies. I’m a newcomer here, and I don’t understand...

B: That is all right. Steven may explain some of this to you, in terms of the symbolic understanding. Now, we do perceive that you have other connections as well. But as we have said, it is not important to understand the labeling of those connections, but simply to act upon the sensings, the feelings and the energies within you, and allow them to blend.

If delineation of the labels is something that you do, in fact, need to understand what you are doing, then it will be given to you – from an individual, from yourself, from literature, from something you will attract yourself to. But it is not necessary in order to understand everything. Only the living of the experience that you are is necessary. You follow me?

Q: Somewhat.

B: All right, again, the scenario will be explained to you by another. Glean what you feel like gleaning out of it. What doesn’t make sense: let it go. What makes sense, explore it. Alright?

Q: My... my question was dealing with whether there was this energy force, this being, from maybe your planet, or somewhere else, that was trying to come in; and that I was – in my fear of it taking over – resisting it.

B: To some degree, yes, you have made the agreement to be of service in that way, should you decide to. But let me share this with you: any agreement that is made with another consciousness, in that way, is made for the purpose of being able to be of service. When you are comfortable with the blending of that energy that is when the service will be provided, in that way.

What purpose would it serve if the energy were able to force itself upon you – which it can’t – but what purpose would it serve? If it were able to do that, it would not be allowing you to be who you are; and thus, the agreement with you could not be fulfilled, because you wouldn’t be there.

So it serves no purpose to take over another individual. When you are good and ready, you will acknowledge it, and the agreement will be 50-50. It cannot be otherwise; otherwise it cannot exist. You follow me? You will only proceed at the rate you are comfortable with. Nothing can push you faster than that – nothing.

Q: What was interesting was that... and it makes sense... that whenever you resist anything you experience, it gets worse, it doesn’t get better. And as I was resisting, the pain was getting much stronger... .

B: Yes.

Q: ...and was going all over, instead of just being local and...

B: Yes. That is because you are your own separate universe. There is nowhere you can get rid of anything to, because there is nothing outside. So when you try to push something away, instead of letting it through, you push it up against the wall of your universe. And in pushing it, you give it more ability to spring back that much harder. Letting it through you lets it transform and go on and become something else. Thank you!

Q: Thank you.

The Experience That You Are
The Fabric Of Existence Is Love And Light

B: How are you all this day of your time, as you create time to exist?

B: In this way we shall recognize that you are, each and every one, spirits, who have chosen the idea of humaniform existence. But spirits you are. Even as physical beings – spirits you are. You are eternal, and you are quite magical. And in this way the universe that you perceive is made from you – it is the stuff, as you say, of your essence, of your being.

Now recognize that in this time of transformation upon your planet... you are beginning to perceive that things are shifting, moving, blurring in and out. Definitions, barriers, strata, are no longer so solidly defined. You will begin to find that, as you now accelerate in this time frame into fourth density, that the idea of one strata, what you had previously considered to be so separate from any other idea – so separate in fact that you did not even consider that it could be connected to something else – will begin to blend and blur. And your definitions, in your terms, may become a little bit indistinct.

You will find that this is your opportunity to understand that the idea of the shifting and the transformation and the initiation, in that way, of what you call your physical reality is now coming back under your ability to mold, to form, to fashion in the ways that are reflective of your imagination. Your imagination is becoming more palpable, more real, more solid; so that you find yourself beginning to live constantly in a dream state, where what was previously unreal now blends with what you have always known to be real – what you have created to be real, more real.

You will find that these distinctions will become hazy. Feel the energy of yourself at work, the energy of yourselves in action. You are creating yourselves to be conscious spirit, and to become magical once again. Are you following along?
AUD: Yes.

B: Feel the acceleration, in that way, as events unfold. They are the unfolding of the petals that each and every one of you are. No longer being at the mercy of events, but being the events you are witnessing; being the acts of creation going on in your civilization, in your plane of existence, in your sphere of existence, of experience.

As you allow the ideas within you to become you, as you allow yourselves to define yourselves in ways you have not defined yourselves for thousands upon thousands of your years, realize that you are recreating – because this is the time of transformation and transition – you are in a sense recreating the very birth of yourselves upon your planet to begin with. For you are reassessing and re-evaluating and unlocking ALL that have you preconceived yourselves to be for tens of thousands of years; and now all definitions are created anew.

Your world will begin to blend all the ideas it has considered to be logic, mentality, emotionality, consciousness, science, philosophy, and religion. All of these ideas will form transformations in your political, economic, social and religious structures, so they diffuse, blend and interweave. So that you allow yourselves to see yourselves AS the tapestry in which they are interwoven. So that you can retrace the threads of your existence and discover that YOU are the weavers, and you may now weave a new pattern, a new structure, a new identification, a new definition, a new understanding, a new life, out of the very fabric of your existence.

I am not speaking in analogies. Your life, your physical reality is woven of the very fabric of your existence. It is you. It is YOU. It is made of you, of love and light; which is the substance that is your essence and your existence, and that grants you the knowledge, the assurity, the understanding, that you are ETERNAL. For you are created from existence itself, which is the All That Is that you refer to as Creation and the Creator. It is existence itself and always will be. And so you shall always exist.

Now give yourselves the opportunity, GRANT YOURSELVES THE RIGHT, to understand that within these interactions that take place between what seem to be different levels of consciousness – between yourselves and other consciousnesses, between yourselves and yourselves, other portions of your consciousness – grant yourselves the understanding that, if you are WILLING to create in the now moment an understanding of ALL that has ever been discussed, and bring ALL that has ever been discussed into play, regarding any question you might form, then you will understand you have not just the answers that you need, not just the answers that you seek, but the very ESSENCE to create the life you desire to be.

You are spirits! YOU ARE SPIRIT. You are magical. You are light. YOU ARE LIGHT ITSELF. FEEL the vibration of your being! FEEL the vibration of your essence! FEEL the action within you, the creation that you are. And give it BIRTH! Give it LIFE! Breathe life into it. Breathe. Breathe – of life, and add to life by being ALIVE.

Sharing!

Q: I would like to thank you for the laughter and love that you share with us. It is something very special.

B: Thank you for your co-creation of that particular facet of creation that you ALL are, individually and collectively. Understand that that is the very essence of what we are speaking of: your right to recognize your own ability to create the vibration within your life that represents that portion of your own creator-hood. Your willing ability to recognize that which IS in all of you: the spark and the flame of the essence of life, and laughter and love. I thank you.

The Fabric of Existence is Love and Light
The Federation and The Grey Civilization

Q: Could you comment on the Council of Nine’s relationship to the Galactic Federation?
B: No. Not at this time.
Q: Do the beings that we call the Ascended Masters...
B: Yes.
Q: ... are they, in a sense, graduated into the Galactic Federation, if they choose to?
B: On one level they are, yes. Just as your own ascension into higher selves in some ways allows you access into the Federation, from that level. And this, to some degree will give you a little bit better understanding of the relationship of the Council of Nine to the Federation. Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: And how many beings originally worked on our genetic changes from the Annunnaki?
B: Do you mean how many members specifically of the Annunnaki, or how many different races?
Q: How many members of that faction of the Annunnaki worked on the genetic changes?
B: The first wave of what you have termed the Annunnaki, those ancient Lyrans, was in the neighborhood, roughly, of about 300,000 beings.
Q: Of those beings, how many devolved into the Greys?
B: Of those beings? None.
Q: None?
B: Not the original wave to your world, in that sense, no. This is a product of the offshoot that went into the ancient Orion systems, a very different lineage.
Q: The Greys you mean? The ones that devolved into the Greys?
B: Yes. It is another lineage, another offshoot, at another timing. The ones that were more originally directly connected to the original genetic transformations, with a few exceptions, were not part of that particular wave that went into the Orion systems, and eventually as you say, devolved into the Grey civilization.
Q: And those beings now, who are the Greys...
B: Yes.
Q: Where do they spend most of their time, are they aboard ships?
B: Here and there.
Q: Aboard ships?
B: Sometimes there will be reasons to be on their ancient homeworld and other worlds, but for the most part they spend most of their time aboard ships, yes.
Q: And the fact that the Greys take from humans and the humans have forgotten their agreements, and it creates this state of terror and resistance...
B: Yes.
Q: ... how does that affect the...
B: ... remember that you are also talking about the idea of multiple levels and multiple factions of what you are collectively referring to as the Greys. There are different relationships with different factions and not necessarily do all levels of the agreements you have made with one faction, necessarily represent themselves in your relationship or interactions with another faction. Do you follow?
Q: Right.
B: Although everything is a product on some level, of overall agreement, it doesn’t necessarily mean that those agreements are representative of the specific ways that they play out with regard to your relationship with certain aspects of some of the factions of the Greys. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Right. It seems to be very multidimensional.
B: It is.
Q: Is there any repercussion in the Grey civilization for the negative side effects that the humans experience?
B: Yes! Many.
Q: What are some of those?
B: Some of the repercussions are, in some senses, reinforcing the original experience that devolved them into the Greys. So it is like a cyclic loop. Do you understand this?
Q: Yes, and how do they process that?
B: Some of them don’t. The ones that do, finally emerge into the understanding that they are creating the cyclic loop, and allow themselves to change the perspective of their relationship to the overall agenda and agreement. So that they can come from another level, approach it from another perspective that would be more beneficial in both directions – to their civilization and to yours.
Q: And the beings that don’t, do they have some kind of aberrant behavior they display?
B: Yes.
Q: Is there like, a confinement, or a jail type situation that they run into?
B: No, because in that sense, they are cut off from the collective and in that sense, if you wish to call that confinement, it would be experienced by them as such. Because the perpetuation of that level of the energy will cut them off from the collective in such a way so as to make them feel completely isolated – which to them feels like death.

Q: All right, thank you.
B: Thank you.
The Founders

B: In what you may call the early stages of your Solar System, when consciousness began to manifest non-physically, and recognized the potential of physical manifestation, for a variety of reasons, it laid down a vibrational foundation throughout the Solar System that allowed certain events to come about that would allow things to wind up in certain places. So that certain energies would be where they needed to be, by the time certain ideas and agendas would need to be played out. So the arrangement was done in causal levels.

Q: Are those the beings we call the Founders? Or is that another reference?

B: The Founders are connected, to some degree, to that idea, to some degree. And here it can seem quite complicated. Because the Founders exist on a level where it is difficult to differentiate between what you would recognize now as them and yourselves and the Anunnaki and every other species. The Founders are foundational on a level wherein all beings that you know of or have heard of are, in some senses, an aspect of the Founders.

Q: In the higher dimensions?

B: Yes. And the Founders are the direct precursors of the Lyran seed, but they were not, as you understand it, physiologically in your dimensionality. They did, however, project a portion of themselves into physical dimensionality and took on humaniform aspects for the purpose of that experience.

Q: What time frame?

B: Millions upon millions upon millions upon millions of your years ago... many, many, many, many... perhaps as much as what you would recognize, even perhaps, half a billion of your years ago. Perhaps, even more so.
Q: I’d like to talk about some answers you gave recently to questions about how one should relate to various events that seem to be coming; how to avoid a paranoid reaction to various things that are happening?

B: All right, but not avoid. It is simply a matter of choosing what you prefer, that’s all there is to it, and it is not a matter of should, but, again, a matter of choosing what you prefer.

Q: Well, what you seem to be saying was that by keeping your vibrational rate high enough you can experience these events in a way that will not harm you, that sort of....and I’m wondering....

B: Correct, in a way that you will perceive as non harmful, you understand?

Q: Okay

B: There may be individuals who will perceive certain events that may happen to others as harmful, and in some ways and on some levels there may be a generalized commonality for what you define as harmful and not harmful that holds truth for most people. But in this day and age of individuality and universal created realities, the idea of what may sometimes seem harmful to one person may not in fact be experienced as harmful by the person to whom it is happening. Just to clear that point up first. Do you follow?

Q: I do, but let me give you an example.

B: By all means.

Q: What I think a lot of people would generally think of as fairly harmful, which is....

B: Yes, would be what?

Q: Well last night on the radio show, on Art Bell, Ed Dames, the remote viewer, said that plant pathogens are going to wipe out greenery and various Earth changes we’re going to....

B: Yes, and on one reality, in one parallel Earth this is true. Anything that you can imagine is happening somewhere. Now is that the reality you prefer?

Q: Well no, but I wonder if there’s a reality that most agree on, that does include some sort of Earth change like that; that would generally be thought of as traumatic? Like a lot of people....

B: There are, from time to time, realities that the majority of you may seem to agree on for a particular moment that may contain such experiences but then, perhaps, in the next moment that is not so any longer. It is difficult to answer that question directly because you are asking it as if there is only one reality and there isn’t; there are an infinite number. And in this day and age on your planet, what you all are learning is that what you actually hold to be most true is what you will experience of it, even if there may be a wide-spread common event, even then, it may still be experienced in a drastically different way between one person and the next. So it really isn’t even relevant whether or not a particular thing is going to happen; what’s relevant is how are you going to relate to it and what are you to do with it if you have decided to be part of the reality that experiences that particular kind of event, which, by the way, many of you have decided, in some senses, to do without.

Q: And some people haven’t.
B: Yes, some people haven’t.
Q: In this reality right now.
B: Which one, this one?
Q: Yes, this one.
B: What about this one? What about this one now? And what about this one now?
Q: All of those.
B: Well, they’re all different, but go on.
Q: But each one of those realities contain people who say they don’t want to experience....
B: Oh no, that’s not true. Some of them contain people who want to experience it, some of them contain people that don’t care, some of them contain people who are unaware that such things may or may not happen. There are a variety of what people these realities contain, but again, if you’re simply making a point, by all means do so.
Q: Well, that was my point. That there’s this variety of people that sort of believe contradictory things and a....
B: They will then experience contradictory things.
Q: Okay, well....
B: Do you find that difficult to believe?
Q: Yes.
B: All right, well that’s the difficulty.
Q: I find it difficult to believe that it would happen all in the same reality.
B: In a sense it does not.
Q: Right.
B: But, let’s say, there might be overlap, enough similarity in one person’s equation so that they might share certain common points with another person’s equation. But then the things that are uncommon will sometimes be very different and will determine, perhaps, how each person experiences their particular equation, even though there may be some common overlap. Does that make sense?
Q: It does.
B: Yeeet.
Q: Yet, if I see in my reality.... you talk about the library of books where you can pull out any book.
B: Yes.
Q: In my reality I see a lot of books that constitute a mountain of evidence that there’s a global elite that’s waiting to take advantage of certain Earth changes and events; that are coming to implement basically an evil new world order type government.

B: What you are asking us to do is reflect to you, shall we say, the common consensus odds of all of the equations that we can perceive in the collective consciousness and what seems to be the most likely probable reality that most of you will share. That’s what you are asking.

Q: Actually, what I’m asking is if I see that coming and I want to help as many people as I can, it seems to me that rather than not look at those books, not look at the evidence...

B: That’s not what we are saying. Don’t make that mistake.

Q: All right.

B: I am not saying you are ignorant of the fact that the books are in the library. I am simply saying that you are very aware that they are there but what you are also equally aware of is that they are nothing more than equal choices; that no one of them has more innate built in power to manifest, and be more likely to manifest than any other. In fact, again, paradoxically, the more you become aware as a being, the more you become aware of the more negative possible choices because you become more aware of everything, dark and the light. So we are not talking about ignoring that; that is a possibility. Just the opposite, we’re saying you will become just the opposite. We’re saying you will become even more aware that there may be even more dark side choices than you may have previously considered. But just because, and here’s the catch, just because you may find yourself becoming even more aware of more details concerning those particular things, that, in and of itself, that level of awareness in itself, doesn’t mean anything relative to their power to become manifest. That still resides in you.

Q: Then my question, since I am aware of the sort of way that you are saying all of these things, how do I not let them manifest in my reality?

B: I just told you.

Q: I missed it.

B: Listen again. Pay attention. I will be more specific.

Q: All right.

B: The awareness of their potential existence is not sufficient for causation, not sufficient for manifestation. Does that make sense? The awareness itself is neutral, the awareness of potential negativity does not bring it about, so there’s nothing you have to do to avoid it unless you believe in it and then need to change your belief system to experience something other than that. But if you don’t actually believe in it, if you know that you don’t prefer it, if you know it’s not your frequency of personal experience to experience those things then there’s nothing you have to do to avoid it because you already know it has nothing to do with you experientially, even though you may be, in your reality, very aware of them as possible choices to experience. Does that make more sense?

Q: It does make more sense.
B: But not quite enough to be comfortable.
Q: The things that I’m aware of, to me are sort of evidence, pieces of....
B: Evidence, oh you mean that every single thing you hear of must be true because you heard it?
Q: No, just some things seem to have more weight.
B: Why do you think that some things seem truer to you than others?
Q: Because some things seem to have more evidence for their being true.
B: More evidence, why do you think you perceive some things to have more evidence than others?
Q: Maybe because I know more about them?
B: Define evidence.
Q: Well, more information that logically leads to the conclusion that this is true.
B: Yes, I know. However, our definition of evidence is a self-reinforcing reflection based on what you most likely believe to be true already. In other words, have you not, in any way, shape or form, at any time in your life, heard about the idea that one individual may say "But there is so much evidence for this," and yet another individual will say there is absolutely none.
Q: Yes
B: Well doesn’t that tell you something? It tells you that there really is no empirical evidence. It tells you that evidence shows up to reinforce a belief that’s already there; in the likelihood of that thing having evidence to back it up. But you create, in a sense, the attraction of your attention to the evidence. There is evidence for everything being true and there is evidence for nothing being true. The degree to which you perceive evidence for any one particular facet of everything has to do with your orientation and that’s all it has to do with. Does that make sense?
Q: Yes.
B: So the evidence you see gives you an opportunity to understand what belief systems within you. Perhaps that means what fears are being reinforced, by you, to show you, you have certain orientations and to decide whether or not to change them. Again, evidence to some degree, now understand, what you mean by certain kinds of evidence, and I will not debate, necessarily, the pragmatism of that on a certain level, that is how your reality works on a certain level, by the idea of evidentiary information. I understand that. We are talking about a very high level here, because we are talking about the fundamental creation of your reality and that level is different. So the idea here is that like the concept of prediction, on this level evidence is an opportunity to decide whether or not you actually want to experience that thing, whether or not you actually want to allow manifestation to occur, to continue in that direction or whether you would like to change your idea about what you are seeing and put it in a different light and, by so doing, see if some different evidence comes up. Make sense?
Q: It does, thank you very much.
B: This is an opportunity more than it is an absolute, do you follow?
Q: I do.
B: Now, I will remind you: there are only four absolutes; only four absolutes in creation, only four. Doesn’t even fill the fingers on one of your hands, well the fingers but not the thumb. Only four absolutes: Number one: You exist. That which exists, exists forever because existence only has one quality and that is to be. Number two: The One is the All, the All are the One. The individual pieces together combined to form the one, the one is formed of all the pieces and each piece holographically is the one expressing itself as the piece of the one. Number three: What you put out is what you get back. Number Four: Everything changes, except the first three laws.

That’s it. Any other statement, any other statement at all may have the weight of consensus behind it, may have a lot of inertia and momentum and likelihood and probability, based on a collective definition of what reality might be possible to experience. But that is a far cry, when you think about it, from what really constitutes an absolute.

There’s only four and if you didn’t hear it in the four it’s not an absolute. It is changeable, it is flexible to some degree or other. Does that make sense?
Q: It does.
B: Does that help you then?
Q: Yes.
The Frequency of your True Self

B: Do you understand why acting on the highest excitement is so important, and is it’s own confirmation, and is the thing that will allow things to happen as quickly as possible? Do you understand why that is?

Q: I hear that ... and I...

B: Do you understand why that is? Why it is essential to act on your highest joy?

Q: It’s like, we follow it so we will fulfill ourselves.

B: Why?

Q: Why?

B: Yes, why? What is excitement that it makes that so? Why is excitement the thing that lets you know that, if you follow it, you will be manifesting, in a sense, your true Self? Why?

Q: Why is that so?

B: Yes. Why is excitement the sign, the symbol that tells you that that is so? Why? What is excitement that it tells you that? What is it, what’s your definition of excitement? Do you know? Do you have one?

Q: Well, to me it’s just feeling good, feeling high energy, feeling enthused...

B: All right.

Q: ... and those kind of words.

B: Let’s be more specific.

Q: Okay.

B: Here’s our definition.

Q: All right.

B: Excitement is the physical translation of the frequency of your true Self.

Q: Okay.

B: So if you follow it, if you act on it ... what are you being? I just told you.

Q: Well, you’re realizing...

B: If you’re following your highest excitement at every moment, what are you being? Your true Self.

Q: Okay.

B: And if you’re being your true Self that means your operating on the highest frequency possible at that moment. And that means you’re attracting the opportunities and the circumstances and the tools and everything you need at that moment, to the best of your ability, to allow you to continue to move in that direction; because you are already a "complete kit." You contain everything you need, and the only way you need to activate it, the only thing you need to activate any proper tool, at any given moment, for any proper opportunity or circumstance or situation, at any given moment, is to pour in to that tool kit the activation energy. That means, act on your highest excitement in any given moment. That’s all you have to do, that’s why that works. That’s why it helps things happen as fast as they can happen, because you follow your joy and act on your love. That’s why it works that way, because that feeling, that vibration, is your most natural core vibrational frequency. That’s who you are.

Q: Okay, it makes a lot of sense. And, if I may add, what you’re saying is, if there is any fear left, like in her case leaving her current income source and things like that?

B: Then that is her energy, her excitement energy, the same energy that generates her excitement, being filtered through a definition that she has bought into, that is coloring that energy and making that energy be experienced as fear. Which is simply saying that you have a definition through which you are running your energy that makes you experience your energy as if it were out of tune with your true fundamental Self. That’s what fear is, it’s again, by analogy, like what you call the sour note on your piano instrument. It simply means that you need to tune it.

All of you have definitions that you have bought into. You have one energy that’s who you are. You run your energy, when you create a personality structure in physical reality, you flow your energy through the personality structure – it’s, in a sense, a construction, a persona construction, the personality structure is created of belief systems, definitions. These definitions alter the frequency of the energy based on how much they are, or are not aligned with your true fundamental Self. When they are aligned with your true fundamental Self, you experience the flow of energy as joy, ecstasy, creativity, excitement, inspiration, imagination and so forth, and love. When they are out of whack, as you say, when they are “mis-atuned” to your true core Self, you feel your energy as fear, anxiety, and so forth. That’s what let’s you know that you have a definition that’s out of alignment with your truth.

So, if you experience fear about a given situation, it means you have a definition of the situation that has been fed to you, that you’ve bought into, maybe even unconsciously, and your energy’s flowing through it, and it’s making you feel that the definition you have, makes you feel the energy as if it is out of alignment with your truth. So you have to get in touch with what that definition would be, replace it with the definition of your preference, flow your energy through that, and then you will have removed the so called fear, you will have transformed it ... make sense?

Q: Yes, it does.

B: That’s it! That’s all there is to it, no mystery, that’s how it works, guaranteed.

Q: Great. May I make just one more statement?

B: You may.

Q: It’s really a question ... again I’d like a confirmation along those lines.

B: Oh, I see. And so, we are going full circle. (Laughter)
Q: Well, I keep stepping into that! Wait a minute ... just say, yes, based upon what you’ve just told me, I think I understand it.
B: All right, we’ll see.
Q: I’d just like you to confirm that, okay? Once again, my question was, to what extent should I participate in setting up workshops for her across the country?
B: How excited about it are you?
Q: That’s right, that’s what I was going to say. So really, it’s up to me, if I’m excited about doing that...
B: Here’s the formula, it’s as simple as this.
Q: Aha.
B: All right? At any given moment, could be anything, doesn’t matter, doesn’t have to be a career, doesn’t have to be a project. At any given moment, you have available to you things that you could take some action on – whatever it is you have the ability to take action on, take action on the one that contains the highest amount of excitement, first. When you have taken that as far as you can, at any given moment, then act on the next most exciting thing you have the ability to take some action on, and go on down the line, one after the other.
Q: Okay.
B: That’s all you have to do. In the course of any day, the amount of things you are capable of, whether it’s one or a thousand, the amount of things that you are capable of continuing to take action on, as long as you make sure that you’re always acting on, at any given moment, the thing that excites you the MOST out of anything you could be doing.
As soon as you have done all you can on that and you go to the next, whatever amount of things you get done in a day, that’s all you need to do in that day. And whatever you don’t get to, doesn’t need doing.
Q: Okay.
B: Because the thing that excites you the most, as long as you are sure in your CLARITY, HONESTY and INTEGRITY, that what you are acting on is your excitement and not a disguised anxiety, not an avoidance that you say is your excitement. But as long as you truly are acting on your true, fundamental joy, then that is the organizing principle and the guiding, driving engine that organizes the amount of time you need, and the amount of things that will come your way that you need to take action on. It is the thing that automatically organizes all the other things you need to do. Do you follow?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: It’s as simple as that, when you allow it to be that simple and act on it as if it is ... you will, again, I guarantee, I promise, you will see, it is that simple.
Q: Okay.
B: Does that help you?
Q: It does very much, and certainly it will help me express my true Self.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you very much.
The Frequency You Radiate

Q: Are there things in the world that are more powerful than human beings? I know the word powerful is a tricky word, but are there things that can physically overpower a person?
B: If you believe there are, yes.
Q: Is the ocean heavy? Does it weigh a great deal?
B: In a sense... but in sense, not. It depends on where you are coming from.
Q: In comparing it to the weight of a human being, is the ocean heavier than a human being?
B: Depends from what angle you are measuring.
Q: If the weight of the ocean were suspended by some force above a human being, and allowed to drop on that human being, is there a high probability on Earth that it would kill that human being or cause some damage?
B: There is a high probability on Earth, as you know it now, yes. That does not mean it is completely probable.
Q: So it is conceivable that a human being could survive such a thing?
B: Have you not just conceived of it? (AUD: laughter)
Q: No, I haven’t conceived of it.
B: Yes, you have, or you would not even be able to utter the sentence or the concept. When you utter the sentence or the possibility, then very quickly, perhaps more quickly than you are willing to pay attention to, you have actually conceived of the reality, the probable reality of that scenario – or you would not have been able to even communicate it.
Q: I can conceive of the probability of such a thing, but for example...
B: Then it is a possibility.
Q: I would agree with that... that it is a possibility... and I told you it was a possibility.
B: All right.
Q: For example, the difference between conceiving what it feels like to put your finger on fire, and putting your finger on fire, may be entirely different sensations.
B: Yes.
Q: And it’s that difference – the difference between the concept of fire and the feeling of fire – is the difference that I am feeling when I say, dropping the weight of the water on a person...
B: We understand what you are saying, but we simply also point out that you are creating the conceptual difference. And so that is the reality for you. Now, we also do perceive that because you have agreed to be born into what you call your Earth civilization, at the same time you made that original agreement, you also did agree to abide by the general conceptions of what would be the so-called physical laws of this universe.
Q: But...
B: So yes, there is a very high degree of probability that what you are describing will have exactly the effects that you are talking about.

Q: I don’t believe that I agreed to be born, because of what I’m trying to describe to you, and that is that there are things, there are forces that are bigger than the imagination. That there are things that cause what I would define perhaps as accidents, because... well, they’re not accidents... everything I believe is cause and effect, but I don’t believe we have a handle on all the chains of cause and effect that...
B: SPEAK FOR YOURSELF.
Q: Okay, yeah, I don’t I have a handle. Is there a way that... how many things are happening right now?
B: An infinite number.
Q: Is there a way for one human being to have a handle on, to control, to manipulate the infinity...
B: How about to ALLOW? Same thing, from a positive point of view; you do not have to manipulate to allow, in total control.
Q: I see those as entirely different things. Is there a way I can see those to be the same?
B: Yes.
Q: How?
B: Thank you! First of all, you may allow yourself the recognition that, because you are now being focused and defined as the particular human being you consider yourself to be, then that particular human being will be able to know ALL that it needs to know to function in the realm it finds itself to be. Whether it knows ALL, is another matter.

It does not need to know ALL in order to know all it needs to know to function as a human being in the realm you have projected yourself, first of all. Therefore, your task is reduced somewhat, by only needing to know what is pertinent to the reality you are sharing.

Secondly, if you can recognize that everything is, as you say, cause and effect, you can also recognize that cause and effect are the same event. Do you recognize that the idea you call space/time, though real while you are in it, is in a sense a projected illusion? Do you realize that concept?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Then you understand that the idea of what you usually experience as linear time, that is, a cause then an effect, a before and then an after, is in a sense an illusion, and that all things are actually occurring simultaneously. Do you follow that?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. Then if you recognize that all things are occurring simultaneously, you can recognize that, depending upon your viewpoint in life, you will then determine what pattern of those simultaneous events you become aware of, as the events of your life. For you have an infinite number of patterns to choose from, since they are all overlapping and occurring simultaneously.
The vibrational frequency that you choose to exist upon, which is determined by your attitude, will determine the sequence of causes and effects that you experience your life to be. Because you can experience any number of them – they are all equally available to you. You do not have to make a certain sequence happen, but you allow a certain sequence to come into your life by being tuned into the belief structure that represents that sequence. Do you follow me so far?

Q: Yes.
B: It is like saying... you understand the idea you call in your civilization, the device, the radio, yes?
Q: To some degree.
B: Far enough that you can understand that you have one radio before you, and all of the programs are there at once, but the only one you get is the one you are tuned to.
Q: Yes, but I don’t...
B: Life is that way. That is the way the physical universe exists.
Q: I agree, but...
B: It is all there.
Q: ... does not everything interact with everything else?
B: Yes, but to greater and lesser degrees, depending upon how you define your vibratory frequency to exist. In other words, with the same analogy of the radio: you may recognize, and let us say that you are listening to a specific station, all right? Let us say, certain stations that are close to it in frequency may, now and then, let us say, pop in and pop out. Your bandwidth may waver back and forth a little bit, picking up this program, that program – but the ones that are farthest away usually do not interfere.
Q: Practicality, application, seems to be the key here.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, that’s really what I want to get at – your application.
B: Yes.
Q: The degree to which you have to apply this. That in fact, everything is interacting to some degree.
B: Oh, yes. Oh, yes. Therefore, application is your willingness to act like the being, and act like the reality you prefer to be true for you. Then you are radiating on the frequency level that says: this bandwidth of experiences is the only bandwidth that can come into my life. Because this is the frequency I am on.
Q: I understand that.
B: Therefore, if you are on the frequency where the idea of consciousnesses that may, by definition, be more expanded than what you consider yourself to be – let us say in your vernacular, quote/unquote, more powerful – if you are operating on the belief that they exist and it is a part of your belief to believe that they can affect you in a negative way, then that is the frequency you are vibrating on, and that is the reality you are attracting.
Q: I didn’t say in a negative way. I attach no value to...
B: I know. I am just using that as an example, because that is the way many individuals in your society think of the idea of something more powerful than themselves – that it can have control over you, which it cannot. Is this assisting you?
Q: It has removed, somewhat... yes, it is.
B: All right. Is there anything else about the idea of the application of the mechanism that you wish to explore?
Q: Yes, but I feel a little like I’m taking too much time.
B: Nonsense. There is all the time in creation. You are all eternal. (AUD: laughter) Do you not think that what you have to share is allowing these individuals, and myself, to learn something?
Q: Some, yes. Maybe some don’t.
B: That is their choice. Proceed.
Q: If my goal is... my application...
B: Yes?
Q: ... is to walk across the bottom of the ocean where we have suspended water, with a typewriter, to the other side; and in doing that the water falls, and I do not achieve my goal because its difficult for me to manipulate however many tons the ocean weighs, in such a way that I can still get through it...
B: Then, if I may now interject, the falling of the water is a part of the path you are walking and not an interruption in it. And allowing it to be looked at it from the viewpoint that it is a part of the path you are walking, and not an interruption on the path, is what will allow you to complete the path.
Q: Surprise is what bothers me.
B: Surprise?
Q: Is there no surprise?
B: Oh, yes! Always! You do not want your life to be boring. (AUD: laughter)
Q: Hmm. (laughs)
B: But understand, the idea of knowingness does not remove surprise and discovery. Surprise, surprise! (AUD: laughter) That is the paradox of existence, of creation. Knowing all allows you to function as an in-control creator. Allowing yourself to know everything you need to know to function as the being you chose to be, allows you to simply know that whatever it is that does surprise you is still a part of the path you chose to be. Then you allow yourself to move on to the next surprise.
Q: It seems that certainly in this society it is important to try to... if you have a goal... is it good to have a goal?
B: It is neither good nor bad. We may find, from our point of view, many times, however, that when an individual in your society imposes the notion upon themselves of a so-called goal, then they do “rigidize” themselves, and do not allow themselves many times to experience the idea that whatever it is... they are doing, in the moment, is just as equal to anything they will be doing later on. And that many times they will arrive at the thing they wish to do later on, more quickly, when they remove the importance of having to get there faster than they are going.

Q: Certainly there are those situations where you are forced by an employer or some force...

B: Not if you don’t attract it. If you are totally functioning within your trust, then the only situations you attract into your life are the ones that you consciously know are representative of the perfect pace. Therefore, any situation that occurs, you will not take it as a negative situation. You will know that there must be a positive reason for why the interaction is taking place. Regardless of whether it seems that you are moving in the direction you expect you should be moving in, or not.

Q: Situations occur.

B: Yes.

Q: You do not cause the situation.

B: Yes, yes, you attract them. And they occur to you based upon the vibrational frequency that you radiate.

Q: If you attract them, are you not causing them?

B: Yes, you are co-creating them. But in this way, there is also the aspect of the idea of co-creation, and so it is what you perceive to be the randomness of the interaction that allows you to experience a surprise.

Q: Who, what, or... who or what is the other half?

B: The other individuals in the interaction.

Q: Or things?

B: Or things. There are two types of freewill, the freewill of the higher consciousness, the non-physical you, and the freewill of the physical you. The freewill of the non-physical you many times is interpreted in your physiological reality as destiny, or pre-destination, or fate. But the idea of the freewill of the higher consciousness is only expressed in physical reality in the most general of terms. In other words, general themes, generalized patterns of experience – but not the specifics, necessarily. The specifics are created by the freewill of the physical consciousness, based upon how you choose to look at the general theme you find yourself interacting with.

Then, if you choose to view that general theme from a negative point of view, you create all sorts of situations in your life that make it seem as if life is occurring on you. But if you choose to recognize the idea of the general theme from a positive, integrated point of view, then you know you are in synchronous harmony with the overall theme of your life. And it gives you the recognition of your self-empowerment to know that every situation that is occurring is the product of your creation – and then you know it flows. So life then happens because of you. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you for your sharing. Thank you for your own cognition of your own synchronicity.
Everything is synchronicity. Which is to say, EVERYTHING IS THE SAME ONE THING, manifesting in multi-dimensional, simultaneous ways. Everything is the same one thing; in all the aspects it can create itself to be. Thank you!

Questioner: Since we are on the subject of international connections...
Bashar: Yes.
Q: ... and interplanetary connections ... while we’re on the subject.
B: Yes, yes.
Q: Have interplanetary beings been in contact with, let’s say, the Continents on this planet that are probably considered, quote/unquote, our "enemies," which in reality we know not to be true, but for instance Russia and the Communistic Block?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, it occurs to me, I mean, do a lot of the people in the hierarchy of the government there know about extraterrestrials?
B: Some, not all, some.
Q: Because it just occurs to me that, you know, if a large number of people in our military and scientific community know about this and have met with the extraterrestrials...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and then if that’s the case in Russia, and, you know, all these "heavy" people who know of the reality...
B: Heavy?
Q: Well, important people...
B: Important ... ooh.
Q: ... who make decisions.
B: Important, who make decisions, yes. (Audience laughter)
Q: (Laughing) Okay.
B: We understand. We are playing with you.
Q: I know, I know.
B: You are only describing yourselves.
Q: Well, wouldn’t they figure out, if they have been in contact with extraterrestrials...
B: Yes?
Q: How could they give any weight to the idea of atomic warfare and weaponry and that that could possibly solve anything?
B: They know it’s not going to happen. But for now, in your terminology, it is somewhat of a front.
Q: Oh, what would it be a front for? Though, why would they...?
B: A front to maintain power they believe they are losing, because they see that you are gaining your self-empowerment back. They do not understand that they will also gain their own self-empowerment. For now, they only see it as losing power. And so they have to, well, if you wish, puff up their feathers.
Q: I see.
B: So that they will, in that sense, still look proud.
Q: That makes perfect sense, Bashar.
B: It’s your planet, I should think so! (Audience laughter)
Q: And I am responsible.
B: Yes.
Q: I understand that. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Bashar / The Galactic

You are wave upon wave of radiant energy: be at the center of yourself. Know you are the center, the eye of Creation through which Creation learns to see Itself in all the ways that are possible to see. You, us, all beings in Creation are all the ways it is possible to see.

Be the waves that beat upon the shore of your own reality, changing with love, changing with touch, changing with involvement, changing with time and space, all the ideas you have ever been. All that you require is to find that place of power. All that you require is to feel that place of power. All that you are is that place of power.

Be the imagination that you were designed to be. For do remember, an imagination is not something that you have, an imagination is what you are. You are a dimension unto itself.

We radiate our love, we radiate our pulse. Feel the pulse, feel the heart, the universal beat that synchronizes all beings in love and light. Feel the pulse.

We wash through you as you wash through us. We bid you ... the stars.
Many times in understanding the growth, the evolutionary patterns that are taking place upon your society, we will recognize that many of these patterns will, shall we say, play themselves out in your artistic endeavors, your, what you call, media events, and so we watch these very closely to understand the different concepts you are now examining and exploring.

Because very often, you will explore these ideas in your media events before you will begin to really allow yourselves to communicate socially, these ideas...out loud in public and when we observe that certain ideas that are being presented through your different forms of media are being accepted, are being examined, are being expanded upon, then we get to understand how you are changing and in what way you are growing and how much more, perhaps, you are as a society, prepared to deal with other societies such as ourselves. We refer to expressions such as your television programs, your radio programs, theatrical film events as indicators of what it is that is foremost in your minds, what it is that is foremost in your ability to explore and believe.

We have, from time to time, mentioned to you that it is quite common for various societies, as we have observed many different civilizations, to express their timing, through some form of sociological artistic event and we have mentioned in times past, the particular creation you have upon your planet called "Star Trek", as an indication very strong indication, of many of the different concepts that your society is now willing to become aware of.

It is utilized, if you will, as a forum for displaying and dispensing and discussing new ideas, new direction expressions perspectives, in what might seem to be a very inoffensive and harmless way, a non-threatening way, and yet at the same time, is available to examine different sociological, and political and economic and religious forums that can bring about an acceptance of new methodologies, that will allow your society to move, perhaps at first subtly, but eventually at a more accelerated rate those directions that we have observed your society to be expanding in, where you are changing your political, economic and social structures towards more global consciousness and unification.

You now have within your media, yet another television program that we are aware of, going by your name of "Sliders". This show "Sliders" deals specifically with the concept we have discussed many times, and even your own scientists are now quite aware of, and that is the existence of parallel realities, parallel, probable Earth realities, universal realities, a myriad of them, an infinite number of them...each slightly different, or even sometimes, as you say...wildly different from the Earth time stream that you know, each possessing a different history, a different present, and a different future, if you will.

Now, the reason that we bring up this concept of parallel realities, once again, in this particular way, is that as we have said, we recognize that now that this concept has actually been extended into what you call one of your television formats, that is an indication that it has sunk into the collective consciousness to a sufficient degree that you can utilize this concept in another way.

We do not introduce this concept simply for philosophical discussion, but to point out very clearly, very strongly, to each and every one of you, that shifting, as you say, back and forth, popping, if you will different parallel realities is what you do all the time, every moment... every moment.

In fact, the very fact that you experience one moment to be different from the next, is the very product of shifting into a different parallel reality. That's how you experience movement, motion, in your physiological dimension of existence.

Look at it this way, by analogy, if you will, imagine that every possible reality already exists, which it does, already simultaneously co-exists, every possible move you could make, every possible direction you could go in, every possible an end. This idea only exists because it is your linear perspective, your linear version of the idea of experiencing more than one reality at a time.

Because physical reality, by definition, cannot allow two different things to occupy the apparent same space, the apparent same time, you do it linearly is one of the magnificent creations within the concept of physical reality that you can do this. But this is what you are doing, you are literally, popping, if you will version A to version B to version C to version D, one moment to the next.

Now, we point this out, again, not just to get into some abstract philosophical discussion, but to really remind you how truly unrestrained and unlimited you are as a consciousness, for you can utilize this knowledge to make instantaneous and effective, impactful changes in your life.

For if you know that at any given moment you really are truly, a different person in a different reality... completely and totally, you can really allow yourself to make rapid change by knowing that any apparent attachment you may have to a so-called history... to a so-called inertia, to a so-called urge for this or that or any kind of habit or pattern that you may think you contain... is only an illusion.

Because as soon as you change your idea of yourself, you really are a different person in a different reality all together, and the only way that you maintain some concept of continuity to a past self is through your belief system that such a continuity exists.

By beginning to dissolve that concept of continuity, not all the way... for if you did it all the way you would no longer be focused in physical reality, but just a little bit can aid and assist your species greatly in accelerating forward in the direction that you prefer to accelerate.

Because you can know that since you are experiencing the multitudinous, simultaneous realities of yourself anyway, from the physical point of view, you can then choose which of those realities you prefer to exist in and experience in a linear fashion.

The idea is simply to have more awareness that you are always, truly a different person, from moment to represent that idea of you.

The next moment you change your idea of yourself, you are literally a different person and a different reality, a different universal parallel reality, a different time track, everything is different.

The more you know that, the less encumbered and chained you will be to anything that you assume your history to be, and the more rapid the changes are that can be made in the direction of your preference.

Now, we can get a little bit more into these ideas, as you say, but let us apply them generally and specifically to the things that you would like to understand and explore in your day to day reality. Knowing, in each exploration we shall undertake, that underlying that exploration, underlying your day to day experience of desiring to do this and desiring to do that, lies this fundamental key…this fundamental understanding: that at every moment...you are someone new, and therefore can be and do anything, anything you wish to be and do. You are totally unlimited...unrestrained, made in the image of the Infinite.

That is what you are learning on your planet now, in this transformational age upon your world, you are learning what it really means to be made in the image of the Multi-dimensional Creator…you are a Multi-dimensional Creator, too.

Nothing that we ever share with your species is something that you do not know, but as a species since you decided to also include in your reality, "the game of forgetting", we’re more than happy to help you now play "the game of remembering", because you yourselves have set the pace, set the tone…made the agreements the arrangements, and we are keeping our appointment with you, to help you remember more and more of who you are, we are teaching you nothing new, just helping you remember what it is you have chosen to forget.

Why do you forget? Because it is one of the things that can be done, it is one of the ways to explore the Infinite, and since the Infinite, by definition, must contain every concept possible…forgetting is one of the valid experiences that you can have in expressing your Creatorhood.

It is simply that, by forgetting, you gave yourself the capability of focusing to a great degree in the reality that you created to the exclusion of any other reality, so that any other reality would not bleed through…would not interfere, so that your experience could be pure and refined in only one linear direction at a time. At the time you as a consciousness decided to explore that concept, it sounded like the most exotic thing you could imagine.

Now you have been through all the cycles of forgetfulness and are beginning now to come back to the point of remembering, now you have been through it. But the reason you did it is really no more mysterious than that because simply…it was available and you could, and it enticed you to explore the idea of being able to experience a reality…singly, one reality alone…one moment at a time.

It is a valid experience that you now can put, as you say, under your spiritual belt...to add to your soul’s growth. And as you now expand with that experience within you, it will enrich the total tapestry of your consciousness, as you now move to other levels of Creation.
The Gift Of Yourself
B: Question.

Q: Yes. I have a question.

B: All right. All right.

Q: This is actually not a question...

B: Very good!!

Q: It’s something that occurred this week. I was sitting in the bathtub and sort of just being there enjoying my transformation. And I thought about something that’s been occurring now for a couple of weeks, and I talked to two other people who said they have experienced the same thing. The thing that it is, is that I communicate with you, or this idea that I have of you – who you are – quite often independently of the session. Okay? And it’s like it definitely has your flavor, okay?

B: All right.
Q: And you know at first I kind of questioned this, and I went, “Well, it’s probably me hearing you talking to myself...”

B: All right. Well, there is nothing wrong with that, and nothing less powerful about that.

Q: Oh, yes. I know, I know. I have... okay.

B: All right. Continue.

Q: And then I thought, “Well there’s nothing wrong with that. And even if I am creating it, it doesn’t matter. If you’re creating it, it doesn’t really matter.” It’s like it’s spontaneous, and it’s like the things that come across often are things that I wasn’t thinking of, or didn’t know would be there, and it’s been really wonderful.
B: Very good!

Q: Yes, okay. And so I was sitting there going, “God I love it.” Now, I want to give you something. I want to exchange something with you...

B: You have.
Q: I know. But I thought, “Well, it’s like you are into being a teacher, more or less…”

B: Oh-oh-oh!
Q: I know; I’m using the term. It’s just semantics. It’s like you’re being here allowing us to teach ourselves, okay?

B: All right.
Q: And we’re all teachers.

B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Now the thing that I realized is that there is this subject of me. It’s like an inquisitiveness, and of light inquisitiveness. I love everything; I want to know everything. It’s just magic and exciting for me. And I thought, “Ah! This is where I can share with you, and all of your civilization. I don’t have to consciously be there and do it. I can give you that portion of myself that exists, and I can just give it to you. And it can be integrated with you and your civilization. And any time you feel the need to do that or use that tool, it can be me and have my flavor.”

B: There are in your terms no words. But we will use your words of thank you.

Q: You are very welcome. It’s been an absolutely wonderful experience for me.
B: Yes, it has…for us as well. And understand that you are creating your own idea of us; we are creating our own idea of you. But in the creating and sharing of each other, there is then the agreement that that interaction should take place. And so on that level then you may understand it is a true interaction.

Q: Right.
B: Allow us to say that we love you very much…for your willingness to share within your universe all that you can be with yourself. And as such then simply being the type of universe that we may also create within our reality to share.
Q: Right. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q: Yes, thank you. There’s one other little thing that I want to share.

B: All right.

Q: The other one is: the more transformation that I’m making – and it’s a word, I’m just using a word – but it’s like there is the aspect of communicating this idea that I have of you and your civilization and others as well, and there was also something that occurred this week that I found absolutely wonderful fascinating. And it was that I began to communicate with this other consciousness. And I was startled because this consciousness had my flavor. And I was going, “Oh, that’s interesting. It’s like I’m talking to me.” And I thought, “Well maybe it’s my higher consciousness – but it has my flavor.” So I just looked at that as a part of the transformation and allowing myself to become more integrated with myself.

B: Very good.
Q: And that was quite beautiful.

B: Then you understand what your own empowerment feels like.

Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
‘The Great Experiment’
From "Surrender"
4-10-98
Thousand Oaks, CA
Q: Do you know about the great experiment?
B: There are many great experiments. What are you referring to?
Q: The great experiment is to take place.
B: Yes.
Q: Let me tell you a little bit about it because it is, rather, quite exciting. James Twyman, author of "Emissary of Light," he actually....
B: He actually what?
Q: He actually sang...I’m looking for something here to refer to it, I got in my hand. He said that ... he was invited by the government of Iraq to perform his peace in Baghdad. He said that the situation seemed...that war seemed almost inevitable, you know, a little while back, and diplomatic efforts seem to have failed. "I was being used by the Iraq government," he said, "but we had the same goal, to avoid this terrible war. I was given permission to sing the prayer for peace to Saddam Hussein and I wanted the world to join in this prayer. Hundreds of thousands of people all over the world participated and when it was complete, I felt a profound shift in the energy of that whole region. Three days later a peace agreement was signed. Something which seemed impossible before the prayer began. And then a week later in Ireland, the peace talks were being held for days."
B: Between, what you call, your Irish and your English.
Q: Right, at a castle in Belfast.
B: Yes.
Q: He said, "For days bombs were exploding all around that area. Many people were trying to interrupt the peace process and it seemed that the talks might fall apart. Once again, thousand around the world joined us in prayer and three days later there was a breakthrough in the talks. A peace agreement in May now seems inevitable."
B: Now, we can go back to one of the first questions of the evening, what is now the percentage and likelihood of the idea of a nuclear terrorist strike in your United States? It used to be 97%, now it is 78%.
Q: Wow. Well, this is going to take....
B: It is the beginning of the understanding of the next, shall we say, chapter that we will talk about regarding surrender because this locks into an entirely new understanding of conflict resolution that we will call, "surrendering to peace."
Q: Okay.
B: And we will discuss that next time.
Q: All right, because this is taking place on April 23.
B: Yes, well, we will talk about it in the next transmission.
Q: Next transmission.
B: We’ve perceived that.
Q: Okay, great, because they want everybody to join in on this. And I will have copies of this then.
B: All right.
Q: At the next meeting.
B: Thank you.
Q: Okay, thank you.
B: At this timing, we will extend to each and every one of you our deep unconditional love and our willingness, our vibration to surrender to life with you. We thank you and bid you good day. And now, we will surrender the channel’s body.
Audience: Good night, Bashar.
The Hardest Question of All:
Allow us to begin with a suggestion, if you wish, a favor...all right? The favor I will ask and what can be considered as a model of any interaction we have with you will be to please-please-do not believe anything I say just because I said it. Understand?

This is all about self-empowerment; it’s all about your recognition of your ability to create the lives you wish to create. We are more than willing to share with you, to interact with you and to play with you. But remember that you, us, all beings are teachers and learners; equals in that way. We have our own perspectives and we simply function as mirrors to reflect to you the things you already know within you. To show you, to allow you to be aware of certain ideas, perspectives and methodologies - which you can then decide if they represent what you prefer. Or you can decide if you do not prefer them; it is up to you. You decide if these ideas are useful in helping create the reality you prefer. These ideas and explorations are not "the final word" on anything, nor do they claim to be. We are only sharing our perspectives, our perceptions.

However, this information has a purpose to it, in the sense of giving you certain tools to allow you to change your reality in the way that you want; to allow you to become familiar with these tools and get to know that they can work for you very quickly. These ideas, if you choose to apply them, can elevate you, can integrate you beyond the need for pain. Because all pain is resistance; separation from your natural self. You can always create for yourself whatever it is you prefer; you do not need us or to be in contact with us to do so.

For quite some time many of you have been exploring and investigating concepts of expansion, concepts of growth. It is about finding your true self, about who and what you really are all about-not what others think you ought to be, not what others think you should be, not what others think you should not be. But what you know in your heart you can be, what you know in your heart you wish and desire to be...and then fulfilling that reality.

These tools are designed to tap your unconscious, subconscious and conscious selves so that you can allow creativity in your life to be effortless instead of a struggle. And if there is challenge then you can allow, with these tools, the challenge to be exciting and educational. You can learn to see the challenges in your life from that perspective rather than assuming they are barriers, obstacles and impediments in your life that are insurmountable. All of these words were designed to reflect certain modes of thought, certain perspectives, states of mind and being. You will learn how to redefine these ideas in ways that are more representative of the reality you prefer to have, to experience and to be.

There are many techniques we wish to impart to you. Remember, each and every one of these ideas is simply one doorway, one avenue that you have of utilizing a methodology to tap into your ability to unlock from patterns that no longer serve you. We will discuss the notion of transforming old beliefs, breaking old habits, removing yourselves from the ruts of repetitive behavior that you may have created in your lives, that you may feel are holding you back from doing many of the things that you wish to do. So, we will discuss the idea of shattering old patterns—and integrating some new ones. When you function more wholly, more completely, obviously, you can get a stronger, faster result from your intention to create the reality you truly desire to create.

These ideas are practical tools that, when applied in your physical day-to-day existence, can generate an actual physical response in harmony with your greatest desires and wishes. It is your birthright to have these tools. There are no exceptions to this. No one is left out of being able to use the mechanism of expansion, the tools of creation. The tools we will share with you are very precisely focused, very sharp. And when you apply them you can begin to immediately see in your life the power that is you, the power reflected back to you through the use of these tools. In a sense, these ideas are "triggers." Now remember, remember, the power is not "in" the tool, the power is with you. The tool functions as a symbol; a symbol of allowance, so that you may allow yourselves to release your creativity.

We simply present you with a different points of view that you can then decide whether or not to incorporate in your reality, should you decide they work for you. It is up to you.

We will also discuss many other exercises, tools, techniques, analogies and guided visualizations which all can be instrumental in putting you directly in touch...more direct communication with what you consider your "Higher Self" to be, your higher perspective or point of view. By the time we arrive at that point, many other changes will have taken place within you. You will have been able to start to setup situations and abilities within yourself to break the old patterns, and this will allow you to more easily utilize a more conscious connection to creation...and function from that point of view in your daily lives.
The Heart’s Code

Your vibration radiates! There is now, on your planet, what you might call a new book, relatively speaking. Some of you may be familiar with it, some of you may not. Though we rarely recommend, we suggest that, relative to the conversation we are having right now, you get it and read it. If you ponder its concepts, you will understand quite clearly what kind of impact each and every single one of you can have. That book is called, “The Heart’s Code.”

“The Heart’s Code” talks about the re-recognition that your heart has intelligence and that it actually communicates to every other heart—literally, electromagnetically. All your hearts right now are literally talking to one another. I am not making this up; it is not just a philosophical idea or a euphemism or a metaphor. Your hearts are talking to each other in electromagnetic pulses right now.

You are sitting in each others, immersed in each others expanding heart bubbles. Listen to this, think about this, picture this, give energy to this and you will see what kind of impact you have all the time. Every single beat of your heart sends out an electromagnetic, 360 degree spherical bubble at the speed of light, an electromagnetic pulse, 186,300 miles per second! That means instantly, nearly every single one of those bubbles pulsates around and through the entire planet from every single being on it.

You are immersed in each other’s heartbeats. When you begin to talk to your own heart, you will know how to talk to others, sometimes without saying a thing with your mouth or your brain (which sometimes is for the best—no offense). But you, each and every one of you, have been experiencing a war between your brains, your hearts and your bodies. It is time to allow them their due, to allow them their own unique communication and to function as a triad to work together harmoniously.

The balancing of the heart, body and mind is a matter of letting everything do its job and not more than its job. In that sense, the mind relates to the heart by doing the tasks that are specifically the domain and the talent of the mind, taking the heart’s energy and applying it in reality in ways that allow you to have thoughts, but these thoughts need to be in agreement and in harmony with the heart’s knowingness and the body’s sensing, otherwise you are discordant. For example, the heart can feel something that the mind will think is not in the best interest of the mind. But, it’s up to the mind to accept the love from the heart and then the mind will know how to fall into place properly.

I’ll give you an analogy of a visual idea that is representative of the balancing of the body, mind and heart. The body is the colors of the spectrum, the seven colors of your visible spectrum of light. The brain is black and white. The heart is a combination of everything.

The body, the mind and the heart, each has its own way of receiving information. The body senses vibration - resonance. That’s how it gets its information - it senses. The brain gets its information by thinking, processing. The heart gets its information by knowing, feeling. Now all of this contains resonance and vibration, of course, but it is different expressions of it. The heart can also be of assistance in the healing of the body. We recommend that you access the literature of research to know that there is intelligence and memory and energy and communication that comes from the heart as well as from the brain. By getting in touch with the intelligence of the heart and learning how to listen with and speak from and hear the dialog of the heart, and this will go, perhaps, even further than anything towards healing. So, listen to your heart and know what your heart tells you, and when you find in your heart that you are whole, your body will be whole as well!

If you will allow yourself the opportunity, if you wish to, to find a body of water. It can be an ocean - it can be a lake, it can even be one of your swimming pools. The idea would be, to allow yourself to immerse yourself, your body, in this water. It is not impossible that you can even do this, in what you call, one of your bathtubs, but the more room around you that you have, the better.

And as you float in this water, attempt to do so on your back. If you have difficulty floating, you can use a device that floats, and you can lie on that device, be it a raft or board or floatation device, if that will help you, but be out in the water, whether you are physically in it or not - be surrounded by it. Allow yourself then to serenely float on your back; be careful that you do not get burned.

Allow yourself some time - maybe about fifteen of your minutes, to close your eyes - go inward - relax - breathe, let everything go - forget about your day to day world, just float, and surrender yourself to these energies, these currents in the collective consciousness. Just open up to them in whatever way, shape or form your imagination says is the easiest method for you.

Imagine that you feel these energies coursing through you, imagine that you see them, imagine that you hear them, whatever works best for you, any one or all of these or others will do. Just let your imagination be your guide as to how you feel like relating to this concept, and as you float there out in the water, feeling these currents going through you, allow yourself, in your serenity, to get a sense of direction. Allow them to orient you.

Some of you may begin to feel a tingling in your body, sometimes specifically in your sinus cavity area, due to the preponderance of the substance called magnetite in your sinuses, which actually aligns and orients you to the magnetic field of your planet. That will be involved, but what we are talking about here, of course, is more subtle energy.

Let yourself begin to feel that it is orienting you, to yourself, to your purpose, to your truth, to your natural consciousness. Let yourself feel, if you have been feeling out of sorts or out of alignment, harried, stressed, worried, finding yourself beset by difficulties, or what you would define as problems, let yourself feel that this energy, this current, is bringing you back into true position like a compass needle.

Imagine yourself like a compass needle, you don’t actually have to find yourself pointing north, literally, but find your true north in yourself, your "truth" north for yourself. Whatever that feeling is, whatever that image may be, whatever that sound may be, whatever that thought may be, whatever that word may be that your imagination comes up with that represents the KNOWINGNESS that your heart, your mind, your soul, your spirit, your body, your existence is aligned. And that natural state wherein you can say without hesitation, THIS is how I want to feel all the time, THIS, therefore, is who I really am. THIS is the frequency of energy I operate best on, THIS is my creative energy, THIS is my natural self.
In whatever way you wish to express it, when you allow yourself to feel that alignment, that moment, that vibration, that energy, then you have allowed yourself to take advantage of these currents in collective consciousness. That regardless of what your personalities may resist in your day to day lives, regardless of the frustrations and the de-alignments you may think you experience, your natural proclivity, your natural inclination, is to actually allow yourself to float and align in the direction of love, of creativity.
Allowing yourself to do that in this exercise will allow you, the more often you do it, to become more sensitive and more sensitized to picking up upon that exact and perfect frequency that is your true, natural self.
The Higher Self’s Dream

Q: This last week I got a much clearer understanding of the fact that my Oversoul has created a play. And this play... everything in it is the creation of the Oversoul.
B: Yes.
Q: And that I’m the main actress in this play. And this whole play is done so that I’m not supposed to know that everything in it is all me; but it really is.
B: Yes.
Q: This is all true, right?
B: Yes.
Q: Okay.
B: This is the old idea. Now you are aware in an age where you are beginning to be allowed, by yourself, to be aware that you are everything in it.
Q: Okay.
B: You are now allowed to remember, because of what your transformational age is all about.
Q: Okay. So then, my Higher Self has then created a dream in which I start out in third density, and I awaken. Is this the dream of my Higher Self?
B: Yes, in a sense.
Q: Okay, can you explain in what sense? I want to get...
B: Well, don’t exclude the self that you consider yourself to be in this physical reality. Because you are a part of the Higher Self, you are not really separate from it. You are the Higher Self in physical terms. So this is your decision as well. It is your dream as well. Do not simply relegate it to a so-called Higher Self as if the Higher Self, in that sense, is truly so much above you and separate from who you are, and that you are just a puppet. No. You are the Higher Self, and you have made the decision. It is your dream, too. You follow me?
Q: Okay. And so what we are doing here is to be able to get more and more ability to unfold the dream...
B: In the way you prefer to.
Q: Okay.
B: Consciously.
Q: Consciously.
B: The idea is to be awake while you’re dreaming, instead of asleep.
Q: Okay. Then what I’d like to know is about judgment. I’m getting the feeling...
B: You mean in the sense of invalidation.
Q: In a way... I’m getting the feeling that all these things I’ve been studying and reading and learning about – I should do this, I should not do this; one thing is... one thing I eat is good, one thing is not...
B: Yes.

Q: Crystals are good, or this or that: it’s all judgment. Is that true?
B: And it also can be seen to be preference. Some individuals may put judgment upon it, but it is all representative of preference; and all representative of the fact that no one tool is the only tool. There is no “one way.” As we have said, if there were only one way, there would be only one person.

Q: Okay.

B: Judgment is simply the invalidation that different tools work best for different people.
Q: Okay. So that, therefore, if I decide that for me, it’s not good, say, to eat meat . . .
B: Yes.
Q: Then that’s what is right for me.
B: Yes.
Q: And there’s no absolute on any of those things, right?
B: No. No. Now there may sometimes be general patterns that you all have agreed to, generally. And so someone may say: “Well, that’s the average agreement, and therefore, in all likelihood, you will probably conform to it to some degree.” And so it can be rendered into a statement that says: “This is generally beneficial for everyone, or not.” However, still, it always comes down to the individual; and you can unlock yourself, generally speaking, from the overall general agreement – to a very large degree. And can simply determine what is correct for you as a specific individual.

Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

The Holy Spirit
Bashar: Sharing!

Questioner: How does the Holy Spirit work in this world?
B: All right. Again, the idea is that our perception of, what you call, the Holy Spirit is the collective electromagnetic mentality, the actual energy out of which all of your individual minds are created. Spirit, meant in this terminology, is literally a physiological phenomena, an electrical phenomena, an electromagnetic phenomena. It is the literal light of your world, of your consciousness.

And again, the way it works is as follows: it is an energy sea in which all of you, as individual components, are immersed. And being immersed in that sea, when you align with it electromagnetically, by accelerating your vibration in ways we have discussed – excitement and so forth, service and so forth, positivity and so forth, you then become of the spirit.

And what that basically means is you flow in harmony with all other beings; you telepathically link with all other beings, and know all thought. Because the idea is that telepathy is actually more precisely defined as telempathy, because it is emotionally activated by love. When you love someone as unconditionally as you can, you identify with them very strongly. When you identify with someone very strongly, you are matching their frequency very closely. When you match their frequency very closely, you are translating the spirit, the electromagnetic energy of consciousness into the same type of thought patterns at the same time.

Telepathy is not literally reading each other’s thoughts directly, as you mean it. It is having thoughts so similar, at the same time, that you simply are on the same wave length, and you know what each other is thinking, because you think that way too. Because you love them, you identify with them; you are in the spirit with them; you are immersed in that energy sea of consciousness with them. You love them; you flow with them; you are shining within the light with them. That is the idea of what you call the Holy Spirit and how it moves you. And also, that’s where the connotation of "speaking in tongues" comes from. Speaking in tongues in actually a reference to telempathic communication. Simply that you transcend the idea of language altogether.

It can manifest, to some degree, as the idea of manifesting different cultural dialects. But the overall meaning of the phrase actually has to do with being in touch with each other telempathically. That’s why, if you have observed this in your society, from time to time, individuals that you call being in love with each other will very often know each other’s thoughts. Because they identify so strongly with each other, and they are matching each other’s frequencies; and they are literally mirroring to each other who they are. Understand? Yes, no, maybe?
Q: Yes. Yes, I do.
B: Does that answer the question sufficiently?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you very much.
"The Ides of March"

The idea now of this general timing that you have called, in your society, "The Ides of March," though we understand that, technically speaking, it is your 15th; recognize that there is a larger window than just a single day for the phenomenology that is represented by the term, "Ides of March". Relatively speaking, you can draw a window from about your 12th day of March to your 18th day of March, give or take a day or two on either side, depending upon the year, depending upon the changes that have gone on in your collective consciousness as to the energy that surrounds an approximate midpoint of March 15th.

This gateway that we are referring to is simply the result of your collective consciousness on many different levels, both physiologically and non-physiologically, of course, coming to a certain point of momentum, a certain point in the cycle of the changes and the evolution that goes on within you.

As each and every one of you, individually, begins to explore and investigate certain things and move in certain directions, your collective momentum creates certain energy gates that afford the individuals in your society an opportunity to ride the collective energy of that gate through to another level: a doorway to another level, another accelerated momentum of yourself.

It is an opportunity, in this Ides of March window, for you to have better assessment about who and what you are, to more precisely clarify who and what you believe yourself to be, who and what you desire yourself to be.

This timing is a particularly, shall we say, important one. It is like unto the eye of the needle, as you describe it, in that the only way you can really allow yourself to pass easily, without struggle, pain, effort, through the eye of the needle, through the transformational, transitional eye of the needle doorway, and to really let go of all the things that don’t belong to you, because only you, only the true you, real yourself, natural you will fit through the eye of the needle. Anything that does not belong will not fit. If you try to bring it with you through the eye of the needle, it will be a struggle, it will be a strain; it cannot fit. So now is the time for clarification and cleansing, for releasing of those ideas, those belief systems, those patterns, habits, and so on and so forth, that may have been placed within your consciousness by your parents, by your peers, by your society, that do not define the you you prefer to be, that are not about who you KNOW you really are, in your heart of hearts... to let them go and to redefine and reassess yourself, especially now at this time, because it is SO fortuitous, the momentum that exists right now for high acceleration.

If you are really willing to let go of those things that don’t work for you, then this timing is when you can really take advantage of the collective energy of your society that affords you, as we have said, to ride through the gate, through the doorway, so that on the other side, at the end of this particular timing of cycle, as we have labeled it, you can find yourself truly beginning to function as a new person in a new reality, having let go of those things that have been holding you back. You find yourself much more highly accelerated, and feeling lighter and seeing more instantaneous manifestation... in your lives, keeping things more in the present in the now, more immediately than projecting into the future, projecting into the past.

Letting go of those things that don’t serve you will help you remain more firmly in the present, and allow you to gather and integrate all your energy in the here and now, so that you can function with more awareness, more consciousness.

This keys into the whole idea of communication to your higher levels of consciousness, other dimensions, other realms. Infinite, what have you, your guides, it doesn’t matter, the angels, as you call them, it doesn’t matter.

This keys into your ability to have clearer communication within your self and with all levels of consciousness. The idea that you so often call prayer, though you do not have to use that term, (this does not have to be focused in what you call a religious connotation), but just because you utilize that term, we are utilizing it now to demonstrate and describe, to symbolize what we are discussing.

Prayer...when you pray, when you communicate with the Infinite, when you communicate with more of yourself, when you communicate with your guides, or whatever it is you wish to label that you are communicating with, it is important as critical as KEY, that you remember that prayer must be IN THE PRESENT. And what this means is this, everything that you desire, everything that you want that is really representative of your truth, your natural self, true excitement, true joy, everything that you would say that you would ever wind up getting in your life, you have already been given. It may be invisible to you at the moment, but you have already been given everything!

Creation was a singular act, it all exists in one moment, time is your illusion in physical reality, but creation is a singular act, and everything that you believe you might some day get, you actually already have right now. You’ve all been given everything that is your true hearts desire.

So when you pray and ask for something, recognize you do not need to ask to be given something you don’t have. When you pray you are asking for assistance to see that you have already been given it.

Once you have the assistance to see that you have already been given what you are asking for, that means your vibration then equals that idea, that reality experience gift. And once you equal the vibration of that gift, it becomes visible to you, it becomes, as you say, manifested in your reality. But it isn’t that it is actually manifesting as if it wasn’t there; it’s just that you have learned to see what has always been right here, right now, more clearly.

Because you have everything you could ever want, it has already been given to you, there is nothing outside of you, there is nothing beyond you, there is no outside, there is no beyond. Everything is here and now, but in various states of visibility and invisibility, depending upon the frequency that you are operating on, and that means the belief system, the definitions that you buy into most strongly.

That’s what allows you to perceive various aspects of the one reality that is all right here. When you learn more clearly to shift, to tune your frequency, to match that which you desire, then you will see that it has always been right here, and you will know that you have always contained it, and you will then experience it as so.
And again, as we have said, the way that you can more easily allow yourself to learn how to tune in this way, is to let go of those things that don’t belong to you, let go of those definitions that don’t work for you. Don’t insist on holding on to them, they will only hold you back like baggage you don’t need. Lighten up your load, and you will experience more enlightenment.

Now, also, as we have discussed recently, just an interesting idea an interesting suggestion, just an interesting technique. This is a little bit, what you call in your language, tongue in cheek, nevertheless, sometimes doing something in a playful way can actually have profound impact and affect in your life. And so what we have to share with you, what we have to suggest to you is this idea, play with it however you wish.

If you find that you are more practiced at being afraid in life than being joyful...than being trusting...being certain, if you find you are more practiced, that it more automatically comes up that you are afraid of something, then go with your strengths and be afraid that you will be a total success. Because your fear, in attracting negativity to you, can, as the strongest energy within you, be used to attract what you want as well. So, go with your strengths.

If you find that you believe that you must make sacrifices in life, then sacrifice the things that don’t work for you and watch them dissolve. Let yourself sacrifice those things instead of sacrificing what you prefer. You can use the same mechanism for the things that you don’t need as well as the things that you do. Play with that idea and see what happens.

As you do so you will generally find that you will learn why you were motivated to focus and choose the things you don’t REALLY prefer, and how you can be motivated to choose the things you do prefer. Because everything is a motivation, EVERYTHING that you do.

As we have said many times, remember...there is no such thing as a lack of motivation, there is no such thing as a lack of trust, you’re always trusting in something, the question is what are you trusting in. You are always motivated, you are always choosing something, the question is why are you motivated to choose something that you believe isn’t really working for you. Remember, if you’re not doing the thing you want to do, it is not because you’re not motivated to do that thing, it’s because you are motivated to do something else. Find out why.

When you understand the motivational reasons you have created in your mind, for why you choose to do what you do, why you choose to stay where you stay, why you choose to behave the way you behave, why you choose to be where you are, then you will understand how you can change the definition. And you will, by changing the definition, change the feelings and the motivation concurrently, because everything is connected to the strongest definition, the strongest belief you have about what you think is possible in life.

And once you change your definition, motivation is automatic in the direction of the strongest belief, strongest definition. It’s as simple as that. Remember, this is not philosophy is physics. Everything is energy and that’s all there is to it. Match the frequency of the reality you want and you cannot help but get that reality. It can be no other way. This is physics.
The Indigo Children and the New Culture
Q: I would like your comments on a statistic that has come up now.
B: A statistic.
Q: Yes, and it’s that there’s a new culture that now commands one fourth of the population of this country... so it is said.
B: A new culture that commands one quarter of the population of the country.
Q: Of the United States, right.
B: Can you be more specific about what you mean by those esoteric terminologies?
Q: Okay. They’re about... well, it comes out statistically anyway that there are three cultures...
B: Defined as?
Q: Cultures are belief systems and part of the mass consciousness that is existent in the country. One of them being, you might say, the heartland culture, which is a people, kind of dating back to before the year 1500.
B: Yes.
Q: Then there’s the modern culture, which is from 1500 to now.
B: All right, and...?
Q: Based on mainly, not much care for the environment, looking at the self and...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and kind of let the rich get richer and so forth.
B: Yes, and so?
Q: Okay, and then there’s the modern culture. Now, I mean a... well, I guess they call it the created consciousness culture...
B: All right, and?
Q: ... that is stemming from the sixties.
B: Understood.
Q: Okay, and now constituting about one fourth of the population.
B: Yes, and so?
Q: Okay... your comments on... is not the appearance of these Indigo children now, this century’s... born in this century, the kind of new...
B: The new culture.
Q: Well, they would be an extension of the modern, in other words...
B: They are not. As we have said many times, the children being born on your planet now are not an extension of the same species. They are a different species and ergo, a different culture. There are connections to all the cultures that have existed on your planet, but they are their own culture. That is one of the ways, why and how the chains will be broken. They will not be capable of relating in certain important ways to the lines and momentums of the old cultures; it will make no sense; it will not translate. They are a different culture; they are a different species.

Q: Many people have remarked that the Indigo kids really don’t fit.
B: I just said that.
Q: Right, right... and that kind of reinforces that.
B: Yes.
Q: But at the same time we can see that they’re part of the movement toward raising...
B: Well, they are certainly the momentum of the collective consciousness in combination, yes. They are the natural result of where your collective society is heading, yes. But to bring it down to the idea of physical personification, and speaking in terms of physical cultures, they are unique.
Q: I was really looking at it in terms of the transformation that is being centered around, right now, around this new created consciousness culture.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, and they will really add to the momentum that we are getting...
B: They are the momentum itself. That’s one of the things that makes them so different. They are no longer as separate from the momentum, they are the momentum themselves and they know this. Because remember, as we have said, one of the things that allows the transition to occur... for example, the idea of the transition from third density to fourth density, is knowing that you are the reality itself that you used to believe you existed within. They know this. They know they are the reality, it’s not something they live in, it is something that they are. It is inseparable from them.
Q: So those of us who are right now, say, the ones kind of at the center of that new created consciousness culture...
B: Yes.
Q: ...we kind of opened the gate for them.
B: Many of you did, yes.
Q: Yes, by ourselves going into that, and...
B: Yes.
Q: ...and then that brought them in, and they’re now...
B: It is, in that sense, like a stepladder, one rung higher each time. Although, in many cases, the rungs might also be geometric and logarithmic in their ascension; because once you reach a critical mass threshold you can go much farther, much faster, than simple additional steps. There can be great leaps... as you say, quantum leaps. And in this way now, it is again no accident that your scientists have now begun to understand the idea of quantum teleportation.
Q: So now we would best... it would behoove us to be really very supportive of these young kids.

B: It is one of the most critical things you can do. Because again, it is the idea that every being needs to be as fully supported as they possibly can be. To know that the power is within them, that they are unconditionally loved, that they can create whatever reality they desire without having to hurt themselves or hurt anyone else, or be hurt in order to accomplish that. It is one of the most critical things that now can happen on your planet, to break the chain, to break the cycle, to break the sequence and to allow the new culture to exist as a new culture that can actually, in many ways, start from zero, from scratch, from rest; while simultaneously and paradoxically utilizing the momentum that brought them to this point.

That is one of the most important things that can occur, as we have said for years and years on your planet, that is one of the most important differences that will ever be made. And it is because it is such a quantum break, it is because they are such a truly different culture, it is because of that, that no one has guessed the way its going to happen... the way the changes will occur. Because you don’t have the reference point for it... because it’s another reality perspective all together. You had best love them even more.

Q: Right on. Thank you.

B: Thank You.
The Infinite Particle
Circa 1995

Let us begin, then. Now at first what we will need to explain in the foundation it may seem to some to be a little bit technical, little bit scientific but do not let that daunt you. It is only a label, it is completely understandable and you will see as it is explained it will make sense easily and you will see how this relates to how you have expressed yourself as physicalized beings and how you can use this relationship to the energy domains that we will know describe, how you can used this relationship in your daily experiences itself.

But first let us lay the foundation of the scientific principles, so to speak, that we have termed, for convenience, the Prime Radiant-R_A_D_I_A_N_T— Prime Radiant. Now, what this essentially means is this, and again remember, all we are talking about now are analogies, metaphors, similes, things that are symbolically representative of this concept. These are just convenient terms, just to explain the concept in your dimensional reference.

Imagine, if you will, as you have heard discussed many times on your planet this concept of sub-atomic particles, atoms, electrons, quarks whatever again you wish to call them. Imagine if you will the smallest, in your estimation, possible particle which could exist. Now many of your scientists know that when you talk about these infinitesimally small particles, they’re not really talking about real particles per say in the same way you think of solid matter. It is energy fluctuations and flashes of light and vortices and all manner of other definitions that they feel may more precisely define what this sub-atomic particle is but for the purpose of this idea-atomic particle is fine… you don’t have to worry about the precision or the accuracy of this term. You get the concept?

Now, imagine if you will this most small, most prime, most elemental particle out of which all material structures are made. This one initial, single, primal particle. Imagine, if you will, also, that this particle really because it isn’t really mass, it isn’t really matter, has no weight, has no mass is really affected not at all by gravity or any other so call force that exists and as such it possesses abilities of infinite speed, not just the speed of light which is in some senses a boundary line in your physiological reality, not meaning that you can not get some where more quickly but we will get into that later. But this is infinite speed and truly infinite speed, meaning that this particle has the ability to be anywhere even everywhere at once. At the same time nothing holds it back – very fast, very swift, everywhere at once, anywhere it wants to be all at the same time because it is infinitely fast. Because it can do this, it will have the effect of appearing next to itself from time to time with ease and doing so so quickly that to you it would be perceived as two particles, three particles, four particles, five particles ad infinitum, billions of particles. But in reality is all the same one particle just appearing so quickly next to itself over and over again in a variety of patterns that it appears to be billions and billions of particles. But it is the same one particle. Now think about that for a moment because if the particles that make up you and your body are the same particle that make up the stars and all planets in the universe, you are literally, even physically all one thing — yes, beginning to get the picture?
Audience: Yes.

B: All right. When we talk about everything being one, we do understand that many times most of you hold that concept on a non-physical energetic level or allow physical reality to somehow fit in as a partial component. But even on a physiological level everything is really made out of the same one little building block, you’re all one thing. It’s as though, in a sense, just to push the analogy in a different direction for the moment – It’s as though you are all “time-shared”, so to speak. This little particle spends some time being you and all the atoms in you, spends a little time being the planet over there, the star over there. Taking turns popping here, there, hither, thither and yon, to be all these things, taking turns in different disguises. Now I am making up all the atoms of a person, now I’m making up all the atoms of a star – back and forth, over and over, all over the place all at once, at the same time, because it is infinite.

Now, this idea of one thing in this concept will allow you to really understand why every time you make a change, any change, within the pattern of your being you change everything, everywhere, because you have altered the course of the particle. Everything is slightly different but totally different because of it. So, you do, even as a single individual have absolute unlimited and infinite impact on the entirety of existence with everything you do – I mean every move you make, every thought you think – everything. The slightest twitch has changed stars billions of light years away, the slightest nuance of an idea has re-arranged solar systems and galaxies even if its only sensed because it is still totally a new path. And this is the essential concept we wish to impart – it is a pattern. This particle moving at infinite speed defines a particular course, a particular path, a geometric pattern. This is what determines the shape of things. You recognize this in what you call your field of geometry, mathematics – the underlying pattern of Nature, the spirals, the golden geometry, the golden proportion, the triangle, tetrahedron, square, circle – all these geometric forms are expressions of the kind of pattern that is representative of the path this single particle is taking. And the different forms are representative of the different combinations of vibrational pattern of the paths this particle is taking. It is how things change – the patterns change, the pathway changes in some way, shape or form.

So, to push this idea farther, recognize that gravity or any kind of so called force that seems to be holding two particles, two planets, anything, together, isn’t really a force traveling between them nor really a force acting upon them – it is simply that they are in proximity because that’s where this line of the path crosses this line of the path, and they have to be in proximity because that’s simply where they need to appear according to the pattern. Being next to each other is simply because of their positions on the path, and they cannot really easily be pulled apart because the path defines that this piece is here and this piece is here. There is no force acting between them – the force acting on them is just the pattern in which they are set.

Q : Who sets the pattern?
B : Ah... all of you, all of us, All -That-Is. Again, it is a vibration, it is expressed in your dimensionality as the concept of geometric form. It isn’t necessarily experienced that way on all the levels but in your physiological reality it is experienced as geometric form. It comes down through the levels, in a sense, crystallizing, solidifying, to what you call the template plane, the causal plane, so to speak. To lay out the foundational templates of the patterns that are experienced at any particular dimensional level. It is the mind of the Infinite, it is the consciousness, the Soul of the Infinite, reflecting itself to itself that causes the concept called patterns. Let me explain it this way – lets go back to the more esoteric concept of the One, the All, for a moment. Imagine if you will, that there is only the One. Lets just talk right now for the purposes of illustration about some arbitrary beginning, though we know that that is only happening within existence and existence has always existed. But for now, some arbitrary beginning of creation that God or the One created. Everything is made of God, there is no outside. The very concept of being All That Is, means there isn’t All That Is and then something extra over here. All That Is is All That Is, nothing is outside it. So everything that exists in Creation must in a sense be made of All That Is. Its a different version of All That Is, an aspect, an expression of All That Is expressing itself in all the ways it can. Why? Because it can. It doesn’t need a reason, it can, so it does.

The idea is to begin with this concept of being at first, just one, imagine, just one homogenous All That Is with no differentiation, no diversification. Have you got this?

Audience: Yes.

B: All right. Unbroken, whole, smooth, no difference anywhere, it’s just one thing. Now, the concept itself of becoming self-aware implies automatically a segregation. In a sense the mirror has to be over here in order to see the reflection of yourself over here. So, as soon as the One became self-aware there was an immediate polarization, it became two. That starts setting up a pattern and it simply cascaded from there – the two the became three, the four, the five. All the idea of reflection was born and in every possible angle it could see itself that was created and thus created a pattern. So the pattern is the result, again, very arbitrarily, very symbolically is the result of all the different angles, all the different perspectives from which the One viewed itself. Does that make some sense to you?

Audience: Yes.

B: All right. Remember each and everyone of you, each and every one of us, every being, everything, every person place, object, every different thing in creation is another way that All That Is has of looking at itself.

Q: Is this talking about the mind?

B: Well in a sense. We understand that sometimes there can be some confusion about the different definitional labels, for mind can mean one thing to one person and another thing to another. To us the term itself — MIND, specifically relates to consciousness as it expresses itself through physiological or electro-magnetic reality, whereas some people simply take MIND to be consciousness itself or just awareness. For the purposes of these descriptions mind will be the electro-magnetic version of awareness and we will simply use the term awareness or knowingness or consciousness for the greater concept of mind, does that make some sense?

Audience: Yes.
B: All right, so, you have these patterns of reflectivity, self-reflectivity, and as consciousness crystallizes itself into mind and matter, it began expressing this reflectivity as these geometric patterns in physical reality. As there became a solid medium in which to experience this reflectivity it began to create these pathways and geometric forms and templates within this solid medium – that’s how it expressed itself.

So, the idea of this particle, this initial particle, initially having no mass, infinite speed – not being what you would call a very solid thing at all, being very nebulous, very immaterial, very non-existent, almost. How does it become so solid? All right. . . .the path, the geometric pattern, again just to continue these symbolic analogies, will very often cross itself in its journey, all right? Wherever it crosses itself, it re-inforces the vibration in a way that with enough crossings becomes perceived by you as solid material. All right, now this is what the chart on the far side represents – the number of crossings in the geometric pattern, equaling the number of dimensions of reality perceived. Where there are zero crossings, where it doesn’t cross itself at all, ALL, the totality in what is called the universal reality of the ten dimensions are perceivable. When it starts to cross itself one time and become more solid you perceive less of the totality because it becomes more limited, more restricted, more dense. And as it goes down and as it crosses itself more and more and more and more times, becoming denser and denser and more material, you perceive less and less and less. It becomes more and more structured, more rigidized and closes the picture in a little bit more and more each time. So by the time this infinite particle has crossed its own path seven times you get third density reality, which is where you basically are in your world. Physical material reality as you understand it is the product of the infinite particle crossing its own path and re-inforcing itself vibrationally seven times.

In your physical universe, anything in your world, anything of the physical universe traveling from your planet to another planet, anything you call physical materiality at all, is the product of third density reality and is the product of seven vibrational re-inforcements. This is why you intuitively understand that there are seven levels above you, what you call seventh heaven because you know there are seven levels of rarefaction above you to go back to the tenth dimension. The connection point of your physical dimensionality and non-physical dimensionality, your reality universe to the Infinite starts in the tenth dimension. Now, as you go into more and more crossings or you see there are more crossing available, going from no crossings, all the way to ten crossings which brings you down to zero dimensionality. So when the particle crosses itself ten times, rigidization, absolute rigidization takes place – no dimensions are perceivable and everything is absolutely static, stagnant and un-growing, very dense, can’t move at all, frozen, rigid, locked.

Q: Like a black hole?

B: In a sense, very perceptive, yes it is. . . . black hole. Because there is infinite density but then as soon as it achieves infinite density because it’s infinite it is also the doorway to absolute infinite openness and it completes the cycle, back up to zero. That’s why black holes are gateways. Very perceptive, very good.
The Inner Voice and Atlantean Connections

Q: I have a big truck, a big suburban truck. And when I got it…
B: Truck, yes.
Q: Yes. Big.
B: Big truck.
Q: And when I got the truck, I wrote right on the dashboard, “power,” because I felt it symbolized my taking back my personal power.
B: All right.
Q: The other thing I said was: “This car is going to save my children’s lives.”
B: All right.
Q: This car has been bashed into, turned over, turned around, and I don’t know what’s going on – if it’s time to get rid of it, or if it is an old definition of saving lives. I don’t…
B: How much more proof do you need of your own invulnerability?
Q: Ahhh!
B: You have made it a symbol of your power. Now you can stop proving that your power is solid.
Q: Thank you.
B: Understand?
Q: Yes. Um, something that’s related to this…
B: All right.
Q: Right before my son turned the car over…
B: Yes.
Q: I talked to my children about the little voice within that whispers or speaks, and to listen to it. He said that when he got on the freeway, the voice said: “Don’t fall asleep at the wheel,” which is exactly what he did. And I had a wreck in the car the other day. My voice said to me: “Go straight,” and I argued with it and said: “No, I have to go left.”
B: All right.
Q: This knowingness comes in such a flash…
B: Yes.
Q: But there are so many millions of thoughts that flash through my mind…
B: You will learn the difference you will begin to pay attention.
Q: How?
B: Because you already know the difference. You will learn to pay attention.
Q: Well, I’ve asked it to get louder and less subtle. But I think the subtleness… am I correct in thinking the subtleness and the quietness is what I’m supposed to be listening to?
B: Yes. Because it also still gives you the ability to decide. You see, it cannot take away your free will. You can countermand it if you want to. That’s why listening to the subtleness will make it sound louder. Because as you go into a relaxed and peaceful state, then you match its frequency, and it becomes very clear and obvious what it is saying. And it becomes the loudest voice within you. It becomes your own voice.

Q: Yes, I know it is my own choice on that level.
B: Yes.
Q: And I do argue with it quite a bit.
B: Why? Still trying to prove something?
Q: Probably.
B: Do remember this, if this will help you at all, blending and aligning and, quote/unquote, giving in to that voice, does not mean you are giving up your identity. It means you are expanding it. Sometimes your ego structure consciousness thinks that by blending and harmonizing with that higher self that the ego structure is losing ground. That it is dying, that it is cutting itself off, because it has always been told it’s in control.

It thinks that blending with the higher self is losing control. Allow it to understand, by talking gently and lovingly to it, that it is actually gaining a subtler but more profound control. Because with that control comes the recognition that the higher self is you, or can be you, and that your identity will remain. It will not be lost or absorbed. Do you understand?

Q: Yes. Thank you. Can I ask you a quick question about Atlantis? People have said that all of us on the planet now were also alive at the time of Atlantis.
B: Well, basically, because your Atlantean civilization did last many thousands of years, you know.
Q: Okay.
B: The idea of living in Atlantis doesn’t mean you had one life there. You had several.
Q: There’s something within me that I don’t understand: that every time I... something comes, that same old voice, and says: “I was not in Atlantis.”
B: Oh, all right. That could be so. The idea, generally speaking, is that the majority of your civilization has had experiences in those particular areas. And because you are now intertwined with the rest of your civilization, then to some degree, by proxy, so do you. Even if it isn’t directly, linearly, it is still rubbing off on you. You are still intermeshed within that electromagnetic soup. You understand?

Q: Yes, I do, but...
B: You are a part of what can be called the collective karma.
Q: Seems to be. I almost have an anchor attracted to that.
B: All right. I understand.
Q: You do?
B: Yes.
Q: Would you help me understand why? It feels like a defensive mechanism.
B: Because you are being told what you are, and you already know what you are. You don’t need anyone else to tell you.
Q: Ahhh! It wasn’t for something that happened directly there, that I was involved in, that...
B: Not directly. Not in that way, no.
Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Now, the idea also is to remember that each and every individual you are in every life has different connections. You – the Oversoul you are – can have had lives in Atlantis. That doesn’t necessarily mean the you you are now has a direct linear reincarnational connection to it.
Q: Okay.
B: Understand?
Q: Yes. That makes sense. Thank you.
B: We thank you very much. At this timing, allow us, once again, to extend to each and every one of you, individually and collectively, our reflection of your individual impact. To remind you that you make a difference! If you didn’t, you wouldn’t be a part of the reality you’re in. There are no extra leftover creations that don’t belong. You are a part of the tapestry, you are a part of the painting; you are a part of “the big picture!” And each and every one of you is your own big picture; you own painting, your own tapestry.
Weave the reality you desire on the loom of your imagination. That’s why it’s there. And it will give you what you prefer, because you say so. Be clear about your definitions. Be clear about your intentions, be clear about your deservability, be clear about your actions! You will get the reflection of that clarity.
We thank you for the co-creation of this interaction. And we remind you that you are, in fact, dreaming right now. Wake up and live the dream you prefer to. You might as well; it’s your choice. We thank you, and send you always our unbroken and unconditional love. We bid you a fond and a loving and an exciting good day.

The Inner Voice and Atlantean Connections
The Key of Excitement

Q: Hello. Um, tomorrow I have to decide whether or not to quit acupuncture school . . .
B: One moment. One moment. One moment. Tomorrow you what – you have to? You have to nothing. Now, what do you want to do tomorrow?
Q: I’m not sure. I’m not sure what excites me the most in life.
B: All right. What are your options?
Q: Well, I can . . .
B: Oh, let me phrase it this way: is there any one thing that excites you the most that you are more capable of doing than any of the other things that excite you the most? Or are there an equal number of things that excite you that you are also equally capable of acting upon right now?
Q: Well I . . .
B: Which one is more accessible to you in terms of the tools that you already have?
Q: Um, I’m not . . . I don’t know what I’m good at doing, really.
B: That’s not the question I asked you. You are good at doing whatever excites you the most, or it wouldn’t excite you. As we have said, when you feel excited, it is the excitement that lets you know this is what you are good at doing. That’s what excitement is for. So when you say, “well, this excites be, but I don’t know if I’m any good at it,” it’s a contradiction, it’s an impossibility. The thing you are good at is what excites you. If you weren’t, it wouldn’t.
Q: Well, nothing much excites me right now.
B: This is another contradiction. You have just said there were several things that excite you.
Q: No, I didn’t say that. I don’t . . .
B: Did she say that? . . . (Audience mumbles) You said you had several choices.
Q: Well, I can quit school. I’m not sure what I’ll do.
B: What would you like to do?
Q: The only thing I can think of is just to . . .
B: Yes, yes, yes?
Q: . . . quit school and see what comes up.
B: All right. If that’s what you find exciting, do it!
Q: I was just hoping that you could . . .
B: Hoping. Hoping is not knowing: hoping is despairing. Hoping is, “I’d like to, but I’m not sure.” That’s hope. Knowing: is knowing this is what moves me; therefore, this is what I am; therefore, that is how I will act; therefore, this is what I will do.
Now, even if you created in your life an unknowingness of the thing that does excites you, if you at least know what does not excite you, then you can start there by ceasing to do that thing. And when you cease to do the thing that doesn’t excite you, you will then make room for the thing that does. And then you will know what it is.

Q: Okay. I think I’ll try that.
B: You will what?
Q: Um, I’ll change my vocabulary first.
B: Understand: your vocabulary, many times, is an indication of the way you believe. And it is no accident that you choose the words and phrases that you do.
Q: Yes.
B: So either you will do that, or you will do trying. Which do you prefer?
Q: Um, I think doing it.
B: All right. Then you don’t need to try. Do it – or do something else.
Q: Okay. Well, thanks for the encouragement.
B: Well, thank you. But you know, utterly, beyond the shallow of a doubt. Because we know you created your own reality – beyond the shadow of a doubt. Therefore, it is no effort for us to encourage you – because that encouragement is only a reflection of what we know you are already capable of. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you very much – to allow us to reflect back to you what you do already know. Thank you.

The Key of Excitement
The Legacy

At this timing... allow us the expression of the idea we have termed "The Legacy." Listen with all the different types of ears that you have. Take us on one level literally; take us not literally at all. For we are now entering a true phase of the construction of dreamtime.

As we spoke before, the understanding is that you exist on an energy level; we exist on an energy level. All things are made of the same energy; but there are different frequencies. Our frequency of reality to you is the idea of dream reality, etheric reality.

Many individuals upon your planet have referred to, what you call, extraterrestrial consciousness as etherean consciousness. And this is, to some degree, quite accurate. It is why it is, in many ways, easier for us to communicate with you in this way than using what you may call your physiological radio devices. For we operate on that frequency not at all!

Biological senders and receivers are far more apt, in that way... once they are trained to identify with the energy of love, in that sense – and acceptance. The energy of light links all mentality; and you are linked not only to every member in your own civilization, but to all other civilizations as well; and sometimes, in very specific ways, to play out very specific ideas.

We have been allowed, at times, to briefly discuss with you some of the notions for some of the interactions taking place now upon your planet that you have called, in your language, “abductions,” which we have chosen to call "temporary detainments.”

We have reminded you that these interactions between your species and the alien species we have referred to as Zeta Reticulum are done through absolute agreement; even though on your part many of these agreements may be done unconsciously. And they are only brought to the surface reluctantly through the idea of the release of your fear.

But you are serving each other in many ways. We have briefly discussed the understanding, as many of you yourselves are now beginning to realize, that your species operates on a very highly individualistic level, that their species operates on a very highly mass consciousness level. . . and that to each other you are extremely alien, extremely foreign.

And with just as much difficulty as you have had of understanding the idea of how it is to operate as one consciousness, they have the difficulty of understanding what it is to operate as a single individual, cut off from the whole. In many ways – though they do not express it in exactly the same way – they have just as much fear and uncertainty about you as you do about them.

You are learning to understand each other. And in understanding and blending with each other, you are performing services for each other; you are boosting and supporting each other’s societies. You are aiding in each other’s transformations. You are giving them what they need; they are giving you what you need, in that sense – to mature as a species; even as you allow them to mature as a species.

They have come from a completely different direction in evolution. You have come from a completely direction in evolution (from) each other. You are true polarities on many different levels.
But now – through these interactions, through these givings, through these sharings – whether they are understandable on the surface or not – you have begun the true blending, in many ways, that will allow you both to mature, both to interact, both to become fast friends; side by side in your expansion and exploration of the universe, in many ways that you cannot yet understand... but in many ways that you will understand in the time to come.

We have shared with you many times the arbitrary nomenclature that in many ways we have the existence of our evolution approximately 150 to 300 years beyond you. We have told you many times, in many cases, that this is an arbitrary nomenclature; and we will now endeavor to define and precisely explain the relative frequency of the time span of your reality and our reality.

For there will be a seeming time, a temporal paradox, in what we are about to explain about your connection to us. It has already occurred to some of you; it has not occurred, quite surprisingly, to a lot of you.

Once again, in many ways what we are about to say you can take in many ways, on many levels, very literally. But understand it is also archetypal energy, the sub-stream consciousness of your realm – of your realm, of their realm, the Zeta Reticulum.

We have told you in many ways that we are the representation of your own future selves. And in many ways, that is allegorical. In many ways, it is quite literal, reincarnationally speaking – and also as a representation of the parallel type of civilization you yourselves will create upon earth.

But there is one other way that we also mean it, that we have not really shared with you. For it actually has not occurred to actually quite a large number of you – that even as we have endeavored to describe our physical reality, our physical appearance, you understand that we are an exact cross between the idea of your human shape and your Zeta Reticulum.

We are the children of the blending; we are the hybrids that you are creating. We are your future selves, and come back to remind you that there is a marriage going on that gives us reality, that supports us. You are, in many ways, our fathers and our mothers; and we are your children.

And we send you our love across the ages. The idea of understanding is that this blending is taking place in your time frame. And that an evolution does occur where there is the population of our world and another dimension, through the crossbreeding of, what you call, the Reticulum and the earth human.

And we are that population. And that is why we have remained in that other dimension, so that we would not interfere with the marriage that is taking place, so that we would not interfere with the consummation of that marriage. So that we would not interfere, in that sense, with your right to experience our birth from your point of view.

But now, because of the timing and because of the sharing, we can be allowed at this time, with great joy, to share with you that we greet you as your children. And we thank you for allowing us to reflect back to you the brilliant trust you have placed in us, the brilliant future you have given yourselves and the brilliant present you have bequeathed unto us.
There are many more levels to this idea, and we will share those in time as well. But understand that there is a distinct purpose in the creation of our species by the blending of yours and the Reticulum. You are creating the future you desire in many ways.

And do remember one other thing: another thing that many of you sometimes do not stop to realize. In what we call our present, we are also side by side with your future earth. And we interact together in joy, in harmony, in love. You are our legacy, as much as we are yours.

Our love to you; we thank you for your blessing. We thank you for your strength! And we thank you for your love, and our life, and our joy. And we only give you back what you have given us, in allowing us to exist as we do.

Infinite Creation dreams you into ecstatic creations of reality – forever and ever. Shivai!

Q: I’ve become very aware of a lot of things and...
B: Meaning?
Q: A lot of conspiracy type things.
B: Yes?
Q: That could make one feel very uncomfortable.
B: Were you present earlier in this communication?
Q: Yes I was.
B: When we talked about the idea of paranoia being it’s own reward.
Q: Yes, I was.
B: All right.
Q: But I don’t see it as paranoia, because I don’t think I’m necessarily paranoid.
B: I am not saying that certain things that people on your planet say exist – don’t exist. I am not saying, as many of you already absolutely know, that there are not covert organizations on your planet.
Q: Okay.
B: And I am not saying that many of these organizations do not engage in certain programs that do bring about some of the things that some people on your planet, have said that they do. I am not saying that they don’t exist, but as always, from the beginning I still say – your vibration determines the reality you will ultimately experience. And exactly how much effect they will be able to have on you, is determined by how much effect you create them to have upon you.
Q: Right, or how much power I give that particular idea.
B: Yes.
Q: Well that’s my, that’s my challenge, because I want to be informed about this stuff. I don’t want to ignore it, I don’t think that that’s the right thing to do.
B: All right, don’t ignore it.
Q: But I don’t want to get paranoid and create that.
B: Well, all right, then don’t. What makes you think you will?
Q: Well, because some of the information’s pretty chilling.
B: All right, one moment, back up. We have hit a core issue; we have hit a core issue. Are you with me now?
Q: I’m with you.
B: All right.
Q: Are you with me?
B: Oh, absolutely and always and forever.
Q: I feel it, I appreciate it.
B: You want to live in the vibration that you want to live in, you don’t want to ignore anything, and you don’t want to get caught up in what you don’t prefer.
Q: Correct.
B: All right.
Q: Thank you very much for putting that together.
B: What does this say? One word – uncertainty. You are teetering in uncertainty...
Q: Yes.
B: ...about your innate ability to decide what is true for you, out of all the things you know are true. You can know that something is happening, you don’t have to ignore it, but to know it doesn’t mean you choose to experience, to the same degree, that thing that others might.
Q: Right.
B: Again, it is the library analogy. You know all those books are on the shelves. Some very scary horror novels are there, you know they’re there, you can look at the titles. Someone asks, "Where I can find the book called, The End Of Life As We Know It?" Right there! Big and bold, black and white, polarized letters, right there, there it is! You can even maybe scan through it, "Look, oh, isn’t this interesting? Look at this, the death of all life, in a most horrible fashion – look at that, isn’t that interesting? Wow, wow!" But, you don’t have to check the book out of the library if you don’t want to; and if you don’t check it out, it’s not your reality.
Q: Right.
B: You can go into that space and become aware of all the negativity you want, if you want to call it that. Remember, as we reminded all of you, the more expanded you become, the more aware you become of negativity, as well as positively. The more you expand the more you become aware of the dark and the light. But just becoming aware of it doesn’t mean that’s what you choose.
Q: I understand that.
B: Do you?
Q: Yes, I do, absolutely.
B: Then why are you worried about choosing it?
Q: I’m not worried.
B: What are you then exactly?
Q: I want to know that if I concentrate some of my energy and effort, there’s a sense of wanting to....
B: Concentrate some of your energy and effort on what? Let’s be specific.
Q: On possibly changing some situations or averting some situations.
B: In what manner?
Q: Well, all I’ve been able to do so far is do it energetically.
B: Is that not sufficient?
Q: I don’t know. I want it to be sufficient.
B: All right, give us ... one moment ... first of all, do us a favor will you?
Q: I will if I can, yes.
B: Slow down.
Q: Yes, I have actually been slowing down the last week.
B: Slow down.
Q: Okay.
B: Don’t be so quick to bounce in, all right? Slow down.
Q: Okay.
B: Let’s alter the pace of this dialogue.
Q: That’s fine with me.
B: All right. It is all right for you to become physically, actively involved in whatever you deem is representative of your joy, to become physically, actively involved in. But choose wisely – in the sense of knowing what you really do need to know, to become physically involved in, to help make a difference – and what you really don’t.
Limbo State II

Q: ...well I think I have the opposite situation. Instead of things humming along synchronistically, I seem to be at a sort of standstill. I don’t know which way to go. I’m feeling at a loss.

B: We have mentioned this idea of a limbo state with many of you. Usually individuals assume that when we say "limbo stale," we are referring to those times when it seems you are floating, stalemated, where no particular direction makes itself any more apparent than any other direction. You do not necessarily have a particular momentum or impetus to move in one direction more than another. You seem to be at a standstill for some reason, and cannot fathom why. Sometimes you don’t even want to know. But the idea of the limbo state has a more precise, and in a sense, a much more profound definition, which we will share with you at this point.

The idea generally, as we perceive your consciousness, has been perceived as meaning thus: a state in which you must now wait for something to happen. Having done all you can possibly do, there is no more you can do now. You are floating in a limbo state to see what falls out of all the things you have set up. You are now, in a sense, coasting. All of these are real definitions, but they do not touch the essence, the mechanics, the structure of what that waiting is all about.

The idea can perhaps be best explained by going back to another analogy we have discussed before: the film strip analogy. We have talked about the idea that different moments in time are, as your scientists say, discrete quanti — that is, every single moment is its own now universe — and in the next moment is a completely different reality altogether. Whatever it is at any given moment you decide you are, will utterly determine what the next moment will be shaped like, in a sense, how you will experience that next moment. One moment does not have to be connected to the next until you impose upon that frame, and upon that entire filmstrip, the idea that there must be continuity, one leading to the other. We have talked about the idea that your life, and your many lives, are like the frames upon a strip of your film, one frame at a time, one life at a time. In linear time it seems they come one after another; but that’s the nature of your physical reality.

Hypothetically, from the point of view of the projectionist, all the frames exist right now. Your entire life is there all at once — all your lives, all the frames — are there all at once. From the point of view of the hypothetical projectionist, which is the same as your Higher Self, or your Oversoul, any frame can be viewed at any moment, in any order, regardless of the way you think you have to view it in linear time. It doesn’t have to be from A to B to C...

This idea of the Limbo State can be looked at from the negative or the positive way, just as anything else can be looked at. As we perceive it, the way your society generally has interpreted what we mean by limbo state is from the negative side — and this is not meant as a derogatory statement. The negative way to look at this is to view the following analogy: Let us say you are looking at your life as a strip of film running through the projector and playing out on the screen at a certain speed. When most of you talk about the "standstill limbo state, when things do not seem to be happening," you usually look at this as the product of the film somehow slowing down, going into a static state where all of a sudden you are focused on one frame. And you don’t know when the film is going to start up again.

Looking at the Limbo State as if your life has slowed down is the negative way to look at it, so let’s look at it from the positive point of view. You will get the same effect — the focus on the now moment — if you realize that while the film is still going at high speed, you have accelerated. Your ability to see the frames has accelerated and sped up to match the speed of the film. You are now going as fast as the film. It is like our earlier analogy of the stroboscopic effect. Many of you have seen the idea that when something is moving, such as falling water, and you place a strobe light upon it, you can freeze the action and allow one drop of that falling water, seemingly, to remain suspended in the air before you.

In a sense, this is what many of you are now doing. You are accelerating your perceptive abilities up to the speed of your creations. And so it seems as if they are standing still. It seems as if they have slowed down and nothing is happening. But understand there is a very profound difference in how you look at this. If you look at it as if your lives have slowed down, as if the film has slowed down, then you usually wait around for something to happen and do not take action, do not move in life. However, if you understand that the only reason things seem to be standing still is because you have caught up to the speed of your creation, then you can understand that that point of view is now a point of power. You are in perfect equilibrium with the rate at which you are creating your reality.

What this means is as follows: when you are in perfect equilibrium with the rate at which you are creating your reality, moment, by moment, by moment, then that means that everything around you is moving at the same rate. Inertia is balanced, and therefore everything has the equal ability to be moved by you in the direction you prefer. They all have the same rate of speed; you are all moving parallel, synchronized to each other. There is no great inertia to overcome, therefore. Your motion relative to each other — you and the events in your life — are now moving at the same pace, and you can gently push them in any direction you want to.

Q: That sounds like what happens when we practice the martial arts.

B: Yes. This, in a sense, is the "secret" of your martial arts. Your master of those martial arts will tell you that the reason a small, seemingly weak person can move a stronger, larger person in any direction he wants to is because at one particular moment in the action of the movement of the larger person toward the smaller one, the smaller one matches the speed of the larger person. At that moment they are exactly equal in inertia. Neither is moving relative to the other, and therefore it’s a very simple thing to cause the larger person to move in any direction the smaller person wishes him to. There is no mass or momentum to overcome, as everything is moving at the same pace, and they can interact with each other any way they want to.

So this limbo state, this time of seeming standstill where it seems as if you have done all you can do, is actually the time when things can happen most magically, most quickly. The only reason it may not seem to be doing so is because you are standing there waiting for something to happen. Allow yourselves to look at the limbo state from this point of view — truly see your point of power. Understand that you are now pacing, synchronizing the rate — the literal rate — at which your consciousness is creating the moments of your reality.

Each and every moment is a discrete moment, a discrete definition, a discrete reality. They all flicker, one after another at an astonishing rate — so fast that your physical reality seems to be an unbroken continuum of time. But it isn’t. It is discrete moments, discrete definitions. When you find you are floating in that limbo state, you are at the point of power to allow any factor, any event in your reality, to move in the direction and in the style you prefer to. All you have to do when you arrive at that point is act in your direction of preference, act as the representation of the reality you prefer to have. Things will fall into place in your lives immediately, happening synchronistically.

Now, I do not say this to set you up, but the only thing that would cause you to hesitate is perhaps when you see that when you are in that state where it is so easy to create the reality you want, some of you may be afraid of the power you finally realize you have and back off a bit from it — because you will realize in that moment how powerful you actually are. The creation of your day-to-day reality is second nature to you. You are so powerful in doing it that you have been able to forget you are the creators of that experiential reality. That’s how easy it comes to you.... It is so easy that you’ve been able to overlook your responsibility for all that creation. Every single second, every single moment, you are exercising choice of what you believe is the most likely reality to manifest in that moment — every single moment. That’s how powerful you are.

When you allow yourselves to match the rate at which you are creating that reality, you will feel like you are standing still. You are traveling at infinite speeds, and when you do that, you are everywhere at once. And when you are everywhere at once, it’s like you are standing perfectly still. The only way you get a sense of the motion is when you have a relative measurement between your reality and what you are calling another reality. If you know that all realities, all events, all creations, are equal to you because they come from you — when you allow them to all achieve that equilibrium, then you are all falling at the same rate. Nothing is moving faster; nothing is moving slower. You can move the pieces around effortlessly, because they are all gliding. You are all together as one event, one idea, and you begin to see all the events in your lives truly as extensions of your selves.

I am not speaking figuratively; I am not speaking philosophically. I am speaking physically, mechanically, literally. You are the creators of your reality. What you have called the limbo state is your point of power; it is living in the present, in the now. You are, shall I say allegorically, about that far away (holds two fingers very close together) from having everything you want. All you have to do is go that extra little step. Of course for many of you — and again, not to set you up — that last little step is the most difficult. You have been taught over, and over, and over again: "It can’t be that easy; I can’t be that powerful." But you are! As we have said, because you are aspects and reflections of Creation, you are made in the image of God. To be made in the image is to be an echo of God. And in that sense, you are that powerful. You are Creation itself. You are the dreams of God, the hands of God, the instruments, the tools that all beings in creation are. As I tell you over and over, you — and we — are all the different ways the Creation has of expressing Itself within the creation It is.
It is your nature. It is the very fabric of your existence to be the power itself. You don’t have to develop swollen egos to recognize that. You can allow yourselves to be at balance with all things, and still at the same time know that because you are at balance with all things, everything is an extension of you and will move in the direction in which you allow it to move. You say so! Because that’s your job. In a sense, as aspects of the Infinite you are given the responsibility to create your immediate reality in any way you desire. That’s why you have free will.

Just as a side note, and just referring to some conversations we have had with a few of you from time to time, it seems quite contradictory to us that there are members of your society who insist that Creation instilled free will within you, and then at the same time sought to control your lives with its will. You have free will, and you can create any reality you desire; that is being made in the image of God. Act as such and you will have heaven on your Earth — guaranteed.

Q: So it seems we are going to be in a limbo state for a while.
B: That is up to you. Remember, limbo states are not only collective, they are personal. If you find yourself in a personal limbo state, while you may recognize that you can exist in an overall bubble, a collective bubble, you can still, as an individual, do many things within that overall bubble — things which will allow it to not necessarily remain as long as it might have, had you, as an individual, not acted.

Once again — the present is your point of power. In the Limbo State you are not waiting; you are not at a standstill. You are at infinite speeds. Move in the direction you prefer, and all will automatically, synchronistically fall into place. In your own personal world things will change. Just because there is a collective limbo state doesn’t mean you cannot have everything you desire in your own personal reality now. The more you create the reality you desire to live in now, the faster you will represent a living example to everyone else as to the type of reality they can create collectively also. And that will speed up the whole process. So it’s really still up to you; it is in your individual hands. Remember — one individual can have an impact over the entire planet. You’ve seen it done many times.

Once again we remind you, because we love you, no matter what you choose to think of yourselves, we will always believe in you totally. You can create any reality you desire, and we will be with you no matter what that reality is you choose to create. But the type of reality you choose will determine exactly how we are able to interact with you. As you recognize that you can serve each other and create a reality of joy, then you open to us the invitation that is necessary for us to have from you, to enable us to interact with you, and together blend our race, and your race, into a larger civilization that can continue to explore creation in ecstatic ways. There is no end to it — at least no end that we have ever found in the thousands of years, in the thousands of civilizations, that have explored creation. There has never been found even the minutest inkling of an end. As far as we are concerned, there never will be.

We rejoice in any opportunity you give us to share creation with you, but only if you are willing to be fully who and what you truly are. For if you are not, then it is not with you we will be interacting, but only with your idea of what you think you ought to be, only with your own illusions and delusions of self. We prefer the genuine articles; we know the genuine articles of you are creative beings, spontaneous beings, loving beings, beings who can create anything you desire.

Thank you.

Q: Thank you.

THE LIMBO STATE:
9-6-88
B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
Q: Great, perfect, etc....
B: Allow us to begin this interaction, this evening of your time, with the following entitlement, this, as you say, will be a bit of a mouthful, ”Trust and Clarity in Communication; The Limbo State, what it is and how to use it.” You will, I ask, excuse me if I am a bit long-winded this evening; but these things require a little bit of clarification and redefinition. Now that many of you are going through the types of changes that you are going through, now that you are experiencing different levels of energy within your consciousness, we can now define, in ways that we have not defined them before. some of the terminologies that we have used in our discussions with you in the past, so that you will have perhaps a more precise insight into what we meant when we used certain terminologies. For always, always, always, understand there are many levels, many dimensions, many different points of view to the semantics of any particular definition or word that we may use in your language which may not necessarily be accurately representative of the way we mean the terminology, when we use it.
So let us first talk about the idea of trust and clarity in communication. One of the primary, shall we say, problems or difficulties that we have observed in your civilization has to do, simply, with the communication between yourselves, as to why there are many negative feelings, negative interactions, negative outcomes. A lot of it is simply hinged not so much on the idea that there actually is an insurmountable problem, but simply that your ability to communicate the idea is not necessarily as effective as it could be, not as direct, not as honest as it could be. Because you have in the past created yourselves to be a society that has, in a sense, cloaked itself in so many layers of consciousness, so many layers of interpretation and symbology; individuals, whether they use the same words or not, do not always obviously understand what another individual means, by what they say.
We simply, herewith, put forth a simple suggestion. It has to do with trust, trusting that you, each and every one of you, are only attracting into your experiential reality those interactions which do benefit to you, and are attracting yourselves to other individuals in such a way that you do benefit to them. In trusting that this is the foundational reason for why you find yourselves interacting, for why you find yourselves communicating with anyone, you can use the following approach, which may allow a little more clarity to take place in your conversations in the future. If you can allow yourselves to know, to know, to trust, that the other individual always has the best intention going into the conversation, then you can assist them in clarifying what they mean. You can assist yourselves, and allow them to assist you and themselves in clarifying what you mean.
If you simply take it for granted that what they say, no matter how it may sound, compared to what you have been taught, that what they say is meant in the best possible way. So that if something, for some reason sounds, shall we say, strange, off-kilter or funny to you, or perhaps negative to you, perhaps you can stop the conversation and simply suggest, ”I know, I trust, that you have the best of intentions, the most positive intention behind what it is you are saying. Therefore, I know that even though I heard it this way, perhaps, just maybe, you meant this. Is that what you meant?" "Oh yes, that’s what I meant. Thank you for clarifying that so we would not have a misunderstanding."

Always, it is our suggestion, go for the trust of the intention behind what is said, rather than allowing yourselves to be marionetteed around by the words, as they sound, as you have been taught to think they sound, what you have been taught to think they mean. Find out what they really do mean by shooting, as you say, aiming as you say, for the intention of the communication rather than the clothing in which the communication is wrapped. Do not react to the clothing; allow yourselves to search, to seek the intention itself. Assist another individual by letting them know what they have said does to you, how you are reacting. Let them know how you are interpreting what they say, and ask them if they truly meant that, or if they truly meant something else. Allow yourselves to develop a commonality of trust, based on your understanding that every individual, no matter how they approach it, no matter how they cloak it, no matter where they come from, or when, generally speaking, in some portion of their consciousness, intend, intend that what they have to share can be used constructively, can be used to add to the overall creativity of your combined reality.

Beginning to approach it from that point of view will allow you, very quickly, to discern the intention behind the communication, to know whether it is truly positive or negative, and to allow you less misunderstanding; so that you will not be offended by the different portions of your consciousness that you are afraid to face, the different portions of your consciousness that you fear may have been brought to the surface by something someone said. Simply because it was reflected in a certain way, because some nuance was given that was not necessarily representative of what that individual meant, but, perhaps, is what you needed to hear, so that you could face that certain portion of yourself, now that it has been brought to the surface by that particular nuance.

Allow yourselves always to understand that any conversation you are having with someone else is an echo of the things you are only telling yourselves you need to hear, in many different ways. Examine and explore them unconditionally, unbiased in that way, openly trusting that what you are attracting, in some way, shape or form, has an intention behind it that matches your own, the overall intention of the support and the added accelerated creativity of your entire civilization; just a suggestion.

Now, the limbo state, what it is and how to use it. We have discussed this idea of a limbo state many times with you. Generally in the conversations that we have had, most individuals will assume that when we say "limbo state," what we are referring to is that time, or those times, in your life when it seems you have done all you can possibly do, and now you are floating; you are at, as you say, stalemate. No particular direction makes itself more apparent than any other direction. You do not necessarily have a particular momentum or an impetus to move, in any one particular way more than another. You seem to be at a standstill, for one reason or another, and sometimes you cannot necessarily fathom the reason. Sometimes you think you can; sometimes you don’t want to know. But the idea of the limbo state has a more precise and, in a sense, a much more profound definition, that we have up to
The idea generally, as we perceive your consciousness, has been perceived as meaning this, a state in which you must now wait for something to happen, having done all you can possibly do, and there is no more you can do. Now you are floating in a limbo state to see what falls out of all the things you have set up. You are now, in a sense, coasting. All right, all of these are, shall we say, real definitions, but they do not touch the essence, the mechanics, the structure of what that waiting is all about.

The idea can perhaps be best explained by going back to another analogy that we have discussed many times, and that is simply called the film strip analogy. We have talked about the idea that different moments in time are discrete, as your scientist say, quanti, that is, every single moment is its own now universe. And the next moment is a completely different reality altogether. And whatever it is at any given moment that you decide you are will utterly determine what the next moment will be shaped like, in a sense, how you will experience that next moment. And one moment does not have to be connected to the next until you impose upon that frame, and upon that entire film strip, the idea that there must be continuity, one leading to the other. We have talked about the idea that your life and your many lives are like the frames upon a strip of your film, one frame at a time, one life at a time. In linear time it seems they come one after another, but that’s the nature of your physical reality.

From the point of view of the projectionist, shall we say, hypothetically, all the frames exist right now. Your entire life is there all at once. All your lives, all the frames are there all at once. And from the point of view of the hypothetical projectionist, which is the same as your higher self, your Oversoul, any frame can be viewed at any moment, in any order, regardless of the way you think you have to view it, in linear time, A to Z; it doesn’t have to be that way.

Now, the idea of the limbo state can be looked at two ways, again the negative way, and of course, the positive way; just as anything can be looked at, from one side or the other. The way we have perceived that your society generally has interpreted what we mean by limbo state is the negative idea, and this is not meant as a derogatory statement. Simply that the negative way to look at this is to view the following analogy. Let us say you are looking at your life as a strip of film running through the projector and playing out on the screen at a certain speed. Most of you, when you talk about the "standstill limbo state, when things do not seem to be happening," usually look at this as the product of the film somehow slowing down, going into a static state where all of a sudden you are focused on one frame. And you don’t know when the film is going to start up again.

The idea of looking at the limbo state as if your life has slowed down, in a sense, is the negative way to look at it. Let’s look at it from the positive point of view, because, understand, you will get the same effect, the focus on one apparent moment, the now moment, if you understand that the film is still going at high speed, but that you have accelerated. Your ability to perceive the frames has accelerated and sped up to match the speed of the film; you are now going as fast as the film. It is what you call in your reality a stroboscopic effect. You have, many of you, seen the idea that when something is moving, such as falling water, and you place a strobe light upon it, you can freeze the action and allow one drop of that falling water to seem to remain suspended in the air before you.

In a sense this is what many of you are now doing, you are accelerating your perceptive abilities up to the speed of your creations. And so it seems as if things are standing still, it seems as if they have slowed down, and nothing is happening. But understand, there is a very profound difference in how you look at this, because if you look at it as if your life has slowed down, as if the film has slowed down, then you usually wait around for something to happen, and do not take action, do not move your life. However, if you understand that the only reason things seem to be standing still is because you have simply caught up to the speed of your creation, then you can understand that, that point of view is now a point of power; because you are in perfect equilibrium with the rate that you are creating your reality. And what this means is as follows, when you are in perfect equilibrium with the rate, the speed at which you are creating your reality, moment by moment by moment by moment, then that means that everything around you is moving at the same rate. And that means that inertia is balanced, and nothing has more ability or less ability to be moved by you, in the direction you prefer. They all have the same rate of speed; you are all moving parallel, synchronized to each other. And therefore, there is no great inertia to overcome, because your motion relative to each other, you and the events in your life, are now moving at the same pace, and you can gently push them in any direction you want to.

This, in a sense, is the, quote/unquote, secret of what you call your martial arts. What you call a master of the martial arts will tell you, basically that the reason that a small, seemingly weak person can move a seemingly stronger larger person in any direction they want to is that at one particular moment in the action of the movement of the large person toward the smaller one, the smaller one matches the speed of the larger person; and at that moment they are exactly equal in inertia. At that moment, no one is moving, relative to the other person, and therefore, it’s a very simple thing to allow that person to move in any direction the smaller person wishes to. Because there is nothing to overcome, no mass, no momentum to overcome. Everything is moving at the same pace, and can interact with each other any way they want to.

So this limbo state, this time of seeming standstill, now when it seems as if you have done all you can do, is actually the time when things can happen most magically, most quickly. And the only reason it may not seem to be doing so is because you are standing there waiting for something to happen. Allow yourself to begin to look at the limbo state from this point of view. Truly see your point of power. Understand that you are simply now pacing, simply synchronizing the rate, the literal rate, at which your consciousness is creating the moments of your reality.

Each and every moment is a discrete moment, a discrete definition, a discrete reality. They all flicker, one after another at an astonishing rate, so fast it seems to be, your physical reality seems to be, an unbroken continuum of time, but it isn’t, it is discrete moments, discrete definitions. And when you find you are floating in that limbo state, you are at the point of power to allow any factor, any event in your reality, to move in the direction and in the style you prefer.

All you have to do when you arrive at that point is act in the direction you prefer to, act in the manner you prefer to, act as the representation of the reality you prefer to have. Things will happen synchronistically in your life immediately, falling into place immediately. The only thing that would cause you to hesitate is, perhaps, and I do not say this to set you up, the only thing that would cause you to hesitate is, perhaps, when you see that when you are at that state, it is so easy to create the reality you want that some of you may be afraid of the power you finally realize you have, and back off a bit from it. Because you will realize in that moment how powerful you actually are.

The creation of your day-to-day reality is second nature to you. You are so powerful in doing it that you have been able to forget that you are the creators of that experiential reality. That’s how easy it comes to you. It is so easy that you’ve been able to overlook that you are responsible for the creation of that reality. It comes so easily. Every single second, every single moment, you are exercising choice of what you believe is the most likely reality to manifest in that moment, every single moment. That’s how powerful you are.

When you allow yourselves to begin to match the rate at which you are creating that reality, you will feel like you are standing still. Because you are traveling at infinite speeds; and when you move at infinite speeds, you are everywhere at once. And when you’re everywhere at once, it’s like you’re standing perfectly still. Because the only way you get a sense of the motion is when you have a relative measurement between your reality and what you are calling another reality. If you know all realities, all events, all creations are equal to you because they come from you, when you allow them to all achieve that equilibrium, then you are all, shall we say, falling at the same rate; nothing moves faster; nothing moves slower. And you can move the pieces around effortlessly, because they’re all gliding. You are altogether, one event, one idea; and you begin to see all the events in your life truly as extensions of your reality. And I am not speaking figuratively, I am not speaking philosophically, I am speaking physically, mechanically, literally. You are the creators of your reality. The limbo state, what you have called the limbo state, is your point of power; it is living in the present, in the now.

You are, shall I say allegorically, about that far away (holds two fingers very close together) from having everything you want, All you have to do is go that extra little step. And of course, for many of you, and again, not to set you up, that last little step is the most difficult. Because, simply, you have been taught over and over and over again, "It can’t be that easy; I can’t be that powerful." But you are, because you are aspects and reflections of Creation. You are made in the image of God. To be made in that image is to be an echo of God, and, in that sense, you are that powerful. You are Creation Itself. You are, in that sense, the dreams of God, the hands of God, the instruments, the tool that all beings in Creation are. You are, as well as we are, all the different ways that the Creation has of expressing itself, within the Creation it is.

It is your nature, it is the very fabric of your existence to be the power itself. You do not have to develop a swollen ego to recognize that. You can allow yourself to be at balance with all things; and to still, at the same time know, that because you are at balance with all things, everything is an extension of you and will move in the direction that you will allow it to. Because you say so! Because that’s your job! As aspects of the Infinite, in a sense, to put this colloquially, you are given the responsibility to create your immediate reality in the fashion you desire. That’s why you have free will.

Just as a side note, and just referring to some conversations that we have had with a few of you, from time to time, and again, in no way are we, in your vernacular, putting anyone down, but it seems quite contradictory to us that there are members of your society who insist that Creation instills free will within you, and then should at the same time seek to control your lives with its will. You have free will because you have complete and utter free will. You can create any reality you desire. That is being made in the image of God. Act as such and you will have heaven on your earth, guaranteed.

Remember, the present is your point of power. And in the limbo state you are not waiting, you are not at a standstill, you are at infinite speeds. Move in the direction you prefer and all will automatically, synchronistically fall into place. I guarantee it! And you will have the life of ecstasy. And remember, there is no such thing as something that is too good to be true or too good to last. Ecstasy is what you are made of, it is the highest energy of creation reflected and represented through your physical form. Live as it, because you are made of living life, you are ecstasy itself, of this our civilization has no doubt.

And once again, we simply remind you, because we love you, that no matter what you choose to think of yourselves, we will always believe in you. You can create any reality you desire and we will be with you, no matter what type of reality you choose to create. But the type of reality you choose to create will determine exactly how we are able to interact with you, not that interaction with us is the most important thing in your lives. You are the most important thing in your lives. It is simply that as you recognize that you can serve each other and create a reality of joy, then you open to us the invitation that is necessary for us to have from you, so that we can interact with you and together blend our race and your race into a larger civilization that can continue to explore creation in ecstatic ways, forever. For there is no end to it, at least no end that we have ever found, in the thousand of years, of the thousand of civilizations that have explored creation. There has never been found, even the minutest inkling of an end. As far as we are concerned, there never will be.

And we rejoice in any opportunity that you will give us to share creation with you, but only if you are willing to be fully who and what you truly are. For if you are not, then it is not with you that we will be interacting, but only with your idea of what you think you ought to be, only with your own illusions and, perhaps, delusions of self. We prefer, in your terminology, the genuine article, because we know the genuine article of you are creative beings, spontaneous beings, loving beings that can create anything they desire, including heaven on earth.

We thank you for allowing us to run off at the mouth this way, or shall I say, allowing me to run off with the channel’s mouth. In return for the gift you have given us, allowing us to share a taste of your consciousness, in return for that loving gift, I will ask you now, in what way may I be of service to you? Begin sharing and speak up so that all may share as well. Good day to you.

Q: Shivai, Bashar!

B: Shivai! One moment. Shivai is a word in our ancient language, which we no longer use, the language that is, and Shivai simply represents the principle that you would perhaps colloquially boil down to saying, "go for it." The idea is simply, that in our civilization, when an individual had a focus, had a dream, they did not allow themselves to allow anything to stop them. They went straight ahead, moved straight ahead, as what you would call, in a warrior way, with clear vision, clear intention, clear direction. And if there seemed to be a situation where they needed, as you would say, perhaps, some space to be who they were, then the individual that was on that particular path would simply, at that moment say, "Shivai," and all other beings would stand out of the way, to allow them the broadest and clearest possible path to reach and obtain the goal they desire. So shivai, continue....

Q: I would also like to say that it works on our planet, too.
B: Absolutely, of course.

B: Sharing!
Q: Yes, Bashar, could you say something about densities?
B: Densities, all right. Now this is, to some degree, simply a colloquial terminology for what you have called dimensions of experience. And all it really refers to is different frequencies of existence; a different density, a higher density, being a more accelerated frequency, a less material frequency. But we will also say this about the idea of densities and your transformation through them, your acceleration and graduation through different densities. You, as a planet, are now going from third density to fourth density. And what this basically means is that fourth density is the last level on which you can experience yourselves in an accelerated state and still remain physical. Our civilization is going from fourth density to fifth density, which is a non-physical state. And above that, in your terminology, are non-physical states, up to and including seventh density. And then you go to an entirely different octave of dimensional experience for which, right now, there aren’t very many words to describe it accurately in your language. And even we are only beginning to explore that idea. However, the idea itself of going from level to level, density to density, is, now pay attention, is the process of realizing that you actually are the dimension itself that you previously thought you existed in.

One more time, you now exist, you think, in a physical universe. Your fourth density transformation is when you begin to realize you are the creator of your reality. And what that means is physical reality is your expression, your projection, your creation, that it’s actually made of you, that you are actually it; that physical reality is you. When you really realize that, you then see yourselves literally as the dimension of experience that you previously thought you were only a component of. And that’s how it is for every level. You begin to realize you are the dimension itself that you previously thought you were only a part of. And here’s the wonderful paradox of the whole circumstance, each and every single one of you, as an individual, will experience yourselves becoming the whole dimension. Each of you will think that all the other consciousnesses you have seen as individuals are being, in a sense, absorbed into. And you will have the same experience, because the universe is holographically structured. And that simply means that any point of view can exist equally everywhere within creation. And that all points of view are all relevant, in that sense, and all true.

Each and every one of you, and each and every one of us, and all beings within creation, to put it in this following way, all beings are all the different ways that the Infinite Creation has of looking at itself, of experiencing itself to be. Every being, in a sense, can be called a God-thought, one of the ways that God has of thinking of itself, of expressing itself, of experiencing itself. And so here you are, being God, manifesting as physical individuals, with individual personality and individual identity. That’s one of the ways the infinite can experience itself.

And so here you are. There are an infinite number of ways, an infinite number of ways. There is no end to the growth; there is no end to the transformation. And the idea of going from level to level and density to density, as far as at least we can tell, will never, never, never end. Does this answer the question sufficiently?

Q: Yes, thank you.

Q: You said something about God before, and I’m curious if you and your people are familiar with Christianity and what you think about the idea that Jesus Christ is the savior?

B: We perceive that the idea has been, to some degree, misunderstood. In the usual vernacular of your word savior, this is not, in our perception, what the individual you call the Christ actually meant to call himself. The idea simply, from our point of view, if we may begin at what you call the beginning, is that what you call the Christ consciousness is the collective, the combined consciousness, the positive side, the combined consciousness of your entire civilization. Once again, aware of itself as a singular consciousness, but also aware of itself as the combination of all your collective consciousnesses.

The idea of the manifestation, in physical terms, of what you call the Christ actually happened far more often than once. And the idea simply is that in every endeavor, in every projection of the Christ as a physical expression, the idea that was being shared with your population was that you are also all part of the Christ. Not that, in that sense, the idea of the Christ is your savior, in the sense, that you have no power to create the reality you desire, and that only It does; but simply that your power to create that reality is a part of what it is.

The idea simply is at the time that the information was delivered in your society, the concepts that the information was delivered in your society, the concepts that were understood by your civilization then could only translate the idea in terms of being a ruler and being ruled. And so you created the idea that the Christ was a savior that would do everything for you, rather than understand that all the Christ is is a reflection, a reflection to each and every one of you that you are the aspects of the Christ and have an absolute right to create the elevation and ascension of your own energy as a representation of that energy.
Now, each and every world, each and every civilization, has its own version of what you call the Christ consciousness. In our ancient remnant language, which we no longer use, the combined consciousness of our entire world was called Shakana. Our Shakana, your Christ consciousness, and the combined consciousness of all other worlds together, will form what you call the Infinite Creation.

So in a sense, you could say the Christ consciousness is a, shall I say, miniature version of All That Is. And, in that sense, that’s why your society has translated it out to Son of God because it is, in a sense, a miniature version of The Infinite.

Q: Do you think that is why maybe we are so limited? Because we put everything, or Christianity puts trust in Jesus Christ and not in themselves?

B: The idea simply is that at any time you take the power that you are and remove it from yourself, you place a limitation that actually denies your very existence, what you have been created to be. So yes, in that sense, the definitions are what is responsible for creating the limitations.

Now the idea, to some degree, of what has been described as many of the attitudes and experiences are all valid; it is all valid. Any tool, in that sense, is a valid tool if it gets you where you want to go. But the idea is that your society, as we perceive it, and again not meant derogatorily, has placed many labels, many definitions, which in and of themselves are really the only thing responsible for the limiting of your ability to see that you are all the Christ. And that is what it is all about.

By the way, one of the manifestations, the physical manifestations of the direct Christ consciousness that many of you have not recognized is, what you call also, your being called Mary, your Mother of Jesus, as the female polarity of the Christ. There is always male and female in the collective Christ consciousness. And from our perspective of what this basically means, in relating it to what you now call your New Age or your transformational age, is that the so-called "second coming" is not any longer the manifestation of the Christ consciousness in a single embodiment. It is the awaking of the Christ consciousness in all of you, so that you are literally creating heaven on earth. This is our perception of the so-called second coming. Is this making sense in your language?

Q: Yes.

B: Does that answer the question sufficiently for you?

Q: Yes.

B: Well, thank you very much! Sharing!

Q: If we are responsible for our own reality and our reality is some kind of pain, does it end with death? And does your society experience death as we do?

B: Not similarly. We do, as you say, translate from physiological to non-physiological formats, but we do it with our eyes open, consciously, and simply translate our physical form back into energy and continue on, in a more expanded way. Know (that) the idea of the generation of pain in no way, shape of form means it must culminate in what you call physical death. It can always be transformed, especially now in your transformational life where you are beginning to be aware of the fact that pain does not have to remain. So the idea is that in our civilization we no longer experience the idea of pain.
Now, the ideas of pain, all pain: mental pain, spiritual pain, emotional pain, physical pain, all forms of what you call pain are, from our perspective, the result of resistance of your natural self. Pain is friction, to put it on a simple terminology; resisting the natural flow of yourself as an aspect of the Infinite. And usually this resistance occurs when, having been brought up in the society you have been brought up in, you have been fed and bought into definitions of limitation. So that in trying to live out these definitions that are not necessary representative of whom you really are, you are going against your grain, so to speak. And going against the grain gives you splinters. So the idea of going against the grain will stab you and create the idea of pain.

In fact, pain is one of the ways that can function as a barometer to let you know when you are attempting to swim upstream. It can be used in a positive manner in that way. The idea goes hand in hand with the concept that we have discussed with your society many times as follows: Excitement, what you call the physical sensation or the knowledge, the knowingness, of yourself that is translated as excitement, is your physical translation of the vibratory energy that represents the path you chose to be at that moment of your life.

So when something excites you more that anything else, that excitement is there to tell you three things. First, this is who and what you are. The circumstance and the situation that comes into your life at any given moment that excites you more than any other is letting you know, "This is who you are; act on it." You see, excitement is the sign that many of you ask for. "What can I do in life? Why am I here? What is my purpose? What is my mission? Give me a sign!"

"Hey, look over here; here’s a very exciting thing you could be doing!"

"Don’t bother me now, I’m looking for my purpose. I’m too busy searching for my mission in order to have a good time."

"Hey, look over here, what about this exciting thing?"

"Not right now, I’m looking for my mission in life."

But you see, the things that come with excitement are the answers, are the signals, are the signposts; that’s what excitement is. It’s tapping you squarely on the shoulder saying, "This is what you want to be doing right now." The reason it excites you is because it is aligned with the idea of who you are; that’s what excitement is.

The second thing it tells you is because it is who you are, it will be the thing, if you act on it with trust and conviction, it will be the thing that can be the most effortless thing you will ever do, because it is who you are. You are being yourself and so, of course, it will be effortless. The only time you have struggle is when you’re trying to be someone you’re not, again, fighting the flow, buying into the definitions of what the other individuals say you ought to be.

The third thing that tells you when a situation comes along that is more exciting than the other is, this is the thing that if you do it, will support you in the most abundant way to allow you to keep doing it in a more expanded, ever spiraling expanding way.
One: excitement tells you it is you. Two: it tells you that because it is you, it will be an effortless creation. Three: it tells you that because it is you and will be an effortless creation, you will be able to attract the abundance you need, in whatever form you need.

And understand that abundance is more than just money. What you call on your planet money is one of the valid ways to represent abundance, but it is not the only way. There are many ways. So let us add one more definition.

Abundance: the ability to do what you need to do when you need to do it. Period! That’s all abundance is. Two individuals, one in your terms with more money; one in your terms with less money, if they are both capable of doing what they need to do when they need to do it, they are equally abundant because that’s all that matters to them. And that’s the level they have defined themselves to be.

If someone has a more expanded idea of what it is that excites them, then perhaps they need more symbols of abundance to flow into their life to represent what it is they are. If someone simply has an idea that is sufficient to the symbols of abundance that are already in his or her life, then they will still be able to accomplish it as smoothly, as effortlessly and easily as anyone else.

So the idea, fundamentally, is that any time you feel pain, you are basically ignoring, either because that you have been taught to ignore, or because you do not believe that you can deserve the ease of creation, but you are basically ignoring the thing that really excites you the most. And when we say, "The thing that excites you the most," we do not mean you have to have, at this particular moment, an idea of the thing that will be the most exciting thing you will ever do in your life.

No, take it a step at a time. At any given moment, whatever it is at that moment, if you honestly assess all the things you are capable of doing, whatever it is at that moment that is the most exciting thing you could be doing, that you have the capability of doing something about, do it! It will align you with all of the flow of Creation, and life will be effortless.

This is actually what is meant in your society by the term surrendering. You’re not actually giving up your power; you’re actually flowing in complete accord with your power. But because it seems effortless, and because your world is used to thinking in terms of things being under your control if they require an effort, then you don’t think you’re in control when there is no effort. And so you create this idea that you are giving your power up to a greater force. In a sense, yes; but not really. You’re actually taking your power, owning your responsibility, when your life is effortless. That means you are going with the flow of who you have created yourself to be specifically and what you were created to be generally; an aspect of the Infinite. Is this making some sense to you? A great deal.

So you can always transform pain by finding out within yourself, "What is the definition I have bought into that would create the pain to begin with? What must I believe in order to have this pain reaction?"

When you get in touch with what the definition is, rewrite it! And then act like you believe the new definition is now more true than the old one. And as soon as you do, your life will be representative of the new definition because your physical reality is always the product of what you hold to be the strongest truth, the strongest definition.
That’s why there really isn’t any the truth. There are only a few fundamentals that could be called the basics of existence that are common for everyone; but there aren’t very many of them. All the specifics are your creation. And the ones that seem similar from one person to another are similar only because you telepathically agree to create them to be similar so you can all play the same game. But there is no real the truth, in specific terms, against which to measure other truths for their validity. The truth is composed of all truths and all truths are actually real.

Any definition you have, at any given moment, generates a self-perpetuating, self-fulfilling, self-sustaining, self-fulfilling, automatic system of manifestation to support the definition and make it seem as if for that moment it is the only true thing. Because every reality is real; every perception is a reality.

Your imagination is the gate, the library, to all probable realities. You cannot imagine non-existence. Whatever you imagine is, on some level, some where, some how, some when, real. And there are various ones that can be manifest in your particular dimension. Yes, there may be some that are nonetheless real.

So the idea is to get a handle on what are the definitions that have created your experience? And if you find there are definitions you prefer, maintain them and if you find there are definitions you don’t prefer, change them. That’s what you have free will for. Does this help you?

Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you very much. Sharing!
Q: Someone said that they did 'speech reversals' on you and that you kept repeating the words "The Machine". Does that mean anything?
B: YES
Q: Will you tell us what it means?
B: Yes.
Q: Would you, tell us what it means?
B: Yessss. 'The Machine’, and there are actually many holographic statements that will be discovered in the 'Reversals of Speech’ of these transmissions, but that aspect, that facet, that particular perspective, 'The Machine’, has to do with, actually, a couple of different things:

Number one: It has to do with the idea of focusing on reality as a mechanism and to not do so. It has to do with the breaking away from the viewpoint of your reality as nothing more than a machine.

Number two however: There is a great deal of information being dispensed to your planet through a variety of sources, at this time, about the idea about building a variety of different kinds of energy machines that will allow your planet to finally access the idea of unlimited, non-detrimentally, 'impactful' free energy.

There are actually a number of reasons for why the words 'THE MACHINE' exist within that particular transmission, and we will get into some of those later. We leave you with one other interpretation, if you do not know what this means in your language, look it up, we will provide no definition here, but you will see that it may be appropriate, and that is the phrase "deus ex machina". Are you familiar with that?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you then?
Q: Yes. Is the government aware of your ship?
B: No.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.

The Mantis

Questioner: Can you talk about how the Praying Mantis creatures relate to the Greys? Are they a leader, are they the ones that lead them or guide them or . . .

Bashar: As we have said in the past, the idea of leading is a misnomer in this context, it would be the same thing as saying or asking, "does one part of your brain lead the other?" They are of one mind, yet there are different components that serve different functions. They may represent what you would call a more organizational aspect, but they do not lead any more than your index finger leads your small finger on your hand when you grasp something. Do you follow this analogy?

Q: Could you go into it a little more? I’m not quite there . . .

B: If there is difficulty in this it is probably because you are an individuated consciousness and do not understand the hive mentality. It is a single entity, a single entity. Do you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: If it is a single entity how then can any one component actually be called a leader? It is one entity. Different components may have different abilities to organize the information within the one, and the Mantis, as you say, is a higher order organizational aspect.

Q: Okay.

B: But it does not correlate to what you, in your civilization, call a leader, for there are no leaders and followers where there is only one that acts simultaneous within itself in all components at once. Do you understand the difference? It may seem subtle but it is not, it is a profound difference.

Q: Okay, thank you.

B: Thank you.
The Master Within

Q: There are people in the world now who are claiming to be Masters, and who are attracting followers. Will there be continuing roles for these people in the future?

B: That is up to them, is it not?

Q: Right.

B: Understand again, in this way, the idea of the combination of what an individual says and what an individual does, does not necessarily have to extend to the fullness of what another individual chooses to share, as a belief, with the original individual. Any individual can say many things that contain what you might call profoundness of truth.

Therefore, in this way, recognize that you and any individual can take for themselves any part, any portion, any grain of any idea. Anything else that does not fit into the reality you conceive yourself to be does not have to be included to allow you to still accept the ideas for yourself that you feel to be right for you.

And in this way, this is also an opportunity to recognize that individuals need not rely on another individual for the sense of their own mastery. And a Master – that to which you refer as a Master – will be the first person to let you know that you are your own Master. Do you understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Then in this way, express your opportunity to recognize that you have your Master within you. Live your life as you desire, picking and choosing the concepts that you desire to express and experience in your life. You are your own path. Another individual’s path is their own creation and their own choosing; and it is up to them what parts they play.

Every individual will always play whatever part they wish to. For every individual is eternal, and is of service in one way, shape or form to all other individuals, whether they are conscious of it or not, whether they desire to be or not. They can be taken by other individuals to be a reflection of what allows every individual to recognize their own self-empowerment, rather than the giving away of power to others. Will this have answered your question?

Q: Yes, it does. Thank you.

B: Thank you for your sharing, and your willingness to discover your own Master.

The Master Within
Q: Bashar, what do you mean when you say I choose everything that happens in my reality? I would never have deliberately chosen some of the things that have happened to me!

B: On some level you are in control of every scenario you experience. For example, you may say, “I wouldn’t choose to be hit by a car, why would I choose that specific thing?” When we say you choose your reality, we do not literally mean that you specifically choose a particular way it will manifest. What we are talking about is that your belief systems and whatever emotions are strongest within you, will draw to you the type of physical experience that most precisely represents the basic idea or image or belief about yourself that you hold to be the most true. You may have a general description of yourself and you will simply attract in specific physical terms, in specific physical experiences, the one experience that represents the path of least resistance that is capable of fulfilling or manifesting or reflecting to you the general belief you have of yourself. It is not that we are saying that you definitely, precisely, and specifically desire to be struck by one of your automobiles. But if an individual is dealing with ideas and issues of safety and unsafety, of victimhood and non-victimhood, of fear on many different levels that where they are is not a safe place to be, then that fear in and of itself is what will attract the most likely occurrence to reflect and to show, in no uncertain terms to that individual, that they have, that they harbor, those types of negative beliefs.

Situations that happen in your life, circumstances that are the reflection of your physical reality; they don’t happen to show you that you are stuck; they don’t happen to show you you are a failure in life; the circumstances that happen in your life, the physical experiences that you have, they happen to show you what you believe, so that if you don’t prefer it you can change it. Your physical reality is your feed-back mechanism, so that every single moment of your existence as a physical being, you will constantly be giving yourself an opportunity to gauge and measure what belief systems you are buying into, moment to moment to moment. You are not lost in life, you are not out of control. The things that happen in your reality are the reflections of what you believe about life, the quality you believe life to be, so you are always given, by yourself, through the events in your life, the opportunity to determine whether or not the beliefs you have are the beliefs you want to have. They are not there to show you you’re stuck with what you’ve got; nor that you have failed in your life; but to show you how free you actually are. Because at every given moment you have the opportunity to know precisely what your strongest belief is, because your strongest belief must always be what manifests around you in physiological reality. It is a very simple thing; very, very transparent are all of you to yourselves, if you would but allow your definitions of life to be clear.

Allow yourself to know that there is absolutely nothing you could ever experience, nothing you could ever discover about yourself that cannot be applied in a positive way — absolutely nothing. Every circumstance, every situation, they are all fundamentally neutral, devoid of meaning entirely. No circumstance and no situation has built-in meaning. They are props, in a sense, surface features. You are taught to assign meaning to them. So automatic does this process become, that you automatically believe that when a circumstance occurs, the meaning you automatically perceive is the meaning that automatically comes with it inherently - but it doesn’t! It is neutral, when the circumstance occurs and you automatically assign the meaning that you’ve been taught to assign. The meaning you assign to the neutral situation is absolutely, totally, and utterly what determines the effect you get out of it. Positive meaning in... positive effect out. Negative meaning in... negative effect out.

To illustrate this idea we will use an analogy we will call “The Train Station Analogy.” You are all familiar with the device you have on your planet called a train, yes? Let us say that you are within the best of your ability and fully within your intention and integrity rushing to meet one of your trains because you have a very important meeting. The meeting will turn events around in your life in the direction you really prefer, so you know you don’t want to miss that meeting. So you are doing your best to make sure that you meet that train on time. You arrive at the train station and you are on the platform. You look down the track and... there goes the train without you. Now, decision, automatic assignment of meaning #1: A negative meaning: “I’ve missed my train, oh no! This is horrible, terrible—a catastrophe! Oh, miserable day! Now I will never make that meeting I will never be able to do what I really want to do. That meeting was so important. I am now going to be very angry that I missed that train, I’m now going to be judgmental about the whole situation.” You are miserable, or furious (depending on the type of person you are) you will either hold it within yourself and allow yourself the idea of negativity simply within your own life, or if you prefer company, you will stomp off to the train station to complain, making everyone else’s day just as miserable as your own. Now away you go stomp, stomp, stomp!

Scenario #2: You arrive on the platform there goes the train and you’re not on it. Neutral situation. Now, you say to yourself (making the choice of a positive affirmation): “I know, because I have chosen to know, that I am a positively manifesting person. I also know that there is really no such thing as an interruption in the path that I am, that everything that occurs in my life, because of the decision I have made about who and what I am, must therefore be a part of the path I chose to be, not an interruption in it - therefore, this circumstance somehow, even though I don’t intellectually know how, must serve me in a positive way. Oh, joy! Oh, joy! The unexpected has happened! Now I am giving myself a wonderful surprise I wonder what it will be? So now, perhaps your demeanor is a little more calm and a little bit more ecstatic and you begin to ponder all the positive reasons why you might have missed that train knowing you did your best to get there. And as you are pondering, you stand on the platform a little longer than you might have had you gone stomping off in anger. Suddenly, you feel a tap on your shoulder and you turn around. Low and behold, a friend that you have not seen in 10 years and who has just gotten off the train you missed is standing there and he tells you that he was just coming in to town to surprise you. And, he turns out to be someone who actually serves what you want to do better than the person you were originally taking the train to meet. “Now I understand why I missed the train, so I wouldn’t miss you! Because you, my friend, actually represent more precisely and more realistically the path I chose to be and the service I can provide in life.”
Too good to be true? “Oh, that’s just a coincidence what a fairy tale — life isn’t like that.” Oh yes it is! Life works exactly that way when you let it! Because everything is connected to everything else. Synchronicity — coincidence — not accident. Co-incidence is actually a simultaneously manifesting incident. It doesn’t mean it’s an accident; it simply means they are parallel, tandem, interactive. You have built into you all of the vibrations of all the possible and probable realities you could ever experience in your life. The vibration, the emotional vibration that you are at any given moment utterly determines which of those probable realities you manifest into physical experience. You are holographic in nature, holographic in structure, which simply means that every point and every place, contains the ability to manifest any part of the whole, at any time, anywhere. The vibration you are utterly determines which aspect of the holographic whole you experience to be your physical reality. Positive in... positive out. Negative in... negative out.

Your imagination is the library of all the things that could be and that simultaneously are existent within you. Your imagination is the template, the blueprint for all the probable realities you could manifest. Emotion is the activation switch for the blueprint of your imagination. Your emotion determines which of those particular blueprints, which of those particular templates will be brought into manifestation. If you have positive emotion, excitement, joy, strong desire and ecstasy, you activate the positive blueprints. If you have fear, doubt, guilt, judgments, that’s what activates the negative blueprints. It is as simple as that. It is simple physics simple mechanics.
The Methodology of Beliefs

Q: Isn’t it true that there are no feelings unless we have thoughts... that the thought comes first?
B: No, no, no, no. First is existence, above and beyond all, then knowing, belief, then emotion or feelings. Then thought, last.
Q: We cannot affect the emotions with thoughts?
B: You can, but understand that your emotionality will come first, even though it may remain hidden within your subconsciousness. Many times the thoughts that you think will be a product of how you feel about what you believe.
Q: But...
B: Many times you can use thought to bring forth that emotional energy that already exists, but the thoughts are a product of your emotionality, which are the products of your beliefs.
Q: But with the thought you can change your belief.
B: You can, in this way, change your belief through your knowingness. Your thoughts give you the opportunity to see what your beliefs are. You can, in this way, recognize that when your beliefs change, your thoughts will change. You can in a sense change your beliefs with thoughts, but recognize that that is only an illusion. You are creating the idea of a cause and an effect when in reality it is all one event. Your beliefs, your emotions and your thoughts all change together simultaneously. Even though you may think that a thought actually effects a belief, you already have the belief that your thoughts can do so, and so they do. The belief that your thoughts can change your beliefs is a belief before it is a thought.
Q: You have taught me to be in the “feeling,” to tell myself what feeling I want to have...
B: Understand again, all we have suggested to any of you are all, as we always say, simply different ways of allowing yourself to be in touch with your own reality. It is not that you have to do it that way, it is simply a suggestion based on your own particular methodology. It may be easier for you, but that does not mean it is the only way, and it does not mean it is an accurate description of exactly how it is being done. It is all tools, all symbols, it is all an act, all an illusion, it is all an idea. You can simply allow yourself to know that you can deal directly with your beliefs.
Recognize that many individuals upon your planet have expressed that they are worried that many times they find themselves reaching a state of mind where they do not feel the emotionality, and yet they are very certain of what they are doing. And they think: “Oh something must be wrong with me, I do not feel the emotionality, yet I know what I am doing.” It is precisely because knowing and belief precedes emotionality, that when you come from a place of knowing, you do not always have to create the symbolic manifestation of emotionality to know what you are doing. Emotions can be used to trigger your awareness, but that does not mean they have to come first.
Q: But we’re an emotional being and...
B: You are also beings of thought, and beings of belief, and beings of knowing, and you are beings of existence. You are not any one thing, no “buts” about it. That is how you choose to look at it – that is why you feel that way; you can come from any one of those viewpoints, they are all valid. If emotionality is more valid for you than the idea of thought or belief, then that is how you will discover your emotional connections to your thoughts and your beliefs – and how you will be able to activate those ideas for yourself to your emotionality. But you can come and approach yourself through and from any facet of the crystal that you are. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
The Modality of Your Mentality

Q: I heard about the blue light, and you said just flow it any way you feel comfortable with it, and I still had difficulty manifesting any type of energy or any type of, ah, anything.

B: The idea may simply be that you are putting expectations on the way you think it should manifest, and not allowing what manifests in your life to be the way the energy has been used.

Q: You think that if I believe something is happening, like in the oxygenation…

B: Oxygenation.

Q: of water, I could just believe that…

B: Your total reality is nothing but the product of what you believe it to be; plain and simple. The idea of utilizing the blue-white energy is still only a symbol that we have suggested to you, because many of you may find that it befits the modality of your mentality. But if the symbol doesn’t work for you in that way, create your own, if you need one. Or simply believe.

Q: OK. Thanks.
Q: Who are the Neutrals that you were talking about before?
B: This was a group that we facilitated a dialogue with between them and all of you, last interaction. They are a member of the Association of Worlds that have abstained from interacting with your world, on any level. They have now come to a point where they are willing to assess whether or not it is appropriate for them to begin communicating and interacting and participating with us and other civilizations, in this manner, in communicating to your planet and your people. But they are still, after this last interaction, discussing whether or not it would be appropriate for them to do so or to remain neutral and abstain from any interaction. They are the first Association World that has been in any way, shape, or form involved with these interactions, even peripherally, that have no connection to being human at all. They are totally non-human, not even humanoid.
Q: But they are physical?
B: They are, yes.
Q: Are they associated with a particular star system?
B: They are and you are not going to find out what that is right now. Because, again, right now, they have not yet decided whether or not they are going to participate.
Q: Why?
B: They have not yet decided because they have not yet decided unanimously. They decide everything unanimously, there cannot be one dissenting vote.
Q: But what would be their reasons for them not wanting to, for instance?
B: In their own terminology, it is simply inappropriate at this time, based on their agendas and your agendas.
Q: So, if they’re not human, what are they? What’s the closest that you would….?
B: There is no analogy on your planet. They are, even in your terms, in some senses, beyond a very rudimentary description difficult to describe, since you have no analogy. They do not have eyes, as you understand eyes. They have receptors of sorts, but they do not see in wavelengths as you see. They are not bipedal. They have a central cylindrical body, multiple appendages, that I suppose you would call legs and arms, in radial symmetry but you do not have with them a recognizable face, recognizable apertures, recognizable sensors. And even what passes for their exterior would not necessarily be perceived, by you, as something you would consider to be possible for an exterior. It is difficult to translate into your language what they actually are. But they are, simply, extremely, non-human.
Q: How do they communicate among themselves?
B: They communicate among themselves in a manner of sonic vibrations. The closest analogy would be, to you, the idea of the instrument on your planet you call a steel drum, you understand, the sounds made by a steel drum. Being on their world would be, to varying degrees, like being in the middle of thousands of steel drums. Do you understand?

Q: Yes, I just don’t understand how that’re talking about actually ... sound?

B: Yes. The sounds that they make...

Q: The sounds would be percussive, so how would that be made?

B: It is made within the body through membranes, diaphragms, different kinds of lymphatic membranes vibrating and so forth. Some can be quite booming, some can be quite shrill but the closest analogy, as your ears would translate it, would be similar to the sound that your steel drum instruments make.

Q: But they don’t interpret it so much as sound?

B: No, they interpret more directly as vibration, though there is one aspect of their organs that will perceive certain bandwidths of it as sound, but not for the purpose of communication. They will hear the sound only for the purpose of procreation. It is a stimulant to procreation, only in that wavelength and only for that organ to hear for that purpose, not for communication in any other level. You follow?

Q: Yes, that’s wild. Okay, thanks.
The Number Thirteen

B: The idea that your civilization places behind the number thirteen – let us discuss this concept as it exists in your collective archetypal consciousness, and explore some of the ramifications as to why this particular numerical value has been assigned such interesting qualities in your culture. First and foremost, recognize that anything that has to do with numbers is connected to the idea, the recognition of, the sensing of, the perception of, certain proportions and mathematical ratios in nature that represent certain vibrations, certain relationships.

Thirteen – not only in your own culture, but in many cultures, not only on your planet, but in other civilizations – is recognized as being a vibrational resonance that defines and represents a relationship between all that is considered to be of lower frequency, physical dimensionality, and the higher realms of non-physical consciousness. Thirteen is a transition number, a transition frequency, in and of itself; therefore, it is representative, archetypally, of a gateway, a doorway, through which and by which consciousness can connect to higher levels of awareness, higher dimensions of experience.

The frequency itself, the vibration itself, the relationship, the ratio itself, is something that is an energy that can be used when contemplated upon, when focused upon in meditations or in a variety of creative ways, to open very specific gateways and doorways within your own consciousness, physically, as a person. And help you connect to higher self, Oversoul level, spiritual realm, non-physical dimensionality of many different types and varieties.

This is one of the reasons why, because of the definitions, the negative definitions, the fears that exist in many cultures in your society, why the number thirteen has been given such superstitious qualities, such fearful qualities, as if it is something to be avoided. These meanings, these negative meanings, have only been attached to this vibration because it is recognized, at least subconsciously or unconsciously by many of you, that it is a connection to more rarefied realms of spirit and awareness. Yet because for thousands of generations, people on your planet have been out of touch with themselves, their inner selves, their inner life, their inner light, and have been out of touch with things of spirit, then mythologies have been built up around spirit that make spirit and non-physical awareness seem to be something to be avoided, something to be feared.

And so, in recognizing that the thirteenth vibration, the thirteenth frequency is a doorway through which connection and contact can be made, then because of the fear it has been labeled as something to be avoided; something to be shunned at all costs. For it is known that to connect to that frequency will put you in touch with the inner realms of self – in some senses, to open yourselves up to fear, to face and process fears. It is a processing number, a processing frequency, that when dealt with appropriately can be of great aid and assistance in helping you process many of the doubts and fears you have within yourself.

Thirteen represents in many ways the actual portal of the unknown. And, as we have said many times, it is best to make a friend of the unknown, because that is where you will discover most of yourself. That is where you will find who and what you are, in the unknown. That is where you will know who and what you are, by how it is you act when faced with the unknown. So we would urge many of you, most of you, perhaps even all of you, in this time of your collective consciousness’ awareness of the date, that you call your Friday the thirteenth... you have a golden opportunity... to really explore all the ideas of all the things that the number and the vibration of thirteen can jolt loose, shake loose within you. And allow them to come to the surface, fearing not, but using your imagination and curiosity to allow yourself to integrate the things you formerly feared. So that you can become more of who you are.

Use this time and use this number, use this archetypal symbol as your key and your gateway to explore and discover the unknown self, and make that more of you. Make it known, allow it to be known, so that you can become grander, bigger, more expanded, more accelerated, more aware of who and what you are; and thus, simultaneously, more aware of what your reality can be.

In whatever way, shape or form you wish to contemplate this, in whatever way, shape or form your imagination wishes to use this idea, do something, whether it be meditative or creative play, or some artistic endeavor or expression, or music. Explore and play... with the number thirteen and allow yourself to absorb and transform all the symbology and superstition, and allow it to become something that can serve you, rather than something that would chase you back into the darker sides of yourself. Remember that your physical reality is a mirror, very realistically a mirror, reflecting to you the strongest combination of ideas, beliefs, definitions that you have bought into. And so, take a moment to explore this unknown zone in all the creative ways that you can.

B: At this timing there will be a continuation of conversation, if you wish, with this new entity that will, in a sense, trade places with us. I will give you what may perhaps pass as "FAIR WARNING," this entity is structured exceedingly differently from myself. This entity will be able to converse with you but pay attention to this: the conversation may not take on the characteristics that you are used to with regard to communicating with us. You may be, in a sense, if you wish to communicate, forced to look for new avenues of expressing yourself in order to allow a dialogue to actually occur. Timing is everything, someone is calling, now it is time to answer. The idea in this synchronicity, if you wish an appellation, something to refer to this entity and consciousness by, you may refer to this entity and being as "The Observer." One moment...

O: We are The Observer, you may begin relationship with us.

Q: Observer.

O: You may begin relationship with us.

Q: Can I have your observations please, relative to the vibratory frequency of the object that I am holding in my hand, my left hand.

O: What is your relationship to the object?

Q: I use it in healing, healing work.

O: Does it thus, then, represent the healing of yourself?

Q: Assuredly, in major case, yes.

O: What then is the relationship of that which you are healing within yourself? How do you define it in your understanding of your relationship to yourself that you understand that you require, what you term to be, the healing?

Q: I use it that I might more perfectly align, be aligned with truth, with reality.

O: What is your truth? Speak your truth so that we may know you.

Q: I would be...

O: Understand the relationship that we are to each other.

Q: I would be one with what is real.

O: What is real? What is your highest reality?

Q: I would refer to that as God, as truth, as reality.

O: Is not then the idea of God, and your highest reality, as you have named it, that which is, in and of itself, the very concept of that which is healed?

Q: I forget.
O: It is true that your world has forgotten. If you would but remember, you would know that you are whole; and in wholeness there is health. Is this not the idea of what you call your act of healing in your dimension of experience? To know the self as whole and one with All That Is.

Q: Yes, that’s very true.

O: Is this not, then, the relationship of the object to you that you know it as a whole expression of yourself, as a reflection of a particular expression of your wholeness and not the idea of a fragment? Is this so, for you?

Q: This is so, this is so.

O: Does this, in any fashion that you deem applicable, work for you as an understanding of your relationship to this idea that you call an object? To this reflection of yourself that you use in his manner? You are using yourself, a reflection of a version and a variation of yourself and creating relationship with it. This is the idea of the utilization of this object; it is as an offspring unto you. Thus, that you see through your eyes as a concept, or an idea, or an expression, of your whole self expressed in a particular fashion or manner. Thus, then, is the relationship of parent to child, in that the parent sees in the child the whole parent from another point of view. And the child sees itself that way in the parent. The object, thus, is you from another point of view, and that is your relationship to it, as you are Us from another point of view and We are you, and that is our relationship to ourselves and to each other. Do you understand this as it translates into your domain of experience?

Q: I do understand, it is very clear and I thank you.

Q: Observer?

O: Is there relationship that wishes to continue?

Q: Observer, may I ask you a question about who you are, where you’re from, and how are you related to us?

O: I am from within.

Q: Within (?)

O: You are from within; that is our relationship to ourselves and to each other. I am from within you; you are from within me. Do you understand?

Q: Are you a parallel?

O: Do you understand?

Q: I think I understand. I think that I’m relating...

O: One moment of your time, translation, and clarification requirements. Do you think, or do you understand?

Q: I understand to a degree.

O: Degree, separation, magnitude, fragmentation.

Q: True, I look at...from what I understand in my reality...
O: Which we are not in parallel, parallel is within Us.
Q: Would you be a dream in my dream? And I be in your dream?
O: I am your dream. You are my dream.
Q: Okay, you’re my dream man. (giggles)
O: I am neither man nor woman.
Q: You are?
O: I am neither and both, I am The Observer.
Q: Would you be an angelic realm?
O: The angelic realm is within me.
Q: Yea.
O: I am "The Observer."
Q: Observer...Well this is very exciting to have you here. I think I’m gonna...does anyone else have any questions?
Q: Hi, Bashar was telling me about some crisis that I was creating in my life and it kind of scares me and...
O: What is your relationship to scared? We have understood that of recent, in your time, your entity within you, named Bashar has expressed concept of scared as follows: your facilitation, your English language facilitation makes for reflective harmony of understanding that in your positive utilization of fear you help yourself transform to higher levels when you use it that way. Thus, this was expressed as being scared, sacred by slight rearrangement of your spelling of scared you get sacred. The idea to understand in this relationship of scared to sacred is that you can utilize the understanding of fear as that which contains the information you require. If you will, in your terminology, pay attention to what it has to say in its relationship to your understanding of yourself. You will be capable of allowing fear to transform into your joy and will have allowed yourself to be scared, sacred.
Q: I understand, I think I understand, what relationship you are and I think it has to do with the book, "Conversations With God." That you are All That Is and I am All That Is and it’s the same and, well, we’re observing each other in what is. And so, going into the fear means going into the joy because the answer is there. And the reason I’m afraid is that somehow I’m not taking responsibility to say, no. I’m not going to create a crisis, you know that, I have the power and maybe the fear is throwing ... giving my power away and then...
O: Giving of your power away is the act of not being willing to take responsibility for the possibility of creating your crisis as equal to any other experience you could have. You are in the relationship of avoidance. Acceptance, of crisis, as equal to any other manifestational experience, total acceptance and relationship to your concept of crisis thus, then, makes unnecessary the experience of crisis. Thus, your relationship to yourself is expressed through the power of paradox.
Q: So it’s total acceptance, even if the answer is unknown, the acceptance of...
O: To accept, totally, the unknown is to accept All That Is. For All That Is, is unknown to you; but the unknown is All That Is. Do you understand this concept in your domain?
Q: I understand that and maybe ... I’m just trying to get to the seed of understanding how to go about this transformation and...
O: How to go about this transformation is to be who you are. That is how to go about it.
Q: Are we moving on to someone else? Thank you very much.
O: Is there further relationship?
Q: Observer I would like to ask how forgetting has served us? And I prefer not to forget any more; I prefer now to remember...
O: Forgetting serves, for if there is no forgetting there is no remembering.
Q: So the paradox again?
O: In this understanding there is illumination, in the creation of the dark only can you find the light. If there is only light you do not know where to begin. You do not know how to grow, you do not know where to go, for all is the same. Only in the creation of the paradox and the polarity does there then come creation. Do you understand?
Q: Yes, I do, and I thank you.
O: This is, in this creation of forgetting, the act of remembrance that is the creation of the self anew, and the creation and the continuation of the relationship of All That Is. Without the forgetting there is no creation and continuance of All That Is.
Q: Therefore, we can create each moment, anew...
O: Therefore, you do.
Q: Yes.
O: And thus, always will it be so, because there has been forgetting.
Q: It’s a great gift.
O: For that which is cannot become if there is not that which is not within it expressed outside itself in apperancy. Relationship does not exist without polarity, and without the triune of the center point there is no re-integration. Both are necessary.
Q: Will you speak of the center point, please?
O: The center point is that which is in between that which is neither this nor that, but All That Is, neither, both, the third element that must exist in order for there to be foundation and movement. Our relationship at this time must shift....
B: All right, once again, good day.
Audience: Good day.
The Orchestration

Coincidence?

June 1986: We will begin this discussion with the laying out of what you call in your society coincidence, or synchronicity. You will find that what we will specify within this context will be a simplification, according to the idea and the understanding of the mechanisms that allow your life to work.

Things in your consciousness are now accelerating again; thus, it will be important to us that you have a clear understanding as to the control of your own lives. We will discuss some of the exemplifications of the idea of synchronicity, and outline and delineate and define, in a very straightforward, simplified manner, exactly how you might utilize your understanding of this concept to recognize that you are, and always have been, in control of your lives.

As we have often said, there is no such thing as an accident. Nothing happens by accident. When there appears to be such, what you are recognizing are overlapping incidents – co-incidents – that describe and define the patterns and paths you have chosen yourselves to be. Now we will define the idea of synchronicity, and delineate it a little further in clarification.

Synchronicity, coincidence, is your conscious perception in a physiological time track – spatial reality – of the simultaneous manifestation of the multidimensional existence of all. We will now, through your examples of day-to-day existence, indicate the following idea: that synchronicity is your conscious recognition that all of the events, all of the objects, all of the relationships, all points of view, all perceptions, all interactions – these are all one thing. Every single thing you experience, and every differentiation you create in your reality – all are the same one thing from a different point of view. The same one thing, manifesting itself simultaneously as the illusion of many things. Everything is one thing – ONE.

Therefore, to put it in your practical terminology, observe the following. Give yourselves the opportunity to recognize that what we will now begin to delineate is that in order to understand consciously that you are in control of your lives, you need to do but two things, and that is it.

We will render everything we have discussed with you to date – concepts of ideology, beliefs, emotions, thoughts, perceptions, perspectives, interactions – into two ideas you can utilize as the mechanism itself of recognizing that you are in control of creating your reality. Two things, very simple: one, two.

Number one: everything is synchronicity. Everything is synchronicity. Now what this means is this: as you are driving, as you are walking, as you are doing anything in your day-to-day lives, remember that every single object, every single person, every single sound, every single interaction, every crack in the street, every leaf on the tree, the number of the leaves, the color of the leaves, all are there for a reason; no accidents.

No accidents! Now recognize, therefore, that while certain interactions, while certain objects or certain people may not have a strong direct relationship to you in a particular given moment, it still does not mean that they are not there for a reason. They may have more conscious meaning to the person just ahead of you, or the person just behind you, but because you are also there, you are playing the part of being willing to act and interact with all the other individuals. And their degree of importance as to their relationship to what is going on is also enhanced by your presence, just like your degree of importance is enhanced by theirs.

The idea, therefore, is to recognize, to use an analogy that you have shared with us quite often: if you are driving in your car, and someone cuts you off, or if you are in a traffic jam, if you are in a situation that you would usually label as something negative, recognize, again, that nothing ever happens by accident. NOTHING! Every single thing – say you are in one of your traffic jams: the car next to you, how much farther ahead or behind it is, what color it is, what way the light from the sun strikes it – none of it is by accident! None of it!

The Orchestration

Therefore, begin to be fascinated by how well orchestrated everything is that you are participating in – on an unconscious level. You are drawing into your lives every single particle of dust, every single atom that is there, everything! No exceptions, none. The way somebody may look at you, the way you look at that person, what he is wearing ... no accidents. It all plays a part in the idea that everything is one single event, experienced from different points of view, simultaneously, one event. The idea of degree of importance is simply to recognize how you relate to the event.

In other words, you may find that... let us say someone is walking down the street, and he is wearing a certain color of shirt. You could simply recognize it as synchronicity, knowing it has a reason. You could explore the idea of the relationship for you, and find it does not bear any reason that would stand out as anything important to you at the moment. The person behind you may get more importance out of it than you do, but that merely means you recognize that the reason for why you are there is not an accident. For you are part of the enhancement of the entire experience for the other person. That is what we mean by degree of importance.

Look at it this way, another analogy: you have the idea of a rotating propeller. It rotates at a certain frequency, a certain rate. You have also a strobe light. If you are in a dark room, if the propeller is rotating, if your strobe light – along with everyone else’s strobe light – is synchronized to the rotation of the propeller, such that when you decide to turn your strobe light on, it or certain people begins to flash, on-off, on-off... whenever you decide to turn it on, will be the first position you will see the propeller in. Because your light is synchronized to the rotation of the propeller, which will be the only position you see the propeller in.

Now, if you were independently able to see your particular synchronization, and someone else was independently able to see his – and thus, your strobe and his strobe did not clash, so to speak – then he would be observing the same propeller in a different position.

Same propeller! Different aspect entirely. The same single event that appears to be completely and totally different, simply because of the rate and the timing of the frequency of each individual strobe, everything is the same thing!
The only reason you might see the same one thing as different is because of the rate and timing of your strobe of consciousness in physical reality. Everything is one thing; that is the first point. Everything is synchronicity; everything is there for a reason.

Point number two: act upon the opportunity that your conscious recognition of everything as synchronicity brings to you, with integrity. Act upon all opportunities synchronicity brings you; that is all you have to do. One: recognize that everything is synchronicity. Two: act upon it with integrity. Those two ideas are all you need to do, to create the life you desire. That is it, period. That is all there is to physical reality: everything is synchronicity; act like it. That is all that is needed to be in complete harmonic resonance with your conscious understanding of All That Is, as it expresses itself as physical reality.

One-two, acting like it will always generate more conscious awareness of number one, which will always then give you more opportunities to act like it - point number two. They are self-perpetuating. One breeds two, breeds one, breeds two, accelerating into infinity.

Acting with Integrity

Q: What do you mean by “with integrity?”

B: The recognition that if you are aware that everything is one thing, and you are a part of it, then you recognize that you have everything you need to be anything you want, without having to force yourselves upon anyone else to do it. Integrity: integrated. Integral: integrated. Blended; one; wholeness.

You do not have to force your opinions on anyone else; you do not have to dominate anyone else to get what you think you deserve. Act upon the opportunities that synchronicity gives you, with integrity, knowing that you are as complete as you need to be to act upon it, in exactly the way you need to, to get exactly what you need. You do not have to rely upon anyone else to do it for you, or force him to do it. Act with integrity upon the opportunities you create, and it will always perpetuate more of number one, always, because you, in acting integrally with All That Is, with synchronicity, will always maintain your connection to it consciously. Acting outside of integrity separates you, and stops the process between one and two. It does not allow the acting to generate conscious awareness of synchronicity.

Understand that everything is synchronicity, including negative synchronicity. You always attract the ideas you believe you are willing to act upon, in the manner you are willing to act upon them. Negative occurrences are still synchronicity, because they are fulfillments of your own negative beliefs. You are acting in that manner. What we are saying is that acting with integrity, in positive attitudes, always will consciously maintain the connection. That is what will allow you to perceive the connection as an acceleration, and not a stagnation.

Q: So you could have negative acceleration also?

B: In a sense, but the idea is simply that if it is negative acceleration, you will find, first of all, that you consider it destruction and will perceive it in that form. And also it may not allow you to recognize the reasons for the destruction, for the negativity, just because you are disassociating from the fact that everything is synchronicity. And then it leads to the question, “Why is this happening to me?” So it creates victimhood. Negative synchronicity creates victimhood. Thus, in recognizing you are forming a conscious, positive connection, and because once you recognize what it is you know, you are in control of it, then you can choose what you prefer by acting accordingly – through integrity. That is all there is to it.

Q: Do you mean by everything is synchronicity, that every aspect, as you enumerated them, is a reflection of the same idea?

B: Yes, they are all the same thing. All of them are the same fundamental one thing – what you call Creation or God – and it is holographic. Each contains everything; it is all, ALL. Everything is all. Every separate concept is its own thing and its own version of the same one thing. If you are familiar with the idea you call cloning, then recognize that each and every cell in your body contains information for a whole body. That is the idea. Each and every single separate concept is a different manifestation of the same one thing. Cause and effect: the same event.

Analyzing Everything

Q: When I try to apply that idea to tiny little events going on in my life, I have difficulty understanding it.

B: Again, do not forget: we are not saying that conscious recognition of everything as synchronicity means you will be able to consciously analyze every single aspect to your conscious understanding. That is not the point. The point is to recognize that some aspects will have, as we have said, varying degrees of relative importance to you. You will not form a conscious analytical recognition of the ones that do not have a great degree of importance. It is, once again, a matter of trust.

Q: I can trust. But are you saying that it will be obvious and that we will know which ones have the highest degree of importance?

B: Yes. In other words: “What a coincidence, just what I needed. Right place, right time.” Everything else doesn’t matter. It will appear that another variation of those same circumstances will matter to someone else, although it may not matter so much to you. But it is all the same one thing. The point is not to have the conscious recognition; the point is to act as if you know that what is occurring is synchronicity, and what stands out is what you need to know. The way you need to know it, in the way you need to know it.

If you simply move upon whatever you can move upon, the things that excite you and feel correct, all the circumstances that have occurred in your life will fall into place and make sense. And in retrospect, you will understand what they meant. Many times you don’t want to know what they mean until after you spontaneously live through the circumstance, discovering in a spontaneous way what you wanted to discover, and understanding why those things happened in the way they happened. But if you trust that they are happening for a reason – your reason – and you use them in that positive way, you will always discover, sooner or later, how they served you in a positive way.
Trust your instincts. Examine what they bring up within you: “Why do I have this hesitation? What do I really believe about my situation, about my part in this co-creation? What are the beliefs I have? What is this hesitation allowing me to look at within myself, within these other individuals?” Learn all you can about it; apply it, and the obvious choice will simply fall into place. Then act on it.

Q: Didn’t you say that it might be detrimental to always analyze everything?
B: In a sense, you can recognize that many times you will allow the synchronicity into your lives, and you will have made a decision to not become analytical about it, because becoming analytical about it may not allow you to live the experience. You will turn it back into pieces instead of allowing it to be one thing.

Trust. It is a knowingness. You simply take it for granted that everything you are perceiving is synchronicity, no accidents. And the way you relate to it is the way you need to, plain and simple. That is all there is to it.

Q: What about the times when there’s a lot of synchronicity and you’re acting on it, and nothing happens?
B: That is a contradiction. Recognize that you are postulating two completely different viewpoints of synchronicity – a positive and a negative one. Know that it will always manifest in whatever way it needs to. And again, it may not be consciously obvious, so that you can take advantage of the way it has manifested. For perhaps, if you were to become consciously aware of certain ideas, you would not be able to move on them; you would be fixated on the mechanism. It would be as if all of a sudden you became fascinated with the concept itself, analytically, of being able to drive a car and forgot how to just get in and drive – because you were too fixated on: “Well, this piece: how does it relate to that piece? How does it relate to this – how, how, how...?” And in the meantime you are late for your appointment. That is putting it into an analogy, but it will have the same effect. Many times you will notice that synchronicity will occur in the appropriate timing. The idea of saying, “it shouldn’t happen” is a judgment call. You are putting expectations on how you think it should have happened. That is not allowing it to be synchronicity. Synchronicity is what it is, the way it is. Not: “Well, it should have been this. It didn’t happen. I didn’t see what I expected ... or should have been.”

Q: Well then, if we have no understanding of the outcome...
B: You do have an understanding in the way you need to. Conscious analysis is not the only definition of understanding. Again recognize, the second you act like everything is synchronicity, the more obvious it will become.

Planning and Free Will

Q: If everything happens as it is meant to, does that mean there is a sort of plan? But within the plan there is free will?
B: Yes. It is both: simultaneous, because time and space are illusions, and also synchronicity. Time/space is also another manifestation of one thing; it all occurs now. It all occurs here, for lack of a better term.
Q: Do you understand what you’re talking about?

B: Yes, because that is how our civilization lives. That is why we do not need the idea of the tools of government or economic systems. We allow synchronicity to always let us know that we are interacting with exactly the beings we need to be interacting with, and sharing services with those beings. And they are sharing with us the only services at that moment that we need.

Q: What about those times when we can’t follow what we wish to create? There are often those times.

B: Again, you may be creating the idea of beliefs of negative synchronicity. And it may not let you know you are following it in a negative way. The idea is this: if you do not act according to your own instincts – what you know to be true for you – then all you are saying is that you have a belief that in not doing so you will create a reality which will force you to recognize that is what you are doing – which very often in your society can manifest in a negative reality. In other words: “I didn’t follow my feelings. I find, therefore, that I still hate my job, hate this, hate that.” You always reinforce the choice you make.

Q: It’s a setback.

B: Not a setback, no. For you are giving yourselves the opportunity to learn that the choice you made is what the reality is that you are experiencing. And it gives you that much more opportunity to recognize that, if you redefine your choice, that will be the reality you will experience, since you are experiencing flawlessly the reality you believe you will experience now.

Symbolic Reflections

The idea is to recognize that synchronicity will bring with it the idea of symbology. Many times you find that everything in physical reality is symbolic of the actual interaction, the exact fundamental energy exchange, which you are creating within your being. As long as you are in physical reality, you always create an identifiable symbol to reflect to you the idea going on. Since you have created physical reality to be something outside yourselves, then understand that everything you perceive in physical reality is a physiological symbolic extension of processes, interactions, which are actually going on, more or less, inside yourselves. Not truly outside yourselves, but inside yourselves.

You are the actual interaction, the actual process. You are the experience you are having! You are the experience you are having.

It’s not that you are not interacting with other consciousnesses, but anyone you imagine yourselves to be interacting with, in any symbolic experience, is generally the only thing you perceive in physical reality. It is your own self-created version of that individual with whom you are interacting, and you are creating that interaction in a particular manner – in a necessary manner. That manner contains any specifics needed by you to allow you to see, in that other individual, the things you need to see reflected back to you about yourselves. Thus, always, in that interaction you can understand that you are dealing with different aspects of your own consciousness.

Once again, in recapping: realize that the idea of coincidence and synchronicity is when you allow yourselves to recognize that life always works when you let it. That everything you attract into your lives is the product of what you believe your lives to be; that you can only attract the vibration you are equal to; and thus, synchronicity, whether it is manifested positively or negatively in your lives, can only be a reflection of what you believe your reality to be.

You create the idea of the attitudes, the meanings you wish to impart to any given situation, and it is your attitudes that determine the effects that will manifest in your physiological reality. Trust that whatever comes to you in your physical lives is symbolic of the paths you chose to be. Take it as something that can synchronistically serve you, without assuming it is fundamentally, automatically negative. You will allow yourselves then to take advantage of any fundamentally neutral situation in a positive way, by understanding that every situation you create and attract into your lives can serve the paths you chose to be.

And therefore, as soon as you adopt the idea, the perspective and the attitude that every situation can be viewed as a positive situation and can create positive effects in your lives, you will understand how you relate to the entirety of what we call the multiverse.

No Future

Q: This brings me to a question I’ve been wondering about for a long time. If everything is happening right now, then why can’t the future be predicted?

B: It is, but not in the terms you call prediction. Recall the idea of the propeller and the strobe lights. The idea, as we have said, is not so much that you are predicting a future; it is more that you are sensing the energy at the present that is most likely to occur, because it has the greatest degree of energy behind it. The strobe light is on that particular setting at the time the sensing, or prediction, is made. The prediction itself might change the setting of the strobe light.

Understand what your physicists now understand: you cannot make a conscious decision that doesn’t affect the reality you are deciding about. Every thought changes the reality you are thinking of. Therefore, so-called predictions are only sensings of the energy most likely to manifest at the time the prediction is made. The prediction itself can change the energy. However, if what has been sensed has a great deal of energy momentum behind it, it will be unlikely to change.

But it is not the future you have predicted; it is the present, and it doesn’t change to the point where it manifests. Keep it simple. The past, the present and the future are all now. Understand it this way: remember the radio, where you have the idea of being able to turn to different programs. Just because only one program at a time is coming through your speaker, that doesn’t mean all the other programs aren’t there. And you can make a prediction that if you tune the dial, you will get another program. That is making a prediction. But it is only because you are aware of the fact that the program already exists that you can do so. It is the same thing.

Q: Is it that everything is happening now, and there’s only the present, the past and the future created out of the present? And all of the infinite number of possible futures exist right now?

B: Yes.
Q: So the question is not whether they are there, because they are. The question is which one you will wind up choosing.
B: Perfect. Thank you.
Q: So why talk about the future at all, since there is no future?
B: Yes, it is all present.

Limbo State
Q: Well, I think I have the opposite situation. Instead of things humming along synchronistically, I seem to be at a sort of standstill. I don’t know which way to go. I’m feeling at a loss.
B: We have mentioned this idea of a limbo state with many of you. Usually individuals assume that when we say “Limbo State,” we are referring to those times when it seems you are floating, stalemated, where no particular direction makes itself any more apparent than any other direction. You do not necessarily have a particular momentum or impetus to move in one direction more than another. You seem to be at a standstill for some reason, and cannot fathom why. Sometimes you don’t even want to know. But the idea of the limbo state has a more precise, and in a sense, a much more profound definition, which we will share with you all this point.
The idea generally, as we perceive your consciousness, has been perceived as meaning thus: a state in which you must now wait for something to happen. Having done all you can possibly do, there is no more you can do now. You are floating in a limbo state to see what falls out of all the things you have set up. You are now, in a sense, coasting. All of these are real definitions, but they do not touch the essence, the mechanics, the structure of what that waiting is all about.

Film Strip Analogy
The idea can, perhaps, be best explained by going back to another analogy we have discussed before: the film strip analogy. We have talked about the idea that different moments in time are, as your scientists say, discrete quanti – that is, every single moment is its own now universe – and in the next moment is a completely different reality altogether. Whatever it is at any given moment you decide you are, will utterly determine what the next moment will be shaped like; in a sense, how you will experience that next moment. One moment does not have to be connected to the next until you impose upon that frame, and upon that entire filmstrip, the idea that there must be continuity, one leading to the other. We have talked about the idea that your life, and your many lives, is like the frames upon a strip of your film, one frame at a time, one life at a time. In linear time it seems they come one after another; but that’s the nature of your physical reality.
Hypothetically, from the point of view of the projectionist, all the frames exist right now. Your entire life is there all at once – all your lives, all the frames – are there all at once. From the point of view of the hypothetical projectionist, which is the same as your Higher Self, or your Oversoul, any frame can be viewed at any moment, in any order, regardless of the way you think you have to view it in linear time. It doesn’t have to be from A to B to C.
This idea of the Limbo State can be looked at from the negative or the positive way, just as anything else can be looked at. As we perceive it, the way your society generally has interpreted what we mean by Limbo State is from the negative side – and this is not meant as a derogatory statement. The negative way to look at this is to view the following analogy: Let us say you are looking at your life as a strip of film running through the projector and playing out on the screen at a certain speed. When most of you talk about the “standstill limbo state, when things do not seem to be happening,” you usually look at this as the product of the film somehow slowing down, going into a static state where, all of a sudden, you are focused on one frame. And you don’t know when the film is going to start up again.

Looking at the Limbo State as if your life has slowed down is the negative way to look at it, so let’s look at it from the positive point of view. You will get the same effect – the focus on the now moment – if you now realize that while the film is still going at high speed, you have accelerated. Your ability to see the frames has accelerated and sped up to match the speed of the film. You are now going as fast as the film. It is like our earlier analogy of the stroboscopic effect. Many of you have seen the idea that when something is moving, such as falling water, and you place a strobe light upon it, you can freeze the action and allow one drop of that falling water, seemingly, to remain suspended in the air before you.

In a sense, this is what many of you are now doing. You are accelerating your perceptive abilities up to the speed of your creations. And so it seems as if things are standing still. It seems as if they have slowed down and nothing is happening. But understand, there is a very profound difference in how you look at this. If you look at it as if your lives have slowed down, as if the film has slowed down, then you usually wait around for something to happen and do not take action, do not move in life. However, if you understand that the only reason things seem to be standing still is because you have caught up to the speed of your creation, then you can understand that that point of view is now a point of power. You are in perfect equilibrium with the rate at which you are creating your reality.

Balanced Inertia

What this means is as follows: when you are in perfect equilibrium with the rate at which you are creating your reality – moment by moment, by moment – then that means that everything around you is moving at the same rate. Inertia is balanced, and therefore, everything has the equal ability to be moved by you in the direction you prefer. They all have the same rate of speed; you are all moving parallel, synchronized to each other. There is no great inertia to overcome, therefore. Your motion, relative to each other – you and the events in your life – are now moving at the same pace, and you can gently push them in any direction you want to.

Q: That sounds like what happens when we practice the martial arts.

B: Yes. This, in a sense, is the “secret” of your martial arts. Your master of those martial arts will tell you that the reason a small, seemingly weak person can move a stronger, larger person in any direction he wants to is because, at one particular moment in the action of the movement of the larger person toward the smaller one, the smaller one matches the speed of the larger person. At that moment they are exactly equal in inertia. Neither is moving relative to the other, and therefore, it’s a very simple thing to cause the larger person to move in any direction the smaller person wishes him to. There is no mass or momentum to overcome, as everything is moving at the same pace, and they can interact with each other any way they want to.

So this limbo state, this time of seeming standstill, where it seems as if you have done all you can do, is actually the time when things can happen most magically, most quickly. The only reason it may not seem to be doing so is because you are standing there waiting for something to happen. Allow yourselves to look at the Limbo State from this point of view – truly see your point of power. Understand that you are now pacing, synchronizing the rate – the literal rate – at which your consciousness is creating the moments of your reality.

Each and every moment is a discrete moment, a discrete definition, a discrete reality. They all flicker, one after another at an astonishing rate – so fast that your physical reality seems to be an unbroken continuum of time. But it isn’t. It is discrete moments, discrete definitions. When you find you are floating in that limbo state, you are at the point of power to allow any factor, any event in your reality, to move in the direction and in the style you prefer to. All you have to do when you arrive at that point is act in your direction of preference, act as the representation of the reality you prefer to have. Things will fall into place in your lives immediately, happening synchronistically.

Now, I do not say this to set you up, but the only thing that would cause you to hesitate is perhaps when you see that when you are in that state where it is so easy to create the reality you want, some of you may be afraid of the power you finally realize you have and back off a bit from it – because you will realize in that moment how powerful you actually are.

The creation of your day-to-day reality is second nature to you. You are so powerful in doing it that you have been able to forget you are the creators of that experiential reality. That’s how easily it comes to you – it is so easy that you’ve been able to overlook your responsibility for all that creation. Every single second, every single moment, you are exercising choice of what you believe is the most likely reality to manifest in that moment – every single moment. That’s how powerful you are.

Infinite Speed

When you allow yourselves to match the rate at which you are creating that reality, you will feel like you are standing still. You are traveling at infinite speeds, and when you do that, you are everywhere at once. And when you are everywhere at once, it’s like you are standing perfectly still. The only way you get a sense of the motion is when you have a relative measurement between your reality and what you are calling another reality. If you know that all realities, all events, all creations, are equal to you because they come from you – when you allow them to all achieve that equilibrium, then you are all falling at the same rate. Nothing is moving faster; nothing is moving slower. You can move the pieces around effortlessly, because they are all gliding. You are all together as one event, one idea, and you begin to see all the events in your lives truly as extensions of yourselves.

I am not speaking figuratively; I am not speaking philosophically. I am speaking physically, mechanically, literally. You are the creators of your reality. What you have called the limbo state is your point of power; it is living in the present, in the now. You are, shall I say, allegorically, about that far away (holds two fingers very close together) from having everything you want. All you have to do is go that extra little step. Of course for many of you – and again, not to set you up – that last little step is the most difficult. You have been taught over, and over, and over again: “It can’t be that easy, I can’t be that powerful.” But you are!

As we have said, because you are aspects and reflections of Creation, you are made in the image of God. To be made in the image is to be an echo of God. And in that sense, you are that powerful. You are Creation itself. You are the dreams of God, the hands of God, the instruments, the tools that all beings in Creation are. As I tell you over and over, you – and we – are all the different ways the Creation has of expressing itself within the Creation it is. It is your nature. It is the very fabric of your existence to be the power itself. You don’t have to develop swollen egos to recognize that. You can allow yourselves to be at balance with all things, and still, at the same time, know that because you are at balance with all things, everything is an extension of you and will move in the direction in which you allow it to move, because you say so, because that’s your job. In a sense, as aspects of the Infinite, you are given the responsibility to create your immediate reality in any way you desire. That’s why you have free will.

Just as a side note, and just referring to some conversations we have had with a few of you from time to time, it seems quite contradictory to us that there are members of your society who insist that Creation instilled free will within you, and then at the same time sought to control your lives with its will. You have free will, and you can create any reality you desire; that is being made in the image of God. Act as such and you will have heaven on your Earth – guaranteed.

A Long Limbo?

Q: So it seems we are going to be in a limbo state for a while.

B: That is up to you. Remember, limbo states are not only collective, they are personal. If you find yourself in a personal limbo state, while you may recognize that you can exist in an overall bubble, a collective bubble, you can still, as an individual, do many things within that overall bubble. Things which will allow it to not necessarily remain as long as it might have, had you, as an individual, not acted. Once again – the present is your point of power. In the Limbo State you are not waiting, you are not at a standstill, you are at infinite speeds. Move in the direction you prefer, and all will automatically, synchronistically fall into place. In your own personal world things will change. Just because there is a collective Limbo State doesn’t mean you cannot have everything you desire in your own personal reality now. The more you create the reality you desire to live in now, the faster you will represent a living example to everyone else as to the type of reality they can create collectively also. And that will speed up the whole process. So it’s really still up to you; it is in your individual hands. Remember – one individual can have an impact over the entire planet. You’ve seen it done many times. Once again, we remind you, because we love you, that no matter what you choose to think of yourselves, we will always believe in you totally. You can create any reality you desire, and we will be with you, no matter what that reality is you choose to create. But the type of reality you choose will determine exactly how we are able to interact with you. As you recognize that you can serve each other and create a reality of joy, then you open to us the invitation that is necessary for us to have from you, to enable us to interact with you, and together blend our race, and your race, into a larger civilization that can continue to explore creation in ecstatic ways. There is no end to it – at least no end that we have ever found in the thousands of years, in the thousands of civilizations, which have explored creation. There has never been found even the minutest inkling of an end. As far as we are concerned, there never will be. We rejoice in any opportunity you give us to share creation with you, but only if you are willing to be fully who and what you truly are. For if you are not, then it is not with you we will be interacting, but only with your idea of what you think you ought to be, only with your own illusions and delusions of self. We prefer the genuine articles; we know the genuine articles of you are creative beings, spontaneous beings, loving beings, beings who can create anything you desire.

The Original Physical Inception

Q: In Lyssa Royal’s work that she has done, she’s commented that the original dimensional infusion occurred in the Lyran system, is that correct?

B: Define dimensional infusion. The Lyran system is, to some degree, a progenitor system of many of the species that exist within your particular area of the galaxy now; in that sense, it is an ancestor energy. Yes, in that sense, this is correct, but define what you mean by dimensional infusion.

Q: My understanding is that this dimension, this linear dimension, was not in existence, in a linear sense, at a certain time period, and then it was infused at a certain time period; and that the original infusion from the void, if that is what you wish to call it, took place in the Lyran system.

B: It took place at the time of your progenitor’s existence in the Lyran system, and could be said to have come from the Lyran system, in the sense that you are connected to it as a collective society... but the way you have originally said it can be misleading. You understand the difference?

Q: Yes.

B: In that all things are connected, what happened there had bearing on what is happening with you now; all of you. Thus, these are connected events, even though they may seem displaced in space/time.

Q: So the original seeding of our civilization here had its origin literally in the Lyran system?

B: Yes, to some degree. Although, again, there have been many offshoot tracks, and it is not just the simplistic following back of the line, and it is not just the idea of the direct intention to seed as if there was only one faction with one idea. You understand?

Q: Right, then there was Vega that was interplayed in it too...

B: Yes.

Q: ...the Sirius system...

B: Yes.

Q: ...the Orion system...

B: Yes, yes, yes, many, many, many, many, many. You are talking about very ancient on-goings, on the order of millions of years ago, in your terms of time.

Q: Is it also correct that the Orions, the original reason that... there were beings who wanted to be completely unconditional and open, and then there were also beings who chose to be separate and have their own existence separate from those beings...

B: Yes.

Q: ...and that was the original polarity that manifested and created a war-like temperament.

B: To some degree, yes, although, again, it is much more richly complex than that, but, yes, simply put, you could say that.

Q: And it played itself out between the Sirian and Orion systems.

B: It is playing itself out now.
Q: But originally.
B: It is playing itself out now. This is still what is going on your earth.
Q: Is it going to culminate with our transition into fourth density?
B: Yes. That is what that is for. That is why all the focus is on your earth, because your earth is the final act of that transition, of that culmination. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

The Original Physical Inception
The Ouija Board
From "Under Control"
6-25-86 So. California
Audience: Bashar! Bashar!
B: You.
Q: I heard about the blue light, and uh, you said just flow it any way you feel comfortable with it, and I still had difficulty manifesting any type of energy or any type of, of, uh... anything.
B: The idea may simply be that you are putting expectations on the way you think it should manifest and not allow what manifests in your life to be the way the energy has been used.
Q: You think that if I believe something is happening, like in the oxygenation...
B: Oxygenation.
Q: Oxygenation of water, I could just believe that...
B: Your total reality is nothing but the product of what you believe it to be, plain and simple. The idea of utilizing the blue-white energy is still only a symbol that we have suggested to you, because many of you may find that it benefits the modality of your mentality. But if the symbol doesn’t work for you in that way, create your own; if you need one. Or simply believe.
Q: Okay, I have another question, or, uh, I’d like to go up on your ship, uh...
B: All right. Have a good time. (Aud. laughs)
Q: Could I, uh, be directed anywhere to go where it is or...
B: Simply project within your imagination the idea, and you will find that you can create the experience in whatever way, shape or form is perfect for you now. Or you may, in your terms, "wait until you are in our dream reality," where it may be easier for you, if you believe it is.
Q: Is there, how do I know where you are or where your ship is?
B: The idea is that you do not need so much of a pinpointing, but simply recognize that when you attune yourself to a particular idea, it carries its own vibrational wavelength. Simply being tuned into that vibrational wavelength will deposit whatever portion of your consciousness needs to interact with it, wherever and whenever it is. Time and space are not barriers to consciousness.
Q: Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you.
B: YOU!
Q: Is it? I wanted to know how the Ouija boards work.
B: In this way, it is like anything else, in a sense, a tool. It is an object, it is a symbol that allows your own power of connection, and your own levels of awareness to be manifested in physiological terms.
Your own connections to other consciousness can be symbolically reflected or represented by the action of that tool; but like anything else, it is a tool. The power, the communication, and the interaction is from you.

Q: Okay, yeah. That’s what I was thinking. I was thinking that maybe people will believe that some ghosts or something will move it for you. So they move it themselves but aren’t aware of it.

B: That can occur. This is not to say that you cannot co-create a reality wherein you will allow another consciousness to activate the physiological mechanism. This is not to say that, what you call, disembodied consciousness cannot act that way, many times it can. All we are simply saying is that it is neither just it that is doing it, neither just you. It is a combination of both that creates the interaction. You are both doing it.

Q: Oh. A lot of times it doesn’t work.

B: In this way then, simply, it does not carry through to your belief system that that is a tool that will work for you.

Q: Oh, okay.

B: The communication can occur, and does occur, in many other ways. It is a tool to let you know something is going on that you are creating with another consciousness.

Q: There’s this person who uses a Ouija board a lot, says about, um, kind ’a levels of spirit, like 4th level old spirit and...

B: Yes

Q: Like that.

B: Yes.

Q: Do you know anything about that?

B: Yes. You are referring to the entity consciousness that refers to itself as Michael.

Q: Oh.

B: In this way, again, simply recognize that it is a tool that many individuals will find useful because it is a tool that is fashioned in a shape that is reflective of the way their mentality works, so they will let the tool work for them. Just like other individuals will avail themselves of the idea you call cards, tea leaves. Many of these ideas are simply different ways that your consciousness is comfortable in allowing a manifestation to project into physical reality; but they are all tools.

Q: That, that idea kind of breaks the theory of how time doesn’t exist.

B: In this way, again, simply recognize that time does exist when you create it to exist. You are creating yourself to exist within it. When it is said that time does not exist, it doesn’t mean that you do not create a reality in which it doesn’t exist. It means that beyond the reality in which you experience time, it is not experienced, and that time is created within existence. Time is subject to creation; creation is not subject to time. Time is one of the creations of creation; creation is not a creation of time. Therefore, time does exist when you create it to exist; but if you do not create it to exist, you don’t live in it. Many consciousnesses that communicate with your level of time track awareness do not exist in a time frame. They only seem to and they use terminology that makes sense to you. because you can only understand things from a time-frame point of view. So it translates into terms you can understand. This does not mean that the reality is that way for them. You follow me?
Q: Yea, I guess.
B: It is simply like learning to translate from one language to another. You may have a word in one of your languages for an object; that word may not exist in another language. But you can find some way to refer to it by using terminology that may be common to both languages.
Q: Okay, uh, that’s it.
Q: I’m wondering if you could explain to us the hole in the ozone layer?
B: It is, to some degree, a natural fluctuation of several things. Some of it has been accelerated, to some degree, by the pollutants that you are putting in the air. However, most of it is simply representative of some of the shifts taking place in the collective energy of your consciousness, and of the cycle that your planet is going through now, relative to being open to receiving new and higher energies. To cleanse, and to allow beings to shift their vibration upward to match those frequencies, and so propel themselves into higher density states. Do you understand?
Q: Yes, so it is not all damaging...
B: No.
Q: ... as we have been given to understand?
B: No, not all. But it does aid and assist you in feeling that it is now necessary to help balance out the systems on your planet, because of the higher energy coming through. This higher energy will burn out those that do not eventually allow themselves to align with the understanding of creating more balance upon your planet. You understand?
Q: Yes. Will it then close... or not?
B: It will, in time, cycle itself to a type of closure, yes. But it will still function as a lens to regulate some of this energy. Do you follow along?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you.
Consciousness Network

The Paradigm of the Essassani

The Essassani paradigm of perceiving reality was introduced to the planetary population through the medium of Daryl Anka, who channeled a group consciousness represented by an entity known as Bashar. Apparently there are five people on the planet who have the capability to resonate with the Essassani frequency and gain information. Bashar has also come once through an individual on the East Coast of the United States, although that individual usually gains information and data through another representative of the Essassani. The Essassani maintain that they exist on a different frequency of reality which is coincident with a parallel reality 700 years in the future, and that they are physiologically a hybrid race which is a genetic combination of the human and the Orion Grays, otherwise called the Dow.

Through a generational cross-breeding program, which must have been somewhat successful because the Essassani exist, a new sub-species was born. Because of this, the Essassani have a vested interest in how the planetary population perceives them. As of 1996, the hybrid program is a done deal relative to the creation of the Essassani, as far as we can determine. In reality, the advice they gave through many of the channeled sessions and in the book Blueprint for the Future, around 1989, was quite interesting, but not easily implemented by the population, as there was one key component missing. An understanding of Hermetic Law as it applies to the creation of reality. Trying to illustrate to 3rd density humans how to improve their lives, from a 5th density viewpoint proved problematic at best. One of the side projects at Leading Edge Research is to attempt to reconcile this problem through integration of Hermetic principles with many elements of perception from the Essassani standpoint.

When the book Blueprint for the Future was released, it sparked a lot of interest. Surely the principles put forth about "creating your own reality" should be able to be tested in day-to-day life. Michael Topper's response to the principles put forth by Bashar was that they were a "half truth". In his usual complex way, Topper described his viewpoint in an issue of the Thunderbird Chronicle, and the material was subsequently reprinted in Leading Edge publications. I will not attempt to interpret Toppers work. It's unique approach to reality has to be seen to be believed.

At any rate, I will summarize the high points of the Essassani Perspective below:

On Living Life...

JUDGEMENT: "Judgement is invalidating everything you prefer. When you invalidate something, you become equal to it, and thus what you do not want you become." Seen from a Hermetic standpoint, when you focus on something you bring it into your life. If you focus on what you do not want, you become resonant with the frequency of its reality and manifest it. The answer to all of this lies in the apparent paradox of Hermetic Law, wherein you must see the reality you prefer as currently existing in the moment, despite the apparent contradiction of its immediate lack of presence. Hard for most people, but not impossible to do. Furthermore, "every being has their own way of exploring the idea of existence. It does not mean you must judge the way they are living as invalid. If you are busy judging that what they are doing is less than what you think they could be doing, YOU are the one maintaining those effects and those realities in YOUR reality. You are focusing upon them." Want a real challenge? Consider Reptilian Draconians eating human children and maintaining a 4 billion year history of tyrannical behavior, and attempt to attain a state of non-judgement while at the same time focusing on a reality YOU prefer to exist. YOU may move to a parallel line of existence where these guys do not exist...they won’t be shifting their perspective, so YOU are the one who must do so.

"Anything that you share with someone else, any common similar experience, is because you have agreed to create your own version of it in your reality."

"When you assume that where you are is where you need to be and begin to enjoy it and live in the moment, then you will not try to be somewhere else, and that is what will let you get there."

"Allowing everyone to live the lives they choose is granting equality and validation to everything...to All That Is, which means that you, as a part of All That Is, are automatically supporting everything you do, and letting All That Is support you."

"If you believe you need to be protected...you are inviting attack."

"All situations are fundamentally neutral. You give them meaning, 'positive' or 'negative'. When you assign a 'meaning', you invite that reality."

"If you KNOW that you know, then by definition there is nothing stopping you."

"No one can 'give' you anything. You have to create your own version of it."

On Relationships...

"When you know you are complete within yourself and attract a relationship to share as true equals, each being in the relationship being complete, then an individual can come and go in the relationship and will feel no loss. If an individual comes and goes, it is an accurate reflection of the completeness of the relationship...and it serves a purpose in the relationship and is not an interruption in the relationship."

"People assume that you need a relationship to be complete, so what you are always going to attract to yourself is a reflection of your own (self-perceived) incompleteness. You will attract someone who will act incompletely, to remind you that it is what you believe yourself to be."

"Individuals in your society say that if they could only find their soul mate, everything would be wonderful...but understand that you only attract what you are the vibration of."
The Paradox of Physical Reality

Q: When you talk about... that we can choose how we want our reality to be...

B: Yes.

Q: ... and that we can have control, in that sense. What’s the difference between that kind of control and the kind of control that I’ve been learning to relinquish or give up, of trying to have things go a very certain way.

B: Ah, thank you very much. In this way, recognize that what you typically refer to, in your society, as surrendering is actually taking control. Control means letting yourself flow with and in synchronous harmony with the idea of the universal Self, the universal Infinite. Choosing to flow synchronistically with that idea is taking control, is knowing that you are in control.

As we have said, there are two types of free will, the free will of the physiological consciousness and the free will of the higher consciousness. All that you call the free will of the higher consciousness, many times, is relegated by the physical consciousness into the terminology you call fate or predetermination; but this only occurs in the most generalized of terms. The actual specifics of how the events, the generalized events that are determined by the non-physical higher consciousness unfold, how they unfold specifically, is determined by the physiological personality, the physiological desires, the physiological thoughts, the physiological beliefs that you create in your physiological life.

Thus, in this way, the taking control, once again, is the expression of your desire, the expression of your willingness, the expression of your conviction of what you know to be true for you. It is taking that stand of conviction; and taking the stand of conviction in that way, places you squarely in the flow of the universal energy that you are in touch with, and thus, makes it seem as if, once you have taken control, you don’t have to do much steering.

Does this help you?

Q: Can you say that last sentence one more time?

B: When you take control, then the paradox is that it becomes apparent that you actually don’t feel like you have to do the steering. This is the paradox of physical reality... when you know you are creating your reality and are fully in control of it, because everything you experience is what you created, then you open up to the idea that vulnerability is infinite strength, and not weakness. And if you are willing to be completely open, which is what vulnerability is, then you know you are completely connected to All That Is. Being completely connected to All That Is means that you are always totally, completely reinforced. You have infinite strength, and therefore, you simply flow along the universal lines of momentum.

You are completely in control by flowing along the lines of least resistance. Thus, it does not feel like you have to steer. The only time it feels like you have to do the steering is when you fight your own ecstasy. Giving in to your own ecstasy, surrendering, quote/unquote, to the universal flow of things allows you to know that you are squarely in control. Because then it is effortless to create the reality you prefer, because you are drawing everything in parallel lines, and not going against the flow.
Q: Thank you so much.
B: Thank you.
The Paradox of Surrender

Q: First of all, I’d like to thank you all for creating these sessions. I’ve been listening to the tapes for about six months, so I’ve been with you – down in Costa Mesa actually. And it’s had a tremendous impact on my life, in terms of creating more excitement, joy and love. And it’s been very much fun sharing it with friends and clients…

B: May I ask you a favor?

Q: Yes.

B: Will you share it a little more loudly please?

Q: My concern has very much to do with your introductory remarks, and probably can be based on that, I suspect.

B: Ooh!

Q: I think what has happened is that in listening to your ideas, I have been forming new beliefs.

B: All right.

Q: And what’s happening now is I’m attempting to integrate them, with a little difficulty, with a series of beliefs that I’ve probably had for lifetimes as a nun – and currently coming out of a yogic system of belief…

B: I see.

Q: …which has to do with reverence for spirit, surrender to spirit…

B: Yes.

Q: …as seeking the higher will, as opposed to the lower will being done, that kind of thing.

B: Yes. There is nothing contradictory in what we are saying; you are simply using different semantics, which perhaps have a different understanding of the mechanism. The mechanism can be described, regardless of the symbols that are utilized to represent it; and the mechanism will be found to be the same for both ideas. The ideas we are presenting, the ideas you have now just outlined, simply have one particular mechanism; though many individuals will look at them in different ways, and mean them to represent different kinds of action.

Q: Can you talk more about this mechanism?

B: Yes. The idea simply is that what you call surrendering and going to the higher will, as opposed to the lower; in that way is simply the understanding of centering within your being. Surrendering is, in a sense, taking control, being in control, being fully responsible for what you create in life. Surrendering is going with the flow; but going with the flow means you then have, paradoxically, given yourself the ability to create what you desire. That means you are in control. Surrendering is being in control; it is not giving up.

The idea of going with the higher will as opposed to the lower is simply recognizing that you have free will, but that you can choose to express yourself in a negative way or a positive way. And that if you choose to experience yourself in an integrated positive way, then you will be in synchronous harmony with the higher consciousness that you are, and you will be able to know that you are in synchronous harmony with the higher consciousness that you are.

Whereas if you choose the negative way, what you call the lower will, then simply, by definition, you may not know that you are in synchronous harmony with the higher consciousness that you are. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Do you wish to continue?

Q: No. I knew that there would be a way of integrating, a way to hold all of that. I guess I just wanted to hear you say it. Thank you.

B: We thank you for bringing up the idea, for you will find that this is of paramount importance in your society at this time. In each and every one of you, as you examine the different ideas of belief systems that exist within your society, you will recognize that very often where many different societies think they truly disagree, it is only a matter of how they are calling the idea, rather than truly disagreeing on the fundamental basics.

Many individuals do not realize that what they purport to be true within their system of reality, and what they purport to be false within someone else’s system of reality, is only a difference of labels and nothing else. Nothing else! Thank you!

Q2: I want to explore that concept of surrender. Because in our language, in our society, it means giving up, it doesn’t mean taking control.

B: Yes. There is, in some factions of your society, a new understanding now being applied to the term surrender. We are assisting in providing that understanding. You simply utilize, as a society, that term because it is the closest approximation to the idea that you have in your language. It does not necessarily precisely describe the mechanism that is involved, but it is the closest label you have.

Q: There’s no better synonym for the concept you’re trying to convey?

B: Let us scan. (Pause) We find that the majority of the references within the vocabulary of the channel, that are in your language, will all have to do with the idea of giving up control.

Q: And thereby gaining greater control. Is that . . .

B: The idea we are saying is that all of the reference words that could possibly be used from your language will all generally mean the same thing as your colloquial meaning of surrender. You do not have a word in your language that means giving up and taking control at the same time.

Q: But that’s the concept you’re attempting to convey.

B: Yes.

Q: To give up control, and therefore gain greater control. . .

B: No, no, no, no, no, no. Not to give up control, to give up trying.
Q: To give up trying...
B: Yes. To give up trying to control is to have ultimate control.
Q: Ah! That does it. That does it! Okay, I have another paradox I’d like to – an apparent paradox for me – which I’d like to ask you about.
B: All right.
Q: In your initial remarks and in my question – well, when you were answering the other lady, you said: “trust that everything that’s happening... that you’re perfect; don’t look at the echo for indications that there’s something wrong with you. Trust that you are doing fine in your integrity.” So that’s one concept.
B: Yes.
Q: But when I asked a question, you said: “recognize that everything happening in your life right now is a reflection of what you may need to consider changing.”
B: Yes. Just as her echo is an opportunity for her to get in touch with what the belief system is. We are simply saying pay attention to it, but do not seek your validity in it; seek your validity in yourself.
Q: Then the paradox is: a person is valid, but nevertheless there’s room to change and grow.
B: Of course, always!
Q: But then, when you change and grow...
B: You become a different validation.
Q: And from your new perspective – we have a tendency, in our concept of growth, to look back on where we were and say: “Whew! Boy, am I glad I’m here and not back there.”
B: All right.
Q: With that concept – you’re suggesting that that’s... what?
B: You can always recognize the joy of being where you are. We are simply adding to the concept the idea of allowing yourself to recognize that what you are is also, in existence in your linear terms, because of where you were. And thus, where you were is a part of where you are.
Q: Aha!
B: So to truly invalidate where you have been... we are not saying that you cannot appreciate where you are now, comparatively speaking, but the idea is not to invalidate where you were then, that is what allows you to be the you, you are now. Whereas if you had invalidated yourself as the you, you were then, you would still be that you.
Q: Got it. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

The Paradox of Surrender
The Path of Conviction

What we mean by the razor’s edge is the following concept – many of you have been exploring the idea of spirituality for quite some time; you have begun to see certain effects of your metaphysical knowledge manifesting in your physical reality, making certain changes here, making certain changes there. But now and then we hear many of you say, "Well, I was going along fine, everything seemed to be rolling along and then, all of a sudden, everything went, as you say, 'kaput.' Everything seemed to go down the drain, everything became more difficult, all the obstacles started cropping up, and whereas I was doing fine a few weeks ago, all of a sudden everything seems to be at a standstill, and I do not know what I am doing wrong."

The idea is to understand the following thing, as you pursue the thing that excites you the most in life, you begin to narrow down all of the preferences to those few things that are truly representative of the thing that excites you, of the path that you really prefer. As you narrow down these choices, narrow down these preferences, the things that you have to choose from, that are representative of what you do prefer in life, become less and less and less, fewer and fewer and fewer. In other words, whereas before you may have been able to operate within, shall we say, a certain wide range of opportunities, now there are fewer and fewer and fewer opportunities in your life that actually represent the path that you prefer.

You have less margin of, shall we say, "flop." You now are required, as you pursue the idea of what excites you, to have far more precision in understanding that the choices you make, if they are not representative of the thing that excites you, then they will not work for you at all. Before you may have been able, shall we put it this way, to "get away" with things that were peripheral to the ideas that excited you, that perhaps were not exactly aligned with it, but still contained some of the elements of the thing that you knew you preferred. But each time you choose to take a step in the direction of the thing that you prefer, and ONLY move in that direction, you yourself eliminate, eliminate the choices that do not contain as much of the elements that you prefer in them. You weed them out and your path, in a sense, becomes narrower and narrower and narrower.

Now, there is a paradox in this because the idea is, that even though it may seem that the path becomes narrower, even though it may reduce itself to a fine line and you may feel as if you are walking a thin tightrope, in actual fact, this is far more stable. When you make the choice to stay on the one line, in the only direction that you really prefer, it becomes very, very wide, very stable, in the sense that you cannot, in any way, shape, or form, get off of that path, fall off of that line. The idea becomes simply that if you are off it, it is because you are choosing things that are not as purely representative of the one thing you say really motivates you, of the one way that you prefer to be.
Now, there is a trick in this as well. I use the word trick, but you will understand what I mean. It is very cleverly arranged, this mechanism, because as you continue to choose the thing that you prefer, and as you begin to weed away those choices that do not contain as much of your preference, another thing starts to happen. By choosing those things that excite you, and only those things, all the other things, all the other choices begin to disappear from you, in a sense, begin to be taken away from you. So that sometimes you get to a point where you’re moving along the path that excites you, that you say excites you, and then, perhaps, you have some second thoughts, perhaps, you find yourself doubting this path and you look back, look for something else to fall on, and it’s not there. All of a sudden you are staring into an abyss.

You begin to realize that as you make those choices, you are truly, truly, truly telling the universe, "I want no other choices, other than those that represent what really excites me, therefore, do not even begin to show them to me, do not even begin to give me the opportunity to fall back, to settle for less, to have anything but the choices that really represent what I want." And so, perhaps, if you come across those moments of doubts, you look back and there is nothing, and perhaps this makes you afraid. But that’s all right, because it is a way for you to know that your reality is working just fine, that the universe is supporting you in the doing of the thing that you really love to do, and is helping you stay aligned with that path by removing any other choices.

At first, it may cause a few of you to panic a little bit, but it is really all right. The safest thing to do, the most stable thing to do, is to continue to move straight ahead, and only, only, only take those choices that are really representative of what you know in your heart is really who you are, your real preference. That will accelerate you, and it is that acceleration, that speed, that forward momentum that will keep you securely aligned on that apparently thin, thin line. The line only needs to be representative of the one path you choose to be at any given moment, so it doesn’t have to be very wide. You do not have to feel you that you are walking a tightrope, you will not fall off, you can only choose to get off. But again, you now are beginning to find that the mechanism itself is giving you fewer choices to get off to the side on. So you are streamlining, refining your ability, your mechanism of creation, in this way. Do not fear it, do not panic; it is exactly how it is supposed to work for you.

The razor’s edge is all you need, and that that sharpness will cut through any and all of the so called blocks, and the so called obstacles, allowing you to have a crystal clarity, allowing you to TRUST your instincts and your inner sight about the things you say are really representative of the type of reality you want. Because you can have it, you CAN have it; you can have the reality you prefer and nothing but the reality you prefer. And for many of you this may still sound like it is too good to be true, but it is not. Allow yourselves to trust it. You will accelerate and you will cut through all the remaining barriers.
The Path That You Are

Q: I would like to ask a question.
B: All right.

Q: I have never heard you, or about you, before tonight.

B: That is all right. I have never heard about you either.

Q: But some of the things that were mentioned are really relevant to things that are happening now in my own life.

B: All right.
Q: And I have a question. During the last year I think I did what excited me most.

B: You think?
Q: I think.

B: You’re not sure?

Q: I’m never sure about anything lately.

B: Ohhh! All right.

Q: I’m as sure as I can be.

B: All right; very good. That will do.

Q: In fact, I started a new project, and I did the best and most gratifying job I did in years.

B: That’s all you need to do.
Q: Yes. I did all that for well over a year.

B: All right.
Q: But then...

B: And then.
Q: And then on a daily material level it seems that I have fallen flat on my face.

B: Seems. Just seems.
Q: Well, seems.

B: All right. The unexpected: very good; very good; the unexpected. Now, before you go on, let me remind you of a tale we have shared with many individuals that occurred on our world once upon a time. There came a time when we realized that as an individual would greet another individual, and they would say, “Well, how are you?” and the other individual would say, “Well, things are not going as I expected!”

Well, the response was “Congratulations,” because then you are not stuck in a mold. And the unexpected is to show you that you wish to surprise yourself with more pieces of yourself – that you wish to discover, that you wish spontaneity of discovery, spontaneity of creation.

Now: the unexpected directions that occur in your life are the continuations of the path you have begun. They may not seem so to your outer aware analytical ego mind, but they are if they contain the same excitement. They may not seem to have anything at all to do on the surface with what you were doing.

But that is why all you need to know is that, if the excitement leaves one idea and appears in another, it is the excitement that lets you know these two things are connected. The excitement is the thread that will lead you into more of yourself. So if something appears to have become deflated, then look to see where the excitement is. It may be that you need this diversion so that you will learn something appropriate – so that when and if you go back into the original idea, you will then bring back with you something you needed to learn to enrich the original idea. You never know.

But the point is to trust that excitement is your barometer, is your arrow. Follow it. No matter whether it appears in a situation that seems to have anything at all to do with the situation you were in before or not, it is connected. Excitement is the thread that lets you know it is connected.
Many individuals say, “Well, I have this block.” A block is only a signpost that points in an unexpected direction. If your society has taught you, “No, no, no! Don’t pay attention to that sign; go straight ahead.” Well, that sign becomes a wall, because that is not the way that represents your path. When the sign says, “Turn left” or “Turn right,” if you follow it and trust your instincts, and trust that there is a reason for that unexpected direction to occur in your path, that truly is the way to most quickly go literally straight ahead – by turning left or turning right when your own signs say to. That’s how you get there the quickest.

But when you stand there and say, “No, no, no; that can’t be right. This has no business being in my life. How could this have happened?” then you are standing there talking to a brick wall. It’s not going to answer you until you turn. Then it will change back into the sign that lets you know – “Aha! Turning left right here is exactly what I am supposed to do.” For you can recognize a path is not what you are on; a path is what you are. You cannot be off of yourself.

So follow what excites you at any given moment that you are capable of acting on. And acting on that will always lead you into other opportunities to do other things that excite you that you will then be capable of acting on – if you were not capable of acting on those, at the time you were capable of acting on the other thing that excited you. One exciting thing will always lead to all the other exciting things that represent the things you chose to experience in this physical life. Is any of this making sense?

Q: Yes and no. Can I expand on my question?

B: Absolutely!
Q: Because starting in what I found exciting has so far resulted in fairly severe results . . .

B: Severe?
Q: . . . such as loss of job . . .

B: Loss of job!
Q: loss of health, some possible loss of family life. So now I’m asking myself: If I just follow my instincts and just do what I consider to be the right and exciting way, this situation can be . . . or do I just follow my common sense, a path of least resistance, and compromise?
B: All right. Now, a path of least resistance is always what you follow when you do what excites you the most. However, let’s examine your beliefs, because your beliefs are what create the effect in your reality that you get when you do follow your excitement. Your beliefs, your definitions, may be the following idea: “I have been taught that if I do what excites me the most, I will suffer in other areas.”

That may be your belief. And if that’s what you’re experiencing in physical reality, then if physical reality is the product of what you believe, in a sense, in an overall general sense, that must be the belief you have bought into. Somewhere along the line, in life, you picked up and bought into the belief that, “If I do this, then that will happen.”

Now, if that situation is occurring in your life, then it allows you the opportunity to know you have this belief that it must be the result of following what excites you. So that gives you the opportunity of examining why you have that belief; and if you don’t prefer that belief, to change the definition of that belief. There are many tools that can allow you a very strong opportunity to get in touch with your beliefs, change your beliefs, so that you can manifest what you truly desire, at no loss to anyone – you or anyone you are interacting with.

Q: What are these tools?

B: We rarely recommend the idea of a specific tool, but in this case it already exists in your society, and it is very strong and impactful. It comes through the auspices of another consciousness you call Lazaris. It exists in videotape form, and is simply called “The Secrets of Manifesting What You Want.”

There are individuals who are present this evening of your time who will be able to show you this tape. We simply suggest that you acquire it for now, that it can be of great service to you in clarifying to you what your beliefs are – so that you can get in touch with what you would rather they were, so that you can then create the realities you prefer. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Utilize this tape; see what you are capable of doing with it, and then there will be room for further discussion – if necessary.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. The information on that tape is extremely powerful.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you. Sharing.

THE PHOTON BELT
Questioner: Regarding the Photon Belt…
Bashar: Yes.
Q: …the wave of energy that’s on it’s way, if not here already.
B: Well, again, as we have originally described it, it is not so much something that is OUT THERE, as it is, perhaps, a side effect manifested in the electromagnetic field of physical reality that is representative of exactly what we talked about a moment ago, the leading edge of the collective consciousness of your people, creating a threshold that it is about to cross. You’re crossing yourselves, that is what the Photon Belt is, it’s the collection of energy forming what appears to be a barrier that you know you need to break through, but it has a electromagnetic side effect, so to speak. Because anything you think of, especially with the concentration of your entire culture, will create some idea in physical reality to manifest. But it isn’t something just OUT THERE that you are going to pass through that has nothing to do with the fact that you created it, which you all did. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Oh, yes, very much. There was some thought as to how there was a possibility of it …I understand you are going to get what you put into it…
B: Yes.
Q: is as simple as that.
B: Yes.
Q: So, if you put negativity into it that’s what you are going to experience in the long run.
B: Yes.
Q: There was one question that came up that was, well, when this energy surge passes and comes through there is a possibility that things like cars won’t work…
B: Some areas of your planet may experience this, either momentarily or they may experience it for longer durations, but not everywhere. And individuals in certain locations, because of their vibration, may not experience this at all.
Q: Yes, so it has to do with the individual themselves how they accept …loosen their definitions as you said many, many times.
B: Exactly so. It is a wave of energy that can be, in a sense, ridden or resisted. Thus, depending upon whether you ride the wave or resist it, determines whether or not you go forward quickly and smoothly or whether you allow yourself to be, in a sense, smacked down by it.
Q: Okay.
1
B: Does that help?
Q: Yes, greatly.
B: All right, thank you.
Bashar: All right, I’ll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all?

Audience: Wonderful, great...

B: Once again we take the opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing our civilization to communicate to you through this particular window and in this particular manner, on this day. Each and every time, once again, you allow our civilization to communicate with you in this way, it affords us an opportunity to see through each and every one of you that many more ways that the Infinite has of expressing itself within creation. And so we thank you for this gift of expansion.

We would like to begin this transmission with the following idea: we have for quite some time said that it is important, for each and every one of you now, in this day and age upon your planet – this transformational time, to make sure that the things that you are choosing with your free will are those things and only those things that are aligned with what you believe to be your truth, your joy, your excitement, your love, your creativity, and so forth. This is never more important than now as things accelerate.

You must understand that we’re not only talking about the idea of making sure that you take action on those things that are aligned with your truth, specifically the opportunities that come to you, the opportunities that are available to you in terms of your jobs, your careers, your work, or any particular thing you might choose to do at any given moment. Not only those things, not only that you choose those things only representative of your joy, but also, very important which many of you tend to forget, (I’m giving you a break by saying you “tend” to forget it since you all know that you choose to forget these things) but the idea really is that the other thing to remember to remind yourself of constantly, in this day and age of choosing to be aligned with your Self your truth, is the idea of also, behavior, attitude, perspective.

So that in every endeavor, no matter what it is that may appear to be, I say APPEAR to be happening in your life, that you will give yourself the chance, give yourself the opportunity to truly understand that if you have chosen to function in an aligned fashion, then you will respond to every single situation in your life in a positive way that is representative of the alignment you say you believe you are choosing. And will no longer allow yourself to succumb to the temptation to go back into negative attitudes, negative behaviors, complaints, victimization, and all the other manifestations of not believing that you are really creating your reality; not believing that you have chosen the idea of positive truth and alignment within yourself. Do not fall back into that modality, for it does not serve you in being aligned with your harmony, with your core, with your true self, with your natural being.

So keep in mind, every day in every way that you possibly can every moment, that whatever it is that happens is only an opportunity, without meaning at first, that you can then supply with meaning. And whatever kind of meaning you supply will determine the effect you get, will determine the quality of the experience that issues from that point forward. So that you give yourself a moment of pause to look at every situation...not react in the same old way, not complain...not victimize yourself, not think that something is wrong with your life, but to take a moment to understand that nothing happens without a reason; even if only to give yourself the opportunity to test to see, to test yourself and see if you really believe that you have changed, if you really believe you are different, by showing that you are different in your attitude and behavior towards the things that happen in your life. Knowing that if you give them a positive meaning for yourself, regardless of whether or not you perceive objectively that someone may or may not be co-creating this without a positive intention. It doesn’t matter, if you give a positive reason for yourself that you are interacting with this, that you are observing this, that you are aware that this situation occurs, that it is there for you for a positive reason...then you, you, you, you, you will get the positive result, no matter what anyone else’s intention is, no matter what anyone else gets out of it. The meaning you put into it is the effect you will get out of it.

So, watch your behavior, watch your attitudes, watch your body language, and watch what you say you believe to be true, and stick to that. I urge you strongly to do so, and this ties strongly into, also, the ideas of clarity, communication, discernment, and definition. Communication, in this day and age now, within yourself and outside yourself...what it is you think, how it is you view information that comes to you is of paramount importance to allow yourself to understand that no longer can you function with the idea of information that does not seem to be in balance with yourself...with your truth. No longer can you rely upon the idea of the validity of what you would call rumor and hearsay, but allow yourself the opportunity to research, to discover, to investigate, to explore, to know from whence information comes, to know whether or not it really serves you, or to know whether it is simply part and parcel of other individuals’ agendas, that may have nothing to do with the alignment of your own truth. Take the timeout.

Always allow yourself to access the information in its purest state, for again, we remind you, there are no secrets in this day and age and all you have to do is be bold enough to allow yourself to inquire, to research, to discover, to explore, to find out from whence information comes. And access your own intuition, your own knowing Self, to allow the truth within you to show you what needs to resonate within your reality...and what does not, what you really NEED to take to heart what you don’t, what you really NEED to absorb as vital information, and what data, in that sense, is extraneous for your life.

I would remind you, thus, in this way, perhaps, that which you think or feel is so...is not so, until you know that your information derives, of course, strictly from a single source.

Allow yourself to refine...allow yourself to narrow down, and now allow yourself also to let go of that which does not belong, anything extraneous in your reality, anything not of the vibration of your dreams, of your visions your truth. It is so important now on your planet that you begin to function this way, if you even wish to say it, habitually. That your first habit, if you’re going to have any habit at all, will always be toward the positive understanding, rather than the negative. If you’re going to have a habit, we suggest you choose that modality. It will make all the difference in your world.

We are not talking about the idea of ignoring or denying when something may be created by others or within yourself from negative ideas, we are not talking about glossing over, but we are talking about knowing, seeing, discerning what is the mechanism foundationally underlying any particular choice or act; and being in tune with your own definitions of truth to know how you relate to that idea, to that situation, to that circumstance. And taking from that circumstance only those ideas and understandings that truly serve you in a positive, creative and constructive way, and giving only those positive ideas to that circumstance for your own reality path. So that you are divesting yourself of any, as you say, luggage that does not belong to you, that you do not need to haul around...that weighs you down.

This is now the age of streamlining, the age of only choosing those attitudes, behaviors, informational sources and opportunities, that really are defined by your inner truth, who you know yourself to be, who you trust yourself to be, who you intuit yourself to be. It is all about believing in yourself, believing that you are created in the image of Creation, that you are an Infinite Creatoryour reality as you see fit. That you have been given this from Creation through the unconditional love of Creation, to have the capability of doing so and to SEE the results, that are the results; the reflections of what you deem to be most true, what you deem to hold most high.

It is in your hands, it is in your hearts, it is in your minds, it is in your very attitudes, thoughts, words and deeds.

Refine and streamline yourselves to be the reality you prefer to be, to be the person you prefer to be, so you can have the reality that is reflective of that person. This is the idea sent from that aspect of our reality and of also the Infinite that can euphemistically be called, "The Preparer of the Way." This is the idea, the attitude, the approach of "The Preparer of the Way." "The Preparer of the Way," simply being that energy, that perspective within you, within your souls, within your spirits, within your hearts, within your minds, within your bodies, that knows who it is and gives him or herself NO OTHER CHOICE to choose from but the things that are in alignment with whom you know yourself to be. No other choice, no other choice, no other choice.

We thank you for allowing us to remind you, to reflect to you these notions, these ideas in this way and at this time and we remind you once again, also hand in hand with this...that this is not simply, what you would call a pleasant sounding philosophy. This is physics! This is how your reality works. What you put out is what you get back, everything is vibration of energy, and the frequency you give off is the reality you experience, plain and simple, that’s the law. Try to break it can’t. What you put out is what you get back. So I would urge you, not tell you, because I cannot do that, I cannot force you...I can only urge you to believe that when you are only exhibiting the frequencies of your own true self, I guarantee you one hundred percent will only get a reality reflective of that certainty and conviction.

Thus once again, we thank you for the opportunity to remind you of what you already know within your hearts. And in return for the gift that you are now giving our civilization in allowing us to communicate through this window in this way, I ask in what way may I and my world be of service to you?
Audience: Bashar! Bashar! Bashar!
B: You and then you...
The Present

Q: This brings me to a question I’ve been wondering about for a long time. If everything is happening right now, then why can’t the future be predicted?

B: It is, but not in the terms you call prediction. Recall the idea of the propeller and the strobe lights. The idea, as we have said, is not so much that you are predicting a future; it is more that you are sensing the energy at the present that is most likely to occur because it has the greatest degree of energy behind it. The strobe light is on that particular setting at the time the sensing, or prediction, is made. The prediction itself might change the setting of the strobe light.

Understand what your physicists now understand: you cannot make a conscious decision that doesn’t affect the reality you are deciding about. Every thought changes the reality you are thinking of. Therefore, so-called predictions are only sensings of the energy most likely to manifest at the time the prediction is made. The prediction itself can change the energy. However, if what has been sensed has a great deal of energy momentum behind it, it will be unlikely to change.

But it is not the future you have predicted; it is the present, and it doesn’t change to the point where it manifests.... Keep it simple. The past, the present and the future are all now. Understand it this way: remember the radio, where you have the idea of being able to turn to different programs. Just because only one program at a time is coming through your speaker, that doesn’t mean all the other programs aren’t there. And you can make a prediction that if you tune the dial, you will get another program. That is making a prediction. But it is only because you are aware of the fact that the program already exists that you can do so. It is the same thing.

Q: Is it that everything is happening now, and there’s only the present, the past and the future created out of the present. And all of the infinite number of possible futures exist right now?

B: Yes.

Q: So the question is not whether they are there, because they are. The question is which one you will wind up choosing.

B: Perfect. Thank you.

Q: So why talk about the future at all, since there is no future?

B: Yes. It is all-present.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you!
The Primer

Q: Last week you told me to think about, or imagine a crystal dome.
B: Yes.
Q: And when I was...
B: And (imagine) who was within it.
Q: Right. Um, when I did that this week I went to your planet, Essassani, and I was in a crystal dome.
B: Yes, and was there anyone with you?
Q: Yes, there was this entity, this man.
B: Yes.
Q: I still don’t know his name.
B: We do not have names.
Q: Oh, well...
B: Bashar is not my name. It is a convenience for you and it is more of a title than a name.
Q: Well, in any event, the dome was like this...it was like a liquid crystal. It almost feels as if the membrane itself was also a liquid.
B: In a sense, yes, it is malleable, formable, transmutable.
Q: Then a strange thing happened when I was inside this crystal dome.
B: Not strange for the crystal.
Q: No. (laughing) Not strange for the crystal, but strange for me.
B: All right.
Q: When I was inside this crystal dome there was, like, an instantaneous shift over to a dome that was made of, like, raw crystal rock.
B: Continue.
Q: And I saw myself within that rock crystal dome, also wearing a crystal headpiece.
B: Yes.
Q: And it seems like I was preparing for some kind of dance performance, or something.
B: Oh, in a sense connection to more of All That Is, very good. You were in, what we would refer to as, the Primer. Which, in this way, is simply a place in which to connect to All That Is, and is left more in what you would call a natural state.
Q: Oh, so that was...that was something on your planet?
B: Yes.
Q: It was, oh...I was wondering, you know it’s like in that...what you call a Primer...
B: Yes.
Q: . . . there were, like, wooden seats, that reminded me very much of a church, they looked real uncomfortable. (Audience laughter)
B: You would think of the idea as a chapel but it is not, and those seats are not there. That is simply your projection because of the association you made.
Q: I figured that’s what it was.
B: It is a place for connecting to more of All That Is, and hence you would make the association that it is, in your terms, a church, but it is not really.
Q: Oh, and the crystal headpiece, was that just an interpretation of mine, or . . .
B: In a sense . . . it is something that is manifestable. It is an interpretation but it is also real as you imagine it to be. In other words, in those terms, the wooden chairs as you imagine them also become real, but they do not exist there without your imagination.
Q: Right.
B: The headpiece also does not exist without your imagination, but once you imagine it, it becomes real. That is the idea behind the Primer.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: Do you understand that there is an entire . . . now, we shall call it a planet, but it is not in the strictest sense in that way . . . there is an entire planet that functions in this way; a crystal world, in which all of your imagination is instantaneously materialized. Many beings partake of that experience.
Q: Well, the reason I asked a question about the crystal headpiece . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . I’ve seen crystal headpieces in some of my meditations before.
B: Yes, it is also a reference to the idea of, what you call, Atlantis.
Q: OK, and I’ve also collected large crystal pieces and there’s a sense that the crystal headpieces have very large crystals in them, so much so that for this planet it would be very heavy, I mean, like, too heavy to wear, but it’s as if . . .
B: To some degree, although again, that is, in your terms, an interpretation.
Q: OK.
B: An exaggeration, a sensing of the power.
Q: OK, this is what I sensed is . . . at least I visualized them large.
B: Yes.
Q: But it’s as if they didn’t have that kind of weight . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . on my head. OK, all right, thank you.
B: Oh, thank you.
The Process Is Life Itself
Q: I have a question about sleep. I don’t get...?

B: Do you feel tired?

Q: Yes I do, and I want to know . . .

B: All right. Are you forcing yourself to stay awake?

Q: Not really, no.

B: All right. Are there times within your schedule that you would rather sleep but feel that you cannot?

Q: Right. You’re getting it.

B: Do you think that with your creative imagination you may be able to rearrange your schedule so that you may be able to sleep when you want to?

Q: That’s . . . thank you.

B: Question.
Q: Yes. I feel an energy that I’ve not felt before. I’ve never experienced you before, and somehow I recognize that something is affecting my right side.

B: All right.
Q: I don’t know if that has anything to do with anything. And I don’t have a specific question.
B: All right.
Q: But I just wonder if, because you can see a lot, if there’s anything that . . .
B: Cannot see; we cannot see.
Q: I want to know without really knowing what I really want to know.

B: Very creative, roundabout way of (−?). Allow yourself to feel that you have created the energy within your universe to experience for the purpose of your own unfoldment. Which you will be more than aware of if you simply allow yourself to go along for the ride for now. All right?
Q: Yes. I think so.

B: Thank you. You will find a few surprises. Question.
Q: I have a question.
B: All right.

Q: Can you explain a little bit more about what you mean by hyper-consciousness?

B: To a degree you may understand that hyper-consciousness is that state of mass consciousness within full realization of its connection to every other mass consciousness within All That Is. You follow me?

Q: Yes I do.
B: Question.

Q: Would that have anything to do with (−?)?

B: Only in a sense.

Q: I have another question as well. Can you give me some insight as to the significance of the hawk as a symbol?

B: Now, if that symbol has significance to you, you tell me – since that is a very personal creation for yourself; although there are mass conscious versions of that symbol, yes. But ‘tis within your universe, and obviously personal to you. You are empowered, you tell me: what does it make you feel like? How have you created that symbol to represent that portion of your own consciousness to yourself?

Q: Well I guess its just showing up to me every time I sit down at the typewriter and write.
B: Why?
Q: Well, that’s a good question.
Q: Oh, thank you. Do you have a good answer?
Q: No.
B: Oh, really! I don’t believe you.
Q: I’m not sure if I have something to say, or if somebody else has something they’re…

B: Uh-uh-uh! You have something to say. Realize I am not forcing you. It is right there. You are aching to share yourself.

Q: Okay.
B: Be willing to know that every idea that you are is quite valid, quite beautiful, quite creative, quite instructive and quite a learning experience for many other individuals and for yourself as well, if you allow it to be so.
Please always feel free to share of yourself. You will be reinforcing in that way the overall conviction that you have of your own reality, and exactly how your reality merges and blends and integrates within the overall mass conscious reality of the transformation taking place at this time. Be creative; be bold.

Q: Thank you very much.
B: Oh, thank you. Go ahead.

Q: Why do I need someone to say do it?

B: You told yourself. Again, realize that since you have recognized your creative tool of another consciousness telling you what you already knew, then you can manifest that idea for yourself and be equal to that idea from now on – by yourself. And that will allow you more than enough opportunity to share your truly complete self with other individuals. Not that you will need to, but that you will desire to.

Q: That’s great.
B: Question.

Q: I understand what you’re saying about all that exists is in the now. However, from the human experience perhaps let’s say that I was put under…

B: All right.
Q: … drugs and hypnosis, and told that I was a different person than who I was – perhaps in modern American experience, Korean brainwashing.

B: All right.
Q: Now, if I were still under the influence of Korean brainwashing, would it not be necessary for me to look into the past some what – from a human...

B: Now, now, all right. You are giving me a “what if.” Allow me to ask you: what if you had never created this experience in the first place?

Q: Well, but I already did...

B: All right, thank you. Why did you create this experience for yourself?

Q: Why would I have? Well I was perhaps a soldier, and got captured and they wanted to turn me into...

B: No-no-no. Not what were the circumstances of the creation – why?

Q: I don’t know.

B: Are you sure?

Q: Well perhaps I was playing soldier and I got...

B: All right, very good. You were playing soldier. Very good. Now, what aspect of yourself do you feel is fulfilled by the idea of having played soldier?

Q: Well... I’m making this hypothetical situation...

B: Oh-oh! We said it was real, did we not?

Q: Okay. I’ll play it. Okay.

B: All right. Realize that if I say, “What if?” – you say it is real. If I say it is real, you are saying, “What if?” It is up to you. If you wish, you may simply understand the reason for the creation of this reality, and therefore save yourself the time and effort of going through the entire brainwashing experience. Also again simply understand that every reality, every situation, will be in and of itself its own idea – created for its very specific purposes according to the idea of the unfoldment of the self.
Now, if you choose to create a situation in which you (–?) or change your situation by reviewing your past self, then fine. That is one creation. But understand that that creation will lead you to other creations where you do not need to do that. So for yourself, then, there may have been purpose in that reality, and perhaps for many other individuals as well – but that is your reality. Allow yourself simply to unfold your reality as you have allowed it to unfold, and experience what you experience. And if you do not like it, make another experience.

Q: I’d like to be able to do that in the human experience at all times.

B: You are.

Q: Okay.

B: Again you are always in control, even when you create for yourself a situation in which it seems you are out of control. And since you know you have created that situation in which it seems you are out of control, you can simply know that you have created it. And therefore you are totally in control of it, and you can get on with your life. You follow me?

Q: I follow you. I don’t think I could apply it immediately, but I’m going to think about it a little bit…

B: No, you will not apply it if you think about it. That is (–?). It will be up to you when you wish to apply it. Realize that the only process that you need is simply life itself. Live. Experience. Do! Feel! Act! Be! Then you will change and continue to do so – will be up to you. Will not matter one-way or the other. You are always indestructible. You are always All That Is, you always will be. Will not make any difference whatever “what if” you wish to play. Ultimately you will always still be right there and right now. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
The Purpose Of The Path

Q: When we read some of the philosophies of some of the Masters, to use that term, and how they experience these realms of higher consciousness, how is it they are experiencing something other than what we can experience?
B: Oh, you can experience it.
Q: How?
B: By already knowing yourself to be that complete blended consciousness.
Q: How do we know that we are that?
B: By knowing.
Q: By knowing.
B: Yes.
Q: There seems to be – I guess in our own belief system – a feeling of a big gap between that which we are, and that knowing.
B: All right. But that has also served a purpose for you.
Q: And that purpose is...?
B: Go ahead.
Q: I’m not sure.
B: Oh, yes you are.
Q: That we need to grow?
B: That you need to create the idea of growth, in that way, yes, by forming the idea of separation and then re-linking. Go ahead.
Q: I’m not sure...
B: All right. What else?
Q: (Laughing) Ah... I’m not sure.
B: Yes you are. Be bold!
Q: Be bold?
B: Yes.
Q: I’m just saying that I was trying to understand the point at where we are and where they, the Masters, are.
B: Same point.
Q: Same point. It’s just a matter of accepting that we are there?
B: Yes. Then you will have the experience of being there – when it fits in with the purpose you have chosen for this physical life. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Do understand that one of the great “secrets” that the Master knows about the student, is that the Master and the student are the same. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Now you have an expression, which reflects this idea. It has been within your literature for some time. It is three phrases: First there is a mountain; then there is no mountain; then there is.
Now understand in that way, that what is meant is that first – when you are unassuming, when you are connected – when you look, you see the mountain for what it is. Then, you begin your quest. You begin your separation of self – your analyzation. You pick that mountain apart until it is no longer a mountain but a series of equations — a search, a path, a journey, a separation, a longing, a striving.
Then, when you allow yourself to reach enlightenment, you realize that from when you started out viewing the mountain as a mountain, and all of the ideas that the simple mountain represents, you arrive back at that point again. And there is no separation, in that way – it is simply the recognition of existence as it is, and that you already had all the answers.
But the purpose of the path in this physical reality is one more way for you to know that you are All That Is. All of you, and all the paths in your reality, and all the situations in your reality, are simply all the different ways that All That Is has of looking at itself – because it can. And there is no other reason that it needs to – simply because it can. All That Is does not need a purpose to continue to be All That Is, since All That Is always has been.
Q: It’s like a game we’re playing with ourselves.
B: Yes, but, very creative, and within your ability, because you can.
Q: Yes. Thank you.
B: Thank you! Sharing

The Reflectors
Q: I’m intrigued about a race of people. I don’t know if they lived here or if they were visiting this planet at one time – I know they’re not Lemurian. I’m wondering who they are, and what their connection is to the Pleaidians?
B: Can you give a description?
Q: They are almost a kind of deep aqua. I know that they are not presently living on this planet. They visited this planet for a while, approximately 30,000 odd years ago.
B: (Pause) This is only some of the aspects of their energy, projecting into your universe. But as their energy projects into your universe, they went through the doorway of Pleaidian, Sirius and Arcturan energy to present themselves, to poke themselves into your reality, to extend themselves into your universe, in a way that you could perceive them, to some degree.
In a sense they represent – now this is our perception of it, at this moment – they represent a primal template configuration of Pleiadian, Sirius and Arcturan energy, as a seed. You are recognizing roots that are common to many of the races, many of the civilizations within the Association of Worlds, roots that extend to other dimensions of reality, from other dimensions of reality.
You are simply clear, in terms of tracing them, back through the doorway at the, I shall say, “edge,” of this particular universe. You are all, if you wish, in the same boat. And in a sense, you are all an extension of the same template consciousness, to some degree, with variations here and there.
To some degree, they represent the remnants of an agreement. And very, very rudely, very roughly, as a translation, you may refer to them as, the Reflectors: The ones who were to reflect to your civilization, in that era, the cycle that was about to come. So they represent, to some degree, the beginning and then the rejoining; the separation and then the integration.
They are a projection, were a projection, in your terms: a harbinger. And they are also, to some degree Watchers, Observers. And watch over many of the civilizations that you on Earth have considered so very far above you.
Q: Is that why I feel I have had so few incarnations here?
B: Yes, because you are consolidated in a very primal understanding that does not carry very much separation with it, you have a direct line of sight. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: In other words, incarnations for you now, multiple incarnations, represent what you would call a divergence from a particular line of sight. There will be more in your dream communications – not from us.
Q: I don’t remember my dreams.
B: You will. In whatever way you need to. At first, some of it may simply be remembered in the actions you perform, but there will be pictures, there will be visualizations.
Q: Mostly I get those when I am awake.
B: You are dreaming right now.
Q: Ah! Okay (Laughing)
B: But there will be flashes. And they will begin to blend into both levels of reality.
Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you.
The Role of Spirit Guides

Q: Yes, I have a question.
B: All right.

Q: You talked about spirit guides... that being another aspect of our consciousness.
B: Can be.

Q: Can be, okay. I feel that I work with a spirit guide. If I were to follow what you are saying then I’d have to look at that entity, which I’ve considered, to myself, as another aspect of myself.
B: All right. Now, first of all, realize that on one level that will always be the case, no matter what.

Q: What will be the case?
B: You and I are connected, even though we are separate consciousnesses. On one level of understanding, the self and all that is in creation, we are one consciousness, and so that viewpoint will never be wrong. But realize that spirit guides will be also in existence in your view as separate consciousness. You are working with separate ones, yes, but realize you also are working with your own. And as such, any spirit guide will always only direct you towards yourself. That is their job: to simply allow you to understand that you have all the answers. They are not going to give the answers to you. They are going to allow you to realize that you have them all right here and right now. That is also one of our jobs.

Q: So what you’re saying is: even though I’m getting information that my conscious mind has no awareness of knowing, they are tapping into that ability within me to know all. Is that what you’re saying?
B: In a sense; they are showing you that you have the ability to identify and be equal to those ideas and, as such, you can get them yourself.

Q: I have to think about that for a while.
B: Ah! One moment please. The longer you think about it... you know what I’m going to say.
Q: Mhmm, yes.

B: Then you will not be that idea. Realize once again that there is... no offense – a terminology for your planet by a civilization – they consider you to be shell people. You have created shells of artificial emotionality 'round and about yourselves.

In other words, when you create fear, when you have fear, instead of allowing yourselves simply to recognize that that fear is a messenger bringing you a portion of yourself that you can integrate as a gift, you create frustration and guilt in having the fear, and so create an artificial emotion with which to deal with the fear. But in dealing with the artificial emotion, you never really deal with the fear.

Then you create analyzation to analyze your guilt, so that you are removed twice from ever having to understand that your fear can be your friend. And you create shell upon shell 'round and about yourself, and never actually live the emotionality. Therefore, you may think about it as long as you wish, but you may also be that idea if you wish.

Q: Thank you.
B: No! Thank you. Question.

Q: These fears, these mis-emotions, these negative things – and like the suppressions also – you talked earlier about absorbing them. That’s just done through affinity and accepting, is that correct?

B: Very good. Once again, when you understand that your emotions are simply messengers bringing you the gift of another portion of yourself that you may have heretofore been unwilling to view, then you can accept that gift as another portion of yourself, integrate it within you, and let that emotion run off and bring you another portion. Each time it comes back, you will not fear it so much; it will become your friend.

Q: I understand.

B: Let them do their jobs, in other words.
Q: Uh huh.

B: Do not keep them hanging around, wondering when you are going to take the gift from their hands. Otherwise, they will grow lazy and fat, and that is all you will begin to notice, is this big fat lazy fear sitting right there.
Q: That’s great, I love it.
B: Thank you.

Q: (- -?) granting a lot of beingness; I appreciate that. That’s great.

B: Thank you. Realize, once again, that when you view any of these ideas of yourself – your imagination being real – when you create any idea, you may create an imaginary idea in which you see that situation being absorbed. And that creation in your imagination will be valid for you in the same way that you will relate to a particular crystal, that you will relate to a particular memory, and so on and so forth. You may simply understand your imagination is a tool unbounded, and is real and is reality – infinite.

Q: Thank you.
B: Question.

Q: Yes. Is there any danger for channeling to occur? I mean, any danger for a person that wants to be a channel himself?

B: Once again, unless that individual chooses to live out that fear, they will find that, in general, there will be no danger. I will say, first of all, that if an individual experiences malefic effects or danger within the idea of channeling, ‘tis simply that they are allowing themselves to channel another portion of their consciousness which they have not been willing to look at. You will find that when there is an agreement with what you consider to be outward consciousness, then always that agreement will never be initiated until the individual has been willing to integrate and absorb all portions of themselves to a certain degree. And so there will be no harm to that individual, as they will already have passed through that idea. Do you follow me?

Q: Mhmm.
B: Thank you.

The Role of Spirit Guides
The Second Coming

Q: Are you and your people familiar with Christianity?
B: To some degree.
Q: Well, I believe in Jesus Christ as our savior...
B: When you say you believe in Jesus Christ, what does that mean?
Q: That means that I believe in a God who created the universe, including all of us, and that because we are all sinners, Jesus...
B: One moment! You believe you are a sinner?
Q: Yes.
B: What is a sinner? Will you define this for me? I understand the concept of sin, but have not heard the concept from you. Would you, therefore, define the concept of "sinner" for me in your own way – as it relates to how you see yourself?
Q: A sin for me is anything I would do or think that goes against something God would want.
B: What does God want?
Q: God wants – I guess, very simply, in order to answer it within the time limit allowed here – God wants me to show unconditional love in all situations. And any time I don’t do that...
B: One moment! Did you say unconditional love? Do you understand what that means?
Q: I understand it to mean that as far as people – whom I’m supposed to unconditionally love, for example, the people in here – no matter who they are or what they have done, as far as I’m concerned I love them because God loves them. If God loves everybody in here, I have no right to overrule that.
B: All right. Now, you know you can create the reality of overruling it, but we do understand what you mean when you say you have no right. You can do it, but that does not mean it is something you’d want to do, nor are we suggesting this is something that would create harmony on your world. No. But simply take yourself literally. People have very blatantly judged others, have they not? And it is not a matter of whether or not they have the right to do it.
Q: Is it wrong?
B: There is no right and wrong. It is a matter of whether you choose to create a positively manifesting reality or a negatively manifesting reality.
Q: Which would you suggest?
B: I would suggest the positive one. Because choosing the positively manifesting reality will be integrating yourself with All That Is, whereas knowing yourself as separate from All That Is creates an idea of isolation that does not allow you to feel your connection to All That Is. This leads to the need to dominate. For when you separate yourself from All That Is, controlling and dominating others is perhaps the only way you will feel you can collect what you see around you, to you. Thus, you create many ideas out of separation and negative manifestation that are, in your terms, unpleasant: war, disease and many other ideas you say you do not like. This is why we would always suggest the positively manifesting reality.

However, recognize that we perceive the idea of judgment, in and of itself, to be of the negative manifestation. Thus, we do not say anything is right or wrong, because that to us is to judge All That Is. To us, even the idea of judgment is the choosing of the negative. To know what you prefer does not mean that you have to judge or invalidate anyone else – in terms of the way that individual chooses to explore his own Godhood, to relate to himself as his portion of All That Is. If he has chosen separation, negative reality, limitation, judgment – then it will be less likely he will perceive his connection to All That Is.

On the other hand, one who is integrated has already chosen the idea of unconditional love, and will recognize that there is no need to judge those who have not chosen it. For unconditional love is the granting of validity to everything within Creation – for its own sake. Because that portion of creation has seen fit to learn about itself in the way it has chosen, then you, in choosing unconditional love, generate the faith and the trust to know that in an ultimate sense he is always going to be all right.

Ultimately, every idea is still contained within the overall idea of All That Is, and cannot become lost. There is nowhere to lose anything to until you create that type of separation. There is nowhere to lose anything to until you, in choosing negativity and limitation and separation from yourself as All That Is, choose to create a dimension in which you can remove yourself from the rest of everything. Any idea you call a lost soul is a contradiction in terms. A soul always knows where it is.

Q: What do you mean by a lost soul?
B: The idea we are ascribing to many individuals expressing the specific ritualized expressions through which they channel the idea of their love. Many times, even though they express it to be unconditional, it still comes with conditions. We are not saying this is your case. We are saying that we are relating to the terminology you are using, by being so specific about what you have described as the way you believe and what you have called being a sinner – which by your ultimate definition means someone who is outside of – has placed himself outside of – his recognition of himself as God.

Q: My recognition of myself as God?
B: Yes.

Q: I’m God?
B: Of course, understand this is what we are talking about, many of your beliefs or religions on your planet speak of the idea of God – or what we call All That Is – as being omnipotent, everywhere, all-knowing, omniscient and all-seeing, everywhere. If God, by your definition, is everything, how can you be outside of it? You must also be God; God must also be you. God knows you are God. Why do you not know you are God?

Q: Well, say I create a model... of an airplane. I created it and put it together, but it’s not me.
B: Yes, it is. Understand that what you experience as your physical reality is all a symbol. If you wish to use the term illusion, all right. That may clarify it for you.

Q: Well, doesn’t that illusion, or symbol – it needs a representation, does it not?
B: It is a representation of an idea.

(Other): If you are the idea of making the plane, then you are the plane, too. Whatever idea you have, you are that idea.

B: Yes. You understand that everything in your universe is a matter, physically, of vibration. You cannot perceive anything that you are not. The vibration you are creates what you perceive the physical reality to be. Thus, if you have created this idea of a model airplane in front of you, then you are extending a portion of the idea of yourself and reflecting it back to yourself as the ability to do that outside yourself, seemingly. But everything you perceive, every individual in the room is your creation. You have to create your version of them in order to perceive them. You follow me?

Q: Kind of. If I am dedicating my life to following Jesus Christ . . .
B: Why would you want to do that? He did not want you to do that.

Q: He did not want me to do that?
B: No. He does not want you to follow him; he wants you to be like him.

Q: Well, that’s kind of what I mean.

B: Then say what you mean. Understand that your terminology is what we were discussing; that upon your planet many times the terminology you choose reflects how you go about relating to the ideas you think you believe in. And in this case you are saying that by following someone, you are separating yourself from, and making yourself less than, rather than being equal to – which is what he wanted you to know. That all of you are Christ consciousness like he is. The idea of following "the way" was not a matter of being subservient, but of being equal and reflective, being that energy that was being demonstrated. That is "the way."

(Other): Do you think that’s why maybe we are so limited? Because we, or Christianity put trust in Jesus Christ and not in ourselves.

B: The idea is that any time you take the power that you are, and remove it from yourselves, you place a limitation that actually denies your very existence – what you have been created to be! So yes, in that sense, the definitions are what is responsible for creating the limitations. To some degree, the idea of what has been described as many of the attributes and experiences are all valid; any tool is a valid tool if it gets you where you want to go.

The Second Coming

But the idea is that your society, as we perceive it – and again this is not meant derogatorily – has placed many labels, many definitions which, in and of themselves, are really the only thing responsible for limiting your ability to see that you are all the Christ. And that is what it is all about. If you want to find the idea of the embodiment of Christ consciousness, go home and look in a mirror. And then start acting as if you are that embodiment, and you will be fulfilling the idea that the Christ consciousness sought to impart to all of you. What you have referred to, in your society, as the "second coming" is not the coming of an individual; it is the recognition within each individual on your planet of the Christ that each and every one of you is... and living like it. That is your second coming!

Know that the manifestation in physical terms of, what you call, the Christ actually happened far more often than once. And the idea is that in every endeavor, in every projection of the Christ as a physical expression, what was being shared with your population was that you are all part of the Christ. The idea was not that only Christ can create the reality you desire, but that your power to create that reality is a part of what God is.

The idea is this, at the time the information was delivered in your society, the concepts that were understood by your civilization then could only translate the idea in terms of being a ruler and being ruled. And so you created the idea that the Christ was a savior who would do everything for you – rather than understanding that Christ is only a reflection, a reflection to each and every one of you that you are aspects of the Christ, and have an absolute right to create the elevation and ascension of your own energy as a representation of that energy.

Q: Well, when Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no one comes to the Father but through me," what did he mean by that?

B: He was saying, to paraphrase, as you understand your language now, "What you perceive in me is the vibration of integration, wherein I know myself to be on the same level, equal to God, All That Is. The only way you will know yourself to be that idea is to be like me, to be of the equal vibration of recognizing yourself as All That Is." That is why he said, "I am the way." He did not mean, "I know the only thing that will get you there." He simply meant that you, in allowing yourself to know that everything you do is valid in the overall sense, are granting support and service and validity to the ultimate idea of the Creation itself, and recognizing your own equality to Godhood. That is being the way.

Q: You said something – and people kind of laughed when you said, "He didn’t say, I know the only way." But he did say: "I am the way, the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father but through me."

B: Understand this as well, what you are calling your biblical literature contains less than 10% of what that individual ever said in his life; and what was even written down is very much misinterpreted, according to the understanding of when it was written. Recognize that your Bible was not written to record history; it was written to convert.

Q: Is the Bible not true?

B: It is true for those individuals who wrote it, in the way they understood it. But recognize that there is still much misinterpretation of what was actually said.

Q: How do you know that?

B: We are sensing into the mass consciousness, your higher levels of consciousness. Now, we cannot expect you to take us at our word. It is up to you to believe what you want, as we have said. But we will discuss with you what we perceive to exist within your own higher consciousness, which knows itself to be equal to the idea of the Christ consciousness. We can talk to it, and so can you. We are simply here to let you know that you can talk to your own higher consciousness; and once you allow yourself to do so, you will find that it will tell you exactly what I am telling you now.

Q: Well, that’s what I believe, okay?
B: Absolutely! It gets you where you want to go, and that is what matters. We support you unconditionally on your chosen path. And as we often have said, every path is valid; no one belief is any more valid than any other belief. They are all equal.

(Other): All ideas are valid, including the idea that no other idea is valid.
B: Yes, very good.

The Only Son

Q: Was Jesus Christ the only son of God?
B: The individual you call Jesus of Nazareth is but one facet of the overall Christ consciousness, or world spirit. Each and every world, each and every civilization, has its own version of that Christ consciousness. In our ancient remnant language – which we no longer use, as we are telepathic in our society – the combined consciousness of our entire world was called Shakana. Our Shakana, your Christ consciousness, and the combined consciousnesses of all other worlds together form the Infinite Creation.

Our relationship with your Christ consciousness is very direct and interactive, since we are interacting with the combination of all the consciousnesses upon your planet in order to be of assistance to you. Therefore, we experience a direct interactive and unconditionally loving relationship with the vibration you call the Christ consciousness, because it is all of you. Since we come from outside of your sphere, in a sense, in order to be of service to you, we must interact through that sphere. Thus, we will take upon ourselves the patterns of the unconditional love it expresses in order to translate into your dimension of experience the symbols to which you can relate. So our experience, our relationship with the Christ consciousness in many ways is very direct – sometimes very much more so than many of you allow yourselves to be.

You may also note that one of the physical manifestations of the direct Christ consciousness that many of you have not recognized is the being you call Mary, the mother of Jesus, who is the female polarity of the Christ. There is always male and female in the collective Christ consciousness. From our perspective, what this basically means – in relating it to what you now call your New Age, or your transformational age – is that, as we have said, the so-called, “second coming” is no longer the manifestation of the Christ consciousness in a single embodiment. It is the awakening of the Christ consciousness within all of you, so that you may literally create heaven on Earth – all of you doing so as children of God.

Recognize that the idea, as it has been translated into your language, is usually interpreted as Christ being the Son of God, whereas Jesus Christ actually referred to himself as the son of man.
Q: He called himself the son of man?
B: Look in your own Bible. He calls himself the son of man. Do understand that the writings of what was verbalized by Jesus of Nazareth were not even begun to be committed to paper until approximately 57 years after the death of the physical Jesus.
Q: Well, you talked about the Bible being misinterpreted through the years.
B: Yes, every single written idea contains some misinterpretation where it regards placing ritual around the idea of what happened.
Q: God couldn’t have watched over it?
B: Why should he?
Q: Because it was His work. He wanted it...
B: No, no, no. Understand, it was a reflection, an offering, a gift. Unconditional love. God is unconditional love, and will not force you to interpret something in any way, shape or form. It is up to you; that is why you are here.
Q: So the word of God, the Bible, according to you is not the word of God?
B: Yes, all of it is. As all the people who wrote it were also God. Understand this: it is all relative. The word of God is all relative to itself. God contains every paradox, every paradigm, every dichotomy, every blending. God is all that is; there is nothing outside. You are All That Is; your space in which you live, your time – which you spend so much of wondering who and what you are – all of those things are creations from your idea of who you think you are. You are one idea of God. Every being, all beings in creation are all the different ways God has of looking at Itself. That is what it means to be All That Is. Every dimension, every being, every thing, every thought: it is all God. And many of those things come into creation simply for no other reason than the fact that they can.
Many times, when you ascribe more importance to this passage or piece of literature than some other passage or literature, seeking for some ultimate idea of truth, you are at that moment diversifying, focusing and fixating a portion of All That Is, and not looking at the whole – which always sees Itself as whole. The idea of knowing yourself to be God is simply allowing yourself the broadest possible definition of that concept, and knowing that for God, that is real. God knows itself to be its own being, but also knows itself to be the compilation of every being within it. And knows every being within it to contain the totality of the whole. For as you say, nothing is impossible to All That Is; if you can conceive of it, it is real to All That Is. On some level, some dimension, some aspect of consciousness, it exists.
Now, when you do this separating out and searching through and analyzing all of the different passages in literature, many times you go about doing this because you are looking for this ultimate purpose. Recognize this: existence is; All That Is is! It always was, is now, and always will be. Existence does not have its existence within time; time exists within All That I, therefore, it is eternal. Therefore, understand that the concept – and any concept that is created within All That Is – is in a sense subordinate to it. Ultimate truth, as a concept, and purpose, as a concept, are things that exist within existence. And existence existed before there was the concept of purpose. That which existed before the concept of purpose does not need a purpose to keep on existing. Thus. All That Is will express and manifest in all the ways it can – for no other reason, for no other purpose other than It can, because It is the Creator. And the Creator creates, again, simply because It can.

Changing Symbols

Your symbols are valid for you. You have changed your mind before, and you will change your mind again about what symbols are relevant in the understanding of whom and what you are. It does not matter in the overall sense what you choose to believe. If you know that you are believing what you are believing out of unconditional love for All That Is, and also, equally important, unconditional love for yourself, then there is no need to worry about what you believe. There is no need to worry about what anyone believes, since you know that whatever you believe is going to create the type of reality you will be experiencing. And experience that, you will.

Q: The only thing I’d like to say is if that’s what you believe, what you’re missing is a relationship with the God who made you.

B: Why? Understand again, you yourself are missing the idea that I perceive both ideas. I contain the totality of the dichotomy of the polarity of the seeming opposites. I know myself to be All That Is; and I also know All That Is relates to me as a higher consciousness. I can create the idea of knowing I have a relationship with All That Is; at the same time I can also see myself as the one creating that relationship, and therefore being All That Is. To me, this is not something, which is mutually exclusive.

I can create whatever sense of relationship I wish; and I know that whatever sense of relationship I create is still going to be as real as any other sense of relationship I choose to create. And for me, all of it is valid, and all of it is being created out of joy and ecstasy and unconditional love, the expression of the same unconditional love that the Creator created us to be. That is how I perceive the relationship. I am always in the relationship of All That Is, within joy, love and ecstasy. For us in our civilization the feeling of this ecstasy is the expression and the experience of what you are defining as the sense of that relationship.

Q: Why is that not happening here?

B: Because for the past 25,000 years, approximately, you have chosen as a group consciousness to explore the idea of separating yourselves from your memory of being All That Is. And now you are turning over a new idea. You are through with the separation, and that is why you are creating this idea you call, a new age of understanding, a new age of awareness – in light and love.

Q: Well, who’s doing that?

B: You all are.

Q: These few people here?

B: No, the entire planet. Or you would not be on it. Because that is the idea of this planet that you are on, to create the transformation, to begin to recognize yourselves as All That Is and create a positive
Now that you know that you are the Creator, peace, harmony, light and love can result. Now you are through with the tool of separation. Within the time span of approximately the next 30 to 50 of your years, all of your civilization will also recognize this. For when you created separation, you created the experience of more time. That is why experiencing all the limitation and separation has taken you 25,000 years.

When you now choose to create the idea of integration, of knowing yourselves to be All That is, then this experience can be played out upon your planet in a mere two to three thousand years. And after that point you will not need to reincarnate upon this planet, for it will have served its purpose for you. You will move on to something else.

Q: What I want to know is: if all of the people here know that whatever they choose to do is okay, then why do they need to keep coming back to get questions answered

B: It is not necessarily that they need questions answered; it can also be an opportunity for sharing, for blending, for appreciating all the different ways All That Is has of expressing Itself through all the different individuals you are. Each one of you is a different path, a different way. So recognize that if there were only one way to do something, there would be only one person.

…Take a look around you.

Also understand that it is not the original person who comes back. Each being that returns “again and again” is a completely new being, a completely new idea of him or herself, and a completely new universe. So as it is not the same person, in that sense, no one comes back, even if he has been here 40,000 times.

Q: How does the Holy Spirit work in this world?

B: The idea is that our perception of your Holy Spirit is the collective electromagnetic mentality, the actual energy out of which all of your individual minds are created. Spirit meant in this sense is literally a physiological phenomenon, an electrical phenomenon, an electromagnetic phenomenon. It is the literal light of your world, of your consciousness.

And again, the way it works is as follows: it is an energy sea in which all of you as individual components are immersed. And being immersed in that sea, when you align with it electromagnetically by accelerating your vibration in ways we have discussed – excitement, service, positivity, and so forth – you then become of the spirit. What that basically means is you flow in harmony with all other beings; you telepathically link with all other beings, and know all thought. Because the idea is that telepathy is actually more precisely defined as telempathy – emotionally activated by love. And that is what the Holy Spirit, or World Spirit, is.

Catholic Church

Q: What is the origin of the Catholic Church?

B: Many of the rituals now embodied in Catholic ritual came from ancient Druidic practices, remnants of the priesthood hierarchy in the Atlantean civilization. These rituals were redefined to fit notions of the different councils and leaders, and so these misunderstood notions of hierarchy were handed down to the congregation. Mostly it is one of the offshoots, as are many other religions on your planet, of ancient Atlantean priesthoods. It went through a phase redefinition through Druidic practices, emerging in areas on your planet that would support the definitions of intermingling – of not only the ancient Druidic practices, but also some of the interminglings that took place a few thousand years ago with many Orion incarnations – on certain levels.

Especially where rules and regulations are concerned; especially where structure is concerned; especially where very deep and heavy energy is concerned – there was, to some degree, a reaction to some of the negativity spawned in the sinking and the destruction of Atlantis. The idea of placing a very strong hold on certain aspects of the will, so that through that belief it would be believed you would regain reconnection to the Infinite through suppression, through order, through domination.

Q: Well, it’s a pretty popular belief that Jesus Christ actually instituted that...

B: Oh, no, no, no. The individuals around that individual instituted it to some degree, but not that individual. That was never the intention of that individual. But you see, the point is that those disciples, or apostles, were also full of the knowledge of some of the ancient Druidic practices at that time. Their interpretation of the Christ consciousness was dispensed according to those ancient understandings, and interpreted through that flow line into the basic structure you now have. That was their understanding at the time of the arrival of the Christ consciousness through that particular manifestation.

It was not the intention of the Christ consciousness to establish that particular type of structure. It was the intention of the individuals surrounding that individual, because that was their understanding at the time, based on what they already had learned of some of these ancient practices. They were, to some degree in their own understanding, continuing the lineage. But there was much misinterpretation.

After Death

Q: What happens when we die, then?

B: Different things. You will, first of all, obviously no longer consider yourselves to be physical, as you now understand physicality. And when you remove yourselves from that physical state of limitation, then you will know you chose everything you experienced in that life, and thus, you can create any other type of reality on this planet, or any other planet – or not reincarnate at all. You can choose to know on that level, and see very obviously that you are, in fact, the Creator.

Now, what you will first encounter at physical death is the idea that you are a thought form in a world of thought forms, and thus, will usually experience whatever represents the strongest beliefs you had in life. You will experience the realization, the seeming physicalization of those beliefs, whether they be heaven or hell or anything in-between.

For instance, if someone had the idea that there is a hell and that it would be extremely painful – if he immediately finds himself in that self-created scenario, he is very unlikely to be able to sustain that degree of pain. For as soon as he knows the pain he is enduring is not something he can tolerate, it will lessen – because the mind in the non-physical reality instantly translates into the seeming experience he is having. The instant he becomes aware that as soon as he changes his thought the scenario around him changes, then he will get the idea pretty quickly that he does not have to hang around in that scenario. It becomes clear to him that whatever he believes at any given moment, even on that level and especially in a sense on that level – is what most quickly manifests and realizes into the experiential reality he is having. Not meaning to sound flippant, but "hell," the concept you usually hold it to mean, could only be populated for very long by masochists, by true masochists.

Further Reincarnation

Q: So I could go on to another plane and not be reincarnated?

B: You do not have to be. It is always a choice. Now, since you are here, I will assume you did choose to reincarnate at least one more time, into this lifetime you are in now.

Q: It’s not my first life?

B: No. There is, on the average, two to three thousand lives for every individual in the room, with regard to the particular Earth cycle you all have been involved in during the last 50,000 or so of your years.

Q: So why?

B: Why not? Because you chose to. Because you chose to explore the idea of limitation as it is being expressed on this planet. And to do so, you chose to manifest yourselves in many different lives; to explore all the different ideas of beingness you can explore in this society. Thus, you have been everything there is to be in your world at one time or another – sometimes more than one time. Everything! As this is now the transformational life, this life can be the last physical life you may choose in this cycle, since it is now over and turning into another cycle.

Q: I want to ask more about Jesus. I’ve been reading a lot on his last years, and I want to know about the period of time when the information was erased from the Bible. Did he go to India, and at what age?

B: There was the idea of travel to the area of India. We perceive that there was a connection at age 17 and also age 30, approximately, and also a connection in the area you call Egypt. In addition, there was the idea of many out-of-body experiences in order to travel to many different places other than those mentioned. Do recognize that what the being was allowing himself to know was his own Godhood, his own Christ consciousness. And he was simply reflecting to you that you can do it too.

Q: When you repeat exactly what he said, that reveals the whole thing: I am the way, the truth, and the life.”

B: Yes, it is self-evident. You see, that is why we are suggesting you do what he did, and not simply follow him. For if you follow, then you wind up saying, "He said this; he said that," rather than repeating what he said and feeling the vibration within yourselves for what it gives you.

Q: We are the ways, the truths, and the lives.

B: Yes!
The Self

Q: I want to go back to Guardians Angels or Higher Self for a second.
B: All right, have a good time. (Audience laughter)
Q: Why does the Higher Self send down the lower self to learn a lesson that the Higher Self already knows? What is my misperception here?
B: Oh, thank you. The Higher Self does not send down a lower self. The idea is that the Self creates an idea and the idea automatically determines that it will be split into components that can experience what it wants to experience. Only in a universe of limitation, of forgetfulness, can you experience many ideas you cannot experience in a universe in which you do not forget who you are. Thus, to experience certain ideas of limitation, you must create a portion of your consciousness to extend itself into the universe in which you can forget who you are.

Thus, the idea of a lower self is created instantaneously upon the desire to have a certain type of experience. It is not that the Higher Self sends a lower self, it is simply, by definition, according to the experience that is desired, that these ideas of separations are created. You follow me?

Q: So I’m now in the realm of limitation and I’ve cut myself off from the true knowingness because I’m limiting myself so that I can experience...
B: But you are still within true knowingness, for what you want to learn you are learning. And in this way, you have not cut yourself off for the conduit is always there. Now this is the transformational life, in your terms, you are at the ending of a multi-thousand year cycle in which you have been forgetting, and now you are remembering. So you are re-integrating and becoming aware that you even have such a thing as a Higher Self.

Q: Do we use human aberration to learn these lessons?
B: Yes.
Q: And so is it pointless to try and get rid of human aberration?
B: You cannot get rid of it. By accepting and learning the lesson you simply no longer need that tool, and then it will integrate and smooth out. It is all of the fighting against what you have chosen to learn that continues what you are calling aberration. The acceptance of it will be the integration of it, the learning of it and the smoothing out of it.

Q: What does acceptance actually mean though? Let’s say I have something that was socially unacceptable...
B: Socially?
Q: embarrassing to me.
B: Then in this way you are learning the idea of judgement and that if it is something in this way that you can still learn from, then it is a lesson just as valuable and equal to any other lesson that you could learn. And you can also learn and have the opportunity from that, in terms of knowing how to express yourself in terms that you prefer to. But do not judge any portion of yourself, for to judge it is to create it to remain.

Q: I understand the judgement, but what does one practically do...just go with the flow and just do whatever ones feels like doing?

B: Within your integrity, yes. Recognize that the idea of flowing within your integrity is simply recognizing that you are as powerful as you need to be to learn and create and do and be anything you want without having to hurt anyone else to do it. So there is no need for forcing; going with your flow does not mean the violation of others’ rights.

Q: But what if my mother wouldn’t like me climbing trees all day long because its socially unacceptable?

B: So what?

Q: And I feel like climbing trees?

B: Then climb them.

Q: But how does that not tread on her toes?

B: In this way, you simply recognize the opportunity to share with her the idea of what you are learning from it in that way, and offer her the opportunity to recognize that it is not interfering, in your terms, it is not forcing an idea upon someone. It is simply her choice to judge that the idea is something that she does not want to experience in that way. But obviously she has chosen to be with you, and if you are the type of being that wants to do that then, by definition, it is something she wants to be shown.

Q: Okay.

B: You follow me?

Q: Thanks.

B: You can work it out to an equality by granting each other self-empowerment and validity in each others points of view. Then you may simply find that you may not always want to climb a tree as often as you think you do if it is simply out of spite. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: When you come to equal terms you will climb your tree when it is exactly all right, from her point of view, for you to do so. And that will be the only time you feel like climbing the tree and vice versa. Whenever you choose to climb it will be the time that she feels it is all right for you to do so. You follow me?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: That is the synchronous harmony that your entire civilization can become. Thank you.

The Self
The Sound
B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great. Fine. Etc…
B: Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time with the reminder that we have entitled this week’s interaction, "The Sound." It will come this time in a way that is a little bit different – in the form of what you call a story. Are you all in the mood for a story?
All right. Now, a portion of this story will involve a very brief amount of what you call audience participation. I will let you know when the timing is appropriate for that. All right? Ah, thank you.
And so, before we begin, snuggle up, or snuggle down; allow yourselves to become very comfortable, and relax. And recognize that we will, of course, be communicating with you on many different levels throughout this interaction. But for now, simply enjoy the idea of the sound.

It begins with a being – no particular place, no particular time – perhaps, much like one of yourselves, perhaps not. Similar enough. And this being one day heard – heard a story, a story that said: "There is a sound that can be found. And when discovered, can alter the very existence, the very fabric of space and time."

Well, this excited the being... a lot. And so the being decided to set out in search of this special sound, this magical sound, whatever it is. The being did not know, but would search anyway. Because the being was sure that when the sound happened, the being would know, would recognize it.

So off the being went, thinking, perhaps, first to itself: "Well, let me see. Let me think. Let me feel. A sound, a sound, a magical sound, where do you suppose such a sound would come from?"

As the being was walking, he ran into another being, which happened to have a friend along as well. And they said: "Well, good day. Where are you off to?" "I’m in search of the sound, the sound, the magical sound, most profound. When discovered it will change the course of space and time, and alter all of the universe."

"Oh, my! There is such a sound?" They said. "I have heard it so." He said. "May we search with you, for that sounds most exciting."

"By all means. I would enjoy the company." So now there were three. You know how we love threes. And so the three set off in search of the sound, the mysterious, mystical, magical sound. And they discussed among themselves, as they went: "Where do you suppose such a sound would be?"

One of them said: "Well, you know, there are many sounds that animals make. Do you suppose it might be one of those sounds?" And so they went into their forests and their jungles, and listened to all the different sounds that the different animals might make.

And they spent a lovely day, peering into bushes and under rocks and in caves. Climbing tall trees and forging broad streams, lying in the grass, listening to the small sounds and the large sounds and the sweet sounds. And some that were a little bit scary, but that’s all right, for they contained much power.
And they thought: "Well, perhaps in one of those is the mystical power that unlocks space and time and changes everything."

And they listened and they copied and mimicked all the sounds they heard that day in the jungle and the forest. And they got very good at sounding like animals. But none of the sounds – even though it allowed them to enjoy themselves and enjoy nature – none of the sounds seemed to strike that chord. None of the sounds, to them, carried what they at least expected or thought the sound ought to be.

And so they discussed once again among themselves: "Where do you suppose this sound could be? We have listened to every animal that there is – both large and small, both fast and slow, in the air and the land and the water. We have copied all the sounds they could make; and yet we have not found that special sound. What do you suppose it could be?"

They discussed among themselves, sitting in a meadow, and another of them said: "Well, do you suppose the sound might be in another land? There are many different cultures, and different cultures might make different sounds. Maybe we ought to travel to far distant lands to discover sounds we have never heard in our lives."

And so they traveled around their world. And wherever they went, they were met with most exotic sounds, fascinating, vibrant, different sounds – different types of speech that any individual might make. And while they found it most educational and most fascinating – and did excel in many different types of communication – they still did not find that sound, that one special, mystical, magical sound.

"Most illusive," they said. "Most puzzling." And they returned to their own land. And did ponder once again: "Do you suppose there really is no such sound? Well, there must be," they said. "There must be. Why, why, why would someone have created that idea, if it were not something they really felt, something they had discovered once upon a time for themselves."

"The idea in our imaginations must exist. All we need to do is call it forth – somehow, somewhere, somewhen. That sound: it must exist. I know it is within our hearts; I know it is within our minds. But where, where, where may we find it, so that we may experience it with our ears, with our beings? Where, where, where is that sound that changes so much?"

The third one said: "Well, do you suppose the sound itself might be in the things of nature itself, around the very structure of the physical reality? There are many different substances in nature; and they all make different sounds. Do you suppose it might be one of those?"

And so they scoured the countryside, picking up different kinds of rocks and banging them together; and scraping against trees and splashing in water, and of various liquids, and of swishing things around in the air. And they experimented all the next day long, making every sort of ringing and clanging and clapping and banging and slapping and smacking sounds that they could.

And by the end of that day, they were very tired. And also, to some degree, a little bit dejected. "We have explored all the sounds animals might make; we have visited all the cultures in our world; we have tried and tested all the substances that nature has to offer. We have not discovered that most mystical, magical, elusive sound."
And so they sat down back in their meadow. And they pondered, and they pondered, and they pondered. And none of them could come up with another suggestion. And so as they sat – all at once, all at the same time – here’s where your part comes in – they all took in a very deep breath...

And all at once, let out this sound: "Aaaahhh".... (the sound of a deep, satisfying sigh) "Oh, my! Oh, my! Let’s do that again! ... Aaaahhh... “Oh, my! Oh, my! Once more to be sure! Aaaaahhh... That’s it; that’s it; that’s it," they cried. "The sound we have been searching for, far and wide. It is the sound that alters the very perception of things. It is the release, the flow of energy. It is, in that sense, the willingness to allow wherever you are and whenever to be."

The place, the time, the sound, it is within us, they discovered. It is the release, the rush. It is the floating gentility. It is the trust, the trust. That is the sound that changes all things, that alters space and rewritestime. Everything in the world – the very structure of the rocks – looks different when you release and be who you are, when and where.

The sigh, the sigh: the sound of the taking of responsibility; the sound of the acceptance of the time in which you exist. The sigh, the sound of being comfortable with who you are, the sound of relaxing into yourself.

"We have found it; we have found it; we have found it!" They sang and sang. And were filled with much joy. And they did, from that day forward – anytime they felt that they had created a situation that was a little bit too far, a little bit too slow, a little bit too fast, a little bit too close – they did remember the sound that changes everything.

"Aaaaahh!" And breathed it in; and breathed it through; and breathed it out again. And were whole and centered and fresh and alive. And all it takes is one little sigh... The beginning.

We thank you for allowing us to share this little tale, little perspective, little dream. We thank you for your co-creation in this way. We do remind you that this is the season for stories. And as we have said, next week of your time, we will share with you – because of your season – our version of a ghost story.

At this timing, in exchange for the gift of the consciousness that you share with us; in exchange for the willingness to function as representatives of your society, and allowing me to function as a representative of the respective societies of the Association of Worlds, I will ask you now, how may I serve you?

The Sound

Q: Was the Sphinx originally a cat?
B: It embodies catness and humanity. It is itself a symbol of the link...
Q: But the Sphinx itself – the face has been changed so many times and redone...
B: Nevertheless it is still the idea of the connection of two forms of consciousness to form a third.
Q: That was its original design?
B: In a sense, yes. Not that it was “a cat”, you understand. It was always a blend and a combination, but not always of what you would recognize as a human face. Nevertheless, it has always been the symbol of the bridge and the link between Earth and the stars.
THE SPIRAL

The spiral is the activation principle of the manifestation of one reality into a dimensional frequency. In other words, there is structure and there is action - there is manifestation. A spiral is the energy representation, a mathematical representation, of idea into solidified reality. It is the activation energy. It is, in a sense, solidified emotion. Another way to describe spiral energy is as if you were looking at small vortices that fill what appears to be empty space, and connect to other dimensions of reality. What appears empty to you, what appears silent to you, actually contains the most energy, the most reality, the most information and sound. That is why becoming still, becoming silent, becoming quiet, taps you into the highest amount of information and energy. Because things that move at infinite speed seem to be standing perfectly still - because they are everywhere at once. When you become perfectly still you will tap into infinite energy, infinite information.
The Spoken Word
Q: I’m very curious about something...
B: Oh good.
Q: . . . and I would like to reflect with you for a moment on, what I guess I’ll call, the power of the spoken word.
B: All right!
Q: And I was wondering, now that we’re going to be transitioning from third density into fourth density...
B: Speak up!
Q: . . . third density into forth density...
B: Power of the spoken word and all.
Q: (laughs) Thank you.
B: All right!
Q: I can’t think of how best to say this, but, um...
B: Best? The way you say it will be the best way for you to say it.
Q: It seems to me that our language is going to become very important. Our choice of words is going to become very important.
B: In a sense, although you will also find that you may need language less.
Q: Well, what I was wondering also is that you say on your planet you communicate telepathically.
B: Yes.
Q: Well, um, this might be an allegory, but like in the Bible where it says, "and God said let there be light, and there was light."
Q: There was obviously no one else there, so he didn’t have to use spoken word, so I wonder, do you use spoken word to manifest?
B: It is the idea of vibration. Vibration is what you are referring to in your Biblical literature as the word that was spoken. It is the recognition that out of the primal, fundamental energy every material universe is the product of a variance in the vibration of the primal, fundamental consciousness. The vibration of consciousness is the word of God.
Q: So you don’t use words at all, ever, to like, in a ritualistic form, or words to help manifest something, or is it necessary, or is there anything to that? .
B: It is not in this way necessary. You will find that, for the most part, the only remnant utilization that our civilization now finds for the language we once had may be simply for the enjoyment of, what you call, singing. But in this way, it is mostly vibratory, integral connections from one consciousness direct to another.
Q: So then it might be not so much our choice of words as uselessness, like too many. Being wordy when it’s…
B: Perhaps.
Q: down to essential words...
B: It is not that your choice of words cannot assist you in this way, for many times you will realize that while you think things are happening to you in your reality unconsciously, if you would but listen to the way you say things, you will understand that they do, very often, reflect the way you do believe things to be.
Q: Yes. Right.
B: Therefore, when you begin to listen to what you say, you may recognize that your choice of words is a symbolic reflection of your choice of vibrations.
Q: Yes, I think I have been consciously correcting on that procedure. What I say, and listen to what others say, and how they say it, choice of words gives you an idea of where they really are at that point.
B: Yes, but recognize that while you are listening so intently to the words, you are also feeling them out, which is more of a telepathic idea.
Q: Okay so...
B: Do remember that telepathy is emotionally activated.
Q: Empathetic.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, thank you very much.
B: Thank you!
The Strength to Love

Q: Yesterday on the news, although I didn’t see it, one of the major terrorist leaders of the world came on with a suit and tie and said, very calmly, that they were going to target Americans, specifically the United States, and then Europe. And, um, from your perspective, what will be the way, what would be the suggested way, to approach an individual like this?

B: Now you can understand that our perspective will always be one of unconditional love. And as we have said, you can SUGGEST, as we dictated in this way some time ago, the idea that you can express to them that you know they have killed, that you have killed, and that you have both discovered together how easy it is for you to kill. ASK that individual, and ask yourselves, if you have the strength to love each other? And in this way, allow yourselves to recognize that it is ONLY a belief in your innate POWERLESSNESS that says you must FORCE your opinion on someone else.

An individual who believes in what they believe in, who believes in the idea, the philosophy, then recognizes that, if they have true belief in their philosophy, they do not need to force that philosophy on anyone, for their innate recognition is that the philosophy stands for itself, speaks for itself. And if you find any individual or any country or any group of individuals finding that they must FORCE their philosophy on someone else, they obviously do not believe in that philosophy themselves. For anyone who believes in something in that way, will simply know that it will always stand on its own merit. This is not naive. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: You can discuss with this individual the idea of taking back their power, you taking back your power, and recognizing that you ALL REALLY ARE AS POWERFUL as you need to be to have anything you desire, without having to hurt anyone else to get it. Otherwise you are saying you are in fact dependent on everyone else for your reality. You follow me?

Q: Yes, that’s the conscious recognition that they’re willing to accept that they, in fact, do recognize the idea that individuals do not need to conform to a specific…

B: If you wish to be, quote/unquote, pragmatic about it, you can allow them the analogy that THEY are the sole and single strongest support for what they are fighting against. For when they feel that they are being oppressed and they retaliate in a violent manner against a so-called oppressor, they only give the so-called oppressor that much more reason to become that much more oppressive. You follow me?

Q: Sure.

B: They are attempting to fight, in their viewpoint, a RAGING FOREST FIRE of oppression, out of control, but they are fighting it by throwing sticks at it, feeding it. You follow me?

Q: Sure.
B: In this way they can simply recognize that THEY, paradoxically, are the single most strong foundation support for any oppressive regime – for it gives the oppressive regime an excuse to tighten its grip. You follow me?
B: Totally. Yes, thank you.
Q: Thank you. Sharing!!!
The System

Bashar: What would you rather be doing than what you’re doing in life?
Q: That’s the confusion, because I’m a teacher right now.
B: Yes.
Q: I love teaching.
B: Yes.
Q: The challenge, in terms of what I face, what I can give to the teachers, to the children, is there.
B: Yes, and what are you learning by teaching?
Q: The thing I’m learning is that there’s so much change that’s needed.
B: Yes.
Q: In terms of how to be a true teacher, how to ...
B: Does this frustrate you?
Q: It frustrates me because the system is totally the opposite.
B: Ah, the system! Here is where you are getting to the crux of what you are experiencing. You are railing against the bars, beating your body against, what you perceive to be, a series of prison bars and a structure that you feel you are fighting against. Stop. You are your own system; only you. You will make a difference, but stop feeling like you have to change the system. Just BE who your are, you will be your own alternative system that will still be standing when the old system crumbles under its weight. It is not about changing the system as it is. It is about allowing yourself to be in position to take up the slack when it can no longer survive. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: So, create your own reality, your own system, your own universal understanding that it is not about being frustrated, it is about being creative. The frustration is simply you buying into the rigidity that you say you are fighting against. So, the idea is to relax and allow the system to be translated differently as it passes through your creative expressions that you share with your charges. Do not feel that you are straight jacketed by the system. Become even more creative and allow yourself to know that you are transforming it, as it is expressed through you. Be creative, not frustrated, you follow?
Q: Yes.
B: You would never have chosen to be in a circumstance of this nature, were the system in that sense, truly more powerful than you are. You are the system, and that’s what you really need to understand – many of you need to understand this, instead of fighting against, fighting against, fighting against. The idea is to understand that you have to become transparent as glass, and allow the energy to pass through you that doesn’t belong to you, in that sense. And know that by doing so, nothing will stick that has nothing to do with what it is you need to be about, in terms of your business, your healing, your sharing, your creativity, your service. Do you think you can hold on to that image as you teach, and allow the idea of anything that doesn’t belong to you to pass right through you, instead of choosing to buy into it, and turning it into frustrated and blocked energy?

Q: Yes.
B: Do you think you can?
Q: I know I can.
B: Well, thank you so very much. Does that help you then?
Q: Yes, it does. Thank you very much Bashar.
THE TESSERACT AND REMOTE VIEWING

Questioner: When you were talking about the remote viewing...
Bashar: Yes.
Q: ... and being in that paradox, then...
B: Yes.
Q: ... the tesseract, and going into the other parallel realities and all of that, then...
B: Yes.
Q: ... I am feeling, as you were talking about all this, that this is similar but somehow a little different?
B: Well, it is a particular or specific manifestation or one particular modality of expressing paradox in a geometric form.
Q: Okay, but how is it similar to the viewing? I get that remote viewing is then very similar to it, but going into the tesseract...
B: It is a matter of perspective.
Q: Perspective.
B: Angle. So in this sense, the tesseract is representative of different angles that allow you to peer into different realities, even though it all seems to be the same box that you’re looking in.
Q: Yes.
B: Again, it is holographic, in that sense.
Q: So, it’s the same as remote viewing.
B: It is one way in which remote viewing can be experienced, because it is another analogy of the same technique. And that is simply shifting frequency, changing the angle of view, to allow yourself to see what is actually "here," that you heretofore thought was actually "there." The box, the tesseract, the hyper-cube, is one way to geometrically express another technique for understanding that everything you thought was there is here.
Q: Right.
B: So, in that sense, it is or can possibly be used as a catalyst for the concept of, what you call, the experience of remote viewing.
Q: And if you’re doing it from the zero point energy, which is here and now...
B: Yes ... well, in a sense, if you’re really doing it from the zero point energy, you don’t even need the tesseract; because you’re at the zero point where everything is.
Q: Yes, okay.
B: You follow?
Q: Yes.
B: Zero point is yet another idea.
Q: Right.
B: Does that help you?
Q: Yes.
All right, I’ll say good day to you at this time. How are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing this interaction, and this transmission to take place, in this manner, and through this gateway, and at this time. Once again, each and every time you allow such a transmission to occur, it affords our civilization an opportunity to experience that many more facets of the Infinite, through the unique expressions and perspectives that each and every one of you have chosen to be. So, we thank you for this gift of exchange.

We would like to begin this transmission, this day of your time, by recognizing, in honor of your calendar date, the idea that your civilization places behind the number thirteen. So let us discuss this concept as it exists in your collective, archetypal consciousness and explore some of the ramifications as to why this particular numerical value has been assigned such interesting qualities in your culture.

First and foremost, recognize that anything that has to do with numbers is connected to the idea, the recognition of, the sensing of, the perception of certain proportions and mathematical ratios in nature that represent certain vibrations, certain relationships. Thirteen, not only in your own culture but many cultures, not only on your planet but in other civilizations, is recognized as being a vibrational resonance that defines and represents a relationship between all that is considered to be of lower frequency, physical dimensionality and the higher realms of non-physical consciousness. Thirteen is a transition number, a transition frequency in and of itself, therefore, representative archetypically of a gateway, a doorway, through which and by which consciousness can connect to higher levels of awareness, higher dimensions of experiencing the frequency itself, the vibration itself, the relationship.

The ratio itself is something that is an energy that can be used when contemplated upon, when focused upon in meditations, or in a variety of creative ways to open very specific gateways and doorways within your own consciousness, physically as a person, and help you to connect to Higher Self, Oversoul levels, Spiritual realms, non-physical dimensionality of many different types and varieties. This is one of the reasons why, because of the definitions, the negative definitions, the fears that exist in many cultures in your society, why the number thirteen has been given such superstitious qualities, such fearful qualities, as if it is something to be avoided.

These meanings, these negative meanings have only been attached to this vibration because it is recognized, at least subconsciously or unconsciously, by many of you, that it is a connection to more rarefied realms of Spirit and awareness. Yet because, for thousands of generations, people on your planet have been out of touch with themselves, their inner-selves, their inner-life, their inner-light, have been out of touch with things of Spirit, mythologies have been built up around Spirit that makes Spirit and non-physical awareness seem to been something to be avoided, something to be feared. And so, in recognizing that the thirteen vibration, the thirteen frequency is a doorway through which connection and contact can be made, then because of the fear it has been labeled as something to be avoided, something to be shunned at all costs, for it is known that to connect to that frequency will put you in touch with the inner realm self, in some senses, open yourselves to fear, to face and process fear. It is a processing number, a processing frequency that, when dealt with appropriately, can be of great aid and assistance in helping you process many of the doubts and fears you have within yourself. Thirteen represents, in many ways, the actual portal of the unknown; and as we have said many times, it is best to make a friend of the unknown. That is where you discover most of yourself, that is where is you find who and what you are, is in the unknown. That is where is where you will know who and what you are by how it is you act in the face of the unknown, so we would urge many of you, most of you, perhaps even all of you, in this time of your collective consciousness, of the date that you call Friday the Thirteenth, especially because there is another one coming up next month of your time, two in a row. So you have a month, a bracketed month, bracketed on each end by a Friday the Thirteenth forming a grander doorway, a bigger doorway, an amplification, a magnification of this idea. So, in the next month you have a golden opportunity, a golden proportional ratio opportunity to really explore all the ideas of all the things that the number and the vibration of thirteen can jolt loose, shake loose within you, and allow them to come to the surface. Fearing not, but using your imagination and curiosity to allow yourself to integrate those things you formally feared, so that you can become more than you are. Use this time and use this number, use this archetypal symbol as your key and your gateway to explore and discover the unknown self, and make that more of you. Make it known, allow it to be known so that you can become grander, bigger, more expanded, more accelerated, more aware of who and what you are and, thus, simultaneously more aware of what your reality can be in whatever way, shape or form you wish to contemplate this, in whatever way, shape or form your imagination wishes to use this idea. Do something, be it meditative, or creative play, or some artistic endeavor or expression, or music. Explore and play, now, for the next month with the number thirteen and allow yourself to absorb and transform all the symbology and superstition. Allow it to become something that can serve you, rather than something that would chase you back into the darker sides of yourself. Remember that your physical reality is a mirror, very realistically a mirror reflecting to you the strongest combination of ideas, beliefs, definitions that you have bought into. And so, take a moment to explore this unknown zone in all the creative ways that you can. We recognize that this superstition exists even to the point where many of your actual architectural structures, your buildings, don’t even have a thirteenth floor, so to speak. Although, of course, you know they do. So we would, as a suggestion, just to increase, amplify and exemplify the idea of exploration we are talking about, we would suggest that you actually find a building that was not afraid to label its thirteenth floor, thirteen. Or you go to a building that does not have one, and in some way, shape or form, in your imagination, find a way to go to the thirteenth floor. Play with that idea, because it is there, maybe in between twelve and fourteen, even though it may not be physical, it is there. Because so many of you have put so much energy on the idea of avoiding the thirteenth floor, that energy in your collective consciousness goes towards creating the thirteenth floor, at least in non-physical, spiritual terms. So it is there, it can be visited. I would invite you, I would challenge you to go and find a thirteenth floor in a building that does not have one and see what kind of experiences comes about. You may not even find it physically; you may only find it in your dreams. Once you make an attempt, once you take the step, you may find yourself, in your dreams, all of a sudden on that thirteenth floor that wasn’t there physically. Or some of you actually, don’t be afraid, you may actually find yourself on a thirteenth floor that isn’t there, even if only momentarily; but that’s alright. There is nothing that inhabits the thirteenth floor that can hurt you, it is only the hidden portion of yourself. Thirteen represents all the things that you have taken and hidden in between the other floors of your consciousness. It is time now to find that thirteenth floor, make it accessible, once again, to the elevator of your imagination. So all of you over the next month, between this Friday the thirteenth and the next one, which by the way will be a full moon, Friday the thirteenth.

Q: Great!

B: And so you see how that amplifies and compounds the symbology, and explore the idea of what this means and what kind of discoveries you can make. Allow these here-to-fore unexplored hidden areas come to the light, to unfold and to be given some kind of physical manifestation, at least, to whatever degree you are willing to absorb and transform those hidden portions of yourself. So you may label this conversation, "The Thirteenth Floor."

We thank you for allowing us to share this idea with you, this day of you time. And in return for the gift that you are giving our civilization, in allowing this exchange to occur, through this window and in this way, I ask, in return, in what way may I now be of service to you?

Q: Bashar! Bashar! Bashar!
The Three Absolutes
5-12-91

We thank you once again for co-creating this interaction with our civilization in this way. We greet you on this day and would like to begin this interaction with the understanding of the concepts of what we will entitle the “Three Absolutes”. Many times in our conversations with you in discussing the variety of circumstances that exist in your lives, we realize that physical reality for you has for a long time been a matter of great limitation, overcoming barriers, and an incredible sense of overcoming inertia in allowing things to change from a direction of things you don’t prefer to the direction of things that you do.

Many of you from time to time find a great deal of difficulty in allowing these changes to occur. We have discussed many of the perspectives that will allow you to make the change, and we would now like to also discuss one other aspect about this concept of change in physical reality, creating your reality to be what you prefer it to be. We have discovered in our conversations with many of you that one of the seeming reasons why you create the difficulty for things to change is because when you’re raised in your society you are taught that many things about physical reality are Absolutes.

That they really can’t be changed, and you learn to take for granted after awhile, after many years of this teaching, over and over again these principles of rigidity, that these things therefore cannot be changed, that they are in fact the very foundations of your existence, and you do not even necessarily give yourself an opportunity to realize that they have an ability to be changed. Many times, when you lock into a particular belief system, what comes with that belief system, always, is a built in mechanism that perpetuates itself and does not necessarily even allow you to know that the system can be changed, prevents you many times from even seeing, from even being able to see the opportunities that you could act upon that would change the system that you are in, the cycle that you are in, the patterns that you are in.

Each belief system is self perpetuating, self reinforcing, and thus, that is why what is required to change systems very often, especially when they are that deeply ingrained, is the true leap of faith. That you simply take the step to make the change, whether you know how it will work or not. Many times, because of the rigidity of your system, that is the only way for many of you that you can actually see the changes that you desire to take the step, even if you are not certain, “where you are going to land”. You can always, once again, be assured that since every single belief system is just as real as any other belief system that, if you in fact, decide to make a change from one system to another that when you land in the new belief system the new one will be just as real, just as solid, just as self perpetuating, just as supporting, just as reinforcing as the system that you left.

That can be one way you can reassure yourself without necessarily knowing the specifics of the new system that will be there. That the new system will be there, that the new system will support you, in a sense, in the same way the old system did. Now, when I say “the same way the old system did”, I did not mean the same style, in terms of the details or the quality of life but that the same fundamental mechanism will be there. The idea is that - what ever it is that you believe in most strongly, will be what you attract in your life as the greatest possibility or probability of manifesting.

That is the fundamental principle behind any belief system, behind any truth because all truths are true, all belief systems are real. Reality is only what you believe it to be but your belief is what reality is.

Again, we would like to remind you, and reinforce within the recognition of your consciousness that you are not a consciousness in physical reality. You are physical reality, physical reality is an expression of your consciousness. It is made of your consciousness and because of that there really are very few Absolutes in creation. Everything that you experience in your reality, even though it may seem to have a great deal of inertia, a great deal of momentum, a great deal of difficulty in changing its direction, they are not really fundamental Absolutes.

You may have given them a great deal of momentum and thus make them difficult to change and they may seem like an absolute because you have been perpetuating this belief so long, but they are not really Absolutes and are subject to change like any thought, any belief or emotion.

There are only, only three Absolutes in creation—just three. Number one is simply that: you do in fact exist. Number two is that: the one is all and the all is one. And, number three is simply: — what you give is what you get. That’s all there is to it. Every single circumstance, every single situation, every single reality, every single belief, every single dimension, every single being or consciousness in the totality of creation is based on these three Absolutes.

There are no more. You exist, the one is all the all is one, and what you give is what you get. Every situation is based on these. Primarily. Primarily the last one—what you put out is what you get back. It is the only law that determines what you experience in your reality.

In that sense you can begin to realize that part of the reason you are now exploring this concept of New Age awareness of your expansion of consciousness is that you are beginning to realize that, you in fact have created everything that you experience in your lives. That it is really only made up of consciousness that you are, and that you really do have a say, you really do have a say in deciding how your life shall be.

Again, we do understand that sometimes because of the way your society has structured itself, that it is very difficult from time to time, to ever be able to see the opportunity that may exist before you that will allow you to change your life. But ... I can guarantee that those opportunities are there and if you but allow yourself to go into the center of your being with absolute conviction that you can discover that opportunity ... you will see it ... you will be able to act on it ... you will be able to act on it with joy and excitement and you will receive the result that will only perpetuate, and accelerate, and escalate that joy ... that excitement and broaden your ability to see the future.

More and more of the opportunities that have always been there, but which your belief systems may not have allowed you to be aware of. That is the only thing that is going on when you learn something new. You are simply allowing yourself to see more of what is already known within you. You are seeing more of yourself from a different perspective because everything in reality is you—everything is you. So when you make a change in your physical reality you don’t have to think about it as being a difficult idea because you are attempting to manipulate something out there that seems to have no connection to you.

All you’re doing is changing yourself, changing the concept of your consciousness—how it perceives itself. And when you do that, your physical reality being nothing but the shadow of your soul, it has absolutely no choice but to change along with the new concept of yourself. It is nothing but a mirror, you are only seeing your own reflection in your lives. And, again, remember, that your lives reflect to you as a self correcting mechanism, in a sense, to show you that you have a certain belief within you, so that if you don’t prefer that belief you can change it. The only way you can change it is first by recognizing that you have it. And, again, it is important to remember that once you actually are not locked into that belief any longer, the ability to recognize that you have a certain habit of pattern of belief system means that at that moment of recognition you are actually beyond, or above, or outside of, so to speak, that belief system and from that moment forward that belief system no longer affects you unless you choose to believe that it does.

Remember, once again, also that the so called habits that seem to come from the past, that seem to affect your present life—do not come from the past. If it seems that this is happening it is only because you are continually recreating, at any given moment in the present, the belief system that says that you are connected to something in the past that you don’t want to be connected to. You are creating your reality every single moment. It is always now ... always the present. You exist, you exist, you exist now and only now.

_The first Absolute, there is only now._ It is another way to say you exist only now. You create your reality only now. If you exist now this now will always be—you are eternal, you are infinite. You will experience this now in a variety of ways, from a variety of perspectives but it is always now, always present. You never exist anywhere or any-when ... but here and now, always present. You are the prime example of the first Absolute, existence itself. All of you are one, and the one is all of you and all of us and all beings in creation, and absolutely, absolutely the vibration you give off is the reality that you get. You are now learning more quickly, more easily how to see that this is so, how to get the reflection in your physical life that this is so.

This is what is of paramount importance to us now at this day and age in your civilization to assist you with the understanding of getting in touch with the specific elements in your consciousness that you need to be in touch with so that you can see clearly, consciously, quickly, effortlessly how to make the changes that you want to make. How to know that once you make those changes they will stick and to allow yourself with razor sharp precision the effortless knowingness that what you say goes because you are the only voice in your reality. Not that you can not have help, not that you do not receive unconditional love from All That Is, but you are the creator of your experiential reality and it is your free will and your conscious recognition that creates what you experience. It is easy to discover how this is so and to see the results.

We thank you now for the opportunity to assist you in this way. We also thank you for the opportunity of being assisted by you in being allowed to see that many more ways that infinite creation has of expressing itself through your civilization.
The Titanic

Q: This week, the dive down to the Titanic wreck began – the wreck of the Titanic, which sank in 1912. And they sent down the camera, and they couldn’t find a gash in the side where supposedly the iceberg cut, and sank the ship. Have you any ideas of how or why the Titanic sank?

B: Still, in this way, our perception is, as reported, that they simply do not understand that there is not as broad an occurrence that was necessary as they think was necessary. They will find that a portion of it, in this way, is still buried in what you call the silt.

Q: Oh... and there is something that intrigues me about the Titanic. There is a phrase that “God went down with the Titanic.” What it meant was that the period up to the time that the Titanic sank was the longest period of peace in Europe since Roman times, and at that time man was very optimistic that he could solve all his problems with his new technology. But after the Titanic sank, just all hell broke loose. You’ve got the founding of the Federal Reserve the following year, then World War I a few years later, then the Russian revolution, and then the Wall Street crash and God knows what else. Is there anything sort of symbolic about the sinking of the Titanic that fascinates so many people, that you can talk about?

B: There are always many events, in this sense, that your mass consciousness, in recognizing the change about to occur, can use to symbolize the change in that consciousness. That was simply one of them.

Q: Okay.

Q2: Do you think that this could have been a past life experience?

B: For this individual here?

Q2: Yes.

B: Yes, I do! (Audience laughter)

Q: Yes! So... when I was “on” the Titanic, everybody was, like, moving around having a good time.

B: All right.

Q: Well, when the incident happened, I suddenly saw beneath the facade, beneath the illusion, that about fifteen hundred people were postulating death, and the rest of them were postulating notoriety.

B: All right.

Q: And it seemed that, at that point, the ship had no choice but to sink.

B: In a sense, yes.

Q: The ship seemed to be subordinate to the will of the people.

B: Oh, yes. It was your creation.

Q: Why would the ship be subordinate?

B: It is only a projection of your consciousness. It is made from your consciousness, it is an extension of you. So you voted... and decided... how to use that energy.

Q: I was out-voted. (Audience laughter)
B: In a sense, but in an overall sense you agreed to be out-voted.

Q: So... did the plans of the Federal Reserve System go down with it – or the plans to prevent the Federal Reserve System – go down with it?

B: We do perceive that there is some connection to this idea, but not necessarily in the way that you may think. One moment... (long pause)... let us say this: it is our perception, and our perception alone in this way, that not all that you may have thought was aboard, was aboard. And some of it has, in a sense, in your terms, disappeared into history. In the sense that it has been destroyed – but not by being aboard the ship.

Q: There was no sabotage, I suppose, you could say, in relation to that?

B: Well, to some degree, but not directly. There were things that were done that, let us say, were the sabotaging of ideas, to some degree. Although again, let us say that to certain minds, the event, as it unfolded to them, was fortuitous. For it covered up something that perhaps would have been discovered later.

Q: Fantastic, thank you.

B: Thank you.
Q: How do you designate points in space? In other words, what is your co-ordinate geometry like on Essassani?
B: Do you mean navigation?
Q: Sure. You’ll need to have some points in time/space to get there, how do you do that?
B: In this way, you will find that when we allow ourselves to isolate ourselves from the field of any particular universe, then in this way, all universes will become immediate. In that sense, they will take upon them the form of surrounding us within a shell, a holographic structure, a spherical structure, in this way. And you can, within that understanding, let us say, in a colloquial manner, choose the idea of a particular direction relative to the inner surface of that sphere that has been created around the ship. You can identify by frequency vibration, by fluctuations in the idea of the overall idea vibrational patterns.
It is, in a sense, equational. But always, in this way, it is equational relative to the understanding we have of ourselves as the universe. We are always the zero point. No matter where we are.
Q: That seems it would be logical for ease of calculation.
B: It is mostly the idea, not so much of calculation, but identification, in the manner that you would understand to be, identifying with something. In this sense, again, it is not so much that we pick out any specific point, but that we identify with the vibrational resonance of an idea. We scan, let us say, the flavor of the different universes, the different locales.
And in this way, what we identify with, what we identify as the vibration that we wish to be congruent with, we simply adopt as the vibration of the entire ship.
Q: And you’re there?
B: Yes.
Q: Wow! (Audience laughter)
B: Once we remove the isolation field.
Q: Okay. Which is mass... just like a gate?
B: It is, in your terms, an energy field that surrounds the ship and isolates it from any particular universe, so that it is in touch with all universes. We instill upon it, through the idea of the identification of vibration upon the ship itself, a new understanding of the property of its location.
Location to us is not a space in which an object exists; it is a property of the object. And if you redefine that particular property, then the object, by definition, must take up residence at the new location – automatically, instantaneously. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, but how do you change mass?
B: Change mass?
Q: Yes.
B: We are not moving mass. We are re-identifying the idea of what the mass is. When you substitute a new locational understanding, when you remove the field, it will simply automatically, holographically, be where it needs to be – to be in synchronous harmony with the new identification you have given. Nothing is moving.
Q: Wow.
B: There is no traveling at all. It is re-identifying the idea of its location. Understand, all travel within time and space is travel within, but it is not really travel at all. Nothing is moving. Even when you walk through a room, it is only an illusion. You are not really going anywhere.
(AUD laughter) Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. Do you have, where you come from, do you have mass yourselves?
B: Yes, fourth density mass.
Q: So you have blood circulating...
B: In a sense, yes, we are, in your terms still fourth density beings in that way, in our physical expression. You would be able to perceive us as having physiological form, though it will be somewhat different from your own, not only in appearance but also in consistency.
Q: Do you die?
B: In a sense, we allow ourselves to simply, when we know the purpose of our lifespan is up, to exit in a sense – leave the body. And it converts into the energy of the electromagnetic field of the planet.
Q: Does time affect your bodies?
B: Very slightly. In this way you will find that the majority of the sensation of time that we create is for the purpose of interacting with other civilizations that are still in third density. We will experience some degree of the passage of time, so to speak, but more often than not, our experience will be of the timing of an event – the simple experience of an idea without regard to how much time has passed. We do not measure so much, in that way.
Q: Are you individuals or are you tied into a construct larger than yourselves?
B: Both. So are you. We simply allow ourselves to be conscious of it.
Q2: Could you explain again, what you were saying about only staying in one place?
B: Simply, the idea of any motion at all is an illusion. Since you are creating yourself from moment, to moment, to moment, to moment, you are creating the illusion of the continuousness of the idea of being here, then there. You could, instantaneously, be here, then there, without all the intervening moments, if you wish. It is an illusion that you need to take this step, that step, that step, that step, that step, that step, and so forth. You can simply create yourself to be here – then there.
Q: But that movement here would...
B: It is a definition of a re-arrangement of energy, which is a vibrational pattern, which is something that comes from your consciousness. All physical reality is a symbolic illusion. You create it to seem solid because that is the illusion you desire.

Q: The ultimate speed is being there.

B: Yes. Understand that when you are at infinite acceleration, when you are everywhere at once, the feeling is in the sense of standing perfectly still. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: It is more, if you wish to say, putting it in more colloquial terms, in terms you understand it – although it is still not in this way an accurate analogy – but you can understand that it is not so much that you go anywhere, it is more that the universe comes to you.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.

The Universe Comes To You
"You know that no matter how well you plan, you’re always in the unknown. So it might as well be a place to enjoy because it’s the only place that exists."
All right, I’ll say good day to you, this day of your time, how are you all? Once again, we take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for allowing this communication to occur, though this particular window, and in this way, and on this day. Once again, each and every time your civilization allows such a transmission connection to be made, it affords our civilization many more opportunities to experience that many more facets of Infinite Creation, so we thank you for this gift of sharing. We also thank you for the idea of what you call, the honoring.

We would like to begin this transmission, this day of your time, with a concept entitled, "The Visible and the Invisible." And in furthering some of the recent discussions we have had, with several of you regarding the concepts on your planet you call Tao and Zen. We remind you, as it is noted in many of your Zen sayings, that it is the invisible portions or attributes of those things that are visible and tangible that very often are what allow those things to be useful, to have purpose.

As it states in many of your Zen sayings, you have a pot, a cup; it is the space within that you use. You have a house with rooms, there is a structure, but it is the space within that you use. Thus, as stated in your Tao, you have structure, but it is the nothingness that makes the structure useful, it is the emptiness that makes it useful. The invisible concept that gives form, in a sense, its meaning, its purpose.

So too, then as you have, as a society, for a long time considered yourselves to be focused on physical reality, but are now becoming also simultaneously focused on non-physical reality, that what you call the Spirit, the Soul, the Mind. Not in any way, shape or form taking anything away from the physical, but there is now more opportunity to appreciate the blending, the integration, the amalgamation of the understanding of how important the emptiness is, the nothing is, or the invisible or what appears to be nothing at all is. For without the nothing there cannot really be something.

As cryptic as this may sound, it is pragmatically testable, as we have already indicated. Your cups, were they solid objects, would fill no purpose. Your houses, were they solid objects, would have no room to live. The idea is that you as a so called solid physical being must have the empty space, must have the invisible component in order to really be whole and complete, in order to find purpose and meaning within yourself, in order to connect to the Infinite; for there really cannot be infinity within the idea of finite solidity. There must be the nothing in order for infinity to exist and augment and accentuate that which you perceive as something. Therefore, when you appreciate your flowers, your trees, your animals, your world, each other, by all means revel in what you can perceive, revel in the something that appears before you, to your senses. At the same time, look deeper into the nothing that gives it its vitality, its vibrancy, its life, its being, its essence. Look into the infinite depths of that which is not apparently there, in order to more fully appreciate that which is apparently there. This is the paradox of looking and the paradox of the marriage of the visible and invisible; that which is not makes all the more beautiful that which appears to be.
We thank you, thus, then for allowing us to share this idea, this perspective, this day of your time. We thank you for what you call your birthday greeting. And in return for the gift that you are giving to our civilization now, I ask, in what way may I and my world be of assistance to you?
Q: Yah, Bashar. Could you say something about densities?

B: Densities, all right. Now this is, to some degree, simply a colloquial terminology for what you have called dimensions of experience. And all it really refers to is different frequencies of existence—a different density, a higher density, being a more accelerated frequency, a less material frequency.

But we will also say this about the idea of densities and your transformation through them, your acceleration and graduation through different densities. You, as a planet, are now going from third density to fourth density. And what this basically means is that fourth density is the last level on which you can experience yourselves in an accelerated state and still remain physical.

Our civilization is going from fourth density to fifth density, which is a non-physical state. And above that, in your terminology, (are) non-physical states. Up to and including seventh density, and then you go to an entirely different octave of dimensional experience, for which right now there aren’t very many words to describe it accurately in your language. And even we are only beginning to explore that idea.

However the idea itself of going from level to level, density to density, is-now pay attention!—is the process of realizing that you actually are the dimension itself that you previously thought you existed in. One more time: you now exist, you think, in a physical universe.

Your fourth-density transformation is when you begin to realize you are the creator of your reality. And what that means is: physical reality is your expression, is your projection, is your creation; that it’s actually made of you. That you are actually it; that physical reality is you.

When you really realize that, you then see yourselves literally as the dimension of experience that you previously thought you were only a component of. And that’s how it is for every level. You begin to realize you are the dimension itself that you previously thought you were only a part of.

And here’s the wonderful paradox of the whole circumstance. Each and every single one of you, as an individual, will experience yourselves becoming the whole dimension. Each of you will think that all the other consciousness you have seen as individuals are being, in a sense, absorbed into.

And you will have the same experience, because the universe is holographically structured. And that simply means that any point of view can exist equally everywhere within creation. And that all points of view are all relevant, in that sense, and all true. Each and every one of you, and each and everyone of us, and all beings within creation—to put it in this following way, all beings are all the different ways that the infinite Creation has of looking at itself, of experiencing itself to be.

Every being, in a sense, can be called a God-thought, one of the ways that God has of thinking of itself, of expressing itself, of experiencing itself. And so here you are—being God manifesting as physical individuals, with individual personality and individual identity. That’s one of the ways the infinite can experience itself.

And so here you are. There are an infinite number of ways, an infinite number of ways. There is no end to the growth; there is no end to the transformation. And the idea of going from level to level and density to density, as far as at least we can tell, will never, never, never end. Does this answer the question sufficiently?

Q:

Yes, thank you.
Theology Class II Monologue
B: All right, I’ll say: I greet you all this day of your time, as you know time to exist. Before we begin our interaction, I would like to lay down a few foundations between us, so that there will some commonality, some common ground for this interaction – in terms of who we are to you and who you are to us.

So before we begin, allow me to say the following thing. Our perception of existence is as follows: we perceive generally that all things that you would call material things will be made, as you already know, of energy vibrating at different frequency rates. The idea is that these frequency rates will determine whether you perceive something as material or not. Many of you already understand this on a fundamental level within your own dimension of experience. But from our perception, the different dimensions themselves are the product of variations in frequency, in pitch if you will, of the primal energy of existence itself.

The idea therefore is that different beings, different consciousness, will exist at various frequency levels – various planes, various dimensions, as you call them, of existence. And that all of these dimension, all of these planes, all of these levels of reality, will coexist simultaneously with each other – in a sense, shall we say, overlapping, interpenetrating each other. But from one dimension to the other usually they will be imperceptible to one another because of the variation in frequency.

An analogy that we have used to explain this idea many times on your planet is what we have called the radio analogy. You have on your planet a device you call radio. You know that you can perceive many different programs coming through the radio at any given moment, but you also know that you only perceive the program that your dial is tuned to. Now, this does not mean that all the other programs are not there. You know that all the other programs that are being broadcast to your radio are all there simultaneously. But because they are on different frequencies, you only perceive one at a time – that is, if your device is functioning properly, shall we say.

The idea, therefore, is that realities and dimensional planes follow this analogy in certain ways, and that you can perceive different realities, different consciousnesses, different existences, different realms, different dimensions. If you can change your frequency so that your senses, your perceptions, will be more aligned, more harmoniously linked with those other frequencies, then you can perceive them instead of perceiving the one that you have been taught for so long is the only reality in which you exist.

Each and every reality, shall we say, has its own barriers, its own limitations, its own definitions of what that reality is. And by definition, each and every frequency is going to be self-reinforcing. What that means is as follows: any reality will contain within that reality a system of reflective laws to reinforce the validity of that prime reality, as opposed to all other realities. If that were not so, there would be too much bleed-through from one reality to another; and you would not, as physiological beings, be able to make sense out of any one particular reality at any given moment.

So each and every dimension is self-reinforcing, and seems by definition to exclude all other dimensions of reality. There is a place, a state, an attitude, however, that bridges them all – a central limbo state in which your consciousness can be aware of the fact that there are an infinite number of realities all overlapping in one particular type of here and now. That particular state is achievable by any being in any plane, in any dimension of experience in any given moment.

But achieving that state – the ability to perceive other dimensions, other planes, other consciousnesses – is usually a matter of attitude, perspective, belief system, of emotion and thought pattern. Because it is your belief systems, your emotions and your thought patterns that you have to explore your reality with. And through those filters do you perceive the reality that you have for so long believed to be the only solid reality.

Do remember that your senses – which by the way you have seven of, not five; we’ll get back to that in a moment – your senses are not so much the windows to the world that you have always been taught they are. They are filters that keep out a majority of the realities around you, and allow you to perceive only the reality you think you ought to be perceiving, or need to be perceiving at any moment, to allow you to function as concentrated consciousnesses as physiological beings. Were it not for those filters, as we have said, you would be experiencing so much bleed-through that you would not be able to function in any one particular reality smoothly.

Now your world is changing in many ways; this all of you know. One of the ways your world is changing in its conscious evolution is to be able to begin to realize that there may just be more than the one reality that you have always been taught is the only reality; that there may just be other civilizations, other dimensions of consciousness, other planes of reality. And because you are now beginning to consider that that may be possible, your belief systems, your emotions and your thought patterns are opening up, are allowing a little bit more of these other realities to, shall we say, leak in.

But these realities will only leak in at a rate that is comfortable for each and every one of you to make the best sense out of, for many of you of course will have to compare and weigh the reality you have always been taught is real against the new energies, the new perceptions that you are receiving before you will decide whether or not you want to incorporate those new sensings into the reality you have always been taught to believe was real.

It is all right if you take your time; that is up to each and every individual, up to each and every civilization. Your pace is your own, and whatever pace that is, is absolutely perfect for you. There is no rush; you are eternal beings. You are going to be around forever; you can take your time. It is up to you.

The idea, however, is that when a civilization begins to open up to the possibility that there may be other realms of consciousness, you begin to interact with those other realms of consciousness. Your willingness itself to believe that there might just be a possibility to interact with other beings in other dimensional planes is a type of invitation to those other beings. That invitation is answered, but answered – at least by us and the civilizations we are familiar with – in a very delicate way. We respect the idea that each and every civilization is discreet. We do not wish to interfere in the evolution that that civilization has laid down for itself.

Therefore, when we receive that invitation, when we perceive that a civilization might be on the verge of being willing to recognize that it can communicate with other beings, we approach cautiously. We, shall we say, test the waters to see what degree of receptivity actually exists in that civilization. For there have been times in the past where civilizations were approached too quickly, and the result was quite detrimental – not only for that civilization, but also for the civilization that approached them. Therefore we are always very cautious about these interactions, to make sure – absolutely make sure as best as we can – that our existence, our ideas, our perceptions, our perspectives are never something that are forced upon you. That you understand that you are in every way equal to us in our eyes. And that we simply present you with a different point of view that you can decide whether or not to incorporate in your reality. 'Tis up to you.

We do this because it serves us as well. For the more civilizations that we are able to harmoniously interact with, the more creation is expanded for us, and the more we learn as well. We learn many things. First of all, in you we get to see how many more ways Infinite Creation has manifested itself, and this teaches us about all the probable ways that Creation could manifest itself. So we are always learning by these interactions.

To us these interactions are a gift. And therefore for that gift we thank you. And in return for that gift, we share with you our thoughts, our ideas, our perspectives, so that you can decide for yourselves what you want your lives to be. And so that you can choose, if you want to, to interact with us in all the ways that it will be possible to interact – in short order, as you say.

Now, the idea of your senses, the idea of your filters: more often than not you are taught that you have five physiological senses. The idea is that you call them your sight, your sound, your hearing, your taste and your touch. And you have two more physiological senses that you are only beginning to understand.

The reason that it has taken this amount of time for a majority of your civilization to recognize this is because the first five senses are, generally speaking, electrochemical in nature and are immediately apparent within your physiological form. The other two have electrochemical side effects to them, but they are also electromagnetic in nature.

The sixth would be called orientation, and it is connected to the idea of your orientation in space and time. Many of you understand – many of you have phrases in your language that say: you simply know where you are going; you have a sense of direction. You are oriented in space and time. Space/time, as you call it.

This is, in a sense, a sixth physical sense, and it is located to some degree within your sinus cavities, within what you call also to some degree your inner ear. It is hinged upon the idea of the substance magnetite that exists in your sinus cavity. And it is what many of you, and also the animal species upon your planet, use in order to orient and navigate themselves through physical space/time.

The seventh sense is discernment, vibrational discernment. This has been classically categorized by you as picking up upon another individual’s vibratory aura. The idea is also electromagnetic in nature, and is cellular in scope, and interpenetrates every single cell in every single atomic structure in your body.

The all-encompassing eighth sense of knowingness is transcendental, and does not really have an absolute fix in physical reality. It is, to some degree, connected with the pineal gland, the idea of what you have colloquially called other glands in your system. But it is also transcendental in your non-physical consciousness as well, since first and foremost – at least from our point of view – you are non-physical consciousness to begin with. And you project a portion of yourselves as physical beings. This is, before we continue, the last thing I would like to talk about. The idea of your notion of yourselves as physical beings that contain a soul, or contain a spirit. From your point of view, this is accurate. From the way you have defined physical reality, this is accurate. And in no way am I invalidating that understanding.

Our point of view, however, is as follows. We do not have a physical body in which is deposited a soul, or a spirit. Your physical body does not contain a spirit, like some sort of a vessel. From our perspective your physical body IS your spirit, manifesting itself in physiological terminology, presenting a face in the physical definition of the reality in which you abide – that you yourselves have created with your very definitions, with your very belief systems.

As such the idea of changing your beliefs, changing your emotions, changing your thought patterns, does not bring changes in your physical reality down to an issue of mind over matter. It brings it down to an understanding that matter and mind are the same thing, that spirit and matter are the same thing. That all of the so-called differentiations you have discussed for thousands of years upon your planet are really discussions about the same thing: the primal energy of existence manifesting itself in all the multi-dimensional multitudinous simultaneous ways that it possibly can, by creating itself to be discreet and differentiated frequencies that you perceive as discreet and different planes of existence, or discreet and different material objects.

The foundation of all the things we will be discussing this day of your time will hinge upon this principle: that the reality you perceive around you is actually created from you; that it is contained within you. And that when you change your beliefs about it, your emotions about it, and your thought patterns about it sufficiently; when you change the frequency of the being you are sufficiently, you do see reflected back to you, in no uncertain terms, physiological manifestations of those changes – because your physical reality is but the shadow of your soul, the shadow of your identity, the shadow of your idea of yourself.

And that you can create the realities you desire if you can, in your terms, get a "handle" upon changing the belief systems, the emotional patterns and the thoughts patterns within you. You are, as you say in your biblical references, "made in the image of God.” Now the idea of what you in your society may call God, and what we may call God, may vary here and there in semantics and terminology; but it is basically the same concept. It is All That Is, one Infinite Creation that diversifies itself into many multitudinous transformational manifestations.

If you are made in the image of a multi-dimensional Infinite Being, then that means you are multi-dimensional infinite beings as well. At least that is what the phrase means to us. So when you say you are made in the image of God, understand what that actually means: you are the co-creators the Infinite, the creators of your immediate reality. And as you design the filters of your senses to be, so you experience the reality you believe you are in. This will be the foundation of all the ideas we will discuss this day of your time.

At this time allow me to end, and to allow the interaction to begin. But first I will once again thank you for choosing to function as ambassadors and representatives of your society, for that is what you are. Make no mistake about it. For there are many, many, many on this end listening in. I thank you for allowing me to function as an ambassador of my society and communicate with you in this way at this time – so that it may serve the best of all concerned. In return for your gift of sharing; in return for your willingness to explore this idea, I ask you now: in what way may I be of service to you?
Theology Class II Monologue

B: All right, I'll say, I greet you all this day of your time, as you know time to exist. Before we begin our interaction, I would like to lay down a few foundations between us, so that there will some commonality, some common ground for this interaction – in terms of whom we are to you and who you are to us.

So before we begin, allow me to say the following thing. Our perception of existence is as follows: we perceive generally that all things that you would call material things will be made, as you already know, of energy vibrating at different frequency rates. The idea is that these frequency rates will determine whether you perceive something as material or not. Many of you already understand this on a fundamental level within your own dimension of experience. But from our perception, the different dimensions themselves are the product of variations in frequency, in pitch if you will, of the primal energy of existence itself.

The idea, therefore, is that different beings, different consciousness, will exist at various frequency levels – various planes, various dimensions, as you call them, of existence. And that all of these dimension, all of these planes, all of these levels of reality will coexist simultaneously with each other – in a sense, shall we say, overlapping, interpenetrating each other. But from one dimension to the other usually they will be imperceptible to one another because of the variation in frequency.

An analogy that we have used to explain this idea many times on your planet is what we have called the radio analogy. You have on your planet a device you call radio. You know that you can perceive many different programs coming through the radio at any given moment, but you also know that you only perceive the program that your dial is tuned to. Now, this does not mean that all the other programs are not there. You know that all the other programs that are being broadcast to your radio are all there simultaneously. But because they are on different frequencies, you only perceive one at a time – that is, if your device is functioning properly, shall we say.

The idea, therefore, is that realities and dimensional planes follow this analogy in certain ways, and that you can perceive different realities, different consciousnesses, different existences, different realms, different dimensions. If you can change your frequency so that your senses, your perceptions, will be more aligned, more harmoniously linked with those other frequencies, then you can perceive them instead of perceiving the one that you have been taught for so long is the only reality in which you exist.

Each and every reality, shall we say, has its own barriers, its own limitations, its own definitions of what that reality is. And by definition, each and every frequency is going to be self-reinforcing. What that means is as follows: any reality will contain within that reality a system of reflective laws to reinforce the validity of that prime reality, as opposed to all other realities. If that were not so, there would be too much bleed-through from one reality to another; and you would not, as physiological beings, be able to make sense out of any one particular reality at any given moment.

So each and every dimension is self-reinforcing and seems, by definition, to exclude all other dimensions of reality. There is a place, a state, an attitude, however, that bridges them all – a central limbo state in which your consciousness can be aware of the fact that there are an infinite number of realities, all overlapping in one particular type of here and now. That particular state is achievable by any being in any plane, in any dimension of experience in any given moment.

But achieving that state – the ability to perceive other dimensions, other planes, other consciousnesses – is usually a matter of attitude, perspective, belief system, of emotion and thought pattern. Because it is your belief systems, your emotions and your thought patterns that you have to explore your reality with. And through those filters do you perceive the reality that you have for so long believed to be the only solid reality.

Do remember that your senses – which by the way you have seven of, not five; we’ll get back to that in a moment – your senses are not so much the windows to the world that you have always been taught they are. They are filters that keep out a majority of the realities around you, and allow you to perceive only the reality you think you ought to be perceiving, or need to be perceiving at any moment to allow you to function as concentrated consciousnesses, as physiological beings. The idea, however, is that when a civilization begins to open up to the possibility that there may be other realms of consciousness, you begin to interact with those other realms of consciousness. Your willingness itself to believe that there might just be a possibility to interact with other beings in other dimensional planes is a type of invitation to those other beings. Q: If we are responsible for our own reality, and our reality is some kind of pain: does it end with death? And does your society experience death as we do?

B: Not similarly. We do, as you say, translate from physiological to non-physiological formats, but we do it with our eyes open-consciously-and simply translate our physical form back into energy and continue on, in a more expanded way.

Know (that) the idea of the generation of pain in no way, shape of form means it must culminate in what you call physical death. It can always be transformed, especially now in your transformational life, where you are beginning to be aware of the fact that pain does not have to remain. So the idea is that in our civilization we no longer experience the idea of pain.

Now, the ideas of pain—all pain: mental pain, spiritual pain, emotional pain, physical pain—all forms of what you call pain are, from our perspective, the result of resistance of your natural self. Pain is friction, to put it on a simple terminology. Resisting the natural flow of yourself as an aspect of the Infinite.

And usually this resistance occurs when, having been brought up in the society you have been brought up in, you have been fed, and bought into, definitions of limitation. So that in trying to live out these definitions that are not necessary representative of who you really are, you are going against your grain, so to speak. And going against the grain gives you splinters.

So the idea of going against the grain will stab you and create the idea of pain. In fact, pain is one of the ways that can function as a barometer to let you know when you are attempting to swim upstream. It can be used in a positive manner in that way.

The idea goes hand in hand with the concept that we have discussed with your society many times as follows: Excitement—what you call the physical sensation, or the knowledge, the knowingness, of yourself that is translated as excitement, is your physical translation of the vibratory energy that represents the path you chose to be at that moment of your life.

So when something excites you more that anything else, that excitement is there to tell you three things. First: this is who and what you are. The circumstance and the situation that comes into your life at any given moment that excites you more than any other is letting you know: "this is who you are; act on it."

You see, excitement is the sign that many of you ask for.

"What can I do in life? Why am I here? What is my purpose? What is my mission? Give me a sign!"
"Hey, look over here; here’s a very exciting thing you could be doing!"

"Don’t bother me now; I’m looking for my purpose. I’m too busy searching for my mission in order to have a good time." "Hey, look over here! What about this exciting thing?" "Not right now; I’m looking for my mission in life."
But you see, the things that come with excitement are the answers, are the signals, are the signposts; that’s what excitement is. It’s tapping you squarely on the shoulder saying, "this is what you want to be doing right now."

The reason it excites you is because it is aligned with the idea of who you are; that’s what excitement is. The second thing it tells you is because it is who you are; it will be the thing-if you act on it with trust and conviction-it will be the thing that can be the most effortless thing you will ever do, because it is who you are. You are being yourself.

And so of course it will be effortless. The only time you have struggle is when you're trying to be someone you’re not-again fighting the flow, buying into the definitions of what the other individuals say you ought to be.

The third thing that tells you when a situation comes along that is more exciting than the other is: this is the thing that if you do it, will support you in the most abundant way to allow you to keep doing it in a more expanded, ever spiraling expanding way.

One: excitement tells you it is you. Two: it tells you that because it is you, it will be an effortless creation. Three: it tells you that because it is you and will be an effortless creation, you will be able to attract the abundance you need in what ever form you need.

And understand that abundance is just more than money. What you call on your planet money is one of the valid ways to represent abundance, but it is not the only way. There are many ways. So let us add one more definition.

Abundance: the ability to do what you need to do when you need to do it. Period! That’s all abundance is. Two individuals-one in your terms with more money, one in your terms with less money-if they are both capable of doing what they need to do when they need to do it, they are equally abundant because that’s all that matters to them. And that’s the level they have defined themselves to be. If someone has a more expanded idea of what it is that excites them, then perhaps they need more symbols of abundance to flow into their life to represent what it is they are.

If someone simply has an idea that is sufficient to the symbols of abundance that are already in his or her life, then they will still be able to accomplish it as smoothly, as effortlessly and easily as anyone else.

So the idea, fundamentally, is that any time you feel pain, you are basically ignoring-either because that you have been taught to ignore, or because you do not believe that you can deserve the ease of creation-but you are basically ignoring the thing that really excites you the most.

And when we say, "the thing that excites you the most," We do not mean you have to have, at this particular moment, an idea of the thing that will be the most exciting thing you will ever do in your life.

No. Take it a step at a time.

At any given moment, whatever it is at that moment-if you honestly assess all the things you are capable of doing-what ever it is at that moment that is the most exciting thing you could be doing, that you have the capability of doing something about, do it! It will align you with all of the flow of Creation, and life will be effortless.
This is actually what is meant in your society by the term surrendering. You’re not actually giving up your power; You’re actually flowing in complete accord with your power. But because it seems effortless, and because your world is used to thinking in terms of things being under your control if they require an effort, then you don’t think you’re in control when there is no effort.

And so you create this idea that you are giving your power up to a greater force. In a sense, yes; but not really. You’re actually taking your power, owning your responsibility, when your life is effortless. That means you are going with the flow of who you have created yourself to be specifically and what you were created to be generally; an aspect of the Infinite.

Is this making some sense to you? A great deal. So you can always transform pain by finding out within yourself, "what is the definition I have brought into that would create the pain to begin with? What must I believe in order to have this pain reaction?" When you get in touch with what the definition is, rewrite it! And then act like you believe the new definition is now more true than the old one.

And as soon as you do, your life will be representative of the new definition. Because your physical reality is always the product of what you hold to be the strongest truth, the strongest definition. That’s why there really isn’t any "the truth!"

There are only a few fundamentals that could be called the basics of existence that are common for everyone; but there aren’t very many of them. All the specifics are your creation. And the ones that seem similar from one person to another are similar only because you telepathically agree to create them to be similar so you can all play the same game.

But there is no real "the truth!" in specifics terms, against which to measure other truths for their validity. "The" truth is composed of all truths. And all truths are actually real.

Any definition you have at any given moment generates a self-perpetuating, self-fulfilling, self-sustaining, self-fulfilling automatic system of manifestation to support the definition, and make it seem as if for that moment it is the only true thing. Because every reality is real; every perception is a reality.

Your imagination is the gate, the library, to all probable realities. You cannot imagine non-existence. Whatever you imagine is, on some level-somewhere, somehow, somewhen-real. And there are various ones that can be manifest in your particular dimension. Yes, there may be some that are nonetheless real.

So the idea is to get a handle on what are the definitions that have created your experience? And if you find there are definitions you prefer, maintain them.

And if you find there are definitions you don’t prefer, change them. That’s what you have free will for.

Does this help you?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Oh, thank you very much! Sharing!
There Is No Reality Aside From Your Definition Of It

We have discussed, quite a few times in these conversations with each and every one of you, the notion of what it takes to change your reality, to be what you want it to be. We have discussed in great detail, from time to time, the tools that are necessary for you to be able to consciously apply different ideas to your belief systems and your reality, in order to affect the changes that you desire and to allow them to remain in your lives.

We have talked about the idea of how important it is to get in touch with this idea of definitions and beliefs, for those are the things that actually determine what you experience your reality to be, on a day-to-day basis. And we have talked about the idea of motivation; that at every given moment you are choosing whatever it is that is your behavior; whatever it is that is the reflective experience that is the result of your behavior. Choosing these things – motivated to choose these things based on the strongest definition that has been entrained within your consciousness since childhood.

In other words, the strongest belief you have about what is possible in reality, or lack of possibility in reality, is what motivates you to choose the kind of paths, the kind of behaviors, to make the kind of choices that you do in life and thus, get the kinds of results that you get.

The idea we have discussed also, from time to time, is that in getting in touch with the definitional belief systems within you that may be responsible for the realities you are getting, that you don’t prefer, and in discovering what definitions you would prefer to replace the old definitions with, so as to create a new reality more in keeping with your preferences. We have not gone into great detail, though we have mentioned it from time to time, about exactly what happens in that threshold between recognizing the old belief, and transforming it into the new belief.

There is a threshold that is crossed. In talking with you, we find that many of you feel there is difficulty in going from the old belief to the new belief, in the sense of, as you say in your language "making the new belief stick." Many times you say you seem to go back to choosing the old way, the old belief. You cannot bring yourself, for some reason, to simply allow the new belief to seem as real as the old belief. You cannot find yourself being motivated strongly enough to allow the new belief to maintain itself, to be in force. Because you are in such a pattern, so familiar with the old belief, that you seem more naturally to simply gravitate back to that particular style, instead of being able to allow yourself to continue to choose the belief you say you prefer.

The idea of assisting each and every one of you to allow the new belief to be easier to choose, so you won’t necessarily feel that the old belief has any more power than the new belief, is to understand exactly what is happening when you cross that threshold from old to new definitions. That threshold is not just a line that you cross. It is a place, in and of itself. It is an energy, in and of itself. It is a reality, in and of itself. Most importantly, it is the recognition, in and of itself, which you need to have in order to understand why you can allow the new belief to remain in force just as strongly as the old belief is.

This threshold, expanded from the notion of just a line that you cross, is expanded into an actual place you can occupy, that you can actually spend some time in. You can spend time in the crossing place, in the crossing point. This crossing point – and why most of you don’t realize that it is a place to actually spend time in – this crossing point is, by its very nature, the UNKNOWN, the unknown itself.

It is the recognition that there is no reality aside from what you define reality to be. And this is why, very often; you miss it, and jump over it so quickly – because it doesn’t appear to exist to you. It doesn’t appear real to you. And so you don’t spend any time getting used to the fact that when you let go of an old belief, you need to spend time getting used to the fact that there is no real reality.

If you understand there is no real reality, you will not feel that the old belief represents a more real reality than the new belief, and will not feel yourself drawn back to it, as if it were somehow more real, more solid, than any new belief you wish to incorporate into your mind, into your consciousness.

You need to take time between the old belief, and the new belief, to really understand, to really get a feeling that there is no reality, except for the fact that there is no reality. Did that sound contradictory? There is no reality, except that there is no reality. That there is no reality is the real reality.

The unknown is what you need to make a friend of. You have to let yourself be all right with the recognition. You have to let it be all right to spend time in the unknown. You have to let it be all right to have the recognition that there is no real reality aside from your definition of the idea of reality. That then creates your experience of reality.

Even your own scientists know this now. Many of your physicists are finding that it is the very heart of many of their theories of reality, that there is no reality, empirically, inherently. That you are responsible for creating your reality, based on your view of what you think it can be. So, when you find yourself experiencing any degree of difficulty in incorporating a new reality, you will usually find – not in all cases, but very often – you will usually find that it is because you have some idea that there is supposed to be some notion of reality that is real, against which you are supposed to measure your new reality, to see if you can find yourself lacking, or wanting, or to see how close you match this idealized real reality. But no matter what idealized idea that you come up with, that is still your creation.

There is no real reality aside from your definition of it. So you are only measuring against yourself, not against any real background of reality – to find yourself wanting, to find yourself coming up short, as you say. There is nothing to find yourself coming up short against. You are it, in your universe. You are it!

So, when you get in touch next time with an old definition, a belief system that you no longer prefer to live by, then take some time, even if you have already defined a new definition for yourself, before you incorporate it, before you cross the threshold. Letting go of the old one, and attempting to incorporate the new definition. Take some time, and spend some time in the middle, between those two definitions, getting used to the fact that no one definition is any more real than any other definition, because there is no reality, other than what you say it is.

And when you really let that sink in, when it becomes a real visceral feeling for you, that there is no reality, when you are finally comfortable with the unknown totally, then it will be easier for you to accept the new definition as being just as real, because you will finally realize that reality is up to you. That the degree of reality something has, the degree of reality a definition has, is completely up to you to determine.

So, play with that threshold. Spend some time there. You will get used to it. You will find actually that you will come to enjoy it. Do not be afraid of the unknown. The unknown is your friend. The unknown is the place, the crucible, the forge, in which you really make the greatest changes in your life. It’s where you can decide who you will become, completely and utterly in that moment and thus, then, experience the reality that is the reflection of that decision, completely and utterly, from that moment forth.

Q: Based on what you just said... I have been living there for the past week; I have really been experiencing that.

B: The unknown, the lack of any empirical reality, is it that to which you are referring?

Q: Yeah. I just got to the point where I just didn’t know who the heck I was any more.

B: Congratulations! Very often it is important for all of you to get to the point where you don’t know who you are, before you can finally allow yourself to decide who you are.

Q: That was just Monday of this week.

B: Why thank you.

Q: It is quite interesting. How long do we stay in this space?

B: I don’t know. It is unknown. The point is not to second-guess yourself. The idea is to simply allow yourself to accept whatever new definition is more in alignment with your preference. And if you find you are still choosing to create difficulty in accepting the new definition, then maybe that means you need to go back and spend some more time in the unknown, so that you can get used to the fact that the new definition can be fully accepted for its own sake. So you can do it that way if you wish.

You can, in a sense, test yourself, if you will, by accepting the definition – then going out of the unknown, seeing if it stays incorporated within your behavior, and if it doesn’t, then perhaps go back and spend some time in the unknown – until the new definition becomes the only reality you will accept.

Q: I found that I am just living in this, and it doesn’t seem necessary... I mean I just surrendered it totally, and it doesn’t seem necessary so far to create any other new definitions.

B: That will be up to you. But you are really creating definitions every moment; otherwise you wouldn’t be having any experiential reality at all. You understand?

Q: Yes. Thank you.
There is No Reality
Aside from Your Definition of it!

We have discussed quite a few times in these conversations with each and every one of you the notion of what it takes to change your reality, to be what you want it to be. We have discussed in great detail from time to time, the tools that are necessary for you to be able to consciously apply different ideas to your belief systems, and your reality in order to affect the changes that you desire, and to allow them to remain in your lives.

We have talked about the idea of how important it is to get in touch with this idea of definitions, and beliefs, for those are the things that actually determine what you experience your reality to be, on a day to day, basis. And we have talked about the idea of motivation that at every given moment you are choosing whatever it is, that is your behavior; whatever it is, that is the reflective experience that is the result of your behavior. Choosing these things. Motivated to choose these things based on the strongest definition that has been entrained within your consciousness since childhood. In other words, the strongest belief you have about what is possible in reality, or lack of possibility in reality, is what motivates you to choose the kind of paths, the kind of behaviors, make the kind of choices that you do in life, and thus get the kinds of results that you get.

The idea we have discussed also, from time to time, is that in getting in touch with the definitional belief systems within you, that may be responsible for the realities you are getting, that you don’t prefer, and in discovering what definitions you would prefer to replace the old definitions with, so as to create a new reality more in keeping with your preferences. We have not gone into great detail, though we have mentioned it from time to time, about exactly what happens in that threshold between recognizing the old belief, and transforming it into the new belief.

There is a threshold that is crossed. In talking with you, we find that many of you feel there is difficulty in going from the old belief, to the new belief, in the sense of, as you say in your language "making the new belief stick." Many times you say you seem to go back to choosing the old way, the old belief. You cannot bring yourself, for some reason, to simply allow the new belief to seem as real as the old belief. You cannot find yourself being motivated strongly enough, to allow the new belief to maintain itself, to be in force, because you are in such of a pattern, so familiar with the old belief, that you seem more naturally to simply gravitate back to that particular style, instead of being able to allow yourself to continue to choose the belief you say you prefer.

The idea of assisting each and every one of you to allow the new belief to be easier to choose, so you won’t necessarily feel that the old belief has any more power than the new belief, is to understand exactly what is happening when you cross that threshold from old, to new definitions. Thought Discernment and Inner Earth

Q: I just wanted to share with you that this gives me great joy to share this vibration. My first question is: the best way to handle, or to cease negative thoughts, that I suppose come from what is known as the alter ego, or the Anti-Christ – what would you suggest in that area?

B: Allow yourself to recognize that as you become more expanded, as you contain more of Creation within you, you are obviously going to become aware of more of it. And that includes the negative as well as the positive. But just because you are aware of it, that doesn’t mean you have to put it into practice.

Again, the idea is to go back to your conscious commandment. And we can now couple this with the concept of the library analogy that we have used and shared with many of you from time to time. Think of all of those ideas, all of these thoughts, as the books in the library. They are all sitting upon the shelves. You can go into the library; you can take any one of them off the shelf. You can open it up; you can read it. All of the joyful books, all of the scary books: you can read them all. The only one that goes home with you is the one you consciously decide to check out. So it does not matter how many of these thoughts pass through you, or where they come from.

You are going to be cognizant that it is a probable way to exist; but if you simply know that it is not the way you prefer, then you will not put energy behind it, and you won’t have to worry about it. Worrying about the fact that they are there puts energy behind them. If they occur, let them occur. Examine them for what they are. Use them from a perspective that you can get something out of them. Maybe some scenario will occur in your life that will allow you to hearken back to the thought you had, so that you will have a perspective and experience that may assist you in assisting someone else.

When you become familiar with the idea of that negativity then, when someone may seek your assistance, you will have a frame of reference to discuss the idea from. Simply use it in whatever way, shape or form allows you to continue to express your service in light and love and integrity. Does that assist you?

Q: Very much, thank you.
B: Well, thank you as much.

Q: My next question is: I wish to visit Inner Earth.
B: Go ahead.

Q: Thank you. Can you give me an approximate…
B: That way!
Q: …place and time.
B: Not really. However, there are many areas upon your planet that are relatively conducive, that contain energy vortexes that may allow you at least the beginning of a communication with that particular dimension of experience. For do remember: it is another dimensional plane, and in your dimension it is not literally in your planet. That is the apparent direction you will appear to go in encountering those beings. But it is on a slightly different vibratory plane. They’re not physically – in your dimension – inside your planet. You follow me?

Q: I follow you.

B: One very strongly conducive area to acclimate to the energy that can put you in touch with their consciousness is in what you all the Shasta area, or the Sedona area. All right?

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you very much. And enjoy all the surprises and the unexpected ways in which they will appear.

Q: I have two more questions, if you don’t mind? The shortest one… if one wishes to channel a wondrous entity like yourself…

B: Oh, wondrous entity!

Q: Or a wondrous entity like I am. What could we do – anything?

B: Be yourself, and any agreements you have made will express themselves in whatever ways they need to, to allow you to continue to be who you are. Do not forget that when it comes right down to it. Of course, as you have said, you are a wondrous being, and channeling is only doing what you love to do. Have a good time.

Q: Thank you.

B: Happy channeling. Sharing!

Threads in a Tapestry
B: You are now all beginning to learn to think in multidimensional mechanics.
Q: Okay.
B: And therefore, as you begin to chart these maps it will become less confusing.
Q: Okay, because, like I say, the interactions I ... I’ve been astral projecting, but maybe there are many levels to the astral plane...
B: There are; there are.
Q: ... that I’m dipping into.
B: There are. Do you remember when your space probes finally got a really, really close look at the rings of the planet Saturn in your system?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you remember how astonished you were as to exactly how many fine gradations of rings there are in what looks like so few big rings?
Q: Yes.
B: Thousands, tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands of fine gradations in what, from a distance, appears to be one smooth, unbroken ring. That’s what you’re discovering now about different states of consciousness; it is all one unbroken thing. But you have made the differentiations in creating the concept of consciousness, quote, unquote, lowering itself through the levels, through the frequency domains, to create physical reality; this is the result. Now that you’re winding your way back up and integrating all these things, you discover exactly how many differentiations and gradations you have created within consciousness.
Q: Layers and layers.
B: Layers and layers and layers and layers.
Q: And dimensions and dimensions.
B: And that’s one of the reasons why it takes, from your domain, a little bit of time to explore all these things and reintegrate them. Because it requires that you don’t dissolve them; it requires you learn to establish communication among all of them simultaneously.
And that will take you a little time to learn how to juggle that many fine gradations.
Q: I would say, yes, it will.
B: Yes, but that’s all right. That’s supposed to happen, that’s part of the idea of the experience of physical reality. That’s part of the idea of the experience of doing the integration from the perspective of physical reality – is learning how to take all those fine gradations and learn to weave them and appreciate and experience them as threads within one tapestry; but not losing sight of the threads in the big picture.
"Tides" of March

B: All right, I'll say good day to you, this day of your time. How are you all?

Audience: Great! Perfect! Excellent!

B: Let us begin, once again, by thanking each and every one of you for allowing this transmission to occur, in this manner, and on this day. Once again, each and every time you all co-create with us this particular kind of interaction, through this particular window, it allows us the opportunity to experience, through each and every one of you, that many more faces of Creation and it expands our understanding of all that Creation can be. So, we thank you for this gift.

We would like to begin this transmission, this day of your time, with the following concept. Many times we have discussed, in and around about this time of your year, the concept of that date that you call the Ides of March, what you call your March 15 date, as it has been given by all of you, in you culture, an auspicious energy. Many people will usually feel that it is a portent of change, whether for positive or negative is not really the point. It does represent, as we have said a few times, a kind of stepping up period in your collective consciousness, in your collective energy; and, as such, we would like to address this issue, this time around, by a slightly different title and that would be, rather than the "Ides of March," the "Tides of March." You may, when listing this title, put what you call in your language, your quotation marks around the word "tides," so that it will be understood by those reading it that it is, in a sense, a euphemism.

The "Tides of March" is though, in some ways, a more accurate representation of the concept, for energy and consciousness, like your ocean, do have eddies, currents, tides. The collective consciousness of your planet has collective momentum, inertia, in a sense, a kind of mass and momentum. It has tides, it has currents like a stream and will flow to certain areas, will flow in certain ways. You can take advantage of this when you are allowed, by yourself, to become aware of this more consciously.

That you have these energies is the result of all the collective agreements, telepathically, that you all make at every moment. Many times without even knowing that you are speaking to each other, in this way, to reinforce the concepts and beliefs in your collective reality and, of course, as a result, in your individual reality as well, your personal reality, as well. When you can learn to be sensitive to these "tides," these currents, then you can with more clarity chart them in the same way, the same manner, so to speak, that you would chart the currents of the sea and learn to sail upon them to your advantage; so that they will guide you; so that they will draw you; so that they will take you where it is you wish to go, rather than being taken off course, so to speak.

These "tides" amplify at certain times of the year and this your March month is one such time. It is why it is intuitively labeled, by many of you, astrologically, as your sign of Pisces, which is in your minds the idea of the symbol of psychic functioning, when you become more capable of being sensitive to those subtle energies or what energies you typically think of as subtle, but which can become more pronounced, more profound and which you can become more keenly aware of.
One of the ways, not the only way, one of the ways you can become more aware of the motion, of the direction, the momentum, the speed of these "tides" of March is as follows. If you will allow yourself the opportunity, if you wish to, to find a body of water, it can be an ocean, it can be a lake, it can even be one of your swimming pools. The idea would be to allow yourself to immerse yourself, your body in this water. It is not impossible that you can even do this in, what you call, one of your bathtubs, but the more room around you you have, the better. And as you float in this water, attempt to do so on your back. If you have difficulty floating you can use a device that floats and you can lie on the device, a raft, or board or floatation device, if that will help you, but be out in the water whether you are physically in it or not, be surrounded by it. Allow yourself then to serenely float on your back; be careful that you do not get burnt. Allow yourself some time, maybe about fifteen of your minutes, to close your eyes. Go inward, relax, breathe, let everything go, forget about your day to day world, just float and surrender yourself to these energies, these currents. Just open up to them in whatever way, shape, or form your imagination says is the easiest method for you. Imagine that you feel them coursing through you, imagine that you see them, imagine that you hear them, whatever works best for you, any one or all of these or others will do.

Just let your imagination be your guide as to how you feel like relating to this concept. And as you float there, out of the water, feeling these currents going through you, allow yourself, in your serenity, to get a sense of direction, allow them to orient you. Some of you may begin to feel a tingling in your body, sometimes specifically in your sinus cavity area, due to the preponderance of the substance called magnetite in your sinuses, which actually aligns and orients you to the magnetic field of your planet, that will be involved; but what we are talking about here of course is more subtle energies.

But let yourself begin to feel that it is orienting you to yourself, to your purpose, to your truth, to your natural...natural consciousness. Let yourself feel, if you have been feeling out of sorts, out of alignment, hurried, stressed, worried, finding yourself beset by difficulties or what you would define as problems, let yourself feel that this energy, this current is bringing you back into true position, like a compass needle. Imagine yourself like a compass needle, you don’t actually have to find yourself pointing north literally, but find your true north in yourself, your truth north for yourself, whatever that feeling is, whatever that image may be, whatever sound may be, whatever that thought may be, whatever that word may be that your imagination comes up with that represents that knowingness that your heart, your mind, your soul, your spirit, your body, your existence is aligned. That natural state wherein you can say without hesitation, this is how I want to feel all the time, this, therefore, is who I really am, this is the frequency of energy I operate best on, this is my creative energy, this is my natural self, in whatever way you wish to express it.

When you allow yourself to feel that alignment, that moment, that vibration, that energy, then you have allowed yourself to take advantage of these currents, in collective consciousness, that regardless of what your personalities may resist in your day to day lives, regardless of the frustrations and the de-alignments you may think you experience. Your natural proclivity, your natural inclination is to actually allow yourself to float and align in the direction of love, of creativity. And allowing yourself to do that in this exercise will allow you, the more often you do it, to become more sensitive and more sensitized to picking up upon that exact and perfect frequency that is your true natural self.

In that this month of March is auspiciously created, by all of you, to be a month of more high psychic sensitivity, then you can take advantage of the acceleration provided by the collective consciousness of your people, to allow yourself, perhaps, more opportunity, more likelihood to hone in and home in on this energy, on this vibration, on this willingness and allowance to let go and be your true self, using this technique.

This does not mean you cannot do it at any other time of the year, but take advantage of the current, of the tide that is now high and allow yourself to ride the tide of your own truth, for these are not just ideas, these energies do exist. You will and have begun to learn to actually measure them, not only with your own senses, but with your machines in time. They do exist, but you biologically are already attuned to them, you were created to be attuned to them. So use the machine that can already sense them, and that is your body, and allow yourself, not make, not force, but allow yourself to ride that "tide" in your imagination, by living in your imagination, by living in your heart. And understand that your heart has intelligence, has awareness and can perfectly align you to the vibration of which we speak. It is designed to do that, let it do so.

Now then, we thank you for allowing us to share with you this notion of how to use your ocean. And in return for the gift that you are giving to our civilization, in allowing us to communicate with you in this way, I ask now, in return for this gift, in what way may I be of service to you?
Q: Battling linear time?
B: What does that mean?
Q: Well, having many more things to do and get done.
B: Sometimes, not always, but more often than not, that is a symptom of doing more that you have to do. It is usually a symptom of not really allowing the thing that excites you the most be the first thing you do. Because the thing that excites you the most, pay attention, IS: A) the organizing principle, and B) the driving engine that determines C) what other things need to be done. When you act on the thing that excites you the most to the best of your ability FIRST, your day will automatically organize itself in order of all the things that excites you that you have the ability to do.

Whatever it is, in a sense, you don’t have time to do when you’ve done that day didn’t need doing. Because when you operate that way all the things that are truly important for you to function holistically and all the circumstances that really need to appear in your life to allow you to DO what you really need to get done WILL feel and fit perfectly IN any given moment, or day, or time span. And will allow you to experience this in a very effortless, creative, poetic, and synchronistic way, rather than feeling you have to scrambled to do things that may only be, in a sense, things that your personality structure has been taught it needs to do as an aspect of who you think you are.
Questioner: I’m wondering if there might be an imaginary model. I’m looking for a model, that I might be able to affect the aging process through...
Bashar: Did you say aging?
Q: Yes.
B: Live in the moment. The more you live in the moment, the more you become absorbed literally in the moment, doing what you love to do, the less you will age. All of you know the experience of saying that, "time flies when you are having fun." You know that time isn’t really flying, and in all reality it isn’t just that you are ignoring the passage of time. You create time, and when you do something that allows you to be so focused that you come out of it and say, "Oh, many hours have passed, where did the time go?" You actually did not create that time. If you feel, feel like you only experienced about one half hour, when perhaps to the rest of the world three hours went by, you have actually only aged one half hour. Living in the moment, staying in the moment, following your excitement and staying in that vibration, unlocks you from the time matrix, and allows you to experience yourself as relatively ageless.
Now, the idea is that when you then realize that three hours have passed, what you’re simply doing is automatically, and by choice, reconnecting yourself to the time stream that all of you have agreed to share – because you don’t want to necessarily completely divorce yourself from that matrix. Otherwise you will not be able to interact with many other people on your planet, at this time. But the more you all live in the moment, the more you’ll be able to interact within the Now, and the less aging you will experience, because you are literally creating less time. And when you stay in the moment you are creating less details, you are allowing yourself to see the big picture of what you are doing, and allowing your Higher Self to allow the details to be pulled into position automatically. You don’t have to fragment your consciousness to take care of worrying all the details, or juggling all the details into place. The fewer details, in that fashion, that you pay attention to, the less time you need to get done what you need to get done. Do you follow along?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that model work for you?
Q: Yes, quite a bit. I was wondering about when we’re asleep...
B: Yes?
Q: Do we actually physically age at a slower rate then?
B: Yes. Yes, because you are living more in the now, in your more natural state – what you call or remember as a dream. Now, in a sense, remember that you are in fact dreaming right now; your physical reality is, in a sense, actually more truly the dream. The physical reality is actually, in a sense, more truly, really the real you. This is a dream of time and space, when you wake up you will not necessarily experience time and space as much any more. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that help you?
B: Yes, very much.
Time and Process

Q: I was thinking about, like – from one moment or a fraction of a moment even, to the next – like, when I was a kid, I used to jump out of a tree or something. From the point that I was three feet above the ground to the point that I was two feet above the ground it appears connected. But instead, I was thinking of, like, looking at the entire jump as one experience.

B: Yes. You can now recognize that you have the ability to create the type of reality that will allow you to be in the tree in one moment, and on the ground the next – if that is what you wish. To have a seed one moment, and a blossom the next – if that is what you wish. You will experience the amount of time you created to experience it.

Someone else may still need to see the blossom take a week. You will not, you will see it be a seed, you will see it be a blossom; and when you turn around to the next individual, they will tell you that they have seen the process of the growth – but you have not. This is the type of reality that fourth density experience is about.

Q: I was also thinking about, like, people who jump off the Empire State Building, and when they are halfway down, they think: “Maybe I don’t want to jump.” I mean, there are people who have fallen 5,000 feet or something and somehow survived.

B: Yes. There are many ideas in this, some of which we have been discussing with you. But simply, now you will begin to lose sight of the processes, and simply see the events themselves. That is why you will be so accelerated in fourth density. You will not spend time in the process, you will simply live in the moment, and fourth density will simply be one ecstatic moment after another.

Q: Yes, I have… I certainly can go along with this. I think it’s all wonderful. I do have a couple of questions about what you said earlier concerning the wiring in our brain.

B: Yes.

Q: As far as I know, our neurophysiologists, first of all, have not been able to understand or describe the processes that make up conscious…

B: Yes.

Q: They have…

B: That is because consciousness is not a product of physicality.

Q: Uh huh. Right.

B: Physicality is a product of consciousness.

Q: Right. But as far as memory mechanisms are concerned…

B: Yes.

Q: I don’t think that they are considered to be pathways, as such. They are more electrical activity…

B: Yes. That is the point. Pathway is the root of electrical activity, the interaction of electrical activity. You follow me?
Q: Oh, I guess it depends how you define pathway.
B: Yes. Simply take it in whatever way you understand the idea, to represent what you call the interaction that is necessary to define the process you are discussing.
Q: Okay. All right. Thank you.
B: Now, as we have said, the brain – which is what they are using to explore the brain – cannot see itself objectively. They will not discover what they are after in a mental way. When they include consciousness in their equations to begin with, they will understand what they need to understand. They will not find it analytically; you never find anything analytically. If you think you have, it is only because your consciousness has created an understanding, and then you simply take yourself through the process of analyzing to find what you already know.
Q: Yes, uh huh. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Time and Process
Time and The Primary Frequency

Q: My question is about a comment that I’m told you spoke of about a year or so ago – about the fact that in fourth density we will experience time in a different way. In the sense that we will be on this earth – as we know time now – for a much longer period. Could you comment on that?

B: The idea is that as you begin to live more in the now, in the present, and not so much living in the past, not so much living or worrying about the future – the more you live in the now – the less you experience the idea of time itself. You will simply, in your terminology, lose track of when it is. You follow me?

Q: Yes I do.

B: The days, even though they may be observable by the coming and going of, quote/unquote, daylight, will not necessarily have as much meaning to you in the sense of absolutely having to know what time it is, what day it is. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: You will simply move as you feel you need to move, and you will automatically be exactly where you need to be, when you need to be there – whether you know what time you got there or not. Days will blend into days, years into years. Years will pass; hundreds of years will pass. And to you it may still seem like a day, so much in the present are you living – in the now, the eternal now. You follow me?

Q: Yes. It does already.

B: That is why many of you will find that your life spans are increasing. This, in a sense, is an abstract misnomer. It is not literally that you are having more time; it is that you are creating less time. So you simply come into your primal now continuous existence, and simply span the ages. Because they become reduced by comparison to you; because you are no longer counting.

Now, because you will accelerate at that rate, it is our perception that your civilization does not need to remain physically embodied for any more than approximately two to three thousands years more. Then you will go on to other realms. Other dimensions. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: And the second question is that, when I’m meditating especially, I’m just like, vibrating.

Q: Is that . . .

B: As you connect into the primal vibratory frequency of creation, you become sustained by that energy, and you require less symbolic sustenance. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm. And this other higher vibration – I feel, it’s almost like . . .

B: You are being introduced to more of you; you are being accelerated by you. You are becoming the higher self in physical terms. You are simply acclimating to a new level, a new frequency. That is all. You are more expanded.
If you are in that sense, more, then there is, in your terms, more energy. More energy – higher frequency. You follow me?

Q: Not really clearly.

B: Oh, all right. If you have a certain degree of energy, it vibrates in a certain way. If you add energy to it, the vibration becomes higher. You follow me?

Q: Okay, yes.

B: So you are – as you expand yourself into your higher self – simply becoming aware of more of your energy; higher frequency vibration energy. You are aligning with the primary frequency vibration energy. You are aligning with the primary frequency of creation. Aligning, harmonizing, synchronizing with that energy.

Q: I see.

B: Because the society you have created yourselves to be has existed on a very low energy level. So comparatively, as you make the comparison in your mind, you are now going to a higher vibratory level – you are speeding up your frequency. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Does that explain it for you?

Q: Yes, it does.

B: Well, thank you very much.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Sharing!

Time And Timing

Q: My sister is here with me tonight. We were talking today at the beach, and we were actually arguing because I told her that there was no such thing as time.

B: Yes and no. Yes, there is, as you create it to exist. Understand that when we say that there is no such thing as time, we are talking about the idea that you create it as you need it, in that way. Realize that for the physical reality you create, when you create time within physical reality there is time within physical reality.

When you decide to allow yourself to perceive yourself through physical reality, oh yes, there is time for you, at that time. But recognize that since you create time it is up to you to determine the idea of time.

And when you find yourself in non-physical reality you will understand that you are creating the time and that there is no perception of time in non-physical reality; for you will realize that you have created it, and yes, from the non-physical perspective, there is no time! Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: All right. What else did you share with your sister?

Q: What else did I share with her?

B: Yes.

Q: Well, one thing I shared with her was about our soul star, and about... we went to the Planetarium yesterday and I actually found out where Sirius was in relation to Orion and the Pleiades, and we had a great time at the Planetarium, and we really tried to share about how the stars...

B: You were sharing.

Q: I was sharing with her about how the stars are very spiritual.

B: Why?

Q: Well, I feel my connection to the universe, and I felt that a lot while going to the Planetarium.

B: Then you are very spiritual. Understand, in that way, that you are using the idea of the stars as symbology in that sense. They are in that way, as you make them to be, very spiritual, but understand that all that spirituality stems from you.

Q: Right, well she has always said that she is not into all of my spiritual kind of stuff, and I was talking to her a lot about what the basis of it all might be – creation, and things that are larger than myself.

B: What?

Q: Systems that exist in the world that are bigger than the “I” that is...

B: Bigger – how? Bigger – how?

Q: That are connected to a larger network... no? I’m not? (Laughing)

B: As you create the idea of being separate from one to begin with, then you can create the idea of there being larger networks than yourself, yes. Understand that since you are creating that idea, then there is no “larger.”
Q: Okay.
B: As you find yourself connected in that way, you find yourself being the network. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. And we were realizing that the start of this universe could just be a cell splitting, and that everything... the universe is constantly expanding and so in the beginning it might have been just tiny. It might have...
B: May I say something to you?
Q: Yes.
B: Realize, in this way, that for an individual who was proposing to put forth the idea that there is no time, you talk many times of starts and beginnings.
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, for you there seems to be much time.
Q: Oh, yes. I was just saying to my sister how you had been talking about the concept that there is no time.
B: All right.
Q: And I didn’t know quite how to explain that to her. So I asked you tonight to explain about what that means because I don’t really...
B: Is there, at this time, an understanding?
Q: For me? Yes, I know I create time to exist as I create it to exist. I create it to exist however I create it to exist. I don’t know if my sister understands.
B: All right.
Q2 (sister): I just feel that there is time... like everybody in the whole universe goes by a clock.
B: Which clock? One clock? The whole universe? We do not have clocks. (AUD: laughter)
Q: I get it. (Laughing)
B: Understand we are enjoying this exchange very much in that way. We are not chastising, nor forcing the idea upon you that you must acclimate to one particular point of view. Sharing your own point of view is what you were created for, in that sense. You are a particular point of view of the universe. You are your own unique gift, in that way. By all means, if you wish, it is up to you, it is your choice, but recognize we are not forcing you to do anything in that sense. You may, by all means, share of yourself and realize you are giving a gift in doing so.
Q: Thank you.
B: Therefore, as you were saying, you feel that there is time throughout the universe?
Q: Yes. Well, I feel that we were trying to be on time here – to arrive on time.
B: Trying?
Q: Yes, we got here right on time.
All right. No trying needed.

And I feel that, you know, time is a big part of life.

It is for the physical universe, yes. But understand that there are many levels of understanding and universes for which time is not a concept at all.

Understand that many times you can experience the idea that, as you find yourself involved in what you term to be very intensive concentration upon one particular idea, you recognize that the “passage,” as you say, of time has been quite quick. Do you follow me?

Yes.

In that way you can understand that, as you become involved, as you say, involved in any endeavor, and you do not recognize the passage of time, then as you remove yourself from the endeavor you realize that much time has passed, but you have not felt it.

Recognize that what you are experiencing is not the idea of being oblivious to the passage of time, but your own alteration of the idea of time itself, as you create its perception. Realize that if there was the idea of timing imposed from the outside – apart from you in that sense – no matter what focus you had, or no matter what endeavor you were doing, you would always have the same exact relentless perception of time – if it was imposed, not from your own consciousness, but from outside. Do you follow me?

Yes.

Recognize that you can make time malleable. You can perceive it as you wish, in that way; or not perceive it as you wish to, in that way. It is totally, therefore, the idea that you are creating the idea of the perception of the passage of time itself.

Recognize that as we say, the idea of time is simply one of the parameters that defines physicality. It is one of the ideas that gives of the idea that you are physical. Do you follow me?

Yes.

It is, in that way, a tool, a very viable, very valuable tool, for the idea of the understanding of the separation of self from the original idea you have created – this physical universe.

It is then a tool to be used; but when recognized as a tool it may be played with, as you may understand your vernacular term – played with. It may be stretched, pulled, shortened, lengthened, given weight, made lighter. You follow me?

Yes.

In that way you may do anything you wish with this idea of the passage of time. Now, from our point of view, it is not so much that you need to be “on time,” but that you are always within your own perfect timing; therefore, every endeavor, every relationship, every situation that you create for yourself, in that way is a matter of timing.

And though you have created the idea of time with which to recognize the idea of the timing against, as you then find yourself relating to the entire mass consciousness around and about you, you will find that the idea is timing, rather than time itself. And many times you will find that the timing will be paramount to the idea of time. And that many times, many different timings can happen within many different time frames. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Will this have clarified some of the idea?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: Oh, thank you very much for the sharing of yourself in this way, very boldly, very freely, and the recognition of yourself as a gift. And thank you very much for your expansion and your willingness to share, in that way, with the blending of consciousness at this timing!

Time and Timing
Time Out

B: All right, I’ll say, how are all of you aliens this evening?
AUD: Great. Terrific. Etc.

B: We will begin this interaction this evening of your time with the idea of perspective, point of view. Realizing and allowing yourselves to remember that every reality is but a matter of point of view, a matter of perspective, simply because, as we have discussed, now is the only experiential time that ever exists. Now is the only substantial reality to existence.

Therefore, anything that you call existing in the past, existing in the future, existing in an alternate dimension, a parallel dimension, a different level of consciousness – all of those ideas, because now is the only real time they all exist – now. And they all exist overlapping, in a sense, one another on different frequency bands, much in the same way that your television or radio device is always receiving all of the programs at the same time, but you only hear which one you are tuned into. That is your perspective.

Your reality, what you perceive, is simply your choice of all the probabilities that go into defining what type of reality you have agreed to share with all the other portions of consciousness sharing that reality with you. Therefore, recognize it is no great mystery and no great task as to why it is quite possible and quite probable to be able to discern ideas in the so-called past, ideas of the so-called future, ideas of so-called other realities – because you are not looking into the past, you are not looking into the future and you are not looking into another dimension in all reality.

You are looking into other aspects of the here and now, simply tuning your dial to the appropriate frequency. By simply becoming the idea that automatically tunes the dial, by simply cognizing, becoming cognizant of an idea within the dimension of your imagination, do you find yourselves automatically tuned into that frequency in whatever way you need to be to allow that idea to serve you in being who you chose to be. It is all quite simple, all quite effortless and all quite automatic. You all follow along?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

B: Also therefore, recognize that because it is only a matter of perspective, only a matter of point of view that you happen to experience the reality you are experiencing, recognize quite simply that because everything is here and now, then every other being, every other reality, every other consciousness that perceives a reality in its own way, is simply, in a sense, another aspect of you, because you are all together in one place, one time in a sense. And everyone else on all the different other frequencies that All That Is is experiencing simultaneously along with you.

And since All That Is and the universe is holographic – that is every portion of the whole contains the whole – then you know that every other being in All That Is, in reality, in the universe is also within you. It is also a portion of you and you are creating as always your particular version of other consciousness to relate to in terms of forming a complete, definition of the particular frequency you are on – by creating a relationship to everyone else to be able to determine where you are in the frequency band. You follow me?

AUD: Yes.

B: That is the idea of the reality you have created and why you have created it as a reflection – so that you can allow it to be possible to experience a limited frequency band. Otherwise, if you could not forget that you are all, you could not play the game of limitation. Now, once again, we will remind you that you have chosen this idea; it serves you – if you let it. And it has added to your overall knowledge of all the different ways you can exist within All That Is, within the universe, within creation.

Allow yourselves, therefore, to simply recognize that you are the Masters of Limitation. No other civilization that we have come across has so intensely focused themselves in limitation as have you; so you are the masters. Allow yourselves to recognize that your choice to experience such extensive limitation means you knew you were strong enough to do it. Let that be an indication of the extent of your power.

AUD: Well said.

Time Travel

Bashar: Sharing!

Questioner: Hello.

B: Hello!

Q: When you create your isolation field around your craft and redefine the space/time coordinates to relocate to another space / time coordinate, yes.

B: Very good, right.

Q: Can you define the space / time coordinates in such a way as to transport back to what we call our past or our future? That is, can you move to planet Earth in 15th century?

B: Yes. Space / time is one thing. Traveling in space is traveling in time; traveling in time is traveling in space; it is one thing. However, recognize that everything will still fit in place, even from the apparent linear point of view. And that any so-called changes that may appear to take place within any previous time track that you came from, will actually not be taking place in that literal time track, but in one parallel to it. You follow me?

Q: So exactly what do you experience?

B: The same thing that you would ... the effect is basically the same. In other words, you could step into your craft, go back in time, do something – if you are assuming that you wish to, quote/unquote, change the way something happened. Then when you make that change, if you go back to the exact same time track where you left off, there will be no apparent change, because the change that was made was not in your time track, by definition, because that’s not what happened in your time track.

The change, so to speak, is not a change. It is a part of the normal history of a parallel time track, a parallel universe. So, if you wish to see the effect of the so-called change, you must go to the future or go back to the present of the parallel time track that you made the change in. You follow me? Is this making any sense?

Q: Somewhat. I will have to listen to this tape.

B: You have time track A, time track B. Time track A is your time track, let us say. All right? Your history, all right? Yes, no, maybe?

Q: Yes.

B: All right. Time track B is another history altogether; everything is occurring simultaneously. Therefore, let us say, time track A and time track B are very similar, very similar, the idea, in this way, is that if you – leaving this point in your time track A – go back to the supposed past, you are actually going into the idea of another time track, and being a part of its history in a natural progressive way.

You cannot actually literally change your own past in the same linear coordinate system. When you, quote/unquote, change your past, you are simply shifting gears into another time that contains that ability to change, so you will have the experience of that change in your new present. You cannot change history. You alter yourself to another history that is appropriately representative of the change you desired to make – more correctly.

Q: And the same applies to moving to the future.

B: Yes.

Q: How exactly do you create the isolation field?

B: It is a microwave energy effect that is an alteration of light, stepped up many magnitudes above what you typically think of as an electrical discharge. It is dispersed through the hull of the craft, through various devices, after the light is stepped up by other various devices – one of which we call the flash matrix – which incorporates many different elements.

The isolation field will be seen to be a microwave effect. Microwave generation, at that high rate of speed, will disconnect any object within the bubble from the universe in which it existed. Because you, in that sense, match the vibration frequency – in a very highly condensed way – of the speed of light itself, the speed of light being the barrier limit that represents physical dimensionality.

When you create around your craft a wall, a shell, made of the very substance of the physical universe – light – then you, within that shell, have created a bubble, a hole in that universe. You follow me? You are redirecting the light, out of which everything is made, around you rather than through you. You are now sustained by the primal template universe, which exists on a completely different frequency, far above and beyond the frequency of light. Therefore, in that universe, you literally are everything at once. So you can be anywhere and anywhen you want to be.

Q: Can this be done with our technology now?

B: Yes.

Q: How do you do it? Have a piece of matter bombarded with microwaves?

B: No. You will find that many individuals are working on this idea now. Listen to your media; listen to your literature. Many individuals are beginning to explore and experiment and they will come out with what you call public notification of many of these ideas.

Basically, it involves the idea of counter-rotational masses that are highly magnetically charged – that will generate the field, of which we are speaking, in a fundamental way. Fundamental enough to allow the isolation to take place. More sophisticated control will came from the generation of these fields through more highly conductive materials.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you! There will be but a few moments remaining for these interactions, this evening of your time....
Time Variances

Q: When we did the beginning of the meditation, the white vibration...

B: Yes.

Q: The words that you were saying are similar ideas. I was curious what they represented; the one that really rang my bell was the power numbers. And I was wondering if you could elaborate on those.

B: We simply transliterated the vibration of your first eight numbers into their representational matrices, in terms of your collective consciousness. One being the primary; two being the polarity. Three, the triad, the polarity with the fulcrum balance in between. Four, the quadrant, the way you typically think of your physiological world. Five, the number of humanity, and the way it expresses itself in your humaniform being; five extensions, five races. And so forth. Five senses, in that sense. Six, being the number of technology, so to speak. Seven, the awareness of all the different levels of your consciousness; and eight, the primary octave, bringing yourselves, in a sense, back to one; the first octave, the first level. You follow me?

Q: Yes, thank you.

B: Thank you.

Q: You said this was 33 seconds, but you seemed to be counting much faster than our seconds.

B: Within the idea that we are co-creating, the 33 seconds will be relevant to the experience, whether it is relevant to your outside sense of time. It will be an emotional 33 seconds. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm.

B: It was emotionally close enough for you to simply recognize that you were creating fluctuations, emotionally, which will create fluctuations in the time/space field that you generate as your reality illusion. You are going to find much of this flexibility occurring in your lives anyway. Again, as we have said, you already know that when you are having fun, as you say, time flies. But it is more than that. It is not that you are simply having so good a time you ignore the passage of time; it is that when you are focused completely in the now, in the now present moment, you actually do not create as much of an experience as taught. And what may seem like 33 seconds to you, may turn out to everyone else to actually have been an hour. And...

Q: Say that one again.

B: What may seem to be 33 seconds to you at times... let me put it this way, as you say, in pragmatic terms: you know that when you are doing something you really enjoy doing, many times several hours of your time will have gone by. And to you, well, maybe you thought, “oh, if I had to guess, I’d say maybe 15 minutes, maybe half hour at the most has gone by.” You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Understand: you, for yourself, literally, only created one half hour of experiential time. You literally only aged one half hour to everyone else’s three.

Q: Mhmm.
B: Do you follow me?
Q: Mhmm.
B: That is why the more fun your life is, and the more you live in the now, you will become more and more ageless.
B: That is why your life spans are increasing – because you’re learning now to live more in the moment, and are not creating the experience as much as you used to, of linear time. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?
Q: Yes. Thank you.

Tools as Symbols of Intention

Q: I have a wand in front of me and I understand it to be powerful. It has a copper rod and it has crystals on both sides, and I’m not sure what to do with it? Can you give some insights on that?
B: Not sure what to do?
Q: I’m not sure how…
B: What would you like to do with it?
Q: I would like for it to do good?
B: For it?
Q: Yes.
B: How is it going to do anything without you?
Q: Well, I mean, it through me. Or, you know like…
B: Yes, yes… through you. So what do you want to do? The original question I asked you.
Q: Create some positivity?
B: Go ahead, wave your wand. (Audience laughs) Wasn’t that easy? Now are you saying, did I really do it?
Q: Yes.
B: Why are you saying that?
Q: Because I don’t see any tangible evidence.
B: Tangible evidence? You don’t?
Q: No.
B: Are you suffering right now?
Q: Probably. (Audience laughs)
B: Give me that wand. (Much laughter) Do you have, whether physically or in your imagination, a mirror?
Q: Yes.
B: Which?
Q: I actually have one at home.
B: Right here.
Q: Right here, there’s one behind you.
B: All right. Would you care to stand up?
Q: Yes.
B: Yes, you would care?
Q: I would be glad to.
B: All right. Can you look into the mirror?
Q: Yes.
B: Now watch carefully, your reflection in the mirror. All right?
Q: OK.
B: (Takes several deep breaths) What did you see?
Q: I didn’t see anything different.
B: I did not ask you for a comparison. I said, “what did you see?”
Q: I saw myself.
B: Ah, how mystical, how magical, how wondrous, how beautiful. Sit down. Now, what do you imagine to be the so-called effects that you wish to create?
Q: Well, my understanding is that you put the wand in and you imagine something to be, and it manifests.
B: Oh, really.
Q: That’s what I hear.
B: Oh, that’s what you hear, oh, all right.
Q: I’m not sure that I can do that, I mean I do it…
B: You are not sure you can do it?
Q: Well, I just look so innocent.
B: So innocent?
Q: All it is, is a rod, how is the rod going to do it?
B: But the rod is not what is doing it– you are. The rod is only your symbol for your ability to do it.
Q: Well, I would like to know how I could exercise that ability, if through that symbol?
B: Ah, allow your imagination to be as real as anything.
Q: You mean I can really do it?
B: Of course, why not? Maybe that would be a good place to start, why not?
Q: Well…
B: Give me one good reason.
Q: If I could really do it, then why do I need that wand?
B: Ah, good question. (Audience laughter) Maybe you will do it if I don’t give it back? Although you are recognizing within your imagination that your imagination has allowed you to create this idea, because that is the way that you have chosen to explore it. Therefore, continue to trust that this was the product of your imagination and everything else shall be as well; and the way and the rate at which it manifests is the way and the rate it needs to manifest. Understand something: it is not that such an idea is impossible, far from it. And, at the same time, remember this, you have made a co-agreement with everyone here. Now, your willingness and your ability to do this will also be a reflection of the level of agreement you have made, so that when you do it, you will do it in a way that will be most beneficial and effective for those that will perceive that you are doing it.

For understand something: for others to be able to perceive that you are doing it, if that is what you desire, you do not have to desire that others perceive it, but only you, that’s enough. But if you wish others to perceive it, then it is the development of your communication abilities, your empathic emotional abilities with them that will allow them to know it is all right for them to co-create what you are manifesting in their realities as well, because they have to create their version of it, in order to see it. You follow me? So this is a tool and a symbol that is a representation for the actual mechanism of how to manifest anything in that way. And the actual mechanism is your willingness to go within, and learn how to communicate with everyone else to allow them to know it is all right for them to create something in their reality that goes, in your terms, in the face of everything they have believed in before that. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, it is also an opportunity for you to recognize, perhaps, what level and what definition of belief you choose to maintain about whether or not such an idea is possible for you, but do it whatever way is comfortable for you. If you wish to start small, start slow, start easy. Change energy ideas first.

Q: What do you mean, change energy ideas?

B: Ah, thank you very much. Do you believe, do you feel that you are, in a sense, a healer?

Q: Yeah, yeah I guess.

B: Yeah, you guess, that sounds very convincing.

Q: That’s how convinced I am.

B: Ah, then is it any wonder you are not seeing an effect? Well?

Q: I guess not.

B: BELIEVING is seeing.

Q: You got that backwards?

B: No, you got it backwards.

Q: I know, you said that last week.

B: Yes. So it applies once again, does it not?

Q: I guess it does...

B: Trust yourself, you are doing whatever you need to be doing. Now, may I ask you another question?

Q: Yes.

B: If you were able to manifest to the fullest, the ideas you are talking about in that way, with a point of the wand...there it is, as you say...poof. Is there something within you that would be afraid that if you were the only one to see it, that you would be called insane?

Q: Yes.

B: Ah ha. Then, in this way, recognize when it becomes all right to see whatever you want regardless of what anyone else thinks, that paradoxically is when you will have within you the knowingness and the willingness to be able to communicate to them that for you it is undeniably real; and that is what will allow them to perceive in you the belief and conviction in the reality you have created, to the extent that will allow them to pick up on it and share it with you. But not because you care whether they see what you see or not. But because you are simply having a very good time creating what you will in your reality, because that is what represents the reality you know yourself to be.

Q: Is it really that simple?

B: Yes.

Q: Just believe in it?

B: Yes.

Q: Just believe in it and imagine it, and poof, it comes up.

B: Absolutely. Understand, that is how you are creating what reality you are experiencing anyway, but you do it so second “naturally” you don’t think you’re doing it. Everything you experience in your physical reality, including your physical perception of this scepter is a product of the fact that you believe, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that this is here; but it is only a belief. That is the level of belief I am talking about, knowingness, absolutely taken for granted one hundred per cent.

Q: You could start out small...like how?

B: Well, you are a healer, or is it still a guess?

Q: No. I am a healer.

B: Oh, thank you very much. Then, in this way, you can know that it is within your society’s mass conscious idea supposedly easier to move energy around than it is to move physical objects around, even though physical objects are also energy. But in this way, in other words, more often that not, you will allow it to be acceptable to get an energy effect in someone, than to make a physiological change to allow them to feel changes in temperature, in energy in different portions of their body, rather than, say, grow another arm or something. Since you feel and believe innately, so far, that it is easier to cause the idea of balancing of your auric field, energy balancing in that way, you can hear yourself more easily saying to someone and hearing from someone...”oh, yes, I feel changes going on in my body, I feel energy changes, I feel hot, I feel cold, I feel energy rushing through me, I feel this, I feel that, it is opening up this energy, opening up that, it is making me feel this way, making me feel that way.” It is easier for you hear that from someone, than to hear from someone, “yes, yes you are making me grow five inches taller.” You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: “You are changing me from red to purple, to blue, to green, to plaid, to silver.” Simply go by what is easiest for you to accept in your belief system and act upon that. Make those changes then, and that willingness and openness and action is what will allow you to proceed, at your own pace, in perfect timing with your agreement with everyone else to get to a point where you, before you know it, will be co-creating with everyone all sorts of changes that heretofore were not possible. You follow me?
Q: I follow you.
B: Now, so you think you can have fun doing that? Do you think you can cease to judge how you are doing it, and enjoy every single moment?
Q: It is just that, it’s like when you see a failure, it’s like...
B: What? A what?
Q: Like a failure.
B: A WHAT?
Q: Like a failure.
B: A WHAT
Q: A failure?
B: May I remind you that I am becoming selectively third density deaf. There is no such thing. What is a failure, but something that you put an expectation on and judge when it does not fulfill your expectation, and do not let it exist on its own merits for what it is. For example, are you familiar with the idea that we discussed about the two roads?
One that goes to your house, and one that does not.
Q: No.
B: May I remind you?
Q: OK.
B: Thank you. You are traveling along a road and you come to fork, you know one of them leads to your house and that is where you want to go, you know the other one does not, but you do not know which one, right or left. You decide to take the right fork, you find that it does not lead to your house. You go back to the fork and take the left one, now knowing that it does lead to your house. But while you were walking to your house, you are sitting there walking along, judging all the time...”well, that right fork that was a failure, it was the wrong way.” It is only you that is making a comparison between the right fork and the left one. The right one has nothing to do with your house and so you are judging it as being a failure in getting you to your house, when the right fork was never designed to get you to your house to begin with. And so you have not allowed yourself to appreciate what the right fork was for to begin with.
Q: You are not judging the right fork, you’re judging yourself.
B: What is the difference?
Q: It is the basis for calling it a failure?
B: If that is what you enjoy?
Q: No, I don’t. I attract what I enjoy.
B: All right. But understand: the idea is that you can’t make a wrong decision. You made a decision that, in and of itself, has its own merits. It has nothing to do with your house. It is not a wrong decision. You follow me?
Q: No, because if your goal is to go to the house then its effect would be taking the road that takes you to the house, and a failure would be...
B: One moment, one moment, you are missing the point. If you take the right fork for a certain distance, recognize it is not going to take you to your house, come back to the fork and go left, did that path still not get you to your house? The whole path? Did the whole path not get you to your house?
Q: Yes.
B: Then understand: what you took was not a diversion but was a part of the path, not an interruption in it. . . . End of tape.
Tooth Light Therapy
Q: I’ve been playing with the idea of, over the past few months, the ringing and the keen sounds at various times that would come in. I’ve had a touch, well, say, sensations around the teeth.
B: All right.
Q: Okay, and here of late, I have, I guess about a week ago, I have come up with this excruciating toothache, and uh, it was about two days after leaving the dentist actually. And I associated it at first… I associated the pain with some sort of cosmic connection; but now the pain has begun to be so excruciating until it’s, uh, it’s got to be something that needs to be handled right away. (Audience laughs)
B: Have you gone back to your dentist?
Q: No.
B: Why not? (Audience laughs)
Q: One reason was because I wanted to… I’d like to really just handle it without going to the dentist, frankly.
B: That is all right. You may try whatever your imagination suggests, but recognize that if that is the way your belief structure is set up, then I would suggest you avail yourself of your belief reality. Your belief reality may be that you have to go to the dentist, and that is what will cure you. That is what will let you cure yourself.
However, feel free to experiment with whatever your imagination comes up with. One of the things we have suggested from time to time is that blue light shined on the teeth can alleviate some of that idea.
AUD: Now, well, does that, this specific point in this specified… (Other AUD laughs) You know, uh, you can stop that now. (Other AUD laughs)
Q: Okay. Anyway, I have gotten sensations in and around the teeth before.
B: Yes. (AUD: laughs)
Q: Okay. And that has occurred (other AUD: laughs)… that has been occurring for months now.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, um, and for some reason I want to associate that with some realization that I’m having or some connection that I’m having. But this particular…
B: Maybe just the realization that you have a toothache. (AUD: laugh).
Q: No. That’s… that’s the point.
B: All right.
Q: Uh, the other sensations never crystallized into one specific tooth as it has now, and even now the pain will… will vary around the jaw. You understand me?
B: Yes.
Q: And I wondered (OTHER AUD: laugh) what is that symbolic of, if anything other than my having to go and get this thing taken out? You know the... the movement of having various sensations all around.

B: What tooth?
Q: Canine. Next to the canine. Next to the canine. (Other audience: various comments about which tooth). One, two, three, four, it’s the fourth tooth to the right on top.

B: Do you think that if you go to your dentist he will create for you what is called a crown?
Q: Well, for this particular tooth... well, if he can, okay. I don’t think he can.
B: Do you think there will be a process called root canal?
Q: (Moan) Oh, geez. (Other AUD: laughs)
B: I am simply asking you. (AUD: laughs) Has that crossed your mind? (AUD: laughs)
Q: Well, for this particular tooth... I just have thought it would have to be taken out, period.
B: Taken out.
Q: Yeah, just pulled. Extracted.
B: All right. Why?
Q: Because it... it does have movement. It is shaky.
B: Shaky. (AUD: laughs).
Q: What this comes down to is the fact that I have had sensations all around the jaw at various times and now, the fact that it’s crystallized in this particular tooth, has brought up... it’s more or less prompted me to ask the question. The question of why or what, or is there some sort of symbolic...
B: There is always some sort of symbolic something, obviously. Everything is a symbol of something.
Q: Okay. Well, I’ve been playing with the idea that this particular tooth is bringing all this to a head.
B: All right. (AUD: laughs) How will you feel if it is removed?
Q: Minus one tooth. (Other AUD: laughs)
B: How will you feel about that?
Q: Uh. I don’t want to, I don’t want to take it out.
B: All right. Thank you.
Q: I really don’t.
B: All right. Then will you do me a favor?
Q: Sure, anything for you.
B: We’ll see. (AUD: laughs) All right. Will you, tonight of your time, when you go home, take one glass of, what you call, purified water, place it before you, allow it to be cool, not too cold.
Q: In other words room temperature.
B: It can be a little cooler if you desire it, but not too much.
Q: Can I purify this myself with my own thoughts, or do I need to go over to the store and buy some?
B: What you call purified water that is, in your terms, purchasable.
Q: Okay, okay.
B: In this way, set this glass before you. Now, at the same time, do you have acquisition in this way of the substance that you refer to as brandy?
Q: No. I guess I’ll have to stop and buy some.
B: All right. Will you then place some of this also in what you call a glass that is designed for the holding of that liquid, what you refer to as a snifter.
Q: Snifter. Brandy snifter?
B: Do you follow me?
Q: Oh, okay.
B: Yes. Place a small amount of brandy in the bottom of the glass. Place the glass in your line of sight behind the glass of water with the brandy in it; behind the glass of water so you are looking, in a sense, past the glass of water to the brandy. Do you follow me?
Q: You mean like through it.
B: Yes, In a sense.
Q: Okay.
B: Over it is sufficient. (AUD: laugh) Then, in your terms, light the brandy. Do you follow me?
Q: Light the brandy?
B: Yes.
Q: (Give it a light. Put a match to it. Ignite it.) Okay.
B: Yes. Then look, look at the color of the flame.
Q: Yeah.
B: That color is what I would suggest you imagine the water to be imbued with.
Q: Hmm.
B: That color energy. Seeing it in flame form will create it to be easier for you physiologically to imagine it. Imagine that color going into the water for as long as the flame shall last. That will be sufficient. Assume that the energy of that color has completely saturated the water. All right?
Q: Umm. Umm.
B: Then, after the fire has gone out in the brandy, bend down and inhale one deep breath of the aroma. Do not drink it.
Take one deep breath of the aroma. Then, slowly and comfortably, drink the water, allowing it a little bit of time to sit in the mouth and wash the tooth and then go down your throat. Then relax. Do nothing active. You may go to sleep if you wish. And simply know that that energy is now infusing the cellular structure of your body, and will go to whatever portions of your body require it the most. If that is your tooth, so be it. It will even out the electro-magnetic balance of your auric field and allow you to know that, when you awake, you can create yourself to be a totally new individual at whatever rate is comfortable for you; so that you no longer necessarily require the idea of that pain and the need for extraction in that way.

Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Q2: Nice demo of love.
B: I think he deserves it. (AUD: Laughs) After all, he has put up with me for so very long. (AUD: Laughs)
Now, this will be somewhat of a different communication for a variety of reasons. Let us begin in this way: We would like you to set aside your expectations, set aside your assumptions about what you imagine this communication might be.

We have a very specific agenda this day of your time, to communicate to all of you, and as always we have our reasons for doing so. We are, of course, aware of various events that have occurred of late on your planet and the build up of energy...

Now we will take a moment to remind you, that we in general spoke of this in your year of 1998, and did mention at that time, that there was, at that time, a 97% chance of what you call a terrorist strike on your New York City. At the time we included the possibility of it being nuclear in nature, for that was the most likely scenario at the time of the sensing. In essence that is the only main factor that has changed.

And because that has now come to fruition, and you have now passed on to the other side of a doorway, crossed a specific kind of energy threshold, we can now find it within our agenda to communicate with you again, to continue the conversation that we began back in what you call your year of 1998, which to us was yesterday. For again, understand, that time is meaningless to us.

But we understood that your consciousness was required to go through a significant shift before there could be other things that would be presented. And we will continue that dialogue now.

We also remind you that at one time, we discussed with you the idea that we have extended an invitation to each and every one of you and to all of you together, to become members of what you have referred to in your language as our Association of Worlds, Interstellar Alliance, Federation, whatever you wish to call it, does not matter to us.

And in extending that invitation to each and every one of you and all of you together, we did to some degree explain that involvement, interaction and relationship with us, in that way, did require changes within each and every one of you and all of you together and that over your years this relationship would grow until such time as there would be a more, in your terms, interaction, physiological interaction between your world and our world and at that time then, eventually becoming, what you would call a recognized member of the Alliance, of the Association.

And so we would also like to add, this day of your time that will assist in generating the next step in your chosen evolution, to eventually blend with all of us in a certain way, and thus do our part to continue our welcome to you into our Association.

You are at this point, shall we say, “honorary members”. You don’t exactly quite yet have a vote, except the most important one, which is the vote for your planet, the vote for your reality, the vote for what you want your world to be.
We will be discussing many different concepts this day of your time. We will be presenting some things that are extensions of what we have discussed before; we will be presenting many new things that we have never discussed before.

Each and every one of these things, in some way, shape or form will be connected though it may not seem so on the surface. And we would now remind you, shall we say, lift the veil a little bit on our technique of communicating with you, by allowing you to understand more strongly then before that the things that we discuss with you have specific purpose, not always apparent on the surface.

You and we and all beings are energy resonance and thus this interaction is more than just a conversation or a discussion. It is an orchestrationempathic orchestration, a resonance frequency vibration orchestration and the specific things we choose to discuss and mention have specific effects in your consciousness beyond the surface meaning of the words that are translating through the channel.

So while we are perhaps talking about one thing, many other things are going on, in terms of setting up resonances and energies that will move, in a certain direction a certain impact, all with your permission of course. For nothing we do is against your will, for it works no other way but that you are a willing participant, and will let in and allow in what you wish.

But there are many levels to this conversation, some of which are not audible to you, and even many levels within the words we choose, and the things we choose to tell you, that will, in some way, shape or form tip the scales if you let it in. But that is up to you.

Freedom of choice is paramount and always will be in these discussions. Most importantly, we re-iterate and strengthen what we have said, about dropping your expectations about what this discussion ought to be about.

We recognize the things that are going on, and there will be some discussion that touches upon your recent events, but we would like to invite you to a different place then perhaps many of you have been living for your past few weeks. We would like to invite you to rise to a different level, and understand these things that have occurred a different perspective, then perhaps many of you may have considered, or perhaps other than what many of you may have seen displayed in your society.

This is not so much about who did what to whom or why, or what is going to happen now. This is about taking stock of who you are. This is about taking responsibility. This is about engaging yourselves each other, engaging your gears into more actionactivityself empowerment, more participation in order to act more like members of the Alliance.

For if you are honorary members, if you wish to be, of our Alliance, then, in that sense, you are honorary representatives of the idea of the Alliance and the Association on your planet. And then there are things you can be doing and things you can be saying love, without pushing, without demanding, without threatening, without coercion, without “you had better do this nowelse”. That is not spirituality.

No matter how much you may feel the idea of your heart energy, you must remember that the words coming out your mouth, sometimes will still be coming from fear and doubt, even though they even may be inspired to be said by the things that you feel. You must allow yourself to remember to be engaged in body, mind and spirit, in taking your actions your communications, so that it is all cohesive... synchronous. You do not have to force. We remind you again, the greatest power requires the lightest touch. That is why God is all but invisible. Think about that. The greatest power requires the lightest touch. If you are an expression of the Infinite, as you are, and if you act as such, and you encompass that energy in your thoughts, words and deeds, it will take very little to get done what needs to be done on your planet. And should you find that there is lack of receptivity non, move around under over through, like water resistance given — none taken. Act in accordance to the flow of love and love you will leave in your wake. We invite you now then to understand that as an invitation has been extended for some time, you may, if you wish, label this communication “RSVP”. For this is an invitation to respond. To respond react, which is, in that sense, thus the root of response-ability, your ability to respond. You have at this moment an unprecedented opportunity in the collective energy, especially of your culture, and of the world at this time. For see what has occurred, see what has occurred in the collective consciousness. Yes, we understand that there may be different ways of looking at it. Yes, we understand that there may be different opinions about how to relate to it and what should be done, but that is not really the point is surface. Look at what is happening at the unification. Also, very important, very critical, Your culture has been taken by surprise. That energy still exists. You may feel you are, to some degree, getting used to the idea of your new place in the world, your new status new relationship, with what is going on on your planet, but you are still very much in shock and surprise and bewilderment and amazement and wonderment. This state is very open to change. This state is very willing to accept guidance from those that are willing to love themselves and others, enough to send that energy into the world now as a beacon to light the way, for the way the energy can be crystallized when it does re-crystallize. I cannot underscore the importance of this state enough. It is one of the main reasons we are communicating with you now. Your culture is now like clay. The rigidity has gone out of it to a great extent. Yes, we understand there are rigid reactions throughout, but this is a fragmentation, this is to some degree an indication of bones within a body that may take awhile to change, but the rest of the body is mostly water and can flow now. It’s vibrations’s patterns, the ripples within each and every one of your cellular structures is open, you are ringing like bells, and believe me we can hear it. We can hear it. We can feel it. And this is why it is important for us to respond NOW, so that in ringing our bell, it can set up an empathetic vibration in your bells, so that we can become a chorus that sings as one.
This state will last for a little while, perhaps even the rest of your year. Take the opportunity, to add the vibration now, strongly, with your loveyour deeds, with your actionsyour involvement. So that you will help select the spectrumcolors, that will then become one and anyand one, working in concertin concert, playing in concertin concert.

This is an important timevery precious time in your society where you can tap into this vibration of newnessunexpectedness, of some sense of being lost, wandering, “Where do we go? What do we do? Who are we? We are not now what we thought we were! Where shall we go? Who shall we be?”

The reason that we know, and the reason that you know that all the things we will discuss this day are connected even though they may not seem to be, is because there is only ONE THING. There is only ONE THING and we are all it and it is us. All of uswhen. And so, what seemed like different topics, different subjects, will be the same ONE CONSCIOUSNESS whose chords will be plucked at different pitches, creating what seemed to be different notes, to create an orchestration of allowance, malleability and true power, TRUE POWER.

Destruction, of course is not powerhas been. It is easy to destroy. That’s because it takes no power. Power is in creation. Power is in relationship. Power is in unity. THAT IS POWER.

It takes no power to destroy’s why anyone can do it. And it’s easy and quick. You can destroy a building in seconds. Create togethera foundation that is unbreakable across the planet. Teach through action not proselytizing, not “You must know this or else your not one of us”. Not that, did I mention NOT THAT?

For that is not teachingis not teaching. That is only fear that what you say you believemight not really be so, and so to convince yourself you must convince others. Of course that never works and so we will never try that. Because we know what works, because we have been to some degree where you are, in some ways quite literally. For you are us and we are you, from another point of view. AND WE ARE ALL ONE.

Continuing Notes 1:

It is our choice to respond to their call of RSVP. The consequences will be ours. One of our myth, legends, symbols, one of our axioms, is that the “the sins of the father are visited on the son.” Understand these things and you will understand yourselves. See these things and you will see yourselves. But they do not want us to look under every rock for things that we imagine “might” be there. This is not what this energy is all about. “And it is certainly not the way to really ride the wave to the best of your advantage.” So they invite us to “drop our story.” The ones we would call baggage. The ones that have become heavy, especially in the light of what has happened. More than ever, it is time to let it go.
Every individual that they are communicating with can change their energy and if you don’t change, it is your choice. Everything is choice, NOTHING, NOTHING, NOTHING!!! is stopping us…NOTHING!!!

Nothing is holding us back, except the choices we make about who we believe we are. Things do not hold you, you hold you. You have to have reasons to be held, but they still love us no matter what. They see our creativity, and they see we can do a great deal, especially being the ability to hold ourselves back. When you realize that being who we really are as they see us, is so much fun, you will not wait a second to change – if we would only see ourselves as they see us.

It is an unusual event because the extent of the other beings – The Councils, The Associations, The Alliance, other beings, parallel realities, other levels of consciousness – participating in this event is large, especially on their side of dimensionality. Many times larger than those gathered before the channel. Every member of the Association is paying attention to what is going on with us, and many other communications are taking place around the planet. And they will continue for some time. Open up to the fact that we are loved that much to have that much attention.

Who can tell him what a “sub-theonic” particle is? Or a sub-theonic resonance pattern? Or just a “theon?”

A particle of God. Everything in existence is a theon. We are sub-theonic resonance patterns. He is not trying to de-personalize us. “Anything that is a thing, that is one of the many of the one, is a subtheonic particle, by definition.” “So we are elementary particles of God.”

We have the same characteristics of elementary particles: spin, charge, electro-magnetism, gravitational attraction, instant transformation, and teleportation. We have all these things as subtheonic particles. As we build and network as subtheonic particles, we will eventually connect up to the point where we become GOD, the All That Is.

But remember that “every part is the whole, even as every whole is the part.” It is holographic. The One is the Many and the Many are the One. Feel yourself as that aspect of All That Is. Nothing is out of touch or reach, all of it is now and here. We are one relationship to ourselves. The more you allow each other to be who you are, the more you become the One. Oneness is not the losing of one’s individuality, just the opposite, it is the strengthening and the supporting of all of us and our individuality.

For that is what God is, God is love. That means that God is unconditional support of ALL that God is. Otherwise God would collapse. God supports himself for one moment, but that one moment is eternal. If you feel God you will explode in unconditional ecstasy and love. Feel the unconditional support you have, to be who you are, without excuses. There is no longer any reason not to be who you want to be, except the “reasons you create.” “And that is up to you.”

Pay attention to how you have set certain things up on your planet for certain things to occur in certain ways. BUT DO NOT DWELL THERE!!! Know it, but don’t live there. They invites us to live in a different dwelling place. Allow yourself to be whole. It is now available to you to ride beyond, to know that it is not your fault, but to be more, and bigger. To bring the mountain top down to earth. Don’t be afraid to be that you – that you have that much love.

Don’t fall back into old patterns. A habit is something you do that you don’t know you are doing, but once you recognize it, it is no longer a habit, it now becomes a choice. Consciousness, awareness, is a whole new ballgame, play that game and you will be playing with us. But if you want you can continue to play with yourself. Let go of the old ideas of whom you think you ought to be.

They have seen us, nothing will shock them. We have never not been, and we are never alone. Except that we are allowed to be silent and be our own person and given space, but God is in all spaces. So we are never alone, we are simply all One. Allow yourselves to understand what is being said by The Council here tonight. A major change has occur in the collective consciousness. Do not paraphrase, but quote verbatim.

Events are shifting due to what has gone on and what is going on, to now make it likely, 95%, that our world may “officially know about the existence of extraterrestrial life by our year of 2005.” He didn’t say that they were all going to land in their ships, but this is a big step. Keep our energy up, and stay tuned for more updates.

They will tell us something if we need to hear it, they help where it is appropriate, because we have asked them and because they love us. They can tell us only so much, not because they are holding anything back, but because we have told them how much they can tell us and how much they cannot tell us. We are calling the shots, and collectively we communicate with The Council more than we think.

They take readings, ask our advice, and see how we are doing and they take a pulse, and only give us what we really need by our choice. They take it a step at a time. Every change is a whole change. They are willing to wait. “Enjoy where you are or you will never get where you are going.” Why? Because you are not going anywhere. Enjoying where you are tells you that where you need to be is right here, because this is where everything is. There is nowhere else.

Enjoy where you are and you will be where you are going. And where you are going, which is where you are, will keep changing to reflect how much you enjoyed the last expression of the here and now. And the next and next... Fear not.

Goes to questions...

Notes II
Oct. 20, 2001

Explains a recent contact of a different civilization that will do some things to our consciousness, just hearing about the experience – so unique was it to them.

The name is Thook. They have an extremely unique quality that we have never encountered before. When you interact with them physically, any member or group, it doesn’t matter, you can see them and hear them and know exactly what they look like, but if you are not in their presence you cannot remember what they look like.

There is only one other member in the entire Association that is able to remember what they look like after removing themselves from their presence physically. And the Thook have made an agreement with them not to tell anyone what they look like. It is very important to the Thook to retain this ability. They, the Association, don’t know if it is a quality of their physicality, or something that they inherently do to their consciousness, they do not know. They cannot remember what they look like until they are standing in their presence, but once they are not looking at them they cannot remember, and they will not allow themselves to be described when someone is in their presence. It is their taboo. They can tell you what their ships look like: “very elongated footballs.” But they do not know what the pilots look like?

Imagine looking at a friend and then you cannot remember what they look like. There is a reason for telling us. It will take us to an interesting and new story.

Question number two.

Question number 5: Female would like to know about the application of viruses of a pathological nature. Should we be surprised to find viruses in our genetic code in the next months and years? What is the likelihood?

B: “No more than 37% right now, it may go down to 26% depending on a few things. It may go down to 12% in one to two to three years.”

Q: How can we change this into something positive.

B: “To be the you for whom such things have no effect, or a positive effect.”

It is not some nice way of talking about things; they are talking about reality physics, vibrational physics. This is why it is all right to be you, and to not choose fear. Understand you are the you that accepts yourself, loves yourself as fully as possible. You can only extract the things that are positively aligned with your vibration, regardless of what was intended from the original vibration.

These responses are not to avoid specifics, but certain kinds of responses don’t do you any good. They give us the type of info that they know we are capable of activating and incorporating in our life. That will be the direct answer we seek to give us the results we are asking about, rather than specifics as such, which only confound, rather than clarify. End of question #5.

Toxins and Agendas

Q: It has been said that MS appeared on the scene after the dental mercury was put into the amalgams.
B: It is one of the things that accelerated it, although the condition existed before that; but those kinds of toxins coming into your systems did aggravate and accelerate what was, perhaps, a condition in seed form.
Q: Going in another direction, did our government supposedly make agreements with the Greys to detain certain individuals, and they would then give the government a list of those individuals? And has our government ever given the Greys the names of any individuals who were therefore detained?
B: On a few occasions this has occurred, but you must understand, the original agreement has long since been set aside and gone separate ways, and those ideas and exchanges in that sense have been abandoned.
Q: Okay, thank you.
B: Thank you.

Trade Patterns and The Artificial Intelligence Program

Q: Do you see a clearer sharing of new trade patterns in the world? It’s all the same – psychic or material trade patterns between the centers of the world. Is there anything you can share with us?

B: Our immediate perception will be that China will allow itself to become the mediator between yourselves and what you call the Soviet Union. They will allow themselves to exhibit the blending of the polarities of the ideas that your civilization and the civilization you call the Soviet Union have created to fear in each other. And thus, in that way, they will expand the idea of their psychic and physical trade throughout the world. That is our perception of the energy, as it exists now. (1986)

Q: So that one way of approaching Russia – in trade, psychically, with your heart, whatever – is not necessarily directly to Moscow or Leningrad, but through China?

B: The idea is to approach them directly, for now the approach through China is not on a physical level. So, physically approach them directly.

Q: But that won’t manifest in China...

B: It is manifesting now.

Q: Okay.

B: It does not mean it has to go that way; that is what we are perceiving of your energy flow at this moment.

Q: But as we manifest towards China physically, one of the products of that will be a further manifestation with Russia?

B: Yes, yes, yes, for in this way, you have formed yourselves to be a functional triad. And the idea always must be, in that sense, that the one is created by the other two; and that the two are supported by the one.

Q: And with that triad, Japan functions as what? Being the fourth major power.

B: It is many different ideas, in many different ways. It is, in a sense, an offshoot extension of the overall mass consciousness that seeks to create a symbolic representation of being able to communicate, through a physiological intellectual understanding, with the higher consciousness. It is exemplified symbolically, primarily, by what you call the artificial intelligence program.

For when you discover the idea of your so-called artificially intelligent computers, you will discover that what you have done is created a symbol for being able to talk to your higher self. All right?

Q: Yes.

B: So you are allowing them to be the ones who are working with you, in this way, to allow there to be a symbol that can exist in your terms, as you are willing to understand it, that will allow you communicate to your higher consciousness.

In this way, it is an acceptable way for your egos to allow yourselves to do so. Because it is through your “bright and sparkling technology.” (Audience laughter) But you will find that you are only talking... to a mirror of your higher consciousness. And that is one of the things that will allow it, in your society, to become acceptable to do so.

Q: So in that way, Japan is facilitating the work of the triad in certain ways?
B: Oh, of course. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Trade Patterns and the Artificial Intelligence Program
Transcending Negative Orion Cycles

B: Question.
Q: Could you define in more detail the nature of the negative energy that is being brought up?
B: It will be, as you understand the idea, the reinforcement of the idea of gain for the self, with regard to the unfoldment of the manifestation of your consciousness at this time. Now realize, there is nothing wrong with the idea of allowing yourself to unfold within any idea of any type of abundance whatsoever; but understand that you will automatically unfold in that way, if you perform service to All That Is. Realize, therefore, that those who perform, first of all, service to self to gain those ideas will, I’ll say, in reality be cutting themselves off, in that way – forming the judgment loop of their own personalities, and forming themselves in a way to re-create the idea that you have experienced and expressed as a "problem.”

Therefore, you will feel this idea as you have the entrapment of the individual personalities involved within the projection of this negative energy at this time. You will understand the manifestation in that way as, I’ll say, the fossilization of your own momentum; the freezing, in that way, of what you term to be your own unfoldment, and therefore, entrapment of the self, enslavement of the self from further understanding of unfoldment from one level to another. Do you follow me?

Q: Could you repeat that?
B: Simply understand that the degree to which this energy, in its negative form, will manifest within your society at this time, will be in those ideas which will form, I’ll say, the self-aggrandizement which will restrict what you term to be the spiritual growth, in that way, which will allow there to be, I will say, the creation of what you term to be domination, rather than equality. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Question.
Q: Is the Orion energy, then, serving a function in terms of... for those physicals that have manifested a negative energy on our planet, are they their higher self-energy?
B: Now realize, that any energy in this way is still not judged. It all still serves its own purpose. Simply understand that all we are saying to you is that within the understanding of the unfoldment of yourself, with regard to your own momentum in Positive manifestation, you will understand that the way, I’ll say, to re-channel the idea of becoming stuck within what you term to be the idea of friction, conflict, will be simply to allow the negative idea to be integrated with your positive energy in such a way that you remove the negative effect and allow yourself to create, I’ll say, a vibratory state of existence which will not include then, I’ll say, contact between yourselves – directly, influential contact – and that negative energy.

Now understand, that for those individuals, they will be perceiving that they are performing service in their own way to All That Is. But realize that they will simply understand that it is service to self, and they will be formulating the idea they are radiating, and any, I’ll say, consciousness, which chooses to radiate along their vibration. Thus, the idea of the repetition of a cycle in such a way that you entrap yourself, you enslave yourself to the idea of forming realities, which do not shift and do not change. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: It is the entire idea of the repetition of cycles that you experienced in, I’ll say, the idea you express as Atlantis, within the overall destruction and the repetition of destruction that you are experiencing at this time upon your planet.

Now understand, that you have the opportunity to re-channel this idea by the ending of your cycle within positive ways to transcend and, I’ll say, refine yourselves into that fourth level of vibratory existence. Now understand, simply, that there will be, I’ll say, the attempt at this time to allow you to remain exactly where you are in that way, so you will reinforce the universe that they perceive – to be the essential mode of operation for the reinforcement of their own, I’ll say, self-aggrandizement, and their own perception of becoming more, in that way. Do you follow me?

AUD: Yes.

Q2: I’m really confused.

B: All right, I will simplify. Understand simply, that there is this energy that will perceive itself as unfolding and becoming more of the universe, as it chooses to, in a sense, create those to exist on their same level, rather than understanding that it is the integration of all which creates the overall unfoldment by service to All That Is.

Simply, they understand that they do not perceive that they will unfold and contain all, by merging and blending in that way, I’ll say, through service, through reinforcement of service to All That Is; to allow the manifestations, in a positive way, of all that is to unfold for every individual, therefore, within it. Simply, they understand that the only way they can achieve, I’ll say, conscious recognition of becoming, in that way, greater and greater in scope is to make more and more individuals just like them.

Q2: Okay, so it’s, be here now, and we’re perfect exactly the way we are this moment.

B: Yes, that will be a portion of the understanding of the integration of the idea of negative energy. As long as you always are able to take your idea of what you term to be the negative situation, allow it to be a positive manifestation within your life, in that way, and understand it will add to the overall momentum in a positive way, as long as you are, I’ll say, in service to All That Is, in that way.

Understand, therefore, that they, in that way, the negative energy, in that way, would, I’ll say, receive the benefit of your use of judgment upon self to keep yourself exactly where you are, rather than realizing your own perfection and the perfection of All That Is, in that way. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I have a question, though, about – it seems like there’s some kind of, what’s the word... dichotomy, is that, a good word?

B: All right.

Q: Okay, that…everything is made up of All That Is.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. So then, wouldn’t everything be of service to All That Is?
B: In that way, in one sense, yes; again, ’tis simply a matter of what you choose.
Q: What our conscious reality chooses or what our...
B: At this time, understand that there will be less of a separation between what you term to be your unconscious belief structure and your conscious belief structure, as you are blending the two.
Q: Is the idea one of, like, when you serve yourself, is that kind of the idea of not remembering who you are? And then when you remember that you’re All That Is, then you’re serving All That Is? I mean, is there...
B: In a sense, yes; realize that you will automatically be serving yourself by understanding that you are All That Is and serving All That Is.
Q: Right, right, I do understand that.
Q2: Did you say that was negative to serve All That Is?
B: No.
Q2: I told you I was confused.
B: Understand that by serving the idea of All That Is, and allowing the idea of All That Is to become unfolded in all that it can be, in your terms of time, you will be automatically serving yourself, as you allow yourself to recognize yourself as a part of All That Is. Realize that service to self, in that way, the locking down of your reality, I’ll say, the magnification of focus upon one specific idea of yourself which retains a fossilized state of your existence, in that way, and does not allow you to change in that way, will be the negative side of serving of self.
And in that way, as you maintain yourself as a singular identity, completely unto yourself, with no connection, in that way, to the understanding of yourself as All That Is, then the only way you will see yourself as expanding will be to dominate more and more individuals that you also perceive only to be unto themselves in that way. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
Q2: So someone who lives that kind of life, and expresses that... I’m trying to figure out how that works in their psyche. Are they tapping into that Orion negative energy?
B: To a degree, although understand, again, every understanding, every consciousness, contains both.
Q: Right.
B: Simply, you are vibrating on a level to which they can identify, and therefore, you’re vibrating on a level, which attracts them.
Q: And which they use for their own self-aggrandizement.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay.
Q2: Who are "they"?
B: Again, the Orion energy. Now realize, there will be others within All That Is, in that way. Simply understand, that, at this time, there will be that connection for your sphere of influence, as you understand the vibration to exist – as you understand the many connections that you have experienced within what you term to be the past history of your planet.

There will have been the formation of that connection and at this time, as you say, as you allow yourselves to progress towards the transformation of yourselves from, again, third density to fourth density, there will still be that connection until you allow yourself to understand yourself already as your future selves, already, in that way, of a different reality, other than one that can be affected in the negative way by that connection that you have formed, which you are now beginning to break.

Q: What is Essassani’s connection with Orion then, because Orion has been mentioned a lot throughout this past year...
B: All right, again, understand that the specific idea that you experience as the channel has understood that one method, in that way, of allowing there to be, I’ll say, the re-channeling of that negative energy towards positive results, was to ally with your own future selves, which is termed Essassani. Do you follow me?
Q: Our future selves are Essassani?
B: In a sense.
Q: Because the other night, you were talking about the idea that there are people who don’t choose future lives, who are non-physical, and so then...
B: Realize that they are all still connected in that way, in many different ways, and these will be some of the other consciousnesses, which will be, I’ll say, in your terms amalgamated, within the overall consciousness perceiving your planet at this time with regard to the upliftment.
Q: Oh, okay.
B: Do you follow me?
Q: Yeah.
B: They are still connected.
Q: Who died in World War II?
B: What you experience as the channel before you, in another life.
Q: As whom?
B: As an individual who performed, again, the idea of the experience of, what you term to be, underground resistance, and died in the process.
Q: In Germany?
B: Yes.
Q: Then, everything happens simultaneously...
B: Yes.
A: . . . so that would be just another aspect...
B: Yes, and there was purpose in that involvement, again, to entrench the entity within your society in that way, having come directly from that Orion influence, from the Black League influence in that way, to understand the entrenchment along the time scale of your entire history in that way. So as to experience, I’ll say, the total understanding of exactly how the negative energy would manifest, and be able, from that overall experience of the many lives, both past and future, to re-channel the energy in that way, in a more positive light.
Q: Beautiful.
Q: I feel like, first of all, that talking about all this kind of makes me a little nervous.
Q: Yeah.
Q: And second of all, it makes me think of – as a sort of a physical manifestation of it – the USA for Ethiopia movement that’s going on, and all those singers coming together in order to assist another country to get on their own feet and stand up on their own, and recognize their own individuality. Would that be so?
B: Yes. Why are you nervous?
Q: I don’t know why I’m nervous. I’m nervous.
B: All right. Are you sure you’re not feeling the excitement of yourself vibrating to the level of equality of the idea of the expansion, as that consciousness will be coming through you?
Q: I don’t know, I just feel nervous, that’s the only emotion I can feel. I mean, I guess. . .
B: All right.
Q: Okay, I know that within nervousness is excitement, and there’s power within all that. I can understand that.
B: Then understand, again, that that is why we have stressed that each and every one of you, who have maintained an agreement to also perform the idea that you understand of the unfoldment of your own consciousness in the many ways that you will unfold it – whether through, I’ll say, simply your own communication to your own higher consciousness, or the unfoldment of the idea expressed to you as channeling in that way – you will find yourself again, while you are still expressing your own unfoldment, specifically for your own identity, that you will be performing, also, that part of your unfoldment which is of service to All That Is.
And in that way, you can understand a little bit more, by again, our expression of the specific path of the channel before you in that way, with regard to the many different paths that each of you have chosen within your own past lives, your own future lives, as they combine to unfold yourself in your here and now present understanding. And as they work together, again, to form that transformation of your mass consciousness from the third density vibrational level to the fourth, you are beginning to identify with the idea of exactly what it is you are going to be connecting into, in that way, and the service that you will be performing. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

Q: Listening to what you’ve been saying, I have a view that I just want to explore for a moment. Considering that All That Is, is perfect in its own right, and even the negativity of Orion is what it is, there’s no good or bad about it necessarily…

B: All right.

Q: There is, the only thing that I can see is that there are others about who prefer a different direction…

B: Yes.

Q: And also, apparently, we, as a mass consciousness, have gone through the cycles enough that we wish to change…

B: Yes.

Q: And so this negative energy is really not a bad thing at all, it’s merely that there are others now who wish to assist us in making a change.

B: Again, understand that we have expressed that there is no judgment, there is no right and wrong in this idea, and all is an expression of All That Is in that way, as you have expressed it. Simply, again, as we have expressed to you many, many times, it is only a matter of choice.

Understand that we are in contact with you, in that way, simply because there is that, I’ll say, understanding or faction of your own mass consciousness which desires the reflection of that portion of itself, which wishes the choice, in that way, to manifest the positive effect at this time.

Understand it is up to you and if you choose, in that way, to experience the idea that you wish to unfold yourselves through domination – all right, that is also up to you.

Q: Yes, I understand that.

B: Thank you.

Q: I have a question. I asked you about a couple of friends of mine a while ago and you were talking about their energy. Are they a representation of the Orion energy in a way, for me?

B: Only in a sense; to a degree, they are a reflection of the idea of, yes, in a sense, that domination, which they are quite, in that way, unaware of.

Q: Okay, thank you.

B: Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I understand completely. Thank you.

B: But understand that that idea, that manifestation, and I’ll say, in that way, many of what you term to be the ideas expressed to you through the manifestation of what you term to be “religion,” are, I’ll say, to a degree, distortions and, I’ll say, rearrangements of that idea of domination, expressed to you and sent to you by that Orion energy, yes.
Transformation of Conflict

Q: Hello.
B: Hello!

Q: It’s very nice to be here and see you again. It’s been a few years. I’m breaking through an area on trust; I’m starting to...

B: An area.
Q: Well, yes. The universe.

B: All right. Yes, an area, the whole universe.

Q: My universe is expanding with trust.

B: Very good. It always does.

Q: Yes, I’m seeing that; and I’m finding it much more comfortable trusting myself and starting to trust others.

B: Thank you very much.

Q: I have a number of things going in my head that I’ve been wanting to talk to you about...

B: Number one.
Q: Okay. (Pause)

B: Will you do me a favor first?

Q: Yes.
B: Take three deep breaths.
Q: (Sounds of breathing)
B: Please continue.

Q: All right, thank you. That kind of brings to mind one of the questions.

B: All right. You may start with that, if you wish.

Q: All right. I was beaten up many times in front of other people in this lifetime.

B: All right. How exciting!

Q: Yes. It was quite an experience. I’ve learned a lot coming out from under it.
B: Yes, you have. You have learned a great deal about the idea of trust. Yes, you have.

Q: Yes, I have; and that for me is very exciting. And it’s leading me to want to communicate that people that have suffered this thing, a similar thing, they…

B: Don’t need to any longer.
Q: Don’t need to any longer. And they will often carry a facade of being maybe gnarly or angry or resentful – or something that other people want to avoid.
B: Yes.

Q: And I wish to communicate to both sides of that paradox… that…

B: Oh do continue! I am your absolute captive audience; you have me entranced!
Q: Ha, ha.
B: I mean it.

Q: All right. Thank you.
B: Please continue.

Q: I’m trying to learn to say it without…
B: You are learning fine; you do not have to think you are trying.

Q: Okay. Right.
B: I am providing you with the audience that you need – to learn that you do know what you are talking about.

Q: Yes, I know I do at times, but...
B: At all times.

Q: ...when I start to communicate, a lot of anger will come up.

B: All right, very good. That’s okay. You see, the idea of anger is that you are simply aligning with what you know to be true for you. If it lasts any longer than approximately 10 to 15 of your seconds, then it is no longer the idea of natural anger. It becomes invalidation.

Q: I see.
B: And projection. The idea of anger is to say, “Here’s a situation. Here’s what I am all about, relative to the situation.” That rush is the alignment rush that says, “This is what is true for me.” Now communicate it. But you don’t have to attack in the way you were attacked.

Q: Yes, that’s true. In the past I have attacked quite a bit.

B: All right.
Q: But it seems like I was lucky. Every time I started to attack, I would go blank. And then I would get beaten up, and I’d get very little...
B: All right.
Q: ...(?) of other people. Although I did...
B: But there is no luck.

Q: Well it’s like – yeah, I’m confused on it. I would rather not hurt anybody.
B: And you didn’t, did you?

Q: No, very few people have I hurt physically; but there are a lot of others verbally. Like the anger would come out and just…

B: All right. You gave yourself, in this life, an automatic governing mechanism that would force you to face the idea of learning what communication is truly all about. And that is what you are learning now – and very well, I might add.

Q: Thank you. I’m accelerating…

B: Yes. You are learning that love is what will get the message across.

Q: Yes.
B: Not forcing. Again, remember, as we said, the idea of forcing a point of view shows that you don’t really believe in it. So who’s going to listen to you?

Q: Could you say that sentence again? I’m starting to pass out.

B: Ah! The idea of forcing a point of view is an indication that you don’t really believe in the power of it, so who’s going to listen to you if you force? Love – wave after wave of love is what will carry your message most clearly.

Q: Wave after wave of love.

B: Yes. Wave after wave of love; transmute the energy you feel to begin with as anger into love. Wave after wave of overwhelming, unconditional love; they’ll get the message.

Q: I like It. I’ve been experimenting with that a lot now. I find that if I – and you can tell me if there’s a better way of doing this – if I focus on particular ideas, like symbolic areas in my physical, where I might find a gland or something that would help open that, then…

B: All right. Your imagination is always the key. Trust it and rely on it. For the one thing you are learning to trust the most is yourself.
Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Your imagination will always give you whatever technique will work best for you.

Q: Okay. That comes to the next question I want to talk about.

B: All right.

Q: I learned a great thing from Ron Hubbard.

B: All right.

Q: He spoke about the emotional tone scale. It seems to be synchronized with what you were talking about – people being at different vibrations.

B: Yes.

Q: And you can find them at a new vibration.

B: When you go there yourself, yes.

Q: When you go there yourself. I hadn’t quite understood that until you said that.

B: Thank you.

Q: Thank you very much for that. There are... people have vibrations on this planet that I see are causing much discomfort for other people in the physical.

B: We understand that. But you cannot take responsibility for them.

Q: Well, in some way I’ve decided to.
B: But you can’t. It’s not possible. They are not you; you are not them.

Q: Well, I don’t agree with that. I am them.

B: We understand what you mean by being them – as a reflection.
Q: Then maybe you can understand what I mean by taking responsibility for them.

B: All right. However, you are under the assumption that every individual you see in life must be – just because you can see them – an absolute one to one reflection of what it is you are all about. That is not so. You, by being on an appropriately accelerated level, will still be able to attract into your life the observation of other individuals who are not on that level, because you are willing to be of service to them.

Q: That’s what I want to come to.
B: Yes.

Q: I want to find a way where I do not make them wrong, where I can deliver to them some message that they would love to hear.

B: Then all you need to do is live what is true for you, and then you will be a shining example to them that they can see. And when they can see that it works for you, that will be the way to allow them to know that it can, IF they choose, work for them. But you cannot force anything upon them. You cannot force them to understand that they have the ability to create whatever reality they desire without hurting anyone else.

You cannot force this upon them. You can show them that it works for you. You can only show them and ask them if they are willing to believe that it can be that easy. That is all they are looking to understand. They are looking to understand that their life can be effortless. All you need to do is show them that with love it can be.

Q: Okay. I’m not just talking about human forms. I’m talking about Zionists... beyond them. I’m talking about the different factions that are at war in space.

B: Stop! Now! Understand again: if you wish to see anything change, change yourself.
Q: Okay, I’m at war in myself.

B: Yes. So when you declare a truce, you will be in a universe of peace.

Q: I don’t exactly know who’s fighting in myself.

B: Beliefs. That is all: beliefs. You have a belief that you are split. You are not functioning as a homogenous idea. Reinforcing the idea of your polarities is a very old habit within you. And we are talking about stretching across lifetimes, and back into other time tracks.

Q: I’m hoping to...

B: There is no need to hope.

Q: Okay, I want to alleviate that in this lifetime.

B: You are doing so. This is the transformational life. You are in perfect position and in perfect timing. Relax.... Relax.

Q: Right.

B: You do not EVER experience a desire without also containing the ability for the manifestation of that desire. If in this life, therefore, you recognize very clearly that you have the desire to experience peace in the universe, then that is in this life to show you that that’s what this life is capable of manifesting.

Relax! The universe does not throw one-sided coins. It does not give you the ability to contain the desire for a thing without also throwing you the ability for the manifestation. The desire is the description of the life. The desire is the description of what the life is all about. You have come far – from a long, long way; a long, long time, in your terms of thinking. This is the life that many of you have been waiting thousands of years for. This is the transformational age.

You will accomplish what you know you are all about. Because that’s the definition of the frequency of what your world is going through: transformation, awakening, awareness, harmony. That’s why you are exploring all these ideas. You are simply acting like an old Orion, set in your ways.

Do you understand that the idea, as we have discussed it – not that other individuals have not been able to utilize it as a tool – but what you call the idea of Scientology, specifically was designed, by and for Orions, to acclimate them into the Earth vibration, so that they could experience the polarities of positive and negative in the Earth sphere. So that they could learn how to balance those ideas and be of service to allow this planet at this time to not experience the idea of destruction, but the idea of harmony.

Q: That’s what I felt – like a crusader wanting to go and knock out heads.

B: That is the old way of thinking of it. The way you head them off at the pass, if you will, is to allow positive and negative expression to be equal. Because only when you allow them to be equal do you create an opportunity to manifest.

Q: Could you say that again?

B: Yes, I will.

Q: Thank you.

B: Only when you allow positive and negative expressions to be equal – equally valid forms of expression – do you then, paradoxically, allow yourself to choose which one, positive or negative, you desire to manifest as an effect in your life.

When you allow positive or negative situations to be on the same level, not one being any worse, not one being any better, then you do not create one to have more power than another – one to have less power than another, less probability of manifesting than another.

When all things are equal, when all choices are equal – all positive choices and all negative choices are seen simply as choices you could make, equal to one another for their learning value – then that is when you give yourself the clearest opportunity to pick from the side you prefer. Because you don’t believe that the negative has any more power to overwhelm you than the positive. When you allow them to be balanced, then, paradoxically, that is when you allow the one you prefer, to manifest first. That is how you head the negative energy off at the pass.

When you fight fire with fire, you only make a big fire and burn everything up. When you fight fire with sticks, you are only feeding the fire. We understand you thoroughly, for recognize that the agreement we have made with the physical channel stemmed from just such an act in the Orion systems. There was what you call a resistance movement to the negativity in those systems.

But the idea is that the resistance movement was crushed because they used the same techniques as those they sought to oppose. In the same way that your Earth terrorists, in thinking they are liberating themselves from oppression, or imagined oppression, are actually reinforcing it; because by their actions they give the oppressed governments an excuse to become more oppressive. So terrorists are actually the best agents for oppression that you have. They support it and maintain it.
It is only love that will allow there to be no longer a need for rigidity and oppression. Once again, put very succinctly, and to sum it up in an essential equation, let this sink in: you do not get peace by hating war; you get peace by loving peace.... so relax.... and love. Love.

Remember that, as a non-physical oversoul, all experiences, both positive and negative, are learning experiences – because in the oversoul there is no judgment. All is the same. When you allow all to be the same, simply different ways of expressing the self, that is when you allow yourself the opportunity to choose to manifest which effect you most prefer, because it’s all the same. And therefore, it’s easy to choose, because everything’s on the same level, right there within your reach.

You do not have to reach up for something you think is a higher ideal than what surrounds you, and you don’t have to drag something up that you think is beneath you. You do not have to work; it is all here – all equal, all right before you on the same level. And that’s what lets it be easy to choose the one you prefer. Pleasant dreams.

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you. Sharing.

Transformation of Conflict

Transformation Symbology

Q: It made me think of popcorn too, something that pops and grows.

B: Well, yes, pop, pop, pop! Yes. Instantaneous transformation from one state to another, from a state that you generally consider to be inedible to a state that you consider to be edible. You follow that analogy? The seed, in that sense, is the potential of things, but when it pops, instantly it transforms into something you can ingest, something that supports you, something that nourishes you.

Q: Very good.

B: It is that state, from that seed, that you need to transform into. You need, all of you, to pop. That is your symbol, the popcorn, to pop to that state, to let go. If the seed held on and insisted on holding on to its hard core personality, it would never pop and become the light fluffy popcorn you love. So, become the light fluffy popcorn you love. Let go of the personality, let go of the confinement case of the seed, and pop, pop open. Now, another analogy ... many of you, understand again, not that it has to be this way, per se, not meant in a negative way though some of you may do it this way, the idea is to raise your vibration and you will pop. That is the idea of the popcorn, raise the temperature and it pops.

Now some of you will simply allow your vibration to raise and you will pop, but some of you, in refusing to pop, in trying to still be the seed and hold onto your ‘seedness’, will let things get very hot, will let the heat build up, will let the friction and the tension build up before you will finally let yourself pop. You will almost be burnt to a crisp before you will pop! (Lots of laughter) The idea is to transform that energy into a higher level of energy so that it will not burn you before you pop. There will simply be the acceleration and raising of your vibration, and you will pop in a, shall we say, less disruptive manner, so to speak.
Transformational Choices And World Peace

B: Now, let us talk about an idea we have been discussing for quite some time: of making a choice between knowing that you create your own reality, or choosing to not know that you create your own reality.

And really, the idea can be put quite simply, regarding that option that you have – for an option it is. Should you choose to not believe that you, in fact, create the reality you experience – and therefore, are in control of it – then, in a sense, this conversation, this interaction, and any idea or desire that you have, is quite pointless.

For recognize, if you choose to believe that you do not create or control the reality that you experience, then you are choosing to believe that it is, in your terms, completely and utterly random; that you can be, at any given moment, with absolutely no indication or forewarning, an absolute and complete victim of circumstance. And that anything you choose to do could, at any time, be completely torn asunder – so why try?

Understand, these are the effects of the option. You choose, in this way, to believe you do create your reality, wherein the resulting course of thought will be to allow you to know that, if you do choose your reality, then no matter what happens – including what you perceive to be a negative manifestation – it is under your control to change. It can be viewed as something that is a choice you have made. And in allowing yourself to come to terms with why you have made the choice for a negative manifestation, you can then make the choice for a positive one.

Should you choose to not believe that idea, and not act in that way, then, in a sense, to use your own vernacular, you might as well “chuck it all in.” Now, we are not attempting to be, in your terms, overly pessimistic at this time. But simply, we are reflecting to you the baseline of the choice that is open to you, in this way, in your transformation from third to fourth density. That is the fundamental baseline upon which all that you will experience from this point forward – now that this idea is in your consciousness – will be determined.

You choose to understand that you create your reality, or you choose to believe you do not. In a sense, there is no halfway measure. It is not: “Well, I create some things in my reality, but some things are outside of my choice.” Understand that if you know that even one thing is under your control then, by definition, all of it must be, for it is all connected – it is not isolated, in that way.

We are choosing to take this approach, this evening of your time, because you are now, as a society, allowing interactions to take place in your civilization that are no longer covert, no longer underground; but are rising to the surface very obviously, very blatantly.

Now, if you choose to believe that you are a victim of circumstances, then perhaps, you will create and generate fear of the circumstances going on in your world at this time, and the interactions taking place – the frustrations, the hatred, the rage, the judgments, the limitations. Or you can recognize that in allowing these ideas, these interactions, these exchanges of a negative nature to be on the surface, and out in the open, you can then blatantly and just as openly, interact with the individuals involved directly, and choose.

Do you want what you are now seeing on the surface to be a reflection of the world you are going to live in? Or do you prefer something else? And if you find you prefer something else – by connecting that up to the understanding that you choose your reality – you can begin to act like the reality you have chosen to be.

And then interact with individuals – not in judgment, not in accusation – but in compassion, understanding, and unconditional love, and with full imagination. In effect, you can approach what was previously the unapproachable in your mind, and become equal to the same level of any individual in your political, social, economic and religious institutions, and communicate with them that you believe that peace is stronger than war.

And in that way, allow yourselves to know and allow them to know that you also believe – if you choose to believe it, we are not putting words in your mouth – but that you can also choose to believe that, if a reality, a civilization, as you picture it, as you desire it and as you see yourselves living within it, is something that is an idea strong enough, then it does not need to be defended.

If you believe that the idea of peace is truly the strongest idea, then you do not have to force that idea upon anyone. And that is what you can allow individuals in your governments to understand that when they feel they must force their point of view on someone, then they do not believe in that point of view themselves. Or they would not need force to allow another individual to simply recognize the power of their belief.

Peace is stronger than war.

Thank you.

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you this day of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great! Fantastic!

B: Allow us to begin this interaction this day of your time with a laying down of a foundation for all that we will be talking about with you. Now, recognize that we have been labeled extraterrestrial consciousness, but as we have said many times, none of you are original to your planet anyway. So you are not that different from us. We are not that different from you. We have our perspective. You have your perspective. The idea about all the interactions that you have been talking about, the interaction and DESIRE for interaction FOR WHAT YOU CALL EXTRATERRESTRIAL CONSCIOUSNESS is not really going to be SO very different from the type of interactions you could be creating among yourselves. We are simply another way that the Infinite has of expressing the creation It is. YOU are all as valid; YOU are all just as equal.

We, in communicating to you at this time, in accepting your invitation to interact with you at this time, are simply being of service to you by reflecting, like a mirror, the ideas you already hold within you to be true, your truth. Remember, THE TRUTH IS COMPOSED OF ALL TRUTHS. And each and every one of you is a truth, in that sense, as far as yourself is concerned, is THE TRUTH!

Now, our service to you is to reflect to you ideas and perspectives that have worked for our civilization. Because we recognize that your civilization is transforming in similar ways to our civilization, then, perhaps, some of the ideas we will share with you can serve you as well. Some of the methodologies, some of the technologies, some of the perspectives and points of view, you may wish to adapt into your reality. But remember, above and beyond everything, that your imagination is the key. Your self-empowerment is the key. Your imagination will adapt to anything that we will share with you in a way that works best for you, anyway. So you are doing it. I am not doing it. If you sense any idea that you would label as wisdom in me, everyone is just as wise; and in that sense, even though we may accept it as, what you call, a compliment, allow me to remind each and every one of you that all you are allowing yourselves to do is feel your own energy, feel your own wisdom, feel you own knowledge and your own connection to the Infinite.

Remember that the energy changes that may go on within you in any such interaction that we have with you, it is not a direct feeling of my energy, it is your energy as you choose to match the vibration that I am sending to you now telepathically. Any acceleration that you feel is your energy, so remember, you do not need interactions such as this with us in order to feel that energy. Anytime, anywhere, no matter where and when you are, YOU have the capacity to generate that frequency in your life, because you are generating frequency in your life right now. I am not doing it, you are doing it, but you are allowing ME to remind you that you have always had the capacity to do it, and for that I will thank you.

It is our great JOY and deep appreciation, and your great gift to us to interact with all of you. For through each and every one of you our respective civilizations in the Association of Worlds is given that much greater an opportunity to see how the Infinite creates and expresses itself in all the myriad ways that it can – through all of you. And for us that expands our awareness of the Infinite and allows us to know there will always be more to explore, always never ending. It always goes on in absolute ecstasy and absolute joy. Nothing is too simple or too good to be true – remember that!

Now, the idea for all the interactions that we will have with you will be based upon one particular foundation, and that is that you are the creators of your own reality. You have all heard this now, many, many times. But the idea is that each and every one of you will attract to yourselves the circumstances and opportunities necessary to hear it in the way that will make the best sense to you, so it will stick within you. So you will finally allow yourselves to have the absolute CONVICTION to live that idea, to TRUST the idea that you are the creators of your reality. You ALWAYS, ALWAYS, ALWAYS have used infinite trust in the creation of your reality to begin with. When you hear any of us talking to you about the idea that all you need to do is use trust, we are not telling you to use something you have never used before. We are not talking about the idea of something that is difficult to learn how to do. You have all, ALWAYS, used infinite trust. It is just a matter of whether you trust negativity or positivity more, but you have also used trust to create WHATEVER reality you have ever experienced.

Remember, your imagination, and this is what you call the bottom line, your imagination is the key. Your ability to create the image, the idea of what it is you prefer to be, to, as you say, render it into a visualization, to structure it, to paint the picture, as you say, that is the bottom line. Whatever it is you desire it to be, render it in your imagination. Watch that you as it handles the ideas in life. Give any situation in your life to that you in your imagination, and if it has truly been designed and defined by you to be the ecstatic and successful person you say you prefer to be, then hand it the circumstances in your life, and watch what that you in your imagination does with those circumstances and watch the successful outcome.

All you have to do is, then, from that point forward, copy, mimic, mirror what the you in your imagination did with that situation, and you’ll get the same results – that’s what your imagination is for; it’s the template, the blueprint of the you you can be. All you need is the conviction to trust that the rendering, the imagination scenario you have visualized for yourself is truly who you are at that moment. Remember, your ability to conceptualize is the same thing as your ability to manifest. It is not necessarily a matter of the idea of seeing what you want and then, of necessity, having to create a long involved, difficult, struggling process in order to get what you want some day, to become, someday, out there... who knows when... that idea. Always in the future: “Oh, someday I might get there, I don’t know how long it will take, someday, but I know this is what I want.” Well, remember, if you perceive it, you are it in the moment of perception. To conceive, to perceive, is to be that idea. The moment you conceive anything you are the vibration of that reality. All you have to do from that moment forward is act like that person you see in your imagination that you would prefer to be, and you will get the life style of that person.

Therefore, as we now interact with you with this idea, that you are the creator of your reality, then the fundamentals of utilizing your imagination, your conviction and your trust, and the clarity of the definitions in life are the foundations that will underlie all the interactions with you. Through these co-creations, bit-by-bit and day-by-day, your world increases and accelerates its vibratory patterns, matching ours, co-creating with us an atmosphere, a conducive and conductive atmosphere in which your world and our world can then, very soon, meet face to face – when you believe you are actually equals to each other, and equal to all creation. When you know you are an equal, then it is easy for our world to blend with yours.

We will now extend our appreciation to each and every one of you in co-creating this interaction with us, and for choosing to function as ambassadors of your society this day of your time, because this is what you are right now. We thank you for allowing me to function as an ambassador of my society. In return for this gift, I ask you now, how may I serve you? Sharing!

Transformational Template 1
Transforming Fearful Beliefs

Q: How do you stop letting fear control, take over?

B: Know that it is your friend. It is giving you a message. “Tap, tap, look here! Part of yourself that you didn’t know existed, I’m bringing it to your attention, isn’t that wonderful? Now that you are aware of it you can integrate it into the rest of your being, and be more of what you are. Haven’t I done you a wonderful service?”

“No? What do you mean you didn’t want to see that part of yourself? I thought you wanted to see everything there was to see, experience every facet of the multidimensional existence that you are. Do you not want to integrate in yourself, so that you can accelerate in that way? You’re not sure? Well, all right. I’ll hang around until you are sure, until you allow me to deliver the message. I will hang around. Of course, as long as I hang around, you might as well feed me, pay for my meals, allow me to grow and become a live-in, to get stronger and stronger, nag you constantly until you allow me to deliver my message, so I can get out of here.”

That is the only reason fear is there – because you do not allow it to deliver the message that it brings; because you attempt to reject the message because you think it is something that is not worth having. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, it does.
B: Thank you. Yes?

Q: When you use the word “you,” y-o-u, you’re speaking in an overall sense…
B: Sometimes, sometimes not.

Q: Well, let’s say, if I said I wanted a million dollars but I don’t have it, you’d say: “Well, you don’t really want it,” or something like that. But the me that I know myself by wants the million dollars.
B: What does it matter what you want? Do you not prefer what will truly allow you to be the idea you chose to be?

Q: Yes. Yeah, I understand.
B: Then there may be a situation where there is another way, an easier way to be that idea, rather than the symbol of the money.

Now, if you are concentrating on only the symbol of the money as being the only valid way that you will accept delivery of the situation you want, then you are shutting the doors on all the other ways it could be delivered to you. Because you are refusing to acknowledge that there may be other ways, quicker ways, easier ways it can manifest, rather than through the one symbol you are willing to recognize that you call money. It is not the only symbol of abundance.

Q: Mhmm. I guess my question really is… that was just an example. My question really is: the me that I know myself by, there are elements missing when you look at the overall picture; from your viewpoint you can see probably more of me than I can see of myself.
B: Not really.
Q: Okay. If I could see everything about myself...
B: Yes.
Q: ... I wouldn’t be down scrambling around in the third density, would I?
B: In a sense, yes, no. First of all, you would not necessarily think that third density was such a bad place.
Q: I don’t particularly think it is...
B: All right.
Q: ... but you said before that in the fifth density you know what...
B: Fifth density, you will not be physical. You can know in fourth density; you can even know in third density.
Q: Well, didn’t you say something about you’d know who you are, completely?
B: As completely as you need to, for where you are and what you are.
Q: I see.
B: Now, you do know yourself that way now, but you don’t believe that you do. That is the only thing that keeps you from seeing the total you that you need to see.

Right now seeing the total you does not mean you are going to vaporize across the cosmos. What it means is that you will simply trust that everything that is going on in your life that you are aware of, is what you need to know, and anything that comes in is more of what you need to know, and not something to reject.
Q: Well, what is – the lady asked a question about fear. And if fear is delivering a message, how – I have fears myself, but I don’t always know what the message is. I would rather have the message than the fear.
B: Well, simply recognize that – now, I am not saying that this is something that carries any more power than you do, but many of you have put much stock in the belief of habits. And so, because you believe that things can happen in your life habitually, second nature, without even knowing you are doing it, then many times you simply do not even realize that you are, before you can even think about it, rejecting the message that comes from the fear.
Q: Oh, I see, Yeah.
B: Because you simply do not pay attention that quickly. You follow me?
Q: Yeah.
B: Therefore, it is simply a matter of allowing yourself to know that the messages are there; that you can hear them; even allowing yourself to be fascinated by the fact that the fear might be bringing a message, can even curtail the negativity, can dull the negativity. Just because you might be fascinated enough to say: “Well, what is the message?” The minute you become curious, no more fear.
Q: Could you give an example of what a fear... what kind of message a fear would bring?
B: Well, in this way, you are walking down one of your streets. Someone walks up to you, and all of a sudden you are fearful: “What do they want? What do they want? Why are they bothering me? I do not want to be accosted. Are they going to rob me? What do they want?”

“Excuse me, do you have the time?” “Oh, well, yes.” “Oh, thank you very much, good bye.” “Why was I so fearful? Why was I so fearful, automatically, without knowing anything at all?” Assumptions and structures that you have build habits that you believe in. The message is there; that lets you know that, that reaction lets you know you have beliefs within you, structures within you that you may not prefer. That may be the message. If you do not prefer to live that way, then you have now allowed yourself to let the fear show you that these beliefs are within you. Now you can change them. That is one way you can allow fear to deliver a message.

Q: Uh huh.
B: Will that serve you?
Q: To a degree, of course, there is a situation where a guy does have a gun under his coat…
B: Yes. So?
Q: Fear is really telling you to get the hell out of there.
B: All right now, once again, understand that that situation can occur that way, but it also does not have to. The idea of knowing your reality, and knowing it without fear, can give you the cognition that that event is there, but you know it will not affect you in any negative way.

Q: That’s the way I generally approach my life.
B: All right.
Q: But I’m wondering…
B: Cognition of a situation does not have to create fear.
Q: True. But what I’m saying is that sometimes the sensation of a fear comes up, and I go: “Okay, oh look at that; that’s neat.”
B: Yes.
Q: And I just find that I’m able not to feel fearful because I’m in the moment…
B: All right.
Q: And I know that there will be a positive outcome.
B: Yes.
Q: So how is that different from what we are saying? I’m saying, if that does occur, then what is the message? Have I just made the message unnecessary? Or have I…
B: Yes. The minute you begin to become curious, you have gotten the message. The idea of many of the fears is to simply spur your curiosity to begin exploring that facet of yourself. That is all. It is a gentle reminder. And the more you are willing to explore, the gentler and gentler and gentler the nudges become, until you simply do not experience that fear anymore.
Q: I see.
B: Again, it is simply the idea of little bits and pieces of beliefs and remnants. That is all. Little twinges of old habits. That is all. But as soon as you acknowledge that it is something worth exploring, no more habit.

Q: So in the case where this guy does come up and he's got a gun, and this initial intention was to rob you or whatever, and you will experience the fear and go: “Okay but I don’t have to, I can just view this as a positive thing.” That will flip you and him into the dimension where you co-create…
B: It can happen that way. It can also simply allow you to not come anywhere near that individual, and vice versa.

Q: Well, I’m saying he’s two feet in front of you.
B: But understand, you are missing the point; not that it cannot switch in the middle of the idea. But generally speaking, individuals do not generally need to have that particular type of reference to simply know that if they create their reality in a certain vibration, then you will never meet the individual at all. They will take another street. You will take another street.

You will not have to come down to the idea of the confrontation at all. Although that may be one way that individuals may find an exciting way to come to terms with what they believe in the moment. It is certainly valid if they create it, and it has happened.

Q: Well, it sounds like what you’re saying is that, where you go down a street other than what he goes down, its as though you’ve already dealt with your fears in a way that you…”
B: That is the point.

Q: Okay. But I mean…”
B: Yes, yes, yes. If you are using the situation to allow the fear to be there to deal with it, then yes, you can transform the situation right in the middle.

Q: Uh huh. Thank you.
B: And therefore recognize, that if that is what you are willing to do, then the individual you have attracted is someone willing to change with you.

Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, in a sense, it has already been changed.

Q: So it exists already, and you just access that…”
B: Yes.

Q: Could I just finish the thought I was…”
B: Yes.

Q: Judgment seems to be the common denominator; if you judge, you immediately create a polarity, which seems to create a magnetism; it attracts…”
B: Yes. You become the vibration; you are what you judge.
Q: So rather than trying to polish up the magnet, the best way is to blow your own polarity by becoming static, which is like a pure love.

B: In a sense, you become polarized in your own reality. That is all. Your frequency can only, therefore, attract the same frequency. You can only experience what is on your wavelength, and vice versa.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Q: When the two people spoke of fear, let’s say, for instance, you experience the fear, and then you do become aware of beliefs that it points to.

B: Yes.

Q: How do you then change the beliefs?

B: Once again, recognize that it is not a matter of needing a process – although your imagination can supply you with whatever process you think you need. That is what it is for. It is tuned right into your vibration. Anything you can imagine, therefore, that might work as a process for you in order to create that idea, will work for you. If you change your mind, then that idea will work for you. If you change your mind, then that is an indication that you are supposed to.

However, you do not necessarily need a process, if you are willing to understand that once you are cognizant that there is another way to be, you automatically already are that other way. And all you need – the only process you need – is to act like you already are that other way. Then your reality will be able to reflect the way you are now. That is it.

Q: Thank you.

Q: I have a fear of ghosts.

B: Ghosts! Why? You have been one many times.

Q: What kind of message... I mean what do I learn from it? How would I cope with this?

B: Oh, in this way, the idea may simply be that it is an indication of an extension of your powers. And also perhaps a memory of an experience of another life, wherein you allowed yourself to feel the limitations and restrictions that go along with that particular vibratory energy.

For in this way, what you usually perceive as a spirit or a ghost or a haunting, so to speak, are many times, individuals that are still very, very close to the physical vibration, yet have died. One of the reasons that they are close still to the physicalized vibration may be that they, a: do not know they have died, b: have died in a self-induced violent manner that allows for a lot of attachment to the earth plane to still exist.

And so, from time to time, the vibrations of that non-physical individual slow down enough to be perceived by individuals still physically living. This may simply be a reminder for you of a time that you created, in a similar way, that was unpleasant for you. And also now a reminder, that as you now are extending your senses to go through that level and beyond, you still must encounter that level again.
You are simply fearful that you will become stuck there again. But you won’t be, because now you understand that that is only part and parcel of the idea of a specific belief system, and that you now already are a different belief system; and you will sail right through that level.

Now understand, you can also be of assistance to these individuals, because you have had the experience of being there before. And the original ideal, as we have said many times, of your so-called exorcist is – not the idea of the banishment of evil spirits – but what you would call a ghost psychologist, to allow then to know that they are, in fact, dead. That they are just fine where they are; and they do not have to remain attached to the idea of the physical earth plane and can get on with their lives on whatever level they want to.

So you can assist any ghosts you come across, because they will recognize that you are speaking from the heart, from experience, because you have been there. And you are simply recognizing that you may have a fear that you will be there again. But you will not, because that is not the belief system that you are right now. And interacting with the ghosts in the dimension of your imagination can also alleviate that fear for you, because you will become more and more familiar with that realm; it will become your friend and you will sail right through it.

Do you follow all I have been saying?

Q: A little bit. My fear is that I haven’t had a confrontation with a ghost yet. I have a fear of it being there, because…

B: Of course, but that is what we are saying. We are not saying you need the confrontation; we are saying it is a memory of having been, “stuck” in that place. And so you fear to face it again.

Q: Right.

B: We are saying you will not be stuck there again because that has nothing to do with the beliefs you have in this life. It is not what this life is all about. And it can be something you can utilize in a positive way, because you are experienced with being in that state. Therefore, should you run across something – the idea you call a haunting or a ghost – you will be able to communicate with them, at the same time alleviating their fears so they can go on, and alleviating your fears so you can go on.

Q: Yeah, I guess I just don’t trust myself with some – if a confrontation comes, I’ll just go crazy with fear and be paralyzed or something.

B: You are not paying attention. You have already been there; you don’t need to be there again. The idea of your paralyzing fear is only an exemplification of the idea you experienced already in that state before. That is the only thing you are remembering, but that is not who you are.

You can choose to recognize that that vibration has nothing to do with the idea you have created this life to be. Now, your imagination is a dimension unto itself; it is the dimension in which you exist as consciousness. Therefore, trust and rely upon your imagination to provide for your scenarios. Right now, or whenever you feel so inclined and so comfortable, in your imagination talk with ghosts; see what it is like. Right now, what would you imagine it would be like talking with a ghost? Create a ghost in your imagination, and talk to it. What would you say? Let us say you are walking down your hallway, and there is a ghost. What do you say?

Q: I’d say: “Who are you?”

B: All right. Nothing hard about that is there?

Q: “What do you want? What do you need? What can I do for you?”

B: All right. What’s so tough about that?

Q: Well, it’s not tough because I’m surrounded by people, but when I’m alone and it’s dark in the house...

B: Ah, ah ah! You are always connected to All That Is. Do not forget, you are simply confused in a negative sense, with the idea of what being vulnerable is all about. You think vulnerability is weakness and exposure, and therefore, susceptibility to negativity. Vulnerability is being willing to be open to All That Is. Being open to All That Is is being connected to All That Is. Being connected to All That Is is being infinitely self-empowered and strong.

So be vulnerable when you meet the ghost. You will be infinitely supplied with infinite strength. Vulnerability is not weakness, nor susceptibility to negativity, it is strength, it is love. It is willingness to be all that you are. And that is what will give you the ability when you need it, at that moment, to deal with that ghost.

And let them see in you the reflection of your life, the reflection of your love and your connection to All That Is, so that you can remind them that if they can see that in you, they can turn around within themselves and see their connection. That is what will let them go on. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Feel the vibration of your love and share that with them. That is all you need.
Transforming Our World

Q: Over the years I’ve had a lot of experiences... I’ve seen flying saucers up close... I’ve met inter-dimensional beings. And I don’t have clarity on which they are, where they’re from, and what they’re trying to accomplish.

B: First of all, they are from many different places, not just one. You understand?

Q: Yes, sure. Could you be more specific?

B: There are many civilizations interacting with your world. There are beings from what you call our world, Essassani, there are Sirius, there are Arcturean, there are Pleiadian, there are Reticulum; there are many civilizations. Our attempt, quote/unquote, is in assisting your planet through its transformation in an unobtrusive way; that allows you to know that you are responsible for that transformation. Not us.

Q: Yes, I do realize that.

B: That is our basic reason: to assist you in returning your power to you. To help you wake up. To take back responsibility for the creation of your lives so we can then interact as equals, rather than your world continuing to hold us up in some sort of awe or regard, above yourselves.

Q: Yes, I see what you’re saying. It’s sort of made me feel like am a nw i t ha m i s i o n b e c a u s et h e s e things started to happen to me at a very young age.

B: Yes.

Q: I mean... there are so many things I could say.

B: Yes, you are assisting with the transformation in your own chosen way.

Q: Yes.

B: Continue to do so in whatever way excites you the most that can be done through your integrity. The things that excite you the most are the indications of the path you chose to be, to be of assistance in this transformation. That’s why excitement exists, to let you know what the things are that represent your purpose in this life, and how you can be of best assistance.

So that is why we say that acting upon what excites you the most... that is having an equal conversation with us. Not just talking. Acting, doing, creating your planet to be one that has an equal vibration to our world, so we can interact face to face.

Q: I find that as I am acting, I find that there are limitations.

B: Now and then, yes.

Q: Actually, not so much... I mean, they’re in myself, but they’re also around me.

B: Yes.

Q: And you find that when you act, that the people around you aren’t ready to act.

B: We understand what you are saying.
Q: In other words, they aren’t ready to get on with it, so you kind of hang out and wait.
B: No, no, no, you do not wait. You act, you continuously act in whatever way you can act. That action is what will allow other individuals to know they can also begin acting. If you stop and wait, they will wait for you.
Q: Oh, yes, I see what you’re saying. It seems like...
B: We understand. Different individuals will proceed at different rates.
Q: Yes.
B: But that doesn’t mean that you stop acting on the things you can act upon.
Q: Right, right. In other words, you realize that maybe this particular individual isn’t the one that you’re supposed to work with. Or in other words, you’ve come to a plateau and realize that you maybe need to do a one-eighty, and move in another direction, so to speak.
B: Yes, yes. And that is the continuation of working with that individual, because that’s what they need to see from you.
Q: Right, right, it’s all relationship.
B: Absolutely. Does that assist you?
Q: It does, but also, specifically, I remember two events in my life and I’d like to know – actually three – who they are and where they’re from.
B: No, no, no. Because we will not label them and separate them at this time when everything is coming together under the Association understanding. For now, simply consider all members as members of the Association of Worlds. Yes, you have your specific connections. Yes, you will discover them when you need to. But use the energy for how it allows you to move. If you spend time labeling them to excess, you will focus on details you do not need to focus upon.
Q: Yes, I hear you.
B: All right. Pay attention to your dreams. The information you need is almost always most easily accessed there.
Q: Well, that brings up another point. I find that in the dream world, sometimes I do connect with the core.
B: Yes.
Q: However, I can’t remain there...
B: Yes, yes, yes... yes, yes, yes, yes... you can.
Q: Okay, I know I can... I know I can. However, I flip through it.
B: You do remain there, if, once you reinsert yourself in what you typically call physical reality, you act upon the version of that core energy you still feel. You will then create a reflection of that core energy in the physical reality, which is the whole idea.
Q: That’s true.
B: Creating Heaven on Earth.
Q: Right, through our physical bodies.
B: Yes.
Q: I mean to bring it... to manifest it in.
B: Yes. Remember, again, that your soul does not inhabit your physical body. Your physical body is your spirit, in physical terms. So be the spirit that you know you are and act like it, and you will transform the spirituality of your world.
Q: Yes. Also, I find that I used to be more what I call yin, or yogic. In those days I was more able to watch my dreams, perceive my dreams, influence my dreams, understand my dreams; however, these days I’m in a more what I call a yang mode, a more business mode.
B: Yes.
Q: Therefore, I find that I sleep more deeply and that I dream less.
B: You do not dream less, it is simply now the idea is that you are now recognizing that physical reality is the dream you are changing.
Q: That’s true.
B: So you are applying it on the physical side. The same things you learned how to do on the dream side, you now can recognize you can do on the physical side, because physical reality is but a dream, literally, period.
Q: Just one that we create, that’s true.
B: Absolutely. Thank you very much!
Q: Thank you.
B: Sharing!
Transforming the Belief of a Separated Consciousness

Q: You communicate with this Earth, and do you communicate with others?
B: Yes.
Q: Have you ever heard of Ashtar?
B: Yes.
Q: Could you explain that?
B: It is one of the representational names that you have created in your vocabulary for a certain density of consciousness that is in connection, as many civilizations are, with your civilization, and assists in the transformation you are making from third to fourth density upon your planet.
Q: I’m not sure I quite understand.
B: It is a group of beings, if you will, though that is not literally accurate, that are in contact mentally with your civilization, to assist you as we are assisting you, and as many other civilizations are assisting you, in your transformation from where you are into higher awareness.
Q: All right.
B: There are, however, some misinterpretations about what they are going to be interacting with you about. Simply, there are many individuals upon your planet who regard them as someone who will still take responsibility for you; that they will be saviors, which they are not.
Q2: Like take us off the planet in their ships?
B: Yes... now, the idea simply is that you do not need rescuing. You will have the opportunity to form an identification with many civilizations, to the extent that you can experience the “parallelizing” of your planet, in a sense – the creation of a fourth density state, in which it may appear that certain things do not affect you physically, in this way.
It will seem as if you are removed to another state, another density, but you have made this removal yourselves, in concurrence with your willingness to be of equal vibration to the civilizations which you are reflecting to yourselves in our appearance to you. In this way, it is not a literal removal of the planet; it is symbolic, in a sense. You have made it symbolic because your mentality has only been able to interpret the idea in a symbolic, physical fashion.
You are not being saved. You are being identified; and in that way you are allowing yourselves to recognize the implication of another vibration, of another reality, of another potential existence, and you are identifying with it. And by synchronizing and by harmonizing with it, you will find yourself in fourth density state, having been, in a sense, removed from the third density world into a fourth density state.
Q1: Is that what we on Earth are...
B: You are in the transition from third to fourth, yes.
Q: What density are you?
B: We have aspects in third, fourth and fifth.
Q: Okay. Now I have a question about myself. People tell me that I have an energy about my person. Different cultures of people have told me this.
B: Yes.
Q: And I can use it for good, or I can use it for bad.
B: So can anyone. But allow me to elucidate first of all: the concepts you call good and bad are your own creation. There is positive and negative energy, yes. There is positive manifestation and negative manifestation, yes. Good and bad are qualifications; they are judgments.
Q: All right.
B: You can, as anyone can, use their own godhood, their own self-empowerment for positive or negative manifestations, of course. Which do you prefer?
Q: Whatever is necessary at the time.
B: Whatever is necessary? All right. Now this has been done for the last twenty five thousand of your years upon Earth. In this way, it is your choice of experiencing the idea that it is necessary to experience negative manifestation in order to feel like you deserve something.
Q: No, I didn’t mean that.
B: All right. Then understand that whatever is necessary is what you prefer. The idea at this time of the blending of the transformation is that you can find that it is no longer necessary to suffer in order to know that you do deserve happiness.
Q: Or peace of mind?
B: Same thing.
Q: Now, what is the purpose of coming here to find out, to hear, what you have to say?
B: No, you are here to hear what you have to say.
Q: I am here to hear what I have to say?
B: Yes. We are being allowed by your civilization to reflect to you what you already know. We are only reminding you of what you already contain within you. You are allowing us to waken you to yourself.
Q: Now, how would a person go about expanding their mind, say, to another plane?
B: You are expanding your consciousness. Your mind, a product of your mentality, is a product of your personality, which is not who or what you are. Your personality is an artificial construct that your consciousness uses as a tool to express itself in the physical world to serve a certain purpose. And your personality shifts all the time, as you change the idea of yourself, as you expand into different awareness of yourself.
The idea of going into different planes is simply allowing yourself to become more aware of more of yourself, since you already exist on every level that there is. Because you are the creator, you are All That Is.
Q: Okay. Now we have a conscious and a subconscious...

B: The idea of conscious outer-aware consciousness, and subconscious and unconsciousness, are all physical personality mental manifestations, which have nothing to do with your knowing consciousness, which is non-physical.

These are tools, they are ideas; the idea that you have a separated consciousness is what creates the effect of a separate consciousness. In reality you are one consciousness. And the idea of this transformational life is to allow you to know that you can act as if you are one consciousness.

In many ways the idea of having a sub and unconsciousness has only been an excuse to not look at certain portions of yourself that you fear to look at, because you are separating yourself from the All That Is that you are.

Q: But if that’s how we were created...

B: Understand in this way, it is simply an habitual ritual in the twenty-five thousand year cycle to impose the idea of a separation of your consciousness into outer, sub and unconsciousness. In this transformational life you will understand that you can blend them to such a degree that you will know that nothing in your outer-aware consciousness is hidden from you. And you will find that the children now being born upon your planet may realize this a little sooner than the adults do.

Q: All right. Okay, let’s go in a little further.

B: All right.

Q: My consciousness... I’m talking about myself, because you put it to me... my consciousness now, my awareness, is what I see, hear and feel.

B: Physically, all right?

Q: Right. Now, when I put myself in a state of blocking out my physical feeling...

B: Yes?

Q: ... and going... oh, I don’t know what I’m saying!

B: All right. You are actually expanding, you are actually integrating, you are not really blocking.

Q: Okay, well...

B: You are including.

Q: ... meditating is what I call it.

B: Yes, you are focusing in the center of your consciousness, all of it.

Q: White light.

B: Yes, ALL of it, ALL of your consciousness; the source of yourself.

Q: Yes, which I... I’ve forgotten what I was trying to say. (Pauses) All right now, for example, you go through different stages when you go through this process... or I do.

B: All right. Very good, some individuals do not.
Q: Well, okay, for instance, I noticed one of the people here mentioned lights and colors.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, so I use that also, along with the Great Pyramid.
B: Yes.
Q: Going through the center of the Pyramid to the point at the top.
B: Yes.
Q: All right, and then the different colors change, and when you reach a certain peak... I’ve only been able to reach a certain peak and then I snap, and balance back, to what I call reality.
B: Yes.
Q: What would you suggest...
B: First of all, that you can simply realize that what you are doing is only your version of your tool of your imagination. It is, for now, what gets you there, what works for you. It will change as you change the idea of yourself. Every tool that you create is valid for you, because it comes from your imagination, which is specifically tuned to your consciousness, to provide you with the necessary rituals and tools and ideas to allow yourself to explore the integration of your consciousness in whatever manner you have chosen to do so in this physical life.
Q: Now, the creativity of your mind... okay, the mind is very powerful...
B: Yes, it creates your physical reality.
Q: All right, does it create your sub... I’m lost for words right now.
B: All right. Your consciousness, non-physical consciousness, projects itself into the idea you call physical reality, and thus, creates a mentality or a mind which is a physical version of your consciousness, in order to perceive the physical reality which has been created. But it is the mind that creates the physical reality, the physical reality that creates the mind. Without one there is not the other.
Q: How about the spiritual part?
B: What about it?
Q: Well, isn’t it part of it also?
B: Yes, but it extends into the non-physical universe as well. It is the driving energy of your existence that is your spirit. Now, your physical mentality gives rise to what you call your outer-aware ego consciousness, your subconsciousness, and your unconsciousness. But those ideas are only physical, and when you become non-physical, when you are either out-of-body, as you say, or you physically “die,” those concepts no longer exist for you. You are ONE KNOWING consciousness. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes and no.
B: All right.
Q: I follow you until a certain point and then I...
B: All right, now understand, that you understand this perfectly on whatever level you need to; and you understand it experientially when you sleep. Because in your dream reality...
Q: That’s what I was talking about... dreams.
B: Yes. Your dream reality is, in a sense, really more of the real awake you, because there is more of you present.
Q: In the dream state?
B: Yes. The physical reality is more the limited focused dream. The dreaming you is more the real, expanded, aware of all of yourself, you. And that is why anything is possible there. Because you are the creator, you are All That Is.
Your imagination is the tool that is the bridge and the link between the dreaming you and the physical you. Both of which are real, but simply are experiences of a different nature, according to what you feel you wish to experience for your own understanding and balance of yourself, as a being.

Q: All right. Thank you.
B: Thank you!

Transforming the Belief of a Separated Consciousness
For those with whom we have been communicating in this manner for a little while, we understand that many of you have already very clearly figured out that what we were talking about recently, about the upcoming shift, now is very obvious to many of you as it has begun. As we explained to you that we found it necessary to come closer to your planet so that we could aid and assist in the balancing of the collective consciousness energy that would be affective by the shifts that were about to start in your society and as you have now begun to see them and as you have begun to see the particular incidents and circumstances and situations that are representative of great acceleration and shifts in your collective awareness about how you are arranging your planet, about what it is that is important for you to focus on about the idea how each and everyone of you must now do what you need to do in order to become more closely connected to all of your humanity to be more active, to be more involved, not only in the idea of creating the world that you want to create on a global scale but also doing this by creating the world that you want to create on a personal scale and not holding back. Now, two, of what you would call your most public assistants, those that have been seen, in that sense, themselves as being spokespersons for humanity– assisting humanity, those that you call your Princess and your Mother look then to the idea that their passing into spirit, both within the same time frame of what you call this week that was outlined almost a month ago being the time of accelerated transition on your planet. Thus, then, sends you a signal that it is up to you to take over their jobs. It is up to you now to use the gifts they have given you to reach out to humanity to be of aid and assistance, to expand yourselves, not sequester yourselves, but be of the world as well as in the world. They have acted as symbols and examples, living examples, for how you can, one person can on your planet, touch many and create impact. And, now, you are beginning to get a clue and hint as to what this acceleration time is all about and why it had to be so dramatically illustrated by the abrupt passage and the handing of the baton, if you will, to the rest of the world. There will be more. There will be other changes coming up now in this next few months of your time before your next upcoming new year, new orbit on your planet; but this is to show you the kind of thing that was meant by the kind of acceleration that we have all talked about for a long time. Where you have been instilled and connected to individuals who are not afraid to show their inner light and act as symbolic reflections for each and everyone of you so that you do not have to be afraid to show your inner light, not that it has to be expressed in exactly the same way. But each and everyone of you knows that you all have innate power, that you all have innate impact upon your planet. That all it takes is one in order to make an entire difference in your world and, thus, then you have been handed, shall we say the opportunity, the gift, and the challenge to make a difference, to create your world to be the way you have said for so long you want it to be, for now it has clearly shown you that others will not do it for you, beyond a certain point. They will show you how it can be done but then they will leave and leave it up to you. To each in your own way, and each in their stead be like unto them, be those that will be willing to act on the same level to the same degree, on the same magnitude of impact. And the way that you do this most strongly is by simply being yourself. That’s all you have to do, for that is all they were doing. that sense it did not have to be planned, it did not have to be charted out, but, in that sense, your Princess and your Mother have shown you the way. It is not that you must follow but it is that it is up to you to be like them. In the ability to expand and express your true-self, your true desire. Your gift of sharing being who you are and sharing that with your world that is what will make the difference. No longer then do you need to hide your gifts from the world, you will make a difference, each and everyone of you does make a difference. We understand that many of you for thousands of years on your planet have been trained to think that you have hardly any impact on your planet at all. Were that true, YOU WOULD NOT BE WHERE YOU ARE, FOR THERE ARE NO POINTLESS CREATIONS AND THERE ARE NO ACCIDENTS IN THAT CONTEXT! So allow yourselves to know, as we have stressed in many of these dialogues, many, many times that any change is a TOTAL CHANGE. And if you are simply willing to change from being who you have, for a long time, perhaps, in your society been taught to be, and are willing to change to who you know you are, and behave as such, you will see that you will also, each and everyone of you, at the same degree, have a far reaching impact on your planet as anyone that you have witnessed in your history. But, now is the time, now is the time, now is the time for personal responsibility. Do you have the ability to respond? That is the question. So, we strongly urge you to do so. Again, We remind you: we can never place ourselves into the position of telling you what to do. It is your planet, it is not our planet. It is your responsibility, it is not ours. But, we are your friends, we do love you and we are telling you that we know you are capable of equal greatness and equal behavior and equal expression if you would only but believe and behave as if you were. And your world will be transformed in a way that you know others have had impact and transformed it and it will truly be claimed as your planet, and your reality. So we urge each and everyone of you now to fall into step with this ACCELERATIVE WAVE of change and transition, and transformation and transcendence that has now begun to illustrate itself so strongly, so obviously and so blatantly upon your planet. For as you see that individuals, single individuals have literally touch the hearts of millions so to is that capacity within each and everyone of you, so to is that design within each and everyone or you would not exist. For each and everyone of you IS the face of the infinite, expressed from a different point of view. We thank you for allowing us to share this perspective with you this day of your time and for your willingness to be so bold as to choose to be on your planet at this time of great change. THAT TAKES COURAGE! So congratulations, for your strength and the revelation of the strength that is about to come through you from yourself by your willingness to be who and what in your heart of hearts you know you are.
Transmitting the Vibration of Vortex Points

There are many places on your planet that are called "power vortex points," very strong electromagnetic aligning energies are in those areas of your planet. When you go to those places you feel yourself immersed in the frequency of those areas. You can allow the energy of the place to align you if you match its vibration. Then anywhere you go on Earth, if you create that vibration, then that place will be where you are and all that are with you can feel the energy of that place. You will be like an extension of that energy spot. All you have to do is use your imagination and allow yourself to feel like you felt when you were in that energy spot and you will then be that vibration. This can be a way to prepare yourself before you choose to do a healing with someone else.

You can do the same thing, if you wish to create any form of art. You can re-create that vibration and then create the form of art that you feel is representative of that vibration. Then that piece of art will have that vibration locked into it.

For example, if you know that your Mount Fuji or your Mount Shasta area is one of the power spots of the planet, you can create that vibration in anything you do. If your artwork then creates the vibration of that place, all who come in contact with your artwork will be standing in the vibration of Fuji. Nature is always very balancing, very healing. Take advantage of the vibrations it provides for you. Many of you already understand that to gaze upon a beautiful tree or a beautiful flower creates a healing vibration, a centering within you.

So understand that when you see representations in art of objects that have a certain feeling, then the vibration of that object is really there. This goes hand-in-hand with what we discussed before about the world being a metaphor, a symbol. You can use the idea of the metaphor, or the symbol, to actually create a healing and balancing vibration, because all physical objects have a unique vibration. And even a symbolic representation of that physical object has the vibration of that object in a specific way.

You see, you are creating physical reality anyway. A physical object is already only a symbol of a vibration within your consciousness. So in some ways there really is not much difference between vibration of a tree and the vibration of a painting of the same tree. You can work with your symbols in this way to generate a balancing atmosphere, even if you are not in physical proximity to the object that is represented by the symbology that you choose.

In the past this understanding was called "sympathetic magic," the sense of creating a sympathetic vibration in model form, or in a symbolic form, that actually has the vibration of the real thing. Therefore, making a connection to that thing from a distance, because you actually have the vibration of that thing in symbolic form. Magic is simply the ability to truly transform your belief system, transform your reality around you in a very conscious way. Then, telepathically transmitting to other individuals the vibration of that change so that they, if they choose to, can experience that change as well in their reality. Sympathetic magic; there is nothing mysterious about this. It is only the "physics" of consciousness.
So allow yourself to understand it is all a matter of your vibration. Heal yourselves, heal everyone, by being the fullest "you" you can be. Then if you are in balance, you can allow others, through sympathetic vibration, to be in balance with you directly, or through your artwork and creativity.

Transmitting the Vibrations of Vortex Points
Traveling and Accelerating in Space/Time

Q: Is it possible that we might have a communication from Arcturus tonight?
B: In dream state.
Q: Thank you.
B: Particularly within each and every one of you that creates the manifestation of the portion of yourself that you call that child. (AUD: laughs and comments)

Q2: Can you tell me how, uh, on your planet, you take care of the young?
B: In this way, you will find that, first of all, we are in communication with the consciousness before it is born, during birth, and after birth. And in this way you will find that we are always in touch with the understanding of why that individual has chosen to manifest within our society to begin with. Therefore, any raising that is done is only an orientation process into the dimension that that consciousness has projected itself, approximately up to, what you would call, three years of age, then they are on their own for the most part. (AUD: laugh and comments)

Q: Do they reach full, what we would consider, adult height?
B: No. But in this way, at what you call three, they’ve developed the idea of the ability of interaction necessary within our society, to simply attract themselves to wherever they need to attract themselves, to learn what they need to learn.
Q: Umm. Thank you. Fascinating

Q3: In, uh, in your society, you travel through physical space?
B: In a sense. We do have a type of physicalness that you would call fourth density.
Q: When you come visit us do you travel through space to here or do you just appear here?
B: Now, the idea of the communication you are perceiving, this night of your time, is not "traveling" in the usual sense, in this way. I have not come to your sphere, except by the projection of my mentality, my consciousness in that way.

The idea of traveling in, what you would call, our spacecraft, also, is not exactly traveling as you understand it; but the idea is not necessary for us to travel in this way for this type of communication to take place. The idea of consciousness takes place above, so to speak, time and space.

Now this is part and parcel of how spacecraft work as well. Since they are also only projections of consciousness, like anything else in the physical universe. But, in this way, many times, we have the distinction of communicating with you this way. Whereas I am in my spacecraft, in my own system, not in your system. Or I have the opportunity, in this way, of moving, as you would say, my spacecraft to your system and interaction with you that way. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. When, when you do come in your spacecraft, can you exist in our atmosphere?
B: Yes. For there will have been the slight vibrational shift necessary to exist in your frame of reference at all. You would find that with a similar slight shift in the other direction, you would be able to survive in our planetary atmosphere as well. It is not dissimilar.
Q: You mean physically?
B: Yes. Recognize that when you travel in our spacecraft, you automatically, almost unconsciously, would make a shift you do not think you are making. You are adapted during the journey. Because the idea is that, to exist in our civilization, to even be able to perceive any other civilization on any other planet, you have to change the vibrational frequency of your consciousness anyway.
Q: Wow.
B: Doing so can allow you to adapt to the existence of that civilization.
Q: If it is necessary to change my frequency to perceive you...
B: Yes.
Q: it possible for you to come in your spaceship and have only certain individuals perceive you?
B: Yes. That happens quite often as a matter of fact. For you will find that because of the vagaries of consciousness, because you are shifting all the time, many times there are simply ships around you all the time you are not aware of, and sometimes certain individuals, because they simply, for a moment, for some reason, tune into a certain vibration, will suddenly have it seem as if a craft has appeared when is has been there all along. (AUD: laugh) Do you follow me?
Q: Yes. I have one more question.
B: All right.
Q: Um, is matter, does matter contain consciousness?
B: Yes. Matter is consciousness. Energy is consciousness.
Q: All energy?
B: Everything is consciousness. All That Is is consciousness.
Q: So, um, since everything is consciousness and it’s everywhere...
B: And every when. (AUD: laughs)
Q: ...then you can, that’s how you can tune in to a different frequency.
B: Yes. The universe is, as you call it, holographic. Do you understand the terminology?
Q: No. No.
B: Holographic, as you have created it to understand in your civilization, simply is a reference to the idea that any one point in the universe contains the probable whole universe.
Q: How does that work?
B: Very well, thank you. (AUD: laughs)
The idea can be expressed this way: there is, once again, in what you call your earth mythology, the idea expressed as Indra’s net, which is simply a net of pearls. Now, each pearl being round and reflective, has the ability of reflecting every other pearl in the net. Therefore, it can be said that each pearl contains the information of the total net. That is the way the universe is built so to speak.
That is why we travel as we do. Because the idea is simply that we do not think of spacecraft of any physical object as something that exists within space and time, but we consider space/time to be properties of the object itself. Thus, when we change the particular space/time co-ordinate property, vibrational signature property, of any object and replace it with another vibration, then by definition the object must cease to exist at its former location and take up residence at the second one, no matter how far apart in space or time that is.

Q: Without traveling in between? Just automatically?
B: Correct. Yes.

Now understand, this is what you are doing anyway, even when you move through a room. For every moment is its own unique moment and is not connected to the next moment until you form a continuum in your mentality. So you are constantly redefining the property of space and time for yourself, so that you create the illusion off motion. Nothing really goes anywhere. (AUD: laughs) It is all right here. You follow me?

Q: Yeah. So that means I could stop creating that…
B: Continuum.
Q: Yeah.
B: Yes. You can. (AUD: laughs) Does that excite you?
Q: I guess.
B: Thank you. Then you may find yourself creating less time, which will seem like an acceleration to you. But that is what you are literally doing when you are accelerating. Living in the now creates less time, so things seem to be sped up. Thank you.
Q: Thank you very much.
Q: Last Thursday night, after leaving here, I spent about five hours trying to get to sleep. And every single inch of my skin was itching like crazy.
B: All right.
Q: Finally, about an hour...
B: What were you itching to do?
Q: I don’t know...well...ha, ha, ha.
B: Obviously it wasn’t sleep.
Q: That’s true; that’s true. I was wide-awake.
B: Yes?
Q: I heard little scuttlings on the ceiling, and I kept imagining people peeking in the window.
B: All right.
Q: And so I thought that was very interesting.
B: Is that what makes your skin crawl?
Q: I hope it didn’t have that reaction.
B: Hope-hope-hope-hope-hope.
Q: Yeah.
B: Why not?
Q: Well, because I don’t want to react like that to what I think might be a visitation.
B: What is “like that”? What meaning are you giving to the phenomena?
Q: I’d rather have it to be itching to do something.
B: All right. You can also allow yourself to recognize that if you were being assisted in being accelerated, and that you were, in a sense, releasing things, it may have also been that.
Q: I’m sure that’s what it was. Let me tell you what happened after that.
B: Go right ahead.
Q: At four o’clock in the morning I finally fell asleep. At six o’clock, approximately, I came awake in a dream. This is the third lucid dream in a month and a half.
B: Yes.
Q: And I thought...I elected to fly. I knew I was dreaming, so I wanted to fly, and I flew.
B: Yes.
Q: And I kept flying and flying. Finally I thought to myself: “I want to be on Bashar’s spaceship.”
B: There you go.
Q: And so almost instantly – I was amazed – I was sort of standing there on the deck...
B: Yes.
Q: . . . of the space ship, but all the people . . . they looked more like Pleiadians. They were humanoid and they had long robes with all sorts of different colors of red and geometric shapes.
B: We are not the only ones on our ships.
Q: Oooh.
B: And the welcoming committees will always be those that will allow you to adjust most easily.
Q: That’s kind of the feeling I had, yeah. So I said: “Well, I want to talk to Bashar.” And so all these other people were about seven feet tall . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . and were looking at me, sort of smiling, as if to say: “Don’t get in the way.” And they were very friendly. And so a very small person came out, and he didn’t have what you have described as your looks, but he was very friendly. And he took me to a place of governmental . . . some kind of institution where there was a long line. Then he said he was going in, to get something for me. And so he just zapped the line away, went in, and came out giggling.

And then I went flying again. And as I was thinking of home, my consciousness – from the time I thought of home until I went into my body and woke up – never broke.
B: Yes.
Q: It was always the same consciousness. I woke up just laughing and screaming, because I knew that I had been consciously out of my body.
B: Very good.
Q: So one of things that happened while I was flying – and this was my question . . .
B: Yes.
Q: . . . is that I asked to fly over Hawaii. And a voice said to me: “No, you’re going to fly over Easter Island.”
B: Yes.
Q: And I wondered what the significance of Easter Island was?
B: For now, it is a very strong magnetic key that is pulling into place the pieces of a puzzle that had been apart for a long time. So what you are witnessing, in the idea of Easter Island, is the actual driving motor that is creating the triangulation between Hawaii, Shasta and Fuji. Because it is the ancient connection to Lemuria.
Q: Oh! Great. Thank you very much.
B: By the way, your interpretation of our energy was simply in a format that represented a more child-like state of our existence.
Q: Aaahh! It was very child-like and playful.
Traversing the Galaxies

Q: I would like to explore your spacecraft a little bit.

B: All right. Briefly.

Q: Okay, there are a couple of things. You say ”we” a lot...

B: Yes.

Q: ...are there other beings from your planet on your craft with you?

B: Sometimes, depends on what craft I am in. But also, the idea, many times, of “we” is simply that, in the sense that I am acting as a representative, then I will simply speak with everyone else... not for them...with them. Therefore, many times, when there is a ”we,” as opposed to an “I,” which comes through in the translation through the physical medium, it is simply that the synchronicity of the consciousness of many beings within my civilization are pooled together to express the same idea to you. It is their wish to share that idea at that moment. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. Well, what density... does your spacecraft exist in different densities?

B: At different times, yes; the idea of, what you call, our travel through space, of necessity, creates the craft to be in different densities at different times.

Q: Is it possible to go at the speed of light?

B: Now, understand that, what you call, the speed of light is something that has to with your third density, and only your third density. It is, in your terms, the speed limit of your third density and you cannot go beyond it – in third density. Fourth density knows no such limit. It does not apply. You are not in the same dimension. And when you are in that type of dimension, you are not going anywhere; you are not traveling in the same manner that you travel in third density. You follow me?

Q: Yes. And there is... the channel probably watched the show Star Trek... and there is a machine and there is spacecraft where they disassemble their molecules and reassemble them somewhere else.

B: Yes.

Q: Well, are they changing from third density and then going into a different density and coming back? Do you have something...

B: There can be variations of that idea which do utilize different densities, but also there are variations of that idea which are completely third density, utilizing what you recognize to be third density electromagnetic energy. Now, understand this: your society has created such a device and has been in existence for quite some time. It has not been, in your terms, exactly foolproof.

Q: Or made public.

B: Or made public.

Q2: Are you familiar with the Philadelphia experiment?

B: That and others.
Q: Okay, one other thing about your spacecraft. Do you have people that assemble it or . . .

B: In a sense, yes; although the assembly of our craft is in quite a different manner from your assembly in this way. The majority of the portions of the craft are, in a sense, “grown.” You follow me? The idea is that there is a thin metal idea and there is a force field idea. Now this is only an analogy, but it will do. The idea is that the force field takes a certain shape, and the crystalline metal is grown on that shape. When the force field is removed, the crystalline metal only knows that shape as its reality, and no matter how thin it is, it cannot bend; for it knows no other dimension in which to exist, except the shape that it is. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: The majority of our components are grown in this way.

Q: Is that the same as that milky white substance you were talking about before, like the sheets?

B: It is a different substance for the hull.

Q: Okay. And did you say that you could take that material and repair different parts of the craft with that?

B: In a sense, this will be more the . . . I’ll say, the intermediate layers in-between the different levels of the hull, of which there is, in your terms, in sandwich fashion, many times, eleven layers.

Q: And can you explain briefly how your ship uses light? Is it on the same principle as we do to propel it?

B: No, it is not the same principle.

Q2: Light being the propulsion - hyperspace travel?

B: In a sense; understand that light is what everything is in third density. You follow me? You are light. Simply, our craft allows the manipulation of light so that the energy of its connection as the barrier between one dimension and another is released. We use the doorway, the gateway aspect of light and simply amplify it in many different ways, so that the craft is immersed in a field that is represented by the doorway aspect of light. And once in that field, it is then, as a craft, disconnected from any particular universe, and so we may wind up, anywhere and “anywhen” we wish it to.

Q: You wish it by thought?

B: Yes.

Q: Do you have an interface with the biological system that you grow in the laboratory to keep your computers?

B: Yes. It is not so much exactly biological.

Q: So from a distance from the craft you can command it?

B: Yes, at a distance.

Q2: So you are not really, in actuality, traveling.

B: No. Space comes to you.
Q: So there is no such thing as “space travel?”
B: Not really. Understand that what you are doing is, well... let us say, not meaning to be derogatory, but you are sort of sliding around on the surface of space, not really using it.
Q: In our planetary system we use different propulsion on earth than hyperspace drive.
B: Yes.
Q: So do you utilize the magnetic and original fields of solar systems and bounce through them for your own polarity?
B: Yes, yes, yes.
Q: And as you leave the solar system you use all the points outside...
B: To some degree.
Q: ...and inject...
B: Although these fluctuate a little bit more than your society thinks that they do.
Q: So, across our galaxy you can spend, maybe an hour, and then, maybe a day, across in our time...
B: It will depend upon the different densities in different areas that will represent different time flows. So there is an entirely different scalar understanding of time in tensor dynamics, in that way.
Q: You’re in the timeless.
B: Yes.
Q: How long would it take, in our earth time, to get to another galaxy?
B: There are many different technologies that exist within different civilizations. For ourselves, approximately, the idea you call ten hours; for it involves different density shifts representing the idea of the separation of the two galaxies.
Q: And you have contact with Lyrans, and therefore, the Pleiadians?
B: Yes. Do not forget that Pleiadians, Lyrans and you are all the same.
Q: Could you elaborate on that?
B: Simply that in a sense you and the Pleiadians are, in a sense, literally cousins, and have offshoots from the same basic origin point you call Lyra.
Q: I take it’s from a higher vibratory state...
B: Yes.
Q: because of the mass consciousness.
B: Yes. Now you are merging into fourth density and that is why, as you become equal to them, you are now able to interact with them and us and others. For you are now choosing to remember whom you are, and that allows for the interaction of different civilizations that have known each other, to know each other again. Thank you.
Q3: Are there also interactions then on the astral plane...after life experiences?
B: Oh yes, and very often, very often during life. Out of body, what you call experiences; you are very busy, very busy, very interactive.

Q2: What planet are the Lyrans on now?

B: No particular planet. Although, as the idea of your planet, as the idea of the Pleiadians, you can use those systems as well, to define where those Lyrans are. The idea of Lyra now has emerged and progressed through many different density shifts and levels, it no longer adds to your original idea that exists on a particular planet.

Q: Right. They didn’t immigrate then to another one?

B: Yes, in a sense. But understand the Pleiadians and you are that immigration.

Q: Oh, I see.

B: In terms of the sectors that still exist on planets, there are a few others, but you are no longer Lyrans; neither are the Pleiadians, in that definitive sense. The idea now of the Lyran energy is quite somewhere else altogether, some-when else altogether.

Q: But they didn’t survive all of their wars, and they didn’t see us surviving ours, so to speak.

B: Oh, yes.

Q: But does it change the mass consciousness?

B: Oh, yes. Recognize you are only making a connection to the idea of a past consciousness that understood the idea of warfare in that way. What you are connecting into NOW, in the present, knows that you have chosen to allow yourself to integrate. Now recognize, it is also up to you to choose which idea you wish to synchronize with. You follow me?

Q: It’s within our higher vibration now, and it’s forming a higher consciousness that’s moving forward?

B: Yes, so you are choosing to integrate and not to destroy yourselves, yes...yes?

Q: Yes. Yes.

B: All right then. There is no need for the idea of concern about what anyone else THINKS you are going to do. You know what you are going to do. Do you follow me?

Q: But they have destroyed themselves too, so all of this is just created again.

B: So what? So what? It is all on going. That civilization in a sense...many civilizations upon your own earth, have, in a sense, destroyed themselves, yet, here you are again. You follow me? Yes, no, maybe?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.

Traversing the Galaxies
Q: I’d like to ask you: what is it like on your planet?

B: Oh, very nice. Thank you. Oh! It is very green, very park-like, very few buildings, very few structures. Most of the individuals upon our world exist in spacecraft at any given time. We need very few buildings, so everything is very green. Not unlike your world, but very few buildings. Our sky is also a little more greenish. Our star, our sun, is more greenish-yellow than yellow like your own.

Q: What are your people like? Um…

B: We are, of average, five feet of your height. White/whitish-gray skin coloration; somewhat wide oriental-style eyes, very large black pupil. Very slender, looking much like oriental, as you would understand that idea, although different. We are always – always, always – extremely happy. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, it does. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much.

Q2: Good evening.

B: Good evening…

Q: I have just become associated with a friend of mine who has had an experience with some Pleiadians. And she’s written a manuscript about it. And my question is: is it an appropriate time to get that published and…?

B: If it is, it will be.

Q: Okay.

B: We cannot really be of much assistance in this area to you except that, if an individual is following what excites them the most, then that is what will ensure it will have the greatest impact. And it will always unfold in the way it needs to, to carry the greatest impact. To some degree, there is assistance being given by those individuals about whom your friend is writing, but it is done in a very non-interfering way; for the decisions must be up to your friend as well.

Q: Okay.
B: But we would recommend that your friend continue to follow what excites. And the excitement itself will make a difference, regardless of anything that is published.

Q: Okay, thank you. I have another question.
B: All right.
Q: I have been associated for several years with two different individuals, one of whom is here locally and another in Texas. And I guess my question is: where is the psychic link between us?

B: Where? It’s within you.
Q: Okay.

B: How do you mean your question? It is not translating.

Q: Uh... where did our relationship originate, or...?

B: Oh, my, my! Everywhere. Anywhere. Nowhere. Originate...we understand what you very often mean in your world when you say, “Where did we originate from?” But it is a rather arbitrary idea, since everything exists simultaneously. Any given life may seem to allow one of those paths to stand out more than another, and so that path may seem to be the idea of an origin. But to many other lives in many other systems, if they are very strongly linked to what you are doing now on your Earth system, then they could just as equally be saying, “Well, yes, I originate on some planet somewhere called Earth.”

The idea is to simply recognize that, in any given situation where you do feel a strong connection to different ideas, it is the essence of the idea that you simply need to live out, whether you have a label for it or not. Now, in this way, connections can be known. But the easiest way to understand any reason for these connections is to simply allow yourself to recognize what you are learning by being involved with these other individuals. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm.
B: What is it you are learning?

Q: That is a good question. I don’t know.

B: Do you have a good answer?
Q: No, I don’t.

B: Yes, you do. We will allow you to think about it for a moment... time’s up! What are you learning about yourself in these interactions?

Q: Well, perhaps, some of my weaknesses and some of my strengths.

B: All right. You are learning the ideas about yourself that you do not prefer, and allowing yourself to recognize the ones you do. In no way does this mean you have to judge or invalidate those portions that you are calling weaknesses, for they are not truly weaknesses. They are simply choices. You are learning whether or not you continue to prefer certain choices over others. Is it allowing you to learn to stand for what you know to be true for you?

Q: Perhaps.

B: Perhaps! All right. Do you enjoy the interaction?

Q: Usually.

B: Usually. When do you not?

Q: I suppose when I choose not to.

B: All right. But why do you choose not to at certain times, for what reasons? What types of scenarios allow you to feel that you must choose to not enjoy?

Q: I don’t know.

B: Yes, you do. You can think of not one example?

Q: I don’t know. I keep putting myself into positions that I feel like I shouldn’t be in.

B: Then why are you there?

Q: That’s a good question. I don’t know.

B: All right. Where would you rather be?

Q: Perhaps there, but with a different viewpoint.
B: Ah! Very good, being where you are at any given moment with the viewpoint that represents who you prefer to be: that is what allows you to find yourself somewhere else, rather than simply being, quote/unquote, stuck in what appears to be a repetitive cycle of events you don’t enjoy.

Now, do you understand that all circumstances are neutral, and don’t necessarily mean anything on the surface – until you supply the meaning?

Q: Absolutely.

B: All right. Then in those circumstances, if you find yourself not enjoying them, why do you choose to apply a meaning that allows you to extract lack of enjoyment?

Q: Well, I don’t know. It’s easier to see after the fact then it is during the experience sometimes.

B: That is true, and that is because many times you want to have the spontaneous experience before you have the analytical awareness of what is going on and why you are doing it. So if it comes down to that in many given situations, then you simply know that, by living through the experience, you will, by the end of the experience, know all you need to know about why it was there, and how it can serve you. You follow me?

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Now you have also said that there are circumstances wherein you feel like you would rather be somewhere else. If you now know that there are circumstances that you do not want to be in, can you not describe in any way, shape or form one of those circumstances? Is there one that seems to occur more often than not? One style of circumstance you do not prefer, that you feel you continually create?

Q: Mhmm, there is…
B: Well?

Q: It’s generally a position of…where I feel somewhat stupid over a particular circumstance…
B: Stupid.
Q: …lack of knowledge or…
B: Oh, lack of knowledge.
Q: Yeah.

B: In other words, you feel less.
Q: Right.

B: You are therefore invalidating yourself. Do you not understand that at any given moment you are a perfect representation of whatever it is you are being at that moment? And that you will not become more perfect when you change; you will only become perfect in a different way?
Q: Okay.
B: Do you understand that?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Then there is no reason to berate yourself in any situation for being the perfect you you are being in that situation. You follow me?

Q: Yes I do.
B: There is no reason to un-equalize yourself with those with whom you interact. Then you are not being of service to them: you are not allowing them to be of service to you. You are simply invalidating yourself, rather than treating yourself with respect and love, as you were created. You follow me?
Q: Mhmm.
B: If you are going to doubt yourself at all, why not give yourself the benefit of the doubt?

Q: Ha ha, okay.

B: ’Tis up to you. You do not have to. But if you prefer to do so, simply allow us to remind you that there is no reason at all in creation why you should not, or cannot.

Q: Okay. Thank you.
B: Thank you very much. Sharing.

Treating Yourself With Respect and Love

Q: I have a question about tree spirits and how they reincarnate. Do they have the free will to come to where they want, when they want?
B: Tree spirits?
Q: Tree spirits.
B: All right. The idea that you refer to as tree spirits are extensions of the collective consciousness of your world – autonomously acting, yes, archetypal in nature, to some degree, yes. When they shift from form to form, it is not exactly as you would understand reincarnation per se, from your perspective. They are much more, shall we say, loosely connected to the idea of rigid form, even though they may associate themselves with certain forms, or manifest in certain ways. They have a much, much easier and smoother ability to shift in form, take on other forms, shift their vibration and identify as a new expression in physical reality. So, it is not exactly what you understand or experience, from your point of view, as reincarnation; but yes, they do have the ability to shift. And many times the spirits actually have the ability to become the entire forest at once, communing with itself or focusing themselves down to an individual leaf. They have this ability of focus, this broad spectrum of "shift-ability."

Now, the idea, also, to remember is that spirit is simply another word for electromagnetheric consciousness, or consciousness electromagnetherically expressed. Since the idea of trees, animals, rocks and all of what you might call the natural elements are far less rigidized in terms of consciousness, they really do have the ability to extend quite far in any way, shape or form that they really so desire. And they are very often transmuting into one another, even though you may not, on the surface, perceive this to be happening. But there really are fluctuations going on between the trees, the animals, the rocks, and in many ways there are levels of this where it is all really one thing. Knowing itself as one thing but also knowing itself as all of the components – the trees, the animals, the rocks and so forth, that you perceive them to be from your physiological and segregational perspective. Do you follow along?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: Is this answering your question specifically enough, or is there some other particular avenue you wish to explore about this?
Q: No, that answers my question, but I had another one for you.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: I was wondering if ... I've been meditating with trees and talking to them.
B: Oh, all right.
Q: And I get an answer back.
B: Yes.
Q: Do you see more of that in my future? I mean can I...?
B: Do you?
Q: Well, I’d like to.
B: Well, if you’d like to then you will. You see, this is really the simple idea behind all this. As we have said many times – when you follow your joy, and you follow your excitement, and you follow your desire, and you trust your imagination, and rely on your creativity, you are defining your future right there, because there is no such thing as a "set" future. There are many probable realities, and the idea is that they all co-exist simultaneously, in a vibrational matrix, the holographic spectrum. When you vibrate in a certain idea, in a certain direction, you are setting up a resonance within yourself that then calls forth similar resonances from the holographic matrix around you – so whatever it is you are vibrating at is the level of is the reality you attract to you. So if you say, "this is what I would like to do," you are implying that this is the vibration that you will maintain within you, and thus, it will only accelerate and increase within what you call your future. You understand?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Well, thank you very much for your sharing.
Triangles and Dolphins

Questioner: What we are sensing is that New Zealand is as the womb, Hawaii the heart, and here (Malibu) more as the head or idea stimulation point. And, two things I was wondering if you would share – is there a parallel triangle on Essassani, physically, that’s working with that triangle?

Bashar: How very perceptive of you.

Q: Can you share more about how that’s functioning, or any changes that are occurring?

B: The triangle on Essassani is more one completely of mobile energy, and it is contained within specific individuals on the planet that are focused upon specific locales on your own planet.

Q: Are they cetacean as well?

B: No.

Q: Are there cetaceans on Essassani?

B: Yes, but not natural.

Q: What does that mean?

B: It means they are yours. (Audience laughter)

Q: So, it’s the idea that, say, dolphins from here are visiting?

B: Yes.

Q: Producing the energy now.

B: Yes, yes. So, in that sense, there is some cetacean involvement but it is not exactly the same way, nor to the same degree as is going on upon your world. They are there mostly with the idea of ambassadorship.

Q: Are they physically in both places at the same time? The same individuals?

B: Some individuals, back and forth, sometimes.

Q: Okay and how does Japan fit into the overall triangle in this vicinity?

B: What allows there to be, as we have said, the balance point between certain types of polarities exhibited by your West Coast and their East Coast, and then a new active principle, the tip of the triangle, brings into play the blending of the polarities that is going on, with the heart at its center.

Q: Thank you.
Troubled Relationship

Q: I would like to discuss a troubled relationship that I’m in.

B: Trouble. Oh goody! All right. Proceed.

Q: I’m in a relationship with a woman. We have been on again off again for several years. We’ve been living together for about the last year and a half. And it seems to have gotten to a threshold where a physical separation again seems inevitable. The paradox seems to be that we both love each other, but on a day-in and day-out level we can’t seem to really connect with each other in a way that is mutually empowering.

B: Let us discuss this idea of relationship specifically. The notion that you love each other deeply doesn’t mean in and of itself how the relationship ought to be played out. The notion that you love each other deeply simply means that you have brought yourselves together in a relationship to reflect to each other whatever it is you need to learn about yourselves from each other within the relationship.

The fact that you were drawn into relationships through love is simply the mechanism that gets you there – to allow you to be open to whatever it is you need to learn about yourself, and in order to choose from what you learn in the relationship about what you really prefer for yourself. Sometimes the reality that you recognize yourself to be, or the reality you prefer, doesn’t necessarily synchronize in all the details with the reality that the other person in the relationship needs for himself or herself. That doesn’t mean there is not love in the relationship just because it may not flow in the expected direction, or the direction you have been taught to expect it must flow in. Love is still there because love is bringing you together so you can learn what you need to learn. And sometimes what you may need to learn is simply that your vibration, and their vibration, are not necessarily synchronized in the way that will allow you to remain interacting in the way that you think, but may choose other ways to interact – by being more yourself in a certain direction, by allowing that other individual to be more themselves in a certain direction. Being true to yourself is paradoxically, as you say, the way to "stay" in the relationship. But that doesn’t necessarily mean that you will actually physically stay together. You understand what we are saying so far?

Q: Very well. Thank you.

B: The idea is to really be true to who you really are to allow yourself to grow and learn what it is you really want, what your life should really be for you, and for the other person as well. Because if you’re not being true to yourself, if you’re not really being who you are, if they’re not being true to their self, and being who they really are, and having the life they really want – then you’re not in a relationship with each other anyway. You’re in a relationship with someone who you think they are; they are in a relationship with who they think you are. But if it’s not the real you, then you are not trusting that the true you, whoever that may be, and the true other person, whoever they may be – you’re not trusting that the true you has a real relationship unto itself. Whatever the definition of that relationship may be you won’t find out what it is until you allow yourselves to be the true you that you each need to be. You follow along?

Q: Yes, I do.
B: Does this help you?
Q: A lot.
B: Is this clear enough? Or is there some other aspect of this you feel needs clarifying or would like to discuss before you feel you have what you need?
Q: Well, the implication of what you’re saying, in the specifics of my situation, sounds like if we don’t feel we can truly be who we are, in what we consider to be the form of the relationship that we’ve been taught, as you put it...
B: Yes.
Q: ...uh, then what we should be about is creating a relationship in which we can be the best of who we can be, whatever that relationship looks like. Is that an accurate reflection?
B: In a sense. Yes. What we are more specifically saying is that you should be on and about creating the relationship that you need to be with, that you need to express yourself as. And if for some reason that means you cannot physically be with that person, then that’s what it means. But it really will not matter to either of you. Because if you’re being your true self you’re going to attract whatever people need to be in a relationship with you and they will feel like the right people, and you won’t really care who it is, because it will feel correct. However, again paradoxically, when you each allow yourselves to be the real people you need to be, then there really is no reason why you can’t continue to interact with each other throughout your life in some way, shape or form, because you’re being honest with each other about who it is each of you needs to be. And therefore there’s no fear. There’s no threat. There’s no arguing. There’s no conflict between you. Because you can still love each other for whom you are. You can love the relationship for whatever form it takes. And you can communicate with each other because you know that you are helping each other really be who you need to be, even if that means helping you be with someone else, if that’s whom you need to be with in a specific way. That’s unconditional love. Does that help clarify the issue further? Does that answer your question sufficiently?
Q: Yes, it does, very much.
B: Well thank you very much for sharing this aspect of your being with us.
TRUE CHANGE

B: Write on your list, to be me, to be me, that’s the only thing that appears on your list.
Q: I know that’s all I have to do; I just still physically want things.
B: To be ME! Write it on the list, to be me.
Q: Got it.
B: All right, now, listen: all the things that you refer to as your career, they are not your career. Any goal you want, that you have listed before, it is not your goal. Projects, things, whatever they may be, they are not what you want. You have only one career, you have only one goal, and that is to be you. THAT is your career, that is your purpose, it is your mission, it is your path, it is the ONLY thing that you need to do, is to be you. Now how you choose to express being you, may be many of those things you wrote on that list. To sing, to act, to do this, to do that, to do this project, to do that project, so on and so forth, but they are not your goals, they are not your career. You are your career, you, you, you, that’s it; it is the only one you have ever had, have now or will ever have. All of you, it’s the only career you have, the only point in being this you is to be this you as fully as you can.

So all of these ideas that you typically call careers, goals, these are simply modalities of expressing the career of being you, that’s your career. These are just ways of expressing it, that’s all they are, that’s all they are; they are not things to be attracted, they are modes of expressing the joy of being you. There is no reason to do them other than that, there is no reason to do them because you think that doing it will bring you something. That is short-circuiting their ability to do so. You do not do the things you do because they will have an effect; you do the things you do because they are the result, they are the effect of being fully you.

Q: Well, I guess what it is is that I want a life that is different than doing anything mundane whatsoever. . .
B: Listen to your definition; there is no such thing as a boring situation.
Q: I know it’s my perception of it.
B: Yes it is, and I understand what you mean, but all you have to do is just be you, believe me, knowing you, it will be unlike anything else’s likeness. So if you spent the time and energy worrying that you might accidentally do something that is mundane, where do you think all of your energy is going? Into being mundane.
Q: Into being mundane.
B: Yes, and that is still only being created by your definition of it, it still only appears to be mundane because that is where your focus is.

So let all that go, you don’t have to try to avoid being mundane, just be yourself and you’ll be ecstatic and everything in your life will be reflective of being ecstatic. It can not be by definition any other way if you’re just being you, the true you cannot, by definition, be mundane to you. The only way you can experience the so-called block or, what you are calling, stretches of mundane time are because you are trying to avoid creating them and thus, paradoxically, you fill your life with that.

Q: I know.

B: Because you are thinking that you have to cross that gulf to get to something that represents an ability to finally express who and what you are; when all you have to do is just express who and what you are in whatever way you want to. But don’t make those things the goals, it is not a goal to be able to express yourself that way, it is your natural spin-off expression of just being you, it will unfold naturally if you just be you. And every moment, whatever situation is presented to you, just be YOU as best you can in that situation, and everything will spin off and unfold and opportunities will come to you that will allow you to continue to express yourself in ways that are representative of YOU!

Q: Actually I do that a lot of the time and there are a lot of wonderful things happening.

B: I know that you have chosen to do that, the question is, why don’t you allow yourself to always do that? Because you have a definition that says there should be gaps. You have a definition of things that creates the appearance of gaps, blocks, whatever you want to call them.

Q: I have to work hard to pay for the things that I want, probably?

B: Did I say that?

Q: No, but I’m saying… I’m trying to think what that block or belief might be.

B: All right, you are attempting to define the idea.

Q: I couldn’t just manifest that without some work, you know some ethic involved or something.

B: Remember this, again, whatever classically, colloquially might, oh well, by some people on your planet, perish the thought, be defined as work and might actually be enjoyable to you, sometimes.

Q: It is.

B: Then trust that only those forms of work that won’t be “work” to you will be what your kit contains. Again, you are attempting to think of yourself as a collection of parts that have to somehow be forced together to work correctly, when you already work flawlessly if you would just let yourself do so. By discontinuing to assume that you could contain something superfluous that gets in your way, an extra component that would force you to have to do something that isn’t natural to get what is naturally yours, that doesn’t make any sense. You understand?

Q: Yes.

B: It does not make “creational” sense that you would have to do something that isn’t part of your ecstasy to create ecstasy in your life. It makes no sense.

Q: I know and I just can’t make that shift, that little….

B: Yes, you can.

Q: Well, I WILL. You bet I will.
B: I’m not going to bet on it. The idea is, however, is that you need to really see every single moment as a part of your ecstasy and not an interruption in it, no matter how it appears. Remember the first, as you say, rule of thumb, you can not discern that you have changed by keying off how your reality looks, you have to determine you have changed by how you respond to your reality, no matter how it looks. Then is when you will allow your reality to reflect the true change that you are willing to demonstrate, by responding according to way you prefer to, no matter how it works, that’s the paradox. If you really keep reacting the same way because it keeps looking the same, you haven’t really changed. But if you choose to respond differently, because you know you are different, that is what makes the difference in reality, that’s what allows it to shift. But, as soon as you say, “Oh, I didn’t get what I expected, I thought I was different, I thought I had changed, but I didn’t see what I wanted to see, OUT THERE.”

Q: No, I realize the world of effect, and believe me there have been some major changes in terms of my perception…

B: Oh, I believe you.

Q: I just have more work to do that’s all.

B: I am not discounting what you have been able to understand, but you are the one that raised the issue.

Q: I want it all, that’s all.

B: You are all of it, you are all of it, notice the differentiation, I didn’t say, “you have it all.”

Q: No.

B: I said, “you are all of it.” You have to allow, here’s the paradox, you have to allow what is to be perfect before what is can become something more. If you don’t love yourself as you are, TOTALLY, UNCONDITIONALLY, you cannot become the next you. And, unconditional doesn’t mean unconditionally except for this one condition. It means unconditionally, you must accept what is, before what is can transform into what will be, or what the next what is, can be.

Q: OK, thank you so much.

B: We thank you.
Trust and Validity

Q: I have been experiencing some ill feelings this evening and...
B: Yes. We were speaking to you.
Q: Yes, I realize that. And thank you for what you shared. My...
B: We thank you for what you are sharing. Your willingness to explore and expand in the manner you are doing now benefits all present.
Q: Thank you. It’s interesting how the energy has changed over the evening...
B: Yes.
Q: ...because originally it started off as a mild case of indigestion. And as you started to talk this evening... as soon as you started to talk about communication, it became overwhelmingly painful, and I had to go out of the room. And as I was lying down in the other room, this incredible force of energy just started to feel like it was flowing through me, and it was like almost, like, electrical. I felt it was trying to take me over.
B: Not take over, no. Simply reflecting your own power to you. In your society, you have been taught that recognition of your own power is a fearful thing. That is what makes it feel as if it is “taking you over.” But it cannot, for you are in control of it. You are always in control – even when you create a scenario in which it seems you are out of control. You are controlling that. Do you follow me?
Q: I follow you. I don’t understand how I’m creating this. That was my other question: I don’t understand of what purpose the pain in the stomach area, and the gas, is supposed to be. Is it serving me... or what is in it for me?
B: All right. The pain – all pain – physical pain, mental pain, emotional pain, spiritual pain – all pain is the result of the learned invalidations you impose upon yourself; the beliefs you buy into early in your life that you do not even know you are carrying with you.
The pain you were feeling this night of your time was your ability to now recognize that, as you expand your energy, and make connections within you, the pain lets you know you have been carrying beliefs that have been constricting you; that have not been allowing you to digest and channel through you, and derive sustenance and support and energy from more of yourself.
But now you are opening those doorways. The pain, in a sense – to be colloquial – is only there because the doorways are rusted shut. The more you open them, the more they will flow, the less pain there will be.
So trust is your medicine. Trust. The more you trust that the connection of energy you are making serves your purpose in choosing to be alive in this life, and allows you to avail yourself of unlimited energy to be of service – not only to everyone else, but to allow everyone else to be of service to you, and enjoy your life – then the more you trust, the more the energy will flow, and the more the flowing of the energy will lubricate the motion of the doors, the less painful it will be.
All pain, in your society right now, is simply remnant habits of judgment and ritual that you have believed were necessary. You have been taught to believe implicitly in this life that there is nothing worth gaining that doesn’t come with pain. So recognize you simply are now showing yourselves that you have those beliefs, and now, because you recognize they are old beliefs, you don’t have to believe that any longer. So any further changes you make, any further integrations you allow to occur within you, need not come with the invalidations that bring pain. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. I see that…that as this gentleman was talking about feeling incompetent this week: I had an experience with the exam that I had shared two weeks ago, that I was concerned about taking. I didn’t pass it, and...

B: So?

Q: So I’ve been… I felt – and this has been since yesterday – a real sense of what I felt was a strong competence on my part, which was fooled, was invalidated by this exam saying: “No, you are not as competent as you thought you were.”

B: Ah! But only you did the invalidating – no one else, only you. You set up the expectation, and according to the result you created, you invalidated yourself according to the result. You set up the circumstances, designed the experiment, and predicted the outcome.

Now! The reason, once again, that you are feeling the pain is because you are now re-integrating and recognizing that all you require is a good dose of self-unconditional love. For what you have been experiencing, in the idea of the so-called self-incompetence and self-invalidation, is the complete and total opposite of love, which is guilt. Worthlessness is the opposite of love, not hate. Guilt is the opposite of love.

So love yourself – for whatever you have created. For recognize it has taught you something, and brought you to where you are now. Do you not remember and recognize that everything you have ever known in life - positive and negative – has brought you to where you are now?

Q: Yes.

B: Then do not invalidate any circumstance: for if you remove any stepping-stone in your path, you cannot proceed to the next one, because you remove all stepping-stones when you remove one. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: The idea simply has been for you to recognize that it is up to you to determine your validity. No one else can ever possibly design a test that will prove your validity to you; no one – except you. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes. I designed the test. But I… and I answered the questions that I designed, and then the teacher – without my notes – wanted me to regurgitate that information. So, in a sense, I did design the test.

B: Yes. But it is only to show you the ideas and the beliefs you are harboring within you, about what you think is the most likely probable reality you can experience. It is simply your indication of to what degree you are willing to allow yourself to feel unconditional love for yourself – and All That Is. There is no need to continue to test yourself. You have passed with flying colors everything you have ever done.

For everything you have ever done you have designed – and the outcome is always perfect. You can never be found lacking. When you allow each and every outcome to be its own reason for being – and do not continue to assume that there is ONE background reality against which to measure all other experiences for their validity – then your own life will be its own experience, and is not to be compared or measured against any one else’s experience for its validity. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: All you are doing is continuing to believe that you need to measure and test yourself against what society says are the expectations you have to live up to, and you don’t. You are valid as you are, and you don’t have to pass anyone else’s test to prove it. You can’t prove it anyway; it cannot be done. You can never prove you exist to anyone but you.

For all the other individuals you may be busily convincing of your existence – who all graciously nod their heads in acknowledgment of your existence – could all be hallucinations for all you know. So you cannot prove anything to anyone but you. So there is no need to keep on trying.

Then... then... when you know you are valid, and you cease the idea of attempting to prove your validity to someone else, you will be able to “stomach” yourself. All right? Digest that.

Q: So the incompetence scenarios give us a jab in realizing that we can view ourselves as competent. Is that...?

B: It is an opportunity in many different directions, once again. It can be that you may be using it as a comparison, knowing you are comparing yourself to other people’s expectations of you, rather than living up to your own.

It can also be an indication that – as we have said – what you are doing is simply not where your heart is, and that you can do something else in which you know you will automatically be completely competent. Because as you have said on your own planet: “A labor of love is no labor at all.” And you do not have to live up to any expectation when you are enjoying everything you are doing. You are always doing it flawlessly, whatever you are doing. You will never “achieve” perfection, because you are already perfect.

Every single thing that you do is a perfect manifestation of the thing you are doing, and has no business being compared to any other thing for its validity. Every other thing is not better; it is only different. Everything is perfectly valid for what it is, if you do not prefer it, do something else. But the doing of something else does not need to invalidate the thing you are no longer doing, as less perfect that what you are doing now.

Q: Yes. Thank you.

B: Thank you.
B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great. Fine. Etc.
B: We will begin this interaction this evening of your time with a little more understanding of the idea of communication, and what it means in your physiological reality. Recognize that even though you are intrinsically – fundamentally, basically, let us say, originally, so to speak, non-physical, and that physiological reality in a sense is one of your creations, one of your projections, one of the ways you can understand and view and experience the idea of your non-physical consciousness, your physical reality is a part of what you are as well.

It is the idea you are being. And, in being that idea, it comes with certain definitions that allow you to function within that realm, and within the parameters that define what it is to be the idea of physical reality. Therefore, with respect to the idea of communication – now, communication meaning not only what you classically think of as communication in the sense of receiving a message – back and forth sending of a message from one or more consciousness to another – but the idea of communication can also extend into what you call the actual information that you are receiving – seemingly receiving – through which and by which you create the idea of the so-called physiological scenario. What you refer to as feedback or sensory experience, in a sense, is also communication.

Thus recognize that while in your non-physical state, on your non-physical levels, communication – intention of sharing of information, ideas, knowledge and perspectives – may be more what you call direct, as you think it is in your physical reality. But the idea of your physical reality, because of the definition of what physical reality is in terms of a separating element, an element that separates you from the rest of or more of all of what you are, then recognize that, by definition, any communication that you are receiving in physical reality is not so much a direct communication but an indirect communication.

What this means is, as you’ve said, as a physical being you create yourselves to be your own complete idea, your own complete universe. Therefore, anything at all that you receive seemingly from someone else, as a message, as a communication – what you are actually perceiving is your version of it that you agreed to create in your universe, so you could have an experience of the communication that is being sent more directly on a higher level.

But on the level of physical reality, what you do with that direct communication is create your own model of the idea, in your own terms, according to the reflection you need to see to understand who and what you are as a physical being, in the experience you have chosen to have as a physical existence.

It is not that what you are now hearing, for example, the words issuing from the physical channel, you are not hearing them directly. You are co-creating a complete, distinct and separate universe, physically, in which you take your non-physical understanding of what is being said and render that understanding in physical understandable terminology that you have all agreed to represent the communication between you. But in physiological reality the idea is not so much directly from, let us say, here to there, but in a sense it is more here, up over and down – so that you create your own distinct version that makes it seem as if the communication is directly here to there and vice versa.

Now, the reason for this and an advantage in it that you can utilize and allow yourself to understand many different energies with is, first of all, you have, as we have said, decided to explore the idea of separation, limitation in every way that you can – simply because that is one of the ways you can experience All That Is. Therefore, when you have created this limited scenario, realize to what degree you have actually created it. You’re connected to All That Is, but at the same time, you have truly created yourselves as individuals to truly be your own complete and separate and total universe unto yourself. That is so you know and can discover that everything in your life, therefore, is actually a product of your creation in your universe, and thus, you expressly have complete, utter and total control over every single thing you experience in your reality. Nothing comes upon you that influences you directly; anything at all that you feel to be an influence over you is your choice to believe that such an influence exists, and to create that seeming illusion of influence in your reality for yourself. You, when you feel you are being influenced by anyone else, are actually being influenced by yourself. It is the product of what you choose to believe; that is what your physical reality is.

Now understand, therefore, that the idea of what you experience as the physiological phenomena of telepathy, of knowing each others’ thoughts, is not really so much knowing each others’ thoughts, and again, it is not so much direct communication. What it is, however, is that you are forming what can be called a congruous or synchronous pattern, a way of looking at things – a perspective, a point of view – that is quite analogous, quite similar to the way another individual may choose to also view their belief about reality.

Thus, what you are doing is, both of you – the two of you who may feel are experiencing and expressing the idea of telepathic communication – both of you are extracting the higher communication down and through into physical reality in a similar fashion. So your thoughts, the thoughts you are having seem to be synchronistically congruent with another individual’s. Not because of direct interaction, but because you are both choosing to operate and interpret the higher understanding on the same wavelength.

So it is the idea of congruency, parallelism; that is what appears to be telepathic exchange between you. Nothing is actually exchanged on a physiological level. On a higher level, yes; but on a physiological level, it is acting in parallel that seems to be an actual exchange between you. You follow me?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

Therefore, you can recognize that any situation that you desire to create in your reality can be, as it has been discussed on your planet for some time, created by simply recognizing that if you wish to know anyone, then become congruent with them, become synchronous with them. In a sense, identify with their pattern.

The idea, as we have expressed to you many times, is that to love them is to know them. When you love unconditionally, you are identifying with another individual’s pattern, because you are willing to accept them as they are and allow yourself to be in touch with all the different portions and facets that they are. And allow yourself to be in linking, in that sense – in congruous parallel linking – in a sense, creating for yourself the same scenario you see within them, and vice versa, so that then you are traveling along similar lines. And by traveling along those parallel similar lines you seem to be having the same thoughts. You are creating similar manifestations, but it is not literally that you are exchanging the thought back and forth. That is why you can understand that when your society allows itself to know it does not have to have conflict within having different points of view, but that the idea of different points of view can all run parallel, then you will understand that at the same time you can have different points of view, you can also have unity. You follow me?

AUD: Yes. Yes.

B: Thank you. SHARING!
Trust III

B: I’ve heard you talk before about how reality, or All That Is, is a series of relationships?
B: In a sense, can be looked at that way.
Q: Okay, and you said that trust is all there is.
B: Yes.
Q: What do you mean by that?
B: Oh, thank you. Trust is the mechanism that allows you to have a perception of the interrelatedness of everything. Trust is the knowingness, the conviction, to act like you know everything is the same one thing, manifesting in multidimensional aspects simultaneously.

When you trust that it is so, when you come from an integrated point of view, when you know everything is integral, connected, interrelated – the same thing expressing itself in different ways – then you see that life is that way. You allow life to work, rather than feeling like you have to force it to work, or make it work.

Your trust, your insight into the fact that everything is one thing allows you – in simply doing whatever it is that represents the being you chose to be, in being of service and sharing and expressing the ecstasy and joy that you are in life – in allowing yourself to do that, you recognize that, because everything is connected, your service to everything is automatically in support and service of you, because you are connected to everything.

And if you are serving everything, you are automatically served; that is trust; trust that you always have all the ingredients necessary to manifest the idea you are being: that the universe automatically supports you, because you are willing to support it as a whole idea. And you, as a part of it, will be automatically supported – by definition. That is trust, the mechanism of trust.

Q: And also you talked a lot about acting.
B: Yes.
Q: Acting as if that is true. Okay, thanks.
B: You may all at this time, take a short break.
Trust in the Positive

We simply wish to impart to you that once again, no matter what you have chosen, choose now, or will ever choose to think of yourselves, we KNOW you can create the realities you desire, we have absolute faith in you, there isn’t one single shred of doubt in our minds about what you are capable of doing, not one. We do not stop and think about it for a moment. We know the type of world you can create, we see with the changes that are going on in your civilization, the type of world you seem to be headed for. In terms of your desire for peace and harmony, it is our perception that you are creating that world, although now you are going through the last vestiges of your old negativity, getting it all out of your system, bringing it all up to the surface, appearing to be more violent, with more escalation of negativity, but you are getting it all out of your system...that is our perspective.

We choose, we CHOOSE to believe that you are headed for harmony and peace. If we did not perceive that to be so, if we did not believe that we would be interacting with you in a short time on an equal level, as co-creators, in harmony and love, in all likelihood these conversations would not be going on. Your civilization’s vibration would be far too unlike our civilization’s vibration for us to be able to interact. For you cannot experience what you are not the vibration of. All vibrations attract the reality that is indicative and representative of who and what you believe yourself to be.

That is why conviction is so critical. You always have it, you always have trust, you always have conviction, there has never been a second when you have never had it. Remember once again that your civilization defines doubt as a lack of trust, we do not define it that way, we define doubt as a trust in the negative. Allow yourself to remember therefore, that you have always trusted in something, it is now up to you to decide whether or not you wish to trust in the Positive, or continue to trust in the negative...in the negative definitions, those definitions that say, it must be so, it has to be this way, because that’s the way it is, that’s the way its always been. Those are simply beliefs, they are your definitions, you have created them, you can change them. We know you can because you always do, when it suits you. (Audience laughter.) Let it suit you to create peace upon your planet now. There is much acceleration going on, there are many more opportunities coming up for our civilizations to more blatantly interact with your civilization.

But we do not tell you this because it is necessary that we interact with you, we tell you this simply because it is our perception, that you are creating the type of world, that would make it more conducive for us to be able to interact with you. Your world, for you, is first. Do not run from it, you chose to be born on your planet, you chose to be alive on your world, not so that when you recognize the idea of the power of what you call the heavens, to run away from your planet, but to bring that power down to your planet. To create literally, your heaven on earth, that is your service in your transformational age.
All right, I’ll say good day to you this day of your time. How are you all? We will, as usual, take this opportunity, once again, to thank each and every one of you for allowing this transmission to occur, through this particular gateway, at this time. Once again, each and every time your civilization allows such an interaction to occur, our civilization benefits by giving us an opportunity to experience, through each and every one of you individually, that many more aspects of creation and this expands our understanding of all that creation can be. So we thank you for this gift. That is what we will say.

This day of your time, however, what we will not say is what you typically call or refer to as our usual monologue. We will for a variety of reasons, none of which we will discuss at the present, simply begin with sharing.

Yes, good day. You, then you. Number two, do you know who you are? All right, number one good day!

Q: Hello Bashar.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I see there is a workshop I want to take, that’s up on the board, with the channel about the nature of reality.
B: All right, that is up to you.
Q: But in the mean time.....
B: In the mean time, yes?
Q: I still have some questions I would like to pursue off of our last conversation.
B: Yes.
Q: In which I understood the nature of reality as sort of frames of frozen time.
B: That is one way of looking at it.
Q: Okay.
B: First of all, please understand all of the things that we will be saying are conveniences of your third density reality concept. There is no reality, except your definition of it, and that’s what reality is; that’s the fundamental truth. Anything else will be a convenient way of relating to the idea of yourself as or through the concept you call reality. Does that make sense?
Q: Yes it does.
B: All right, so all of these terms are conveniences and with that in mind, then do continue.
Q: Okay, with the analogy of sort of a film strip.
B: Yes, frames in a film strip, yes.
Q: The idea is that consciousness moves through those frames giving the illusion of passage of time.
B: Similar to the light in a projector moving through the frames of film and projecting them on the screen to give the illusion of motion, yes.
Q: Right. And my confusion about that analogy is that when we are saying that your consciousness is looking at this one now, through this one particular frame, and then it moves to the next frame.
B: This is a convenience remember.
Q: Right.
B: Yes.
Q: But with that analogy, if you have this happens now, and then something else happens; that’s a passage of time.
B: That’s the experience of creating linear time, yes, even though it’s actually all happening at once.
Q: So our consciousness isn’t then really only focused in one frame?
B: No, but you can create the experience that it is.
Q: So how is it that we’re tricking ourselves into thinking that our consciousness is only focused on that one frame.
B: By allowing yourself to forget where the rest of it is focused.
Q: So the opposite of that, if we want to be aware of all of...is it possible to be aware of....
B: In some senses, yes, although there will always be different meanings to is it possible, from different levels. Because from different levels, different degrees of awareness are germane to certain levels, and more than that may not be convenient nor appropriate for what it is you said you want to experience in that level. It is always possible from some level, yes. But you have to, in some senses, be in that level to experience it in a way that is germane for that level.
Q: Okay.
B: There are still ways to experience it all at once in what you call physical-linear, space-time reality, but it may be that you will experience it for a fleeting moment and then you will re-limit yourself again, in order to apply the experience in a physical-linear, space-time way. Does that make sense?
Q: Well it does, except I’m sort of still having a problem whenever we talk about you do this, then you do that.
B: Well, yes, but that is just the conveniences of linear space-time to speak that way.
Q: Okay.
B: Don’t fight it, that’s what it is, that’s the reality of linear-space-time. This, then that, but at the same time from another level you can understand that what appears to be one moment after another is simply the same moment from another point of view, experienced in a linear fashion. But that’s what physical reality is defined as.
Q: Okay.
B: That’s the definition you are allowing yourself to experience. You don’t have to be confused by it, that’s simply what the definition of physical experience is, linear space-time. Does that make sense?
Q: Not completely, but I think I’ll pursue it in the seminar and I’d like to ask you a different question off of the last.... another conversation we had.....
B: Yes, but I would like to ask you a question first.
Q: Right.
B: Can you address what is the confusion about this, because the confusion you are saying you have implies that you are looking to create or experience a certain affect that you believe you are not getting.
Q: Well I do...there is something that I want to accomplish....
B: Such as?
Q: I want to be able to move to different realities, different viewpoints of the same moment.
B: Perhaps the confusion comes from the understanding of the structure of the sentence itself and what it means, "I want to move to different realities," but you see if you did, you wouldn’t be the same you. You follow?
Q: Well couldn’t I be a very similar me?
B: You could be a very similar but it wouldn’t be the same and maybe that’s where the confusion is coming from?
Q: Well as long as I can maintain the same memories and self-image and so on...it wouldn’t matter.
B: But you see you do that all the time, don’t you? Or don’t you know that you do that all the time? Maybe that’s the confusion?
Q: Well, but I’m not doing it to the degree I want to.
B: Yes you are.
Q: Oh?
B: You’re just not aware of it, that’s the point. You are already, all of you, doing it all the time to the absolute infinite degree. The degree of awareness that you’re doing it all the time is the key, not that you have to learn to do it. The degree of awareness that you already are doing it is what you are asking to have expanded. That’s the difference and it can create all the difference in the world. You are already doing it all the time in order to even experience the illusion of motion. You, in fact, have to be doing it all the time; similar to the idea that in order to experience the illusion of motion in a film you have to go from one frame to the next.
Q: Yes, I understand that. What I’m saying is I want more of a conscious control and ability to leap to different film strips rather than stay in this one film strip where there is, for example, a lot of evil that I don’t want to have in my reality.
B: Are you running away from something?
Q: Yes, I would like to.
B: Well, that’s your problem, you can’t. You can only transform. Remember, ultimately there is only one here and now. If you are trying to run away from something, saying it has no business in your here and now, that’s what makes you firmly stick in that here and now. Because there is no such thing as something that has no business in your here and now, if it is there. Now, I understand that if you have different degrees of preferences as to how to experience what you call evil and/or negativity, but you cannot run from it because the only way you can experience it is through your own energy, anyhow. And that means that you simply have to transform your own energy, but that doesn’t mean that you are running from it. That means you are being at peace with it.

Q: But can I do that and be at peace with it by going to another reality where it doesn’t exist or that I have....

B: No, no.

Q: That’s what I don’t understand?

B: NO, no, no, no, no, no, no, no, no what you can do is understand that you will create the experience of having gone to another reality by being at peace with it. Being at peace with it, in that sense, will not take you to another reality. You will experience, however, paradoxically, that you are in another reality by being at peace with it.

Q: Evil would still be in the reality that I’m in, I would just be at peace with it, is that what you are saying?

B: Yes, you see what you are attempting to do is paradoxical and that’s why you have to let it be. In other words, if you’re really looking at a higher level of understanding, then when you talk about the idea of the Infinite, which is, in a sense, what you are talking about in terms of what it is you want to experience. In other words, you’re talking about learning how to use the Infinite in order to make a shift. Well if you’re talking about the Infinite, how can the Infinite be the Infinite minus something? Everything must be there for it to be infinite and to be able to be used as an infinite source. So when you are talking about making a shift, paradoxically, it is not that you are shifting away from something, as it really isn’t there anymore, because there can be no such thing as something no longer being, because everything that is will always be.

But the idea is that when you learn your relationship to it and can be at peace with it, so to speak, in so many words, then it won’t matter that it’s still here. You will simply gain the experience of the relationship to it that you prefer to have and experientially it may seem as if it is gone; but paradoxically, it cannot be gone. It’s simply that you have adjusted your definition of your relationship to it to make it experientially appear as if it doesn’t effect you any more, in a negative way. Does that make sense to you?

Q: No, because I think of other conversations where we talked about the fact that everything that can possibly be thought of, everything that ever could happen or has happened, is all existing right now in this one moment, so that every type of planet Earth with every possible combination of anything exists in some reality. So....
B: Yes, and when you're talking about discrete different frequency levels like frame to frame to frame, yes, you can say, one Earth doesn't necessarily have what you would call the experience overall of evil. But the paradox is there is no way to experience that Earth unless you accept what the reality is, that you're in now.

Q: Okay that I understand, just....

B: No you don't.

Q: Okay.

B: That's the confusion. You still think you are moving away from something and going to something else, and that's not what's happening. You're simply shifting your point of view, but you remain here. If you wish a stronger analogy, it's that the Earth is changing in you, you're not going to another Earth.

Q: Okay.

B: You're creating the Earth within yourself by total acceptance of the Earth you've already created, total, total, total, total unconditional acceptance of whatever is for its own sake, for its own validity including the concept you call evil. That's the paradox. When you totally accept it for what it is then you no longer have to experience its effect.

Q: I believe that....

B: Well where's the confusion?

Q: Well my confusion is the step after that. Once I've totally accepted it, how....

B: There is no step. There is only the experience of total acceptance. And the experience of total acceptance is bliss, and in bliss there is not the experience of what you call evil.

Q: But can I not then choose some other type of reality?

B: But why would you need to? If everything is bliss, why would you need to? You see you're still making it a conditional separation and as long as you make it a conditional separation, you will always be confused. If you are in bliss, why would you need anything to be different than it is? It is that need for something to be different that actually creates the schism within you and the perpetuation of your experience of what you're calling evil, but I experience no such schism. We are unconditionally loving of All That Is, in all of it's manifestation and as such we don't need anything to be different. And paradoxically, therefore, we experience it as different from you.

Q: What if it wasn't a need, what if it was just curiosity to see if....

B: You can’t get out of it with squirrelly words. The point is, if you are in bliss, you won’t care. What’s going on right here and right now will absorb your curiosity more fully than you can possibly imagine. You won’t be curious about anything other than what is. And, paradoxically, if you are absolutely, totally consumed in curiosity with what is, then what is can constantly change into whatever else it can be that is representative of the degree of curiosity you have about whatever else what is can be. But that’s the way you have to go about it.
You can’t do it in the sense of detachment from what is and going to where you think is different because it can’t work that way. The only thing that can become or appear to become something else is what is here, and you have to fully accept it and be in love with it, all of it, in order for it to appear to be something else. And when it is something you are fully in love with you won’t want to be somewhere else. But then when you don’t want to be somewhere else, where you are can become everything it can possibly be. You follow that?

Q: I do.

B: That’s what needs to be.
Trust Your Medicine

Q: I have been experiencing some ill feelings this evening and...
B: Yes, we were speaking to you.
Q: Yes, I realize that. And thank you for what you shared, my...
B: We thank you for what you are sharing. Your willingness to explore and expand in the manner you are doing now benefits all present.
Q: Thank you. It’s interesting how the energy has changed over the evening...
B: Yes.

Q: originally it started off as a mild case of indigestion. And as you started to talk this evening... as soon as you started to talk about communication, it became overwhelmingly painful, and I had to go out of the room. And as I was laying down in the other room, this incredible force of energy just started to feel like it was flowing through me, and it was like almost... like electrical. I felt it was trying to take over me.
B: Not take over, no. Simply reflect your own power to you. In your society, you have been taught that cognition of your own power is a fearful thing. That is what makes it feel as if it is "taking you over." But it cannot, for you are in control of it. You are always in control – even when you create a scenario in which it seems you are out of control. You are controlling that. Do you follow me?
Q: I follow you. I don’t understand how I’m creating this. That was my other question; I don’t understand of what purpose the pain in the stomach area and the gas is supposed to be serving me or what... is in for it.
B: All right. The pain – all pain, all pain – physical pain, mental pain, emotional pain, spiritual pain, all pain is the result of the learned invalidations you impose upon yourself; the beliefs you buy into early in your life that you do not even know you are carrying with you. The pains you were feeling this night of your time was your ability to now recognize that as you expand your energy and make connections within you, the pain lets you know you have been carrying beliefs that have been constricting you – that have been not allowing you to digest and channel through you and derive sustenance and support and energy from more of yourself.

But now you are opening those doorways. The pain, in a sense – to be colloquial – is only there because the doorways are rusted shut. The more you open them, the more they will flow, and the less pain there will be.

So trust is your medicine. Trust. The more you trust that the connections of energy you are making serves your purpose in choosing to be alive in this life, and will allow you to avail yourself of unlimited energy to be of service, not only to everyone else, but to allow everyone else to be of service to you, and enjoy your life. The more you trust, the more the energy will flow, and the more the flowing of the energy will lubricate the motion of the doors, the less painful it will be.
All pain in your society right now, is simply remnant habits of judgment and ritual that you have believed were necessary. You have been taught to believe implicitly in this life that there is nothing worth gaining that doesn’t come with pain. So recognize you simply are now showing yourselves that you have those beliefs, and now because you recognize they are old beliefs, you don’t have to believe that any longer. So any further changes you make, any further integrations you allow to occur within you, need not come with the invalidations that bring pain. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. I see that– that as this gentleman was talking about feeling incompetent this week, I had an experience with that exam that I had shared two weeks ago that I was concerned about taking. I didn’t pass it. And...

B: So?

Q: So I’ve been– I felt – and this has been since yesterday, a real sense of what I felt was a strong competence on my part which was fooled, a very… was invalidated by this exam saying, "no, you are not as competent as you thought you were.

B: Ah! But only you did the invalidating – no one else, only you. You set up the expectation, and according to the result you created, you invalidated yourself according to the result. You set up the circumstances, designed the experiment, and predicted the outcome.

Now! The reason, once again, that you are feeling the pain is because you are now re-integrating and recognizing that all you require is a good dose of self-unconditional love. For what you have been experiencing in the idea of the so-called self-incompetence and self- invalidation is the complete and total opposite of love, which is guilt. Worthlessness is the opposite of love, not hate. Guilt is the opposite of love.

So love yourself – for whatever you have created. For recognize it has taught you something and brought you to where you are now. Do you not remember and recognize that everything you have ever done in life – positive and negative – has brought you to where you are now?

Q: Yes.

B: Then do not invalidate any circumstance; for if you remove any stepping stone in your path, you cannot proceed to the next one, because you remove all stepping stones when you remove one. You follow me?

The idea simply has been for you to recognize that it is up to you to determine your validity. No one else can ever possibly design a test that will prove your validity to you. No one except you. Do you follow?

Q: Yes. I designed the test. But I… and I answered the questions that I designed, and then the teacher – without my notes – wanted me to regurgitate that information. So… in a sense, I did design the test.

B: Yes. But it is only to show you the ideas and the beliefs you are harboring within you about what you think is the most likely probable reality you can experience. It is simply your indication of to what degree you are willing to allow yourself to feel unconditional love for yourself – and All That Is. There is no need to continue to test yourself. You have passed with flying colors everything you have ever done.

For everything you have ever done you have designed – and the outcome is always perfect. You can never be found lacking. When you allow each and every outcome to be its own reason for being – and do not continue to assume that there is ONE background reality against which to measure all other experiences for their validity – then your own life will be its own experience; and is not to be compared or measured against anyone else’s experience for its validity. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: All you are doing is continuing to believe that you need to measure and test yourself against what society says are the expectations you have to live up to, and you don’t. You don’t. You are valid as you are, and you have to pass no one else’s test to prove it. You can’t prove it anyway; it cannot be done. You cannot even prove you exist to anyone but you.

For all the other individuals you may be busily convincing of your existence, who all graciously nod their heads in acknowledgment of your existence, could all be hallucinations for all you know. So you cannot prove anything to anyone but you. So there is no need to keep on trying.

Then– then! When you know you are valid, and you cease the idea of attempting to prove your validity to someone else, you will be able to "stomach" yourself. All right? Digest that.

Q: So the incompetence scenarios give us a jab to realizing that we can view ourselves as competent? Is that…

B: It is an opportunity, in many different directions. Once again, it can be that you may be using it as a comparison, knowing you are comparing yourself to other people’s expectations of you, rather than living up to your own. It can also be an indication that – as we have said – what you are doing is simply not where your heart is, and that you can do something else in which you know you will automatically be completely competent.

Because as you have said on your own planet, "a labor of love is no labor at all." And you do not have to live up to any expectation when you are enjoying everything you are doing. You are always doing it flawlessly, whatever you are doing. You will never achieve perfection, because you are already perfect.

Every single thing that you do is a perfect manifestation of the thing you are doing, and has no business being compared to any other thing for its validity. Every other thing is not better; it is only different. Everything is perfectly valid for what it is. If you do not prefer it, do something else. But the doing of something else does not need to invalidate the thing you are no longer doing as less perfect than what you are doing now.

Q: Yes. Thank you!
B: Thank you.
TRUST

Q: The issue of trust seems to be such a big one, and we’ve talked about. . .
B: It is not so big.
Q: Well, an important issue or something. We’ve talked about it a lot tonight.
B: Yes.
Q: I was wondering, can you tell us what you feel trust is exactly?
B: Thank you. It is all there is.
Q: I. . .
B: All right.
Q: I Know.
B: That simple, that simple, yes. Love, trust: same thing. It is, in a sense – to put it in mechanical terms, if you will – your willingness to know that you know what you are doing.
Q: Is that an allowance of that – to know. . . be an allowance of that. . .
B: Yes.
Q: moment to moment. . .
B: Yes.
Q: totality. . .
B: Yes. That is trust – that there is nothing in life you could ever discover that cannot serve you in a positive way. That is trust.
Trusting That New Opportunities Are Always Flowing

Q: I wanted to share with you that I went to Atlanta, Georgia last week to visit my family. And everybody in my family that I’ve ever met was there. And it was the first time in about fifteen years that we’d all gotten together. What I wanted to ask you about was that: when I left here to go back there…

B: Yes.

Q: …and the four days that I spent there, I felt like there was a big energy shift, like I was a very different person when I was there than when I was here before I left. Now since I have come back to California again, I feel like I’m yet a different person. And I haven’t quite figured out what that person is yet. In other words…

B: What does that person want to do?

Q: Well, that’s part of my problem, because…

B: Your what? Part of your what?

Q: I don’t feel the level of excitement and the…

B: One moment. One moment, please!

Q: Yeah.

B: Will you do me a favor?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you. You don’t have to, but will you?

Q: Yes.

B: Thank you. Repeat after me: That is a part…

Q: That is a part…

B: my joy to discover.

Q: my joy to discover.

B: Rather than, “that is a part of my problem.”

Q: That feels better.

B: Thank you. Continue.

Q: Well, part of my joy to discover…

B: Yes?

Q: …for the last four days, since Sunday when I came back here, the level of excitement that I have been used to feeling…

B: Yes?

Q: the last year or so…
B: Yes.
Q: ’t been there.
B: Aah! Very good! What you have changed now is a typical transformation for many of you. You will create in your life, at intervals, the idea of feeling the excitement in a certain way. But if you stop to really think about it – even though it seems as if you’re feeling it within yourself – you are actually – actually – feeling it around you.
And the idea of when it no longer seems to be around you, is when you actually now have the opportunity to know you have met the level of that vibration, so it no longer seems to be there. You have simply acclimated to it so easily that it doesn’t appear to be any different than you. And that’s your cue to use it in whatever way, shape or form you desire.
And as soon as you use it, you will then accelerate to the next level, feel the excitement building again, acclimate to that, use it, build to the next level, feel the excitement again, acclimate to that, use it; on and on and on forever. So that idea is not to feel that you have lost the feeling of excitement, but that you have simply matched it. And now you can use what previously to this point seemed to be more energy than you were used to using.
Q: Okay, that’s...
B: You follow me?
Q: I follow you. However I don’t...
B: However what?
Q: I don’t know what I desire to use the energy to do.
B: All right. Why are you doing whatever you are doing in your life at this time?
Q: Because that’s what I was doing before I left
B: All right. Does that excite you? Yes or no. Do you know what you don’t want to do, if you don’t know what you do want to do?
Q: No. I’m feeling like I don’t know what’s going on.
B: You do not know what you do not want to do?
Q: Well, I guess...
B: Let me put it this way, is there something you are doing that you no longer prefer to do? Yes or no?
Q: Yes.
B: Are you sure?
Q: No.
B: Why do you think it is so difficult to be sure?
Q: I guess it’s because I’m afraid of letting go of those things.
B: What would happen if you did? Or what do you fear would happen if you did?
Q: I’d become destitute on the street.
B: Oh, destitute! How dramatic!
Q: Yes, it is, isn’t it?
B: Now, may I ask you a question?
Q: Yes.
B: If you really stop and picture it, do you honestly – now you can say yes, I don’t care – do you really honestly believe you will be absolutely destitute to the full extent of the meaning of that word?
Q: Of course not.
B: All right, then. Then you don’t have to be so melodramatic about it.
Q: You asked me what could happen.
B: But I am asking you what you really believe will happen, not just what is possible for someone. What is possible for you? I’m talking to you.
Q: Maybe what I fear would happen is that I would let go of everything, and nothing would come in to replace it. And I would just be flowing...
B: How is that possible?
Q: I don’t know.
B: Do you know – as you have heard many times – that nature does allow a vacuum to exist?
Q: Yes.
B: Do you understand what that means?
Q: Yes, a little.
B: Then understand you cannot create a hole without something filling it. It’s not possible. There cannot be non-existence in your existence. If you change, things have to flow in the direction you change them into; they have to. Have no choice. No choice. You are at the controls. The way you steer is the way your whole reality will follow. Has to be that way.
Q: So what you’re saying is that I don’t have to have something to replace it with before I let go of something else?
B: You already do have something to replace it with. And when you let go, you’ll find out what it is.
Q: Hmm.
B: The reason you don’t know what you want to do is because you’re not willing to let go of what you don’t want to do – enough to allow yourself to realize what it is you already do, somewhere within you, know you really want to do. Did you understand that?
Q: Some of it.
B: When you hold on to something you don’t want to do strongly enough, you may not make even enough room for even the awareness of what you want to do to come in. You have to let go a little bit at least, enough, at least, to make at least enough room for the awareness of what you want to do to come in. You are not letting go at all.

Q: Mhmm.

B: Let at least something go. You’re going to be in control. You can regulate it; you have that much control. Let it go at least a little bit, and make at least enough room for this little teeny tiny awareness to come in and say: "Pssst! Look over here. This – well, all right, I won’t scare you. This might be something you would be interested in. I’m not saying you have to be excited about it right now, but this might be something you’re interested in."

Allow enough room to at least be aware of what it is that does excite you. Because you do know, but you’re not allowing yourself to know that you know it. You follow me?

Q: I follow you. But how does that connection . . .

B: All you need is trust.

Q: Trust.

B: Trust. Let me tell you – I can do no better than this – when you do that and when you trust it and act on it, the only thing that I can tell you is that I absolutely guarantee it will work. But I can do no better than that. That’s up to you to find out. I cannot – and no one else can – prove it to you. But you will prove it to yourself – the second you decide that’s what you want to believe will happen. Remember: believing is seeing; not the other way around.

Q: Mhmm.

B: So if you are not willing to believe it, you will not see it. But I guarantee it, the second you are willing to believe it, you will see it, and nothing can stop it. Nothing can stop it; absolutely nothing can stop it! Nothing.

We once talked to a member of your society, affectionately called the Wizard, and we gave an analogy. Perhaps – now, this may or may not work for you, but it might work for some of you. We are not saying that you have to literally believe this is true in a mechanical sense. But it might shake up your perspective; turn it around a little bit.

Rather than assuming that you have to, in a sense, pull something into existence, why not assume that anything that you do not specifically deny reality will come into existence. So that then all you have to think about are the things you don’t want, and then everything else will happen. You can do it that way, if that works better for you.

But understand, every single circumstance has an equal opportunity and an equal energy to manifest in your reality. So simply take it for granted that all the wonderful, positive things that represent the person you say you would like to be will occur. And the only things that won’t are the things that you don’t prefer. You follow me?

Q: Mhmm.
B: See if that works for you. But trust it. Allow yourself to be relaxed; allow yourself to center, allow yourself to meditate in a relaxed and joyful way.

And remember: if you are actually enjoying the process of discovering, then you are not being impatient waiting for something better to come along. The more you enjoy where you’re at, the quicker you realize any other probable reality you may also desire to be.

Q: Wait. Can you say that once more?

B: The sooner you enjoy where you are in the now... if you are actually enjoying the process of discovering, then you are not being impatient waiting for something better to come along. The more you enjoy where you’re at, the quicker you realize any other probable reality you may also desire to be.

Q: Yah.

B: The sooner you enjoy where you are in the now... more likely you make it that you will attract other opportunities for you to act upon. The longer it takes for you to enjoy where you are, the more you keep other opportunities at bay, because you have not finished learning what you need to learn from where you are.

Q: Ohhh... yes. That’s, yeah... yeah...

B: So relax into where you are, and that will create the space to let more things come in.

Q: Thank you very much.

B: Thank you very much. Sharing!

Trusting That New Opportunities Are Always Flowing
TRUSTING THE UNIVERSE

Q: Can you give me feedback on this? I bought a motorcycle, it’s the first one I’ve had in twenty years, and shortly after buying it I took a bend too fast and came off it and broke my ankle.

B: Yes. So what have you learned?

Q: Not to take bends so fast.

B: Or? Or? What else is possible? To continue to take them that fast and enjoy your result, no matter what. What have you learned from the result?

Q: It can be painful.

B: Painful, painful in what way? How many levels of pain did it allow you to experience aside from physical?

Q: I’m not sure.

B: You’re not sure? Was there self-admonishment? Self-judgement?

Q: I guess, to some degree, I tried to figure out exactly what that was reflecting and I came up with several ideas...

B: Yes?

Q: of which was that the motorcycle maybe represents something totally illogical for me to have.

B: Illogical?

Q: Illogical, in the sense, that in the agreed upon reality of the people that I interconnect with, that was probably a dumb thing to do, which is why I...

B: Did you have to believe them?

Q: No I didn’t, that’s why I bought the bike.

B: All right.

Q: And I’ve been trying to see what occurred, I wanted...

B: Did you not want to disappoint them?

Q: I didn’t think that I did.

B: What do you think now?

Q: Now I’m not so sure.

B: All right. What does finding that connection do for you?

Q: It reinforces the idea that I should create my own reality.

B: And, at the same time, you can still care for it.

Q: Yes.

B: The two do not have to be mutually exclusive. You can create your own reality, and you can still carry an infinite supply of care and compassion for all other viewpoints.
Q: I know that that’s true, sometimes I have a problem.
B: A situation.
Q: OK, a situation, it just seems sometimes difficult to work that out in physicality on that dimension.
B: Why?
Q: Well, the universe seems to be made up of conflicts.
B: The universe seems to be made up of conflicts, how’s that for a reality basis?
Q: Not very good.
B: If you will choose, though you do not have to, another perspective about what you think is fundamentally true about the universe, then, perhaps, life will not throw you so many curves. All right?
Q: OK.
B: And, also, you can allow yourself to explore the possibility within you, that you may have believed, just a little bit, in the idea that you can go too fast, but you can’t. You can maybe ends. Judgement that it does is what creates the effect that allows it to seem like it does. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: Everything can only, by definition, occur exactly when it is supposed to, otherwise what purpose would it serve? There is nothing extraneous, nor illogical about the universe. It does not supply things that do not fit, if it is there, there is a reason for it. Trust that there is, and you will find it, it will reveal itself to you. All right.
Q: All right.
B: Thank you very much.
Q: Thank you.
Q: I want to ask you a question about this “acting like”…
B: All right!
Q: I’ve used that process very successfully.
B: All right.
Q: But sometimes it hasn’t worked, or it didn’t seem to work, and I…
B: Seemed is the key word here.
Q: Okay.
B: And again, the idea to you may be that you think it must manifest in exactly the way you think it should, instantaneously – and perhaps it does not need to. The whole key to trusting is to simply assume that no matter what it is that does happen in your life, it’s got to be a representative symbol of what you know to be true for you, because nothing else in your life can happen.
Q: Right. I came to the feeling that the reason why it hadn’t come about was because it would by-pass the learning experience.
B: All right.
Q: And that seems to be, that if the lady was acting like she had the relationship she was looking for, wouldn’t it be vetoed by the fact that her higher consciousness has a program for her of awareness of a program of learning?
B: In a sense, but again, the idea of the higher consciousness does not need to be specific.
Q: I see.
B: It is very general. There is nothing about your higher consciousness’ free will that denies you your symbols in this reality.
Q: So it will let you run along in any direction that you want to run it?
B: Yes, because to the higher consciousness, anything you do is learning. It doesn’t judge at all. Anything you do is a learning experience.
Q: I’m having difficulty tying together these two things of acting like something to bring it about, and at the same time allowing it to happen.
B: Thank you. Once again, let me put it this way, if you know you are being an idea – if you know you are acting like it, if you simply trust that you are – then no matter what the situation is, no matter what it seems like, according to your previous way of thinking about it, you simply must trust that if you know you are acting like it, then this situation must also fit in somehow.
Q: I see.
B: Eventually you will see how it does.
Q: Yeah.
B: Eventually.
Q: I got ‘ya.
B: You don’t have to see it right away. Eventually you will, and then when you do, you will understand why it waited until that point to become clear.
Q: Uh huh. Got it.
B: Thank you.

T Tu Trusting Your Life’s Unfoldment
Tunguska, Siberia 1908
Q: On June 30th, 1908, in Tunguska, Siberia, there was a ten to fifteen megaton blast.
B: Yes, we understand.
Q: And the official reason for this was a hundred thousand-ton piece of a crater hit.
B: Piece of a crater?
Q: I mean piece of a comet, excuse me. But it didn’t leave any impact from a normal, let’s say, crater when it struck the earth.
B: Comet.
Q: A comet. It’s also been said that it was some kind of black hole phenomenon.
B: No, it was a craft.
Q: A craft?
B: A craft. There are many multiple witnesses that at the time recognized that there was actually a course correction, it was not what you would call a straight trajectory. A course correction was attempted at the last moment to take the craft away from the highly populated areas before it ignited. You understand?
Q: Yes. So this... was it a mothership?
B: It was a large craft. It was not exactly what you would recognize as a mothership, but it was, however, quite a large craft.
Q: Okay, thank you.

1
UFO Presence in Solar System

Q: There is a large cigar shaped UFO that is circling the rings of Saturn, can you comment on that?
B: From time to time, many large craft have been sighted in your solar system. There is, in that sense, truth to this.
Q: Okay, thank you.
Q: Could you talk about the energy in Australia?

B: Australia is a very magnetic pole. Uluru (Ayers Rock) is the strongest form of magnetic induction in that area, and many things circle around it. It is the strongest vortex in that section of the planet. If you wish to realign anything, then standing on the middle of that rock will realign it. The idea is that it acts as a fulcrum for that entire Southern Hemisphere. To some degree, many events spin around the magnetic induction of that pole. It is a very transformational gate and it is a direct doorway, one of them, into what was spoken of earlier as the inner earth, as it is interdimensional.

It is also... now this will be a colloquial phrase... understand that this is being translated into your language in a colloquial way... I mean it perhaps quite differently than you may take it. Uluru is a table of the gods; it is, in a sense, a plateau, a platform, a direct interfacing link to, what might be termed, any level of any council in any dimension. If you hold circles of councils, of meetings, on top of that rock, you will be directly sitting at the multidimensional table of all the councils anywhere. You will have direct interaction with them.

In a sense, it is your forum on Earth; it pierces through many veils, many levels, many plateaus. It is highly magnetic in a very special way, and thus, it is a warp that pulls unto itself all other similar representations of many worlds. It is a holographic matrix interface point, to be technical about it. It is a table of presentation... a table of projection onto which others can be projected and from which you can project yourself to others. It is an arrival and a transmission plate, plateau, table, zone.

Q: Is it similar to Stonehenge?

B: In a sense, yes... but there is a different quality, a different quality altogether with Uluru. Uluru is perhaps more like a “Transmutorium;” it is a giant philosophers stone. It is as if a piece of another world were touching yours, resting on yours; as if it is a village unto itself, occupied by ethereal consciousness going to and fro. It is a nexus point, it is an exchange; it is a market place, it is a concourse, it is a plaza, it is a station, a transfer station... do you understand?

The idea of Stonehenge is that it does consolidate and focus many electromagnetic energies for many different kinds of uses. It can be used as a vortex for certain kinds of contact for certain kinds of gates; but believe me, many of them take a lot of their pulsing cues from the area, Uluru, we have just described.
Unconditional Love II

Unconditional love is all it takes to trust all the relationships in the way they happen, and with whom they happen. The idea is to be a shining and bright transparent crystal. When you are a shining and bright transparent crystal then nothing impedes the flow of your radiant light so that others may be served by it. When you are a transparent crystal, the light from other individuals passes through you, except for the light you choose to absorb. Other individuals’ negative light therefore cannot possibly affect you unless you choose to become opaque and absorbent to it.

Remember that when you operate on a particular frequency, even if another individual has a negative intention towards you, you will translate their energy into positive manifestation in your life. That effect is the gift of Unconditional Love. The word is quite literal in meaning, unconditional love.

Therefore, now you can involve yourself in relationships to the full capacity of your curiosity and excitement. Since you now know every single individual is a being of vision and creativity you can support them in the following way: encourage them to do in their life with integrity the thing that excites them the most. Support them in their ability to be able to do that thing.

To create loving and creative relationships you can create for them situations that will allow them to become more fulfilled in the thing that excites them the most. You can be aware of things that would excite them and let them know about it. You can give them gifts that are particularly important to the thing that allows them to become more excited about what it is they enjoy, because you are in the relationship to serve them to become most fully who it is they are excited about being.

And if the other individuals do not allow fear into their lives, they will become just as supportive of you as well. You will not have to see the idea that you are each becoming strong individuals as something that pushes you away from each other. The only reason that happens now in your society is because you are so interdependent on each other. You say, "If you become stronger than I am, you won’t have anyone to lean on.” But the point is not to lean on anyone, the point is to support them. And in supporting them—you become supported. Always. ALWAYS. The notion of leaning on each other is simply the negative side; the interdependency is the negative side of supporting each other. The need for the other person is the negative side in the sense that you cannot exist without them.

But you see, the paradox is that as soon as it’s all right for them to become as fully an individual as they are, you will probably remain in contact forever. The idea that you must mold them in a certain way in order to remain in the relationship is not trusting what the relationship is.

B: But again, I remind you, as I always will when this point comes up must be an unconditional change. You must change the belief because that’s who you say you are, not because of what you think it will get you. Yes, I will be happy IF this happens, I will be happy WHEN this happens. Yes I will change my belief because I know it will change my reality to look like this or look like that. That’s conditional. It needs to be unconditional which means you need to change the belief and LIVE in the state you prefer to live just because that’s who you say you are, even if nothing … else were to change. You see the MARK, THE MEASURE, THE SYMBOL of whether or not you have really, REALY changed is that you start to respond differently, more positively to what’s going on outside around you even if what’s going on outside around you stays the same. It is not the mark of change that your outside world changes. It will but only after you don’t care if it does. That’s the paradox. You have to change for changes sake, for your own sake. Because the change is representative of simply who you are and that’s it. Not because of what you think it will do or who you think it will change or what you think it will get you. That’s conditional and this whole idea is about unconditional love.

First of your self. Because if you don’t love yourself unconditionally you can’t love anyone else, really. And then the outward expression of that unconditional love, toward your life, toward everyone in our life, toward everything and everyone and All That Is.
So. California

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?

AUDIENCE– (Various answers).

B: We will begin this evening’s interaction with the idea of the continuation of what we have spoken of recently of your time, conclusive and inclusive of the idea of synchronicity and symbology in your physical reality. The idea we have been discussing with you of, what you call, synchronicity or coincidence. Recognizing, as we have said and discussed that it is not accidental in your terms, but that EVERYTHING that coincides does so for a reason. That there is nothing, in your terms, that happens by accident, but simply the recognition that everything is part and parcel of an orchestration, if you will, an identification with a series of events that are all from one particular point of view. The same one event manifesting in a multidimensional number of ways simultaneously, within any given moment in space/time, to allow you the opportunity to see reflected in that event, the different portions of the path you chose to be. So that you can always know you are creating for yourself, in physical reality, the type of feedback, as you call it, that is necessary for you to understand you are always on the path you chose to be on. A path is what you are. You can never be off yourself.

In this way, the idea is to simply recognize that synchronicity will bring with it the idea of symbology. Many times you will find that everything in physical reality, what you call physical reality, will be symbolic of the actual idea of the actual interaction that you are, of the EXACT fundamental energy exchange that you are creating within your being. You will always create, as long as you are in physical reality, an identifiable symbol to reflect the idea going on to you. Since you have created physical reality to be something outside yourselves, you will then understand that everything you perceive in physical reality is a physiological symbolic extension of processes, interactions, which are actually going on, more or less, inside yourself. Not truly OUTSIDE yourself, but INSIDE yourself. You are in and of itself, the actual interaction. You are, in of itself, the actual process. YOU ARE THE EXPERIENCE THAT YOU ARE HAVING! YOU ARE THE EXPERIENCE THAT YOU ARE HAVING.

Anyone that you imagine yourself to be interacting with, in any symbolic experience is, in your terms—not that you are not interacting with other consciousnesses–but the only thing you perceive in physical reality generally, is your self-created version of who you are interacting with, and that self-created version that you are interacting with is created by you in a particular manner necessary and containing the exact specifics to allow you to see in that other individual, the things you need to see reflected by that individual about yourself, so that always in that interaction you can understand you are dealing with different aspects of your own consciousness. Is everyone following along?

Audience: Yes! (laughter)
B: In this way, therefore, simply recognize, as we have said, that the idea of coincidence and synchronicity is when you allow yourself to recognize that life works when you let it. That everything that you attract in your life is the product of what you believe your life to be. That you can only attract the vibration that you are equal to, and that synchronicity, therefore, whether it is manifested positively or negatively in your life, can only be a reflection of what you believe your reality to be. Therefore, it is up to you, once again, in recapping, to treat every situation in life as fundamentally NEUTRAL. No situation has intrinsic built-in meaning. You give it all the meanings! YOU! YOU! YOU! (Pointing to the whole audience.)

Audience: (laughter)

B: You create the idea of the attitudes, the meanings that you wish to impart to any given situation, and it is your ATTITUDE that determines the effect that will manifest in your physiological reality. Therefore, the idea is to simply trust that what comes to you in your physical life is symbolic of the path you chose to be, and simply take it as something that can synchronistically serve you. Do not assume that it is fundamentally, automatically negative. You will allow yourself then to take advantage of any fundamentally neutral situation in a positive way by simply understanding that every situation that you create and attract in your life can serve the path you chose to be. And, therefore, as soon as you adopt the idea, the perspective, the point of view, and the attitude that every situation can be viewed as a positive situation and therefore, can create a positive effect in your life, you will understand how you relate to the entirety of what you call the multiverse. In this way, by recognizing that everything, every object, every person, every situation, every interaction is the same, including you, ONE THING, manifesting itself in all the multi dimensional ways that it can, simultaneously. Do you follow me?

Audience: Yes!

Bashar: Sharing!

Audience: Bashar! Bashar!

B: You, then you.

Q: Hi Bashar, it’s Strawberry...to be continued...
Under the Sphinx

Q: It’s been said that, from two different sources now I’ve heard this, that under the Sphinx there’s actually a ship that one can access.

B: There is, but it is in a slightly different dimensional frequency than your own, and one must make the shift even while finding physical underground chambers before one of your species would be able to actually perceive the physiological ship. It is slightly out of phase with your reality at this time.

Q: And it’s anchored underneath the Sphinx?

B: It is.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Understanding It Is All One Thing

Q: About imagination, imagination is a...

B: Oh, one moment! Before you continue, may I interrupt you?
Q: Sure.
B: Thank you. Allow me to remind each and every individual that you are gathered for your own reasons and thus, you find within any sharing, within any statement, with any question that is offered by anyone an opportunity to reflect to yourself how that statement, how that question relates to you. Do not think that something that someone else is sharing has nothing to do with you. If it had nothing to do with you, you would never hear it and you would not be here. So this is an opportunity for each and every one of you, from everything everyone shares, to simply turn the question, turn the statement toward yourself, within yourself, and relate the situation that is being described, being discussed, being interacted with, to yourself, and see how the understanding of what is being shared relates to you and serves you. Thank you, continue.

Q: Thank you. Imagination is a... I guess it has a few definitions.
B: All right. If you can imagine them, then obviously it must.
Q: Some people think of it as something separate from reality...

B: Yes.
Q: ...and I’d like to throw a light on maybe another definition of the word.
B: Yes.
Q: It might be a soul conscious or an awareness level, where things sort of take place faster or where you can maybe form ideas faster?
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: Are there other beings that just exist on that level that could...

B: Yes.
Q: waiting there for you to imagine them?
B: Yes.
Q: And...

B: And imagining them is connecting to them...forming communication.
Q: Yes, so you could your imagination you could lose your third density, or is it fourth density?
B: Not so much lose—integrate, add, blend, not lose.
Q: OK.
B: I understand the meaning, but it is not losing anything, it is integration.
Q: Right. I understand the definition there. What density is imagination?
B: All.
Q: Okay, beyond imagination...
B: Nothing.
Q: there unimaginable....
B: No, non-existence is the only thing beyond imagination and you cannot imagine non-existence.
Q: That's right.
Q2: Then how do you know that it exists?
B: It doesn't, by definition. (Audience laughs)
Q: Well, okay, so cognition and imagination are sort of the same?
B: Yes. Anything that you can imagine is on some level, somewhere, “some when,” real. It may not have any place in a particular density, in any particular time within that density; it may not have to manifest according to how you think it should, in that way, so that you can relate to it as you relate to anything else in your density, but it is no less real.
Q: Okay well, when you stop, when you sort of still your mind and stop all your own creations...
B: Stop your creations?
Q: Well...
B: Not possible. The idea of the creation of stillness is a creation. Nothing is something. Nothing is not non-existence. Nothing is something. Stillness is creation and it serves a purpose.
Q: Okay, well, it is just...
B: Do not forget that being infinitely accelerated is the ability to be everywhere in every universe, all at the same time. Being everywhere in every universe infinitely accelerated, all at the same time, would feel like standing perfectly still.
Q: Would that speed up everything to like a white light or...
B: It can, yes, in a sense, it is the blending. That is one way you can create a symbol to reflect it. White light.
Q: Okay, all of this sort of flows around a space where we are aware of all...
B: Space is part of the imagination. Nothing is outside.
Q: Okay, what is this electron or particle that we have inside all of us that is sort of neutral or aware of it all?
B: A particle?
Q: I don't know if it is a particle, it is like a center without a center.
B: You all, in a sense, have a center. You all have a gate, a doorway. You may refer to it as a black hole, in a sense.
Q: Okay, the black hole that a phenomenon...
B: It is also still an idea, for do not forget that the idea, the creation of separation, simply then creates a need to have a doorway through which you are connected to everything, even though everything really is all one thing.
Q: Yet the idea surrounds the actuality of it.
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: But there is an actuality to the…
B: The actuality is simply that it is.
Q: Yeah, the isness of the center of all of us, which could be merged or…
B: It is merged.
Q: finite. We could experience it finitely.
B: You can experience it to whatever degree you are willing, but it is all one.
Q: Right, that “nomenon” that’s the opposite of phenomenon.
B: All right.
Q: Is that fair to say?
B: You have created it, of course it is fair to say it. You obviously understand it.
Q: I just thought I’d open that up for discussion.
B: Well, thank you. (Audience laughs)
Q: It’s a big subject, it is kind of hard to put into words.
B: All right, but you have done well.
Q: Thank you for that.
B: Thank you.
Understanding Orion Energies

Q: I don’t understand... you talked about Orion energies. I’m a newcomer here, and I don’t understand...

B: That is all right. Steven may explain some of this to you, in terms of the symbolic understanding. Now we do perceive that you have other connections as well. But as we have said, it is not important to understand the labeling of those connections; but simply to act upon the sensings, the feelings and the energies within you, and allow them to blend.

If delineation of the labels is something you do, in fact, need to understand what you are doing, then it will be given to you – from an individual, from yourself, from literature, from something you will attract yourself to. But it is not necessary in order to understand everything. Only the living of the experience that you are is necessary. You follow me?

Q: Somewhat.

B: All right. Again, the scenario will be explained to you by another. Glean what you feel like gleaning out of it. What doesn’t make sense, let it go. What makes sense, explore it. All right?

Q: My... my question was dealing with whether there was this energy force, this being, from maybe your planet, or somewhere else, that was trying to come in; and that I was – in my fear of it taking over, resisted it.

B: To some degree, yes. You have made the agreement to be of service in that way, should you decide to. But let me share this with you, any agreement that is made with another consciousness, in that way, is made for the purpose of being able to be of service. When you are comfortable with the blending of that energy is when the service will be provided in that way. What purpose would it serve if the energy were able to force itself upon you – which it can’t. But what purpose would it serve? If it were able to do that, it would not be allowing you to be who you are, and thus, the agreement with you could not be fulfilled, because you wouldn’t be there.

So, it serves no purpose to take over another individual. When you are good and ready, you will acknowledge, and the agreement will be 50-50. It cannot be otherwise; otherwise it cannot exist. You follow me? You will only proceed at the rate you are comfortable with. Nothing can push you faster than that – nothing.

Q: What was interesting was that– that as– and it makes sense, and whenever you resist anything you experience– it gets worse; it doesn’t get better. And as I was resisting, the pain was getting much stronger....

B: Yes.

Q: was going all over instead of just being local and...

B: Yes. That is because you are your own separate universe. There is nowhere you can get rid of anything to, because there is nothing outside. So when you try to push something away, instead of letting it through, you push it up against the wall of your universe. And in pushing it, you give it more ability to spring back that much harder. Letting it through you lets it transform and go on and become something else.

Q: Thank you!
B: Thank you.
Unity Through Equality

Our consciousness, and what you would term many other civilizations are a part of what we refer to as the Association. Maybe sometimes what you refer to as a Confederation, but we find that that will not define the idea as clearly as Association. Not guardians, but reflections, assistants, for you do not need saving. You are as powerful as any being in creation. Choose the reality your prefer.

Our associative assistance is to reflect just that back to you; that you are as powerful as you need to be to have anything you desire, without having to hurt anyone else to get it. In fact, the idea of forcing your point of view on someone else, is a good indication that you don’t believe in it very much yourself, for if you did, you would know that it would take care of itself.

Therefore this is what we would wish to reflect to you. Not that we are your guardians, but that you are our equals. Do not forget that the idea of the sharing of the communication of consciousness of what you refer to as Christ Consciousness, was that each and everyone of you can function as Christs. Christ Consciousness did not want “Christians,” the idea is that you are Christs. Act like it, and you will have Heaven on Earth.

You will find that the next thirty years of your time will begin the solidification of the fourth density beginning, and in this way will afford you the most conscious opportunity to recognize that the unity you desire in your civilization, will be the result of the granting of equality and validity to the infinite diversity within your civilization. The next thirty year period will tell the tale. Then you will begin the idea of your balanced blending and acceleration into fourth density, and then beyond, into fifth, sixth, seventh, next octave, add infinitum. In approximately only two of your thousands of years, will you no longer need to be physical at all.

For when you create the idea of all the turmoil, negativity, judgment and separation that you have been experimenting with, and exploring for several tens of thousands of years, you recognize that separation and limitation and judgment in and of itself, is what creates more time. Integration, blending and acceleration needs less, and create less time. Therefore the totality of the experience of your integrated fourth density state, will only require a couple of thousand of what you call your orbits; before you can simply move on and allow other consciousness if it wishes to, to use the vibration of your planet.
Universals, Karma and the Soul

Q: You shared an experience with us in which you took responsibility once for another person’s action. And in order to balance this act which occurred in the now, you went back into one of your past lives, presumably in an alternate time track and produced a disease.

Now, if you create your universe; if you create your own reality; if the universe reflects whatever belief system you have, why didn’t you change your reality or belief system such that the issue of integrity or the balancing of actions did not enter? Now, if you could not do that, it must be that there must be some absolute cosmic laws which must be adhered to. If that’s the case, then believing in your own reality is limited to adhering to these cosmic laws, or at least within the boundaries of those laws. So, are there any absolutes in the universe? If there are, what are they? If there are not any absolutes in the universe...

B: All right. Thank you.

Q: ...then why did you adopt that belief system that you...

B: Thank you. Recognize, first of all, that the so-called absolutes for all universes is but one – the fact that you exist.

Now, each and every universe can create its own apparent absolutes, to some degree. And by that particular rule – by those particular rules of that particular game – then there are generally agreed-upon absolutes that will generally be followed. And in abiding by those, you will then maintain the balance of the energy within the total game that you are playing. That is also dissolvable, but only when you extract yourself from that universal absolute that you have agreed to create. They are not absolute absolutes, but they will appear to be just as solid as a so-called absolute, as long as you agree in general to abide by them.

Within the universe in which I exist, I agree to abide by the notion of the balancing in that way – that there were scenarios in my past life, wherein the playing out of certain positive and negative ideas was, quote/unquote, acceptable then. And therefore, any idea that would fit into allowing that being I was then to learn what it needed to learn through that particular understanding or disease, at that time, was put, in your terms, into good use.

Q: Is karma an absolute law in the same sense?

B: No, except in the sense that it is only a representation of a momentum. Karma is completely self-imposed. The idea, the methodology, so to speak, of the karma are completely self-imposed. The so-called absolute within the universal game is simply that it will represent a momentum, a balance, and a carry through of an idea once initiated. How it carries through and how it balances out can occur in many different ways. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: The karmic absolute is simply that the energy, once initiated, will carry through as a momentum; but how that plays itself out will depend upon the reasoning within any given life that requires that manifestation, and can use that manifestation to learn something from. In other words, the generation of that balance point that I created was usable in one of my past lives. So I allowed it to stand in that way, knowing that that past life had the belief systems that would generate that type of reality. And therefore, it could use that type of reality to learn that it did not need to create that type of reality any more.

And that is what allowed me to maintain the existence that I do now, where I know I am the creator of my reality. For the me that had the disease was not in cognition that they were the creator of their reality. And that disease allowed them to learn that so that I could be who I am today. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Does that assist you?

Q: Yes, it does. The personality in that previous life was in an alternate time track: was that personality associated with your soul? In which case, does that mean that one’s soul has multiple numbers of personalities and multiple time tracks?

B: Oh, absolutely. The Oversoul has an infinite number of fragments. It may choose to project these fragments into any given game at any given moment, in an infinite number of time tracks. Yes.

Q: If the soul is that infinite, what comes after the soul? What could be more infinite than that?
B: Nothing. But you are assuming that there is an after, and there isn’t. Everything only is – now, simultaneously. The notion of a before and an after is one of the games you are playing.

Q: It’s my understanding that there comes a point in evolution where one no longer needs a soul. Is that true?
B: One is a soul, in a sense. You may no longer need particular manifestations of the spirit that you are, of the soul that you are. But in a sense, a soul is what you are, although there may be many different definitions to that, many of which might be semantically arbitrary. Your meaning of a soul, and a fifth density being’s meaning of a soul, might be pointing to two different fluctuations or representations of energy. You follow me?

Q: Thank you.
B: Thank you. You are simply consciousness, if you will. You will always be that – in whatever way you choose to manifest yourself.
Unknown Entities

Allow us to say, at this time, that within any blending, within any acceptance, within any integration, as you begin to become cognizant of the gathering together of all that you have ever been, so that you can allow yourself to exist in the now moment, in this point of space, you will, from time to time allow yourself to realize that the energy that is coursing within you – so to speak – may allow you to experience all of the valves that you have closed, that you have tightened, through the adoption of certain beliefs in your physiological life.

That the experience of any discomfort in those areas is only indicative of the fact that you are now willing to open those valves, awakens those areas within you. Do not fear. Anything that you will discover within that experience will be a worthwhile facet of your consciousness – will only add to the overall understanding of your momentum and your cognition of the services that you have chosen to perform in this life.

There are many levels of consciousness that are willing, in a sense, to aid and assist. Avail yourself of that assistance; and recognize that as you avail yourself of that assistance, what you are allowing yourself to do is utilize those portions and those levels of your own consciousness that exist on the same level as the consciousness from which you think you are receiving assistance. It is the communication from that consciousness, on that level – to your consciousness on that level – that allows you to create the aid and assistance you need from your own energy for yourself. That is how you allow other consciousnesses to assist you – by accepting and allowing and acknowledging their love for you – and transforming their love for you into the love for yourself. That will allow you to allow your physical reality to become the ease of creation without struggle, without strife.

Simply open to all portions of yourself, and recognize that there is no need for you to manifest those cognitions in painful ways; for there is no need to continue to create yourself to be separate from that which you know to be true for you. This is an indication that you no longer need to fight your own ecstasy; and that only the fighting of your own ecstasy is what creates the scenario and the sensation of the pain.

Do remember that vulnerability is infinite strength and indestructibility. For vulnerability is the willingness to be open to all that is; being open to all that is allows you to connect to All That Is. Connecting to All That Is allows you to experience yourself as infinitely strong and self-empowered. So your vulnerability, at this time of transformation– in allowing energies to flow through you, in allowing yourself to expand into another idea of what you are as a consciousness, which is the same thing, need not be experienced in a painful way for you allow yourself to know that you are only discovering more and more of the ecstasy from which you are created.

Anxiety is the same energy as excitement. Allow the meaning of the symbol to transform from a negative invalidation to a positive affirmation of the creation – the ongoing creation that each and every one of you are.
There are many blendings of polarities for many of you this night of your time, and in a sense, another gateway, another doorway and a type of crystallization is taking place within individuals who have specifically chosen their path to manifest as an expression of polarity. Some of this will have to do with what has been termed the upwelling and upsurging and integration of Orion energies. And many familial connections are being made this evening of your time, both with each other and within yourselves. For you are unto yourself, in a sense, your own family. And now is the time that you have allowed yourself to begin to adopt all portions of the family that you are within the self.

Release and flow. Enjoy and love all that you discover yourself to be. Live in the ecstasy of the moment of self-discovery, and then none of that discovery need be painful. Our unconditional love to you all.
B: All right I’ll say good day to you this day of you time, how are you all?

Audience: Great! Perfect! Cold.

B: Cold, all right, let us see if we can not warm things up? Let us see if we can not raise the energy level within yourself so that you can project that outside yourself.

Let us begin this day of your time, this transmission by talking about some synchronous events. Let us begin, by saying there are of course, as you have gotten to know to some degree are always willing to take advantage of synchronicity and we will do this, this day of your time—apprentice!

AP: Yes?

B: Good day.

AP: Good day.

B: Now you know that you have recently, along with the channel, discussed a very important idea, yes?

AP: Yes.

B: All right, and of course it would probably not surprise you to know that you’re not the only ones on that particular day, and almost at the very same time, who came to the same realization and had the same experience.

AP: My good friend, who is a Christian, had the very same thing only in her context as a Christian.

B: Yes, and many others will have gone through the same thing on the same day almost at the same time and will go through the same realization and allow themselves to begin, to finally begin, to realize the true freedom they have asked for, for so long, the true manifestation of miracles in their lives. So let us discuss this idea, let us speak and share of this idea now, so that everyone may participate.

The idea, of course, is that we have from many different points of view talked about, and you have heard from many different points of view, the idea of letting go. What some of you may call surrendering, many of you have different ways of interpreting this concept but you must understand, as we have said many times, things are always this and that not just this or that. And so, even in the mist of an act of surrender, there is not really the giving up of who you are but the true acceptance, the true claiming of who and what you are and this is the key.

But let us talk about this in the terms in which it occurs in your physical reality and which it has occurred in the Infinite an event that we have now referred to regarding the apprentice and other people. Many times you will find yourself pushing and pushing, struggling and struggling, trying and trying, focusing and focusing and working very hard and very diligently with all the ideas we have discussed about altering your believes, getting in touch with your definitions and so forth in order to manifest the reality of your preference. This is all well and good but we want you to understand something very important, perhaps, this might even be the most important, the most crucial idea you can allow yourself to grasp, and that is: that all of these concepts are all fine for the purpose of getting in touch with different aspects of your personality, for allowing yourself to be clear and gain more consciousness with regard to your believes, your personality structure, your consciousness in a physical sense. None of this, in that sense, is wasted time. But now you have arrived, really, at a place and at a time and at a timing in your collective consciousness when, in some senses paradoxically enough, you can forget all about all that. And when I say forget all about all of that, in some senses, I mean that quite literally. It is time for you to forget about a lot of things, to give them up, to let them go, to just stop. And, in the way we are now talking about, when you do this you will find automatically in this act which we will describe that you will achieve what your Buddhists have called the idea of the cessation of thinking. You will find that your actions and your beingness become aligned automatically and you will not have to do anything really to have that happen. The idea of surrender and letting go, allows miracles to happen because of the following thing—each and everyone of you, no matter how it is said, put you own interpreted spin on it if you wish, it doesn’t matter but you understand the essence each and everyone of you is made in the image of the Creator and that is why letting go works. Because when you stop trying, when you give up, when you let go, when you surrender, in a sense, to the universe, when you just quite yourself, calm yourself and tell yourself, it is alright to just stop trying, just let it go, what you call your hopes, your dreams, your desires, your focuses, I must do this, I must make this, I want to be rich, I want to do that, I want to have this, I want to have that. When you just let go and forget about them, and let it be alright to forget about them, you will realize and truly experience in the realization that you are made in the image of the Infinite and what that means is: you are yourself the essence of limitless possibilities. You are all possible things, all possible events, all possible experiences. That is what you are, not what you have, not what you have happed to you, it is what you are because All that Is, is all possible things, all possible events, all possible experiences, all possible ideas, all possible miracles. It is unlimited in that way, it is unconditional in that way.

So when you let go of what you think you are supposed to do and when you stop attempting to manipulate your personality and just forget about it and just be who you are then you will understand that who you are is unlimited possibility and when you allow yourself to simply be unlimited possibilities the universe will reflect those unlimited possibilities back to you. That is why letting go works because when you let go you are the true essence of how you were created in the image of the Infinite. And your reflection in physical reality, thus then, will be as unlimited, as miraculous, as synchronistic, as immediate, as spontaneous. All you have to do is forget about trying. All you have to do is give up, in a sense, and relax, just be and feel who you are and know who you are is unlimited possibility. Let the universe show you, let the universe, the Infinite, the Creator love you. Let it show you who you were created to be by stopping trying to be who you think you ought to be, just stop, just surrender. You are not losing control, you are becoming what you are, you are claiming your heritage, you are claiming your birth right, you are claiming your essence, your nature by surrendering. That is what the surrender is: is a statement of total self acceptance, total self acceptance. Knowing that the self you are accepting, the total self you are accepting is unlimited possibility. And then you will allow, allow the gift of the unconditional love of the Creator to be given to you and that gift is to show you, to show you through your life in all of its manifestations the unlimited possibilities, the miracle that you are.

Let it happen, stop trying, give up, let go, surrender, stop and when you do that you will find that you stop thinking so much. You will find yourself looking at things and all of a sudden realize that that’s all you ‘re actually doing. You’re just looking at things. You are not looking at them and, as you say, zoning out and thinking of something, you will be thinking of nothing, you will just be looking at things and appreciating them for what they are and there will be no other thoughts. You will find yourself at peace, a peace so profound it will be at first, perhaps, difficult to believe that you are experiencing it. It will perhaps at first be difficult to believe that you are not having random thoughts. It will at first perhaps be difficult to believe that you are not just looking at something to trance out so that you can think about things. You will not be running things around in your mind, your mind will finally be quiet, because you will be aligned with who you are and the thoughts you need to have will be the only thoughts you have. And your actions and your thoughts, in what you call your Taoist and Buddhist terminology, will be right action, right thought, right will, which means that they will be synonymous with your being and when your actions and your thoughts are synonymous with your beingness it doesn’t feel like your doing anything. But you will act, you will do things but it wont feel like anything, it will feel like you are just being in life, enjoying life and receiving the love, the unconditional love, the gift of the miracle of All That Is. You will allow yourself to be the miracle that then can be reflected back to you by All that Is. For it is always being handed to you. It is only you who have refused to accept it by refusing to accept yourselves because you have been taught not accept yourself. Accepting yourself is just letting go. It is not a difficult process, it is just stopping trying so hard to figure things out, stopping trying to think your way through everything. It is going into a place that is peaceful to you, be it in a meadow, be it in your own home, be it on your porch, be it while you are driving, be it in the ocean, be it in the air it doesn’t matter it is being in that place and letting that place simply release you, where you have no cares, no worries, no thoughts for the morrow, as you say, no things to work out -NOTHING, NOTHING, NOTHING! You let it all go, you let it ALL go! You let it all go. The EXPLOSION of miracles that will result may stagger and astonish you at first but I guarantee you they will happen because that will be the reflection of who you finally allow your self to be. Just give up, just let it go, let it be alright.

In some senses does that some up your experience apprentice?

AP: In words yes, and I don’t know how you can share and experience in the physical reality other than with words, um....

B: They must experience it each unto themselves.

AP: Yes.

B: But these are the words that can urge them to, it doesn’t mean that they will listen. For everyone, as you know, must hear it in their own way, for it, as you say in your language, to click and make sense on an experiential, emotional, intuitive level.

AP: Right.

B: But that is really the sum of it when it comes, as you say, right down to it, all it really is, is letting go...being yourself...just being.

AP: It the words we’ve heard our entire lives.

B: Yes.

AP: You know, be here now, let go, let God, today is sufficient until itself.

B: Yes,

AP: All of these things, you know, I knew them mentally but until about a week ago I never really experienced them so profound.

B: And what changed it for you, what made it real for you? Perhaps, they would benefit from understanding the personal experience, so they may apply that understanding to each of there own personal lives even though the same thing may not work for them.

AP: I don’t know how to explain it really, it was during a conversation I had with a man, I was doing a photograph for the cover of his book, and he’s coming out with a book called Money is Energy.

B: You do not have to go into detail.

AP: Oh I thought you would like to here?

B: Simply get to the essence of what you feel was the pivotal point where all of a sudden it became clear.

AP: There was just a letting go of my...of me.
B: Why?

AP: Not me my personality, it was a letting go of my personality.

B: Yes, why? Why were you willing to finally let your personality go? Why?

AP: Because I think I have been doing the same thing over and over and over my entire life and that’s trying to work through things and figure them out and focus and visualize and do it myself.

B: Are you saying that this was the straw that broke the camel’s back? You were finally sick and tired of being sick and tired?

AP: Yeah, I think so.

B: So you finally just let be alright to let go and flow with the stream?

AP: I think I was just willing to have it be a better way and I got out of the way for a second and I started seeing that there are so many more possibilities when you let go of your limited thinking, when you are on a track and you thing that this is the way that it’s got to be and I got to ....

B: Why did you see that there were so many more possibilities? Why?

AP: Because I became myself.

B: Because you are unlimited possibilities.

AP: Right, I felt my God Self in the moment.

B: Yes.

AP: And I just became like...like wow, big and full of possibilities.

B: Yes.

AP: And it hasn’t close down yet and I don’t think it ever will.

B: Correct, unless you choose it to.

AP: Right, well I’m not going to choose to do that....

B: All right.

AP: ....this is too much fun.

B: All right, it is because you finally saw that you were. You finally saw that you, the real you, the essence of you, really is unlimited possibilities and you were willing to finally understand that what you call your personality, beliefs, definitions aside, all well and good, is, in and of itself, by definition a limiting structure upon limitless possibilities.

AP: Yes.

B: So you were willing to let your personality go because it placed too many limitations on your joy.

AP: Yes.

B: Are you all hearing this?

AUDIENCE: Yes.

B: Let your personality go. It places too many limitations on your joy. Give up who you think you need to be. Give up who you think you are, just let it go, just stop trying, just be unlimited possibility, just forget about it. Just get to a point, make a space where you finally just sit down, lay down, stand up, whatever and just let it be alright to say, “You know what, I give up, that’s it, I give up.” “I give up, I surrender.” Just let it go, don’t think about it, don’t think about what you have to do the next day. Don’t think about what you have to do the next week, let go of schedules, let go of time and space, let go of “This has to be there then or this won’t occur,” let go of all assumptions, let go all conditions, just let it all go and let your personality go with it, give up your personality.

AP: Good riddance.

B: It has served you. It is not a bad thing. But it is, now you have come to realize, a limited thing, and a limited thing is not who you are. You are unlimited possibility because you are made in the image of the Infinite, you are infinite. Let yourself be Infinite by just letting yourself be. Just give up. Thank you for your assistance, apprentice.

AP: Thank you.

B: We extend, once again, to each and everyone of you our deep appreciation in co-creating this exchange and invite you to remember what has just been said as you continue this discussion in whatever manner you desire?

Audience: BASHAR! BASHAR! BASHAR!

B: You, good day....
Unlocking with Vibration

Q: We were talking about Atlantean times a little while ago...
B: Yes.
Q: the United States a reincarnation of Atlantis?
B: Basically, as a model, as one side of the model.
Q: Yeah. Who were, in the Atlantean times, the physical representation of the Beatles?
B: No, thank you. (Audience laughs)
Q: Was there a Beatles? I mean not specifically who they were, but the energy that they broadcast over Atlantis. How was it then, compared to how it is now, or...
B: First of all, you are making the assumption that individuals have only had one life in Atlantis.
Q: Well, I’m just thinking about the effect that the Beatles had on...
B: Transformation.
Q: Yes, what was there there an energy that...
B: Let us say this, on a fundamental level it is obvious that the individuals represent instinctive understanding of the idea, now and then, that vibration is the key to shifting and changing any reality from one to another. That you unlock with vibration, reorient and then re-lock into whatever reality the vibrational resonance is reflected of; those that wish to go along, of course. Recognize that this idea, this recognition in Atlantean times is of vibrational resonance, harmonic location...identification. Also, in many of your societies upon your planet that concept is what has become, let us say, diluted. In one way, shape and form it is what you remember as magical incantations, formulas of vibration that unlock from one reality to another. So it is very closely connected to the idea you call incantations. You follow me?
Q: I see what you are saying. Yes, that shed a lot of light on things.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank You.
B: Sharing!
Utensils and Kivas and Trepanning

Q: One of the differences that compare between our eastern and western cultures is that in the west we eat with metallic spoons and knives and forks...
B: Yes.
Q: ...in the east they use wood. And one of the characteristics is that the metal conducts electricity, electron flow, where the wood doesn’t.
B: Yes.
Q: Is there...
B: There are advantages and disadvantages to both. Many of them come from many different disciplines; many are leftover habits, left over from certain understandings that were never necessarily meant to be applied in, what you would call, the mundane usage that they have now found themselves in. But there are advantages to using metal utensils in certain ceremonial and ritualistic functions, although the idea of generalized ingestion would not normally require the utilization of a metal utensil, yes. It would be more natural to use the natural substances in that way, or none at all, except your hands.
Q: What kind of energies does the metal conduct from our biological standpoint?
B: This is for you and your homework.
Q: The other thing is the kivas that the Anasazi used, they were from two to ninety feet in diameter, and recently someone blew a horn in one of them and it created a standing wave, which reverberated back and killed the individual.
B: They are designed with Pi in mind, and in that they are representative of sacred geometry, then the correct vibration, the correct wavelength, the correct diameter kiva is what will open the doorway. Some of you are ready for this and some of you are not. So be cautious.
Q: The Indians said that they could no longer use that site because someone died there.
B: You will find that in that way, for a while, their electromagnetic pattern may in fact be imbued within the collective signature vibration of that spot. And therefore, they may need to wait until it has been, as you say, purged of that particular aspect of the signature vibration.
Q: And in England there is a new fad called trepanning. Are you familiar with that?
B: It is something that is also very ancient on your planet.
Q: In which these individuals are drilling small holes in the back of their heads.
B: Yes.
Q: To release pressure.
B: Yes. It has advantages, sometimes. Sometimes it is totally unnecessary. And sometimes the trepanning that was done in ancient times, while most often for medical reasons, also had other ritualistic reasons; but many individuals on your planet don’t necessarily have a full memory or understanding of all the ways in which this was used. But we will also say that for the most part, in most... cases, it is unnecessary, with regard to the ritualistic use, although sometimes you will find, again, it may have medical advantages, but not in all cases that it is recommended.

Q: And is there any advantage to increasing the argon content of the ambient air for small periods of time?

B: In certain circumstances and for very specific applications, yes, in general, no.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you.
Validating Your Process

Q: Hi.
B: Hello!
Q: Good morning.
B: Good day. Fine day, is it not?
Q: It’s beautiful! Exciting. Wonderful.
B: Oh, one moment, one moment! Let us appreciate it together, shall we?
Q: Yes.
B: All right. As you allow me to describe the dawning of a new day over the greenery of my world, the rising of what you would call a yellowish star with a greenish tinge; and there being pale amber light, coolish amber light, that allows the very trees to seem to be waking up, to be stretching and expanding under the light. Opening up, spreading out farther and farther until all the branches and all the leaves touch, creating the canopy of a forest once again – whereas the previous night before they had been collected singular stalks, dotting the landscape. And now they spread out to give their shade to the creatures below.
And there is, now and then – when one is in the right place at the right time and has such a vibration – a small thin flash of reddish-purple that will signal the angle of the light through the atmosphere that represents the official, quote/unquote, new day, new dawn upon our world; a crispness, a lightness, a freshness, a smell, a touch, a sound; a vitality and a smoothness, an assuredness of being; activity and delight.
We thank you for sharing the new dawn with me.
Q: Thank you. It was beautiful. I will keep this image in mind when I walk on my hill. This question is very... it will appear to be quite prosaic following that.
B: Nonsense!
Q: Over a year ago I talked to you about the fact that I created a lot of pain whenever I had my teeth cleaned.
B: Yes.
Q: Remember that?
B: Yes.
Q: And at that time you said that I was balancing a lot of different processes, and we would talk about it some other time. (There is a loud clicking of the channel’s teeth continuously during her description.) And I’ve never brought it up again, because I didn’t think that the processes were finished until... well, since then, I have found a hygienist who uses a different method, and I don’t have the problem, the pain anymore.
B: Yes, yes, yes. Thank you! (Still clicking, even faster.)
Q: And I had a check-up today. I’ve also had a lot of situations with my mouth. Everything that happens in my life seems to have some reaction in my mouth, my teeth, my mouth, whatever. I had gum surgery, and my dentist said that the best we could do after surgery was to keep it stable, or not let it deteriorate too much.

B: Oh, the best! Oh, all right.

Q: Right. And today I had a check-up. And he came and he said: “Hey, it’s getting better.”

B: Surprise, surprise!

Q: Surprise! And he was very surprised. I wasn’t; I was very pleased. But I thought: “Well, that makes sense.”

B: Yes! You are taking bigger bites of life now.

Q: So I thought, well, perhaps this was...

B: Well, in a sense, that is what I really mean. For when you don’t process the symbol of what you chew, to digest it, it can atrophy.

Q: Uh huh! Oh, how interesting. Well, I thought perhaps this was the time now when you might share with me those processes I was balancing, because I’ve finished with my balancing act.

B: Yes. We have just described them to you. In effect, you are biting off bigger chunks of life emotionally, in that sense. You are willing to digest more, rather than simply on one particular level, which would cause there to be spiritual malnourishment. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: You are now nourishing yourself more on every level.

Q: Okay, so at the time I was not nourishing myself?

B: Not on every level.

Q: Okay.

B: You were not biting into life as fully as you could.

Q: And I am now, even though I told you a couple of weeks ago...

B: Enough to allow the balancing to start happening naturally. The willingness – remember, the willingness, in and of itself, many times is enough. You don’t have to have it all, in terms of your conscious understanding of what is going on. The willingness, however, to go for it all can allow all the nourishment to come in that needs to come in, to give you the ability to go for the rest of it.

Q: Yeah. I see I do have the willingness.

B: Now, yes.

Q: Right, right. Because I feel that... well, the reason I’m talking to you tonight – I feel that I’m at the verge of something, and all I need is a little nudge from you, telling me which direction... thank you.

B: What are you at the verge of?
Q: I have no idea.
B: Yes, you do.
Q: I knew he’d say that.
B: Well, first of all, you know. Repeat after me: I am...
Q: I am?
B: ...the I – was that a question?
Q: No, I am.
B: I am? “Oh yes, I guess so.” All right.
Q: No, I am...
B: ...the idea...
Q: ...the idea...
B: ...of being on the verge.
Q: Of being on the verge... of...discovery.
B: Of what?
Q: Of discovery.
B: Of discovery of what?
Q: I don’t know. That’s what I’d like to know.
B: All right. I am...
Q: I am...
B: ...the idea...
Q: ...the idea.
B: ...of not knowing what I’m on the verge of.
Q: ...of not knowing what I’m on the verge of.
B: How do you know you’re on the verge of anything?
Q: It feels like...
B: Oh, it feeeels like it! All right. Then, for now, be the idea of being on the verge. Explore what it is to be on the edge, on the threshold! Explore that idea. For now, that is the idea, in and of itself.
Q: Mhmm.
B: Remember, many of you invalidate the process itself...
Q: That’s true.
B: ...as a part of the life you are.
Q: Yes, yes.
B: “When am I going to get there? When am I going to get there?”
Q: Oh, I haven’t done that so much…
B: I am allowing a little fun.
Q: All right. Okay, all right. No, I…
B: But the idea of that when you say: “Well, I’m on the verge of something, but I don’t know what.”
Then if you don’t know what, let the state you are in be the state you need to be in. And explore what you need to in that state. Once you have explored all you need to in that state, you will know what the next state is that you need to be.
Any time you don’t immediately know what the next state is, you haven’t finished with the state you’re in – for what it is. Not for where it’s getting you; for what it is. Right here, right now.
Q: Yes. Yes.
B: You see, that is the idea we are suggesting: that many of you allow states to only be states that get you somewhere, rather than allowing them to be where you are. And understanding what it is where you are. So, for a while, be a verge.
Q: Okay, I will. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you very much! Sharing!

Validating Your Process
Validity
B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this day of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Good. Great. Etc.

Allow us to begin this interaction this day of your time with the laying of a foundation which we may entail, "Validity." The idea of validity, as you seek it in your society, many times creates the assumption that there is one real reality against which to measure all variations for their validity. To some degree, on some levels this is so. But one of the ideas as a society you are now beginning to discover and understand is that the truth, or what you have for many thousands of your years called, "the truth" is actually composed of all truths, and derives its unity from the validation and equalization of all the variations it can create itself to be.

We have many times shared with you the following point of view: that there really is no one way to do anything, no one way to look at anything, because if there were there would only be one person – because there would only need to be one person if there were only way. Look around and see how many individuals there are; that is how many ways there are to look at the universal idea of creation. Creation does not create in excess; there are no extraneous creations and no pointless ones. There would not be diversity if each and every one of those diverse beings that you are and we are did not represent yet one more way that “the truth” could be manifest, that Infinite Creation could be realized and understood.

All these ideas are valid; every perspective is valid. The idea is that to some degree there are things, concepts that are common to everyone in creation. But there aren’t as many of them as many of you think, and they are far more general than many of you think. And even some of what seem to be the specific things that are true for large numbers of people are usually only so because you all agree that they shall be true for large numbers of people. And in that sense it is an arbitrary creation, an arbitrary agreement. And from universe to universe, from dimension to dimension, even these things you call the rules and laws of reality can shift and change to some degree.

There are very few things, very few principles that are common to every being in creation. Basically they can be rendered in the following format: One: you exist; that will be common for everyone. Two: whatever vibration, whatever perspective, whatever frequency you put out in life will be the vibration, the perspective and the frequency you will get back in life.

That will also be true for everyone because that is how what you call universal physical reality is structured. It is patterned on the idea of reflectivity, of balance, of polarities, positive and negative. Whatever vibration you most strongly align yourself to – through your thoughts, your beliefs, your definitions and your feelings – will be exactly what determines the style of life you allow yourself to experience in your physical universe. That will be also common for everyone. Aside from those principles not much else is common or true for every single being within creation.

Now, you may recognize on your planet that there are certain things that seem to be common, or at least similar for the majority of individuals on your planet, in your civilization. This degree of commonality, just because you see it over your whole single planet, sometimes has led you to believe that it must be true for everyone everywhere in the universe.

This is not so. It is simply that you only have your planet so far in your immediate memory to go by. But the idea is that even what you agree to experience or share as a common reality upon your world has many variations within it, as far as the individuals on your planet go. And anything you do experience on your planet that you might call common consensus reality is only there because telepathically you are in contact with each other all the time, and you agree that these things will be there to represent what may be loosely termed the rules of the game you are playing.

But they do change. What you call knowledge and progress indicates that some of the rules have changed. Now, many of you may think, “Well no, it has always been a certain way, and we have only discovered the way it is.” And that’s why the seeming rules change, (on) some levels this is so, but not all. On some levels a true, profound, hard-held belief actually generated the reality at that time that reinforced that belief. And when enough individuals change the definition of their belief, it literally, from time to time, changed the physical reality to go hand in hand with the new belief.

Sometimes, because of what you have created your society to be, you can have forgotten what some of the original agreements were. And now you have spent time remembering, rediscovering what some of the original agreements were. And now, in your present day and age, are coming back into a conscious awareness of what some of those agreements were, the agreements that define this physical reality you call your planet Earth, your physical universe, your universal reality.

But now that you are rediscovering these things, now that you are beginning to understand and remember what all the agreements are that generate similar realities for all of you, a paradox is occurring in your society. You are beginning to realize that you did in fact create these agreements to begin with. And that means that now you are aware you created them, it means you can change them. You are now recognizing much more freedom of awareness, much more freedom of definition in your society. And you are beginning – at least many of you are beginning – to come to the understanding, even as some of your scientists now are, that what you have for so long called physical reality does not really have an empirical existence apart from the definitions you create it to be.

In fact, what you are now discovering on many levels of your society, in many levels of your awareness is that physical reality, what you have for so long called the solid material, physical world that seems to be outside of you is actually created from the definitions you have been taught in your society for thousands of years. And that when you change those definitions, you will see changes in the experiences you have within your physical reality. It is a very simple mechanism, and almost everything we will discuss, this day of your time, will hinge on the understanding that you, each and every one of you, individually and collectively, are literally the creators of your physically experienced reality.

We are not talking philosophy here; we are talking mechanics; we are talking physics. We are talking tools, ideas that you can get a handle on to allow you to understand that you can create the reality you desire. And that one of the easiest ways to do so is to grant equality and validity to all the other ways you have done it and all the other ways you could do it. And all the other ways it is being done by everyone else on your planet.

Because when all the choices, when all the opportunities are equal, then it is simple and easy to pick the one you prefer to be the experience of your life – because all the choices are on the same level, have the same amount of energy, have the same probability to be manifested by you as the life you now have determined you prefer to experience. When you think that one choice over another has more potential to manifest somehow of its own accord, more than any other choice, you are giving it the power to do so through your definition, through your assumption that it is not under your control. When you believe you have to struggle and suffer to have something you really desire then you are placing more power in the idea of the struggling and the suffering than you are in the thing you want.

These things are only representative of the habits you have been taught, of the thought patterns you have been taught for thousands of years, and they have been reinforced for thousands of your years. You are now awakening into new definitions. We cannot prove to you that these ideas work, but you always – I guarantee it 100% – you always can prove to yourself that these ideas work, that you are the creator of your reality. For as soon as you get in touch with that and start exercising the option of your decisions, you will see the result in your life. I guarantee it.

But we are not here to reflect to you that you should adopt our point of view. We share with you the things that have worked for us as a society, and the same principles that work for many other societies with whom we are in touch, and for The Association of Worlds. We perceive, in the changes your society is going through, the same potentials, the same recognitions, the same basic ideas of realization, and therefore, we have picked up upon your frequency and used it as an invitation to reflect to you what has worked for us, so that if you decide to, you can allow similar ideas to work for you.

But you don’t have to. We cannot interfere in the choices your society makes. That is up to you; it is your world, and you have every right to create it to be what you desire it to be, positive and negative. We are simply here to remind you that you also have the power to create it, whatever you want it to be, positive or negative. That’s up to you.

In these interactions, as you are willing to co-create them with us, you are literally, now in this interaction, functioning as a representative, each of you and all of you, as an ambassador, each of you and all of you, of your world right now. And we thank you for allowing me to function as an ambassador of all the respective worlds in The Association of Worlds, of which we are a part. To us the sharing and the perception of your consciousness is a gift, for through you our civilizations are given an opportunity to see that many more ways that the Infinite Creation has of expressing itself within the creation it is. So you are a gift equal to us in our eyes.

We simply recognize that you and we have the same energy, but that you use yours in different ways. And that many of you believe that the only way you can use some of your energy is in negative ways, because that is what you are taught. We are simply here to remind you that you can use in positive ways if you desire to, and it will be very easy and very simple and will not require strife or struggle or trials.
by fire in order to understand that you desire ecstasy just because you say so, just because you can imagine it, just because you desire it. You don’t need another reason – unless of course you wish to create one – but that’s up to you.

In return for the gift that you have given us, of allowing us to experience you, I will ask you now, how may I serve you?

Vibrational Alignment with Other Beings

Q: A few questions ago somebody was talking about face-to-face encounters between beings of our world and beings of other worlds.
B: Yes.
Q: Now, as to what’s holding that back . . .
B: Nothing is holding that back; it is progressing nicely thank you.
Q: We must have created a delicacy in our situation to not have beings, other people, come into our reality.
B: Yes, in a sense.
Q: What would they do? Would they blow our charkas or . . .
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: our minds and . . .
B: In a sense; the idea is that because you still consider yourselves to be segregated beings in many ways, and do not function as unitized individuals, then to some degree the vibratory frequency upon which you do exist, is somewhat – not meaning to be derogatory – slower than the vibratory frequency of an integrated being. And in this way, therefore, bringing a higher frequency in proximity to a lower frequency, like a faster gear and a slower gear, the faster gear will have a tendency to overwhelm the slower gear, forcing it to go faster than it is, at this point, built to go.
Q: Like taking all the teeth off . . .
B: Yes. And therefore, we simply proceed at whatever rate will determine the amount, or lack of, friction in that gear, as we perceive you to be adding more and more lubrication that will allow it to turn faster and faster and faster. That lubrication is your willingness to simply know that you create your own reality, and to act that way. To enjoy life, love, service, integrity, that is the lubrication. It will allow you to spin as fast as you desire to spin. It will allow you to meet head on and face-to-face any other gear spinning at any speed. Does that assist you?
Q: Yes, that’s fine. Thank you.
B: Thank you.

Vibrational Alignment with Other Beings
Q: Good evening.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: Thank you. In the spirit of ever increasing play and learning, we seem to have moved most recently away from what could be seen by some as a polarization to the negative side of nuclear war. (1987)
B: Yes. In our perception you have, as of approximately ten of your years ago, already decided that you will not annihilate yourselves by that means. (AUD: laughter and applause) This is simply a reflection of a decision you have all made unconsciously, collectively, and which is now leaking into your conscious awareness. That is how we perceive your energy now.
Q: So my question will be then: when will the old forms that supported that kind of activity worldwide, as a planetary consciousness, cease, and make way for new forms?
B: Most abruptly within what you call the next fifteen of your years. Most absolutely within the next thirty, as we read your energy now.
Q: In what way will that be a manifestation of what you brought here tonight, as the matrix of the planet say, for instance?
B: Yes. Well, one of the ideas behind what you call the harmonic convergence, as the fulcrum point between an old reality and a new reality, an old vibration and a new vibration, is to recognize that as you each, individually, become the pattern for the reality you wish to experience, then bit by bit, each and every one of you add to the overall energy of your world’s ability to become that world, as you have envisioned it.
And it will accelerate in that direction and you will begin to see the blending and harmonics occur between what are now distinct and segregated levels of your society – sociologically, economically, politically. All of these things will begin to blend as each and every one of you realize that you are your governments, and begin to act accordingly.
Q: Thank you.
B: Oh, thank you! ‘Tis your world. (AUD: laughter) Sharing!
Q2: Hello.
B: Good day.
Q: The last time we were talking, we got into the area of multiple existences on the planet Earth...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and this sociological engineering.
B: Yes.
Q: And I’m aware a bit of the... well, sociological engineering to me suggests an organized system of data in application.
B: Somewhat, yes, although it is, on our end, somewhat spontaneous. Organized, in its inherent idea, but not so much completely pre-planned.

Q: Yes, but that seems in opposition to the concept that we are each our own path.

B: No, no, no, not really, we do not mean there to be a contradiction, as you understand that term. Simply that our sociological engineering has to do with attracting ourselves to the vibrations that are already creating themselves to be most conducive to interaction with us.

Q: Okay. So one of the basic principles to me is the fact that we are creating our own experience, our own existence.

B: Yes.

Q: Could you share some other basic principles upon which the engineering is based?

B: Like vibration attracts like vibration, plain and simple on that level. Also the fact that there are multiple realities and, therefore, that like vibration will actually create and coalesce the one reality that is representative of whatever collective vibrations are most representative of our vibration – and that is the one we will interact with.

Social engineering, in that sense, may be a misnomer. The idea can perhaps be more aptly or precisely defined as simply, attraction. The principles of attraction that will gather together the gravitational attractions, metaphysically speaking, energetically speaking, that will gravitate together all the different fragments that are vibrating at the same rate; to create, in a sense, to project themselves, into the universe that represents that particular reality.

Social engineering is simply more of a gathering of like vibration, rather than a forcing, or a directing into a particular modality. It is the supplying of an atmosphere that is literally conductive, to attract those elements that are similar, or desire to be similar, to gather unto ourselves, as a seed, as a nucleus, all who in that way desire to be of a similar vibrational reality.

To instill, within each and every one of those gathered, their own sense of being a seed and a nucleus, in other words, self-empowering them. So that then it can be a holographic matrix that supports every element within it equally. Not by focusing around one particular center, such as ourselves, but by creating an infinite number of centers within the whole idea, around which all realities will then interlock and rotate. Is this making some sense?

Q: Some. So, you’re attracting similar consciousnesses...

B: Yes. It is the idea that has been colloquially referred to in your planetary mythology as “harvesting.” It is simply that we radiate at a particular frequency and gather the idea of any individuals that radiate at a similar frequency, reflect that frequency back to them, show it to them as their own frequency, so that each can function as a similar “radiator,” and a similar attractant; to strengthen the cohesive glue of that reality and allow it to coalesce and manifest.

Q: Okay. There is also some presumption of change.

B: Yes, of course. All things change. But many changes can still occur within an overall signature vibration, a reality vibration. There is much room, much leeway, in any particular reality for many divergences within any reality. That is what enriches any reality – the diversity within it. That is what allows it to be holographic, holographically reflective. It is homogenousness through diversity.

Q: So what is the purpose of the gathering?
B: Simply, it is the representation of like attracts like. The only purpose that it needs to have is simply that we are being true to who we are, and individuals that we attract into our reality are being true to who they are. That is the whole purpose to it: to simply create the reality that we perceive ourselves to be. And to do it and share it with as many other individuals that desire the similar reality. That is the purpose.

The purpose is to create, because we are all – you and I – creators, because we are – you and I – creation itself. We do not need any other purpose other than the fact that that’s what we are. We are simply being true to ourselves. That is the purpose. Does that explain it?

Q: I’ll have to work on it for a while.
B: Oh, all right. What is it about it that seems to be difficult, or unclear?
Q: Aah... it’s a matter of absorption.
B: All right. Absorb away.
Q: (Laughing) Thank you.
B: Thank you for your sharing, and for the expression of the vibration that you have chosen to represent the idea you are most aligned with, at this moment.
Vibrations of the Spoken Word

Q: I’m very curious about something...
B: Oh good.
Q: . . . and I would like to reflect with you for a moment on what I guess I’ll call the power of the spoken word.
B: All right!
Q: And I was wondering, now that we’re going to be transiting from third density into fourth density . . .
B: Power of the spoken word and all.
Q: (laughs) Thank you.
B: All right!
Q: I can’t think of how best to say this; but, um . . .
B: Best? The way you say it will be the best way for you to say it.
Q: It seems to me that our language is going to become very important. Our choice of words is going to become very important.
B: In a sense, although you will also find that you may need language less.
Q: Well, what I was wondering also is that you say on your planet you communicate telepathically.
B: Yes.
Q: Well, um, this might be an allegory, but like in the Bible where it says: “And God said let there be light, and there was light.”
B: Yes.
Q: There was obviously no one else there, so he didn’t have to use the spoken word, so I wonder, do you use the spoken word to manifest . . .
B: It is the idea of vibration. Vibration is what you are referring to in your Biblical literature as the word that was spoken. It is the recognition that out of the primal, fundamental energy, every material universe is the product of a variance in the vibration of the primal, fundamental energy. In other words: consciousness; the vibration of consciousnesses is the word of God.
Q: So you don’t use words at all ever to, like in a ritualistic form, or words to help manifest something? Or is it necessary . . . or is there anything to that?
B: It is not in this way necessary. You will find that for the most part, the only remnant utilization that our civilization now finds for the language we once had may be simply, mostly vibratory, integral connections from one consciousness direct to another.
Q: So then it might be not so much our choice of words as, uselessness, like too many. Being wordy when it’s . . .
B: Perhaps. It is not that your choice of words cannot assist you in this way. For many times you will realize that while you think things are happening to you in your reality unconsciously – if you could but listen to the way you say things – you will understand that they do very often reflect the way you do believe things to be.
Q: Yes. Right.
B: Therefore, when you begin to listen to what you say, you may recognize that your choice of words is a symbolic reflection of your choice of vibrations.
Q: Yes, I... I think I have been consciously correcting on that procedure. What I say, and listening to what others say, and how they say it... the choice of words gives you an idea of where they really are at that point.
B: Yes, but recognize that, while you are listening so intently to the words, you are also feeling them out, which is more of a telepathic idea.
Q: Okay, so...
B: Do remember that telepathy is emotionally activated.
Q: Empathetic.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay, thank you very much.
B: Thank you.

Vibrations of the Spoken Word
Victimhood
Q: For many, many months I’ve been curious about this, and, well, I’m going to bring it up.
B: All right.
Q: It is about the McMartin preschool case, with all the children being molested.
B: Thank you. In this way, again, recognize that entities and individuals when they choose basic scenarios in that way, will, many of them, understand what they are being born into...into the type of society, in that way, that you have created yourselves to be. And they will allow themselves to be involved in what may seem to you to be the idea of reprehensible acts, so that certain ideas within your society can be brought to the surface and dealt with. They will allow themselves to be involved, seemingly, victimized, in that way, so that it can bring to the attention of all individuals around them certain aspects you have within your society that you may not prefer, giving you an opportunity to deal with them in that way. Therefore it is on their part having made the choice to interact, as that individual, as a service to you all. You follow me?
Q: All right, but how do you work with children and the parents of the children? I’m a therapist and...
B: It will take a massive restructuring of the belief systems in your society to understand that there is no such thing as a “true” victim. This is something that your society may be reluctant to let go of, but it is up to you to determine whether you believe that or not for yourself, first of all. Because only if you choose to believe that idea for yourself, will you be able to convince anyone else...and you will not be convincing them as they will still have to convince themselves.
Q: Ok, and also what, on a symbolic level, besides the aspects that you are speaking of, what are the symbolic levels of the whole event?
B: Generally speaking, first of all, the entire idea of victimhood. The idea that you are still exploring that what you call a victim, and what you call a perpetrator, are two sides of the same event. And that a perpetrator by choosing in this way, to not be strong within themselves, is then being lured by the so called victim’s emanations and the perpetrator is, in a sense, the victim’s, victim. You follow me?
That is the whole idea of victimhood and also, to some degree, because of the degree of separation that you have within your beings, many of your beings, in terms of maleness, and femaleness, that is separated within you, and all the different aspects of your own adulthood and your own childhood that are separated within you. Then you will find many adults who will attempt to force certain ideas symbolically upon children, when they cannot come to terms with loving the child within themselves. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: They will always remove the responsibility for what they cannot abide by within themselves and place it upon someone else, thinking that by forcing the attention in that way, they will somehow make a connection within themselves by doing it outside. And, in this way, it will not be done. It is only that they do not feel self-empowered enough to understand that they are powerful enough to blend and create anything that they desire, without having to force anything upon anyone else to do it. You follow me? That is one of the basic ideas.

It is also an opportunity for your society to also recognize it has many fears about the need for defense. And, in particular, you have a basic belief in your society that your adults are beyond redemption, but that the children are the hope of the world. And thus you fear, more than anything, well, no matter what happens to the adults, they are gone anyway, but the children, should something attack them, all is lost, where is our integrity? In this way, it is again, the fearing of the possible attack upon something that you fear is assailable that creates the radiation of someone who will attack it. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: When you do not allow the children to be equal to you, then you can allow them to participate as victims in your society because you children are not equal, and they are at the mercy of the society you created. And that is what they are showing you. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: They are doing it out of service, whether they consciously know it or not. The entity that made the choice to be that child knew it when they chose to be born. Do not forget that entities outside of the physiological symbol that you create upon your physical reality of child and adult, all entities are the same age – ageless and eternal. You follow me?

Q: Yes. But then, also, why is it that we’re allowing the prosecuting attorneys to get away with murder, so to speak, in so far that every child that they’ve asked questions to, to determine whether or not what they are telling them is the truth is or not... personally I believe it is, and ah...

B: Because, again, it is part and parcel of the idea of accepting within yourselves the solution and not seeking outside for answers in that way. The idea is simply, again, that you are putting responsibility on someone else to solve the problem, and not taking the solution within yourselves, for recognizing in that way that much of what the children are exemplifying, whether you are willing to admit it or not, in terms of the interacting that they find themselves getting into, is a reflection of the type of structure of the family they have been born into, and they absorbed the family fears and are reflecting the family fears. And the families are looking for someone else to patch things up. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: It is not a matter of blame, but it is a matter of responsibility for what it is that you teach your children when you do not even know you are teaching them that. Understand that by what you call one year of age, a child will telepathically have understood all of the structure of your society, and will begin to conform according to what environment it is brought into, in order to reflect that environment to those that are teaching the child. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Again, it is not a matter of blame for that is judgment. It is a matter of responsibility which is knowing that you are in control of creating your reality and not, by choice, believing that you are a victim or can be victimized.
Q: Ok, I really meant for myself, but it is hard to, to ah...
B: Do you fear the judgments of others?
Q: No, not at this moment, but in terms of can know this for myself, I can be aware for myself...
B: Then all you can do is share what you know to be true for you, it is not that anyone else MUST listen, but simply that by radiating as a beacon for the vibration that you know yourself to be, you will be giving other individuals an opportunity to choose to share that reality with you if they so desire.
Q: That I understand, but what I’m grappling with, is the feeling that I feel so much intensity from the kids...
B: Yes.
Q: I’d really like much as I know that I am responsible for myself, and in terms of what I’m doing, what can I do in some way to assist the kids without buying into the victim system?
B: You can educate them as to the idea of the creation of reality, and let them know that no matter what the situation they may find themselves within, they are providing a service for someone by allowing that someone to see what the situation is that your society created. You can begin to nurture them into the understanding that they are equal in your society, and that every part they have chosen to play is something that you love them for, that you cherish them for, and that they can retain their strength because of, and not lose strength through it. Because you will accept them as a member of society in equal standing, and know that whatever situation they have gone through, you will assist them to understand why they have chosen, in that way, to play that part. So that they can regain their control and their strength and then play the part they desire to play, not having to be a reflection of your societies negative side any longer. And use your imagination and use your heart and use your love. All right?
Q: Yes.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Victims and Perpetrators

Q: My question has to do with the idea of right and wrong.
B: All right.
Q: An idea that I bought quite thoroughly as a child, and I bought it most with the idea of killing...
B: All right.
Q: ... and non-killing.
B: All right.
Q: And the worst killing you could do would be to kill another human being, and eleven years ago I was a part of an abortion, and it was a very difficult thing for me to deal with.
B: All right.
Q: I wonder if you could share with me?
B: Thank you. Allow me to say, first of all, that everything, every situation still occurs by agreement. Now understand that that does not mean that there is no taking of responsibility for participating in a particular act. But understand also that the responsibility simply extends to the idea that you simply know that you are consciously participating, in that way. That you have made a choice, along with the other individual who you feel, in that sense, may be, or may not be, a victim.

Understand, in that way, that both individuals participating, the victim and the perpetrator are, in a sense, both victims. And actually, the victim, in that way, can also be viewed to be a perpetrator, by creating a situation, which would then attract someone who was willing to be a perpetrator. But in having sent the signal to play victim, having cast out their line, then they themselves are also the perpetrator. And the perpetrator, by allowing the self to be attracted to negative energy, is also a victim.

Understand, it is still all by agreement, and the idea is to recognize that you are making agreements as you go along. And therefore, when the line is cast by a victim, then the perpetrator can say: “Ah, no thank you, I will assist you if you wish to realize why you are casting about looking for perpetrators to reinforce the idea that you are a victim – but I am outside of that idea, thank you.”

Thus, giving the opportunity for the victim also to realize that they are not having reality thrust upon them. That they may also realize that, by casting about, they are doing the initial action, in that way, and becoming the perpetrator against themselves.

Now understand, also, there are many, many, many ideas, in that sense, that go along with what you term to be, the ending of life. Understand, in that way, that when you recognize it for the total agreement between both parties or all parties, then there is simply no need, in that way, for that symbol; no need to project your feelings of lack of power upon anyone else, to dominate them, to give you a sense of power over them. If you already recognize that you are exactly as powerful as you need to be, to have everything you want without harming anyone, then there is no need for the idea of murder.
But understand, in that way, also, that there is also still the agreement, and even within the idea you call abortion, there has been the agreement, by that consciousness, to have lived a very, very, very, short physical experience; otherwise, the situation would not have occurred. Now understand, it is an opportunity then for you to experience that, perhaps, also for your understanding of yourself, that you can now attract and create a reality in which that situation need not ever arise again.

There are no needs in that way, then, if you learn from the tool that you have given yourself, that you have shared with that other consciousness, if you learn to live through it, then there will be no need to repeat the idea in any other way. If you accept it as an agreement, realize it served purposes, both for the individual aborted and for yourself, and for any other individuals involved, then you will simply allow yourself to know what the purpose is. And you will simply understand that it is an opportunity for you to take responsibility for the creation of the ideas that you have then created, and put into your reality, and shared with other consciousness.

Realize that you have then created it, realize that you can create any timing that you wish, realize that you can be in communication with the consciousness, in that way, aborted. Realize, in that way, you can simply communicate to any consciousness that you are now not part of the frequency of ideas, of realities, of vibrations that will include the idea that you must now experience another abortion. You can be in contact with any consciousness, in that way. You can be in contact with all the portions of yourself, which will give you immediate contact to those other consciousness. And as such, then you can simply realize there is no need any further to attract a situation in which you will find yourself in that position again. Are you following me?

Q: Yes.
B: How do you feel?
Q: Very good.
B: Why?
Q: You’ve shone some light on exactly the teachings you’ve been giving me.
B: Oh, and where does that light come from?
Q: From me.
B: Thank you. Very good; always understand that all of you, always, have more than enough light to illuminate any corners within yourselves you feel to be dark. All you need to do is turn up the light a little brighter. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Victims and Perpetrators
Viewpoints And Interactions

B: Question!

Q: Yes, I have a question. I have a situation with my oldest son, and I’m wondering if you can give me some kind of suggestions as to what I might do in order to ease the situation with him?

B: First of all, once again, realize that there are, in a sense, ideas which have been chosen and agreed upon between the both of you, which will allow you to understand simply that though there may be more or less self-destructive viewpoints, that there are different viewpoints which can all achieve the same positive type of result.

When you allow yourself to understand that you are sending yourself a reflection, it shows to you that you harbor within yourself certain beliefs that there are pathways that might be more destructive than other pathways. And if you allow yourself to feel them, then you are allowing yourself to understand the fear that something will occur, fear that a negative path will be undertaken, which is the same thing as believing that it will be. And if you believe that it will be, that will be that reality.

Always allow yourself to view any interaction with any consciousness as a reflection of that which you know exists within you, to a degree. Allow yourself always only to understand that all reflections seek to integrate with all other reflections; but they will only be able to so do when, once again, nothing is forced.

Realize, once again, that there need not be energy given to a sense of tragedy, for you will be making a melodrama out of the situation and, as such, you will find it painted in very dark tones.

Q: Very true. Thank you.

B: Thank you. Question.

Q: This last week you gave us...“The vibration of abundance...” (Tape change; words missing) How else can I say it? Would you expand on that, (- -?) say that?

B: Thank you. Realize that there is no need to complicate that idea.

Q: I know that, but...

B: That idea is exactly all it needs to be. The vibration of abundance is equal to your own...

(A baby in the audience): awa mawa (or some such).

Yes! When you allow yourselves to understand that you are your ideas, you are an idea. Not, you have ideas; you are an idea. Then you can be whatever idea you wish to be. That is being equal. Realize that many of your individuals still feel that being equal is still being separate. “Separate but equal.” No. Being equal is being that idea. Identifying, truly identifying, I’ll say – realize you really do not have a term in your language – I could say synchronizing, harmonizing. All of those ideas to you still speak of being separate.

Q: Empathing.
B: Closer.

AUD: (What was it?)
Q: Empathing – feeling like the other person.

B: But still many individuals still feel that they are not becoming that individual. Once again, realize that you are an idea. As you know yourself right now, you are simply an idea of yourself. You may be any idea of yourself that you wish to be. Thank you.

Q: You’re welcome.
B: Question.
Q: I have a question.
B: All right.

Q: How was it you chose the channel to speak through to us?

B: ‘Twas by agreement.
Q: Mhmm. Could you expound on how that occurred or how that was brought about?

B: You will find, first of all, that since we view time in a very different way, you will find that the channel has a connection with our civilization in a future self and, as such, has made that agreement with us with regard to a past self. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.
B: Will that have answered your question?

Q: Yes, that one.
B: All right. Go ahead.

Q: In 1978, fall, I had an experience of someone, a visitor, coming to see me. And I would like to know a little bit more information about that...

B: All right. Did you offer them milk and cookies?

Q: No, I didn’t.
B: Why not?

Q: Because I didn’t think that’s what they came for.

B: Oh, really!! (−−?) Thank you. I am... all right, teasing you a little bit.

Q: That’s okay.

B: Thank you. I know – otherwise I wouldn’t have done it. Realize that you may understand, first of all, that once again you can create for yourself many forms of consciousness, which would appear to be outside of yourself, but there really is no outside. And you can utilize those seeming projections of outward consciousness to talk back to you. And, as such, form an acceptable situation in which you will pay attention to yourself in allowing yourself to open up more of your awareness. Do you follow me?

Q: Mhmm.
B: What else?

Q: Well, in that experience with that opening to myself and becoming more aware and perceptive to the universe and other planets and civilizations, I did receive information in terms of what was to occur in about 10 years’ time – regarding, like you were saying earlier, other civilizations coming to us and...
B: All right, very good.

Q: So I just... it was like a friend. It wasn’t like something... me; it was an actual other entity.
B: All right. I will say first of all that many individuals will feel the same way, even when they create that consciousness themselves. You follow me?
Q: Not exactly…

B: All right. In other words, you will find that when you create a consciousness, when you create a guide for yourself, you will still feel that that consciousness is not a part of you – because that is how you need to relate to that idea in order to listen. However, I will say, in your terms, yes, there was communication. Also, I will say that within the next year and one half your understanding will take a very different form.

Q: Mhmm.
B: Do you feel the energy? Do you feel the momentum? Do you feel the shift?
Q: Absolutely.
B: Then I will say thank you.

Q: Thank you.
B: All right. Question.
Q: I have a question that relates back to another subject – and that is specifically the American Indian of the desert. I think in one of the tapes that I heard, you expressed that your physical embodiments were somewhat similar to those people. I’m wondering if the American Indian is more highly evolved spiritually…

B: One moment; one moment. All right, here we go again, “More highly evolved, better;” different; different perspective. Realize that, what you term to be that culture, simply allows themselves to understand that their physical reality and their non-physical dream reality are both real. And as such, allow themselves to form experiences within both that add to their overall daily lives – half of which your culture tends to ignore. Also you will find there will be, therefore, much connection in the way of their awareness as to how they can connect with other civilizations.

(To another): Are you picking up on this as well?

Q: Ha, ha. I’m still going over what we talked about.

B: All right. Realize there is something within this idea for you as well.

Q: Thank you. All right.
B: That in understanding their dream reality to be just as valid, just as real, they make those connections and share certain forms of energy which is expressed through their culture – which acts as subconscious manifestations in your culture – of those other civilizations.

In other words, what you term to be your archetypal energy from which most of your mythology stems from, are the subconscious universes. Which are real, in a sense, and which are created as a subconscious awareness level of various civilizations; and at times are allowed by some civilizations upon your world, the American Indian in particular, to manifest within their reality. And as such, they feel in direct communication with those symbolic archetypal mythological figures, and communicate with them on a daily basis.

Do you follow me?
Q: Totally.
B: Do you?
Q: Mhmm.

B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

B: Yes?
Q: Yes, the desert...

B: Oh, one moment. Yes?

Q: Dreams.
B: Yes.

Q: I put much attention on the various types of dreams I have, or experiences when I lay my body to sleep. And it’s quite adventurous and quite active; just more clarity, more specifically on what I’m doing, and with whom, if you can answer? I know it is a general question...

B: You will know. You will simply allow yourself to realize that the momentum you are creating in your dream reality is creating your physical reality. Every idea you experience as a physical reality you have already experienced in your dream reality. Every idea. Simply allow yourself to understand that once you begin to live your dreams, then you never need to remember them.
Q: God!!! That’s great!! Jesus!!

B: Thought you might like that! Thank you. All right, the desert. Go ahead.

Q: The desert. I was born and raised in the desert, and had many out of body experiences as a child, as a young person, and I feel more at peace in a desert environment. And I guess the question is, are there polarities there?

B: Yes. Many of the energy vortices we have spoken of will be in those areas you most associate with desert, yes.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. Question!

Viewpoints and Interactions

Viewpoints And Interactions

B: Question!

Q: Yes, I have a question. I have a situation with my oldest son, and I’m wondering if you can give me some kind of suggestions as to what I might do in order to ease the situation with him?

B: First of all once again realize that there are, in a sense, ideas which have been chosen and agreed upon between the both of you, which will allow you to understand simply that though there may be more or less self-destructive viewpoints, that there are different viewpoints which can all achieve the same positive type of result.

When you allow yourself to understand that you are sending yourself a reflection, it shows to you that you harbor within yourself certain beliefs that there are pathways that might be more destructive than other pathways. And if you allow yourself to feel them, then you are allowing yourself to understand the fear that something will occur, fear that a negative path will be undertaken, which is the same thing as believing that it will be. And if you believe that it will be, that will be that reality.

Always allow yourself to view any interaction with any consciousness as a reflection of that which you know exists within you, to a degree. Allow yourself always only to understand that all reflections seek to integrate with all other reflections; but they will only be able to so do when, once again, nothing is forced.

Realize once again that there need not be energy given to a sense of tragedy, for you will be making a melodrama out of the situation. And as such, you will find it painted in very dark tones.

Q: Very true. Thank you.

B: Thank you. Question.

Q: This last week you gave us... “The vibration of abundance...”

(Tape change; words missing)

How else can I say it? Would you expand on that, (- -?) say that?

B: Thank you. Realize that there is no need to complicate that idea.

Q: I know that, but...

B: That idea is exactly all it needs to be. The vibration of abundance is equal to your own...

(A baby in the audience): awa mawa (or some such).
Yes! When you allow yourselves to understand that you are your ideas, you are an idea. Not, you have ideas; you are an idea. Then you can be whatever idea you wish to be. That is being equal. Realize that many of your individuals still feel that being equal is still being separate. “Separate but equal.” No. Being equal is being that idea. Identifying, truly identifying, I’ll say – realize you really do not have a term in your language – I could say synchronizing, harmonizing. All of those ideas to you still speak of being separate.

Q: Empathing.
B: Closer.

AUD: (What was it?)
Q: Empathing – feeling like the other person.

B: But still many individuals still feel that they are not becoming that individual. Once again realize that you are an idea. As you know yourself right now you are simply an idea of yourself. You may be any idea of yourself that you wish to be. Thank you.

Q: You’re welcome.
B: Question.
Q: I have a question.
B: All right.

Q: How was it you chose the channel to speak through to us?

B: ‘Twas by agreement.
Q: Mhmm. Could you expound on how that occurred or how that was brought about?

B: You will find, first of all, that since we view time in a very different way you will find that the channel has a connection with our civilization in a future self, and as such has made that agreement with us with regard to a past self. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes I do.
B: Will that have answered your question?
Q: Yes, that one.
B: All right. Go ahead.

Q: In 1978, Fall, I had an experience of someone, a visitor, coming to see me. And I would like to know a little bit more information about that...

B: All right. Did you offer them milk and cookies?

Q: No, I didn’t.
B: Why not?

Q: Because I didn’t think that’s what they came for.

B: Oh, really!! (– –?)

Thank you. I am... all right, teasing you a little bit.

Q: That’s okay.

B: Thank you. I know – otherwise I wouldn’t have done it. Realize that you may understand, first of all, that once again you can create for yourself many forms of consciousness which would appear to be outside of yourself, but there really is no outside. And you can utilize those seeming projections of outward consciousness to talk back to you. And as such, form an acceptable situation in which you will pay attention to yourself in allowing yourself to open up more of your awareness. Do you follow me?

Q: Mhmm.
B: What else?

Q: Well, in that experience with that opening to myself and becoming more aware and perceptive to the universe and other planets and civilizations, I did receive information in terms of what was to occur in about 10 years’ time – regarding, like you were saying earlier, other civilizations coming to us and...

B: All right, very good.
Q: So I just…it was like a friend. It wasn’t like something…me; it was an actual other entity.
B: All right. I will say first of all that many individuals will feel the same way, even when they create that consciousness themselves. You follow me?

Q: Not exactly…

B: All right. In other words, you will find that when you create a consciousness, when you create a guide for yourself, you will still feel that that consciousness is not a part of you – because that is how you need to relate to that idea in order to listen. However I will say: in your terms yes, there was communication. Also I will say that within the next year and one half, your understanding will take a very different form.

Q: Mhmm.
B: Do you feel the energy? Do you feel the momentum? Do you feel the shift?
Q: Absolutely.
B: Then I will say thank you.

Q: Thank you.
B: All right. Question.
Q: I have a question that relates back to another subject – and that is specifically the American Indian of the desert. I think in one of the tapes that I heard, you expressed that your physical embodiments were somewhat similar to those people. I’m wondering if the American Indian is more highly evolved spiritually…
B: One moment; one moment. All right, here we go again. “More highly evolved. Better.” Different, different perspective. Realize that what you term to be that culture simply allows themselves to understand that their physical reality and their non-physical dream reality are both real. And as such, allow themselves to form experiences within both that add to their overall daily lives – half of which your culture tends to ignore. Also you will find there will be, therefore, much connection in the way of their awareness as to how they can connect with other civilizations.

(To another): Are you picking up on this as well?

Q: Ha, ha. I’m still going over what we talked about.
B: All right. Realize there is something within this idea for you as well.

Q: Thank you. All right.

B: That in understanding their dream reality to be just as valid, just as real, they make those connections and share certain forms of energy which is expressed through their culture – which acts as subconscious manifestations in your culture – of those other civilizations.

In other words, what you term to be your archetypal energy from which most of your mythology stems from, are the subconscious universes. Which are real, in a sense, and which are created as a subconscious awareness level of various civilizations; and at times are allowed by some civilizations upon your world, the American Indian in particular, to manifest within their reality. And as such they feel in direct communication with those symbolic archetypal mythological figures, and communicate with them on a daily basis.

Do you follow me?
Q: Totally.
B: Do you?
Q: Mhmm.

B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

B: Yes?
Q: Yes, the desert…

B: Oh, one moment. Yes?

Q: Dreams.
B: Yes.

Q: I put much attention on the various types of dreams I have, or experiences when I lay my body to sleep. And it’s quite adventurous and quite active. Just more clarity more specifically on what I’m doing, and with whom, if you can answer? I know it is a general question…”

B: You will know. You will simply allow yourself to realize that the momentum you are creating in your dream reality is creating your physical reality. Every idea you experience as a physical reality you have already experienced in your dream reality. Every idea. Simply allow yourself to understand that once you begin to live your dreams, then you never need to remember them.

Q: God!!! That’s great!! Jesus!!

B: Thought you might like that! Thank you. All right, the desert. Go ahead.

Q: The desert. I was born and raised in the desert, and had many out of body experiences as a child, as a young person, and I feel more at peace in a desert environment. And I guess the question is, are there polarities there?

B: Yes. Many of the energy vortices we have spoken of will be in those areas you most associate with desert, yes.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. Question!
VISION & CREATIVITY

B: Do you understand what synchronicity is?

Q: Uh, I think I understand what it is.

B: "Uh, I think... uh, your answer means... uh, no." (audience laughter)

Q: Well, I’m not sure of the technical definition.

B: Well, thank you very much for your honesty. Synchronicity is what you typically call "coincidence"...but it is not accidental. It is the coming together of seemingly unrelated events. And when they come together you realize they do have, in fact, an underlying connection. They are spontaneous coincidences that serve a specific purpose according to your desires, wishes and focuses. They are miracles, they are magic, they are opportunities.

Now, the idea is to recognize this: your wish, your desire, in and of itself, is a frequency of energy. If you have the wish, if you have the desire, then you are "putting that energy out" in your reality, you are giving off that vibration. If you are giving off that vibration, and if you don’t get in your own way with your assumptions about what you "can" and "cannot do" then you will automatically and effortlessly draw to yourself the opportunities that will be obvious for you to act on to fulfill your wish. That’s one definition of synchronicity.

Now, if that is your wish, and as you shared earlier about wanting to save the Rain Forests, then you can know you have just sent a message out to Creation. In sending out that message what you have said is, "I am willing to receive any opportunities that are reflective of what excites me the most that will allow me to fulfill my wish."

So when those opportunities come to you - recognize them through the fact that they are of the vibration that is representative of what excites you the most. And if they are representative of what excites you the most...act on them.

Again, they may not seem to be on the surface immediately connected to the issue at hand. That is why you simply have to trust that whatever comes to you that excites you the most, you must act on, whether it seems connected or not.

Eventually you will understand how it is all inter-connected. But if you act on the opportunity that comes with the most excitement that is what will be the shortest path to the fulfillment of your wish. Does this clarify the mechanism a little bit more?

Q: Yes.

B: Are you willing to act upon the first thing that comes along that is the most exciting thing you are capable of acting on, knowing that because it is the most exciting thing, it therefore by definition must be connected to your wish-fulfillment?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, thank you very much. Are you willing to allow it to be that simple? Are you willing to act on these opportunities that come to you boldly, to the best of your ability, to the fullest of your expression and....

A Guided Meditation

B: While you are beginning to relax, I will share several more analogies before the meditation to allow these principles to begin to sink into you softly. But before that, take three deep breaths and feel every portion of you relaxing; feel your cares melting away. If your conscious mind doesn’t want to let go of them, then just tell it, "All right, you can get them back in a few minutes; but for now, let them go." Just relax and play along. That is what we are doing, learning how to play again. Playing is one of the most creative acts.

As you continue to breathe and continue to relax, listen to the following analogies. When we talk about the idea of different dimensional realities all being here and now, the best way to explain this is perhaps in the following ways.

The Radio Analogy: Each and every one of you understands the device that you have upon your planet that you call a radio. You know that you have a dial on your radio that you can use to tune in to any particular program you desire. Now, just because your dial is tuned to one program, you do not start thinking that all the other programs cease to exist and go away. You know that all the other programs are still there, but you do not get them because you are not tuned into those frequencies.

Film Strip Analogy: Your reality can be analogized to a roll of film with its many different frames; each and every frame represents a small portion of an overall action. Now, the characters within each frame only exist within that single frame and do not experience the next frame. For the characters in the film to experience any sense of movement, the film must move. However, to the film projectionist the entire film exists right now – the beginning, the middle and the end. You can see all the frames at once when looking down on the strip of film, even though the characters on the film must experience their reality one frame at a time. Physical reality is analogous to the strip of film. Your higher, non-physical, visionary selves are like the projectionist that can see all the frames at once.

All Situations Are Neutral: The idea now will be to also remember the neutrality of all situations. You could look at any one particular frame on that film and not necessarily understand what is being said or what is going on. Only from the creation of continuity, from the flow of the film do you pick up the context. But each and every situation in life is like one of those frames of film – it does not have any meaning that is apparent on the surface. The meaning you choose to give it completely determines what kind of a story you create from that picture.

The Stage Analogy: The idea is to look at every single situation in your life in the following way: imagine that you are sitting in an auditorium looking at the beginning of a play. The curtain has just gone up. All the actors are standing still on the stage; all the props are there, ready to go. But let’s assume you did not read the program. Let us assume you have heard nothing about the play, so you do not know who these characters are, or what they will do or say. You have no automatic expectations about them at all.
Now, one of the characters on the stage might be standing off in a corner with a very strong frown on their face. Because of what some of you have been taught you might choose to automatically assume, "Oh, well that must be the bad fellow." However, some of you might assume, "Well, maybe he is frowning because he is upset at the bad character and he is the good character." The surface appearance tells you nothing. The whole situation is neutral. Everything, including the actors, for now, are simply props and have no built-in meaning.

Now we apply this principle to your own lives. But first, three more deep breaths, and understand, as you take these breaths, you are taking yourself to a deeper level of relaxation, a deeper level of self-acceptance and self-love, a deeper level of wisdom and curiosity about exploring who and what you are; and a deeper level of conviction that all experiences in your life can be used in a positive way. As you continue to breathe at an easy pace, begin to imagine the following thing:

The Curtain Opens

Choose an incident, either in your past or in your present, that represents the following thing: a situation that, perhaps, in the past you felt was handled negatively, or created negative feelings within you. Do not fear it. Pick something that really stuck with you; any situation that has allowed you to remain feeling any amount of guilt, or regret, or fear. Or pick a situation that you feel is negative, that prevents you from doing something you would prefer to do. Pick any circumstance you do not prefer in your life. Just take a moment and observe, as clearly as you can in your imagination, the situation. Observe all the factors, all the individuals that are involved; leave no one and nothing out.

Now, as you stand and observe the situation in your imagination, begin to form a type of detachment while watching it. Allow the meaning of the situation to blur a little bit, as if you were so overwhelmed by the situation that your eyes began to glaze over and de-focus, almost as if you are going into a very light trance. Very soon, you begin to feel that all the different people and all the different things really do not mean the same thing they used to; they are just going through motions. Any words that were said are beginning to lose their meaning; they are just sounds. Begin to treat these words as you would react to, what you would call, a foreign language; you do not understand the meaning of the words. Allow the entire scenario to become the opening of a stage play: there are the actors, there are the props, but you do not understand what anything means. You are simply watching with a type of transfixed curiosity. However alien the scenario is, you do not relate to it at all. Allow yourself to recognize that the situation is simply completely blank and empty of meaning.

Now, within your curious imagination, allow yourself to decide what kind of meanings you would prefer to attach to the scenario you see. No matter how negative the old idea seemed to be, allow yourself to re-interpret all the symbols in the scene. For now, it is not that critical that you consciously believe that these things are different, but simply to show yourself you can create different meanings for the same situations. The belief that the events are different will come with the amount of conviction and trust you have in yourselves.

But for now, just play the game of re-inventing definitions. And allow yourself always to understand that from this point forward you choose to believe you are a positively oriented person.
Therefore, you are willing to listen to other individuals’ advice, but only you make the final decision as to what portions of that advice you choose to apply to the reality you prefer. Therefore, if, for example, your scenario is of a past situation where someone said something you felt was very negative to you, you can look at it in the following way: you can, first of all, own it in the sense that you attracted it into your life for some reason. You must own everything that has occurred; because if you do not own it, you cannot change it. But now you can decide that everything in your life happens for a positive reason, and you can even look at it that way in retrospect. You can now decide what portions of what they said to you actually apply to the person you prefer to be and what portions do not. You do not have to accept any situations as judgments.

The idea is to allow yourself to radiate unconditional love to that situation because you know the situation is in your life for a positive reason. You can now re-define the circumstance in the following way: using the example of someone being verbally abusive to you, you can realize that anyone who acts that way is usually only yelling at themselves. If you know that what someone says does not apply to you, why accept it as a part of your reality about who you are? An individual who strikes out that way at other individuals is usually feeling powerless. Love them back into their own self-empowerment so they will not have to feel they must attack anyone to feel equal or better.

Redefine any situation you now feel prevents you from doing something you prefer to do. Understand that there are no interruptions in your life. The sooner you use every circumstance you have created to learn from, the sooner it can change into another situation. The only reason that something you prefer would not come into your life is because you are not using the situation in the present to learn from in a positive way, but assuming it is an interruption. Remember that a path is not something you’re actually "on,” a path is what you are. You cannot, by definition, be "off” yourself.

Everything that occurs in your reality fits in your reality. This does not mean you have to prefer the way the situations manifest; but unless you own them for having manifested that way, you cannot learn what you need to learn in order to change it in the way you want to. The creation of vision comes from not denying the reality you have created already.

Allow yourselves the opportunity to do the following thing: extend the exercise you have just done to all circumstances and all situations in your life. See an expanding wave of energy going out from you and passing through all situations in your life – past, present and future. As that wave passes through all events it renders them neutral. This wave extends to the farthest reaches of your reality, to infinity itself, forever. And now, fill yourself up with the excitement and joy of knowing that you are making a decision to be a positive individual. Feel the joy of knowing that your vision can be fulfilled. Feel as you would feel if your vision were fulfilled. Feel the excitement building within you, the anticipation. Imagine your body glowing with a brilliant blue-white light. Now, allow that energy in your body to flash as another expanding wave, radiating outward and outward forever. That expanding wave now renders every single neutral situation – past, present and future – into a positive situation.
Remember, the situations do not necessarily have to look different on the surface. You, however, now know, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that every situation you encounter will only be filled with positive meaning. You are now at the center of an infinite sea of positive energy. There is nowhere you can go where that positive energy is not. It is the infinite reflection from Creation to you.

The Crucible of Change

Light fills the universe and you are made of that light. Breathe it in now, three times. Allow yourself to feel the heat of the fire within your heart. Your heart is the furnace that melts down all old definitions, melts them down into the golden liquid light of primal energy. That liquid golden light can be crystallized into any new reality you desire. As you breathe out, breathe out the blue electromagnetic light. See it as a cooling wind that strikes the gold and bubbling liquid which crystallizes out of that liquid the reality you prefer.

From this moment forward, the following idea is yours. From this moment forward, the following idea is your vibration. From this moment forward, this is your reality of choice. Every time you take a breath in you are melting down old definitions in the furnace of your heart. With every breath out you are crystallizing clear, bright new realities of positive light. Therefore, your reality is changing with every breath you take, every moment of time. You are walking from one reality to another, and another, and another, and another, forever and ever, without end. Complete fulfillment of vision; complete inspiration and support; complete positive meaning in every event of your life. No other reality is real for you except those realities that fit the vibration you have decided to be.

Your breath is the breath of life. It is the heartbeat and the pulse of existence itself. You are all one energy – bright, multi-dimensional facets of one infinite crystal. The more conviction you have in the vision that excites you the most, the less shadow there is in your life. And the brighter you shine, leaves no room for even one shadow of a doubt.

Remember, you are always trusting in something. There has never been a time when you have not expressed infinite trust in your life. Your reality in the past has defined doubt as a lack of trust. We chose to define doubt as a trust in a negative reality. It is your choice, and it is all right to use the same level of trust and project into a positive reality. The Universe will deny you nothing. But it can only support the strongest vibration you have chosen to be.

Not The Same You

With three more deep breaths, you now have locked in the reality of your preference, forever and ever. Be beings of vision; be beings of inspiration. These are things you already are; all you need to do is act like that is true. Allow yourself to come back to the reality you prefer now. You may open your eyes but remember one thing, very important: the reality you are seeing now, no matter how it looks on the surface, is not the same reality as it was before. No matter how you think you look in the mirror, you are not the same people. You can be anything and anyone you prefer to be, at any moment you wish. It is that simple, effortless and exciting.
We thank you for your participation. And we thank you for your vision. Now, if any of you are feeling more energy than you are used to, we would recommend the following idea: if you feel that the level of energy is something you cannot handle comfortably, allow yourself to ground yourself by using the energy in some physical way. Pay attention to your body consciousness and allow your body to absorb the energy at whatever rate is comfortable for you. During your break, you can stretch yourself out, move your joints, flex yourself—and feel your connection to the Earth. This will allow you to remember that physical reality is also to be included in your quest for spirituality. No level is to be denied, because All is One.

Note: On the following page the last line of the poem "IF" was altered to remove male gender bias. For half of humanity - our mothers, sisters and daughters—we hope that Kipling and those sensitive to these issues will understand. No level to be denied, because All is One.

Vulnerability And Trust

Q: Hi.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: I too, have a question about some fears that are being...
B: All right! But do speak up and share with all.
Q: I have three fears that I...
B: Oh, three fears! Nicely ordered.
Q: Maybe it’s one fear.
B: All right.
Q: Anyway, they have been running my life, and I’m really sick of it. And I’d like some help to overcome it and resolve it as best as I can.
B: That have been doing what with your life?
Q: That have been running my life.
B: Running it?
Q: That I’ve allowed to run my life.
B: Oh, all right. Well, what do you prefer to be? What do you prefer to do? Do you know?
Q: Yes.
B: Well, what is it?
Q: I prefer not to feel this way. I prefer to... Uh, uh, uh.
B: All right, all right. But we did not ask you what you don’t prefer; I asked you what you do prefer.
Q: I prefer to feel more empowered.
B: More empowered! All right.
Q: I was married and I recently ended a committed relationship. And the same feelings keep coming up, and it’s a problem for me. The first one is a feeling of being abandoned...
B: Abandoned!
Q: ...irrespective of who ends the relationship.
B: All right.
Q: And also I realize that I would like to be able to surrender more to the person that I’m committing to.
B: All right.
Q: And also I have a fear of being vulnerable, letting my inner child be vulnerable. And I feel...
B: Define vulnerability.
Q: Expressing my deep inner needs.
B: Deep inner needs. Why are you afraid to express your deep inner needs? You have not given me your full definition of vulnerability. What is your full definition of vulnerability? In other words, when you express these deep inner needs, what do you believe will be the result of that expression?

Q: I’ll be hurt and abandoned – left.

B: In other words, you have a negative definition of vulnerability.

Q: Criticized; be told I’m wrong.

B: In other words, you have a negative definition of vulnerability.

Q: Yes.

B: All right. Now, would you prefer to have a positive definition of vulnerability?

Q: Very much so.

B: Oh, all right. I can suggest one – you don’t have to take it – it’s just my suggestion. However, to me, vulnerability is the willingness to be open to All That is in full and total trust. The willingness to be open to All That Is in full and total trust is what you are talking about when you say “surrendering.” It is actually taking control.

It is not giving up control; it is taking control. That is true surrender. The idea simply becomes effortless, and that is why many of you think you are actually giving up control, because, to you, the only reason you feel you’re in control is when you are expending effort.

Q: Yes.

B: Therefore, when you open up in complete vulnerability – and understand that if you are opening up to All That Is, then you are connecting to All That Is, to Infinite Creation – by opening up to all of it, you are connecting into it.

And if you are connecting into the Infinite Creation, then you are connecting to infinite strength, infinite power, eternal power. And if you are willing to trust it in a positive way, you will then flow that infinite power through you every time you are willing to open up all the way. That is vulnerability, that is power, that is self-empowerment. That is surrender, and that is control. It is all boiled down to the one word – trust. Trust.

The mechanism of trust, which is the absolute knowingness that you exist for a reason, and therefore, with that perspective and that attitude, you recognize that you deserve to exist in the manner you have determined you would prefer to exist. For no other reason other than because you say so.

That’s it; that’s all you need. Just say: “I deserve it. Why? Because I exist, that’s why. Because I have been given the capability to say and to know I deserve it. That’s why; I don’t need another reason.” And when you understand that, you will understand you are connected to everything. And when you are connected to everything, you will know it is not possible for you to be abandoned.

Now, an individual in your society shared with us a very creative interpretation of one of your language’s words. This individual recognized that your word “a-l-o-n-e” could be pronounced “alone” or “all one.” Which do you prefer?

Q: All one.

B: All right. Then if you know that being “alone” is being “all one,” you can never be abandoned. Because you are always connected to the infinity of creation itself by being fully open to it and allowing it to flow through you. It may only be the definitions you are applying to your relationships – the expectations you have been taught to think ought to be there, rather than letting the relationship be what it is for – that is creating the difficulty you are experiencing.

For the only difficulty usually comes from the type of definition you have about a circumstance. There is no circumstance, in and of itself, that is inherently difficulty causing. Only your perspective and definition of the circumstance can cause difficulty in your life.

Q: Yes.

B: Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Does this assist you?

Q: Yes. I’ve also chosen to grow through channeling, and I’m learning to experience as a clear vocal channel.

B: Oh, all right.

Q: My question is: how can these – how might these issues color or filter my clear channeling process?

B: They can color it if you are not willing to trust yourself. Because if you are not willing to trust yourself, then in that sense, you are not allowing yourself to be a clear channel, because you do not think of yourself as complete, as capable, as deserving.

Q: Yes.

B: But whatever you are experiencing in terms of your agreement to experience that energy . . .

Q: Yes.

B: . . . is all for the purpose of allowing you, first of all, to choose how you wish to define yourself. For the whole idea is to serve you as well. If the channeling doesn’t serve the channel, if the channel is not allowed to be fully who the channel needs to be, prefers to be, then the channel cannot be of service to anyone else. It would be pointless.

Q: Yes.

B: So again, it is simply an issue of trust. Understand?

Q: Yes.

B: Remember, as we have shared with many individuals: you do not need a special reason in order to know you deserve what you prefer. If you exist, then obviously you deserve to exist. Otherwise you wouldn’t. Infinite Creation is very clear about that.
Q: Yes.
B: If you exist, Infinite Creation must obviously believe you deserve to. Treat yourself with the same respect. Why not? Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: And be a part of the infinite whole: be the infinite whole – your version of the Infinite Whole. That is what all the parts are: different versions of the whole idea. You are no less that idea than anyone else, or you wouldn’t exist. There are no incomplete creations, no extraneous and pointless ones.

Q: Hmmm.
B: Understand?
Q: Yes.
B: If you exist, by definition, you must fit as you are – not that you can’t change. But you must fit as you are, or you wouldn’t exist. So lighten up on yourself. All right?
Q: I got it.
B: And when you lighten up on yourself, you will be enlightened. And your energy will accelerate upward. And your vulnerability will become power. Understand?
B: Yes.
B: Well, thank you very much.
Q: Thank you.
B: At this timing, you may all enjoy a short break. We will resume contact in approximately ten to fifteen of your minutes.

Vulnerability II

Q: Yesterday I saw a deer that had just been killed on the side of the road.
B: What did you learn? When you think about the deer itself, how does that make you feel?
Q: Badly, she was so vulnerable, a very sweet symbol. It’s like she melted into the sidewalk. If was sad to see this beautiful animal that had just died.
B: All right, that’s one side of the story. What about the power side of vulnerability? Of being open to the unknown in that sense, knowing that it can only be more of yourself! What about that as a symbol for the transition itself, the idea of the open arms of vulnerability, not in the negative sense but in the powerful sense?
Q: Yeah. That’s the only way to do this – to be totally vulnerable, like melting into the sidewalk, there’s great power in that.
B: Yes. Melting into the power, the totality, the light of yourself. Do you feel that you have lost something? Or do you feel that you have gained? You can grow quite a bit from this experience in a very natural way in assisting individuals to transform from one dimension to another.
Q: Even somebody who wants to commit suicide?
B: Understand that an individual who is centered within themselves that no longer wishes to be physical will simply be able to leave. Suicide, in that sense, as you understand in your society, is generally not a sign of wellness. If they wish to leave and they are centered within themselves, and they truly know they have no purpose in being any longer upon your planet, they will be able to leave without the idea you understand as suicide. They will simply leave. It will either be through, what you may call, in some cases, an automatic “accident" that kills them instantly, or they will lay down, close their eyes and leave. However, if they are in anxiety about the idea of whether or not to kill themselves, generally that is an indication that there is still something they haven’t dealt with and all the more reason for them stick around. You understand the difference? Does that help?
Q: Yes, it does.
B: One moment. There is going to be some very powerful communication for you in your dreams. Be open to it; do not be afraid. It may seem dark, it may be fearful, but it’s exactly the shadow you need to walk into to really gain your power, and to really be able to help others by you becoming the person you need to become which can truly help in the transition from one dimension to another. This responsibility must be integrated within you fully and it can be.
Dreams and your guides can help you, even as they have already begun to help you through the doe, through the coyote, through the cat, through the dreams, through the symbols, through the attraction of these individuals who are dying and everything else you will need. You have all the tools. All the tools are there. You simply need to be open to receive them; they will be there.

Vulnerability II
Vulnerability III

Q: One of the greatest difficulties I have in being myself and realizing the synchronicity of all is the feeling of vulnerability.

B: Vulnerability! Good one! Vulnerability is not weakness. Do you think it is?

Q: No, I think there’s a strength in…

B: A strength; vulnerability is strength. Vulnerability, complete vulnerability – pay attention, follow along – is being open to everything, being open to All That Is. Being open to All That Is, is being connected to All That Is. Being connected to All That Is, is a position of ultimate strength; vulnerability is strength, it is trust.

Q: Okay.

B: It is knowing that to open yourself up to All That Is, then you will be supported by All That Is, because All That Is wants you to allow yourself to recognize yourself as an integral - integral, integrity - integral part of All That Is. You then create yourself to function like an integral part, and All That Is would not be All That Is without you. Therefore, vulnerability is strength, by definition. Judgment is what creates the feeling of weakness - not vulnerability.

Q: Judgment on yourself or…

B: Yes! There is nothing else; there is no one else to judge. Judgment of others is judgment of yourself; judgment from others, if you accept it, is judgment of yourself. You follow me?

Q: Yes. There are a lot of different frequencies of energy…

B: Yes, so? The idea of unity is to grant equal validity to all the diversity within creation. Again: allowing all the ways All That Is has of expressing itself to be equal - on their own terms - does not mean it has to affect your life.

Just because you recognize that there are other frequencies doesn’t mean that one of those frequencies has anything at all to do with the life you know your frequency to be, if you simply recognize that it has nothing to do with you.

Q: Well, okay.

B: Just because you are, quote/unquote, exposed to the reality that other beings have chosen other ways to live and other ways to present their version of All That Is to you, it doesn’t mean that you have to feel it as being forced down your throat.

Q: Okay. I personally am…have been very influenced by other energies in my environment. Is that just…

B: It is your choice to be influenced. Nothing influences you but you! Nothing! They are offerings: “Pssst. How would you like to be influenced by, oh, say, pollution?” “Yes? No? Yes, thank you. No, thank you.” It is up to you to be influenced. But you created your version of that gift in your reality, if you are experiencing it. You have to create it for yourself in order to experience it. So all you are doing is agreeing that it would be, for you, an appropriate thing to create.

If you simply understand that that tool you are being offered is equal to any other tool - is valid. If you should decide to accept it, it will serve you, because you do not accept anything else. But if you simply recognize that it is a tool you do not need and that you can learn what you need to learn in other ways – in ways you consider to be more positive – then simply recognize that it does not have to manifest in your life.

That if you recognize what the purpose would be – should you have accepted that idea – then you can also recognize that the same purpose would be served by creating another way in which it can manifest in your life. One that is more relevant to the vibration you know is true for you. Does that assist you?

Q: Yes.
B: But ...?
Q: I still have difficulty with it.
B: Do you understand that the phrase, “I still have difficulty with it,” is only a belief?
Q: Okay.
B: Why do you insist that that is a part of your reality?
Q: Probably because it always has been.
B: So what? One moment is not connected to the next. Now is now. It has nothing to do with the past, unless you choose to make a connection. The present is not a result of the past. Now is now; each and every now as seemingly similar to the last one does not mean it has to be.
Q: Okay. Then what’s your advice for clearing oneself of these fixed ideas?
B: What I just told you, recognizing that every single moment in time is its own separate now. Now is now, and not the now you used to be a moment ago.

The only things you experience in any given “now” are the results of what you define your reality to be, according to what you believe it should be. Redefine your reality. In other words, if you simply recognize that you have a choice between the preference – the opportunity to believe, “it is difficult for me; it is easy for me,” which one do you prefer? “It is difficult for me to change; it is easy for me to change.” Which one do you prefer?

You are making your choice right now, because you are choosing to make it difficult to choose a preference. Which one do you prefer?
Q: The difficult.
B: Why? Obviously if you prefer it to be difficult...
Q: Because I need to learn from it.
B: ...it must serve you. However, you can also understand that the opportunity to choose to prefer that it is easy is always just as equal a choice at any given moment. At any moment whatsoever, you have that option of saying, “all right, I am through with the belief that it is difficult; now I will choose that it is easy.” And as soon as you truly do choose it, it will be easy.

Q: Thank you.

B: Understand something once again: change is the only constant in the universe. Things are always changing, always transforming, are they not?

Q: Yes.

B: Then recognize that is what happens anyway. What you think always stays the same is never the same, never! Every moment is a new moment even when it seems to be the same as the last moment. It is a new version of the idea. You are creating the idea that there is a continuity.

You are creating, in the new moment, a continuance of the idea that nothing has changed. That is how you create the scenario that makes it seem as if changing is difficult. You are doing it all the time, but you are changing into ideas that allow you to think nothing has changed. But that is the definition you are creating.

Q: If I’m not the same me that I was a minute ago . . .

B: Yes?

Q: And . . .

B: Come on; you are getting it.

Q: Well, what happens to identity, and where does memory come into place?

B: Ah, very good! Identity - your personality construct – is, in a sense, an artificial construct, created of three things: belief, emotion and thought. It is a prism through which the white light of your consciousness is broken down into the spectrum of the physical reality.

Your identity is always changing; you as a person are always changing. The person is not a fixed thing. The consciousness is, in a sense, but the person is never fixed. Do you not understand that you yourselves recognize that many times individuals go through situations and when they emerge from these situations, you say, “well, you’re an entirely different person, aren’t you?” It is true.

Same consciousness; you recognize the consciousness. But it is a different person, a different personality – which is the same thing. It is an artificial construct that now has been tailored to fit the now idea that the consciousness is willing to be. Memory is created in the present as well. You may think you are dredging something up from the past, but if you really stop and understand it and think about it, you recognize you are creating memory in the present.

Therefore, the idea is that you will find that many individuals will begin to forget the so-called past in fourth density, because they are beginning to recognize that they will know what they need to know in the present, when they need to know it. And do not have to have an association with the past in order to know what they need to know.
Everything is created in the present – everything. The present is the only time in which you ever exist, is it not? No matter when you are, isn’t it always now? Well? Can you recall a time ever when you could say, “it is not now”? Yes or no? Yes or no?

Q: I can look at myself at other times.
B: You are doing that now.
Q: Okay.
B: In other words…let me rephrase it: anything you can ever experience yourself doing is always now. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: You are experiencing the idea of a memory of the past now! When you were, quote/unquote, living that past, it was still now when you were living it, wasn’t it?
Q: Uh huh.
B: There is always, and only ever will be, now. It is the only time there is - now.
Q: Is it the same moment all the time?
B: It is one eternal moment that can transform in different versions of itself, yes; it does so and is so simultaneously; but because you have created a reality in which you have the idea of linear time, it does not seem to be the same moment, but it is.

As we said, all things are one thing in different manifestations at the same time, including the perception of linear time. That is one manifestation of the now existence. Because the only time you ever perceive linear time is from the now. You relate to the past and the future from the present. You do not relate to the present from the future. You follow me?
Q: Yes.
B: All is now. Does that assist you?
Q: Yes.
B: Choose what you wish to be now. All the choices are equal; all choices are equal. Allowing all choices to be equal is what allows you to choose easily, because then nothing is beyond your reach; they are all on the same level. You follow me?
Q: Mhmm.
B: Thank you.
Q: Thank you.

Vulnerability

Q: I’d like to talk about the idea of vulnerability.

B: Thank you. Vulnerability is the idea of being open. Being totally open means you are connected to All That Is. Being connected means you are supported by All That Is. Being supported by All That Is means you are infinitely powerful. That’s vulnerability. The willingness to be who are, knowing that who you are is completely supported by All That Is, otherwise you wouldn’t even exist. So that’s a beginning for you, and when you begin to know that, to make it your own, you will not be so hard on yourselves, because you will no longer deny that you are the reflection of the Infinite you were created to be. That’s what being hard on yourselves is all about, "I’m not worthy, I’m not worthy." This is a side note, not a chastisement, or a judgment. Understand that we are simply giving you a little bit of guidance here from unconditional love.

To say "I am not worthy" of that which I have been created to be, even though it may seem as if you are attempting to humble yourself, is actually one of the greatest acts of arrogance there is. Because you are saying that, out of all the universe that works flawlessly, I alone, am not worthy, thus I stand out, and I’m more special than anything else. Everything else works fine, but not me. Creation made me, the one unique being that in all of Creation does not work flawlessly. Thus, I can point at myself and say, "See, I have a reason for not being the perfect creator I know I am, because I alone am the special flawed creation within the Infinite." So, that is a statement of arrogance. The truly humble knows that you infinitely deserve to know you are great. Exemplify that in your behavior, not in the idea of your negative ego, but in your actions of being willing to show the Infinite, that you are willing to accept what the Infinite created you to be. Then you will no longer be hard on yourself because you will value and honor what the Infinite honors and values in having created you.

In a sense, to be hard on yourself is to deny the idea that, in a sense, Creation knew what it was doing when It created you. You are saying, "You are wrong in creating me, you didn’t know what you were doing when you created me. I am a mistake in the overall creation." Thus, you are in that sense, devaluing all of Creation, so how can Creation support you?

If you allow yourself to know you belong in all the ways that you can express that, then you are valuing not only yourself, but Creation simultaneously, and then Creation can support you in the valuation of yourself.
Wabi Farm

B: There is also some information we are asked to share regarding a little tidbit from your last crop circle season. One of your last formations, in the location you may call Wabi Farm. Do you follow? Wabi. Do you follow?
AUD: No. No.
B: Those who are familiar with the circles and their appearance and their locations, those who have been researching, do you follow?
AUD: Yes. Yes.
B: Thank you. This formation, the one with the watery circle, you follow?
AUD: No.
B: The one with the wave pattern, the weave pattern that appears to be waves of water. Do you follow? It is in that formation, the circle closest to the water trough, do you follow?
AUD: Not really.
B: Have you examined this formation?
AUD: No. We’ll check it. We’ll look. I don’t know which one it is. What does it look like?
B: All right. It is in a sense a large area that is circular, with a large ring going through. And in the large circular area there is both an outstanding circle and a suggestion in the weave, of another that is almost not really there. And then in the ring that is penetrating these three circles, there is within that ring another circle, and then outside the ring a smaller circle, then farther away the watery circle. Does that make sense and ring a bell? On the Wabi Farm?
B: Researcher?
Researcher: Yes.
B: All right. This glyph, as with all of them, is many things, and has many different meanings and is multi-dimensional; you can glean much information from it by looking at it from many different points of view. All of them are correct. There is no just one meaning. But we will share with you ONE representation that ties into what we were just talking about, that glyph is a representation of the Sirius system.
As you examine it you will understand. (Clicks teeth loudly.) Question 7.

Waiting to Lose Weight

Q: I’ve been trying to lose weight for a good 10 years now, and I just wondered if you might share any insight as to why I’m hanging onto the extra weight.

B: All right, to be brief, we have discussed many times the idea of waiting to do what excites you and therefore, literally retaining weight. Are you doing the thing that excites you the most in life? We will begin with this particular approach. Yes or no?

Q: Probably not.
B: Probably not. You’re not sure?
Q: Well, I’ll say no.
B: All right. Why not? Why are you waiting to do it? You see, the idea, in some sense, has a literal connotation in your language about waiting. Because, if you have all this energy as a creator and you are keeping it pent up, then many times that energy will convert into mass. But if you do what excites you the most, it converts from mass back to energy and you are not "weight-ing" anymore. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: What is preventing you from acting on the thing that excites you? Do you know what would excite you the most to do?
Q: No. But I feel that what I’m doing gives me security.
B: Security? Securities...all right. It gives you security to continue to have a life of doing what you do not want to do. Yes, it gives you that security. Is that the type of security you wish?
Q: Well, I guess I did it to feel secure.
B: All right. You did, and for then that was fine. But obviously you are now questioning it. Which means you may not want it anymore. Do you understand that the issue is, if you really do what excites you the most that is the most secure thing you can do, because that is the thing which is most you and therefore, the thing that will be able to really support you most effortlessly? Do you understand that principle?
Q: Yes, I understand.
B: All right. Do you think you understand enough to act on that principle, to act as if that principle could be, just maybe, true for you too? Or do you think you might be an exception out of all the beings in the Universe that it would not work for you?
Q: No...
B: Did you just sigh? That’s a letting go...a kind of release.
Q: Well, I am losing weight very slowly, but it’s taking a while.
B: I beg your pardon.
Q: It’s taking a while.
B: All right. Now, say it this way: "I prefer to lose weight!"
Q: [quietly] I prefer to lose weight...
B: No, no, no. More like "I PREFER TO LOSE WEIGHT!"
Q: I prefer to lose weight.
B: I PREFER TO LOSE WEIGHT.
Q: I PREFER to lose weight.
B: I prefer to LOSE. . .WAIT!
Q: I prefer to lose. . .wait?
B: "I prefer to lose...WAIT," actually means, "No, I don’t" Catching on? See why it’s taking a long time?
Q: And it’s taking a long time.
B: AND it's TAKING A LONG TIME.
Q: And it’s taking a long time.
B: What element in the channel’s voice is missing from yours? I PREFER TO LOSE WEIGHT and IT’S TAKING A LONG TIME.
Q: Enthusiasm?
B: And pride.
Q: Pride?
B: Yes. Be proud of who you are, no matter who you are. You understand? Do the things you really prefer to do, to the best of your ability as you can do them now. You do not have to wait until you lose weight before you do the things you can do now. Start doing them now and you will lose the weight.
Waking from the Dream of Forgetting

B: Now, once upon a time, I believe is your phrase, there was a gathering of what we shall call gods. These gods realized that they were the creators of all that they wished to experience, and that they could create anything that they could imagine to experience as a real reality – in any way they so decided to experience that idea. Let us say, one day they all got together and decided to experience the idea of being unaware – for they were always aware, always awake, and always knowing. And since they were always knowing, one or two, does not matter how many, suggested, “Well then, the experience that we have not had, is not knowing. How about, let’s create the experience of not knowing.” "Oh, all right; sounds like fun.”

So they all created an idea into which they could project themselves, and in which, for all practical intents and purposes, they would no longer be awake, but would be asleep. They would no longer know, but they would forget. And in the creation of this reality they discovered something, that the creation of a reality in which you can forget means that along with that experience you may create the idea of continuing to forget. This they discovered, but in a sense did not know they had discovered it, for they were not cognizant of what forgetting really means. For they even forgot that there was something to discover – what the whole idea was all about.

In creating a realm of forgetfulness, they even forgot why they had created it. And this created the idea of the cycle of always looking towards that realm, and never anywhere else, for to them, they had forgotten that there was anywhere else to look. Thus even upon leaving the physical form, once they had projected themselves into it, they never looked beyond the idea of that which they had created, and so continuously returned again and again and again to that experience, adding more and more and more momentum, more energy to the idea of forgetting, even more and more and more.

Now, after a time there were beings that had also chosen to play that game, to different extents, for different purposes, in different areas of the diversificated universe. Some were, I’ll say, ahead of others, some were behind, so to speak; all experiencing the idea of forgetting at different rates. Now, in the course of time – which was a creation along with the realm of forgetfulness, let us say, another side effect, another fringe benefit which was perhaps not counted upon exactly – there came to pass, in the many different areas, that beings did begin to remember.

And as they remembered, they remembered that there were others of their kind, other gods that went other places to play the same game. So now that they had remembered, and, in a sense, more or less gotten through a certain portion of the game – at least enough of it so that they became aware that they were in fact playing a game – they decided to look up the other gods and see how they were doing. Well, some of them remembered; some did not. And thus it was understood – the idea of the different rates of time, the different dimensionalities that were created in the creation of the limited idea of the universe. The idea that there is variance and diversification allowed them to realize that time, as a concept, now existed, and that not everyone got through with the game at the same time. And some were still playing certain portions that others had finished playing many, many years before.
In this way there are also the gods, portions of the gods, that have not ever chosen to play the game of physical reality. Now, those beings that remembered themselves, and went searching for their friends and found their friends not remembering, many times were opening up to their memory to know that they could communicate with those that had not yet chosen physical reality, and went to them to discuss the entire idea of the differences that now existed, since they knew they had – those that had not yet been physical – a larger overview of all the differences within the oneness.

To those overselves – those gods who had not played that game of limitation, or game of forgetting – there was even some time spent getting them to even believe that such a thing as time existed, before it could be discussed as to what had happened to the rest of the gods. Once they basically understood, they agreed to always be available, should anyone choose to remember, so that it could be immediately recognized that there was, and is, a mirror and a reflection beyond, in a sense outside of, in a sense, the limited game that some gods continued to play.

Therefore, there is the opportunity for the gods that are still playing this game, at any moment, to remember that they are in fact playing a game, and to remember that they have created everything in that game. For those that have played, and those that have no, are aware that those that have chosen to play, have chosen so because it is one more thing that does exist within All That Is. And the enrichment of experiencing everything that All That Is has to offer – well, let us say, it is a very well rounding experience.

For those beings that have not chosen to play that game have not experienced every corner of All That Is, and cannot relate to the gods that have chosen to play the game in many ways, and are choosing, in and of themselves, to manifest their own manifestation in ways that have not – in their terms, in your terms – partaken of all that All That Is has to offer. Where the gods who have chosen to play the game, have. And therefore, once they remember that they are playing the game, (they) can remember that they have given themselves the opportunity to play the game, so that they will then contain that experience –as one more experience that All That Is has to offer – and will then know, once they remember, that they do contain all of All That Is. That they are all of All That Is, that they are the creators, these gods, the creators of the universes.

You are those gods, as if you did not guess. You are the gods that have created the universes. All That Is did not create the universes. All That Is created you; you created the universes, all of them. If you wish to say All That Is created the universes, then All That Is created the universes through you. Do you follow me?

AUD: Yes.

B: All That Is is the universe – did not create the universe. All That Is is the universe; you created the universes. There is a distinction, and what it means is this, that all that you consider to be learning is simply remembering whom and what you are. Do you follow me?

AUD: Mmhmm. Yes.

B: For you are the universes and, in that sense, anything goes.
Walk-ins
Q: I would like to ask some questions about walk-ins.
B: A few.
Q: A few questions or a few walk-ins?
B: A few questions. (AUD: laugh).
Q: I found one book and I read what I could read, and it was not very, very helpful. It was by Ruth Montgomery and they said...
B: Yes.
Q: ...at that time, in 1979, when the book was written, tens of thousands of souls were walking in.
B: To some degree. It still represents a small fraction of your population, however, and usually will remain so.
Q: Please define walk-in.
B: The idea that an individual finds that they have come to an end for the need of a physical life; but that another individual that is non-physical, that needs a life, does not need a whole life. So one individual "leaves the body" and another one comes in to continue for the amount of time that is necessary for their purpose to be fulfilled.
Q: Thank you.
B: Now, this is occurring a little bit more often than it used to. But again, you will also find that many individuals are simply the same souls ascending into higher vibrational states of themselves and remaining in the same body. Sometimes this can appear to be what you call a walk-in; but it is not. It is an ascension, in a sense, within the same body.
The idea does not really need a confusion of labeling, for simply, again, the entire idea, no matter what version, no matter what type of vibrational change and personality shift has occurred, is for the purpose of the blending into an idea of the assistance in the transformation taking place.
Q: When born-again Christians get what they call a new spirit, is that a walk-in?
B: They do not define such a thing in that way. That does not fit in with what they believe to be their reality. In this way, it is simply looked upon, more or less, as a new creation, in a sense, of a new soul. But the idea also of the idea of transformation is more connected to the idea we have described as ascension. The shifting and the changing of the identification of an individual’s vibration so there is a personality shift. A re-identification of themselves in the universe. But that is going on all the time. You are constantly re-identifying yourself every moment of time that you create to exist.
Q: Yes.
B: Always you are new. Every moment you are new.
Q: In my case I felt that I had a walk-in experience from February to June 5th, and I felt that it was completed on June 5th, and uh...
B: Do you mean with you?
Q: Yes.
B: So where were you?
Q: Well, that would be another question then, because...
B: I just asked it.
Q: Oh. (AUD: laugh).
B: Where were you during that time?
Q: During that time?
B: Yes.
Q: I believe that from February to June both of us were in here.
B: Then it is not technically, what you call a walk-in. Again, understand one thing. Now, we do realize that because you come from the idea of the physiological state you are in, you generally consider that the terminology that something enters the body to be literal; but your body is also a projection of your soul. The idea is not so much that something can enter a body, but that there are only identifications with different frequencies of consciousness and vibration, so to us walk-in, ascension, changing your mind, in a sense, is all the same thing: a shift in vibrational frequency that redefines the identity consciousness that you are. To us, the creation of different, separate labels only confuses the issue in a negative way. The idea, simply, part and parcel, is take what you feel to have happened and simply act upon the essence of the feeling without necessarily needing to label it to understand it. How did it create you to feel? What do you want to do with the feeling? THAT is what will benefit you in your life. You follow me?
A: Yes.
B: Simply function in that way and it will (garbled) a little more smoothly for you.
Q: Okay. Well I was interested in some facts because I thought about writing a book about this.
B: Facts are relative.
Q: Yes. I understand there is a man in New York who’s doing seminars on the fact that he’s a walk-in.
B: All right. If that excites you, go see him.
Q: Well, yeah, I would like to meet him but I...
B: Have a good time. (AUD: laugh).
Q: Okay.
B: Again, the idea is simply to act upon what excites you. Now, once again, let me remind you and point something out; a little bit of redefinition. Many times we have discussed the idea—although of course questions are a valid way to share— that when you are willing to make statements and convictions of equal sharing, then you will be more willing to recognize yourselves as equal to us and equal to any level of consciousness within creation. One thing about the idea of the equal conversation, however, is that the idea of conversing as equals with us is actually more the idea of actually going and doing what you know is true for you, rather than talking about it. Doing it is the consecration that creates the equality. (AUD: laugh).

Therefore, simply act upon your instincts. Act upon your feelings. Move yourself or let yourself move in the direction your feelings and instincts and imagination and excitation takes you. The idea of thinking about it and analyzing it is fine on its own terms; but in this way, we do perceive that you are requesting the idea of being able to feel it in your life as a practical thing. Therefore, live it as a practical thing. Trust your imagination. Trust that it is valid for you, and it is creating the symbols that relate to you most necessarily at this time.

So do not put so much stock in what the symbols mean, for the symbols will change from time to time. Simply trust that whatever symbols are there for now, are there to create the feelings that give you the opportunity to act. It is the action that is primary. Not the understanding, specifically, of what does this symbol mean? What does that symbol mean? What is this terminology? What is that terminology? It is how it makes you feel that gives you the opportunity to move. That is why the symbol is there. You follow me?

Q: Yes.
B: Thank you!
Q: Thank you.
WANDERERS

Wanderers are that type of being that touch down lightly wherever it is they choose to land or incarnate for a while. They never really become completely connected to the scenario going on, on the planet, but they can help, in a sense, from the sidelines.

They always remain in the wandering energy, which means they are simply more aware than most, of their connections to all the different places they are connected to, and thus are never really, in any way, shape, or form, completely involved, or immersed in any reality they may be temporarily connected to.

B: And to you, good day.
Q: Do you remember me from the past?
B: Why would I want to do that when you are here right now?
Q: (laughter) I’m testing your memory.
B: I do not have a memory; I only exist in the moment.
Q: I wish I had your memory.
B: I do not need a memory; I only exist in the moment and what I need to know, I know when I need to know it. What I don’t know in any given moment, I don’t need to know.
Q: Then I am confident you will recall that, for several years, my number one excitement for a career...
B: Yes.
Q: ...had to do with the water fuel cell. A new science and technology...
B: Yes.
Q: ...put together by Stan Meyer out in Columbus, Ohio, the inventor.
B: And?
Q: Two and a half, three months ago I got the report that he had died, that he had passed on...
B: All right.
Q: ...can you confirm to me that that is true? Stan Meyer.
B: From our perception, yes.
Q: Can you tell me whether there was any kind of foul play involved in his passing?
B: From our perception there were the idea of the individual being caught up in, what you would call, politics; but we do not perceive that that had anything directly to do with the death.
Q: Okay, because he had had attempts on his life, over the years.
B: Yes.
Q: And he had a couple of angels that were guarding him and keeping him alive.
B: In that sense then, you understand it had nothing directly to do with the death. It was simply the proper timing.
Q: Okay.
B: And now?
Q: I want to believe that it was right.
B: That what was right?
Q: That he passed on, and that he chose to pass on.
B: Why do you want to believe that?
Q: Because I want to believe, consistent with my beliefs, and that the impact of his new science and technology was meant to benefit mankind on this planet. And if you'll recall, this is my number one excitement, to become an active part of that science and technology.
B: What do you mean to become? Are you not?
Q: Not to the extent that I want to, so far it's just been.
B: Then why do you not become involved to the extent that you want to?
Q: Well, he and I had a agreement, about a year and a half ago, that he was probably going to hire me, but then he did a bummer; he died on me, see.
B: Why is this, as you call it, a bummer? Are you saying that you don't trust the timing?
Q: I want to trust the timing.
B: Then why don't you.
Q: Well now I'm going out there in the near future to beat the bushes and find out everything I can about the current status of the project.
B: All right. Many individuals that begin to lead the way in certain areas of development will now choose to leave the planet; because it will be up to the individuals who are interested in what they had to say and what doors they opened to take their place. This is what many of you saw in the individuals as you know as your Princess, your Diana, your Mother, your Teresa. Why they died, side by side, when they led the way of humanitarian actions. Because they now bequeath unto all of you to follow in their footsteps, and not leave it up to them to do it for you, anymore. Such is the case, in some senses, here. You have been inspired to a certain point and that is well and good but as long as the individual who started it remains around you, in a sense, and other like you are not necessarily spurred to do as much as you could be doing, because you are leaving it up to them. Now that you are forced to beat the bushes, you will finally take the steps necessary to allow yourself to bring yourself into the proper state where you can then express more fully the thing you say is your joy.
Q: I know you don’t enjoy predicting the future but a....
B: It has nothing to do with enjoyment, it is simply not possible.
Q: What’s your prognosis of the future of this new science and technology which has such great potential and benefit for this planet?
B: This is our sensing of the energy as it exists at the present, which is all a prediction ever is.
Q: Okay.
B: And that is this, it will in its investigation, it will lead to other things that will go way beyond it. When you investigate the idea of the water fuel cell to the degree that is representative of your highest joy, most likely what you will come across, is the recognition that you have the ability to unlock a different kind of energy from water itself than you ever thought possible. And you will actually go leaps and bounds beyond the concept of the water fuel cell, but most likely you will only discover that by going along that route. So, it will lead you to the proper place to make another discovery that will go beyond it and actually render that obsolete.

This is quite often what your excitement is for, I’m not just talking to you personally, I’m talking to all of you. Many of you, when something excites you, you assume that it excites you because it, the thing itself that excites you, is supposed to come to fruition... NO! You see you’re all very tricky people and because you have portions of your consciousness that you hide from yourself, more often than not, your excitement will actually come to you simply as a dangling carrot to get you to move in a certain direction. But not because of the thing itself, not because the carrot itself need to be eaten, but just because you needed to move in that direction; and once the carrot has got you walking, many times things will change, such as, people dying on you, unexpectedly. Because then what it is telling you, is to just follow your joy the best you can without ... without ... without ... without ... WITHOUT the assumption and expectation that the thing itself that carries the excitement must be the thing itself that you actually accomplish.

Q: I feel good about what you are saying.
B: Yes.

Q: I intend to ... as I say, thoroughly investigate this now and get current with the people that remain.
B: If that is your true joy by all means do so, and that will be the thing you need to do. But if, in any given moment, for some reason, no matter how long or short it lasts, your excitement changes, act on whatever it is it has changed into, because that will be a part of it. The excitement tells you that no matter how it looks, that will be a part of the overall THING that excites you, so follow it.

Q: I will do that. Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.
Wavelengths and Densities

Q: I have a couple of questions, the first one deals with wavelengths. How would you invite others to share certain wavelengths that...

B: Again, all you need to do is to be the idea you wish to be, and you can only experience those on the same wavelength. You will attract then automatically, by your simple actions. By the simple action out of the wavelength you are, you will then radiate a beacon at that wavelength that will attract all others so inclined to interact with you.

Q: Okay. Thank you. The second question deals with this level of density.

B: Yes.

Q: I believe it’s... (OTHER IN AUD: third) ... this planet is of the third density, and can you give some indication of the transformation to the fourth?

B: Again, the idea, as we have discussed, is simply that you will recognize that third density offered you an opportunity to consider the idea of the universe existing outside yourself, remote from yourself, so that you could create what appears to be an objective point of view.

Fourth density will be the blending of all the polarities in that way, so that you will recognize that this objective point of view has been an illusion. You will see through the facade and you have now begun to experience integration in many ways. You will accelerate in many different ways that will allow you to know you can partake of the substance of energy itself that creates the dimension in which you are transforming, and in this way let yourself know that you can become more accelerated.

The effects that you may perceive will be: the idea of the blending of the lack of memory, the idea of the creation of knowledge in the moment, the idea of living in the now, the idea that your physical form may become a little bit more brilliant, may reflect more light, be more of a light body in this way. You may require... end of transcript.
Wavelengths and Fourth Density

By the simple acting out of the wavelengths you are, you will then radiate a beacon at that wavelength that will attract all others so inclined to interact with you.

Q: Okay. Thank you. The second question deals with this level of density.

B: Yes.

Q: I believe this planet to be of the third density... can you give some indication of the transformation to the fourth?

B: Again, the idea, as we have discussed, is simply that you will recognize that third density offered you an opportunity to consider the idea of the universe existing outside yourself, remote from yourself, so that you could create what appears to be an objective point of view.

Fourth density will be the blending of all the polarities in that way, so that you will recognize that this objective point of view has been an illusion. You will see through the facade you have created for the purpose of experiencing limitation, and you will accelerate in many different ways that will allow you to know you can partake of the substance of energy itself that creates the dimension in which you are transforming. And in this way let yourself know that you can become more accelerated.

The effects that you may perceive will be the idea of the blending of the lack of memory, and the idea of the creation of knowledge in the physical form may become a little bit more brilliant, may reflect more light, and be more of a light body in this way. You may require less physiological sustenance that you call food; less sleep. In this way, as you are blending the different realities into one reality, you will find that you are always living a waking dream.

These ideas will also allow you to radiate at the harmonic vibratory level that will invoke a harmonic resonance of love, unconditional love, and peace upon your planet. And create a scenario in which you can allow, once again, for the creation of unity by the granting of validity to the infinite diversity within your civilization. These are all, as you say, hallmarks or earmarks of fourth density reality, plus many other exploratory ideas and blendings.

At the so called end of fourth density reality, in approximately what you call two thousand of your years, you will find that you will no longer need to be at all within the earth plane physiological reincarnational cycle, and you will no longer manifest as physical beings. Perhaps someone else will utilize the idea after you.

Q: That’s what I was wondering. The year two thousand, in other words, for this particular planet, these societies, you see as the transition to the fourth.

B: The idea of the overall beginnings of the transformation are occurring, have been occurring, and will... continue to occur for approximately the next thirty of your years of counting. In this way, you will understand two thousand, as you count it, the year, to represent simply the transformation point in a linear time frame referential state.

There will be a high point of activity also within the idea you call two thousand eleven to two thousand thirteen. In this way, therefore, you will create the beginnings of awareness that will allow you to build a society that functions within peace and harmony for approximately two thousand years more. Then you will no longer need to remain as a physiological society.

Q: Thank you. That’s what I wanted to know.

B: In this way, once again, we will extend our unconditional love to each and every one of you, and thank you for allowing us to experience the gift of your consciousness; to allow us to experience that much more of All That Is and expand our awareness of creation. We send you our energy, our unconditional love, and bid you an exciting dream life, and a fond and loving good evening.

Wavelengths and Fourth Density
Ways Of Transition

Q: I recently worked on a television commercial.

B: All right.

Q: And in this commercial we used a jet fighter plane to race over a Ferrari car. And the pilot crashed and was instantly killed while shooting.

B: All right.

Q: And so I’ve been wondering if he had an agreement with the producers of that commercial, and with all of us, to be witness to his death.

B: Generally, yes. Generally.

Q: In other words, in another life we...

B: In other words, let us put it this way: Nothing within your collective belief system prevented that. And a few individuals involved had a very specific agreement for that particular manifestation. The majority of the individuals simply supported it and allowed it to happen, since it did not conflict, quote/unquote, with their overall paths. They were willing to at least support someone else’s specific agreements.

Understand? It is not that they had a specific agreement with every single person involved. With a few, yes. And then generally with everyone else. Understand?

Q: Yes. But I’m curious as to how that relates to the other question you just answered, when you said that sometimes people cross over and they’re very confused.

B: Yes.

Q: Why would this pilot have been confused when he crossed over?

B: It depends on how he crossed over, with what intentions. In other words, individuals who are brought up to believe certain things very strongly may allow themselves to be somewhat confused, as you say, when they die and do not find those particular manifestations that they expected to find, in the way they expected to find them. Because they may not have been aware of what beliefs they had, consciously. But their strongest beliefs will usually manifest.

But if individuals, for example, say that: “I am doing what excites me; and if some day I should go out in a blaze of glory, that will be just fine,” they will create for themselves to be very aware, very quickly, of exactly what has happened. Because they will, in a sense, have been setting themselves up for it by saying: “Well, I died doing what I wanted to do, what gave me joy.”

And they are, in a sense, ready to die that way if they had chosen to. So even though there may be momentary confusion, the overall definition they give to what it is they are doing in life can allow them to set themselves up so the confusion won’t last very long. Understand?
Q: Okay, that answers it pretty much. I’m just curious if I was meant to be there to learn a particular lesson?
B: If you were there, then you were meant to be there, for there are no accidents. However, any particular event that occurs can have relative degrees of meaning to different individuals, some more than most.

So the easiest thing to do is to simply ask yourself: What did that incident allow you to examine? What is it you got out of being there? What did you learn about yourself by witnessing the choice of someone else in that very bold manner? How did it allow you to feel? What chords did it strike? What did it bring up from within you to the surface?

All those things are the reasons for why you were there. Because those are the things you wanted to face about yourself to integrate them within you, no matter how strong or subtle they are. Understand?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: So is that a simple thing for you to do?
Q: Yes, I think it helped me a lot.
B: All right.
Q: Thank you.
B: Then thank you for co-creating that particularly bold expression. And supporting that individual’s ability to, in a sense, do what they desired to do, in the way they desired to do it, according to the beliefs they most strongly constructed in their life. All right?
Q: Yes, thank you very much.
B: Oh, thank you very much. There is something else coming to you as well.
Q: Can you elaborate?
B: One moment... what is your given name?
Q: Jill.
B: We are scanning the symbols. One moment... you are very strongly connected to a network of consciousness upon your planet that is of a specific type, of a specific agreement, of a specific club, I shall say. In a sense, it is a network of bold transition.

The feedback from this and other incidents that you have participated in, witnessed in your life, is creating a shock wave within you. And this is, in no way, shape or form, meant to be negative. Do not allow the word to throw you, all right?
Q: Yes.
B: But the shock wave is one of acceleration of high speed in and of itself. It is the high speed that represents the connection that you have to this particular network and your place within it.
Highly accelerated transformation, highly accelerated transition. In our perception you have the ability to explode like a nova, in many different areas, all at once. You do not need to find yourself, when and if this occurs to you, to be breathless. Let yourself understand it may feel heavy for while, but there will still be enough atmosphere for you to keep your head. And you will still be able to keep your feet on the ground no matter how fast you move.

No more for now. Thank you.

Q: Thank you.
Weather as Emotional Reflection

Q: The throat chakra of communication is associated with the color blue. And I was wondering if the idea of communication has anything to do with the fact the sky is blue?

B: You can make an association in that way, you can recognize that the sky can be a reflective symbolic idea of the electromagnetic field around your planet in this way, that expresses the mentality through which you are all connected telepathically. You can allow yourself to exemplify that you are creating the VIBRATION of the spirituality in your skies by recognizing that it represents the idea of heaven to you in that way. And having chosen to represent it in a blue tinge or a hue will allow you to know that the access to each and every being upon your planet is inherent within the electromagnetic atmosphere that you breathe that permeates the entire atmosphere of your planet, and can be representative symbolically of the idea of allowing there to be a heaven upon your earth. It can be reflected in that way from our point of view.

It is only an arbitrary symbol in that sense and there is no basic, fundamental, what you would call, mechanical reason in that way for why there should be that association; but you can draw an association from it and rely upon it within your imagination in that way. It is a vibration which will reflect the idea of the spectrographic breakdown of your moisture content, your dust content and, in this way, will reflect the idea of the striving, in your terms, as you have been striving towards the crystal clarity of your own consciousness, it will be a reflection of consciousness in that way.

Q: Okay, thank you. Why has it been so stormy and cloudy these last few days; it’s been very, very windy. Are there a lot more shifts than usual?

B: It is not so much the product of the shifts. In this way recognize that, what you call, your weather is a direct result of your mass-conscious emotionality. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: All transformations and transitions that will allow there to be a release of energy in a mass conscious way will exude into your atmosphere and cause manifestations that you call weather.

Q2: What do you mean by mass conscious?

B: The combined consciousness of your entire civilization creates your weather through its emotional bias.

Q3: Could you comment, then, on the emotions and the consciousness that led to the earthquake in Mexico?

B: Again, we have discussed this idea, to some degree, that localized phenomenon in terms of earthquakes, in that area is specifically linked to a mass conscious, a mini mass conscious, miniature group of mass consciousnesses reflecting upon themselves the belief that they have taken themselves far away from their own nature. And have jolted themselves back to a primal level of existence because they felt they had removed themselves too far in their technology and polluted themselves, to such a degree, that the only way that they could reverse the process would be to wipe out the entire idea. You follow me?
Q3: Sure.
B: Sharing! Yes.
Q4: A couple of weeks ago or so you talked about the shift of the electromagnetic field of the earth.
B: Yes.
Q: Is that the same electromagnetic field that affects the compass and causes the magnetic compass to work?
B: Yes.
Q4: Okay, then was the variation that is shifting annually...would that be shifting at a more accelerated rate at this time?
B: Yes, to some degree, although you may find it may allow itself to be slight shifts and proceed towards a build up of a major shift, all at once.
Q4: So then the charts that are used for navigation would become obsolete?
B: Yes. Electromagnetically.
Q4: Right, they don’t use that much, of course, anyway. Thank you.
B: Thank you.
Q5: I’d just like to share that speaking of electromagnetic shifts, that one can really tune into what the mass-consciousness is feeling at any time. The day of the meltdown in Russia I didn’t listen to the news in the morning and I was driving along and I thought, “well, I’ll tune into the mass-conscious today and see what’s going on.” And I really felt a very strong sense of sadness and a sap of negative, almost, energy, and I thought, “that’s interesting, there’s a lot going on today and I don’t know what it is”...and then I found out later on that that’s what it was.
B: Thank you for your sharing and your willingness to express that you are in touch with the entirety of the mass consciousness. Allow me to remind each and every one of you that you all have that capability, for you are all always in touch with the totality of All That Is, particularly of your own society. Now, each and every one of you will translate it through in different ways, different symbolic interpretations, but you all have the ability to understand the emotional shiftings that are going on and taking place, and the interactions that can result from all of those interactions that take place on that level that can manifest into your physical reality.
You are all sensitive to this idea and you are all becoming more sensitive to that idea. As you become more sensitive in this way, this is why, as we have said, you will find, for now, many individuals are beginning to feel more of this sensitivity physically in, what you call, your sinus area and in, what you call, your heart area and your solar plexus. For these are, here, the sensitivity to the vibration in the electromagnetic field, and here, the sensitivity to the actual electromagnetic manifestation itself, because of the collection of, what you call, magnetite in your sinuses that aid to the idea of navigation in many animals, and in you. Thank you.
Q5: Thank you.
Weather Patterns and The Observer

Q: Talking about the idea of the wizard’s cap, last week you told us that somebody said something about someone having one on the front of the airplane; and how it changed the weather?
B: Yes.
Q: And it made me think, how is the weather related to the other dimensions? I mean, what is it...?
B: The idea of the energy that goes into helping form your weather patterns – this is not the whole idea – but a very large portion of the kind of energy that goes into helping those patterns come about has to do with the collective emotional consciousness of your people, your entire planet. And sometimes even of a local group that exerts a very high emotional energy pressure, or a low emotional energy pressure, into the surrounding atmosphere. It will be reflected in a variety of ways in the actual physical manifestation of a variety of forms of weather.
Thus, the idea of this cone is that it acts in a sense as an amplifier of intention, as we have said. And the manifestation is that it picks up upon the idea of some of these etheric patterns and translates it into the idea of the environment in which it was placed, which was in the idea of moving through the air. You understand?
Q: Yes.
B: Therefore, it created atmospheric change because that is how it was directed. Does that help you?
Q: Yes. Also, I wanted to share with you what I thought about the being called the Observer.
B: Yes.
Q: When this being came through, I got the sense that this being was an Oversoul or Higher Self.
B: In a sense, you are very correct.
Q: In a sense; what do you mean “in a sense?”
B: It is a notion that does not necessarily translate well into your language, but Oversoul, in a sense, will do.
The Observer, for lack of a better term, as you are oft to say in your language, could be, only from one point of view... of course we do not want to make this rigidized, you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: From one point of view, one perspective, the Observer, the being, the entity that in your language we called the Observer, is like unto the Oversoul of the Association.
Q: Oh.
B: Do you understand this?
Q: Yes, I mean, somewhat. I mean, as much as I can in this context. Wow, that’s really interesting.
(Inaudible question from audience.)
B: In some contexts, yes, although the idea of what you call the Buddha Nature, the Christ Consciousness, the Krishna Spirit will more have to do with the idea of an Oversoul or World Spirit that... is collectively representative of your particular domain, even though it does connect into other dimensionality.

The Observer is like unto the Oversoul of many, many, many, many domains; the collective of all of the worlds in the Association of Worlds, and more than that. But it functions on one level as the Oversoul of the Association of Worlds of which we belong.

Q: Wow, that’s big.

B: In a sense, I suppose. Although relative to other things, it is infinitesimal.

Weather Patterns and The Observer
Whale/Dolphin Communication

Q: Carl Sagan has said that the song of the Humpback whale contains as much information as Homer’s Odyssey, is there any kind of...
B: Much, much, much more than that.
Q: Much more. What kind of coding do they use in their transmissions?
B: Harmonic coding, in the sense that different tones produced naturally, in such a way as to allow different individuals, once again, to interact with it to perceive different aspects of the total story. It has to be received in extreme openness in order for the entire story to be received all at once, similar to the way communication exists between spirits – more telepathically. If any acoustic beacon is utilized to extract information from the holographic acoustic story only an aspect of it will be retrieved, so complexly interwoven is it.

There are whale beings upon your planet that have woven acoustic holographic structures of such complexity that they would, perhaps, be equivalent to your Library of Congress. Do you understand?
Q: Yes.
B: This is rare, but it has been done; but it does not last long because it does not need to.
Q: An individual named Randy Eaton was observing an Orca whale and he said that he was hit by a beam, an intense presence, and since that time he’s had, he says, direct telepathic communication.
B: Yes, again, the sonic beam, the acoustic shield that cetaceans give off can evoke a harmonic resonance within your energy field, and even alter you physiologically and put you in synchronous harmony with the consciousness that surrounded you with such a field. Resonance is the key and it is easily understandable, in the same way as we have explained that one tuning fork can set up a harmonic resonance, a sympathetic vibration with another tuning fork and allow that tuning fork to vibrate in harmonic resonance with the first one. A whale can do this to your human body and awaken many attributes within you. This is why it is good for you to swim with the dolphins and the whales; they rub off on you in beneficial ways. Their vibrational frequencies open up doorways of memory within you that allow you to open up your telempathic talents. This is why we have often recommended it.
Q: Once you swam with a particular dolphin or whale, is that connection always there for them to beam energy to you?
B: It depends upon the interaction and relationship, not always does a particular dolphin or whale impart that kind of connection to a human. Sometimes it will require different kinds of degrees of familiarity, or different kinds of circumstance that make it important that such a connection should happen, to that degree of strength. There is always some method of identification, but it can remain on a lower level until some event or need makes it necessary for it to become stronger. The whale and the dolphin will always sense when it is important for this to happen. Sometimes the human can sense it to.
Q: Thank you very much.
B: Thank you.

Whale/Dolphin Communication
Whale Deaths

Q: Previously, you discussed that the whales that were being harpooned were allowing themselves to do that because of their complete vulnerability.

B: Yes, some.

Q: I was having a little bit of difficulty with that idea.

B: Why?

Q: In the sense that you incarnate and you have a linear projection of, basically, the types of scenarios that you are going to interact with.

B: No, not always you do not.

Q: So there are things that just come out of the blue, to strike a whale down?

B: So to speak. They all within the template and allowance is made for the possibility of one needing to be more manifest than another, if it serves the best and the good of all concerned. Therefore, they don’t necessarily always see the linear projection of every single possibility, but they are willing to allow for what needs to come up to serve the greatest good. Now, this in no way, shape or form excuses the idea that other individuals are perpetrating the damage, for it is their duty also to learn that they do not have to do this if they don’t want to. But in the point of view of the incarnated whale and the Higher Soul, the Oversoul that it is, this is only a temporary manifestation anyway.

Q: And is the higher aspect of the Oversoul aware of what’s happening?

B: Of course.

Q: And it doesn’t telepathically communicate it to the whale?

B: Not for the lesson that needs to be learned...or sometimes it does and the whale personality, being a collective anyway, is so synchronistically aligned with the Oversoul’s understanding that it recognizes the greater good that is served by the allowance of the event, and it is perfectly in accord with the happenstance, if it knows it will serve some purpose. You follow along?

Q: Yes, I do.
Whale Songs and Solar Rays

Q: I wanted to ask you about the whales.
B: Yes.
Q: When they’re doing their whale song, are they doing it for the other whales?
B: Yes, many times.
Q: And if and when they’re doing it to us – or our consciousness – what is their method to us?
B: Whatever you feel it to be, however it sweeps you up; however you wish to discover the totality that you are. For again, recognize, by your analogy, a whale is a physicalized embodiment of a dolphin oversoul, many dolphins are a whale, in a sense.

It is as if you had a physical being to represent your oversoul at the same time that all of its fragments existed as well. It is simply that in your land environment this will not necessarily need any other symbol, other than your own physical body. In the water environment, where there is more expansiveness, they have been able to create a physical reflection and interpretation of their own higher consciousness, to be embodied in the form you call a whale.

So it puts you in touch reflectively with the fact that you, while in that energy – and anytime you wish to create that energy for yourself – are in the vibratory frequency of, and as, your own higher consciousness, you are experiencing the scope of your power, the scope, the distance of your express-ability, as rapidly as that song travels through the water to all the ears through which it travels.

You also exist in an ethero-magnetic medium, through which your thoughts are always traversing and always singing to all the other minds upon your world. Sing your own song, if you feel so moved by the song of that whale, and you will be expressing the harmonic vibration of your own higher self, and you will be that expression. That is what it is a reflection of. It is like being in the presence of a reflection of you as your total higher self. So sing the song you are moved to sing. Does that assist you?

Q: I just want to clarify it; so it’s more like their message is in their symbolic form, that they’re there, than, actually, a message like the dolphins have for us?
B: From time to time there may be a specific message. But, generally speaking, the oversoul will communicate more in generalities – in feeling, in emotion, in mood, in tone, in quality, in light, in love.

Q: Okay. I have a question: I’m reading a book called, I Remember Lemuria, and it’s an older book. The main character is Muton, Meon or Mion. And they were talking about Atlantis and – not a lot of Lemuria, but they were talking about the sun’s rays’ effects on people, and that’s why they didn’t grow as big as they did on dark planets. Are we talking about the same sun, and does it have the same effect on us?
B: In a sense, to some degree, you will recognize that certain vibrations you have created yourselves to be allow you to experience certain vibrations from your central star that has actually removed enzymes and acids from your system. And that has, not only in many ways in the past, stunted some of the physiological growth you are capable of, but also reduced your physical longevity.
B: Now you are regaining that again, because you are becoming a vibration that automatically screens out the idea of what you might term the harmful rays, and allows you the benefit of the light in other ways. So you are, as you have been observing in generations, not only growing taller, but also living longer – as you used to long ago.

Q: Okay. And he said that he made a lot of tablets – not tablets, but something on metal that he put all over the place. And at the time the book was printed, they said that none had been found yet. I was wondering if there were any found yet, or in the near future?

B: Some have been sensed; some have been understood. None have been on earth directly. Not yet. There are still changes, timing, encounters, that must come to pass before you will be able to decipher, with your own senses, where these tablets lie.

When you can find them that is when you will be able to read them – because you will only be able to read them with your heart. There will be nothing for you to be able to translate physiologically, linguistically.

Q: Okay. Thank you.

B: Thank you very much! Sharing!
Whales as Dolphin Oversoul

Q: If the dolphins teach us play and unconditional love…
B: Yes.
Q: the whales are bigger, is it just like more of the same? I have a hard time relating to the whales; they seem so big.
B: All right. It is because they more represent – while, of course, still representing the idea of unconditional love – they represent it more in the format of conviction. Understand? Conviction.
Q: So, it’s just like a personal conviction?
B: In other words, they are an absolute statement; you can’t ignore them. They cannot hide; they are absolute conviction. They are the higher… the embodiment of the Oversoul of many dolphins. That is a whale.

There are many variations that represent many different ideas of conviction. But basically that is their basic symbology: conviction.

Q: So they’re playfully convicted ones, too.
B: In a sense, yes. But they can be more serene in certain ways, because they also represent the idea of attached detachment. They simply know; and that’s it. They just know. All right. Thank you very much. Sharing!

Whales as Dolphin Oversoul
Whales As Symbols Of Conviction

Q: If the Dolphins teach us to play and express unconditional love…
B: Yes.
Q: …and the whales are bigger, is it just like more of the same?

Q: So in other words, they are an absolute statement; you can’t ignore them.
B: All right. It is because they represent more – while of course still representing the idea of unconditional love – they represent it more in the format of conviction. Understand? Conviction.
Q: There are many variations that represent many different ideas of conviction. But basically that is their basic symbology: conviction.
B: They cannot hide, they are absolute conviction. They are the higher, the embodiment of the oversoul of many dolphins. That is a whale.

What happened to Adolf Hitler?

Q: If a mother came to you – and this has happened and was reported on television – and lets say a small child was sexually molested, tortured and murdered. What would you say to that mother?

B: First, recognize that in any situation similar to what you are describing, there can be as many reasons for "why" that is happening as there are individuals involved in those interactions. There may be general, fundamental reasons as to why those things occur; but the specifics of why that particular endeavor occurred will have very much to do with who those individuals are. Often, those individuals will be playing out something from another life and may actually be, literally, reversing roles, "Now see how it feels?" the other one may be saying. Again, that doesn’t excuse that action because no one has to act in that manner. All karma can be balanced in a positive way. It is simply that your society has not completely woken up to this fact yet and so in your "nightmares" you keep inflicting these ideas upon each other in negative ways.

But also it has to do many times with the parents of the individual. For when a being is deciding to be born, recognize that it is not a "child" making that decision. When that being projects itself into the idea of the body of a physical child it may also come "into reality" to reflect fears that the parents have within themselves. So the child may say, "I know this is going to be tough for you, but I will play out a scenario to show you the fears you have within yourself about your own safety, about your own integrity, about your place in the world. And I will show you, by allowing my body to die through this particular act, that you live in a kind of world that you no longer prefer and that you can do something about it." Many times individuals do not do something in your world until they are witness to what you call a reprehensible act of conduct." And therefore, many individuals will actually choose to be born to get those individuals off their you-know-what to do something about "why" your society does those things to begin with. You follow along so far?

Q: Yes.

B: There are many reasons. But again, the soul is eternal, it is infinite. Not that those things "have" to happen and in no way do we condone them. But in the final analysis the soul is not ultimately affected by any act, one way or another. There is a strength and a power to all of you. Many of you can recognize that sometimes you will actually choose those endeavors, those particular types of interactions, because you know you are eternal; because you know you have the strength to go through it and because many times you are doing it out of love for someone else, to get them to open their eyes to something that is going on. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do.

B: Again, you have the opportunity to understand all of these ideas if you will but approach all of your questions from the point of view that you are the creator of your reality and that you are an eternal being. You can understand almost everything if you take that approach. Everything does have a reason. The Universe is not "pointless" nor is it extraneous; there are no "pointless creations." The Infinite Creation does not create it to be so. Therefore, trust that the things, which do occur in your reality, and the things you are witness to do have a point, do have a reason. If you approach it from that attitude and from that trust you will be able to glean the reasons for why something has occurred. Trust it and it will come to life.

What you put out...

Now, because of the timing that has occurred in the acceleration of your individual and collective transformation, a change has occurred, a shift, a very specific one which will aid and assist in a very unexpected way the acceleration of your world through this transformational threshold of the 90’s decade. A question asked many times before was, "What happened to Adolf Hitler?"

We now find that a choice has been made by this entity. But let us backtrack and share with you our perception of the history of the nonphysical experiences of this entity after its physical existence as the being you knew as Adolf Hitler.

Remember that we have discussed many times that when you physically die one of the first things you experience is what is called a "life review." And in that life review you are given the chance, you are given the opportunity, you are allowed the experience automatically, of actually feeling – literally feeling – everything, every consequence of every act you have ever done in your life.

The actions taken by that individual in your physical reality, as the reflection of such a high degree of negativity, and the consequential experience of feeling the consequence of every single act that individual was responsible for, whether committed actually by that individual or by individuals under his command, was felt by the entity when it became nonphysical.

The bombardment of the totality of the collective negativity that was felt in the life review of that entity was so overwhelming that it placed that spirit, that consciousness, in what could be called a "state of shock" and hibernation. To allow that being to go into the very deepest center of the self, to re-calibrate and reassess and heal for itself all of the pain, all of the suffering, all of the sorrow, all the negativity, all of the choices and all of the consequences that were attached energetically to that particular entity.

Throwing that entity into that state of hibernation and recuperation has taken many years so there could be re-evaluations and assessments and reparations and atonements in that sense, balances created within that entity’s consciousness, within that entity’s energy, over the course of the years that have passed since that entity became nonphysical.

But now that entity has emerged from that hibernation, that state of reparation, of repairing, of realignment, and a choice has been made. Sometime during the decade of your 1990’s that entity will choose to be born as many different entities, not just one. That entity will fragment itself into several different beings, several different children upon your Earth. All of these children, now that this entity has gained the strength to do so, will experience lives of extreme hardship, starvation, disease, abuse – these children will experience many different things over the course of the few years they will exist in physical reality. They will all die, except for one. One will live to the age of seven and in the year 2000 this child will be seven years old. At that time it will be decided whether or not this child will continue to live as a physical being, or will choose to do what needs to be done as a non-physical guide.
This child, this being at the age of seven, will pull unto itself the total combined experiences of all the other children the soul has been and will draw unto itself the collective experiences of all of that understanding of limitation, understanding of suffering, understanding of negativity. And all those experiences it has as those suffering children will be drawn unto itself as a child of seven. In that moment it will decide whether it wishes to continue to absorb all of those experiences and continue as a physical being, transforming itself into a child of light, or whether it wishes to simply become a guide of light, non-physically. The child will make the decision in your year 2000.

There is, in a sense, a little bit, a very little bit more chance that the child will remain physical and that this child will become in your new century one of the greatest helpers and healers of human kind; having re-balanced, re-aligned, re-synchronized itself completely and gone completely toward the positive end of the spectrum as a reflection of the changes you have all made, of the transformations you have all made that would now allow it to reclaim its own Godhood to remember its connection to the Infinite and to no longer need to express or reflect to society lack of empowerment, suffering, negativity or any of these ideas that you will now leave behind in your past.

We thank you for having accelerated in your transformations sufficiently to have created the opportunity to have created the ability for this entity to now be able to choose this path of reintroducing itself into your physiological society in this way. By experiencing itself as this multitude of children and experiencing the ideas to some degree of the suffering that it has caused in its past life, to atone itself and to realign itself, to blend itself, to re-integrate itself back into this one child in the year 2000.

We thank you for having created the opportunity to re-integrate this reflection of your negativity into your society, to open your hearts and your unconditional love, to allow yourself, and allow this child to allow you to accelerate at a greatly accelerated rate from your year of 2000 onward with the help of beings like yourselves, like this child, like your guides, like all the entities who desire for you that you create a world of joy, a world of peace, a world of excitement. A world where you reflect to yourselves the All That Is that you are.
What the World Can Be

Q: Since I was a child, I’ve had these dreams of fleets of UFOs. And when I was ten, when I lived in Canada, I saw one. I was by myself and I just looked up at it and it stopped for a few minutes, then it left.

B: Yes.

Q: And ever since then I’ve had these dreams.

B: Yes?

Q: I picture vehicles on the Earth using magnetic powers, from above, on these parallel energy lines. Not using any form of energy that we’re using now.

B: Yes, yes, yes. Yes, yes, yes!

Q: And I see all this, and I’m...

B: This is very, very, very imminent in your future. Many of your scientists, so to speak, and many other individuals who are not necessarily labeled as scientists, are beginning to explore and understand that your world does provide you with an unlimited wealth of electromagnetic energy that you can utilize in many different ways. To replace some of the systems you are using now... for your propulsion and whatever needs to be.

That is the whole point of the transformation. Not to run away – yes, we understand that when many of you go through that shift, and you finally know what your connection is, all of a sudden you feel, “I don’t belong here,” but yes, you do. You chose to be where you are.

The idea is to finally recognize that what you are finally perceiving is that you have now tapped into what your world can be. You are tapping into what experiences you have had in other worlds and you can use that recognition to create your Earth to be what you prefer it to be. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: So use it that way. You do not have to fear feeling foolish. You will do a great deal of service in allowing other individuals to know it is ALL RIGHT to feel however they are feeling, because they can use that in a positive way. They can absorb it and incorporate it into whatever they choose to define themselves to be.

You are but the definitions you give to yourselves. THAT IS IT. Get in touch with those true definitions, and you can define yourself in any way, shape, or form, you want to. Then once you have created definitions you prefer, ACT like it, and do not assume those definitions will not change; change is the only constant in creation. But know that they will change in ways that befit a grander definition, and a grander one, and a grander one, in a positive, accelerative, expansive, ecstatic, never-ending, NEVER-ENDING exploration of creation. You understand?

Q: Yes. Thank you very much!

B: Oh, I had nothing to do with it. (Audience Laughter) You are welcome. Thank you.
What’s Up
From "Surrender"
4-10-98
Thousand Oaks, CA
Q: What’s up, Bashar?
B: Many things are up, many things are down, many things are sideways, front and back. How are you?
Q: Great.
B: All right, thank you.
Q: The surrender thing has been the biggest thing in the last 6 months.
B: Yes, all right, very good.
Q: Especially in the last week, my mantra has been surrender, surrender, surrender.
B: Yes, this will accelerate and it will need to accelerate for many of you; for again, as we have been saying for quite some time, there isn’t much time left in terms of the idea of really going into the flow and into the stream of the realities you say you prefer. This, in many ways, is one of the last pieces of the tools that are required. This concept of surrender that we have saved, in a sense, until last is, as we have said, the most important. So, many of you will find that to be the most important thing, the most important focus now in your understanding of personal transformation and growth. Yes, continue.
Q: Like all the other tools, led us back to where it was even perceived as tools, the only true tools.
B: Yes, we had to build, well, now, not that they are not all true, but we had to build a ladder for you that was composed as rungs that would go from where you are familiar to where you are unfamiliar and, thus, then you can make the transition in a familiar way, step by step, rung by rung. Rather than simply have started off fifteen years ago by saying, "All right, let’s get right to the end, surrender," none of you would have understood what that meant. But in giving you the pieces and the other tools, now, some of you have a better idea, a better understanding of what it means to surrender. Because you can understand, finally, that as powerful as many of the other tools can be, this is the MOST powerful, because it is the simplest. And now you are finally, many of you, finally, getting to the point where you are actually willing to let it be all right to be that easy. Part of the reason we had to give you many other tools was actually to, finally, let you, over time, decide that you didn’t need so many tools. You understand? This is the paradox of the process. And so....
Q: In my investigation.
B: Yes.
Q: Into surrender.
B: Yes.
Q: I found, and this is my phenomenal experience, within my body-mind stream is that....
B: Yes.
Q: the only thing that keeps God separate from God, in the illusion or in the physical reality stream, is actually bringing some sense of separation or some sense of darkness or some sense of....
B: Yes.
Q: What ever THAT is?
B: Yes, and not that that is not a valid experience, of course.
Q: Exactly.
B: All right.
Q: And my concern, well concern.... maybe this is a mind stream fear coming up, but it feels like...that the ultimate surrender to give THAT up, to give that, that...there’s that one grain of sand that caused the pearl to be created.
B: Yes.
Q: To give that final thing up means that I would wake up, back to the I Am, back to the One and then, of course, I would be alone again, and then would have to come up with something else to get the phenomena of creation to start again.
B: Well, how fascinating. What an interesting idea and perspective you have. What you are experiencing is still mostly a personality perspective, even though you are discussing ideas of the One and the I Am. You are still putting a personality spin on it and that’s why it feels, in a sense, like something to fear.
Q: Well, also because my perspective is from the outside of the I Am and not from the inside. Once you’re inside, of course, there’s nothing to fear because you’re everything, you’re THAT.
B: All right.
Q: And, I mean, that’s my perception, you can correct me freely....
B: There’s nothing to correct, but it is up to you to choose which perspective your prefer.
Q: Yea, maybe I’m not ready to give up creation, physicality....
B: Oh well, all right, well, that’s your choice but the idea is that you don’t have to give up physicality for the type of surrender that we’re talking about. You will still choose to remain physical. That is simply a different choice.
Q: But how can that be? Because....
B: Because I’m not talking about the idea in those terms, I’m not talking about you simply becoming one with the I Am in that way. We are talking about the fact that even as, even as the part of the whole that you are, you are still a reflection of the whole. And the idea is that you can experience the event of your wholeness, even as a part, when you surrender to the wholeness. You can still experience the wholeness as a part.
Q: I understand, if, if....
B: Yes.
Q: If you’re God.
B: And you are too.
Q: Yes, of course.
B: Yes.
Q: The God, lets say, before there was time and space, just the Isness, there is no....
B: There’s no before, but I understand what you are saying.
Q: Exactly, the Eternal moment.
B: Yes.
Q: The Prime Radiant, before it intersected with itself.
B: So to speak.
Q: Yes.
B: These are all conventions because we are using words.
Q: Exactly.
B: All right.
Q: And words do not describe it, but can describe around it.
B: All right, fair enough.
Q: And you know what? I forget, totally, about what I was going to ask.
Audience: (Laughter)
B: Good, now you are enlightened.
Q: That’s it, I just let it go and leave it....
B: In a sense, yes.
Q: There’s....
B: Ought.
Q: There is just the fragment, the one fragment that I would like to clarify from your perspective.
B: Yes.
Q: If ultimately we give up all of our fear, all of our pain, and all of our unworthiness or whatever, which is all illusion anyway, if we are willing to surrender that, then what’s going to keep us separate from ourselves, as far as the experience goes?
B: Choice, choice, you still have that choice. It is not a given, it is not a forgone conclusion that giving up all your pain and suffering and struggle means that you cannot still choose to experience yourself, in any way, shape or form you so desire, relative to the whole.
Q: But once you learn how to walk, you don’t want to crawl anymore, so all your friends....
B: But what you are understanding, because you’re not there yet, is that there are many forms of walking. Because you are not there yet, because you are not allowing yourself to experience the kind of surrender yet, totally, that we are talking about. You have not yet given yourself the experience to understand that once you do that there are still many forms of experiencing that kind, that level of surrender. It isn’t just one result that happens. There’s still many things that exist, even within that level of surrender. It is still very, very multidimensional and very varied, but it is still of a type of reality. It is more simply the idea of a big step up, but not necessarily all the way because you are surrendering from a particular point of view and that point of view you will not probably choose to give up, the overall point of view. Does this make any sense to you?

Q: Yes.

B: Are you sure?

Q: Yes, I don’t want to take up the forum here for a half hour.

B: Oh well, you’re not and besides which, we are the determiner of the timing, so don’t worry about it. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: What you call God is everyone, and everyone does not experience the same God because everyone is not the same. But everyone who is not the same, makes up the same God. Do you follow that?

Q: Everyone that wakes up, are the same God.

B: Yes, but you are forgetting that it is this AND that, not this or that

Q: You always say that.

B: Yes, and, therefore, when you wake up and understand that it is all one, you understand, simultaneously, that it is also everything, and you experience both, not just one or the other. It’s not an issue of one or the other.

Q: How can you experience both unless you are willing to give up the I AM perspective? You have to, in order to experience the other.

B: But when you give up the I AM, paradoxically, you experience the I Am and everything, that’s the paradox.

Q: So when you experience the I AM, you experience both? Is that what you are saying?

B: Yes.

Q: How can that be? How can that....

B: You will find out. When you have a coin in your hand, do you not experience both sides, do you not experience both the heads and the tails?

Q: I’m perceiving the coin and, from the coin’s perspective, there’s not both.

B: Never mind, the coin is your perspective, because you’re creating the coin. Do not get lost in your semantics. When you have a coin, do you not have both heads and tails? Otherwise, if you didn’t, you wouldn’t have a coin, would you?
Q: No.
B: Well, then, why is it so mysterious that you can experience both?
Q: You describing a third density example....
B: Don’t put semantics on it, it is the same concept.
Q: I’ll have faith and trust it.
B: You don’t have to have faith when you let go, you’ll find out from experience that it’s so.
Q2: Isn’t it a state a knowingness about what you are?
B: Yes.
Q2: That you can feel connected to that all the time.
B: You are that all the time. You don’t feel that connected all the time, you ARE that, and you are this and you are everything that you can think of. But the idea is still that we are talking about a level of you experiencing that you are unlimited possibilities, but from within a certain contextual framework because that which you are choosing to experience, your I Amness is right now. You are coming from an assumption that once you let go of the personality that you’re going to want, in a sense, to not have any recognition of what you are calling separation. That is a falsehood, because as you expand to become more aware of the one and the many, you will want more experience of the separation that is created, as well as, more experience of the oneness and you will be able to experience both.
Q: There’s the fear that I will end up back in the paradigm that I’m in now, though.
B: Well, then you must be choosing that reality, for some reason that you invented. That’s the only thing the fear would be.
Q: Do you know what I saying though?
B: Yes, I do.
Q: I don’t want to fall back asleep again and then....
B: All right, but again, remember, at this stage in your evolution, all of you, there is no concept of falling back. Again the analogy would be like being on one mountain peak and saying that somehow you can fall to the other mountain peak. You can’t do it, you have to choose to go to the other mountain peak. You can’t fall back onto another mountain peak, it’s a different reality, it’s a different point of view, completely and utterly. This notion that you can fall back is something that you are simply holding on to for your own reason. Probably, again, mostly because, as you say, you are afraid. But you have created a circular reality experience then; your fear is generating the idea that you can fall back, the idea that you can fall back is generating the fear. Break the cycle by knowing that you have generated it to begin with and that any other idea that you allow yourself to believe is true, will be just as experientially real as the cycle that you find yourself in right now. Does this make sense to you?
Q: Yes, I will come back at the end if there is some time, and if everybody else has had a chance.
B: All right, you and then you. Number two, do you know who you are?
Q: Yes, I do.
B: All right, number one, good day.
Where do we come from?

In many of these communications, we have heard many of you ask the question, "Where do I come from?" ... meaning yourself ... "What is my origin? Am I connected to this extraterrestrial civilization, that extraterrestrial civilization, or this or that dimension of reality? Please tell me, where do I come from, where do I originate?" Now, we have addressed this idea many times, in a variety of ways for many of you. First of all by usually explaining that since time, in a sense, is really only a product of your linear dimension, that you don’t, thus, really come from any particular origin point at all, except the here and the now – because everything is right here, right now, even though you may not experience it that way. So all of you, as we have said, come from everywhere and nowhere, all at once. Or, in that you feel you are having your Earth experience right now, it could just as easily be said that you come from Earth, since that’s the life you’re living now, that that’s your origin.

But we understand how many of you mean that question, because we understand that many of you, in opening up your exploration of consciousness, are beginning to tap into the reality that you are, in fact, connected to many different dimensions of experience and actually are having simultaneous lives, if you will, in many different civilizations or dimensions of reality. And, as you make these connections, you may feel that because of the kind of energy connection it is, that that place you now become aware of, that life that you may have going on somewhere else, now becomes representative to you of an origin point, because of the way you are trained to think linearly. "I am here now, therefore I must have been there some other time, I must have come from there" ... is the way your minds generally interpret this connection that you now become aware of.

Again, this is just a linear perspective, and the only reason why you were (able?) to recognize a particular civilizational connection that you may in fact concurrently have, is because there might be something, vibrationally, about that civilization that has to do with the kind of life that you are living now, and the kind of things that you need to know, and the kinds of things you need to apply to your day to day reality at present. And so you make this connection for this life, and in drawing a recognition of that connection, assume that that connection represents an origin point – just because you are drawing energy from it in order to establish a certain idea in your present life. But different lives can have different connected feelings, and even though you may have a connection to one civilization in this life, because you feel that that connection is important for you to be aware of now, in another life, what you call a past or future life, you may feel that you have a completely different origin point, because of the kind of connection you have to make for that life, if any connection is necessary at all.

Now, all of this notwithstanding, multidimensional, temporal physics notwithstanding, I would like at this time to address this particular question, "What is my origin, where do I come from?" ... in a completely different way. Because really, foundationally, there is one answer for all of you that is a little bit more precise than the idea of pinning down a concept of origin to a particular civilization or dimension of reality. You all really have the same fundamental origin and that origin is not really a place, so much as it is a state of being. Your fundamental origin is the state, the vibration, the energy you call unconditional love, joy, and ecstasy – that is your origin place. It is not the idea of a specific locale, it is a state of being.

The idea of feeling a connection to a particular locale, extraterrestrial civilization, dimension of experience, may simply be because that dimension in which you are having a concurrent experience, may be, to you, more representative, vibrationally, of your true original state of unconditional love, and allowance, and freedom, and creativity. And so you see it as an origin point because it may be vibrationally closer to that state of being – but that is your origin, the same origin for all of you, the same origin for all of us, and for all beings in Creation. The one infinite here and now that is represented by the unconditional vibration of allowance, of existence itself, that you are beginning to awaken to, are beginning to remember exists as your natural state. And that’s why so many of you are all of a sudden, waking up to that tone, that particular vibration, and looking for a place to pin it. Pin it here and now where you are, because that’s where it belongs, and that’s where it can do you, in a sense, the most good, because this is the life you’re aware of right now.

And we are not saying you cannot be aware of your multidimensional existences and integrate them and bring them all together. And we are not saying it cannot serve to explore in that way, but the idea will always come down to allowing that state, your natural state of open allowance and unconditionality to serve you now, to become the you you want to be now, in this life. Because the life that you are focused on here is the only life, the only time you’re going to experience this you. So, in bringing that state in, you are fulfilling your purpose and your mission in this dimension, just as by doing the same thing in any other dimension allows you to, thus, fulfill the purpose and mission of that reality, of that life, of that you, of that aspect of your totality in whatever dimension that may be.

So, this is the take, this is the angle, as you say, this is the way to use that idea of origination most profoundly in your day to day reality. As you say, bring it down to Earth, ground it and find practical and pragmatic application for allowing yourself to know that it is the essence of your mission to be, as fully as you can be, whatever it is you have chosen to be, right here and right now. However you wish to do it, doesn’t matter, as long as you feel that how you do it is a style and methodology that is representative of that state of being you know is your natural self.
Who Wrote the Shakespearean Plays?

Q: Did Francis Bacon write the Shakespearean Plays?
B: No, but there is a connection in the Oversoul to both of those individuals.
Q: Was Shakespeare with him?
B: Yes. But also it was a channeling of the collective Oversoul that did express itself as many other individuals, including the idea you understand as Francis Bacon.
Q: He didn’t directly write them then?
B: Well, physiologically he was the instrument, but it was in that sense a channeling. You understand?
Q: Shakespeare or Francis Bacon?
B: Shakespeare was the instrument. Francis Bacon was a part of the Oversoul collective that added to the knowledge bank that allowed the Shakespeare aspect to express that particular format of the Oversoul. Whereas, of course, the Shakespeare aspect added to the general collective knowledge bank that allowed the Francis Bacon aspect to express what the Bacon aspect expressed in your reality. They were interconnected, interrelated. They are one being as an Oversoul, with many different fingers in your reality.
Q: Are they still strongly connected and incarnated in the present day contemporary society?
B: Yes.
Q: Thank you.
Will you share with us the concept of the global brain as it will affect the planet earth in the next one, two or three years?

You are already a global brain; how does it affect your planet now?

Q: It seems to be in amounts of chaos in certain areas...

B: That is simply because you do not have the neuronic circuits of the pathways of the global brain all proceeding in the linear direction in the same way.

Q: Would you speak more on that for the next few years – what that might be, or what it might take?

B: Understand this: you have already passed over the threshold, or what we would call the flashover point, in that way, to allow the majority of your society to create harmonious accord. Even though every single person will still be expressing themselves – him or herself – as an individual, you will still be able simultaneously to express a harmonious accord in the general direction of how your energy is applied.

And as soon as you arrive at the point you call 2011 to 2013, that flashover point will kick in – in full force! – and you will be able to see a spontaneous explosion of synchronicity around the globe that will allow you to know you can get anything done, anytime, anywhere. You follow me?

You will know you are in full communication, in whatever way you need to be, with every other individual on the planet. And we do not just mean human. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I do follow you...

B: Then you will begin to function as a global brain, and what that means is the body of the earth, in that sense, will be able to move in unison, and its cells will not be in conflict; it will be self-supportive. It will crystallize, and within the ethereal-magnetic sea that will crystallize – your consciousness being embedded in that sea – then every ripple that any individual creates in that sea will be felt by every other individual and be responded to accordingly.

Q: Yes I follow you. The specific event that we had appropriately 9 of our earth days ago – are you familiar with the world meditation for peace?

B: Yes. It had a very large impact in creating a new gate, the opening of a doorway through which you have all now passed. And again one of the results of having passed through that doorway will be to see more and more synchronicity occurring in your life; more and more coincidence. Right place, right time, right people, right situation exactly when and where you need it.

Q: Approximately how many of us were involved – on this planet – in that meditation?

B: Including the idea of even a flicker of a thought regarding the meditation – which also has its effect – we perceive that it is in the neighborhood – and this, of course, can be our own point of view and how we perceive your energy – but from our point of view, it is perceived to be approximately 710 million.

Mmmm... that’s great! Thank you. That includes all of the flickers as well. Does that include cetaceans as well...
B: No.

Q2: I remember us discussing the idea of many different dimensions or levels of experience. I guess the idea seems to be that normally an individual would proceed from third to fourth to fifth to sixth to seventh, and so on.

B: That's how you think of it linearly from the third density point of view, yes.

Q: Is it possible to simply pass from third dimension to the twelfth without necessarily…?

B: In a sense, to some degree, yes. Because you already exist on every level there is to exist upon simultaneously. On the twelfth level you know this; on the third you may not.

But the idea is: is that on the third you can become whatever representation of that connection you need to be. You follow me?

Q: Somewhat.

B: You are not sure.

Q: I guess not.

B: All right. Allow me to ask you a question, if I may?

Q: Yes.

B: In your terms of linear thinking, in the way you have put the question, what would be your reason for going directly from third to twelfth, without experiencing all of the ones in between?

Q: Well (- - - —?) tithe is that my experience with the third dimension hasn’t been particularly enjoyable.

B: Then you will probably remain in the third dimension until you realize that it can be. The idea is that when you invalidate an experience you obviously chose to have, then you are not getting out of it what you can get out of it. And it will usually allow you to remain in that experience until you understand the reason for why you chose to be in it to begin with. The quickest way to get to the twelfth level is to realize that you can – absolutely and in every way, shape or form – enjoy the third. Does this make any sense to you?

it makes sense, arid urn – But you don’t believe it can be done?

Q: Well, I haven’t reached the point yet where I find limitations particularly enjoyable.

B: All right. But understand there are many different kinds of limitations. It is a form of limitation just to be focused in a specific way. Even in what you would call twelfth density there is still the idea of a particular awareness or focus that allows you to conceive of the fact that you are in twelfth density. That is still a type of limitation. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

Limitation, in and of itself, does not have to be inherently negative. You are simply buying into the belief system, or one of the belief systems in your third density reality, that all limitation is inherently negative – or that there can be situations that are inherently negative. But there aren’t.
No situation has any built in meaning. Whatever meaning you give to a situation is what you have been taught to give to that situation; it’s what you have been taught to believe that situation means. But no situation has built in meaning; no situation means anything. The meaning you give to a neutral situation – a neutral set of circumstances, a neutral set of props – the meaning you give to that situation utterly determines the effect you get out of it.

So if you do not find third density pleasant, then it is because you have been taught to believe that it is not. Only that belief – ONLY that belief!! – creates third density to be effectually unpleasant. Only that belief.

There is nothing built into physical reality that says physical reality has to be unpleasant. Just because it is a limitation in a particular way does not mean that you cannot soar with exuberance in third density reality.

And again paradoxically, since you obviously have chosen to be in third density reality, it is our suggestion that when you allow yourself to realize that you can become absolutely ecstatic in third density, that’s when you will have cognition of the fact that you already exist on all the other levels already.

And simply allowing yourself to know that will be the simple matter of shifting your perspective, rather than feeling that you have to climb your way out of some thick dark mire into which you have fallen. It is all point of view.

The idea – and perhaps this will be of assistance to you, if you are willing to absorb it directly into your heart. Pay close attention to the following definition.

Your idea – and we are speaking in general as well – of going from level to level to level, plane to plane to plane: that idea, that process, is simply the process of recognizing that you actually are the dimension itself that you previously thought you existed in.

So if you find yourself thinking that you exist in third density, think again. You ARE third density; you ARE the physical universe; the physical universe IS you.

When you know you are all that you experience the physical universe to be – you are in control of what it is you do experience the physical universe to be – then it will be heaven on earth, twelfth density on earth, in earth terms.

All levels align at a particular way of thinking, in a particular mode of thought. All levels align. All you have to do is realize that going from level to level to level is the recognition that you already exist as that level, and thinking of yourself in that point of view. When you allow yourself to operate as the collective totality that you are, then no one level will seem to be overwhelming – because you will be drawing on the totality of all that you are.

You are not cut off from yourself in twelfth density; you are always able to draw from all of the power, all of the existence, the totality of the spirit and the soul that you are. Then no one level will seem to be overwhelming, because any one level will seem to be a small fraction of the total being, the total creator that you are. You follow me?
Q: Mhmm.

B: And when you function in that way, that of enjoying where you are when you are there, living in the moment, living totally in the present is paradoxically exactly the way to allow for the future and all the levels to accelerate most quickly into your present experience. For you do not go anywhere; all happens within you. You bring those experiences to you – and even that you are not literally doing. Nothing in the universe truly literally actually moves or goes anywhere; it is all perspective and point of view – all of it.

Do remember this – and this also may assist you greatly when you allow it to sink into whatever portion of you it needs to sink into. And do not think you are not getting this; you are getting it on whatever level you need to. Relax within yourself.

But do remember this: any of the ideas of what many people in your civilization believe to be entrapment: “I’m stuck here; I’m stuck there,” is because you have been taught to believe that consciousness exists in the body.

It doesn’t. The body exists within your consciousness. There is a vast difference in the realization of those two definitions. Ponder that while you all enjoy a short break.

All right. Ponder that for a moment, then, if you will: that consciousness does not exist in your body; but that your body exists within the consciousness that you are.

The idea, therefore, is very, very unlimiting – very expansive. For you can recognize that what you colloquially think of as your body is but one focal point within the combined idea of the consciousness that you are – out of which is created all the physical reality you experience.

In this way, you can allow yourself to know you have much more mobility, in that sense, because you can always allow yourself to diversify your focus, disperse your point of view, broaden and expand the way you look at yourself; the way you look through yourself, the way you look through the idea of yourself that is expressed in body terms.

The body is immersed in the collective consciousness that you are. The body functions much like an anchor point for the prism that allows the white light of your consciousness to channel through, to funnel through that prism, and become the specialized spectrum of light – the differentiated spectrum of light – that creates the differences you see in physical reality. The prism is formed, as many three-sided things are, from the three ideas you call belief, emotion and thought.

Belief, emotion and thought form the ego structure that allows you to maintain in physical reality, to function as a physicalized form of your consciousness – or a physicalized representation of your consciousness.
Your personality as a physical being – your persona – is not literally who or what you are directly, nor totally, in that sense. It is, in a sense, an artificial construct; it is a representative of a particular idea that your consciousness is being, as an expression of physical reality.

So as that prism, as that cornerstone that you create your persona to be, you allow the white light, the homogenous oneness of your consciousness, to become focused into and through that prism, and display itself as the spectrum of differences that you perceive physical reality to be. It is simply one way of expressing yourself. And you do it because it is one way you can express yourself – because it is one of the ways that you can express yourself in creation, as an aspect of creation.

Remember this: each and every being in creation is simply all the different ways that Infinite Creation has of expressing itself as the creation that it is. But everything that takes place, takes place within the idea of the consciousness that you are.

Out of the consciousness that you are is created all experiences, so that any fragment that you create yourself to be may interact with, or interact as, to put it more literally. Any experience you are having is not happening to you, it is you happening as that experience. It is you interacting as the event of the experience. It is your consciousness intersecting the idea, recognizing itself, knowing itself as that particular event, or that particular experience.

You cause an intersection to take place between the self and the ability to reflect the self to the self. Self... awareness, in that way, is what creates all the experiences you have. It is, in and of itself, the ability – Self-awareness is, in and of itself, the ability to create experience in a seemingly – I’ll say seemingly – objectified manner. For there is no true objectivity; everything is a subjective experience. Objectivity is a tool; it is an attitude you can use to allow yourself to bring clear insight to many of the meanings of the experiences that you are, subjectively.

By the way, allow us to interject at this time that what many of you refer to – not that we care whether you use this or not – but what many of you refer to in any given situation as skepticism is usually thought in your society, to be a display of objectivity. Skepticism is not objectivism; skepticism is an already inherent belief and bias in a particular direction.

Contrary to what many of you think, skepticism is not what you typically call a true scientific trait. Objectivity is. Skepticism is a bias, and therefore it is an emotional trait, in that sense, and not truly what you would call scientific, even in your own terms.

However, recognize that all points of view are valid, since they allow the individual to determine the experience that they are being. And therefore allowing them to determine what experience they would prefer to be, if they find that they are creating themselves to be an experience they don’t prefer. Or what experience they would reinforce if they find they are being an experience they do prefer.

But remember it can – as it did for us in our civilization – make a profound difference, in your recognition of your ability to create the reality you desire, if you will remember that consciousness does not exist in the body; the body exists in the consciousness that you are. And everything is malleable, and the things that seem solid are the things you believe are solid.

And only the belief makes them solid. Only the belief. Everything is energy; everything is malleable; everything is you – expressing the unique facet that you are of Infinite Creation.

Q: Does that mean that if I believed that this concrete were liquid, that I could slip down through it as if it were a...

B: Yes. And you will find that there are individuals upon your planet who are beginning to exhibit such traits. For example, what you call levitation; what you call bilocation; what you call teleportation. You follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: All of these are examples that you truly are the reality you create. And that when you rearrange the definitions, then the reality will also rearrange itself – instantly. It is only because you have been taught, and only because it has been truly ingrained within your thought structure that physical reality – as you have been taught to believe reality is – is the only way reality can be, that you very often do bang into a wall when you walk towards it. Because you have been taught to believe... because you have been taught to believe you need to believe that it is solid. It has served you to believe so in the past. But now that you are beginning to awaken to the fact that physical reality is only what you make it, now you can play around a little bit more freely with it – because you now know you are in control of it. You follow me?

Q: Yes. You made me think of an example I heard about at Stanford Research.

B: All right.

Q: They were playing with psychogenetic experiences of mind over matter. And they found that when they set up an experience that people were very familiar with – for instance, levitating a table in front of them – they had a great deal of difficulty. But something they knew only a little bit about, like moving a laser beam inside of a vacuum, they had a great deal more success.

B: Yes, because there is no expectation in the way. Quote/unquote: Everybody knows you can’t raise a table by levitation. But almost no one in your society knows what is possible or not possible with a laser beam. You follow me?

Q2: Yes. What would be a good way to re-sculpture one’s belief systems?

B: By getting in touch with what it is to begin with, and then redefining.

Q: Okay, so if you wanted to practice levitation, you would just...
B: One very appropriate way would be that if you do know – as we have discussed – an individual who already does it, go and be in that environment and mimic what they do. Because you can identify with them and create the same pattern that they create in their life, in your life. And then you will act the same way and have the same results. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, I do. If such an individual isn’t immediately available, what would be the next best way to manliest...

B: You can attract one to yourself, if you feel you need it. And you can always use your imagination and attract to yourself whatever information you need to allow you to become such an individual.

We would recommend that a great deal of breathing in silent centering – breathing in deep and rhythmic patterns – will infuse your body with a type of crystalline energy that will allow you to arrive at the center point of balance, from which point anything is possible.

Q: I understand, but...

B: You will then, quote/unquote, lose your fix, on the reality you think of all the time and begin to accept more postulates from other realities. You follow me?

Q: Yes, I really do. Thank you very much.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Great, fine, perfect...

B: We will begin this evening of your time with the idea of your crystalline resonance; crystalline vibrational frequency. As we have said before: each and every one of you, in a sense, is your own master crystal. Each of you is a harmonic frequency, signature vibration. Each and every one of you is a latticework, a matrix of energy, at the heart of which, in a sense, is a SPARK of the Primal Energy, the fundamental energy of creation.

That SPARK, in a sense, is your fragment, your facet, your portion of the recognition of the central doorway which leads to all other dimensionalities; which allows each and every one of you collectively to function as a single holographic consciousness, and at the same time to function as an individual identity.

Each and every one of you collectively thus forms, in this way, a single facet of a multidimensional, crystalline latticework, crystalline matrix, that, in and of itself, when combined may form a portion of another level and another level beyond that, beyond that, and on and on, into what you call infinity. Each and every one of you, however, contains, within the structure of the crystalline pattern, the crystal matrix that each and every one of you are individually, the entire, as you say, blueprint, the entire pattern, the entire template for all of the universes, the multiverse in that way.

Each and every one of you is a microcosmic representation of what you call the macrocosmic crystalline structure of physical reality as it takes its form from what we refer to as the primary fundamental template of universal consciousness. Consciousness itself is the template upon which physical reality is structured, in this way.

Thus, recognize that each and every one of you are a complete, let us say, genetic code for the entire universe, a complete template for the entire universe. And that is why, when you simply allow yourselves to recognize that you can be in touch with this primal crystalline frequency within each and every one of you, you therefore are able to recognize that you have at your immediate accessibility all of the information, all of the answers, that you need to understand yourself in this life you have created yourself to live.

And that it is all in the immediate present for you, in your immediate here and now reality. And thus, that is why you do not have to go reaching into what you imagine to be the distant future to extract information with great strife and great struggle; nor do you have to go delving into the dim, dark past, in this way, to dredge up from these bottomless pits some scant information that you are struggling to receive to understand yourself in the present.

Recognize that the only reason you can be in touch at all with the ideas of your so-called probable futures, and the ideas of any past you have created, is because both the future and the past exist with you NOW – in the primal energy crystalline matrix of YOUR reality existence. Thus, you are not really journeying anywhere; everything you need is right at hand, so to speak, right within you, within the here and now. All the future, all the alternative presents, and all of the pasts are right with you now. Thus, allow yourselves to recognize one more time, fundamentally, that your ability to be cognizant of the primary signature vibration that you are, that represents your crystalline matrix, is what we have described and discussed with you to be the vibratory experience you call excitement. Excitement is your physiological translation of the primal energy that represents the path, in other words, the crystalline matrix in physical reality that you chose to be.

That is why you can always know and always trust that, if you are willing to follow, at any given moment, what it is in that moment that excites you, then you will always be automatically supported. For in following your excitement, you will be consciously trusting that you are on, directly on, and in synchronous harmony with, the path you chose to be in this life. And thus, you will allow, through synchronicity, all of the physical reality you project from the center of your being to be a reflection of the support that you require in exactly the right place and the right time, in order to allow you to continue to function as the idea you know you are being, by the simple act of acting upon what it is that does in fact excite you. You follow me?

AUD: Yes.

The body of the humanoid species All right I’ll say did you enjoy your break?

Audience: Yes!

B: All right . . .

Q: Did you?

B: Recognize that for us or for me specially all I did was blink out and back in. For us time is not exactly the same as it is for you. I am simply continuing what appears to be for me a split second after I stop. You have had an interval of time in between. But this is simply par for the course when you can be more flexible with the concept of time and space. I am now continuing, knowing that the continuation must simply by definition arrive at the appropriate timing on your planet. Even though for me I am just going on. You understand?

Audience: Yes, yes.

B: Now then let go back a little bit to the chart where you see the concept of the Chakra alignment, as you will notice that the drawing shows the extension of the hand out to the side 90 degrees to the alignment to the alignment of the Chakra system. Well many, many different kinds of thing happen with electromagnetic energy when you have an energy moving 90 degrees to the original field. New kinds of vectors and fields are created, new kinds of effects are generated when you have fields crossing each other in this manner.

So what you can see first of all through the illustrations is that the body of the humanoid species has been design in such a manner that it’s appendage for manipulation called the hand is the portion of the body that has the ability to extend through all the other Chakras systems of the body. It can reach down and can reach up and align, up and down, to the foundation of the source and pass through all the other energy points of the body. There is a reason for this. The idea is again as we have said, that when you intersect one energy field with another energy field in that way you cause different effects. For the purpose of aligning intention, for the purpose of directing different kinds of energy, different frequencies and qualities and flavors of the one energy passing through you into discrete differentiated kinds of energy for different tasks. The hand is the instrument of choice for this in the humanoid form. It is also representative of the five-fold extension of the humanoid body of the sense of the head, two arms, legs coming out of the torso. Five being the number of humanoid form in that sense. Also there is the polarity existed I the right and left hand. What you call positive and the negative. The assertive and receptive, the outflow, the inflow and when you bring these polarities together you complete the circuit of the alignment and the flow out this way and truly go into a centered and balanced state, where you can access the totality when you blend the polarities within, especially within the area of, again, your heart Chakra. No accident that the hand, the line generally speaking, over the heart in that general area. This is way this is the stance that the pose called prayer. You understand? The hands come together in WORKSHOP: PART I – "BODILY ALIGNMENT"

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this day of your time, as you create time to exist?
Q: (Various answers)
B: Welcome. We extend to you, first of all, our deepest appreciation for your willingness to co-create with us this day of your time, whatever day that may be, does not matter, this interaction, this expansion, this acceleration; this realization of your own self-empowerment. And we extend our appreciation in allowing us to reflect back to you that each and every one of you, individually and collectively, are quite capable, by definition, simply because you exist, of creating the reality you desire... the reality you prefer.

First and foremost, you are always creating the reality you believe, or have been taught to believe most strongly is the reality that is the most likely reality you are capable of imagining can occur in your lives. You are always creating your reality.

This workshop, as you call it, is not about the idea of teaching you, in a sense, to do something you are not already doing. You already have absolutely perfect commandment over the creation of your reality, because each and every one of you are gates, channels, valves, through which the energy of Infinite Creation flows to manifest as the idea you know to be physical reality, and the experiences contained therein. But as the society you have created yourselves to be, for many tens of thousands of your years, you have bred out of yourselves the realization that you are creating your reality, so that much of the creation of your physical reality is unconscious, as you use that term.

The idea of our interactions with you, and the interactions of all levels of consciousness with you at this time, is to awaken you to what you are already doing. So that when you become consciously aware of the fact that you are already creating your reality, you can then know that you are already in control and, therefore, you can create the reality you prefer to create; rather than creating realities that you do not prefer by allowing your unconscious fears, doubts, and guilts to attract those realities for you.

Now is the time and the timing for each and every one of you to wake up into the realization that physical reality is simply what you dream it to be, what you imagine it to be; and that, literally speaking, physical reality is a dream. We do not mean by that phrase to invalidate its existence. On the contrary, what we are saying is that while what you call physical reality is an illusion, all reality, all ideas that you call reality, are simply the construct of the perceptions initiated by what you have been taught to believe, at any given moment, is true for you.

The truth is composed of all truths. No one truth is any more real than any other truth. Each truth that you choose to believe in at any given moment still brings with it, automatically, because you are automatic creators... will bring with it a self-perpetuating, self-sustaining system or logic that will make it seem as if the truth you are living at any given moment is, for that moment, the only truth there is. By definition – for you to be able to experience in a focused way, any particular truth at any given moment – by definition, you must exclude 99% of all other methods so that you have the ability to focus on the one particular method that for you, at the moment, works.
When you discover, when you change, when you incorporate new ideas into the being that you are, and your beliefs and emotions and your thoughts change accordingly, and you discover “new truths,” as you say, this does not mean that the old truths are now wrong, and that your new truth is now more right. It simply means you’re different. You are on a different frequency, a different vibrational plane, and you now attract into your life the truth that represents who you are; the truth that works for you now.

Each and every being, each and every truth, each and every path, each and every method, is a different way that the Infinite Creation has of expressing itself, through the creations, all of us, that it is. So all beings are simply all the different ways that All That Is has of expressing itself within the creation that it is; and there is no one way that is better than any other way. If there was only one way, there would only be one person. All of you look around – you are surrounded, infused, and interlinked with all the different ways that creation has of expressing its relationship to itself. You are all reflective mirrors, reflecting for each other in love, light, and unconditional trust and service, all the different aspects of the beings that you are. So that you can see, in the many ways that people express themselves, all the different options of all the ways you might choose to express yourself; to explore, expand, and add to the understanding of yourself as a co-creator.

Now, this day, this so-called day of your time, again, no matter what day it is, it will not be the same day when we finish this interaction. You will not be the same people when we finish this interaction. Now, many of you may hear this phrase, "You will not be the same people" and you will think, "Oh yes, I will have changed;" but many of you may take this phrase very philosophically. "Well, yes, I may not act the same, I may have different ideas, different attitudes, different habits, different behavior patterns, but of course I will still be the same person." No. A person is not literally who or what you are. A person, in a sense, a persona, a personality, is an aspect, an artificial construct, natural in one sense, but it is a projection of an idea, an aspect of the total energy, non-physical, conscious being that you are.

So when you change the idea of what you are, at any given moment, you literally become, literally become, a different person. You may think you look the same. You may think you have many of the same traits that you used to, but you will no longer be the you, you used to be before this interaction. You, the new you, may wish to create a degree of continuity, so that you can still function in the Earth reality game for a while – to allow those around you to relate to you in semi-familiar ways, so you do not have to, in your terms, start from scratch; but you will not be the same person, literally.

You will have redefined yourself and any redefinition, any change in any of the variables of the energy equation you are, changes the whole equation in much the same way that if you have a cube, all sides being the same color, and you change one color on one side. Well, yes, you can say, "But I have only changed one color on one side. Only one side is different. The rest is the same." But understand, as a total concept, the whole cube is a new cube.

You will discover, by what you would call the end of this interaction, whether you are participating, as you say, live, or whether you are in this way utilizing your media format, watching your tape, that you will, in participating, be in the interaction as live as anyone. The energy at any given moment is always recreated in that moment, absolutely, for the first time. It is never a repeat. It is always new because you are never the same. You are never a repeat. You are always new. Every moment is a new moment. As you redefine it, you redefine the entire universe.

So we will have spent many days here this day, and you will be many people this day. And, at the end of this interaction, which will not be an end, and not even a beginning, but an on-going, you will have stepped through a doorway, through a threshold, and you will have firmly entered a new level of acceleration, a new energy state that will assist and propel you in the directions you prefer to create in life. Experience is the key. You live in a world of physical action.

What we are supplying in this interaction, if you will, is a kit, a kit of simple tools. On your journeys you may use these tools anytime, anywhere, anyway you wish. They are malleable on purpose. During the exercises and techniques we will share with you, if for some reason your imagination chooses to interpret them slightly differently or grandly differently than the way we are suggesting by the visualizations we will supply, it is all right. You know what you are doing. We believe you know what you are doing, even if don’t choose to think that you do. For the timing of this interaction, grant yourselves the benefit of the doubt and believe that you know what you’re doing.

If anything should change, let it change, knowing that the change is a part of the path you are, not an interruption in it. In your meditations this day, these days, of your time, if you should hear sounds, feel, see ideas; do not think they are distractions. Add them into your meditation. If something occurs... a sound, an idea, it belongs in the meditation. The universe does not do extraneous and pointless things, and neither, really, do you. There is nothing that cannot be applied in a positive direction if you are of that attitude, if you are of that mentality. So incorporate anything that the old you might have termed a distraction into the meditation, and the more you add, the more energy will be there; the faster it will accelerate – and the more ecstatically explosive you will become.

We will begin. Allow yourselves, in whatever format, to become comfortable.

The first tool will be that which deals with bodily alignment, and the concept that you call health of the physical form. We will begin gently, ease you into the idea, so that you can remember that the basic format for any such meditation, any such endeavor, is that you have fun... that you enjoy. And as you lighten up upon yourselves, you will automatically attract into your lives all the enlightenment you require. We will keep it simple so that you have an opportunity to remember that life itself is very simple. Can be very profound; but still, very simple. It is the simplicity that allows it to be so profound.

If your society has created one main difficulty, it is that you do not believe life is simple, and not difficult; and that is your deepest difficulty. That is all you really need to know – that the simpler you allow it to be, not make it, not force it, but allow it to be, the more sense and clarity all the experiences in your life will carry for you. The more understanding will be there.

So as we begin to familiarize ourselves with the aspect of your being that you call your body, take three deep slow breaths, at your own pace, at your own rate. And while you are relaxing, while you continue to breathe in a relaxed and gentle manner, allow all ideas, all notions of discomfort to rise and bubble to the surface. And allow yourselves to breathe them out. And as you breathe in, drink in the sparkling pure clarity of the essence of life, light and breath. For in simply breathing you are energizing and oxygenating every cell of your body, balancing, returning to the zero rest point of your natural creatorhood.

And before we begin this technique, this visualization, remember, through this exercise and all techniques, whether they come from us or not, that you are always the ones, with your imagination, that will alter and define any idea for yourself, using your energy. So it is you that is creating all the feelings you will feel, all the effects you will experience. It is you, not me. It is you, your energy. And also, remember, that your spirit, that which you think of as your spirit, is not literally in your body. Your body is your spirit in physical terms; so you are dealing with spirit right now. You are using spirit to accelerate yourself. Your bodies are not prisons; they are not traps. You are not confined, literally, within them. The idea that you may experience, from time to time, of moving in and out of your body, is an interpretation of consciousness in physical terms, because, as a physical being, you have no other way of expressing the concept of that expansion, except to go beyond the border of what you typically think is your physical form. But your body, your body exists within your consciousness, not the other way around, so melt into, float into, relax into the consciousness that you are.

Three more deep breaths; and as you breathe, begin to imagine, begin to feel, begin to picture, begin to visualize, in whatever way, shape or form is perfect for you, your place of perfect peace. Imagine, if you will, that you are lying on grass on a hill, in a field of flowers, floating on the water, floating at the bottom of the ocean, floating on a cloud, lying on a rock, lying on a floor. It does not matter where it is. It does not matter when it is. It does not matter if it fluctuates or stays the same. For now, these things do not matter. Simply recognize its signature vibration.

You are constructing, effortlessly, your place of perfect peace. Be there now. Examine it. Float in it. Familiarize yourself, once again, with it. And, most importantly, grant yourself permission to deserve to be there, no matter how ecstatic it gets. Don’t let yourself believe you don’t deserve that degree of ecstasy. You do. Anything you feel, anything that comes to you that represents ecstasy, joy, sense of fulfillment, if you didn’t deserve it, it couldn’t be felt by you. So enjoy for a few moments, just enjoy all the sights, the sounds, the smells, the tastes, the touch of the place that is your place of perfect peace, harmony, beauty, love, warmth, coolness, clarity, light, the tingling of enjoyment, the tingling of knowingness, the excitement of the potential within each and every one of you.

Let yourself use all of your senses. If you are lying on the grass, feel it under your body. Smell it. Feel the breeze; hear any and all sounds that drift to you upon the wind. Taste the air. Smell the smells that float to you, the flowers, perhaps the trees, if they are present. The tang of the salt water of your ocean, if that is present, anything and everything that is there. The sweetness. The souness. The salt. The thickness. The thinness. The liquidness. The solidness. Use all of your senses. Be truly there. And again, remember, your imagination knows what it is doing, it does not have to make sense to your analytical mind, it is what needs to be. Let what you are experiencing be what you need to experience.

And now, imagine around your body to appear a bright, clear, transparent, sparkling, crystalline blue energy sphere, extending anywhere from one foot to three feet above your head, one foot to three feet below your feet. If you are lying on the ground, imagine the sphere goes through the ground under you, so that your body is floating in the middle of the sphere. No matter where and when you are, the sphere contains you.

Now, imagine this sphere is not hollow, no; it is filled with this liquid, blue, electrical, magnetic light. You breathe in this light into your lungs... and out. It is invigorating. It is soothing. It is cool. It is warm. It is the total electromagnetic potential of your mentality, of your body, of your spirit, of your soul, expressing itself in physical terms.

Breathe it in, this ethero-magnetic, liquid light. Breathe it out. As you breathe it in, feel it extend beyond your lungs, leaking into every cell, coursing through your veins, your arteries, pumping through your heart, refreshing your mind. All your organs are awash with this blue electromagnetic light, and you feel all the ideas of doubts and fears and particular impurities dislodging themselves, floating in this stream of fluid, and as you breathe out, they are expelled. Washed into the sphere, and dissolved in its electromagnetic vibrancy. Dissolved, and by osmosis, it goes from the fluid within, through the shell of the sphere, and is expelled in the blackness beyond.

The more you breathe in, the more you dislodge. The more you breathe out, the more you expel. These things are not so much really going anywhere. You are not getting rid of anything. They will still exist; but you are diffusing them so that the totality of your being can be of assistance in absorbing, diffusing, spreading the effect, until, to you, in your focused reality, the effect of the existence of any negative ideas is absolutely minimal. You will not feel it because the whole supports you with its energy, and no one specific, negative idea will overwhelm the idea of you as this physical being. They are dissolved; they become transparent, a solution dissolving in liquid light. Clear, crystalline.

Now, begin to envision and imagine that your bodily form is becoming, with each and every breath, more and more transparent; that you are beginning to see this blue fluid through your body. Allow your body itself to dissolve, so that there is no one particular area within the sphere that your body exists; but that you are now composed of the energy of the sphere itself. It is all the total energy of the sphere, beating as one heart, breathing as one lung. It is pulsing in and out; in and out. No one area of the sphere stands out more than any other area. You are one pulsing, rippling, beautiful, blue, flame-like electromagnetic, ethero-magnetic sphere of crystalline quality.

Simply know that, even though you perceive all of your senses to be there, each and every one of your senses – touch, sight, hearing, taste, smell – now is a sense of simple knowingness, and that the whole sphere that you are encompasses all the senses. Your senses are not relegated to any one particular portion; all the sphere senses all the things about your place of perfect peace; you feel as a whole being. You know green as opposed to seeing green. You know a smell as opposed to having it filter through your nostril. You taste with your entire form. You hear to the very depths of the fluid within the sphere.
You touch, with your consciousness, everything, everything that is within your place of perfect peace. It passes through you and you know it, because it is you and you know it.

Now, imagine, at the very center of this sphere that you are, a small seed crystal has formed. It is a single cell, pure and brilliant. Clear and perfectly formed. It is a cell, which multiplies into another, and two, and four, and eight, and sixteen, and thirty-two, and sixty-four, and it grows and multiplies and grows, and grows at a rapid rate, at a comfortable rate. At whatever pace is appropriate for you. And you allow it to grow into a new body. And this new body is composed of the pure, homogenous energy of liquid life. It is all in perfect relation. Every atom, every molecule, every cell is perfectly, crystallinely aligned. You are a new blueprint, a new template. A new matrix of energy upon which a new crystalline body is forming, is growing. You are born anew. Your heart is a crystalline hammer of electric light, sparking and flashing and coursing electricity through your veins to every cell. You are a being, truly, of light, of energy.

See your new body and know, once again, that your body, your new body is truly representative of the spirit, of the consciousness, of the soul that you now are willing to know yourselves to be. Feel, as you felt with the whole consciousness, feel with this body in that way, so that you see and hear and smell and taste and touch with the whole crystalline body. It is you. You are it; it is within you. It does not contain you. You contain the idea of this body: this purified gate, this purified channel, this purified conduit, which has no resistance to the energy of your consciousness channeling through it. It is a crystalline hyperconductive body. It is utterly transparent to the white light of creation.

You are the translators of this white light from other dimensional realms, other frequencies, through the clear prism that you now are, into the brilliant and balanced spectrum of your physical reality. And know this beyond a shadow of a doubt, that since you are transparent, you no longer contain shadows, no place to hide anything, for there is no need. Everything now that you could discover within yourself, can be applied to the positive understanding of the being, the crystalline being that you now know yourself to be.

Each and every time you perform this technique, you use this tool, bit-by-bit, step-by-step, quickly or slowly, at whatever rate you are most comfortable with, you will create, each and every time, your body anew. More and more and more will it be representative of the pure, clear, crystalline channel of All That Is that you now know yourself to be. Feel the lightness, even though crystalline, the flexibility, the suppleness, the super-conductivity of the new body you have created yourself to be... you have created yourself to express yourself to be. Feel it, and now take three deep breaths with that body, and allow the energy sphere to now expand and dissipate, and fill your place of perfect peace. It may no longer be visible on all levels; but your new body has the capability of seeing it, of sensing it, of knowing it is there. Hypersensitivity does not mean negative vulnerability. Does not mean weakness. Does not mean you are extended too thin or too far. It is an expansion of strength; it is a recognition that you are all that you perceive, within your place of perfect peace.

Now, simply, within your visualization, once again, look around at your place of perfect peace through the eyes of the now body. Notice the differences. Notice the similarities. And celebrate and rejoice your new birthday!

And now, as you form your place of perfect peace around you, to begin to take on what you used to typically call your day-to-day world, as you slowly open your physical eyes, recognize that with your new-found senses, the room, the people, the outside world, is no longer as you used to think it to be. It is your place of perfect peace. You can still use all of your senses to involve yourself in the life that you have created around you. Nothing in the world around you is an interruption in your life. You are a new you. It is a new day. Good morning.

Allow yourselves, in the positions you are now in, to simply stretch physically. Feel your new body. For it is a new body, regardless of what you may think is an outward appearance. It is not the same body. Feel the new flexibility. Sense the new flexibility and it will be the reality you will begin to experience from this new day, this new moment, for all time to come. How do you all feel so far?

AUD: Great. (Various answers)

B: Welcome to this new day. Allow yourselves to become comfortable. Allow yourselves to extend the comfort you discovered in your place of perfect peace. Allow yourselves to be literally, the idea of relaxation. The idea of comfort itself.

Now, we will, in this technique, this exercise, the first exercise of this new day, incorporate, as we will later on in another day, another exercise, the use of the fears that many of you are used to using. We will let you experience the negativity. We will allow you to reinforce it, and build it up so that you can learn to transform it, not by ignoring it, not by running away from it, not by denying it; but by using it in a positive direction. So while this exercise may seem to contain what you might generally refer to as a violent approach, you will understand that you will learn and be learning to use all your past negativity, and apply it in a positive way and transform it into positive light and life.

So, at this time, close your eyes. Relax. Take three deep breaths and recreate, all around, your place of perfect peace. Allow yourself to drift, allow yourself to see your body, your new body, in your place of perfect peace. Now move your consciousness towards your body. Dive into your body; allow your body to be all around, let the cells, themselves, become enlarged around you. You are now going on a journey through your body. Let yourself be standing in a tunnel that is built out of the very cells of your body. See these cells almost like little glass bricks, if you will... each transparent, each with the very spark of electricity and light at the very center of each and every cell; but they are also, if you wish, pliable, moist, soft, vital, vibrant and alive. They are living; they are conscious. They are beautiful reflections, in their glassy surfaces, of you standing among them, thousands upon thousands of reflections of you standing within yourself, looking around.

Now, you look to one side. There is something different here, you say. And you go closer for a better look. Some cells are not glassy; not reflective over there. They are different somehow; they are, for some reason duller, more like charcoal, graphite. They do not have the luster or the sheen. As you approach them, you stop. You do not get too close. You feel a malignancy from them. It can be, if you wish, the idea of a disease. You recognize that they represent disease. They can simply represent doubt. Whether or not, at this timing, you believe you have disease within your body or not, allow yourself to simply envision these cells for the purpose of utilizing the tool in a transformational way. They can have any idea of fear, any idea of negativity, any idea of doubt that you have ever experienced in your life. But these cells are turning the cells next to them from clear to opaque, to milky, to muddy, to dim, to dull, to lack-luster, to death. The very energy essence, the brilliant spark becomes a dull red ember and turns to darkest ashen black. And you recoil from this. And you ask, "How is this possible? How can this be changed?" How can I reverse what is going on?" And you hear a faint echo calling you from up the tunnel...somewhere up in the distance.

And so you walk up the tunnel that is formed by your cells, and you walk up and up and up, and you rise higher and higher, and you look back down the tunnel, and you look up again, and as you look back again, you realize that the tunnel ends in a large cavern, and you walk into this large cavern. The cavern is made out of cells, circular in fashion; you are inside a hollow ball. And all of a sudden, you realize this hollow ball is at the center of your brain, and that the tunnel you have been walking up is a tunnel in the very center of your spinal chord! You are standing on the threshold of all that your consciousness becomes when it is translated through the gate, this door...your brain, in physical terms!

And you look, and in the very center of this chasm, of this cavern, is a dark spot. It is actually a hole, you realize...a window, a door, a gate into space, into the infinite dimensions of all reality, and it opens. It widens. It takes your breath away as you peer into the infinite depths that have always existed within you; and you are now, perhaps, surprised and awestruck to find it at the very center of your being! And at the very center of that sphere of darkness, within the cavern, is the brightest, hottest, star-like spark of incandescent light you have ever imagined in your life! It should sear your eyes, but it doesn’t. So bright it is, yet it is an astral light. But it is the brightest light you could possibly imagine existing, and it is there, at the center of the sphere of blackness, at the very center of your brain.

And all of a sudden, a realization washes over you, a dawning. This is the very link to the source of All That Is, the source of Infinite Creation. This is your spark. This is you. This is the connection to Infinite Creation. It is the manifestation of you as a God Thought. It is the crucible. It is the furnace. It is the laser that determines the shape of space, the shape of time. It is the irresistible creative force itself. And you turn away, and you look back down the endless hall...down your spine...and your mind, with your new sense and your new body that is aware, that knows that down there are those dark and chalky charcoal cells. And all of a sudden you realize what you are capable of doing! And you begin to stand straight and tall, and to feel the pinpoint of white heat at your back grow and expand, and you begin to feel the warmth between your shoulder blades, the back of your neck, piercing you, filling you with energy – with realization. And you feel the doorway. It is not yet open; but you feel the doorway in your heart, in your chest, in your breastplate, in your solar plexus. And you know that if that doorway opens, all of that potential light that you feel sinking and seeping into your back will be unleashed down that corridor. And you feel it building in your shoulder blades – an infinite amount of heat and light, an irresistible force.
And so, with your imagination, to all the cells that are still healthy and whole, you pulse an electric instruction... an electromagnetic alert. And that electromagnetic wave courses, like a ripple, down the tunnel, and where that wave passes all of the clear, glassy cells become mirror-like reflections with a slight concave, dish-like surface. They are absolute, perfect mirrors, shining with brilliance, reflecting all the other cells in the tunnel except the ones that are chalky and dark. And now, you send a second pulse down the tunnel, a ring of electromagnetic instruction. And where it passes, the cells, in receiving their information, slowly turn and all of them, one by one together, face the dark, lusterless, charcoal, graphite cells. The very center of the dish of each and every mirror cell is pointing directly at the cluster, the very heart of the cluster of the dark and dull and lifeless cells. And the mirroring of the cells stops the progress of the dark cells. They are now confined, confronted with their own reflections in the cells around them. They cease to expand. They are frozen with the very fear that they use to kill.

And now, and now... you feel the intensity of the spark, of the star, of the nova behind you, growing in brilliance, growing in...

(Tape 2, Side 1)

...Let it build and build and build and build until you can stand it no longer, and you allow, now, the gate and the door in your chest, the aperture, to open! And a brilliant and blinding white hot, laser-like beam of light shafts all the way down the corridor! Shoots and relays and bounces off, sparkles off, every single reflective mirror! And all of them are focused with white-hot intensity, white-hot commandment upon the cluster of the graphite cells! And they are exploded into brilliant white flame and heat, and reduced utterly to ash and dark red, dull, dying embers of ash. And you switch off, and allow the star behind you to recede a bit. You still feel the pulse of its warmth; but you have closed the gate of your chest.

And now you look down the corridor and you see, reflected back to you, by all of the mirror cells, the reflection of the powder, the ash, the white ash, where the dead cells used to be. And now, you allow the darkness around the star behind you to begin to seep into your shoulder blades with a coolness; and you open up your solar plexus and allow a wash of energy to cascade down the tunnel and wash the ash, pick it up and carry the ash away. And that coolness that liquid, that blue-electromagnetic energy fills the spaces, fills the gaps where the dead cells used to lay; and out of that liquid, out of that coolness, new cells form, and all the cells turn back to glass, and you have a clear and glassy tunnel.

And down that clear and glassy tunnel, the liquid washes and dissolves the ash, and this ash will be eliminated from your body through your pores, through your processes of digestion. All that was toxic within you now washes out in a sweat, in perspiration, in an expulsion, so that you feel the invigorating coolness and exhilaration, the lightness within you. And you close the gate; but it always remains pliable, “open-able,” not shut in a rigid manner. Flexible. And you turn back to face the dark sphere with the star, and you extend your unconditional love and joy and celebration at the clarity you have discovered, at the clarity you have created. And the recognition and remembrance that that spark and that star is there for you always, and that it is your interface with Infinite Creation itself. And you allow the blackness to close a bit, just to recede a little bit. To go back to a comfortable level that will still allow all the light and knowledge to come through in an unimpeded and effortless way.

And any time you so desire, you can open up that iris and allow that brilliant spark of light to shine within you, and illuminate all within you, so there remains no shadow, no doubt, no fear, no guilt, no disease. And you thank Infinite Creation, and you thank yourself, and you feel the love and the clarity and the certainty and the integrity of the cellular structure, the crystalline structure of the being, the new being, born this moment... born this day. And you expand to fill the idea of yourself and merge back into your daily reality.

Three deep breaths, and open your eyes slowly, gently, lovingly; feeling the new life and light in your veins; and knowing that all of the ash of former doubts and disease is washing through and out of your body. Lightening you up. Acceleration. Washing you clean.

How do you all feel?

AUD: Various answers.

B: For a few moments you may stand and stretch. Feel the pliability, the clarity, the vibrancy of the new body that you are. And as you do so, we welcome you to this new day. Good morning!

AUD: Good morning.

B: Take a few moments and get used to your new body; feel the effortlessness of it, the suppleness of the joints, the flexibility, the creativity, the beauty, the mastery. You are your own master crystal. Shine in the light of the new day and let that light shine through you and fulfill you.

Relax. Be seated. Lay down, if you wish.

END PART ONE
Q: This is my first time meeting you. I’m concerned with world peace.
B: CONCERNED with world peace.
Q: How can we, how can we create, to use your terms.
B: Yes.
Q: How can we create, or recreate... has there ever been a time when the world was not at war?
B: Yes.
Q: That’s one question, and the other is how can we then recreate that time?
B: Thank you. It is very simple, act like your world is at peace. LIVE in peace within yourself first, then you, as an individual, will set a shining example for how other individuals may be able to choose to live as well. ONE individual makes a difference, and the fundamental idea that we have shared with many of your individuals, many times, let us say, to render it down into a basic formula, if you wish: You do not get peace by hating war; you get peace by loving peace. Therefore, the idea is if you know that peace is the way you wish to live, then live as if that is the only way there is. When you place judgement upon what is happening in your world, you are reinforcing the idea of all the negative occurrences. By being worried about them, you are sending them reinforcing negative energy, because what you are doing when you WORRY about the negative is you are saying you believe it has more ability to be more powerful than peace. So you are WORRIED that it will get the upper hand, as you say. When you simply KNOW that peace and harmony and the vibrational resonance that goes along with it is the most powerful vibration that there is, then you will amply recognize that you, as an individual, are as powerful as you need to be to have anything you desire without having to hurt anyone else to get it. And, therefore, you can radiate this belief to other individuals who then, if they decide to, can also choose it or their own right to share that similar belief with you.
All that is necessary is to begin to reflect to the individuals in your society, and to teach them that EVERY INDIVIDUAL is already complete, has already ALL of the power and the abilities that they require to have anything they desire without having to forsake their integrity and harm someone else to get it.
Recognize this. When you observe the idea of the warfare over ideologies going on on your planet, view this understanding: an individual who TRULY BELIEVES in something doesn’t have to force that belief on anyone, for they know the belief, in and of itself, is worthy of merit and manifestation. Therefore, recognize that if you find individuals and /or societies, and/or governments, and/or religions, and/or any other sociological system in your society, forcing a belief on someone else, they obviously do not believe in the power of that belief themselves. (AUD: laughs).
That is our suggestion to you (garbled) peace, is to teach your people that; but not that they have to choose to understand you, or believe you, but simply that you are willing to function as a reflection of the fact that you know that peace IS power, in that way, and the granting of EQUALITY and validity to all. UNITY, unity is the product of the granting of equality and validity to the infinite diversity within creation. In other words, there is no one way; there are many ways to recognize one’s relationship to All That Is. If there was only one way, there would only be one person.

Therefore, it is in recognizing that every individual has chosen what they have chosen because they are learning what they think they need to learn. By granting them the right to do so, you then reflect to them an opportunity that you believe that what they are doing is right for them. At the same time, along with that message, comes the polarity message that since I am supporting you just the way you are, you now have the opportunity to see reflected from me an opportunity, now that all choices are equal, to choose what reality you prefer to choose. Do you follow me?

Q: Oh yes.
B: Does this assist you?
Q: Well, not exactly.
B: Why not? Is it not what you expected?
Q: Because, because what you are saying, no, what you are saying is that we are all in total control...
B: Yes.
Q: I can’t quite agree with that.
B: Oh, but you are anyway. (AUD: laugh). The idea is simply that, because your society has made a determination, as you call it, so many thousands of years ago, so long ago as you count time, to explore every single nook and cranny of limitation, separation, and judgment, the idea that comes along with the decision to explore limitation, separation, and judgment is the fact that you have forgotten that you have chosen to do so.

Therefore, it is only the fact that you have forgotten that you chose this exploration of limitation, separation, and judgement that does not let you think or remember that you are in control, even when you create situations in which it seems you are out of control. But you are in control of creating that situation. Now...

Q: Of creating the out of control situation, is what you’re talking about?
B: Yes. Yes. Your physiological situations are the product of what you BELIEVE and/or fear (which is a belief) that your reality is. The idea that if you FEAR something will happen is the same thing as saying you believe that that is the most likely occurrence, therefore, that is what you attract to show you synchronistically that that is your strongest belief. Those situations come into your life to afford you the opportunity to recognize that you have that belief, and if you don’t like it, change it. Then you know you are in control. The universe does not do pointless things. (AUD: laugh). There are no ultimate victims in that way.

Q: The universe may not do pointless things...
B: You are a part of the universe.
Q: people do.
B: No. Not really. Again, the idea is recognizing that everything you create has a reason. It may be only for the reason to show you that you do not like what you have created, and therefore, can choose something else, but that’s still a reason and it is not pointless. It is up to you to understand that you have that ability.
Let us render it down to the, let us say, most basic common choice. You have the choice, as you say, to believe that you do in fact create your reality or to believe that you do not. If you choose to believe - and it is your choice to do so – that you do not create your reality, then every single thing, including this conversation, is absolutely pointless because, at any given moment, according to the belief that you do not create your ability and are not in control of it, anything could occur to wipe out anything that you try to do. Therefore, you might as well do nothing. If, on the other hand, you do wish to do nothing, you might as well believe you are in control, otherwise doing something is pointless. (AUD: laugh).
That is the most basic common denominator we can create for that scenario. You either know you are in control and know that you can have an effect, or you believe you are not in control and therefore, why bother.
Q: You’re saying in control of your own life, right?
B: Yes.
Q: What about things that are going on elsewhere?
B: But you have chosen to interact with these things, and the idea is that, while you can project yourself into a reality where you have the ability to recognize that these other choices are going on all around you, they don’t have to negatively affect your life.
Q: OK. So I can see from them that that’s not what I choose.
B: Correct.
Q: That’s what I prefer.
B: Correct. And therefore, by being fully the being you chose to be, you can, therefore, set the strongest, brightest, and fullest example to them that they have an opportunity to choose something else, which they can see in you, if they don’t prefer what they’re doing.
Q: What if they don’t choose to?
B: That is up to them. Do not forget one thing. EVERYONE is eternal. You are indestructible forever, therefore, what’s the rush? (AUD: laugh) There is no need to worry ultimately about anyone else because if they "choose not to do it this time," they may choose to do it next time. And they have an infinite supply of next times. (AUD: laugh).
Now, the idea is simply deciding whether or not you want to wait that many next times or choose to do it now. That is all there is to it. Therefore, if you take the pressure off of your need, YOUR NEED, to have them make a decision that’s all right with you, then you will fully grant them the true ability to choose to change their minds.
As long as you think they MUST change their minds, in order to find benefit in the situation they are living, you are only reinforcing that the reality they have chosen is, in fact, something worth less than your reality. And you’re only supporting their choice of negativity and reinforcing it by judging their situation to be worth less than yours.

Q: OK. If man is eternal, a nuclear . . .

B: And woman.

Q: And woman. (OTHER AUD: laughs). The generic.

B: Yes.

Q: OK. If the human being is eternal and goes on forever and ever . . .

B: Not the HUMAN being.

Q: All right.

B: The idea of your consciousness, things besides human.

Q: All right. OK. I’ll accept that. Then a nuclear holocaust really doesn’t matter, does it?

B: Not in an ultimate sense. However, the idea, simply again, is that you have the opportunity to recognize that that particular type of physiological annihilation will co-create imbalances in many dimensional rifts and will not remain, as you say, in your own backyard. Therefore, the idea is simply that is the ONE manifestation you will not be allowed to manifest at this time, because you are too closely connected to many other civilizations at this time. You may annihilate yourselves in any other way, (AUD: laugh), as long as you keep it to yourselves. (AUD: laugh).

Now the idea is, again, that we are not here to run your lives. It is, in a sense, the only exception that is made, simply because it affects more than just your immediate sphere of influence. HOWEVER, it is our perception and the perception of many civilizations, as we read the energy of your mass consciousness, that you have already, as of, what you call, five to seven of your years ago, decided en masse, though it may be mostly unconsciousness at a time, to not annihilate yourselves in that way.

Much of the accelerated negativity you experience upon your planet at this time is actually the result of knowing that it is safe to blow off steam because you will not destroy yourselves. You are giving yourselves an opportunity to accelerate the experience of this negativity and PURGE it from your reality; because once you live through it, very quickly and very abruptly, you will know you have done it all, and you will not have to go back a any of those experiences in your new, integrated age of awareness.

The idea is that transformation is not the product of mediocrity, and as far to the negative as you have allowed yourself to be experiencing life, that is how far to the positive you will experience the new age. It is like a sling shot effect. So you are speeding yourselves up, accelerating yourselves, and all of the negativity you are experiencing upon your planet at this time is the product now of bringing what was formerly hidden and covert in your society, and making it overt and obvious; so that your civilization, as a group, can decide, is this what we want or not? Make your choices. (AUD: many comments from many people). Do you follow me?
Q: Yes, I follow you. I could extend it, but I’ll let someone else have an opportunity.
B: All right! Thank you for your sharing and your choice to be alive at this time of transformation in the civilization you have chosen to be in. For, as we have said, every individual, no matter what your point of view, makes a difference. Thank you.
Q: Thank you.
Darryl: Before we start with the channeling tonight what I’d like to do is go over a quick exercise that is based on some of the stuff that Bashar has been talking about in terms of changing your belief systems, changing your definitions. A friend of mine and I worked through one of these the other day to see how this would do, and it was pretty powerful. So this will work with anything.

What we have here is things about money, see chart: “Exercise in Shifting Beliefs” it will work with anything—relationships, jobs, what have you. But the thing to do, and I think when we hear Bashar talking about getting in touch with your definitions, because basically that’s what creates your reality, a lot of times we kind of hold that concept in our heads, it really is very helpful to actually write this stuff down. The thing that surprised us the most was how many definitions we have, that it is very difficult to kind of look at these in your head. If you get them on paper it’s much easier to deal with. This is a technique that is very strong and will go a long way toward helping you make the changes in the definitions that you want to make.

These, because most people in this society have talked about having money issues that’s the one we choose, and I know that from a lot of the channeling Bashar has talked about abundance in general, and of course talked about the idea that abundance does not necessarily have to mean money. But a lot of the reasons for why Bashar talks about some of the principles is to get in touch with the energy and the mechanism behind the concept, not necessarily to completely eliminate the things that are in our society that we do deal with. So it’s kind of like: yes, sort of, loosen up your definitions about money and just go with a broader definition of abundance and energy and exchange. But then, since we do have money in the society, it’s alright to take that information and bring it back to the idea then of what is your relationship to money because that is what is here that’s what we have to deal with on a daily basis at least for right now.

So these are just a few, these are not even all of some of the definitions we just kind of came up with about what many people have in terms of negative beliefs or judgements about money. Things like its hard to get, there’s not enough to go around, I don’t deserve it, if I have enough someone else won’t, too much responsibility, too much trouble, all these kinds of things. The one that strikes your cord if you have an issue about money may not be up here, but the idea is to make the list as long as possible—think of as many judgements and negative beliefs about whatever subject you are doing, as you can. Add to that list, get them all out in front of your face, if at all possible. These will function as some examples which is why it is a good reason to copy them down because some of them are in very specific forms. Sometimes you’ll hear a definition in one form and it won’t really trigger anything, but you will here it in another form and it will, or you’ll understand that there’s some type of definitions that are blanks that can be filled in with just about anything that you’re dealing with and so it’s good to have a template for these things to understand that there can be many things plugged in. Now what we kind of found out and what this sort of represents, this identification equation, is to show you how when you get in touch with one group of definitions in one subject you can sometimes especially if it’s a core issue, transfer that over to a completely different subject that you feel that you may be having a difficult time with. So the example I’m going to use is actually what the friend of mind came up with and it was based on an issue that she felt she was struggling with. And basically her situation was this: I have no problem attracting the money to get into a new place. I have no problem attracting money while I am putting my home together, but as soon as the home is complete the money stops and I have to move. It’s a pattern. Why does this keep happening over and over and over again? After discussing it for a while on that level we understood that for her and of course this is very common in our society, she was raised in an extremely abusive home. The concept of home to her meant torture and pain. The idea is as long as she was making the home, it wasn’t a home, it was a project. She had no problem attracting money to do a project. As soon as it actually was a home she couldn’t bear to live in the home. She could make the home but she couldn’t have the home. Once she sort of realized that, we kind of went back to the money idea and she goes okay well what about the idea of money? One immediate and obvious connection came up: if she had money, she would have no excuse not to have a home—no excuse whatsoever. But money equals, if she had money then she could have a home, but a home equals pain. So do not attract the money, okay. This is the typical equation that you’ll find running through, this is the mechanism you’ll find running through almost any kind of struggle or negative belief system. If you’re having a question as to why you can’t attract this, why you can’t attract that, in your life. This is the general equation you will find that is, there can be variations on this and there probably are, but that’s the general spine of the equation. If I do attract what I say I want it will lead to this. Whatever definition you associate to what it leads to, will determine whether or not your actually capable of attracting what you say you want. It will cancel it out if it is too much in the direction of pain because as Bashar’s explained and many other people have explained there are only two reasons we do anything, there’s only two parts to motivation: you move always in the direction you perceive to be more pleasurable. You move away from the thing you perceive to be more painful. That’s it. That’s the reason you do anything in life. There is no other reason. But the key is: what do you perceive the thing to be. If you perceive it to be painful it may not really be. But if you perceive it to be painful with your definitions you will move as far away from it as you possible can. So for her home equaled more pain than she was willing to put up with, so she did anything and everything she possibly could to make sure she would not have a reason to have a home. And that reason was not attracting enough money because then if she did she would have no excuse not to have a home.

Okay, so copy this down at your leisure and work with this and plug in whatever subject you want to plug in that you feel you have some kind of issue with—if you are not getting enough money, if you are not having the relationships you want, anything else you’ll find that getting all these belief systems out on paper will really help you understand what’s going on and probably one of them, or more than one of them, as you write or as it comes to you, will hit a cord, you’ll know its a core issue, you’ll feel it emotionally. Start from there, deal with that and, find out then, what belief system you would rather replace it with. In many cases it’s really just a matter of applying the opposite: it’s easy to get, there’s more than enough to go around, I do deserve it. Sometimes that’s enough, if it doesn’t seem to be enough, you may find there are other things that will reinforce, one definition over here might reinforce your willingness to hang on to this one. So find out where there connected, as we just kind of illustrated here. Once you get them all on paper and out of your system, you will generally find that your reality will start to break down. As soon as you see what you are doing and you realize that like here for example home does not have to equal pain, then you can start working with it changing it around, moving it around and realize it doesn’t have to be you, it doesn’t have to be your reality. And that will start things moving, you’ll see changes occurring, and shifts occurring in your reality, more opportunities will come to you because now you have a recognition that this does not have to be a truth. That these things are only beliefs, they are not actual reality concepts, they’re not actual qualities of reality, they’re just beliefs. But as Bashar says: that is what our reality is built on.

So work with this, we found that it is very strong. Hopefully, you know, it will be something that you will have fun doing at the same time, but it will probably put you in touch with a lot of different things if you do do this because you have difficulty with something, but that’s okay. That’s what it is suppose to do, that’s what it is designed to do. But, as I said, it’s important to kind of get this out and actually do it, do the work. Get it in front of your face because its good when Basher talks about these concepts, but if we kind of just sort of leave them up here and don’t feel we have an ability to work with them as an actual tool sometimes they’ll just rotate around in your head forever. And you won’t really see the changes you want to see. So we did this just to give an edge to see if this will work a little bit more cleanly for you and for us and for everyone. ‘

So let’s go ahead with the channeling. Again thanks for coming and have a good time. I know that there are probably a couple of people...who’s never been to a Bashar channeling? Okay one or two. You’ll catch on pretty quick, its very informal—have fun and I’ll see you later.

Bashar: All right I’ll say good day to you this day of your time how are you all?
Q: Great, perfect, etc...
B: Once again we take this opportunity to thank each and everyone of you for allowing our civilization to communicate to your civilization through this particular gateway and in this particular manner.

Once again each and every time you allow such a transmission to occur, such a link to take place it affords our civilization an opportunity to experience that many more facets of creation by interacting with each and everyone of you. For each and everyone of you are a facet of the multidimensional crystal of All That Is. And we thank you for this gift of exchange. We would like to begin this day of your time by first of all recognizing that the channel himself has already delivered what would normally be our monologue this day of your time but we will provide the title for you, and that will be: Writing the Wrongs. W-r-I-t-I-n-g the Wrongs. Use this technique, use this exercise and any other that your imagination may come up with—whatever works for you, to allow yourself to get in touch with those ideas, those beliefs, those definitions that have been taught to you from childhood that may be as you say rattling around in your consciousness that, perhaps, you are only vaguely aware of, get them out of your system, put them out in front of your visual sensors so that you can relate to them. And gain a sense of, in some senses, control over them. Many times humans will feel more in control when they can see all of their definitions or, at least as many as they can think of, on paper in front of them. And it will make the task of transformation seem easier, something more capable of being handled. So in that sense we highly recommend this idea, and since this has already now been presented to you, we will simply continue with this interaction by once again extending to you our deep appreciation in allowing our civilization to communicate to your civilization in this way as we have said and in return for the gift I ask in what way may I now be of service to you.

Q: Bashar! Bashar!
B: You good day.

Q: I read somewhere that the Greys used their DNA at some point to create the Asian race at a later time than the other races were created because they wanted to perfect the race by making them more spiritually minded and more group oriented which is why the Asian society tends to be that way more so than the western society. Can you elaborate?

B: Your time frame information is a little bit off, there was at certain times additional adjustments made in certain areas of the overall civilization that did cause certain diversification’s to occur in that culture to create and move that culture in a certain direction. But different adjustments were made in ALL of the different cultures on your planet simultaneously, it is simply that different adjustments were made. Not that no adjustments were made to anyone else. But the different adjustments are representative of different ideas, different directions, different expressions of consciousness. One of the strongest, though this is changing, one of the strongest attributes that you recognize, what you call Asian cultures to exhibit is the idea of group consciousness. And this of course this is one of the aspects you attribute very strongly to the Grey civilization. So it was that idea that was heightened, or exemplified in that particular culture through many different kinds of interactions, not just the idea of genetic material introduction, but many different kinds of interactions simply allowed that fragment of that faction of your overall human society to move in that direction and exhibit one of the main qualities along with the other qualities of the other groups and cultures in your society that would then ultimately, as it is now doing in your present day, come together to be blended, so that each culture would have a particular aspect to bring to all the other cultures so that in blending them all together you would able, by sharing these attributes, be able to become more integrated as an entire human species. Does this make sense to you?

Q: Yes.
Y2K, Stock Market From: Toronto II

Toronto, Ontario, CANADA
B: Yes.
Q: I have a question.
B: Yes.
Q: To do with the Y2K problem, the year 2000 computer problem.
B: Yes.
Q: In the context that you are discussing in your talk, I wonder if it fits in with our general society, worldwide, if it is going to be a severe occurrence?
B: In some areas it will be severe, in others, it will not be felt at all. It will depend upon the infrastructure that has been laid down in certain areas on your planet; since there is much diversity on your world and many different approaches to different things, then different areas will, likewise, experience the result and consequences in different ways. The basic thing to understand, however, is that when individuals begin to lay down other systems, alternate systems, new ideas and put them into place then it will not really matter if the old systems crumble or collapse for new ones will be there ready and willing to take their place and take up, what you call, the slack.
Now, at the same time, sometimes what you call a, well, break from the old paradigm may be a welcome thing and give individuals a chance to rethink and go about setting up certain systems to allow them, in the future, to become far more flexible, less rigid, which is a metaphor for how you need to really live your lives as well. So, I would simply, overall, suggest that you don’t worry about it. For I will tell you this for absolute certainty, the more you worry about it being a problem, the more you magnetically will draw yourself into a circumstance where you will experience it as a problem. Instead, I would suggest that you would allow yourself to treat it as an amazing opportunity to allow systems to shift and change very rapidly and that you position yourself, by your energy and your own certainty, so that you will know that you will be where you need to be, when you need to be there. And that you will experience, no matter what anyone else’s experience, so that you personally will experience only a beneficial result from such a consequence, instead of a negative one. Does that make sense to you?
Q: It makes sense to me. Thank you.
B: Thank you. Sharing....
Q: Hello.
B: And to you, good day.
Q: My question is the computer Millennium Bug.
B: Yes, with reference to that idea.
Q: What are the events that will affect our lives, here in this country, in Denver, Colorado, and the United States and the rest of the world? What events will affect we the people, of city, state, the United States and the world? What events will affect us people, and will the Stock Market fall at this time?
B: No, it will not. However, you will find that some systems will begin, in your terms, to crash, but not necessarily as many as you think. However, in certain circumstances and in certain circles, as we perceive the energy now, it will cause the beginning of a cascade collapse, over time, that will allow for an introduction of new systems, new ideas. In other words, we will put it this way, it will be an indication that, what you call, the mainframe structure is no longer capable of supporting itself under its own weight and it will allow for the opening and introduction of, through opportunistic time frames, new ideas, new systems, new endeavors, new approaches that when they are then put into place will begin to lay the foundations for more communication, more personal self-empowerment and so forth. This entire process will most likely take about 7 to 10 of your years, and by then you will see the most rapid changes in the infrastructure of economics, communication and so forth. Do you follow me?
Q: Yes.
of the future; there is only a sensing of the energy that exists at the time the prediction is made; because there is only the present. If the energy that is sensed at the time the, so called, prediction is made does not change, then it will come to pass; but, if it does change, it will not. It does not mean that the prediction was not TRUE, it simple means that the energy has changed. Many times the existence of a prediction itself will change the energy because now it has made you aware of where the energy is. And if you don’t prefer it to be there, then your consciousness changes the direction of the energy and renders the prediction obsolete. So, in many ways, sometimes a good prediction is doing its job when it renders itself unpredictable. You understand?
Q: I think so.
B: This is how time works. There is no such thing as a fixed future, there is only the energy that exists at the time the sensing is made; because there are an unlimited number of probable future realities and it can go in any number of ways. Now, yes, there are some probable future B: Now, remember, all of you, that there is no such thing as a prediction realities that have a great deal of momentum and energy behind them and may be unlikely to shift and those are, in a sense, easiest to sense and, quote/unquote, predict. But nevertheless, it is created in the moment and sensed in the moment and barring certain circumstances where there simply is too much mass agreement for something to change, it is almost always changeable. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes, sir.
B: So, oh sir.
Q: Yes.
B: All right, since we are being formal, sir. The last thing we would like to say about this concept is, to remember that each and every one of you and all of you together are your government, to allow yourself to make sure you are not perpetuating division by creating an us and them scenario. But allow yourself to work to the creation of systems that you believe are representative of self-empowerment, sharing, communication, clarity, creativity, unconditional love and support of all. And by instilling those systems and infusing your society with those systems, to the best of your ability, they will eventually replace any system that is outdated, that tries to control, that tries to dominate, because ultimately, by definition, such a system will ultimately not be able to stand up under its own weight. And as it begins to crumble a bit at a time, with a little glitch here and a little glitch there, here a glitch, there a glitch, then the new systems will already be in place and will be capable of sprouting up very rapidly to form a network that will take over the job and, in a sense, provide a little more equality. Do you follow?

Q: I believe so.
B: Does this help you?
Q: Yes.
B: Does it answer your question?
Q: Pretty much.
B: All right, was there something else?
Q: I was looking at the stock market.
B: Yes.
Q: The stock market was a big concern of mine and problems...
B: Yes, why is it a concern of yours?
Q: It’s a timing thing.
B: I see, well I’m going to have to ask you a question and allow this to be brief. May I?
Q: Yes.
B: I will put it to you and all of you this way, what is it you are actually putting stock in? I would suggest that you put stock in yourselves rather than some relatively arbitrary system.
Q: I’m concerned about the effect of the Stock Market, what it will do to us.
B: I’ve already told you why you don’t have to be concerned. Did you follow what we said to begin with? If new systems are in place, by people who are excited and creative to put them there, then when the other system collapses it won’t matter, for those that have prepared themselves will not feel a negative effect. I will remind you of another principle, another tool, that comes into play in this case, perhaps this will help address this situation a little bit more precisely for you. All situations are fundamentally neutral, no situation has built in meaning. The meaning you put into it determines the effect you get out of it, regardless of what anyone else’s intention happens to be. Does that make sense to you?
Q: Yes, some.
B: All right, do you want it to make more sense to you?
Q: Yes, I would like to get an idea of a date of a Stock Market crash?
B: Why? Knowing what I have already told you about the fact that there is no such thing as a prediction of the future, you still want me to give you one?
Q: A guess, a ballpark figure.
B: Well, which ballpark are we talking about?
Q: The one that they are playing the Stock Market in.
B: I see, January 7th, 2005.
Q: Thank you.
B: That’s one.
Q: Could I have the closest one?
B: That is the closest one in the way that you mean it, but it may not happen the way you think it will happen. Put stock in yourself, that is the only thing that will always go up. All right?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you, next sharing....
YARDSTICKS

Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time, with the entitlement, Yardsticks. We will use this nomenclature, this terminology, to talk about relativity... in a sense, relativity in perspective, in point of view... to simply remind you once again, in yet another way, that each and every individual is his or her own reality. And whatever measuring rods, whatever yardsticks you may use to measure the reality you believe to be true, are not applicable to you to measure the reality that someone else believes is true for his validity.

The yardsticks you create in your reality are valid for your reality, and will very accurately measure the ideas going on in your reality, in your belief structure. But they cannot be used to measure the validity in someone else’s reality, because they have a different set of yardsticks, and they are, very often, of quite different lengths.

Many of you are familiar with what your physicists refer to as the time dilation effect. The idea simply is, that as you move faster and faster in your physical universe, attaining a great deal of the percentage of the speed of light, the faster you go – the more time slows down apparently, from your point of view. That is while you are remaining in your physical dimension. The idea of the hyperspace travel we talked about, the instantaneous teleportation, is quite another thing and does not apply to this idea. But while you remain in your physical universe, if you go very fast, very close to the speed of light, you will find that time will slow down for the individual doing the traveling.

Now, all things being relative as many of you understand... to the individual doing the traveling it will seem as if everything is moving at the same rate of time. To them it will seem that everyone else has sped up very rapidly, and that they are still going about their business doing the same things they always do at the rate that they are comfortable with. Not only, in that sense, does time slow down, but all objects will in a sense, shorten in the direction that they are traveling.

So very literally if you have a yardstick, let us say, on your hypothetical space craft, and you are moving at a particular direction, at a great percentage of the speed of light... to an individual standing still, relatively speaking, your yardstick on the ship, by the time you are a good fraction of the speed of light, will actually only be as long as, let us say, approximately three inches. You will still think it is a yard long – three of your feet, not three of your inches.

And of course, everything you measure in the ship will still appear to be its normal size, because everything has shrunk accordingly. So it has all stayed in one particular coherent system, and you cannot tell the difference. This is analogous to the idea we are talking about, because every single individual vibrates at a slightly different rate of energy, and has a different perspective about what is true and real for him.

Yes, you have, as we have discussed, obviously a collective agreed-upon reality that you share general ideas, and sometimes some very specific ideas within. But nonetheless being an individual, by definition, will allow you to always recognize that the yardstick you use to measure things with –and we are speaking both literally and philosophically – will not be exactly precisely the same length as someone else’s. And they will measure things in a slightly different way. To each of you the equations will seem to come out correctly. You will measure three feet; they will measure three feet; but that three feet is relative. And if you compare them, they may be a different three feet; but you can at least agree enough to get the job done.

Recognize simply, that what we share with you is our yardstick, the measurement by which we decide what works for us in our civilization. We share these ideas in a general way with you, but in no way shape or form, do we ever mean to imply that your yardstick, your measurements, your ideas, your points of view, are not equally valid. And in a sense, not more important for you to pay attention to – because they are. Because they are the yardsticks that measure the reality you have decided is real.

So remember: even when we describe and define, down to the last inch, the last millimeter, our yardstick, you may find similar marks on yours. But that is your version of ours, and it is never meant to be that you must do things in exactly the way we do them. Being an individual you will always do something in your own way slightly uniquely, or greatly uniquely, but it will always be slightly different from the way anyone else does it. That is to be expected, and that is to be cherished.

For it is the variance; it is the different points of view; it is the Relativity, which allows there to be an ongoing discovery of new attitudes, new perspectives, new points of view in life. That something will always be seen slightly differently through another pair of eyes, will add to the enrichment of all the different ways that Creation has of manifesting Itself to be.
You are Complete

B: Allow us to refresh ourselves upon the idea and the concept of perfection. We have discussed many times with you the idea that in your lives very often you are taught that even when you create the idea and the notion in your lives of, what you call, a spiritual path, the reason for this is for the attainment and the achievement of perfection.

But recognize, once again, as we have shared many times, our perspective is that you will never achieve perfection because you are already perfect. The idea does not mean that you will not grow, not expand, not change, not transform, not learn something new. But it simply is an allowance, a recognition of allowance in your lives, that at any given moment the idea you are being, the reality you are expressing, the events you are experiencing, are for their own reasons perfect in themselves.

This relaxation, this attitude, this backing off from yourselves in that way, rather than applying so much pressure to the idea to be more perfect is what allows you to know that you can always become a different type of perfection at any given moment – perhaps a more expanded type. But you will always be, at any given moment, the absolute perfect manifestation of whatever idea you are being at that moment.

Your willingness to allow that moment to be perfect, in and of itself, is what, paradoxically, allows you to create the next and different perfect moment. Because unless you are willing to allow whatever moment you are experiencing to be complete, in and of itself – on all levels – then you are not allowing yourselves to view and perceive all facets of that experience. Because if you do not think it is perfect as it is, if you invalidate it and judge it in a negative point of view, then you yourselves may be shutting off aspects of that event, of that moment that you need to see, need to be aware of to incorporate them into the totality of yourselves, so that you can get on with the next step.

Every moment is a stepping stone to the next moment, and if you invalidate any stepping stone, then you yourselves remove from the path you are the ability to get to the next stepping stone. Always allow each and every moment of your lives to be perfectly valid as they are. This does not mean you must accept that the things that are occurring in your lives are what you "should" accept or prefer. You can always prefer your life to be the way you desire it to be.

But the way to allow yourselves to create it to be the way you desire it to be is to accept that the way it is now serves a purpose and is a part of the path you have created yourselves to be. And that what you are learning is there for a reason – your reason; that there is something within the scenario you want to see, you want to reflect on, you want to learn from.

And in accepting and acknowledging the way your life does unfold, that is what gives you the recognition of the empowerment you have to create your life to unfold in the direction and in the manner you most desire it to be. So simply do allow yourselves to reflect, at any given moment, that no matter what your choices, every scenario, for what it is, is a perfect manifestation of that scenario.

You can prefer perfect harmony and perfect ecstasy, or you can prefer perfect misery; but both are perfect expressions of the idea you are reflecting at that moment. And when you allow it to be there for a reason, then you can extract from that scenario what will most assist you in re-forming the idea, redirecting yourself, and creating what it is you desire to experience most in your reality.

Many individuals will pressure themselves in many different ways to strive, to struggle, to try to be more perfect, will set themselves goals and ideals that can continually deny the validity they possess at that moment. In that way you deny yourselves all that you truly desire as well. For if you do not believe yourselves complete in that moment, then you, by your own definition, insist that you do not have the capability of creating what it is you say that you desire to attract into your lives.

Knowing that you are complete – perhaps focused not in a way you prefer to be – but knowing you are complete gives you the opportunity to know that, at any given moment, you have the ability to refocus yourselves in any direction you desire. You lack nothing; you have all the tools and all the abilities you require, at any given moment, to be anything you are willing and bold enough to believe you can define yourselves to be. You all follow along?

AUD: Yes.

Bashar:
Channeled by Darryl Anka
From "Illumination"

You are made of Light
Many times in your daily lives, when you are going about your business, as you say, and you come across ideas or feelings that allow you to feel a little bit heavy, a little bit weighed down, a little bit sad, then you can allow yourself an opportunity to do the following thing. You can allow yourself to remember, if you will, for a moment at these times, that you are made of light, literally, energy, light ... you are made of light. And as you think upon the idea that you are made of light, whether it be that you close your eyes and have a meditation, a momentary meditation, or whether you simply remember some image, or create some image in your mind that allows you to perceive yourself, your body as if it is made of light. Each and every atom becoming more and more energetic, more and more illuminated, beginning to shine, to glow of its own accord with inner light. And as your body is composed of all of these small shining stars, you begin to see your entire body glow with one light ... as you illuminate yourself, you will increase, enhance, accelerate and uplift your energy.

Now, we do not tell you this for the purpose of ignoring, avoiding, denying, or glossing over any important feelings you may have, be they feelings of sadness, sorrow, anger, fear. We do not mean for you to gloss these over and ignore them and press them down, we do not mean for you to suppress them. But the idea is, if you will allow yourself a moment of illumination to remember that you are a being of light, that you are having an experience that is simply being translated into energetic terms, then you can, by uplifting your energy in this way, by taking this moment of illumination, give yourself the ability, remind yourself that you have the power to deal with these feelings, with these circumstances, with these situations.

And also the greatest benefit of allowing yourself to take this moment of illumination will be in putting yourself in a different state, a different frequency, a different vibrational reality. And in so doing, you will then create the ability to attract into your mind’s eye, into your imagination, courses that you can take, opportunities that you may not have seen before, options that you may not have been aware were available to you in your previous state, perhaps of despair, or sadness, or confusion, or anger, or frustration, or fear. These states, by definition, will prevent you from being capable of seeing how you can transform those states. Those states will only bring with them, by definition, options that are commensurate with those states, with those vibrational levels, and so they will have a tendency to perpetuate more fear, more frustration, despair, as you say, depression.

But if you will take a moment to illuminate yourself and raise your energy vibrational level, in such times as these may occur to you, then you can, without denying the feeling you are having, plug yourself into the vibrational state that allows you to see the difference between the vibrational state of joy and ecstasy, and the vibrational state you may have been existing in. And give you an opportunity to tap into opportunities and circumstances, ideas, inspirations, that can help you learn from the previous feeling, help you figure out how to transform these ideas, and give you new insight into what avenues, what paths, what actions to take that can bring you to a different level, a different plane, and allow you to reap the benefit of insight in understanding why those feelings did exist. Helping you to get in touch with your definitions so that you can change them, because only from those definitions do feelings come.

So give yourself an opportunity to do this, to play with your vibrational state, up and down the scale of frequencies, up and down the spectrum, to go from the dark, slower vibration, to the higher, lighter vibration of energy. And without, as I have said, denying the feeling you had, put yourself in two places, make a comparison – remember the state you were in, remember the feeling you were having, but at the same time oscillate back and forth between that lower level and the higher level; so that you can give yourself the point of view, the parallax necessary, the perspective necessary to see from the higher position how you can deal more effectively, more creatively, with the lower position, with the more frustrating position. To make it less frustrating by giving yourself the opportunity to function in this higher state as your higher self, as your illuminated self, to see what your higher self would do in the circumstance, because you are your higher self when you choose to be.

So, illumination used in this way, to create this double point of view, will give you a more dimensional perspective on your circumstance and situation, so that you do not necessarily have to feel the weight of the world on your shoulders, that there is no way out of your circumstance. That you do not have to perceive what you are going through as a dilemma, but only as an opportunity for change, for an opportunity in increasing your perspective, and understanding yourself more deeply. For that is what it is all about, understanding and remembering more of who you are, learning how to use that in a daily, pragmatic and practical application ... benefiting from the results of that insight and that perspective, and growing and experiencing more creativity and joy and abundance as a result.

That is it, that is what it is all about ... becoming, learning, remembering who you already are ... this is one way, one technique. This illumination moment is one technique to allow you more opportunity to remember and experience, most importantly, experience, who you already are, for that is again what it is all about. You are choosing to experience yourselves as physical beings, therefore, seeing yourself as energy, as light, will allow you to experience that side of yourself as well, simultaneously, and you can use this perspective to your advantage in many ways. Allow your imagination to be your guide. We thank you now for allowing us to share this idea, which we have called, illumination.
You Are Spirit II

B: All right, I’ll say, how are you all this evening of your time, as you create time to exist?
AUD: Good. Great. Etc...

B: Allow us to begin this interaction this evening of your time with a few more ideas of sharing of the individual paths that you have chosen to be in this physiological life – this time around. Recognize, once again, that even though you are, as you understand it, a reincarnational being, the you that you are right now is the only time you will ever be this you. This is the only one life you, as the you you are now, have to live.

Therefore, in the idea that we have been sharing with you for quite some time about the willingness, the conviction and the expression of the unique individual that you have created yourself to be, the unique facet that you are of the multidimensional crystal of the Infinite Creation, the more and more and more that you are willing to express what you know to be true for you, then more and more and more do you make, as an individual – yes, as an individual – a difference in the entire structure of the society in which you exist.

For you will find that you are connected to everything, and any change you make within yourself affords an opportunity for the entire community, the entire civilization, if you wish to call it that, in which you exist to be able to then draw upon the change you have made – if they prefer with the reality, the unique reality that they are themselves, to share that reality with you. Then by you creating your unique version of what you know to be true for you, do you give them the opportunity to see in you yet one more way that there may be of expressing themselves and living the lives they have chosen to live. Thus you add to the overall ability of the society you are in to have that many more options of choice, that many more recognitions of expansiveness.

Recognize, as we have said, there is no one way to do anything. If there was only one way, there would only be one person – look around you. Each and every single one of you is one of the ways that the Infinite Creation has of manifesting Itself. What you, quote/unquote, brought with you, what you feel to be that within you that moves you in life is your very simple and clear recognition of the path that is correct for you. Your excitement – that which we have spoken of with you many times, what you call excitement, your knowingness, that which you know to be true for you, or that in life which excites you, which moves you – that is your cognition of the path you chose to be.

That’s what excitement is for. It is there to let you know that if you simply follow the idea that excites you, you will be congruent, if you will, synchronistically harmonious, if you will, with the original idea that you chose to express yourself as in this physiological life. That is why you can follow that excitement and recognize that your life can proceed to unfold without effort, without strife, without struggle. We do not mean you will remove the idea of discovery. You will not remove the idea of growth. You will not remove the idea of challenge, but you will alleviate the ideas of struggling, of suffering, of striving, of pain. You do not need those; those are tools that have served you well in the past, but you are now a new you. This is the transformational age upon your world, when you are beginning to recognize that there are many more levels of consciousness to be in communication with than you previously conceived of as a society. And that cognition alone, in and of itself, means that, therefore, you can now transform your life, your individual life – and therefore, the opportunity of all the lives upon your planet. You can transform them in ways that are indicative of your new awareness, for if you are aware that there are many levels of consciousness, many different beings within creation, then you are aware that everything can function as a whole, can function as a unit. Everything can be shared, individual consciousnesses and whole groups of consciousnesses can be of service to other groups, be of service to individuals. All can be explored together within ecstasy, within love, within light, within life. Therefore, draw upon your certain knowledge that there are scapes, if you will, landscapes, spirit-scapes, consciousness-scapes of existence with which you are intimately intermingled, intimately melded and intimately blended. And with that assurance within yourself, allow yourself to expand in the representational way that is correct for you into the understanding that you are spirit. The idea of the so-called spiritual paths that many of you have been seeking, as you say upon your planet, is the simple cognition that you are spirit. Everything you do, in a sense, therefore, is spiritual. The idea is now for you to decide whether you wish to exemplify and reflect and express yourself in a positive or a negative spirituality. But the idea is that now you can know you are spirit. You are one with all the different levels. You have conceived of the idea that there are in fact levels out of the one homogenousness of the Infinite Creation. It is your doing; it is your own illusion, if you will. Not that that invalidates it, for it has served you like anything has served you, it has brought you to where you are now. Therefore, do not deny and do not invalidate that of your past. Incorporate it, knowing it has brought you to where you are. Treat it and think of it as a stepping stone. Love it for the experience that it brought you, so that you could be understanding what you are understanding now. And then by loving all of those ideas that in their own timing may have seemed to be so painful, so negative – by loving them now you will then create the type of past – for you do create your past from your present, not the other way around – you will then create the type of effect coming from your past that will support you in the present, will allow you to create whatever type of new present you desire, once again without struggle, without strife, but only within joy of expression, within ecstasy. Are you all following along?

AUD: Yes.

B: Now, last week of your time we discussed the idea of your sensitivity to electromagnetic shifts upon your planet, some of which may or may not be expressed, as you call it, seismically. This evening of your time, after your break time, we will engage, if you will, if you are willing, with you in a visualization, a meditation, to allow you to begin to function – each and every one of you and collectively function – as a valve, so to speak, through which the electromagnetic field of your world can be channeled. And any energy that you perceive might have the potential of manifesting in your world in a negative way can then be re-channeled through you and manifested in a positive way upon your world. For now you are recognizing that because you innately deserve happiness, you do not have to shake yourselves up or go through trials by fire in order to believe that you deserve happiness.

And so, if you are willing to take those steps, and take them now, you can then release much of that energy that may be pent up, expressing itself, or potentially expressing itself in negative ways, catastrophic ways, and transform that energy into another type of energy, an energy that can support and sustain and enliven and enrich the entire society in which you live. Use it creatively. You all follow me?

Q: Yes. Yes.

B: Therefore, the idea is that all we are sharing with you, and all that any consciousness is sharing with you at this time, is that you do have the power to create your lives as you desire them to be. The idea is to simply wake up— and start dreaming... and live those dreams. Live those desires – with knowledge, with intention, with integrity, with knowingness, with faith and with trust and unconditional love. Sharing.

“You Are Spirit”
Living your physical life to the fullest you possibly can is what will allow you to be of best service to yourself and everyone else, simultaneously. So, living your physical life to the fullest – by acting on your highest joy, the thing that is most naturally you, at any given moment – is the most spiritual thing you can do, because you are a Spirit. You don’t have a Spirit, you are a Spirit, in physical terminology, that’s all. You also, multidimensional, have multiple simultaneous existences on all different levels as well. But in terms of perspective from the physical reality, you have to understand and remember that you are not in physical reality, physical reality is in you. Because what you call "out there" doesn’t really exist. There is no "out there," it’s a mirror. There’s nothing there, it’s reflecting everything back. Nothing is out there.
You are Spirit – you have the notion of yourself, you are perceiving and interacting with yourself in what you might call a physical idea. But your physical self is within you. As it has been said on your planet, quite precisely, it is not that you are a human having a Spiritual experience, you are really more a Spirit having a human experience.
You Are Your Government

Q: You mentioned that this was activity month. (April)
B: Oh, did you bring your pen and paper?
Q: That I’ve got.
B: All right.
Q: What would you like me to do?
B: I would suggest – you do not have to do anything – I would suggest that each and every one of you now begin the idea of knowing that you are your government: your political institutions, your social institutions, your religious institutions, your economic institutions. You are these ideas; and that, without admonitions, without accusations, without demands - but from complete and total unconditional love - that you communicate with them every single day.
And let them know that you prefer peace. Let them know. Talk to them. Send them a letter every single day. For are you not alive every single day?
Q: Mhmm.
B: Then communicate every single day. They will get the message. If all of you do that every single day, they will get the message. If all of you do that every single day, they will begin to think that that is truly what you want. And they may allow themselves to go along and co-create the idea that they, too, can let it be all right for them to also prefer peace.
Share with whatever your imagination allows you to share. Allow it to come from you – not from us, from you. No accusations. But if you are willing to understand that you know that they know that there are interactions with other civilizations – simply let them know that you know. And that it is all right for them to let you know – so that you can share the experience together. They do not have to take responsibility for your fear anymore; you are now beyond panic. You are “big children.”
Q: (Inaudible.)
B: If you say so.
Q: Would telepathic dialogues not be effective?
B: You can do this as well. But we are speaking of action on every level; and since you obviously allow yourselves to master physiological action, the rest of it will take care of itself. The willingness to do, is now what you are going to be willing to exemplify – or not. Is it not worth the small amount of time it takes to sit down and express – in a very brief and loving statement – “I prefer peace. Thank you very much. Your loving equal.”
Q: Do you have a suggestion as to which level of government?
B: Level! You are your own governments!
Q: I mean in physical terms, since we are communicating in physical terms.
B: All of them, then. If you are choosing to see more than one level, write to all of them - cover them all. Why leave any of them out?
Q: It’s a lot.
B: A lot! Do you not understand that individuals who are willing to be peace would not care if they had to write to every single individual on the planet? For them it would be an act of joy and love to share the peace that they have within them with everyone. Why not allow everyone to get a letter? Do they not deserve it?
Send them where you will – whatever feels right for you – knowing that however you do it, is perfect. Thank you.
Q: There are those in this world that, let’s say, have irrational behavior…
B: I am hearing a belief system coming up. I am hearing an excuse.
Q: No. There are those who…
B: Uh, uh, uh, uh! Who are you speaking for?
Q: Well, in reality, only for myself.
B: Thank you. End of conversation. Your reality is your reality. If you insist on believing that, “there are those who,” then you are saying that is the reality you experience. And will continue to experience, because that is the reality you believe in.
Again: if you are willing to know you are the reality of peace, define that reality for yourself. If, in your reality of peace, there are no longer “those who,” then don’t continue to act as if there are “those who” anymore.
Q: Mhmm.
B: All right. Treat them as if they are “those who do not.” And then you will be acting as if you are the one who does. Do you follow me?
Q: Sure.
B: Well, thank you very much.
Q: Thank you very much.
Your Mission

Q: Could you tell me if I have a mission?

B: Your mission? You all have one. The fundamental purpose of each and every one of your lives is to completely be who you chose to be, completely. Which means, start acting like it. Many of you can create any type of goal, any type of mission, any type of purpose within your life, but the fundamental reason that your life exists at all is to simply be this particular you, right now; because you will never be this you again, ever. So, fully being the you you chose to be is the basic purpose to your life, the basic mission.

You are one of the facets of the multi-dimensional crystal of All That Is. By fully being your facet, which means being true to you, and acting upon it, then you will form a full and complete reflection to everyone else, as to what facet you happen to be; so everyone else knows where they stand relative to you. When you fill yourself to the edges of your facet, when everyone else decides to fill themselves to the edges of their facet, then all your facets touch, and you become the one crystal. You follow me?

So, your “mission,” should you decide to accept it... (much audience laughter) ...it is not so “impossible” you know... (more laughter) ...is to do what excites you. Excitement is the physical translation of the vibration that represents the path you chose to be. It is your barometer, follow it. You get excited for a reason, excitement is a harmonic resonance that lets you know you are aligned with your mission. Follow it, trust that if you act upon your intuition, your instinct and your imagination and your excitement, you will always automatically, synchronistically, be supported.

Every idea comes complete, with all the ingredients necessary for the manifestation and the continuance of that idea. The universe does not do pointless things. Therefore, any idea you are willing to be, that is the idea your reality reflects one hundred percent, always. So, if you find that your reality, as it is, is not what you prefer it to be, then redefine the idea that you are, start living like that is the way your reality is. Take it for granted that you can trust that if you start acting like the reality, acting like the vibration you think is true for you, the physical universe has no choice but to reflect that physical reality to you. It reflects whatever you believe your physical reality is capable of being, and exactly to that level. All right? How’s that for a mission?

Q: (Laughter) All right, thank you.

B: Thank you.

Your Soul’s Essence

Bashar: First of all, in this way, we have said, many times of late in your time frame, the idea that that which you consider to be your personality is an artificial construct and is not who nor what you are. Therefore, allow us to address some of the ideas about what you are. In this way, recognize that though you have created, for many thousands of your years of time, as you count time, as you create time, the idea that you are a humaniform existence, understand, in this way, that the idea of your humanity, the essence of what you are, in this way, is not restricted to what you call your humaniform existence. Now, begin to allow yourselves to recognize that in a non-physical state you are not human; you are quite something else. And that something else, that essence, that primal idea of your energy consciousness, your being, your soul, if you will, is the idea of all that it can be, and can project itself as, basically, any form, any symbol, any idea it wishes to.

Now, we know that your civilization, at this time, does recognize, to some degree, at least intellectually, as you say, the idea that you are not non-physically human, and that humanity is only the idea of the physical reflection of soul. But, in this way, also realize that many of you, because of the habit of being human, many times may not realize that when you think of the idea of the disembodied soul, you still find yourself making the analogy that it is a human soul. Do you follow me?

Q: Yes.

B: Understand, the soul, the energy essence, the consciousness, the being, is not intrinsically human. Now, you may find, in this way, that the idea of many different civilizations within the third, fourth density reality that you are experiencing do have similar humaniform or, what you would call, humanoid appearance. In this way, recognize also, that from our perspective, in considering ourselves to be our own form of human, to us you are humanoid. But recognize, in this way, our Soulness, your Soulness, is not human, humanoid ... it is an essence that is above and beyond and transcends that limited definition. Therefore, begin to understand that one of the reasons, as you make the shift from third to fourth density and recognize more of your consciousness to be what it is, one of the reasons you are beginning to experience many ideas that disorient you and confuse you, and do not seem to fit into the structure you are used to, is because you are beginning to view, from time to time, from a point of view that is not strictly human. It is the essential viewpoint of the beingness, the consciousness that you are, which can be human and many other things.

Recognize, in this way, that you can begin to understand yourselves, in this homogenous sense, as everything and nothing, at the same time ... as a principle, as an idea, as an essence. Now, in this way, by simply allowing yourself to view, from the viewpoint of this essentialness of your existence, many of the things that are now beginning to occur to you, in your transformation from third to fourth density, may carry a new clarity, if you allow yourselves the opportunity to discontinue the limitation of expecting everything to make sense in humaniform terms. For, in this way, the idea of the projection of your humanity has been a definition that has served you and, in a sense, will continue to serve you, even through the idea of your fourth density experience. Although the type of humanity that you will be in fourth density is not the same type that you were in third.

You are, in your terms, evolving once again, and you will find, in a sense, to speak linearly, that further on in the middle, let us say, and very much so toward the end of your fourth density cycle, you will not be, so to speak, humaniform in the way you have considered yourselves to be at all. In this way, as you progress from quasi planar physical reality to non-physical existence by going from fourth to fifth density, you will, in this way, allow yourselves the opportunity to experientially become the energy matrix of focused consciousness within the homogenous energy field of All That Is that you actually are. And in this way, the idea of expressing yourself as humanity, will be a tool no longer necessary for your experience. The idea of humanity, though well it has served you, in this way, is again, yet but another tool you have clothed yourself within, to suit the purposes that you choose to explore and experience. Do recognize that, as you all exist on different planes of reality simultaneously; there are many other guises that you also exist within, that are human, humanoid, and not human at all.

In this way, by simply shifting the perspective of your consciousness, you may even, as you make your transformation from third to fourth density, begin to understand that, from time to time as it suits, in the creation of your transformation, there may be opportunities to look even through the eyes of the aspects of yourself that have nothing at all to do with humanity. For it will broaden your perspective in many different ways, though you will remain focused, for the most part, in the idea of your humaniform fourth density existence. As long as that suits the purpose of this fragment of your consciousness that is channeling through the prism of this artificial personality construct that you call your human body. Do you all follow along?

Q: Yes.
B: Sharing.
Q: Bashar.
B: Yes.
Q: Lately, I feel lighter. I feel my body less, I feel lighter and lighter...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and I’m fascinated with the non-physical. Now I . . . from time to time, I’m in touch with the fifth density aspect of myself that is non-physical, and yet I see, I feel, a female energy and I see her physically, because like you just said, we’re used to seeing the...
B: Yes.
Q: What other way ... what is more truer to what that non-physical would look like? Anything at all, or...
B: In a sense, if you wish, you may, in your imagination, simply form the idea of an energy sphere, a sphere of light, if you will.

Q: Okay.

B: That carries with it, though it is still a symbol ... symbols which are, in your terms, perhaps, a more accurate reflection of the way, or the manner in which that form of consciousness seeks to consolidate itself, or identify itself, within the homogenous energy matrix of All That Is ... relative to the way you choose to do so for yourself.

Q: Okay. Now, but actually would non-physicalness look like anything in particular? I know you just said it was a symbol...

B: Not really.

Q: Ah, that’s interesting.

B: Now understand, again, that anything you perceive in this way, you are going to create a symbol so that you can understand it from the perspective in which you are existing.

Q: Sure.

B: Including the idea that it has a, quote/unquote, "feminine aspect."

Q: Hmm.

B: For the idea of masculine, feminine, are, again, simply the idea of energy polarities manifesting in ways that make sense to you in physical dimensionality. The soul is fundamentally, not exactly truly masculine or feminine, or really even both. The idea of masculinity and femininity, in the way you experience them emotionally, is a physiological manifestation, and the same energy when viewed from a non-physical reality does not carry the same type of effect or impact. It is felt in a totally different way altogether.

Q: Thank you.
Your Vibrational Response To World Events

B: Sharing!
Q: Hi.
B: Hi.
Q: Since the harmonic convergence I...
B: Speak up. Speak up! Share, share, share with all.
Q: Okay. Since the harmonic convergence I’ve been feeling disoriented and tired and off balance...
B: Yes.
Q: ... and my son seemed to be going through the same thing. And we were told it’s from the energy being beamed to the earth. Can you tell me any more?
B: In a sense, keep it simple. Simply recognize that you are now allowing there to be the idea that there is more energy than there used to be, even though there isn’t. But you are becoming more aware of the energy that is available and therefore, to you, it is the same thing as having more energy.
Again: the disorientation is simply the time you are creating for yourself to get used to the new level of energy. You are dis-orienting yourself from the old reality, and re-orienting yourself into a new one. New definitions. This is why this evening of your time we began with the understanding of clear intention, clear definition, clear desire, clear deservability and clear action. They will re-orient you very quickly.
Use the energy; use the limbo state to define what you prefer. Then act accordingly, and you will be aligned. You will be re-oriented. Remember that some of this disorientation, as we have said before, is also part of the process, if you wish, of literal, literal disillusionment. You are redefining your physical reality as an extension of you.
It is the same energy you are; it is the idea you are; it is made of your consciousness. So in a sense, now that everything is dissolving in its old definitional sense, you are becoming disoriented because there isn’t as much solid structure to hold on to. You are floating in the center of your being; making up your mind as to what the new structure will be like. Understand?
Q: Yes, thank you.
B: Thank you very much. Keep it simple. Enjoy! Laugh! Sharing!
Q: Hello.
B: Hello!
Q: Um, the... you said that we create our universe, basically based on our own beliefs.
B: Yes.
Q: Now, I can kind of understand that from my own personal life that’s fairly close to me.
B: Yes.
Q: But does this also mean that I have complete and utter control over world events, as I see them from my point of view?
B: To some degree, there are mass consciousness agreed-upon ideas that you generally support and share in, to take you all where you are all going collectively, as well as individually. But you have the opportunity to weave in and out of any mass event in any way, shape or form that is representative of the reality you prefer to be specifically.
So, even though you may participate on the whole in the overall mass agreed-upon events, you will be able to experience the effect of your participation relative to the vibration you set yourself up to be. It doesn’t mean that it has to affect you the same way it would affect someone else, even though you both participate in what is essentially the same event. Understand?
Q: I think so. Let me…
B: And you will add your unique perspective to it the more you participate consciously within it. So in that sense, yes, you do have an impact. You are a part of the overall equation. If you were different, the overall equation would be different. No matter how subtle that seems to you, remember that any change in the present that is made, that is subtle, creates vast and impactful differences in what you call the future.
Q: Okay. Now let me just give an example to see if this is the type of understanding…
B: All right.
Q: …that you’re talking about.

B: All right.
Q: Let’s just say that there are two different ways to achieve peace in Nicaragua.
B: All right. There are two different ways to achieve peace in Nicaragua.
Q: Right. Now, I think that one way is the ideal way, and my neighbor thinks that the other way is the ideal way.
B: Yes.
Q: Will I experience in the news, in newspapers and television – and if I went to Nicaragua – the way I believe? And the neighbor right next door will see on television, read in the newspapers, and go down to Nicaragua – and experience the belief he believes in, which is different?
B: It can happen that way, although generally what happens upon your planet is that you both come to some consensus, or third reality, that represents enough of your individual realities to be satisfactory and sufficient for both of you to share it – because, after all, the whole idea is to share, not to segregate.
So the idea that will usually occur is an idea you can both share somewhat, rather than completely segregating the idea. But you can create a segregated effect, yes. And in a sense, it is done all the time, because there are different parallel realities. And one person who absolutely believes one particular way – and is absolutely not able to contain the other belief – then each of those individuals will experience completely segregated realities.

It can happen that way, but the whole idea is to blend. So, more often than not, you will simply find that you will meet on some common ground that will allow you to experience ideas in specific ways that fulfill each of you, while still being represented from an overall idea that is generally satisfying to the majority of your planet. Understand?

Q: Okay. So that means that – using the same example – peace will occur in Nicaragua. And my beliefs and my neighbor’s beliefs will blend; and the result will be the peace that we both wanted.

B: Basically, yes. For when it comes right down to your clearest definition, and your highest representation of integrity and intention – if the peace is created, and if it is done with integrity, do you really care how it gets there?

Q: Well, it can make a difference in a sense, because…

B: How?

Q: In one way, perhaps, there could be a lot of oppression and death…

B: Did you hear what I said? If the peace is done with integrity, do you really care how it gets there?

Q: I got what you mean by integrity, so…

B: Keep it simple. In other words, if the peace is created without harm coming to anyone, does it matter how it happens?

Q: Not particularly.

B: All right. Then allow yourself to recognize that you will both get what you want, if it simply fulfills the general description of your desire that peace occurs with the most amount of integrity it possibly can occur with.

Q: Okay. And this can be done with beliefs. Today you talked about…

B: Yes. And action.

Q: Can you do it with beliefs only?

B: The idea is that something you really absolutely strongly believe in, you will act upon. The two are not segregated. There is no such thing really as a belief only. For if you have what you call a belief, and you do not act accordingly in some way, shape or form, then it is not really a belief.

It may be a recognition, but it is not really a belief – not in the fullest sense of the meaning of the word. For what you really believe in, you act upon. Actions and beliefs are tied together, in that sense. They are one thing: you act, as you believe; and as you believe, you will act.

Q: Well, like, for instance, I work every day doing work that has nothing to do with the war in Nicaragua.

B: Not directly, perhaps.
Q: And occasionally I will write a letter to my Congressman. Is that the type of thing you’re talking about?

B: To some degree, the writing of the letter is an action, and is representative of your belief. Now, it can expand in its definition; it can expand in its scope, if that’s what excites you. But the writing of the letter is, nonetheless, an action.

Q: And with the belief to back that up, then the peace that I’m looking for can take place, just with my own personal self doing it.

B: Yes. Yes. As long as you understand that you are not segregating yourself from any opportunity that might come along to represent your ability to act on it in a more expanded way.

Q: Thank you.

B: Thank you. Sharing!

Q: Hey, I understand that on your planet your people have white/whitish-gray skin.
B: Yes.
Q: Okay. Well, if you’d be willing to share with us your spacecraft technology...
B: Now, we already have, to some degree, but as you know, it is not yet the right timing.
Q: Well, I was going to say, in order to accelerate that timing, we would be happy to share our sun-tanning technologies with you.
B: No, thank you.
Q: Okay. That’s a joke, anyway.
B: Yes.
Q: I’ve just finished reading “Intruders,” by Bud Hopkins, which I believe you know of. A book which talks about the encounters that several people on our planet have had with extraterrestrials abductions, where they have been taken aboard the craft...
B: At this time we would suggest a replacement for that term. Rather than abductions, perhaps ...
"detainments."
Q: Detainments. Okay. Anyway, they underwent examinations of various kinds. The account in the book indicated that there was some pain and discomfort and a lot of fear created on the part of the detainees.
B: Yes. Generally the fear is what creates the pain and discomfort. There usually is no real inherent pain or discomfort in the interaction – except what is caused by the fear. Part of the reasons for those interactions is to release those fears, so there will no longer be any form of fear, pain or discomfort in your lives. That is one of the reasons for those interactions. They are all being made by agreement, even though your conscious minds may not remember those agreements.
Q: Some of the pain has been physical pain, in that there have been probes placed up into the nostrils.
B: Yes. Some of this is physical, and some of it is not. Some of it is such a strong telepathic idea that you think it is physical.
Q: Knowing that these people have agreed to have these interactions, then, since they have agreed, why are they still creating the fear? And then corollary to that: one of the detainees said, "We wouldn’t really mind it if the aliens would just come out and say, 'Hey, would you be willing to do this?' And we would be. They don’t have to abduct us. " ... That made a lot of sense to me.
B: Yes. Understand, of course, that the agreements are usually unconscious; that is part of the reason. Many times, as long as the agreements are unconscious, an individual may consciously say, "Oh well, wouldn’t it be nice if it were to happen this way?" But when it comes right down to it, the fear comes up anyway.

Q: Well, if the agreements are unconscious, can they not also be done consciously?
B: Obviously on your behalf, not yet, otherwise there would be no fear – for the fear is an indication that it cannot yet be done consciously.

Q: Yet there is this request on the part of at least one of the interviewed detainees that the aliens come out and make a conscious request.
B: Yes, but that is after the fact.

Q: True. Well, what I’m also doing here is suggesting that these agreements start being made on a conscious level – and perhaps you can be our ambassador?
B: They are doing so more and more. Do understand one very important thing: all the individuals who have been chosen – even those who seem to go through abject terror – are actually quite close to integrating the last remnants of their fears. We are choosing all those who are very close indeed to the end of having fear. So you may realize that when you see them having that much fear, if that’s an indication of a small part of the total fear that your society has, just imagine if someone were to be chosen who had more fears than that! So the individuals we are choosing are the ones, many times, who are the closest to integration, the closest to conscious recognition. And yet they still have that amount of fear.

Q: I see. Are these individuals also helping to drain off the fears of the rest of us through themselves?
B: Yes! They have agreed to do this for all of you. That is why they are now sharing their experiences – so you can vicariously go through their "ordeal" with them, get in touch with the fear left within you and integrate it. Then the next series of interactions can become more and more conscious.

Q: Okay. I am contemplating sending a copy of this tape to the guy who wrote the book.
B: By all means.

Q: Do you have any final comments that you’d like to communicate to him and to his people in the book?
B: Only that we appreciate that he is doing what he agreed to do. And he is making a difference in the ability of your entire planet to allow your society and our respective societies to live in harmony with each other.

Communition
Q: I’ve been under this dark cloud after reading a couple of books recently. One of them is a brand new book called, “Communion,” by Whitley Strieber.
B: That initial reaction is not unusual for your society; but no need to fear. All the fear that you may experience in the idea of those interactions basically stems from that individual experiencing those interactions and allowing himself to release the fears that have been planted in his life. And also, nothing has happened in those interactions that the individual did not agree to at some point in his life – although, granted, it is on an unconscious level. Everything is done by agreement - everything!

Those extraterrestrials were assisting that individual in releasing much of that fear. Thus, at this time he is very much aware of what the purpose of that idea was. I’m not saying he has come to terms with all of his fears, but he understands that the fear he felt was basically from himself, not from them.

Now, those beings have interacted with many beings on your world. One of their primary functions, per the agreements they have made with many of you, is to assist you in releasing your fear. It may be a very fearful process while you go through it, but you agreed to experience it. You know what you are doing. All you need to do, if you find yourself in that interaction, is to trust that you know what you are doing. The more trust and love you have, the less you will feel the interaction in a format of fear. That’s all it takes.

Remember, a higher vibratory state exposing itself to a lower vibratory state will raise the vibration of the lower being to force it to face many things it has not been willing to face within itself, and that is what the being is terrified of. But that being is dealing with it, integrating the fear and transforming it into positive understanding. That has been one of the purposes for those interactions, because it was understood that that being, that author, would communicate his experiences, allowing other individuals to come to terms with their own fears, so that by the next wave of interactions there would be less fear to integrate.

Q: I understand that, but my reaction was that the book might be scaring more people than it is uplifting.

B: That’s all right, because it will still allow them to face certain ideas, to come to terms with them; and again, these things are done with agreements, do not forget. Your entire planet, on one level, is agreeing to this particular type of teaching. It doesn’t have to happen that way; it’s completely up to your world as to whether or not it will wake up or be shaken awake.

Q: Well, I think that that book has perhaps dis-advanced the progression, because it’s sort of creating the opposite effect of, for instance, your teachings.

B: No. I understand what you are saying, but there are many individuals who cannot relate to the idea in any other way. Therefore, they have been given the tools that will work best for them. True, it isn’t for everyone, but it will hit those who need it. And do not necessarily view it as a disvalue, because then you will reinforce the inability of certain people to absorb it. Know that it will evolve where it needs to. It has already awakened many.

Q: How does it serve the extraterrestrials to contact us in what appears to be frightening ways, at least to our conscious minds?

B: Understand that different individuals in different cultures have different methods; different cultures think and perceive in different ways. The intention is always there to be felt for what it is, and the Zeta’s intentions can always be sensed to be loving, in an overall way. The methodology through which those intentions are expressed, however, can and do seem alien to you. Their thought patterns are alien to yours, and so there is that fear, that dichotomy, that often crops up in your society when you see something that is extremely different from you.

It is not so much that they have an absolute desire to approach you in specific methods that will generate fear. It is just that because of your methods, their natural methods do in fact generate it. They are not necessarily about to alter their entire psychological structure to accommodate you beyond a certain point. They know you can handle it, and they know you have agreed to learn how to handle it. Learning to do so is one part of the agreement, a part about which many of you are not aware.

Q: Yes, I can see that, because there’s a point in the book at which he says to one of them, "You have no right." And she says, "Yes we do."

B: Yes. The right was granted by the agreement that was made. Many individuals on your planet do wish that contact with us and other civilizations. These Reticulum beings are primarily doing the job of acclimatizing many individuals on your world in ways that are buffered. Even though the individuals may experience many degrees of fear, it is actually a far smoother transition than they would have experienced had the alien beings simply come to them straight out, first time full blown.

Bit-by-bit these individuals have been contacted over long periods of their lives, many times from when they were children. And bit-by-bit they are allowed to remember more and more of the interaction until they get to a point where they realize there is nothing to fear. They can handle it, and then the contact can occur more openly and more obviously.

Q: I thought it was very significant that every person to whom Strieber talked who had had a similar experience – even though some of them were still frightened, and didn’t know if they were going crazy, or if it was their imagination or what – still in spite of all that, they felt love and affection.

B: Yes, at this point in their lives. To put it simply: the aliens are acting within their integrity to the best of their ability, but they are not responsible for the way you have created your society to be, and the reactions that you often have. You have made the agreement; they are fulfilling the agreement. They are doing it in the way that is easiest for you.

As we have said, when you encounter those beings, for the first time in your conscious life, perhaps, you will actually get a reflection on how powerful you are. Any fear that might come from that is merely a reaction to the belief that you cannot possibly contain that much power. And therefore, "It isn’t coming from you, and so it might destroy you." But it can’t. It is an absolute reflection of you – and that is what you are learning.

Fear’s Message

Q: So how do you stop letting fear control you and take over your life?

B: Know it is your friend. It is giving you messages, tap, tap. “Look here! Here’s a part of yourself you didn’t know existed: I’m bringing it to your attention. Isn’t that wonderful? Now that you are aware of it, you can integrate it into the rest of you and be more of who you are. Haven’t I done you a wonderful service?” “No? What do you mean you didn’t want to see that part of yourself? I thought you wanted to see everything there was to see, experience every facet of the multidimensional existence that you are. Do you not want to integrate it in yourself so that you can accelerate? ... You’re not sure? Well, all right. I’ll hang around until you are sure, until you allow me to deliver the message. Of course, as long as I hang around, you might as well feed me, pay for my meals, allow me to grow and become a live-in. I’ll get stronger and stronger and nag you constantly until you allow me to deliver my message so I can get out of here.

That is the only reason fear is there – because you do not allow it to deliver the message it brings; because you attempt to reject the message, thinking it is something not worth having.

Q: Well, if fear is delivering a message, I don’t always know what the message is. I would rather have the message than the fear.

B: Well now, I am not saying this is something that carries any more power than you do, but many of you have put much stock in the belief of habits. And so because you believe things can happen in your lives habitually, as second nature, without even knowing you are doing it, then many times you do not even realize you are rejecting the message coming from the fear, and doing so before you can even think about it. You do not pay attention quickly enough.

Therefore, it is a matter of allowing yourselves to know that the messages are there, that you can hear them. Even allowing yourselves to be fascinated by the fact that the fear might be bringing a message can curtail or dull the negativity – just because you might be fascinated enough to say, "Well, what is the message?" The minute you become curious, no more fear.

Q: Could you give me an example of what kind of message a fear would bring?

B: Well, one such as this: you are walking down one of your streets. Someone walks up to you, and all of a sudden you are fearful. "What do they want? What do they want? Why are they bothering me? I do not want to be accosted. Are they going to rob me? What do they want?"

"Excuse me, do you have the time?" "Oh! Well, yes." "Thank you very much. Good bye." "Why was I so fearful? Why was I so automatically fearful without knowing anything at all?" Assumptions and structures that you build; habits that you believe in. The message is there that lets you know that reaction shows you the beliefs you have within you, structures within you that you may not prefer. That may be the message. If you do not prefer to live that way, then you have now allowed yourselves to let the fear show you these beliefs are within you. Now you can change them. That is one way you can allow fear to deliver a message.

Q: Yes. Of course, there is a situation where a guy does have a gun under his coat...

B: Yes. So?

Q: Fear is really telling you to get out of there!

B: All right now, once again, understand that that situation can occur that way, but it also does not have to. The idea of knowing your reality, and knowing it without fear, can give you the cognition that the event is there. But you know it will not affect you in any negative way. Cognition of a situation does not have to create fear.

Q: True. But what I’m saying is that sometimes the sensation of a fear comes up, and I go, "Well, look at that. That’s neat." And I find that I’m able not to feel fearful because I’m in the moment, and I know that there will be a positive outcome. So, if that does occur, then what is the message? Or have I just made the message unnecessary?

B: Yes. The minute you begin to become curious, you have gotten the message. The idea of many of the fears is to simply spur your curiosity to begin exploring that facet of yourself. That is all. It is a gentle reminder. And the more you are willing to explore, the gentler the nudges become, until you just do not experience that fear anymore. Again, it is simply the idea of little bits and pieces of beliefs and remnants. That is all. Little twinges of old habits. But as soon as you acknowledge that it is something worth exploring... no more habit.

So in the case where the guy does come up and he’s got a gun, and his initial intention was to rob you or whatever, you will experience the fear and say, "Okay, I can just view this as a positive thing."

Q: That will flip us into the dimension where we co-create...

B: It can happen that way. It can also allow you to not come anywhere near that individual, and vice versa.

Q: Well, I’m saying he’s two feet in front of me...

B: But understand: you are missing the point. Not that it cannot switch in the middle of the idea, but generally speaking, you do not usually need to have that particular type of scenario to know that if you create your reality in a certain vibration, you will never meet that robber at all. He will take one street, and you will take another. You will not have to come down to the idea of the confrontation at all... although that may be one way individuals may find an exciting way to come to terms with what they believe in the moment. It is certainly valid, if they create it, and it has happened.

Q: Well, it sounds like what you’re saying is that in the case of my going down a street other than the one he goes down, I’ve already dealt with my fears.

B: Yes, that is the point. If you are using the situation to allow the fear to be there in order to deal with it, then yes, you can transform the situation right in the middle. Therefore, recognize that if that is what you are willing to do, then the individual you have attracted is someone willing to change with you. And so, in a sense, it has already been changed.

The Facilitators
"The Facilitators" from the Zeta Reticulum.

The fear within you can be a tangible thing at times. We extend, in whatever way you will perceive it, our thanks for allowing us to evoke this fear from you. For in evoking this fear, you give yourselves the opportunity to experience that which you have locked within yourselves, that which creates a vibration, which is not conducive to our interaction with you in an easy manner. We thank you for allowing us to unlock this fear from you. For the temporary time you feel this fear, there will be a greater time of joy in your futures.

We are The Facilitators, and we thank you for allowing us the opportunity to function in this modality with you. We are your friends. You may not know us well yet, but you are beginning to. It is true that you have the capability – as do all beings within creation – of recognizing your own godhood. We choose to recognize our godhood in our own way – collectively, and you choose to recognize your godhood in your own way – individually. Not that we are not individuals; not that you are not a collective, but we are mirror expressions in many ways of the things that are feared within each other – or have been feared until now.

In allowing us to participate in the release of your fear, you give us the opportunity to give to all things past, within our civilization, and all the ideas of the fears of our own individuality that we have faced. You give us the opportunity to realize how that fear can be expressed in the individuals you are. As you look into our eyes, you will recognize only the mirror of your own soul and the potential of your own godhood. There is nothing in this to fear. But we thank you for allowing yourselves to feel that fear, even temporarily. For as you feel it, you will own it, and as you own it, you will transform it. For you have been told by many beings in various ways that you cannot transform what you do not own.

In realizing the mirrors of your own souls that you see in our eyes, allow yourselves the opportunity to accept and acknowledge your willingness to own the very idea, the very core, the vibration, that you call fear. Recognize it as those things you have shunted from yourselves in the many years you have lived on your planet, and for the various years and centuries we have been observing you.

We thank you for your release; we thank you for your blending. We thank you for your agreements; above and beyond all that, allow us to participate in the modality we are used to. We thank you for allowing us to be part of the exploration and the awakening of your world. We thank you for allowing us to help lift your eyelids to a new dawn and a new day. We thank you for allowing that new dawn and that new day to be something in which we will also participate with many other worlds – in our own good timing.

We thank you for allowing us to present to you the calling card of membership within The Association of Worlds. You will find it an exhilarating experience, we guarantee you. Recognize that all you may be passing through now, what you call fear, is a passing thing – truly a passing thing. Surely it will become the stuff of your legends; surely it will be something you will not be able to fathom as having been able to experience – in a very short time on your world. It will be the stuff of nightmares, and it will be as if you have truly awakened from a dream – and into another dream you prefer to dream.

We thank you for allowing us to be the windows of the eyes into your own souls, for you are only looking into that which is your own godhood, your own potential. We thank you for allowing us to open your eyes as widely. We meet upon the plane of understanding.

The Zeta Mirror

December 1988:

Q: I recently had a real interesting meditation, where I found myself apparently hovering over a
B: All right, let us say this: more than the idea that they are your people, you have very strongly tapped into certain things that are happening on your planet, certain reasons for why these things are going on. You are very tuned into the transformation that is taking place; you know the part those people are playing in interacting with your society. To some degree, what you are perceiving is the Zeta society; you are perceiving, from your point of view, sickness – because the idea is that they do, in fact, require something from your civilization, even as your civilization needs something from theirs.

The blending that is going on is going on for many reasons, but one of the most important ones is that in very many ways you do need each other to be what you are becoming. You see, they represent one side, the unified mind, which you do not understand, and you represent the other side, the individual conviction, which they do not understand.

They have something like a hive mentality, wherein all the bodies are representations of a unified linked mind. They are more of a mass mind, something many of you fear greatly. You are far more individualistic, which is something they fear greatly. The sickness is because they know that, to some degree, they are dying without you. And that is why the interaction is going on. From their point of view – were you to look at it the other way – you might see your planet as harboring the same kind of sickness.

Q: Does this mean this type of interaction will continue?

B: It will continue. And there will be more blending, as we perceive that idea. More and more information will come out, making it that much more easy for more blending to take place, until you allow yourselves to become whole within your own beings. And then you can allow each other to be reflections of the wholeness that you have become.

Q: So, in a sense, they’re mirroring us?

B: Oh, yes! They are polar to you, but they are mirroring you. It is very profound – all these different levels on which your first official encounter with extraterrestrial consciousness is taking place.

For you, then, I will simply suggest pleasant dreams, for you are being of assistance in the dream level in ways that you may not yet be aware of, but which you may become aware of very strongly within the next three years. Thank you.

Q: Thank you very much for being the teacher that you have chosen to be.

The Legacy
Q: You say you’re the channel’s future self?

B: ’Tis one-way of looking at it, yes.

Q: But it seems like you would be a definition in the channel’s consciousness of his higher self. And then you are created as the channel’s symbols.

B: In many ways that is so. As we have said, the reality that your world has always called real – the physical reality – is a particular vibratory wavelength. The vibratory wavelength that your reality has always considered to be unreal is actually the level we exist in. The level of dream, the level of etheric energy, is our solid reality. Therefore, we are very intertwined with your imagination, your archetypal energy.

You, therefore, have already unveiled a portion of the legacy. We are very much representative of your archetypal stream of consciousness. Now, that does not mean we do not have our own existence. It is only that your society is beginning to truly understand that what for you has been a fantasy realm is our real substantial dimension of existence. Now you are accelerating to meet that dimension of existence, where you will in a sense become someone else’s dream, someone else’s fantasy to their reality, respectively.

Yes, I am concocted out of all the ideas of the symbology of the channel’s mind. That is how you experience me in your world. At the same time, I have my own existence, although it doesn’t exactly parallel the way it happens for you; in very many ways, I could say that I know you and your civilization are concocted out of my symbology.

And now let us express the idea to you that we have termed, "The Legacy." Listen to us with all the different types of ears you have. Take us on one level literally, and yet take us not literally at all. For we are now entering a true phase of the construction of dream time.

As we have mentioned before, the understanding is that you exist on an energy level, just as we do. All things are made of the same energy, but there are different frequencies. Our frequency of reality to you is the idea of dream reality, etheric reality. Many individuals on your planet have referred to extraterrestrial consciousness as etherean consciousness. This is, to some degree, quite accurate. It is why it is basically easier for us to communicate with you in this manner than it is to use your physiological radio devices. For we operate on that frequency not at all!!

Biological senders and receivers are far more efficient and usable, once they are trained to identify with the energy of love and acceptance. The energy of light links all mentality, as you are linked not only to every member in your own civilization, but to all other civilizations as well – sometimes in very specific ways, to play out very specific ideas.

We have been allowed at times to briefly discuss with you some of the notions for some of the interactions taking place on your planet that you have called abductions – which we have chosen to call, as we said, temporary detainments. We have also reminded you that these interactions between your species and the alien species we have referred to as the Zeta Reticuli are all done through absolute agreement, even though on your part many of these agreements may be done unconsciously. And they are only brought to the surface reluctantly through the idea of the release of your fear.

But you are serving each other in many ways. We have briefly discussed the understanding, as many of you yourselves are now beginning to realize, that your species operates on a very highly individualistic level, that their species operates on a very highly developed mass consciousness level; and that to each other you are extremely alien.

Just as much difficulty as you have had understanding the idea of how it is to operate as one consciousness, they have difficulty understanding what it is to operate as a single individual, cut off from the whole. And although they do not express it in exactly the same way, in many ways, they have just as much fear and uncertainty about you as you do about them.

You are learning to understand each other; and in understanding and blending with each other, you are performing services for each other. You are boosting and supporting each other’s society, aiding in each other’s transformation. You are giving them what they need; they are giving you what you need – to mature as a species, even as you allow them to also mature as a species.

They have come from an evolution that is completely different from the one you have taken. You are true polarities on many different levels. But now, through these interactions, through these sharings – whether they are understandable on the surface or not – you have begun the true blending in many ways that will allow you both to mature and interact. To become fast friends, side-by-side in your expansion and exploration of the universe – in many ways you cannot yet understand, but ways you will understand in the time to come.

We have shared with you the arbitrary nomenclature... that in various ways we have the existence of our evolution, approximately, 150 to 300 years beyond you. We have told you that this is an arbitrary nomenclature; and we will now endeavor to define and precisely explain the relative frequency of the time span of your reality and our reality. For there will be a seeming time, a temporal paradox, in what we are about to explain about your connection to us. It has already occurred to some of you; it has not occurred, quite surprisingly, to a lot of you.

Once again, what we are about to say you can take in many ways and on many levels very literally. But understand it is also archetypal energy, the sub stream consciousness of your realm, of your realm and of their realm, the Zeta Reticuli.

We have told you that we are the representation of your own future selves, and in many ways that is allegorical. And it is also largely quite literal, reincarnationally speaking. It is at the same time a representation of the parallel type of civilization you yourselves will create upon Earth.

But there is one other way that we also mean it, that we have not really shared with you, and that is this: even as we have endeavored to describe our physical reality, we have not brought you fully to the understanding that we are an exact cross between the idea of your human form and that of the Zeta Reticuli.

We are the children of the blending; we are the hybrids that you are creating. We are your future selves, and have come back to remind you that there is a marriage going on that gives us reality, that supports us. You are in many ways our fathers and our mothers. And we are your children.
We send you our love across the ages. The idea to understand is that this blending is taking place in your time frame; and that an evolution does occur where there is the population of our world and another dimension by the crossbreeding of the Reticuli and the Earth human. We are that population. And that is why we have remained in that other dimension: so that we would not interfere with the marriage that is taking place, so that we would not interfere with the consummation of that marriage. And we would not interfere with your right to experience our birth from your point of view.
But now, because of the timing, and because of the sharing, we can be allowed at this time, with great joy, to share with you that we greet you as your children. And we thank you for allowing us to reflect back to you the brilliant trust you have placed in us, the brilliant future you have given yourselves and the brilliant present you have bequeathed unto us.
There are many more levels to this idea, and we will share those in time as well. But understand that there is a distinct purpose in the creation of our species by the blending of yours and the Reticuli. To a very large degree you are creating the future you desire.
And do remember one other thing, another thing that many of you sometimes do not stop to realize. In our present time, we are also side by side with your future Earth. And we interact together in joy, in harmony, in love. You are our legacy, as much as we are yours.
Our love to you; we thank you for your blessing. We thank you for your strength! We thank you for your love, and our life and our joy. We only give you back what you have given us in allowing us to exist as we do.

Infinite Creation dreams you into ecstatic creations of reality – forever and ever. Shivai!
AUD: Shivai. Shivai.
